THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

VOL XLVI
JAN. TO JUNE
1865

PRINTED & PUBLISHED BY GEORGE C. LEIGHTON 198 STRAND
LONDON.

INDEX TO ENGRAVINGS IN VOL. XLVI.

FROM JANUARY 7 TO JULY 1, 1865.

FRONTISPIECE—The Large View of Liverpool, April 29

COLOURED PICTURE.—"Happiness," April 29

A

Accidents—
Ceylon Railway, near Colombo, 313
Croydon, Scene of the, near, 309
Retinal, on the Shrewsbury and Chester Railway, 172
St. Mary's Roman Catholic Schools, Westminster, 105
Staplehurst, on the South-Eastern Railway, 572
Albert Memorial Industrial Schools (The), Battersea, 436
Algeria, Visit of the Emperor of the French to—Agricultural Exhibition of Boufarik, The Emperor Distributing the Prizes at the, 524
Algiers (The City of), from the Sea, 524-525
Arabs Awaiting the Emperor's arrival at Bidean, 493
Entertaining the Emperor in a Tent, 604
Arrival of the Emperor at Constantine, 568
Batna, The Town of, 605
Caravanserai in the Oasis of Kantara, 605
Constantine, The Town of, 569
Government Palace at, 569
Cortège (The) of the Emperor Arriving at Medeah, 493
Dance of Negroes and Mulattoes in the Streets of Algiers, 496
Dressmaker's Shop in Algiers, 544
Encampment of Arab Tribes near Algiers, 496
Entertainment Given by Marshal Macmahon in Honour of the Emperor, 497
Fort Napoleon, Kabylia, 544
Ironclad Squadron (The) Drawn up to Receive the Emperor at Biere, 493
Irregular Cavalry (Algerine) Forming the Escort of Napoleon at Medeah, 541
Lambessa, Visit of the Emperor to the Roman Ruins of, 604
Landing of the Emperor at Bougiah, 632
Martial Exercises of the Arabs, 605
Mosque (The Grand) at Bona: Decorated, 633
Reception of the Emperor on the Quay at Algiers, 485
Residence of the Emperor at Algiers, 485
Sahara Desert, The Edge of the, 609
Triumphal Arch on the Road to Fort Napoleon, 568
Alnwick Castle, The Seat of the late Duke of Northumberland, 304
Apricot of Torre Cotto, from Florence, 157
Archives (Drawers) on the Pedestal of the Wellington Monument at Liverpool, 157 America, Sketches in—
Confederate Prisoners (Camp of) at Elmira, New York, 568
Conscription (The) in New York, 317
Davis (Flight of President) through Georgia, 317
Federal Ironclad Monadnock (The) Towing a Disabled Gun-boat in a Storm off Cape Hatteras, 605
Fort Fisher (Interior of) During the Second Bombardment, 349
Florida (The) Confederate Steamer, Sunk in the James River, 6
Lafayette (Interior of Fort), New York Barrack, 240
Monty's Men (Rendezvous of) in the Pass of the Blue Ridge, Shenandoah Valley, 86
Powhattan, Fort, 481
Prison in Casemate No. 2, Fort Lafayette, New York Harbour, 349

America, The Civil War in (continued)
Residence of President Davis in Richmond, 481
Review of the Army of the Potomac at Washington, 576
Richmond (The City of) from the James River, 481
Richmond, Virginia, After its Surrender—
Armoury in Ruins of the, 337
Arsenal in, Ruins of the, 337
Savannah, Map of the Environs of, 492
Sherman's (General) March through Georgia, the Illustrating, 66
Wilmington and Cape Fear River, North Carolina, Map of, 152
Antelope, The Prong-horned, 185
Armadillo (The Newly-imported) in the Zoological Society's Gardens, 261 Arms of—
Bradford, the Earl of, 314
Buller, Mr. W., 287
Combermere, Viscount, 214
Chester, The Bishop of, 619
Crofft, Sir D., 99
Conard, Sir S., 449
Dalyell, Sir W. C., 190
D'Averton Countess, Lady Sorel, 386
D'Broisfy, Lord W., 314
Desart, The Earl of, 262
Dynoke, Christ., 626
Fitzgerald, Sir E., 339
Grimsby-Ilgar, Sir R., 99
Guise, General Sir J. W., 362
Ilchester, The Earl of, 75
Kingsale, Lord, 619
Legard, Sir P. D., 123
Londesborough, the Marchioness of, 123
Lubbock, Sir J., 643
Maxwell, Sir J., 291
Maxwell, Sir W. A., 362
Maynard, Viscount, 615
Meredyth, Sir E. N., 339
Northumberland, The Duke of, 190, 205
Roche, Sir B., 386
Staples, Sir T., 315
Wake, Sir W., 386
Waterton, Mr. C., 338
Willoughby, Sir H. F., 314
Wiseman, Cardinal, 190
Wraxall, Sir F. C. L., 619
Ascot Races—
Ascot Cup, The, 613
Ely, the Winner of the Ascot Cup, 613
Hunt Cup, The, 614
Queen's Cup, The, 613
Assassination of President Lincoln—
Arrival of the Body at the City Hall, New York, 472
Meeting of Americans in St. James's Hall, 447
Mourning (The National) in New York for, 456
Procession through Washington with the Body of President Lincoln, 472
Assault at Arms, 89
Atlantic Telegraph Cable (Coiling the) by one of the Tenks on Board the Great Eastern, 129
Finishing the Manufacture of the at Morden Wharf, Greenwich, 533
Atlantic Telegraph Cable (Manufacture by taking the) on Board the Great Eastern, 149
Australian Farmers, Portraits of, 56
Australian Intercolonial Rifle-match, The Champion Team of the Province of Victoria, 145

B

Badger, Japanese, 605
Ball given in the Dublin International Exhibition Building in Aid of the Funded the Irish Academy of Music, 513
Baramula, at the Entrance to the Valley of Cashmere, 109
Basingstoke New Corn Exchange, 304
Battersea Colliery, Monumentalists, 529
Funeral of the Colliers Killed by the Explosion at, 629
Begum Fifty Guineas (The), Indian Pouitry, 192
Bhootan, The War in—
Arms, &c., from Bhootan, 615
Bala Pass, Inside a Stockade in the, 440
Bala Pass, Bhootan, Stormed by the British, 249

Bhootan, The War in (continued)—
Dalimkote (The Fort of), Bhootan, 121
The Expedition to: The Approach to the Himalayas at Julpiguree, 88
Native Troops of the Bengal Army Employed in Bhootan, 600
Soldiers (Armed) of Bhootan, 440
Storming the Stockade of Dewangiri, 600
Villager (Armed) of Bhootan, 440
Birds (Prize) at the Crystal Palace Show, 196
Show at the Crystal Palace, 173
Birmingham, Opening of the New Exchange at, 28
New Exchange Buildings at, 28
Bishop's College, Lennoxville, Lower Canada, 209
Blackfriars Bridge, Diving for Stolen Watches at, 249
Blakely Gun (The), Manufactured for the Russian Government, 328
Blowing up of the Johore, Iron Steamer, off Singapore, 561
Boat-race, The Winners in the University, 381
Bogue, Sussex, The New Pier at, 553
Bombardment of Paysandu, Uruguay, Effects of the, 237
Breakwater and Harbour of Holyhead, 252-253
Brecon, Christ's College, 28
Bridal Gift from the Province of Victoria to the Princess of Wales, 388
Bridge (Opening of the Queen's) at Nantes, 81
Brighton Railway Station on the Saturday Night before the Volunteer Review, 289
Brompton Consumption Hospital, 409
Bucharest, Sketches from—
City of, The, 396-397
Caligala, or Gipsies, 301
House in, 300
Lord Water and Sewerment Seller, 301
Vinegar-seller, 300
Buenos Ayres, The City of, 81
Ruins of the Retiro Barracks at, after the Explosion, 81
Burgoyne (Gen. Sir J. F.) Receiving the Keys as Constable of the Tower of London, 472
Burning of H.M.S. Bombay off Montevideo, 169
Kingston Market-house, Canada West, 148

C

Cairo, Nubar Pacha Laying the Foundation-stone of the New Oriental Hotel at, 177
Callao (The Harbour of), with the Peruvian Fleet, 97
Capetown, Inauguration of a Statue of Governor Sir George Grey at, 21
Lighthouse at Green Point, 37
Royal Observatory, 877
Cardinal Wiseman (Funeral of) in Kensal-green Cemetery, 214
Cathedral at Cork, Laying the Foundation-stone of the New, 97
Chapels—
Ormond-quay, St. John of Jerusalem Roman Catholic, 641
Tottenham-court-road, Whitfield's, 101
Welbeck-street, New Russian Church, 637
China, Tombs of the Emperors of the Ming Dynasty at Nankin, 160
Chinese Exhibition at the Crystal Palace, Articles in the, 416
Pirates (British Vessels Attacking) near Amoy, 368
Christmas Entertainments at the Crystal Palace, 1
To the Poor at the City of London Union at Mile-end, 52
"Christophe Colomb:" Columbus Looking towards America, 128
Christ's College, Brecon, 28
Churches—
Bacup, St. Saviour's, 261
Birchington, 261
Deptford, Christ, 28
Dublin Presbyterian, Rutland-square, 261
Dublin, St. Jude's, 141
Glasgow, Maxwell Presbyterian, 609
Islington, St. Batchelonsew's, 693

Churches—(continued)—
Langthorp, St. Paul's, 105
Naples, English Protestant, 236
St. Doulough, near Dublin, 209
Walworth, St. John's, 261
Wimbaldon, New English, 604
Clarence, Fernando Po, 877
Cochmakers' (The Operative) Exhibition in Cochmakers' Hall, 141
Cobden, Birthplace and Residence of, 249
Funeral of: The Departure from Dunford House, 397
Procession (The) at Cocking Causeway, 397
Interment (The) in West Lavington Churchyard, 360
Coffee-house (Cow's), Great Russell-street, Covent-garden, 645
College (Bishop's), Lennoxville, Lower Canada, 209
College (Christ's), Brecon, South Wales, 28
Cologne, Crystal Palace of the "Flora" Society of, 596
Colours (Presentation of New) to the 57th Foot at Dover, 433
Comet seen at Melbourne, Australia, 260
Confederate Steam-ram Stonewall (The) Leaving Lisbon Harbour, 305
Constantinople, The Salamlik, or Sultan's Reception, at the Seraglio, 89
Co-operative Society (Meeting of the Manchester and Salford) in the Free-trade Hall, Manchester, 289
Cork, Laying the Foundation-stone of the New Cathedral at, 61
Corn Exchange (New) at Basingstoke, 304
Cremorne Gardens, The Sea-beat at, 553
Cremwell House, Highgate, after the late Fire, 97
Crostmas (The Southern Outfall Works at) of the Metropolitan Main Drainage, 525
Float of, 525
Croydon, Scene of the late Accident near, 309
Crypt (The Restored) of St. Stephen's, the Chapel of the Houses of Parliament, 132
Crystal Palace, The—
Bird Show, 173
Birds (Prize) at the Show, 208
Chinese Exhibition at, Articles in the, 416
Christmas Entertainments at, 1
Cutter-match of the Royal London Yacht Club, 624
Czarewitch, The late—
Alexander Newsky (The Russian Frigate) Dropping Anchor in Plymouth Sound, with the Body of, on Board, 160
Embarkation of the Body of, at Taganrog, and the Conveyance to Russia, 480
Russian Squadron Leaving the Tagus with the Body of, 505

D

Dante (The Sexcentenary Festival of) at the Church of La Florence, Reputed Birthplace of, 504
Inauguration of the Statue of Dante, 121
Procession at the Municipalities of Prato, 504
Dead and Dumb Institution (Entertainment to the Children of the Asylum of the Hanover-square Rooms, 73 Dunsark (Earl Cowper Investing the Knights of the Garter with the Order of the Garter, 480
Deptford, Christ Church, 28
Diamond, The Sancy, 243
Dinornis (Leg of the), Gigantic Bird of New Zealand, 545
Diving for Stolen Watches at Blackfriars Bridge, 249
Dog Show (The International) at Islington—
Arrival of Dogs at, 648
Prize Dogs at, 648
Douglas Breakwater, Isle of Man, as Damaged by a Storm, 144
Drainage, The Metropolitan Main (continued)—
Basalgette (Mr.) Explaining the Main Drainage Plans, 544
Engine-house, Interior of the, 545
Luncheon (The) in the Workshop at Crossness, 544
Reservoir, View in the, 528
Reservoir, (The Underground) Illuminated, 548
Wales (The Prince of) Starting the Engines, 541
Dramatic College, The Prince of Wales at the Opening of the Central Hall of the, 565
Dublin Exhibition, The—
Armstrong Guns, Arrival of the, 385
Artillerymen Placing the Gun-carriages in the Building, 401
Ball at the Mansion House in honour of the Prince of Wales, 488
Cascade in the Gardens of the Building, 384
Delivery of Goods at the Foreign and Fine-arts Entrance, 421
Exhibition Building (The) and Winter Garden, 256
Foreign Pictures Gallery of the, 373
Key of the Building, 463
Palace and Winter Garden, East Front of the, 452-453
Pavilion in the Gardens of, 446
Procession through the Sculpture Hall, 469
Under King of Arms receiving the Heads of Arms's Commands to Declare the Exhibition Open, 476-477
Unpacking the Statues, 444
West Entrance to the Building, 445
Dunford House, Midhurst, the Birthplace and Residence of Cobden, 249

E

Embassy of Kickapoo Indians to the Emperor of Mexico, 241
Epsom, Downs, the Railway Station at the Racecourse, 581
Etna, Eruption of Mount, 353
Site of the, 174
Exchange at Birmingham, Opening of the New, 28
Buildings (New) at Birmingham, 28
Eruption of Mount Etna, 353
Extravaganzas and Pantomimes, Scenes from the, 8, 9

F

Fashions (Paris) for February, 89
March, 185
April, 305
May, 401
June, 529
July, 624
Fine Arts—
Baby's Corner, 218
Cat's Portrait, The, 185
Caught! 293
Countess Sir Tristram Hurrying to La Bella Isonte, 157
English Pastoral, 353
Episode of the Retreat from Moscow, An, 9
Girl and Butterfly, The, 493
Gleaners Returning Home, 181
Highland Piper, The, 413
Im Waide, 429
Last Leaflet Match, The, 373
Last Penny, The, 352
Lugano, 429
Out of an Engagement, 352
Philippa Wolverne Imploring Pardon of Ferdinand I. for Her Morganatic Marriage to his Son, 176
Robin Adair, 133
Rustic Courtship, 580
Sisters, The, 580
Song of the Nubian Slave, The, 97
Stitch in Time Saves Nine, A, 412
Fires—
Cromwell House, Highgate, 41
Edinburgh Theatre, 75
Kingston Market house, Canada, 143
Savile House, Leicester-square, 261
Surrey Theatre, 129
Surrey Theatre, Sheffield, 403
Fish-breeding Ponds at Sunbury, 625
Ladder at Hampton, 625
Florence, Allarphaire of Torre Cotta from, 157
House in, the Reputed Birthplace of Dante, 504
Flower Show of the United Horticultural Society, 608

Fort (the New) at the Entrance to New York Harbour, 393
Frankfort-on-the Main, Sketches in, 280
Frost (A Hard) in the Streets of London, 84
Funerals of—
Cobden, Mr., 397, 360
Lorimer, Mr., the Dean of Guild, at Edinburgh, 96
Murray (Duke of), at Paris, 288
Northumberland (Duke of), Lying in State (The), in Alnwick Castle, 317
Procession (The) Entering the Percy Chapel in Westminster Abbey, 317
Passing through Bendgate, Alnwick, 197
Wiseman (Cardinal), in Kensal-green Cemetery, 216

G

Gale, Scene on the River Thames During a, 312
At Tynemouth, 297
German Gymnastic Festival in Paris, 536
Hall, Old St. Pancras-road, Opening of the, 121
Gladiateur, the Winner of the Two Thousand Guineas, and of the Derby, 449
Winning the Grand Prix de Paris at the Longchamps Races, 616
Governor's Island and Fort, New York Harbour, 433
Greenwich Hospital, A Visit to—
Asson Ward, The, 377
Boiling the Tattoo at Sunset, 381
Dining-hall, The West, 280
Entrance to, 385
Kitchen, The West, 381
Nelson's Hat, Sandfloor, and Stockings, 377
Painted Hall, The, 376
Relics of Nelson, 389
Royal Charles Ward, No. 18, Cabin, 377
Smoking Gallery, Chalkwalk, 377
Tea-making, 280
Grey and Ripon (Earl De) Presenting New Colours to the 57th Foot at Dover, 413
Grey (Sir G.) Laying the Foundation-stone of the Mechanics' Institution at Newcastle-on-Tyne, 605
Gymnastic Festival of the Germans in the Pré Catalan, Bois de Boulogne, Paris, 536

H

Harbour and Breakwater of Holyhead, 252-253
Holkham Hall, Norfolk, 53
Ball given in Honour of the Prince and Princess of Wales at, 84
Holyhead Harbour and Breakwater 252-253
House in Florence, the Reputed Birthplace of Dante, 504
Old, in Surrey-street, Southwark, 176
Hyde Park, Progress of the Prince Consort Memorial in, 49

I

Ice-boat on the Neva, 529
India, Sketches in—
Mansfield (Sir W.) Entering Jacobabad, Scinde, 465
Landing at Sukkur, on the Indus, 464
Map of, 468
Wild Tribes of, Defending a Mountain Pass, 469
Industrial Exhibition (The South London) at Chelsea Baths, 141
Inscribing Dragons (Private Theatricals of the) in India, 552
Ipsden, Oxon, Public Well at, 200
Irish Academy of Music, Ball given in the Dublin International Exhibition Building in Aid of the Funds of the, 513
Islington Dog Show, 648, 649
Italy (The King of) Laying the Foundation-stone of the New Buildings in the Piazza del Duomo, at Milan, 273

J

Jacmel, Hayti, 224
Landing at, 224

Jamaica, Port Royal, 296
Japan, Sketches in—
Dalbooth (The), or Colossal Bronze Image of a Buddhist Idol, in the Temple of Kamakura, 193
Excursion of Shimadzu Seiji, at Yokohama, for the Murder of Major Baldwin and Lieutenant Bird, 205
Procession (Japanese) conducting the Criminal through the Streets of Yokohama, 284
Execution of Two of the Murderers of the British Officers, 192
Litter, Japanese, 17
Refreshment-stall in Yokohama, A, 113
Review of British and Japanese Troops at Yokohama, 20
Simonoseki, View from the Upper Battery at, 17
Skating at Yokohama, 192
Soldiers (Japanese) in Yokohama, 113
Temple of Kamakura (Avenue leading to the) near where the two British Officers were Murdered, 176

K
Kartshabruha (the Port of) on the Indus, 109
Kickapoo Indians (Embassy of) to the Emperor of Mexico, 241
King George's Sound, Western Australia, Princess Royal Harbour, 61, 72
Kingston Market-house, Burning of the, 145
Koran, Sketches from—Natives, 12
Port Hamiltor, 12

L
Leaves from a Sketch-book—
Frankfort-on-the-Maine—
Rothschilds' Tower and Gate, The, 249
Judengasse, The, 289
Market-place, The, 249
Old House in, 289
Toledo—
Bridge over the Tagus, 29
Puerta del Sol, 29
Street in, 29
Saved Manufactory (The) in, 29
Tagus (The), and the Convent of St. Joan de los Reyes, 29
Leg of the Dinornis, Gigantic Bird of New Zealand, 545
Life-boat, Upsetting the Liverpool, 93
"Life with the Regulators:" Insult Strategy to Capture a Seat, 129
Passing through Lupton Channel, 128
Lighthouse at Green Point, Capetown, 37
Liverpool, Key to the View of the River and Port of, 417
Launch of Five Steamers at, 189
Loan Collection (The), South Kensington Museum—
Apollo and Daphne, Bronze Group of, 68
St. Paul's Cathedral, Sir C. Wren's Original Model for, 400
Salterlar, Gill, 493
Vase, Bronze, 400
London, A Hard Frost in the Streets of, 84
Thaw in the Streets of, A, 184
Lodgade-hill Station of the London, London, Chatham, and Dover Railway, 857
Lytham New Pier, 415

M
Mace (Ancient Silver) presented to the Mayor and Corporation of Margate, 172
Malta, Erection of the New Iron Shores in her Majesty's Dockyard, 4
Manchester and Salford Co-operative Society (Meeting of the) in the Free-trade Hall, Manchester, 125
March Wind, A, 277
May Games at Wymering, Hampshire—The May Queen, 560
Mersey Ferry, The South Side Landing-stage of the New, 416
Merton Hall, Norfolk, The Moat of the Fox-hounds at, 72
Milan, The King of Italy Laying the Foundation-stone of New Buildings at, 273
Montevideo, The City of, 149
Monuments to—
Bruce, the late General, 593
Prince Consort (The) at Abingdon, Berks, 621
Merry (Funeral of the Duke de) at Paris, 289

Mount Etna, Site of the Eruption of 1864, 194
Museum of Natural History, Prize Designs of the Royal Academy for, 4

N
Naples, Opening of the New English Protestant Church at, 836
Napoleon (Reception of the Emperor) in the Grand Stand at the Longchamps Racecourse, 257
Natal, Opening of the Queen's Bridge at, 21
Newcastle-on-Tyne Mechanics' Institute, Sir G. Grey Laying the Foundation-stone of the, 405
New York, The New Fort at the Entrance to the Harbour of, 393
Veterans of the War of 1812 in the Streets of, 305
Winter Sketches from, 40
New York Harbour, Governor's Island and Fort, 433
Ngee Ngeetties of M.M.S. Investigator: Execution of English Officers to the Negro Town of Bida, 361
Northumberland (Funeral Procession of the Duke of) Passing through Alnwick, 197
Nubar Pasha Laying the Foundation-stone of the New Oriental Hotel at Cairo, 177
New Zealand, Coromandel Gold-diggings in—Digger's Rest, A, 32
Gold District, The, 32-33
Harbour of Coromandel, 32-33
Kopanger Flat, The, 33
Simpson's Hotel, 32
New Zealand Industrial Exhibition, at Dunedin, 457
Exterior of the Building, 457
Main Avenue, The, 457

O
Ocean Match of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, 617
Oath Industrial Exhibition at Lucknow, The, 317
Oxford Crew (The) Winners in the University Boat-race, 381

P
Palmerston (Lord) Delivering the Prizes at the South London Industrial Exhibition, 329 Pantomimes and Extravaganzas Scenes from the—Ashley's, 9
Covent Garden, 8-9
Drury Lane, 8
Haymarket, 9
Her Majesty's, 8-9
Olympic, 9
Princess's, 8
St. Mary's, 8
Surrey, 9
Paraguay, A Rancho in Arayago, 240
View up the River, at Asuncion, 89
Paris Improvements: New Market of the Temple, 229
"Pan" (Scene from the New Extravaganza of) at the Adelphi Theatre, 624
Paysandu, Uruguay, Effects of the Bombardment of—Church (Ruins of the Principal) in the Great Square, 377
Tower and Fort, Ruins of the, 257
Penguin, the Royal, 312
Peter Botte Mountain, Mauritius, Ascent of the—
Climbing the Ladder Rock, 164
General View of the Mountain, 164
Head of the Mountain, The, 164
Pier (The New) at Dogpur, Sussex, 57
Pier of the City of London Union (Christmas Entertainment to), at Row-road, 72
Porpoise in the Zoological Society's Gardens, 89
Portraits—
Baile, the late Dr., 88
Barrington (Right Hon. J.), Lord Mayor of Dublin, 117
Beale, the late Professor, 61
Cardwell (The Right Hon. E.), M.P., Secretary of State for the Colonies, 253
Champion Shots, from Victoria, in the Australian Intercolonial Rifle-match, 145
Charlemont (The Earl of), Mover of the Address in the House of Lords, 161
Combermere, The late Field Marshal Viscount, 213
Cubitt, The late R., 349
Cornevitch (The late), or Imperial Crown Prince of Russia, 441
Darling (The late Wm.), Tailor of Grace Darling, 453

Portraits (continued)—
Dodson (Mr. J. G.), M.P., the New Chairman of Committees in the House of Commons, 272
Enfield (Viscount), M.P., the New Secretary to the Post-Law Board, 313
Finnis (Mr. B. T.), Government Resident of North Australia, 86
Grant (Lieut.-Gen. U. S.), Commander-in-Chief of the Federal Armies, 365
Guinness, Mr. B., 209
Hanbury-Tracy (The Hon. C. D. R.), Seconder of the Address in the House of Commons, 165
Hawkshaw (Mr. J.), C.E., 253
Houghton (Lord), Seconder of the Address in the House of Lords, 165
Johnson (Mr. A.), the New President of the United States, 637
Kmety, The late Hungarian General, 509
Lewis (Mr. J. F.), R.A., 285
Lortimer (Mr.), Dean of Guild, at Edinburgh, 97
Lyell, Sir C., 229
Mahon (Mr. H.), the New Finance Minister of the United States, 328
M'Kinley (Mr. J.), Australian Explorer, 61
Manning (The Most Rev. Dr.), the New Roman Catholic Archbishop of Westminster, 857
Mansfield (Sir W.), the New Commander-in-Chief of the Army in India, 664
Massey (The Right Hon. W. N.), Finance Minister of India, 237
Montefiore, Sir M., 193
Northumberland, The late Duke of, 177
O'Hagan (The Right Hon. T.), the New Justice of the Court of Common Pleas in Ireland, 296
Oxford University Boat Crew—
Brown, Mr. M., 381
Cowsley, Mr. G. D., 381
Hemley, Mr. F. F., 381
Morrison, Mr. A., 381
Raikes, Mr. R. T., 381
Schneider, Mr. H., 381
Senhouse, Mr. R. P., 381
Tottenham, Mr. C. W., 381
Wood, Mr. F., 381
Paxton, The Late Sir J., 601
Sherman (General), of the Federal Army, 45
Stuart (Mr. J. M'Douall), Australian Explorer, 61
Surrey Rifle Volunteers (The 2nd), Officers of, 46
Tasmania, The Last Surviving Natives of, 13
Williamson (Sir H.), Mover of the Address in the House of Commons, 161
Wiseman, The Late Cardinal, 189
Wodehouse (Lord), the Lord Lieutenant of Norfolk, 213
Zulu Kaffirs of Natal, 57
Prè Catelan, The Gymnastic Festival of the Germans in the, 289
Prince Consort (Inauguration of the Berkshire Monument to), at Abingdon, Berks, 621
Memorial in Hyde Park, Progress of the, 497
Princess Royal Harbour, King George's Sound, Western Australia, 73
Port Royal, Jamaica, 296
Ralph (Prince Henry) in St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, 200
Punjaub (Gifts of the Princes of the) to the Prince and Princess of Wales, 432

Q
Queen's New Year's-Day Bounty at Windsor, Distribution of the, 36

R
Racquet-court (New) at Harrow School, 176
Ragged-School Union (Distribution of the Prizes to the Children of the) at Exeter Hall, 209
Railways—
Chichester and Midhurst, Cutting the First Turf of the, 628
Cuyton, The Accident on the, 313
Epsom Downs New Station, 593
London, Chatham, and Dover: Ludgate-hill Station of the, 537
Shrewsbury and Chester, Fatal Accident on the, 472
South-Eastern, Scene of the Fatal Accident on the, 373
Workmen's Penny Train (Arrival of the) at Victoria Station, 272
Regalia, the Winner of the Oaks, 569
Rhenish Provinces (Fiftieth Anniversary of the Restoration of the) to Germany—
Monument to King Frederick William III. (The King of Prussia Laying the Foundation of the) in the Hayumrkt, Cologne, 528
Illumination of the Bridge and City of Cologne on the Evening of the Festival, 528
Rio de Janeiro, The Sugar-loaf Mountain in, 153
Rowing Season, Opening of the Thames, 353
Royal Academy (Prize Design of the) for a Museum of Natural History, 4
Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers' Schools (Distribution of Prizes to), at Woolwich, 93

S
Sailing-match of the Thames Yacht Club, 581
St. James's Hall, Assault of Arms at, 525
St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, The Prince of Wales Laying the Foundation-stone of the New Wing of, 289
Roman Catholic Schools, Westminster, Scene of the Accident at, 289
St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin, 201
Save Stone Light in, 240
Reopening of, 221
St. Paul's Cathedral (Service in) for the Benefit of the Corporation of the Sons of the Clergy, 593
Sahanik (The), or Sultan's Reception, at the Seraglio, Constantinople, 282
Saney Diamond, The, 243
Savile House, Leicester-square, Burning of, 237
Ruins of, 233
Sailors' Home, Well-street, 505
Wales (the Prince of) Opening the New Wing of the, 509
Schooner-match of the Royal Thames Yacht Club, 637
Sculpture—
Bruce, Monument to the late General, 593
Violet and Henry, 881
Schools—
Birkenhead Albert Memorial Industrial, 416
Blenheim, All Saints' Grammar, 128
Harrow, The New Racquet-court at, 176
Reformatory Schools (the Prince of Wales Opening the International Industrial Exhibition of the), as the Agricultural Hall, Islington, 512
Royal Engineers and Royal Artillery (Distribution of Prizes to) at Woolwich, 93
Sea-Bear at Cremorne Gardens, 93
"Setting Dog" (Scene from the New Comedy of) at the Olympic Theatre, 624
Sheep-washing in Australia, 449
Sheerness (Erection of the New Iron) in her Majesty's Dockyard at Malta, 4 Ships—
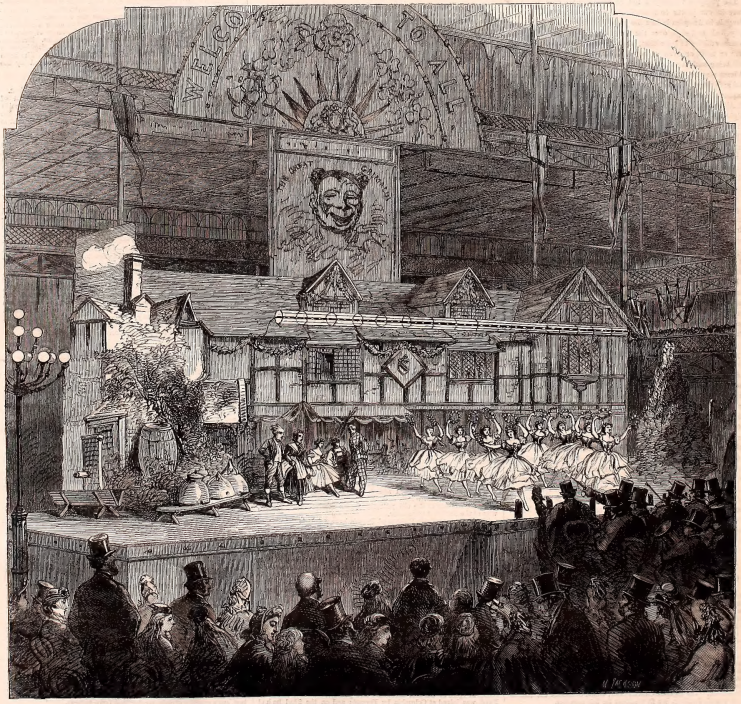
Agincourt, her Majesty's Iron-clad Ship of War, 297
Alexander Nowsky, The Russian Frigate, 869
Amphion Steamer (The) Ashore at Sierringarn, Norfolk, 69
Armenian (The), African Mail Steam-ship, 117
Assaye, Wreck of the, 149
Bombay (H.M.S.) Burnt at Monlmein, 77, 169
Earl Percy Steam-ship Wrecked at Tynemouth, 144
Great Eastern (The), Coaling the Atlantic Cable on Board, 129
Hydaspe Steamer (The) Wrecked near Singapore, 49
Armenian (The), African Mail Steam-ship, 117
Assaye, Wreck of the, 149
Bombay (H.M.S.) Burnt at Monlmeine, 77, 169
Earl Percy Steam-ship Wrecked at Tynemouth, 144
Great Eastern (The), Coaling the Atlantic Cable on Board, 129
Hydaspe Steamer (The) Wrecked near Singapore, 49
Armenian (The), African Mail Steam-ship, 117
Assaye, Wreck of the, 149
Bombay (H.M.S.) Burnt at Monlmeine, 77, 169
Earl Percy Steam-ship Wrecked at Tynemouth, 144
Great Eastern (The), Coaling the Atlantic Cable on Board, 129
Hydaspe Steamer (The) Wrecked near Singapore, 49
Agincourt, her Majesty's Iron-clad Ship of War, 297
Alexander Nowsky, The Russian Frigate, 869
Amphion Steamer (The) Ashore at Sierringarn, Norfolk, 69
Armenian (The), African Mail Steam-ship, 117
Assaye, Wreck of the, 149
Bombay (H.M.S.) Burnt at Monlmein, 77, 169
Earl Percy Steam-ship Wrecked at Tynemouth, 144
Great Eastern (The), Coaling the Atlantic Cable on Board, 129
Hydaspe Steamer (The) Wrecked near Singapore, 49
Armenian (The), African Mail Steam-ship, 117
Assaye, Wreck of the, 149
Bombay (H.M.S.) Burnt at Monlmeine, 77, 169
Earl Percy Steam-ship Wrecked at Tynemouth, 144
Great Eastern (The), Coaling the Atlantic Cable on Board, 129
Hydaspe Steamer (The) Wrecked near Singapore, 49
Ships, Models of (continued)—
Ship of 50 Guns, 1701, 85
Ship of 64 Guns, 1760, 85
Sovereign of the Seas, 1637, 68
Victory (Balcam's), 1737, 85
Victory (Nelson's), 1765, 272
Peruvian Fleet (The) in the Harbour of Callao, 97
Raccoborne (H.M.S.) Wrecked in the Gulf of Pechali, 61
Remains of, 292
Russian Squadron Leaving the Tagus with the Body of the late Czarewitch, 505
Sarawak (The), Confederate Steamer, 353
Tallahassee, The late Confederate War-steamer, 412
Skating at Yokohama, Japan, 529
Skarda, Little Wood, 108-109
Sketch-book, Leaves from a, 29, 289
Sons of the Clergy, Festival of the—
Banquet in Merchant Taylors' Hall, The, 601
Service in St. Paul's Cathedral, The, 600
South London Industrial Exhibition at the Lambeth Baths, 141
Lord Palmerston Delivering the Prizes at the, 329
Prize Medal of the, 354
Wales (The Prince of) at the, 237
South Kensington Museum, Models of Ships in the, 68, 85, 292
Southwark, Old House in, 171
Southwark-street, Borough, 105
Statues—
Dante (The Poet), at Florence, 594
Grey (Sir C. J.), at Capetown, 21
Prince Consort, 593
Statue-gallery (Art-Union), at Edinburgh, 304
Wilson (Professor), at Edinburgh, 304
Statuette of the Prince of Wales, 609
Streets of London, A Hard Frost in the, 84
Sugar-loaf Mountain (The), Rio de Janeiro, 153
Surrey Theatre, Ruins of the, 129

T
Tattersalls' New Buildings, The First Sale at, 284
Telegraph Cable (Shipping the Atlantic) on Board the Great Eastern, 129
Testimonials to—
Art-Union of London, The Honorary Secretaries of the, 249
Liddell, Sir J., 589
Thaxby, Lieut.-R., J., 176
Thames Embankment (The) in Course of Construction from Westminster to Blackfriars, 180-181
Progress of the, at the Temple Gardens, 181
View of, from Westminster Bridge, 369
Thames (Scene on the River) during the Gale, 129
Thames Yacht Club, Sailing-Match of the, 581
Thaw (A) in the Streets of London, 184
Theatres—
Adelphi, Scene from the New Extravaganza of "Pan," at the, 624
Edinburgh (Ruins of the) after the Fire, 73
Olympic, Scene from "Setting Dog," at the, 261
Surrey, Ruins of the, 129
Surrey, Sheffield, Burning of the, 509
Theatricals (Private) of the Inniskilling Dragoons in India, 552
Toledo, Sketches in, 29
Tombs of the Emperors of the Ming Dynasty, at Nankin, China, 160
Town's Coffee-house, Cross Russell-street, Covent-garden, 545
Turf-bet (Old), formerly belonging to, 589
Tynemouth, Gale at, 297

V
Veterans of the War of 1812 in the streets of New York, 305
Volunteer Movement, The—
Atlantic Steamer (The) Chosen of the Civil Service, at Beaufort House, Walham-green, 441
Badge worn by the English "Twenty" at the International Rifle Contest, at Wimbledon, 18
Berwick-on-Tweed, Sham Fight at, 601
Exeter Monday Review on Brighton Downs—
Attack of the Left Wing on the Right of the Defence, 797
Brighton Railway Station on the Saturday Night before the Review, 289
Volunteer Movement (continued)—
General Attack, The, 309
Muster on the Level, The, 296
Rifle and Carbine Prize-Match in Shepcote Valley, 396
Edinburgh, Sham Fight in, 440
Hong Kong Rifles (Visit of the) to Macao, 45
Kentish Corps (Review of the) on Chatham Lines, 641
Somerset, Review and Sham Fight at, 608
Surrey (The 2nd) Artillery Practising at Broad, 45
Officers of, 45
Westmoreland Rifles, Encampment of the 3rd, 640

W
Wales, The Prince of—
Dramatic College, H.R.H. at the Opening of the Central Hall of the, 557
Great Eastern Steam-ship (H.R.H. Visiting the) to Inspect the Atlantic Telegraph Cable, 129
Phœnix Park, H.R.H. Reviewing Troops in, 449
Reformatory Schools (H.R.H. Opening the International Industrial Exhibition of the), at the Agricultural Hall, Islington, 512
St. Mary's Hospital, Paddington, H.R.H. Laying the Foundation-stone of the New Wing of, 529
Sailors' Home (H.R.H. at), Opening the New Wing of the, 509
South London Industrial Exhibition at Lambeth Baths, H.R.H. at the, 297
Statuette of, 609
Wales, The Prince of—
Bridal Gift from the Province of Victoria to, 289
Medal Commemorative of the Public Entry of H.R.H. into the City of London, 296
Wales, The Prince and Princess of—Ball at Buckham House, Norfolk, in Honour of, 44
Gifts of the Princes of the Punjaub to, 432
Merton Hall, Norfolk, Visit of their Royal Highnesses to, 72
Walton House, the Residence of the late Mr. Waterton, 416
Waterloo, Funeral at, 261
Grave of, 893
Wedgwood, Illustrations from the Life of, 884
Wellington Monument at Liverpool, Bronze Allo-relievo on the Pedestal of the, 137
Well (Public) at Ipsden, Oxon, 200
West London Industrial Exhibition (Opening of the) at the Floral Hall, Covent-garden, 405
Waterloo, The New English Church at, 504
Whitehall Literary Institute, 105
Wind, A March, 277
Windsor, Distribution of the Queen's New-Year's-Day Bounty at, 36
Winter Garden, Dublin, 260
Winter in New York—
Omnibus Sleigh, 60
Skating by Night in the Central Park, 60
Wrecks—
Amphion Steamer off the Coast of Norfolk, 69
Armenian (The) African Mail Steam-ship in St. George's Channel, 117
Assaye East Indiaman, off the Coast of Ireland, 149
Earl Percy Steam-ship (The) at Tynemouth, 144
Leila, 93, The
Hydaspe Steamer (The) near Singapore, 49
Raccoborne Steamer of H.M.S.) in the Gulf of Pe-che-li, 393
Wymering, Hants, May Games at, 560

Y
Yacht Club—
London, Cutter-match of the Royal, 624
Thames, The Ocean Match of the Royal, 617
Sailing-match of the, 581
Schooner-match of the, 637



Z
Zoological Society's Gardens, Animals, &c., at the—
Antelope, The Prong-horned, 185
Armadillo, The, 361
Badger, Japanese, 689
Penguin, The Royal, 312
Porpoise, the, 89

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1296.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JANUARY 7, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE YEAR BEFORE US.

Who is not wistful to peer into the year before us beyond even the possibilities of human prescience? Who, if he were endowed with the power of seeing to the end of the twelvemonth next to come as distinctly as he can look back upon the beginning of the year just past, would not tremble to interrogate so distant a future? We have just enough prevision to enable prudence to advance—not enough to gratify idle curiosity; light enough to guide our footsteps—not enough to paralyze our will. To the extent that we can see into the future, there are good practical reasons for our taking pains to see—beyond that very short distance foreknowledge would kill our best motives. Why, then, do we propose to take the bearings of the year before us? Not to prophesy, as some compilers of almanacks prescribe the weather; but simply to note the tendency of things that new are, as Admiral Fitzroy notes existing meteorological conditions, and to draw from them, as he does, such deductions of probability as may serve our immediate need.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS AT THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

The year 1865 opens auspiciously for Europe. Undoubtedly, there still remain unsettled questions of sufficient magnitude to tempt a breach of the peace, if other considerations of precedent and regulation did not forbid the yielding to temptation. The case, however, stands thus:—The Powers between which there is ground of quarrel suffer too seriously from financial exhaustion to desire a precipitation of the struggle; and nevertheless, each regards as inevitable, and both of them are fain to recruit themselves by means of an informal and indefinite truce; while the Powers which are in a position to go to war crave neither more nor less than the maintenance and consolidation of peace. The horizon, looking hence easterly, is clear. Not a presage of armed collision between nation and nation is to be seen in Europe. There is no "little cloud, not bigger than a man's hand," rising to out of the sea, which portends a coming storm within the present year. England will be but too happy to be allowed, in consistency with her plighted honour, to set on the principle of non-intervention. France declares by the mouth of her Emperor that she will always endeavour, in her relations with foreign nations, to be guided by respect for right and a love of peace and justice. Russia, having subdued and annexed Poland, requires rest to put in order her internal affairs. Prussia has sheathed the sword, content, for the present, with her military glory, and wary lest in seeking more she should invite Germany. The minor Powers desire nothing better than to be let alone. Even "the party of action" discern the wisdom of biding their time. All is quiet, and, if existing appearances are not wholly delusive, promises to remain so for some time to come. The rumours that fill the air speak not of war, but of a reduction of armaments. The thoughts and hopes of the nations take that direction. Can we commence the year with a happier omen?

The prospect westerly is not so auspicious. Would that it were in our power to foretell the certain termination of the struggle in America before the year 1865 has closed! We can only look and sigh over the rein that is there running its course, and try to hope that, when the curb comes another day, year or next, or even at some point of time beyond them, it will bring with it some compensation, which future generations at least may regard as commensurate with immediate sacrifices and sufferings. It is to be trusted that with most assigns the respect of our own international relations. The discharge of the St. Albans raiders by Judge Coursal, upon a mere technical flaw, might easily open the way to war between us and our transatlantic kinsmen if the two Governments were not animated by a spirit of self-restraint towards each other. Happily, as on the part of Canada the judgment of its legal officer has been spontaneously repudiated, so on the part of the United States the weak order of its military officer has been promptly countermanded; and where there is a frank recognition of each other's good faith, and an evident desire on both sides to clear up accidental misunderstandings, we need not allow our anxiety to deepen into apprehension. Hitherto the war has been carried on almost without compromise, and, with it, amicable relations with Mr. Lincoln's Government. There is ground enough in the facts of which we have present information for regarding a rupture between the two great English-speaking nations as not so a calamity which is equally and earnestly deprecated by both, and is therefore improbable.

Home prospects, assuredly, are not of an exciting order. If her Majesty's subjects could infer from the occasional and partial emergence of their Sovereign from the seclusion of her great grief that, without too intolerable a strain upon her feelings, the Queen would graciously resume before the opening year her public position at their head, they would hail the promise with rapturous delight; but if this cannot yet be, their loyalty is true to suffer any abatement of its warmth, while they eagerly watch for any symptomatology of the healing of that wound the depth of which their appreciation of the wisdom and worth of her deceased consort enables them to understand. In other respects the present is too flattering to be much troubled by anticipations of the future. The Budget, the estimates of which even an approaching general election scarcely raises into a ripple. No grand Ministerial questions are looked for during the remaining lifetime of the present Parliament, unless another Budget of taxation may be required. There are indications, also, that our monetary condition is subsiding into normal ease and quietude. The bullion in the Bank of England stands not far below the average of the last twenty years, and the Bank of France holds what it never has this last year. Recklessness of speculation has been severely checked. Healthy trade is getting increased elbow-room. Brand is cheap. Stocks of colonial and foreign produce are large, the cotton difficulty, if not at an end, is nearing one and more manageable. On the whole, the domestic outlook is prevailingly bright; and we start this year with cheerful anticipations and in good spirits.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENTS AT THE CRYSTAL

THE Illustration on our front page represents a scene in the Christmas entertainments which have been going on for the last week at the noble transept of the Crystal Palace. The platform in front of Shakspeare's House has been converted into a stage for the gambols of Harlequins with Columbines and Clowns, or for the dangerous feats of lightning gymnasts on the trapeze; the graceful evolutions of Mr. Jackson Haines, the American Skater; the grotesque contortions of Herr Willie, "the Flexible Gnome;" the rope trick, performed in a closed cupboard or watch-box, by the Brothers Nemo, without any diabolical aid; or the intelligent dog whom Jean Bont has taught to behave like a thinking animal. A pantomimic ballet, composed by Mr. Nelson Lee, was the concluding spectacle on the evening of Boxing Day: and it is this which has formed the subject of our illustration. The gigantic Clown's head, which overlooks the roof of Shakspeare's dwelling, is a fit president for this occasion.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor, according to custom on New-Year's Day, received the Corps Diplomatique on Sunday at the Tuileries. The Papal Nuncio presented to the Emperor the congratulations of the body, and his Majesty, in reply, said a few words which, while they touched upon no political question, were in a remarkable degree full of assurances of good relations between the European States. He declared that, for his own part, he should always endeavour to keep up the most friendly States to be guided by respect for right and a love of peace and justice. His Majesty afterwards conversed with several of the Ambassadors.

Last Sunday the Emperor received the new Spanish Ambassador, M. Mon, and expressed to him his hope that the relations between France and Spain would continue upon the most satisfactory footing.

The usual New-Year's Eve srenade, by the bands of the army of Paris and of the National Guards, took place in the Tuileries Gardens. Their Majesties and the Imperial Prince frequently appeared on the balcony and bowed their thanks.

Prince Napoleon has been appointed a member and vice-president of the Privy Council, which the Moniteur points out as a fresh proof of the confidence which the Emperor has in the Prince. On Monday the Emperor presided over a Privy Council, at which Prince Napoleon took his place for the first time.

The Empress has transmitted to the French Ambassador at Madrid a sum of 40,000 reals, to be distributed in her name among the sufferers by the inundations at Valencia.

The Moniteur publishes decrees making one promotion to the rank of Commander in the Legion of Honour; one to that of officer, two nominations of knights, and granting 112 military medals.

M. Baroche, the Minister of Justice, has addressed a circular to the archbishops and bishops, advising them that certain portions of the projected Municipal Law of Paris contain expressions contrary to the principles on which the Constitution is founded, and therefore their publication ought not to be authorised. They are however recommended their clergy to abstain from observations on the document which might give rise to any unpleasantness.

Several decrees favourable to commerce have appeared in the Moniteur.

The Emperor, it is said, is about to cause the Imperial Guard to take their turn with the Line in doing duty in the provinces instead of enjoying the monopoly of garrisoning the capital.

M. Yvon, the historical painter, has been appointed by Marshal Vaillant sole Director of the Imperial Museum of Arms and Fine Arts, which were hitherto confided to the care of a new professor every month.

Several workmen have left Paris for Egypt, to set up machinery for sugar-refining on the banks of the Nile.

ITALY.

On New-Year's Day the King of Italy received a deputation from the Parliament, congratulating his Majesty on the new year. Victor Emmanuel, in reply, recommended them to hasten their labours, and expressed a hope that the discussion of Lord Palmerston's note would be concluded. In the evening his Majesty visited the Royal Theatre in Turin. He was received with enthusiastic cheers.

Signor Sella has drawn up a report upon the results of the demand made by Government for the payment of the land tax in advance. Five sixths of the amount, or nearly already been paid, and the Minister states that the success of the measure is certain.

The Admiralty Court has decided that a circular cautioning merchants in their transactions with the "United States" against the contraband articles in the cargo of the American paper money.

On the day following Christmas Day the Pope received the members of the Sacred College, Bishops and abbots, to whom he addressed a speech in which he said that in the present day robbery was committed under the pretext of nationality, and that the Church was despoiled under the guise of that triumph being uncertain. His Holiness added that, after witnessing the destruction of the enemies of the Holy See and the triumph of truth and justice, he would sing his canticle, "Nunc dimittis," and letter Thou Thy servant depart in peace!" All the foreign Ambassadors, including the Count de Sartiges, were present at the solemn audience of the Pope.

On New-Year's Day the Pope, in receiving the homage, the congratulations, and sentiments of devotion presented by General de Montebello, in the name of the French army, in a touching speech, said: "Similar sentiments of the French army were manifested to me at Easter by a general who is now a cardinal, and, unfortunately, as in the other generals who have commanded the French army, and who generously hastened to defend Rome, I could not observe any regret for this army, for him who directs the destinies of France, for his good clergy, and for all French Catholics. At the present time I shall not cease to pray for them, and bless the Emperor, the Empress, the Empress, and the Imperial family, that God may accord them all necessary aids and graces."

AUSTRIA.

An Imperial decree, issued on Tuesday, convokes the Servian National Congress and the synods of the Eastern Greek Servian Bishops, the synods of the Archiepiscopal Metropolitan Eastern Greek Roman Catholics in Transylvania and Hungary is also ordered.

It is stated that the new Austrian Commissioner in Schleswig has been instructed to maintain the provisional possession of Holstein and Schleswig proclaimed in 1848.

The Neue Freie Presse asserts that the object of Prince Charles of Prussia's visit to Vienna is to strengthen the ties of alliance between Austria and Prussia, which have unfortunately become loosened.

PRUSSIA.

Prince Alfred arrived at Berlin on Tuesday morning from Gotha, and was received by the King immediately after his arrival.

On New-Year's Day the King and Queen, according to custom, received the congratulations of the members of the Royal family, of the general and other officers, and of the officials of the Court, and Ministers and Ambassadors, and at the appointed hour, 12 o'clock. At reception of the general officers his Majesty warmly expressed the thanks which the army merited for what it had done during the past year. At the reception of the Ministers, Count Bismarck, Prince Frederick Charles Wedel, and Manstein for the conduct of the army, and the Prince of Prussia, Admiral Von Arnim, and Count Von Itzenplitz, Field Marshal Count Wrangel replied on the part of the army, and concluded with a cheer for the King. Each time the King

By an order of the King directed to the Ministry of State, and dated on the 24th ult., a certain class of officers receive the benefit of an annuity on occasion of the conclusion of peace.

A Royal decree has been issued convoking the two houses of Parliament for the 14th inst.

On the last day of the old year the Queen received Lady Napier, wife of the British Ambassador.

The Roman Catholic Bishops of Prussia have united in sending an address to the King, in which they express their loyalty and devotion. The event which has given occasion to this address is the case of the three Queen's Councillors, who, as was reported in the papers, have been dismissed from the army immediately after an examination to which they were subjected by their superior officers in regard to their views about duelling, in which they declared that, as members of the Roman Catholic Church, they had conscientious objections to the practice. There obtains, it seems, in the Prussian army a barbarous "law of honour," which compels every officer to make the most inexcusable affront a matter of life and death.

DENMARK.

The project of the new Constitution, arranged to meet the altered circumstances of the State, has been published. In its principal portions it is the same as the fundamental law of June 5th, 1849. It adopts the principal of universal suffrage for the elections to the Representative Chamber, and maintains that of full liberty for all citizens.

AMERICA.

By the arrival of the Hibernia we have news from New York to the afternoon of Dec. 24.

General Hood's defeated army succeeded in crossing the Duet's river, in spite of General Thomas's hot pursuit. On the 26th ult. Hood was joined at Columbia by Forrest; and on the 22nd he had reached Pulaski, seventy-five miles south of Nashville, still closely pressed by the Federal cavalry. The Federal accounts estimate Hood's losses at 12,000 men killed, wounded, and taken prisoners; and represent Thomas's losses not to have exceeded 3000 men.

General Sherman's reports on the 15th ult., from Ossiaan Sound, that he had captured Fort M'Allister, opened communication with the fleet, destroyed the railroads leading to Savannah, and invested the city. He had rested on the Savannah River, three miles above the city, and his right on the Ogeechee River, at King's Bridge. He had taken many guns and immense stocks. His army was in splendid order, and amply supplied with provisions. During his march of 300 miles he had encountered only four slight cavalry, and he arrived in front of Savannah with more stores, provisions, and horses than when he started. Also, 700 negroes joined him on the route. He destroyed 200 miles of railroad. He estimates the garrison of Savannah, under Hardee, at 13,000, with about 25,000 inhabitants. According to Confederate despatches, Sherman was still at Savannah on the 20th ult.; and there was no further intelligence respecting the progress of General Sherman's operations. A letter from Admiral Dahlgren states that he is burying the Savannah River for an absolute blockade, to the bewilderment of the rebels.

The Southern journals allegad that General Breckenridge had defeated the Federal forces at Dandridge, in the north-east portion of Saltville, in Western Virginia.

Admiral Porter's fleet at Beaufort was reported by a Confederate telegram to have been in sight from Fort Fisher, near Wilmington, on the 21st ult.; and the Confederate commander, General Bragg, added in his despatch a confident declaration that he could hold Wilmington. It was said also that Porter's fleet had been repulsed by a storm, and no immediate attack on Wilmington was expected.

Advices received at New York state that the exchange of prisoners at Charleston had been resumed, the husbandmen of the city will be immediately recommenced.

The Federal Government at Natchitoss has been blown up by a torpedo at Mobile.

Mr. Lincoln has cancelled General Dix's order as to the pursuit of raiders across the frontier into Canada. Some of the New York papers consider that the Government in so doing has failed to express an armed force for the Lakes.

A daring attempt to burn has been ordered. All steamers are also ordered to retain their regiments immediately.

Secretary Fessenden is about to contract a new loan of 100,000,000 dollars.

Mr. Seward has ordered that persons coming to the United States, except immigrants, shall have passports. The immigrants, however, specially to persons coming from the British provinces.

Both Houses of the Federal Congress had adjourned to the 9th inst.

Gold was quoted at New York, on the afternoon of the 24th ult., at 209.

In the Southern Congress there have been some noteworthy movements. First, a resolution has been introduced to send commissioners to treat with Federal Government upon the question of peace. Mr. Foote, a member of the Confederate Senate, made a speech, in which he declared the Confederacy to be on the verge of ruin, and blamed Jefferson Davis for the military disasters. Mr. Foote afterwards withdrew from the Senate. The Richmond Examiner says that General Lee has been forced to the front. The same paper declares that if independence can only be attained by the sacrifice of slavery that sacrifice must be made.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Canadian Parliament is summoned to meet on the 19th inst.

A proclamation has been issued by the Governor-General of Canada calling out a large force of volunteer militia to prevent raids from Canada into the United States, and to maintain order on the frontier. Thirty companies of Canadian volunteers have been sent to the frontier.

Three of the St. Albans raiders have been recaptured. The discharge of all of them by the Canadian Circuit is considered by both the Government and rebel newspaper organs in Canada, and the majority of the people, to be a flagrant violation of the critical condition in which the relations between the American States and Great Britain have been placed by it. Mr. Lumoine, the chief of the Montreal police, had resigned, it was believed, in consequence of the dissatisfaction of merchants of Montreal had addressed a memorial to the Governor-General setting forth that the discharge of the raiders practically should be maintained between the belligerent States of America.

The Halifax papers publish the official despatch from Lord Monck to the Governor-General of Canada, dated the 3rd ult., expressing satisfaction that the Canadian authorities had promptly arrested the recent international conference. A reconsideration of two points, however—the question of the acceptance of pardon and the constitution of the Legislative Council—is recommended. It is suggested that the colonies should send a deputation to London, to be present during the preparation of the Bill, and to carry out the measures proposed, that they may give the Government the benefit of their counsel upon any questions of difficulty.

A fatal collision happened on the Detroit and Port Huron Railway, a short line in the State of Michigan, worked by the Grand Trunk Railroad Company, on the 15th ult., by which, according to one account, 15 persons were killed and a considerable number injured. The secretary of the company, however, declares that the published statements of the accident are gross exaggerations, and that only one man was killed and a few persons received bruises.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Fine specimens of iron ore have been recently discovered near Lanchester.

The Cockermouth, Keswick, and Penrith Railway was opened on Monday, without ceremony.

The Dublin Morning News, the organ of the Ultramontane party in Ireland, died with the old year. It had been in existence six years.

Mr. John Hargreave, of Manchester, the founder of Rishworth, has resigned his appointment, owing to failing health. Mr. Hargreave was elected to the magistracy in 1838.

The births registered in Dublin during the weeks ending Dec. 3rd and 10 were 340 and 341, and the deaths were 344 and 179 for the same period. The population of Dublin is estimated at 264,894 in the middle of 1864.

The election of Coroner for the western district of Glamorganshire, rendered vacant by the death of the late Mr. Alexander Nicholson, took place at the Townhall, Neath, last week. The only candidate was Mr. Howell Gwyn, who was accordingly elected Coroner without opposition.

An association, under the guidance of Ladies Emma Talbot, Lucia Mostyn, and others, is about to commence in the manufacturing districts of the workhouse orphan girls, with a view to service, at the West Derby Union, with the view of training the gentlemen.

Mr. Filkington, M.P., in the course of a speech at Blackburn, on Monday evening, said that, although he could not take a very hopeful view of the cotton trade for the present year, he felt certain there would be more employment than there had been in the past two years.

On Tuesday night Dr. Cheadle read before the members of the Leeds Philosophical and Literary Society a paper descriptive of an expedition the Rocky Mountains into British Columbia, accomplished by himself and Viscount Milton.

The ordinary income of the Liverpool Corporation last year amounted to £645,749, of which £12,491 was contributed by the markets, £10,000 by the corporation property, £30,000 by rates, and the rest, £593,257. The extraordinary expenditure included £200,000 received as compensation for the loss of the Mersey Docks.

The Leeds Working Men's Conservative Association gave a complimentary dinner to Mr. C. S. Bentinck, the Conservative member for Leeds, on Monday evening last. The repast was served in the new Corn Exchange, and was presided over by Mr. Maddonne, the president of the association. Upwards of 600 persons were present at dinner, and many more were afterwards admitted.

The Queen's customary New-Year's gifts to the poor of Windsor were distributed on Monday. Her Majesty devised for the charitable purpose £200, which was given away as follows:—Forty-nine persons were recompensed at the rate of 2s. per week during the year, they receiving poor widows they conducted the best-kitchen residents. To these £50 of these the Queen's tickets, which entitled to a gift of four, five, or six pounds of beef, and a quantity of coals, varying from 1 cwt. to 2 cwt.

The Queen has approved of Mr. Oscar Steveni as Vice-Consul at Great Grimsby for the Grand Duke of Mecklenburg-Schwerin.

The Blackburn Infirmary, which has been erected at a cost of £25,000, was on Monday formally opened. It has been built from designs furnished by the late Mr. Turnbull, of Manchester. The founder is Mr. William Pilkington, of Wilpshire Grange, near Blackburn, and brother of Mr. J. Pilkington, M.P., who gave £2000 as a donation for that purpose, and £100 a year perpetuity for its support, during his mayoralty, in 1856-7. The infirmary stands on an elevated site three-quarters of a mile from the town, and commands an extensive view of the surrounding country.

The annual meeting of the Exeter School of Art was held on Monday, in the Market House, Exeter. Sir S. Northcote, the president, was in the chair, and among those present were Sir John Bowring and the High Sheriff of Exeter (Mr. Cooper). Sir Stafford Northcote explained the proceedings of the Committee on art-education which sat last Session; and, while he admitted that the central school of South Kensington required to be stirred up, he insisted that the interests of the schools in the provinces were not neglected.

A meeting for the purpose of forming an association for the reform of the law of landlord and tenant and the abolition of the Church establishment took place on Thursday week, in the Rotundo, Dublin. The Lord Mayor occupied the chair. There was a very large attendance, particularly of the Roman Catholic clergy. Dr. Cullen; Mr. Maguire, M.P.; Dr. Leahy, Roman Catholic Archbishop of Cashel; and Dr. Keane, Roman Catholic Bishop of Cloyne, were present. With some slight exceptions, the proceedings were quiet and orderly.

The "inauguration" of Mr. John Barrington as Lord Mayor of Dublin took place on Monday. There was a violent debate on the proposition to award a vote of thanks to the ex-Lord Mayor, Mr. M'Swiney, several of the Conservative members urging that they could not assent to such a vote in consequence of the part taken by Mr. M'Swiney at the meeting recently held in Dublin for the purpose of organising a movement aiming, amongst other things, at the abolition of the Irish Church. His conduct in heading the procession on the occasion of laying the corner-stone of the O'Connel monument was also censured. The vote was, however, carried by thirty-one to ten votes.

In a speech at Oxford, on Monday, Mr. Cardwell, the Secretary of State for the Colonies, briefly referred to the case of the St. Albans raiders, which has assumed such grave importance. He said that no men were more sensible than the Governor-General of Canada and his advisers of that which was due to the honour of the British Crown and to the inviolate neutrality of British territory; and it was certain that, if the present law in Canada were adequate, they would carry it into execution with promptitude and vigour; and that if, on the other hand, the present law were found inadequate, it would not long be suffered to remain so.

The Exhibition of Irish Products and Manufactures, in connection with the Royal Dublin Society, was brought to a close on Saturday evening with a grand concert. The exhibition was inaugurated on the 25th of May last, and has consequently been open for rather more than seven months. The articles exhibited were, it is said, so various and excellent as to give general satisfaction, besides creating the cheering suggestion that, with energy and enterprise to develop the national capabilities of the country and the industry and skill of the people, Ireland may yet attain eminence for the amount and value of her manufactures. As regards the financial results of the exhibition, the receipts will leave a small balance in hand.

The Equitable Co-operative Society of Manchester and Salford, which was established five years ago, has just built and opened a large central store, and a meeting to commemorate this extension of its operations was held on Saturday last. It was stated, during the proceedings, that the society began with a capital of £100, which was now £9300; that business had been done to the extent of £150,000, bearing a net profit, after the payment of working expenses, of more than £8000; and that £5870 had been divided among the members and customers who are not members. The residue of the profits had been variously applied—part to the formation of a reserve fund, part to the payment of interest on capital deposited by the members, and other amounts to educational and benevolent purposes. The new central store and hall cost rather over £3000. The Mayor of Manchester presided.——The Wellington Co-operative Mill, Elton, near Bury, was opened on Monday. It is a spacious and handsome structure, the property of the Bury Co-operative Manufacturing Company. A collection of working people and their friends assembled upon the upper floor in the afternoon, and, after tea, the chair was taken by Mr. R. N. Phillips. Sir J. P. Kay-Shuttleworth, High Bailiff of Lancashire, was the chief speaker.

A fine iron sailing-ship was launched last Saturday at the Birkenhead Ironworks (Messrs. Laird Brothers), and named after one of the celebrities of India—Sorabjee Jamsetjee Jeejeebhoy. The ship has been built to register at Lloyd's A A 1 grade of classification. She will be fitted with iron masts and steel lower yards, and has a topgallant forecastle for the crew, a deckhouse amidships for petty officers, and a poop containing captain's and officers' cabins. Her dimensions are:—Length, 200 ft.; beam, 35 ft.; depth of hold, 23 ft.; register, about 1200 tons.——The new steam-ram Abdul Aziz was launched yesterday week from the shipbuilding yard of Messrs. Robert Napier and Sons, Govan, amidst a large concourse of spectators. This vessel is the second of the three rams which the Messrs. Napier and Sons were appointed to build for the Turkish Government, and is in all respects similar to the Osman Ghazy, which was launched on the 2nd of September last from the same yard. The dimensions are—length over all, 300 ft.; extreme breadth, 56 ft.; depth, moulded, 37 ft.; tonnage, O.M., about 4200; load draught, nearly 25 ft. The vessel is plated from stem to stern, projects in ram style at the prow, and carries twenty-four guns of heavy calibre, including four 110-pounders.——On Saturday last a paddle-wheel steamer of 1000 tons burden, called the Mazeppa, was launched from the shipbuilding yard of Mr. Mackern, on the Marsh, at Preston. The Mazeppa is the largest vessel ever launched in the Ribble. She has been built in order to run the blockade.

ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.—An exhibition of gymnastic performances was to have taken place at Dundee on Monday night, in a hall to which entrance is gained by a descending staircase of thirteen steps. A large crowd had assembled outside to obtain admittance, and pressed against the door. One half of it was opened; the other half was forced in by the crowd, and those who stood in front were thrown headlong to the bottom of the stairs, where they fell over each other. Those further back continued to pour in, only to increase the mass of prostrated bodies within the building. Above half an hour elapsed before the space could be cleared, and then ten men and nine women were taken out dead. A great many others were seriously injured.

A steam-boat collision took place, on Thursday week, in the Clyde, near Gourock, by which the Earl of Carlisle ran down the Guy Fawkes in mid-channel, and four men were drowned.

At Preston a mill belonging to Messrs. Birley was burnt down last Saturday. The fire, which was confined to one building, has thrown 250 hands out of work, or about one third of the number employed, who were working full time.

As Major Duff and party were roe-hunting in a wood near Drummuir, the body of a woman was found covered with snow. She is supposed to have been an inmate of the Glasgow workhouse, and to have perished in the heavy snowstorm about three weeks ago.

A child of two years and a half old has been shot at Coclhester by its brother, aged only six, who was handling a gun that had been left loaded.

The master and mate of a Russian ship have been suffocated at Grimsby through having a charcoal fire in the cabin.

As Lieutenant Langworthy, of the 7th Fusiliers, was driving into Yeovil, from his father's house, his horse took fright at a volunteer band, and, plunging into the crowd, killed a man named Lear on the spot.

At Little Common, Wilts, some men were felling a large elm, when a sudden change of the wind carried it in an unexpected direction, and it fell upon a Mrs. Barnard and her little boy, who were looking on, killing them both.

At Leeds Mr. Alexander Blaxland a teadealer, destroyed himself last week by an overdose of chloroform for the purpose of easing pain and obtaining sleep. A medical man warned him several times against the danger of doing so, and he was found dead, with a bottle containing chloroform by his side.

There was a heavy fall of snow on Dartmoor on Saturday night. The roads were blocked up. A young man, a schoolmaster belonging to the convict prisons, lost his life in attempting to walk from Tavistock to the prisons at Princetown, a distance of seven miles. His body was found in a snowdrift on Sunday night by the prison officers. Another man had a narrow escape; he was found insensible.

The recent poisoning of a mother and four children, near Wrexham, is still a mystery, the Coroner's jury having returned an open verdict. The father, who is the sole survivor of the family, is still suffering from the arsenic.

A most impudent robbery took place last week at Shrewsbury. A person who gave the name of Morgan, and said he was a constable from Carmarthen, visited that town, and, putting himself in communication with the police, stated that he held a warrant for the apprehension of a thief, who he had reason to believe was then staying at an hotel in the town. He obtained the assistance of one of the Shrewsbury constables and proceeded to the hotel, where they found a young gentleman, who Morgan declared to be the person he "wanted." The prisoner was searched, and his gold watch and a considerable sum of money were taken from him. He stated that his name was Charles Ashworth, and when he was brought before the magistrates he asked in vain that he should be allowed to telegraph to his friends at Manchester, Morgan representing that it would be advisable not to allow him to communicate with anyone, as there was an accomplice at large. It was ascertained, after the unfortunate young gentleman had been remanded, that no such robbery as Morgan had described had been committed, that Morgan himself was not a constable but a swindler, and that he had made off with the property he had taken from his victim.

For some time past the manufacturers exhibiting their goods in the Cloth Hall at Huddersfield have missed portions of their goods, and so skilfully contrived was the theft that all efforts to detect the thief proved fruitless. A slight suspicion was at last excited against one of the exhibiting manufacturers, and, this clue being patiently followed up, the suspected individual was detected with stolen goods in his possession. His father, father-in-law, and a friend of his, are all implicated in the charge. The case is under investigation.

The premises of Mr. Critchley, pawnbroker, London-road, Liverpool, were entered by thieves on Monday night, and property valued at about £2000 was stolen.

While eight sinkers were being lowered down a pit shaft at Wigan, on Wednesday morning, a portion of the brickwork, which seem to have been loosened by a blast that had just taken place, fell in, completely burying the poor fellows. Five of them, who were hurled from the skip in which they were descending, were killed; the other three, after being extombed for several hours, were brought out alive.

The Home Secretary has respited Ellis Green, who was convicted of murder at the late Liverpool Assizes. John Butler, who was convicted of the murder of his housekeeper, near Worcester, has also been respited.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

Mr. Partridge, of King's College, has consented to deliver the oration in honour of John Hunter, at the Royal College of Surgeons, on the 14th of February next.

The Midland Railway Company's extensive merchandise station, in King's-road, St. Pancras, occupying a considerable portion of Agar Town, was opened on Monday to the public for goods traffic. The new station is furnished with twelve lines of rails for the inward and outward traffic.

The winter conversazione of the Working Men's College, Great Ormond-street, took place on Tuesday evening. The classes recommenced on Thursday; a lecture on the Study of Geology was given yesterday by Mr. Ralph Tait, F.G.S.; and to-day (Saturday) M. Louis Blanc will read a play of Molière.

The death of the Rev. Dr. Burder, in his eighty-second year, is announced. Dr. Burder was, for a long series of years, a conspicuous member of the Nonconformist body. He was the oldest member of the Congregational Board, having joined that association in 1811.

At the meeting of the Royal Geographical Society, on Monday next, at Burlington House—Sir R. I. Murchison K.C.B., president, in the chair—the following papers are to be read:—"Visit to the Sources of the Tigris and Euphrates," by J. G. Taylor, Esq., her Majesty's Consul at Diarbekr; "Lake Nor Tzai-san and its Neighbourhood," by M. A. Abramof.

The Royal Horticultural Society has announced the intention of having a show of flowers and a promenade every Saturday throughout the year, which will be continued till the Wednesday following. The band of the Life Guards will attend on Saturdays and Mondays. The first weekly show is to-day. The special flower selected is the Chinese primrose; but other flowers may be sent.

The munificent donation of £1000 has just been forwarded to the Newport-market Refuge by Messrs. Albert and D. Sassoon, the sons of the late distinguished merchant and philanthropist, Mr. David Sassoon, of Bombay. The letter inclosing the donation says that the donors wish the sum to be invested in the form best calculated to give permanence to the institution and extend its benevolent influences.

The following was the Christmas fare delivered at the London station of the Great Eastern Railway from the 19th to the 25th ult.:—Number of oxen, 2203; sheep, 7094; calves, 163; pigs, 578; turkeys, 12,117; geese, 16,768; ducks, 922; hares and pheasants, 1289; flour, sacks of, 13,920; beer, kilderkins, hogsheads, and barrels of, 9090; oranges, boxes of, 1160; dried fruit, boxes of, 3413; nuts, bags of, 720; oysters, barrels of, 3011; do., in bags, 72 tons; almonds, boxes of, 163; potatoes, sacks of, 10,926; meat, packed in hampers, 418 tons; poultry, 348 tons; fish, 340 tons; milk, 76,896 quarts; Stilton and other choice cheeses, 1421.

The new Dover and Calais steam-packet La France, a sister ship to the Prince Imperial, built by Messrs. James Ash and Co., of Cubitt Town, Poplar, for the London, Chatham, and Dover Railway Company, made her trial-trip on Tuesday down the Thames, and her performance was most satisfactory. She ran the measured mile in 4 min. 40 sec. against the tide, but in 3 min. 28 sec. going with the tide on her return; being at the rate of 12·85 knots an hour in the former case, and 17·308 in the latter. Her dimensions are the same as those of the Prince Imperial, some account of which appeared, with an Engraving, in our Paper of Nov. 19.

A letter has been addressed by Mr. Farnall, Metropolitan Inspector of Poor Laws, to the President of the Poor-Law Board, respecting the working of the Houseless Poor Act, passed last Session. He states that all the parishes have acted upon it, the only union which has not provided separate accommodation being the West London, whose workhouse is required by a railway. In only one of these vagrant wards was admission refused in consequence of its being full. There is now accommodation for 1400 persons. The largest number accommodated in one night, in the first week of this month, was 712; the lowest, 607. Mr. Farnall recommends that the vagrants should be required to do a task of work in return for the accommodation.

The Mansion-House Committee for the Relief of the Distress in Lancashire, under the presidency of the Lord Mayor (Mr. Alderman Hale), held a meeting at the Mansion House on Tuesday and made grants to the amount of £2000 to several local relief committees in the distressed cotton districts, to some for general relief, to others specially for clothing. From the 1st of November the committee has met once a fortnight instead of once a month, and during the inclement season will continue so to do, for the purpose of attending to all applications made to them by any of the relief committees in the distressed districts of Lancashire, &c. Since March, 1862, upwards of £526,000 has been received at the Mansion House, and more than £497,000 has been expended in relief and towards the purchase of clothing.

Last week the births of 1956 children—1000 boys and 956 girls—were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1854-63 the average number (corrected) was 1824.——In the last week of the year the deaths in London rose to 1697. They had been in the previous week 1523. There was no increase in the mortality of young persons, but a considerable increase occurred amongst those of advanced age. The deaths at sixty years and upwards rose from 323 in the previous week to 417 last week. The average number of deaths in the last week of the ten years 1854-63 is, with a correction for increase of population, 1520. The actual result is in excess of the estimated number by 177. The mortality from bronchitis increased considerably. In the last three weeks the deaths from this complaint were successively 189, 223, and 282. The corrected average for last week is only 184. Pneumonia was fatal in 107 cases, against an average of 108; heart disease, in 77 cases, the average being 61. Typhus predominated amongst zymotic diseases; it caused 90 deaths; measles caused 42; scarlatina, 53—both the latter complaints having declined in the week. Eight nonagenarians died in the week. The oldest were two widows, aged ninety-five and ninety-six years.

LAW AND POLICE.—A case of some interest was heard in the Bankruptcy Court on Tuesday. Mr. Coleman appeared on his own petition, and it appeared that among his creditors was the celebrated Blondin (Jean François Gravelet), to whom he had acted as treasurer, and whose money he had spent to the extent of £12,000. An attempt was made by some of the other creditors to prove that Blondin was really a partner with Coleman, but the proof failed, and the rope-dancer was admitted as a creditor on the estate.

The Strahan, Paul, and Bates case came before the Court of Bankruptcy on Tuesday for a dividend meeting. The total debts proved were £496,778, and a further dividend of 6d. in the pound was ordered to be paid, making a total of 4s. 8d. There remains in the hand of the assignee £3203, and £15,000 more is expected very shortly from the French Government, upon receipt of which a further dividend will be declared.

The sitting Alderman at the Guildhall Police Court received on Monday a pair of white kid gloves, there being no cases for him—a state of things which is very rare before a London magistrate.

At the Wandsworth Court a coach-painter named Charles James has been mulcted in two fines of 40s. and costs for hiding behind furze on Clapham-common, rushing out, and forcibly kissing young servant-girls, under the excuse of the season and under the influence of liquor.

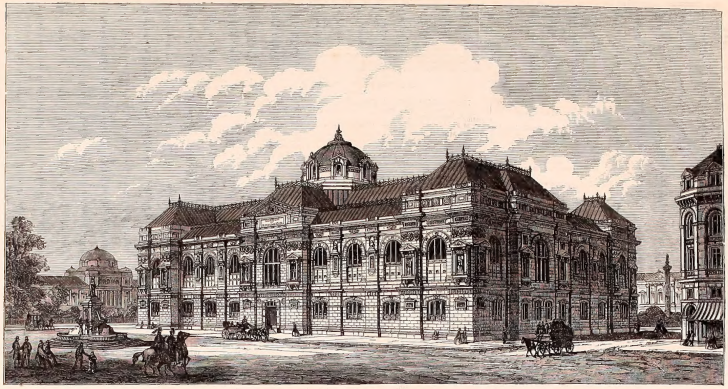
An habitual drunkard, named Jones, having committed suicide in the Borough because he had "no money to spend at Christmas," the jury returned a verdict of "Felo de se," and the warrant for his interment by torchlight in Woking Cemetery was made out by the Coroner.

The case against the manager and secretary of the Unity Bank was completed on Thursday week, so far as the preliminary investigation before the Lord Mayor was concerned. Mr. Deputy Bower and one or two others of the directors declared their ignorance of the use to which dishonoured cheques and past-due bills were put, and in other respects their evidence differed little from that of their brother directors who had been previously examined. The Lord Mayor sent the prisoners for trial, and their counsel, who said they had a perfect defence to the charges, reserved it to the trial.

At the Hammersmith Police Court, on Tuesday, a young man named William Perkins was charged with hawking without a license. He is in the employment of Mr. Nodes, bootmaker, of Southwark, and his business is to go round to Mr. Nodes's customers for orders. In the cart in which he makes his journeys he carries samples of boots, and if any of the customers like these they are sold at once. A discharged servant of Mr. Nodes watched Perkins while engaged in this work and gave him into custody. The magistrate held that there had been a breach of the law, and fined Perkins £2 10s. and costs, which Mr. Nodes paid.

Another death has taken place from the use of paraffin. A little girl named Hanks was carrying a penny lamp filled with paraffin, when the lamp became so hot that she dropped it. The flames ignited her dress, and she was so fearfully burnt that she died in Holborn Union. At an inquest on her body, Dr. Lancaster commented on the danger arising from the imprudent use of paraffin. The jury returned a verdict of "Accidental death."

Captain Corbett, who commanded the Sea King from the time of her departure from the Thames until her arrival at Madeira, where she was renamed the Shenandoah and taken charge of by a Confederate officer, was on Wednesday apprehended in Liverpool on a charge of infringing the Foreign Enlistment Act by engaging a British subject, or causing him to be engaged, for service in the Southern navy. In this case the Government prosecutes, and the prisoner was examined at Bow-street Police Office on Thursday. Some evidence was adduced, and the case was remanded until the 19th inst., Sir T. Henry, the magistrate, taking bail, the prisoner in £500, and two sureties of £250 each.



MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

WE believe that after it had become detestably proverbial as typical of a certain routine, red-tape was abolished in our public offices, and narrow green ribbon substituted for it; so that it may be allowed us to say that there are some of our younger public men who seem, as soon as they were born, to have been invested with the green ribbon. They probably lisped in official language; the best part of their play may have been imaginary writing of despatches, and their earliest ideas of chronology may have been an accurate conception of quarter-day. There are persons for whom those places of £1200 a year were created, which Mr. Disraeli has somewhere jestingly defined. There is a regular training for this species of office-bearing, and its main object is to enable the rising young man to accept and adequately to do the duty of any office, and to be qualified to shift from one place to another in any exigency of patronage. Very useful, as a class, to a Ministry of course are such men, and some of them really develop qualities which fit them for better things, although, as a rule, their highest official rank is the nominal one of a Privy Councillor when they are fifty. There is a remote borough in Cornwall which, by the blending of two towns, comprises some 800 electors, which has the honour to be represented, and well represented too, by a public man of the description to which allusion has been made. The history of the training in this case is highly illustrative of the system, and bespeaks merit in the man—at least, so far as industry and assiduity are concerned—for he has been successively private secretary to a President of the Board of Trade, to a Home Secretary, to a Minister for India, and to a First Lord of the Admiralty. As soon as he had ripened into a member of Parliament, his regular official career commenced, and he became a Lord of the Admiralty, Under Secretary for India, Under Secretary for War, and now holds the office of Under Secretary for the War Department. In those positions, which gave him opportunity, he has shown considerable capacity, while his readiness of adaptation to the duties of each department in which he has served has been conspicuous. As Under Secretary for India, his chief being in the House of Commons, his part was, of course, that of a squire; but his duty was watchfully performed, and if it had been necessary to get the knight he served safe out of a dangerous melée, he could have done it. It was, however, when he represented the War Department in the Commons that he proved his mettle; for, in a very brief space, he was master of the technicalities as well as of the broad principles of his office, the former being very important in the presence of the military critics in the house. He was never found mistaking battalions for squadrons, or giving the command of a division to a Brigadier-General; while he could "move" the Army Estimates so that they were generally intelligible; and he was ever prompt at the explanation of items. Fluent in speech and almost sprightly in manner, he presented a certain perfection of official readiness. Of him it may certainly be said that he was to the manner born, for he is the son of a Baring and the nephew of a Grey, who have held office, off and on, from the time when the power of the Whigs culminated in 1830. With so much of what we will venture to call sub-distinction about him, Mr. T. G. Baring can offer himself to the notice of his constituents at Penryn and Falmouth with confidence. The pretensions of such a borough are more than met by his representation of it; and as he has, when he intercommunicates with the electors, to go through a double action—that is, has to make two speeches, one in each town—he thus tests his qualification as a speaker; and those who have read his recent extra-utterances will, we think, admit that he was quite equal to the occasion.

The circumstances which brought the members for Birmingham into public a day or two ago were not favourable to sensational speech-making. Indeed, Mr. Bright intimated that on a festive occasion like that of opening a great public building, when everybody was supposed to be congratulating everybody and fraternisation was the order of the day, that he was denied that stimulus of antagonism which is the mainspring of his oratory. Nevertheless, in the result there were symptoms that Mr. Bright does not absolutely reign in Birmingham. A town one of the chief trades of which is the manufacture of fire-arms can hardly accept in their integrity the principles of peace at any price. It may be as the representative of a latent opposition to those tenets that Mr. Scholefield invariably hints that there are points of dissonance between him and his pronounced and pronouncing colleague; and it must be unpleasantly new to Mr. Bright to have a gentleman—of course a constituent—getting up, as Mr. Sampson Lloyd did the other day at Birmingham, and controverting his assertions, questioning his authorities, and negativing his deductions. To this Mr. Bright has become accustomed in the House; but it may yet be a shock to his sense of his influence to meet with a bold critic on a platform. Oddly enough, his cue on that day was to agree with Mr. Adderley, who stands in the political account-book as a Conservative, but who realises more of the character of that old Toryism which it was said was more en rapport with the people, certainly, than Whiggery, and even than Radicalism. In truth, at this festival Mr. Adderley made an excellent speech, well inspired and well composed, and which drew on him a shower of "right hon. friends" from Mr. Bright. The impression which the proceedings seem likely to produce is, that, notwithstanding the manifest desire to keep in the background, although specially summoned to the front, which Mr. Scholefield exhibited, somehow Mr. Bright was not so much the idol of the hour as usual. Was there a touch of sarcasm in his opening sentence when he spoke of "Birmingham people being very pleasant people"? At any rate, the phrase could hardly have been used in the sense in which it would have been addressed to a Manchester audience. It was evident that, though the Birmingham people may respect, may admire, may be satisfied with the reflected honour they receive by having Mr. Bright as their representative, they do not invest him with political infallibility.

The annual meeting of that mysterious association at Oxford which is known as the "Druids," has brought Mr. Cardwell on to a very different platform in the town to that on which he listened to, if he did not endorse, Mr. Disraeli's great comico-political oration on Church and State. Whether the Druids have any ceremonies which include chanting we do not know; but, if they have, we would recommend them to appoint Mr. Cardwell one of their high priests, for no one possesses in greater perfection that deep monotone and that vocal sing-song which are essential to that art. Although in other respects his appointment to the post of Secretary of the Colonies seems to have developed Mr. Cardwell's energies, to have quickened his impulses, and to have roused him out of a certain languid negativeness of opinion and action which used to characterise him, the inspiration to which he has been subjected does not appear to have influenced his manner of speaking. At Oxford he palpably tried to be easy, and, if possible, lively; but, after all, it was but "heavy lightness, serious vanity;" and still, no doubt, his countenance betokened him to be one of that numerous body of horsemen behind whom black care sits in perpetuity. If he is an apt illustration of that political caution which is always looking back over its shoulder as well as looking forward, his colleague, Mr. Neate, exemplifies a class of public men who take to memberdom and politics without a specific object beyond an idea of being titillated out of inaction. Mr. Neate is a lay fellow of a college, unmarried, middle-aged, and something more; and so much of public life as he enters into must be an agreeable diversion in a life which, on the face of it, is monotonous. His mode of dealing with most questions gives colour to this idea; for, though he is a frequent speaker in the house, he talks as if he did not particularly care what results followed the discussion in hand, seeming to be influenced by much the same individuality of feeling as the man who, being told that the ship in which he was embarked was sinking, replied that it was no business of his, as he was only a passenger. So far as we may be permitted to judge, in some such spirit his speech to the "Druids" was conceived and delivered; for, as regarded Parliamentary reform, he blamed everybody—statesmen for the way in which they had dealt with the question; constituencies for not having it if they wanted it; but intimated that he did not much care about the matter, but that he should be glad, on the whole, if it came about somehow.

It would seem that certain of the leaders of parties who are, in a manner, in a position of candidature, are desirous of keeping their names as much as possible before the public at this time, when an appeal to the country is imminent; and therefore we can account for Mr. Gladstone having condescended to discuss coals, Mr. Disraeli highways, and Sir Stafford Northcote's straining his identity in lecturing upon art.

PRIZE DESIGN OF THE ROYAL ACADEMY FOR A MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY, BY MR. R. P. SPIERS

THE ROYAL ACADEMY PRIZE DESIGN FOR A MUSEUM OF NATURAL HISTORY.

THE travelling studentship of the Royal Academy, for one year, with an allowance of £100, has been awarded to Mr. R. Phené Spiers, for an architectural design which is represented in our Engraving. Mr. Spiers, it may be remembered, in the previous year obtained the silver medal and prize in books for his measured drawings of St. Stephen's, Walbrook, as well as the gold medal, scholarship, and prize in books for his designs of a vestibule and staircase of a Royal palace—the perspective of which latter was engraved in our Number of Jan. 23, 1864. The subject given this year was a "Museum of Natural History," which was to comprise provision for the separate exhibition of objects in zoology, botany, mineralogy, geology, and comparative anatomy, with a library of reference, the curator's rooms, and a lecture-room. The drawings, consisting of plan, elevation, and perspective view, were to be executed in thirty days, within the walls of the Royal Academy. The chief principle of Mr. Spiers's plan has been the disposition of the rooms in one continued suite, so that a stranger visiting the museum would have no difficulty in finding his way to each room, and would not miss any important portion. The rooms are arranged on two floors, and the plan of having side lights at a considerable height has been preferred to that of skylights. In the architecture of the edifice, Mr. Spiers has endeavoured to give it a style and character in harmony with the serious studies for the accommodation of which it is destined; and he has employed such decoration in sculpture and ornament as would help to indicate its purpose—the statues and busts of the most eminent men who have contributed to the study of natural history or to discoveries in science being the chief features of the exterior decoration. The president, Sir Charles Eastlake, in awarding the prize to Mr. Spiers, mentioned his successes of last year, and remarked on the general excellence of his drawings.

ERECTION OF THE NEW IRON SHEERS IN THE DOCKYARD AT MALTA.

THE operation of setting up a very large pair of iron sheers, which have been constructed by Maltese workmen in the steam factory of her Majesty's dockyard at Malta, has just been successfully performed. Our Illustration, from a sketch by Mr. James Kiddie, master of H.M.S. Royal Oak, will give an idea of this huge piece of mechanism. The use of these sheers, as most of our readers know, is to enable heavy weights to be raised and put on board ship, or to be lifted from the ship and put on shore. The new sheers at Malta are built of plate iron ½ to ⅝ in. in thickness; the legs have an average thickness of 2 ft. 6 in. square, and are 25 ft. apart, their length being 113 ft. The weight of the whole is twenty-five tons, and they are capable of lifting forty tons. They have replaced the wooden ones erected in 1840, which showed symptoms of decay, and were not considered safe to lift heavy weights. The deterioration of the iron cones can at any time be tested, and the weakest part strengthened. We may justly consider this another triumph of iron over wood. After giving the manufacturers all credit for this excellent specimen of their workmanship, we must commend the skilful and seaman-like manner in which the Master Attendant's department effected the task of shipping and raising them into their place. They were built in a shed near the factory on blocks of wood 2 ft. in height. When completed, planks were placed on the space they were intended to travel, two skids, made of pine logs, 40 ft. in length, were placed under the sheers; and, the blocks on which they were built having been removed by the use of tackle and a capstan from a lighter, they were easily transported across three lighters, floated under the old sheers, and along with chains to the centre connection. The capstans were hove round, and the new sheers were gradually raised into their intended position, where for many years they will remain as a monument to the memory of the gallant and energetic Admiral who now superintends the dockyard at Malta.

ERECTION OF THE NEW IRON SHEERS IN HER MAJESTY'S DOCKYARD AT MALTA.

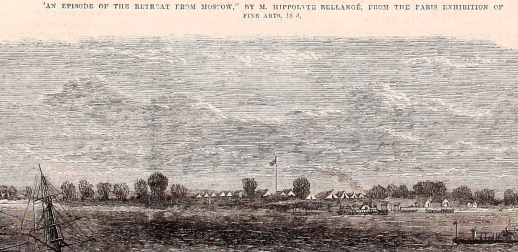
"AN EPISODE OF THE RETREAT FROM RUSSIA."

M. HIPPOLYTE BELLANGÉ, the veteran painter of the veterans of la grande armée, contributed to the Paris Exposition of Fine Arts in 1863 two pictures, both of considerable interest. His "Review in the Place du Carrousel under the First Empire," and his "Episode of the Retreat from Russia," were equally marked by that careful study of the style and costumes of the period which has always characterised his historical works. The former picture, too, is one of much local interest; but we have selected the latter for an Engraving in our Journal, because it recalls to mind that great disaster which was the immediate occasion of Napoleon's ruin. The array to which the fortunes of his Russian campaign were confided entered the territory of that empire 450,000 strong, and recrossed the Vistula a mere wreck of 15,000 half-famished and demoralised soldiers. Such was the summary result of that great misfortune, of which M. Bellangé gives us an "Episode." In this distressing scene we behold the weather-beaten and discouraged soldier endeavouring to protect those who are still more helpless by reason of womanhood and infancy. The subject itself is ideal; but similar incidents were only too frequent and too real in the retreat from Russia during that fatal winter of 1812, which saved the Czar, but led to the destruction of the First Napoleonic Empire.



"AN EPISODE OF THE RETREAT FROM MOSCOW," BY M. HIPPOLYTE BELLANGÉ, FROM THE PARIS EXHIBITION OF FINE ARTS, 1864.

THE SINKING OF THE CONFEDERATE STEAMER FLORIDA, IN THE JAMES RIVER.

IT would have been disagreeable to the national pride of the Americans if the Federal Government at Washington, unable to answer the diplomatic remonstrances provoked by the late violation of a neutral harbour of Brazil, had been obliged to send back the Confederate steamer Florida, captured illegally by the Wachusetts at Bahia on the 7th of October, and to replace their prize where she was taken, beneath the sheltering jurisdiction of the Brazilian sovereignty. From this mortification they have been saved, as already reported, by the happy accident or expedient of sinking the Florida ten fathoms under water in Hampton Roads, at the mouth of the James River, where she was unaccountably run down by a Federal transport-steamer, the Alliance, on the 19th of November, going to the bottom a few hours afterwards.

The Illustration we now publish is from a sketch by Mr. Edward L. Henry, of New York, who witnessed the event. The Florida is shown as she appeared, having lost her mizenmast in the conflict with the Wachusetts at Bahia. The ship seen to the right hand is an ironclad or Monitor, named the Atlanta, which was stationed as a guardship at the mouth of the river. In the distance is Newport News, with a military camp on shore. The following account of the destruction of the Florida is given by the correspondent of a New York paper:—

"On the 19th the Florida went to Norfolk to coal, and just before starting was run into by the transport-steamer Alliance. She was in very bad condition when captured, and all the time since her arrival here she has leaked so badly as to keep the steam-pump engaged continually. The collision with the Alliance greatly increased the volume of the water which was constantly poured into her. About nine o'clock on Sunday evening one of the pumps on board suddenly gave out. Before more assistance arrived the water had risen considerably above the fire-room floor, so that it was found necessary to put the fires out. The pump-engine was then stopped, and the water came pouring in at a fearful rate. It was impossible at any time, after it was found the disabled ship was sinking, to move her toward the shore, as there was but 7 lb. pressure of steam—just sufficient to work the pumps. Neither were there means at hand for towing her ashore. In a few minutes after sending the two boats to the Florida, Captain Woodward, of the Atlanta, came himself on bound to see what could be done to keep her afloat. But it was agreed that she must assist us, and the men were ordered to save their effects and prepare to leave her to her fate. The Florida kept rapidly filling, so that at seven o'clock the water was a foot above the lamb-deck. At the same time that Mr. Baker signalled the Atlanta he sent a telegraphic message to Admiral Porter at this place that the Florida was sinking. The Admiral immediately ordered the tug Page to steam up to the Florida and tow her into shoal water towards the shore. The tug came alongside at 7.15, but the Florida was by this time so near sinking that it was deemed dangerous to attach it, as in going they must would take the tug along with her. A few minutes after, with eight feet of water in her, she careened over, and disappeared stern foremost. Mr. Ricker and Captain Woodward remained alongside in the tug until the vessel went under. The Florida had a valuable cargo, a thing on board just as when she was captured. There is a feeling of general satisfaction among naval officers that she is lost, for it is considered much preferable to have her disposed of here, and then indemnity be refused by the French Government than suffer the humiliation of taking her back, and seeing her saluted as she would under the banner of Rio Janeiro in triumph, with the rebel flag flying. This would have been a sad blot to be put to the American officers who would have had to accompany her."

THE CONFEDERATE STEAMER FLORIDA SUNK IN THE JAMES RIVER.

BIRTHS.

On the 31st ult., at 53, Devonshire-street, Portland-place, the wife of Oscar Mercadier, Esq., of a son.

At Queen Anne-street, the Hon. Mrs. J. Bridgeman, of a son.

At Adderley Park, Lady Calthorpe, prematurely, of a daughter, who survived a birth a few hours.

At Ashley Lodge, Lady Suffield, of a daughter.

At Inverturret-house, Lady J. Hershage, of a daughter.

At Long Melford, Suffolk, the wife of Sir W. Parker, Bart., of a daughter.

At Hill-street, Berkeley-square, Lady Louisa Cosbergrove, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 4th inst., at St. James's Church, Piccadilly, by the Rev. stanley Monteith, Mr. William Collins, Esq., late Bombay Civil Service, son of the late widow of the late J. G. Hamilton Brown, Esq., of Bombay.

On the 4th inst., at Holy Trinity, Bath, by the Rev. J. J. Wade, incumbent, William Berry, Esq., Captain 30th Cameronians, only son of William Berry, Esq., of Fairlie, Ayrshire, to Mary Anne, only child of Captain Wade, late of the 13th Light Dragoons, and Deputy Governor of the Royal Hospital, Chelsea.

At Maringley, the Bishop of Colombia, to Miss King, daughter of Lady King and the late admiral Sir R. King, Bart.

At Aberdeen, L. W. Stock, Esq., of London's Inn, to Barbara Forbes Leith, daughter of Sir J. M. Innes, Bart., of Edinburgh, Bandf.

DEATHS.

On the 28th ult., at the Vicars' Court, Lincoln, the Rev. George Davenport Whitehead, Prebendary and Minor Canon, and Rector of Bracebridge, in the 74th year of his age.

On Oct. 31st, at Toronto, Canada West, of consumption, at the residence of his brother (the Hon. Mr. Justice Wilson), Mr. Andrew Wilson, eldest son of the late Andrew Wilson, Esq., Wilton Grove, Hampshire.

At Cumberland-street, Eccleston-square, Sir A. Bannerman, late Governor of Newfoundland, aged 80.

At Ulcombe-cottage, Berkeley-square, Isabella Lady De Dunstanville, in her 80th year.

Drowned in Tenis Bay, the Hon. B. Stratford, son of the late M. Gerard, Earl of Aldborough, aged 26.

At Richmond, Berkeley-square, the Hon. C. H. Maynard, son of Viscount Maynard, in his 81st year.

On the 30th ult., at Thornton Lodge, near Northallerton, Yorkshire, Francis Philip Bedingfield, formerly Captain Royal Artillery, in his 81st year, deeply and deservedly lamented.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 14.

SUNDAY, Jan. 8.—First Sunday after Epiphany. Lection, prophecy and morning lesson, Isaiah xxxv. Death of the painter Gainsborough, 1788. Prince Albert Victor of Wales, 1841.

MONDAY, Jan. 9.—The Cape of Good Hope surrenders to Sir David Baird, 1805. Death of Caroline Lucretia Herschel, astronomer, 1848.

TUESDAY, Jan. 10.—Battle of Alexandria, Egypt, 1801. Death, 1845. The Marquis Wellesley. Underground Railway opened, 1863.

WEDNESDAY, 11.—Charing-cross Railway opened, 1864. Hilary Term begins. Full moon, 11h. 59m. p.m.

THURSDAY, 12.—St. Hilarius, bishop (architect, &c.), about 430. Victory of Cortenova over 10,000 Swiss at the Admirable Crichton, 1513.

FRIDAY, 13.—Hilary, Bishop and Confessor (died about 367). The Royal Institution, London, founded, 1800. Cambridge Long Vacation begins.

SATURDAY, 14.—Death of Edmund Halley, the astronomer, 1742. Napoleon III. escapes assassination by Orsini and others, 1858. Oxford Lent Term begins.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,

FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 14.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
10 16	10 46	11 16	11 46	0 16	0 46	1 16

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE ROYAL OBSERVATORY OF THE HONOURABLE EAST INDIA COMPANY.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 16′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 84 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETERS.			WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours to 10 A.M.
	Barometer reduced to 32° and Sea Level.	Thermometer Dry Bulb.	Thermometer Wet Bulb.	Humidity.	Attached to Barometer.	Radiation.	Terrestrial.	General Direction.	Force in lbs. on a square foot.
	Inches.	°	°		°	°	°			Inches.
23	29·941	38·1	34·9	·87	7	23·8	42·0	SW. W.	194	·330
24	29·797	40·8	35·3	·76	10	28·5	46·0	SSW. SW.	108	·000
25	29·911	39·0	36·5	·86	10	30·5	49·0	SSW. SW.	118	·230
26	29·749	43·1	37·5	·79	10	28·5	46·0	SW.	190	·190
27	29·742	36·7	32·7	·74	10	21·4	36·2		253	·130
28	29·648	32·9	29·2	·92	9	23·9	34·8	N. NW.	150	·000

The following are the readings of the same instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m. :—

Barometer (the reduction corrected)	29·931	29·811	29·911	29·765	29·805	...	29·654 / 29·628
Temperature of Air	39·0°	40·1°	39·7°	35·5°	...	...	31·1° / 31·4°
Temperature of Evaporation	35·0°	36·0°	36·0°	32·0°	...	...	29·0° / 29·0°
Direction of Wind	S.W.	S.S.W.	S.W.	W.	...	...	CALM / S.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY.—Only Saturday Afternoon and Children's Amusements.—Open Daily at Half-past Nine.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Luxuriously Warm and Dry. Brilliant sunshine at the Palace. Lighted at dusk, a night alone worth a journey.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—Open from ten till six.—LAST FIVE DAYS of present successful Holiday Amusements.—Arrangements from morning till night.—Special Notice to Advertisers.—Intending Exhibitors of Novelties, Inventions, &c., are requested to communicate with the Secretary, Crystal Palace, Sydenham, S.E. The Illusion Brothers, the Classical Gymnasts, the Christian Vendors, the Sisters Marshall, the Celebrated Quadrille Band, the Original Christy Minstrels, the Great German Conjuror—J. H. Stead, the Cure—Most amusing Clowns—Grand Fireworks—Monster Balloon Ascents. Mr. Stead on Monday, Wednesday, and Saturday at Leicester-square.

At 3.30, Grand Performance by Mr. James Cowell.

At 4.30, Mr. Stead's Lecture on "Spirit Manifestations" and hourly repetition of the Illusions of the Palace, with the Ghost Scene, Mr. Stead as Mephistopheles.—The Great Fete and Dejeuner, the best opportunity for Christmas Presents—Shakespeare Museum—Monument Models—Groups, Roundabouts, Gymnastic Feats, and Entertainments—Galleries of Models and Ships—Aeronautics, last by official authority—The Nile—Pictures of Sebastopol—Model Fortress—Model Railway—Fountains—Gardens—Palace the only place for holiday pleasure.

Intending visitors should consult Cassell's Great Guide. Monograph to exhibitors, Illustrated Catalogue, and Guide to the Palace, Monday to Friday, 6d.; Saturday, 1s. Guide to the Palace, Monday to Friday, 6d.; Saturday, 1s. Children under twelve, half price. Palace lighted up at dusk. Wonderfully beautiful effect.

NOTE.—On Saturday, the Wizard of the North. Admission, Half-a-Crown.

COMMODORE NUTT and MINNIE WARREN.—ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.—THREE GRAND LEVEES DAILY, at Eleven, Three, and Eight o'clock, when the Commodore and Miss Warren will receive all their friends and holders of stalls, and longer than ever before. At Eleven o'clock Two appear in the Original Wedding Costume worn by them at the Marriage at Grace's Tea Tonic. They also perform Songs, Duets, Dances, with Changes of Costume at each time. Stalls secured for them by Bell and Nephew; Keith, Prowse & Co.; Cramer, Beale, and Chappell, 201, Regent-street. Admission to hall 1s.; Reserved Seats, 2s.; Stalls, 3s.; and to orchestra stalls, 5s.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—The new Operetta, entitled LES DEUX REINES, will be performed on MONDAY NEXT, being Her Majesty's Fifty-second Performance consecutive at Seven. Morning Performances, Tuesdays and Saturdays, commence at Two.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Managers, Messrs. EDMUND FALCONER and F. B. CHATTERTON.—The Theatre entirely remodelled and decorated. Every Evening, at Seven, the Grand Comic Ballet, FROM THE COUNTRY. Principal characters by Messrs. D. Johnson, G. F. Saville, Fitzjames, G. Scarsez, Miss Helen Howard, and Miss Rose Leclercq. Doors open at Six. Commence at Seven. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets for the Pit Tier may be secured every Wednesday and Saturday at the Box Office. Delivery and Schools of Instruction to the following parts of the Theatre:—Dress Circle, First Circle, and Stalls, 2s. Pit Tier, Amphitheatre, and Gallery, 1s. The Refreshments of the Theatre by CONTRACT. MESS. written by F. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled ROP O' MY THUMB. The supremely successful Pantomime, produced on Boxing Night, 1854, with unbounded success. The Grand Harlequin and Columbine Transformation Scene by Mr. Beverley. Doors will be open entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley. The Music by Mr. Frederick Godfrey, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. Rimmer. The Ballets and Dances arranged by Mr. Lauri. The Pantomime produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. Characters by the following Artists:—Mr. Paul Herring, Mr. Conquest, Mr. Bland, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Lauri, Mr. Wilmot, Mr. Fitzjames, Miss Fanny Reeves, &c. The Harlequinade will include the services of those popular favourites, Mr. Paul Herring, as Doctor Squaretoes; Harry Boleno and Mr. Lauri, Clowns; Mr. W. A. Rogers and Mr. J. Harris, Pantaloons; Mr. Conquest and Mr. S. Saville, Harlequins; Misses Boleno and Lauri, Columbines. The Pantomime produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. The Scenery entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley, assisted by Messrs. Pitt, Gates, Morris, and Assistants. Dresses by Mr. and Mrs. Lauri. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Immense Success of the New Comedy by Charles Selby, entitled MARRIED AND MARRIED, every evening, at Seven o'clock. Mr. Buckstone will sustain the principal character, Mr. Bedford will appear in his celebrated character of Mr. Muddle, and Mr. Compton will appear as Mr. Lovegrove. Mrs. Fitzwilliam, Mrs. Leigh Murray, and Miss Reynolds will appear in the other principal characters. Preceded by, at Seven, a New Farce, called COUSIN JOHN. To conclude with, at Nine, the Farce, called CUPID AND PSYCHE. Box-office open from Ten till Five.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—Every Evening, at Seven, the Drama, in Two Acts, called THREE FRANCS.—Mr. J. L. Toole. At Eight, LOAN.—Miss Robinson and Mr. Toole. At Nine, the Farce, called THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL.—Mr. Toole. Commence each Night at Seven. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets for the Pit Tier may be secured every Wednesday and Saturday at the Box Office, 10, Regent-street. Upper Circle, 2s. Centre, 3s. The SOLDIER'S LEGACY and TOO MUCH COOK, every Tuesday and Thursday at Seven.

ROYAL SURREY THEATRE.—MONDAY, JAN. 9, and during the Week, THE TRADESMAN'S SON.—Mr. Rowebotham. Miss Wilmot. Mr. Shepherd. After which, at Seven, the Grand Comic Pantomime, entitled HARLEQUIN AND THE FAIRY OF THE FOUNTAIN. Every Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, on which occasions the Pantomime will be played first.

NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY, Exeter Hall.—Conductor, Mr. JOSEPH W. HOWELL. THIS EVENING, at Eight, the Oratorio of MESSIAH. Overture at Eight. Miss Lascelles Prust, Mr. Stan Hoxton. Band and Chorus, Full Details in Programmes, price 1d., to be had at the Hall, and of the Singers.

MR. and MRS. GERMAN REED, and MR. JOHN PARRY (without trouble or fatigue) will open the Letter Bag of the Rev. ARTHUR GRIMBLE, on Monday, Jan. 15, at Eight o'clock. Stalls, 3s.; Admission, 2s. and 1s. Morning Performances every Saturday, at Three o'clock.

MISS. FANNY KEMBLE will READ "KING LEAR" on JAN. 11, and "MACBETH" on the 18th, at the MARYLEBONE LITERARY INSTITUTION, Edward-street, Portman-square. Tickets, 5s. each. Further particulars, &c., at the Institution.

DAVENPORT BROTHERS.—LAST MORNING SEANCE, THIS DAY, SATURDAY, at Three, PRIOR TO THEIR DEPARTURE FOR THE CONTINENT. The Brothers will repeat their Wonderful and Mysterious SPIRIT SEANCE, every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday Mornings, at Eight, and Saturday Morning at Three. Stalls, 5s.; Reserved Seats, 3s.; Admission, 2s. Doors open half an hour previously. Carriages to be at the door at Four. Delivery and Schools of Instruction to the following parts of the Theatre:—Dress Circle, First Circle, and Stalls, 2s. Pit Tier, Amphitheatre, and Gallery, 1s. The Refreshments of the Theatre by CONTRACT. MESS. written by F. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled ROP O' MY THUMB. The supremely successful Pantomime, produced on Boxing Night, 1854, with unbounded success. The Grand Harlequin and Columbine Transformation Scene by Mr. Beverley. Doors will be open entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley. The Music by Mr. Frederick Godfrey, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. Rimmer. The Ballets and Dances arranged by Mr. Lauri. The Pantomime produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. Characters by the following Artists:—Mr. Paul Herring, Mr. Conquest, Mr. Bland, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Lauri, Mr. Wilmot, Mr. Fitzjames, Miss Fanny Reeves, &c. The Harlequinade will include the services of those popular favourites, Mr. Paul Herring, as Doctor Squaretoes; Harry Boleno and Mr. Lauri, Clowns; Mr. W. A. Rogers and Mr. J. Harris, Pantaloons; Mr. Conquest and Mr. S. Saville, Harlequins; Misses Boleno and Lauri, Columbines. The Pantomime produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. The Scenery entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley, assisted by Messrs. Pitt, Gates, Morris, and Assistants. Dresses by Mr. and Mrs. Lauri. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Immense Success of the New Comedy by Charles Selby, entitled MARRIED AND MARRIED, every evening, at Seven o'clock. Mr. Buckstone will sustain the principal character, Mr. Bedford will appear in his celebrated character of Mr. Muddle, and Mr. Compton will appear as Mr. Lovegrove. Mrs. Fitzwilliam, Mrs. Leigh Murray, and Miss Reynolds will appear in the other principal characters. Preceded by, at Seven, a New Farce, called COUSIN JOHN. To conclude with, at Nine, the Farce, called CUPID AND PSYCHE. Box-office open from Ten till Five.

ROYAL OLYMPIC THEATRE.—Lessee, Mr. HORACE WIGAN.—MONDAY, and during the Week, THE HIDDEN HAND.—Mr. J. Rogers, Mr. Addison, and Miss Wyndham. After which, at Seven, a Farce, called CUPID AND PSYCHE. Box-office open from Ten till Five.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI.—Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—Every Evening, at Seven, the Drama, in Two Acts, called THREE FRANCS.—Mr. J. L. Toole. At Eight, LOAN.—Miss Robinson and Mr. Toole. At Nine, the Farce, called THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL.—Mr. Toole. Commence each Night at Seven. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets for the Pit Tier may be secured every Wednesday and Saturday at the Box Office, 10, Regent-street. Upper Circle, 2s. Centre, 3s. The SOLDIER'S LEGACY and TOO MUCH COOK, every Tuesday and Thursday at Seven.

DAVENPORT BROTHERS.—LAST MORNING SEANCE, THIS DAY, SATURDAY, at Three, PRIOR TO THEIR DEPARTURE FOR THE CONTINENT. The Brothers will repeat their Wonderful and Mysterious SPIRIT SEANCE, every Monday, Wednesday, and Friday Mornings, at Eight, and Saturday Morning at Three. Stalls, 5s.; Reserved Seats, 3s.; Admission, 2s. Doors open half an hour previously. Carriages to be at the door at Four. Delivery and Schools of Instruction to the following parts of the Theatre:—Dress Circle, First Circle, and Stalls, 2s. Pit Tier, Amphitheatre, and Gallery, 1s. The Refreshments of the Theatre by CONTRACT. MESS. written by F. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled ROP O' MY THUMB. The supremely successful Pantomime, produced on Boxing Night, 1854, with unbounded success. The Grand Harlequin and Columbine Transformation Scene by Mr. Beverley. Doors will be open entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley. The Music by Mr. Frederick Godfrey, Mr. Harrison, and Mr. Rimmer. The Ballets and Dances arranged by Mr. Lauri. The Pantomime produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. Characters by the following Artists:—Mr. Paul Herring, Mr. Conquest, Mr. Bland, Mr. Wilkinson, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Hicks, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Lauri, Mr. Wilmot, Mr. Fitzjames, Miss Fanny Reeves, &c. The Harlequinade will include the services of those popular favourites, Mr. Paul Herring, as Doctor Squaretoes; Harry Boleno and Mr. Lauri, Clowns; Mr. W. A. Rogers and Mr. J. Harris, Pantaloons; Mr. Conquest and Mr. S. Saville, Harlequins; Misses Boleno and Lauri, Columbines. The Pantomime produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. The Scenery entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley, assisted by Messrs. Pitt, Gates, Morris, and Assistants. Dresses by Mr. and Mrs. Lauri. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THE PHOCA! THE MUSICAL PHOCA! THE Wonderful Performing Phoca! Is exhibited Daily at the BURLINGTON GALLERY, 191, Piccadilly. It has attracted the attention of Nobility and Gentry during the entire season, and is pronounced by the Press to be the Lion of the Year. God Shilling; Five to Nine, Sixpence. Lectures and Performances every half hour.

FOX FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office, 4, Chancery-lane).—Fox Family Arms, Crest, and Motto, painted on vellum, in emblazonment, and tinted in proper colours, 5s. Book Plate of Arms, for Collectors of Families, 5s.—FOX BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn. Search by Heraldry.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, by Hancharge, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Initials, Crests, and Value of Plate, Diesinking, Wedding and other Cards.—CHARLES BUCKLAND, Artist, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

To CONTINENTAL SUBSCRIBERS.—Mr. Ludwig Denicke, Leipsic, is the Special Agent for Germany for this Journal.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published in the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1853, it has been re-engraved, and will be

REPUBLISHED EARLY IN FEBRUARY NEXT. PRICE 6d.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given during this month.

Office, 198, Strand.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JANUARY 7, 1855.

It is late in the day to compliment the Premier of England upon the sound good sense which marks all his extra-Parliamentary utterances; but it would be ungracious not to recognise with thankfulness the exceedingly wise counsel which he has just delivered in a speech at Romsey. The subject is one which is interesting, not to say important, to every man, woman, and child in her Majesty's dominions. Lord Palmerston has not been flying, like his great opponent, on "angels' wings," but has addressed himself to the question how to use the single pen-feather which makes us, if we use it properly, to do the "angelic" work of conveying knowledge. In these classic days of course we need not remind anybody of the meaning of the Greek word. It has remained to Lord Palmerston to establish a connection between the two examples in Lindley Murray which used to be considered the perfection of dissimilarity, "Os angels' wings—the grocers' company." He has shown that a grocer may write angelically.

"Writing," says Lord Palmerston, "should answer the purpose of being easily read, and there never mind whether it looks beautiful or not." We can understand some of the experiences which must have drawn this energetic and admirable dogma from him. It is understood that he has no time to read print. What acres of manuscript must his eyes have traversed, and what impatient exclamations must have broken from him when the mental process of following out an important argument has been hindered by the physical difficulty of deciphering some elegant scrawl. Many of our readers may know the Premier's own handwriting, large, round, and easier to read than print itself. His instructions to the people at Romsey are exactly (literally would be the fitter word) carried out in his writing. He has written so that every man can read well." If men, women, and children only knew how many chances in life they throw away by the neglect of this advice, a Palmerston copy-book would be the most successful speculation of the day. We can tell them another thing, which especially can we tell those of what Mr. Carlyle calls the "writing sort" something. We can inform them that thousands of manuscripts—nay, many of them doubtless valuable, have never been read through by those who were asked to procure publicity for them. Writers who would be ashamed of the ill-breeding of delivering a clumsy message, or speaking in a low, unaccustomed, confused voice, have the impudence to expect editors and other officials to go through an hour's guggle with an abominable scribble in order to oblige the author by testing his abilities. A man must know whether he can write a decent hand, or cannot, and if he can, it is unfortunate as not to be able to do so, it is his business to learn, or to employ a copyist. It may as well be known, especially by the ambitious and eagwing young gentlemen who have just doubled the Cape of Good Hope, that no editor takes that it is now almost a rule with those who sit in judgment never to read a badly written paper. No doubt many gems may be lost to the world by this, but much valuable eyesight and many valuable temper are preserved by it, and, on the whole, the practice is a wholesome one. The most distinguished poet of the age never sends a line to the press until his work has been copied in a beautiful hand; and I do not know that every press in the world would be honoured by his valuable labour if trouble, it is not too much to expect something like it from "small deer." However, it is their business—they chosen between a fair reading and the waste-basket.

We have written from a professional point of view. But in private life Lord Palmerston's lecture will be found equally valuable. He says that we ought to be able to read writing without trouble or fatigue. Let the letter fails of illegible or "disgusting" the person to whom it is addressed. The word is not too strong. It may be remarked that the illegibility of writing mainly increases with the importance of the request conveyed, or at least with the momentousness of the writer. He will not "take time that he may write shortly," nor will he write slowly that he may write clearly. He, in a rage, or in a fever of impatience, scrawls and scribbles, and repeats himself, hinks indecipherable hieroglyphics, and "vulgar fractions" asks you to bring all your energy to the discovery of his meaning, and all your calmness to separate his what from his chaff. Now, there are very few people in the world who have a right to demand this sort of service from their friends, and as for the public cause we should study as if they were ancient inscriptions, concealing mysteries. But they are very few, and it will be well for most people to make up their minds, once for all, that they are not of the number. Nothing can assure themselves of this a notice of more than two sides must be very legibly written to insure its being thoroughly mastered, as regards meaning and spirit, by any reader who has something to hope or to fear from the writer. We have no doubt that a great many persons who read these statements will smile indignantly, and say that what they take the trouble to write others might take the trouble to read. But we beg leave, in the name of common sense, to recall the reply of the Yankee to the querist, who asked, "What might your name be?" "It might be Nebuchadnezzar—but it aint." People might take the trouble to read a bad scrawl—but they don't.

Some unwise folk may think the question of handwriting a trifle. To them let us quote Paley, who declares that nothing is a trifle which affects the comfort of many. Life is made up of trifles, and nothing can be more true. In one person's case any station pass a day without having to read a letter, most persons have to read many. Why is this business to be made a bore? Lord Palmerston is one of the most practical men in the world, with a mind which no danger subject escapes, and any other man in the world, and he does not think it beneath him, the Prime Minister of England, to tell people to write a large hand, and form all their letters well. He has his smart criticism upon writing-masters' writing, "which looks like an army railing, a little lying on one side." Too lesson which the Premier has condescended to teach, we, for our parts, are by no means too proud to reiterate and to enforce. We hope that it will be taken to heart—and to hand. That atrocious invention called "a commercial hand writing" ought to be an affair for the police; but it is not much worse than the delicate scribble of certain of the upper classes, who, like Hamlet, before he saved his life by caligraphy, "hold it a baseness to write fair." We incline to offer a suggestion. Let Lord Palmerston give the Educational Council a short despatch of his own, in his own writing, and let it be engraved and sent to all the schools in the country as a "copy." Sensible people may, with advantage, imitate his Lordship in many respects—in few more sensibly than in his admirable habit of "writing a letter that can be easily read." We have cheerfully allowed him to guide our councils—we are as ready to let him guide our hands.

An Admiralty order has been issued by command of her Majesty, directing that all ships of war passing Gravesend or their way to Southend, during the Queen's stay at her marine residence in the Isle of Wight, shall in future fire the usual salutes which, since the death of his Royal Highness the Prince Consort, have been discontinued.

THE COURT.

The Queen continues at Osborne House, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, and attended by Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat, drove out. Princess Louisa also took a drive.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Prince Arthur, walked in the grounds adjacent to Osborne.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by the Princess Helena, drove in the vicinity of Osborne. Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold walked out.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold, attended Divine service at Whippingham Church. The Rev. G. Prothero officiated. The Prince of Leiningen arrived at Osborne.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Prince Arthur, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne. Princess Louisa, Princess Beatrice, and Prince Leopold walked out. The Prince of Leiningen left Osborne.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold, walked in the grounds of Osborne. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove out.

The Queen will hold a Council to-day (Saturday) at Osborne.

Colonel Ponsonby has succeeded Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat as Equerry in Waiting to the Queen.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

On Monday week the Prince of Wales gave a dinner, at Sandringham, to the whole of the labourers upon his estate, 120 in number; and to the children belonging to the Sandringham, West Newton, Wolferton, and Dersingham schools, numbering 150. A substantial dinner of roast beef, plum-pudding, and ale was provided, by the Prince's direction, in the spacious coachhouse connected with the Royal stables. Mr. J. Carmichael, his Royal Highness's steward, presided; the vice-chair was occupied by Mr. P. Overton, the head keeper. During dinner, the Prince and Princess and Prince Albert Victor visited the rural party. The following toasts were proposed by Mr. Carmichael and enthusiastically received:—"The Queen," "The Prince of Wales," "The Princess of Wales," "Prince Albert Victor." After dinner, the children left and the labourers spent the remainder of the evening very convivially. The Prince of Leiningen, the Marquis of Bowmont, Earl Cowper, Sir Frederick Johnstone, and the Hon. Charles Carington arrived at Sandringham House on a visit to the Prince and Princess.

On Tuesday week the Prince, accompanied by the Prince of Leiningen, the Marquis of Bowmont, Earl Cowper, Sir Frederick Johnstone, the Hon. W. Grey, and the Hon. Charles Carington, and attended by Captain Grey, went cover-shooting.

On Wednesday week the Prince, accompanied by his guests, passed the day shooting.

On Thursday week the Prince, accompanied by his visitors, finished cover-shooting at Sandringham for the season. The Duchess d'Aumale arrived at Sandringham House on a visit to the Prince and Princess.

Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by the Prince of Leiningen, the Marquis of Bowmont, Earl Cowper, Sir Frederick Johnstone, the Hon. W. Grey, and the Hon. Charles Carington, attended the "meet" of the West Norfolk at Congham House. The Princess, accompanied by the Duchess d'Aumale and the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey and attended by the Marchioness of Carmarthen, drove to the "meet." Their Royal Highnesses were received by the Master of the Hunt (Mr. H. Villebois). The field numbered between three and four hundred equestrians. The plantation near the house was drawn, and in a few minutes the hounds "found," and Reynard soon broke. The Prince, with his visitors, joined the hunt. The Princess returned to Sandringham. The fox went away for Massingham-common, which he skirted, and, describing a circle, he brought the field back to where they started and succeeded in getting to earth in the wood whence he was started, after affording half an hour's run. He was dug out and killed. Another fox was started and afforded a short run over nearly the same ground, getting back to the wood. A third run was subsequently obtained. The Prince of Leiningen left Sandringham House.

On Saturday last the Prince and Princess drove out. The Marquis of Bowmont, Earl Cowper, Sir Frederick Johnstone, and the Hon. Charles Carington left Sandringham House.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess and the Hon. William and Mrs. Grey attended Divine service in Sandringham Church.

On Monday the Prince and Princess left Sandringham House, at half-past two o'clock, en route for Holkham Hall, on a visit to the Earl and Countess of Leicester. Their Royal Highnesses travelled the entire distance, twenty-five miles, in an open phaeton and pair, the Prince driving. In a second phaeton followed the Marchioness of Carmarthen and Captain Grey, in attendance upon their Royal Highnesses. The Earl of Leicester sent relays of horses to Docking for the Prince and his suite. Throughout the journey groups of people had assembled to catch a glimpse of the Prince and Princess; but those assembled in the vicinity of the triumphal arch erected at the south entrance of the park were disappointed, as darkness had set in before the arrival of the Royal travellers. The Prince and Princess arrived at Holkham Hall at five o'clock, and were received at the entrance of the Egyptian Hall by the Earl of Leicester, who conducted their Royal Highnesses to the saloon, where they were received by the Countess of Leicester, with whom were the Marquis and Marchioness of Normanby, the Marchioness of Huntly and Lady Mary Gordon, the Earl of Gosford, Viscount Hamilton, Viscount and Viscountess Powerscourt, Lord Suffield, Lord and Lady Dacre, Lady Laura Phipps, Mr. Grey, Mr. Baring, and the Hon. Colonel and Mrs. E. Coke, invited to meet the Prince and Princess. From the saloon their Royal Highnesses were conducted to their apartments situated in the north and east portions of the mansion. The suite consists of four apartments, and adjoins a landscape-room from which a magnificent view of the surrounding country is obtained. The sleeping apartments of the Prince and Princess were each hung with tapestry. The Princess's sitting-room was handsomely decorated with white and gold. A large circle of the élite of society was invited to meet their Royal Highnesses at dinner.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by the Earl of Leicester and a party of fifteen guns, proceeded at ten o'clock to a well-stocked cover near the hall and passed several hours shooting, finding excellent sport.

On Wednesday the Prince, accompanied by the noble Earl, with his guests, passed the day shooting.

On Thursday the day was to be devoted to the inspection of the magnificent estate. In the evening a ball, on a scale of great grandeur, was to take place, for which 400 invitations had been issued.

The Prince and Princess were expected to terminate their visit yesterday and return to Sandringham.

Prince Albert Victor remained at Sandringham during the visit of the Prince and Princess to Holkham Hall.

The Times publishes the following upon official authority:—"We are authorised to state that there is no foundation whatever for the statement that her Royal Highness Princess Mary has recently contracted a matrimonial alliance. So long as a similar report was circulated as a mere rumour we thought it too absurd to require notice; but now that it has been confidently asserted as a fact, we feel it our duty to meet it with an explicit contradiction."

His Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge, as Field Marshal Commanding-in-Chief, held a levee on Wednesday at the Horse Guards. Above 150 officers attended.

His Excellency the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff returned to the Prussian Embassy on Saturday last, from visiting Frances Countess Waldegrave and the Right Hon. Chichester Fortescue, M.P., at Strawberry Hill, Twickenham.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester have arrived at Paris from Nice.

The Duke of Devonshire and Lady Louisa Cavendish have left Chatsworth for Holkar Hall, near Milnthorp.

The Duchess (Dowager) of Grafton has arrived in town from Wakefield Lodge, Northamptonshire.

The Countess of Jersey and Lady Caroline Villiers have arrived in Wilton-place from visiting the Right Hon. Frederick and Mrs. Peel at their seat in Warwickshire.

Earl St. Maur arrived at the Admiralty on Wednesday from Stover, the Duke of Somerset's seat in Devonshire.

Earl De Grey left Carlton-gardens on Wednesday, on a visit to the Queen at Osborne.

The Earl of Hardwicke has left town for Wimpole Hall, Cambridgeshire.

Viscount Courtenay, M.P., has left town for Powderham Castle, Exeter.

The Right. Hon. Sir George Grey left town on Wednesday for Heckfield Place, Hants.

The Right. Hon. B. Disraeli and Mrs. Disraeli have returned to Hughenden Manor from Hatfield House.

His Excellency the Hon. P. Campbell Scarlett, the newly-appointed Envoy and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of Mexico, left London on Monday to enter on his duties.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of the Count de Jaucourt with Miss Steiner, daughter of Mr. Steiner, of Hyndburn, Lancashire, took place on the 27th ult., at Saltram House, the seat of the Earl of Morley, now occupied by Mr. and Mrs. Hartmann, a sister of the bride.

The marriage of the Hon. George Wentworth Fitzwilliam and Miss Anson, daughter of General the Hon. George and Mrs. Anson, and sister of the Marchioness of Bristol, will take place shortly.

A marriage is arranged between Mr. William Arbuthnot, eldest son of Mr. John Alves Arbuthnot, of Coworth Park, Berks, and Miss Cordelia Hughes, eldest daughter of Captain W. Marjoribanks Hughes, and granddaughter of the late General Sir Loftus Otway, C.B., Colonel of the 84th Regiment.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Denton Church, Huntingdonshire, was reopened on New-Year's Day, after being closed for some weeks, for renovation.

The Rev. Dr. Noad has been appointed Head Master of Wye College, Kent; and the Rev. Mr. Prendered, Curate of St. Paul's, Alnwick, Head Master of the Haydon-bridge Grammar School, Northumberland.

At the Special Sunday Evening Services, which were begun in St. Paul's on New-Year's Day, there was a surpliced choir of two hundred.

An iron church, in connection with the free and open seats movement, was opened on Sunday week in Wavertree, Liverpool, by the Rev. A. Ledge, Incumbent of Trinity Church, with some of whose congregation the building originated.

The proposal to hold the Church Congress for 1865 at Norwich has been favourably received in the diocese. A second preliminary meeting will be held on the subject to-day (Saturday).

The Archbishop of York has appointed the Convocation of the Northern Province to meet, for dispatch of business, on Tuesday, the 21st of February. His Grace has named the following subjects for discussion:—Subscription; the Burial Service; the Position of Lay Helpers; the Table of Lessons from Holy Scripture.

The restoration of the Church of St. Sampson, Cricklade, having been brought to a successful completion under Mr. Christian, architect, the edifice was reopened, on the 23rd ult., by the Bishop of Salisbury, who preached, the Rev. F. Dyson, the Vicar, saying prayers. The cost of the work has been little short of £4000, of which the parish voted £100 per annum for ten years on the rates.

Works of restoration at the west front of Lincoln Cathedral are about to be proceeded with, under the advice of Mr. Buckler, of Oxford, who has been employed for many years by the Dean and Chapter. What is now being done is to collect the remains of old columns, removed long since, and copy them in the minutest detail in Lincoln stone, the original material, in order to replace the columns of Yorkshire grit; and at the same time to put fresh pieces in those parts of the Norman doorway which are perishing from age, these parts being also copied with the most minute accuracy. It is a peculiarity of the Lincoln oolite to become coated with a hard surface which preserves it, and all that is done at Lincoln is to remove the black sooty matter by which this surface is overlaid. This is done by first wetting the stone with water from a brush, and then taking off the black with a small tool, without either mallet or hammer, the toolmarks of the old Norman workmen being left. Not even this process has been or will be applied to curious Norman carvings.

A testimonial from the Dean, Canons, and Minor Canons of Rochester Cathedral, and the clergy of the surrounding parishes, has been presented to the Rev. J. W. Sherringham, M.A., on the occasion of his quitting that parish for the vicarage of Strood, to which he has been presented by the Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol. It consists of a silver claret-jug and two goblets.——The domestics and others connected with the household of Earl Brownlow have given a testimonial to the Rev. Alfred Gott Woolward, M.A., of Magdalen College, Oxford, as a token of the esteem in which they held his services during a period of fourteen years on relinquishing the chaplaincy at Ashridge. Lord Brownlow has recently presented Mr. Woolward to the rectory of Belton, near Grantham.——The Rev. W. Hudson and the Rev. F. Binyon, of Blackburn, were presented with testimonials of silver plate, value £80, on Monday evening, in recognition of their services during the period of distress.

The Church of All Saints, Wainfleet, Lincolnshire, was discovered to be on fire on Thursday night, the 29th ult., but, providentially, it was confined to the organ and the woodwork near it, both which were wholly destroyed. The damage to the church is estimated at from £200 to £300; and the organ, which had undergone a thorough renovation last summer, was then valued by the organ-builder at £280. Donations towards repairing the loss will be received by the Rev. D. Winstone, the Rector.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. R. H. Hill, Head Master of Magdalen College School, Oxford, to be Precentor and Honorary Canon of Bangor. Rev. E. Parker, Rector of Oxendon Magna, to be Rural Dean of Rothwell. Rev. W. Best to be Rector of Campton-cum-Shefford, Beds. Rev. F. Warre to be Vicar of Bere Regis-with-Kingston, Dorset; Rev. T. Waters to be Perpetual Curate of Maiden Bradley, Wilts. Rev. W. Baird to be Curate of the new School-Church of St. Gabriel, Bromley, Middlesex; Rev. H. Fawcett to be Curate of St. Mark's, Whitechapel; Rev. J. W. Irvine to be Curate of Chelmsford; Rev. J. Nunn to be Curate of St. Thomas's, Ardwick. Rev. G. T. B. Kingdon to be Domestic Chaplain to P. R. Hoare, Esq., Luscombe, Dawlish.—Guardian.

THE REVENUE.

—	The YEAR ended Dec. 31, 1864.			QUARTER ended Dec. 31, 1864.
	Net Revenue	Increase	Decrease	Net Revenue	Increase	Decrease
	£	£	£	£	£	£
Customs	22,535,000	..	880,000	5,932,000	..	38,000
Excise	19,343,000	1,598,000	..	5,000,000	247,000	—
Stamps	9,468,000	216,000	..	2,223,000	..	70,000
Taxes	3,261,000	53,000	..	1,294,000	9,000	—
Property Tax	7,999,000	..	1,807,000	1,530,000	..	552,000
Post Office ..	4,060,000	260,000	..	1,090,000	100,000	—
Crown Lands	307,500	5,000	..	88,000	1,000	—
Miscellaneous	3,151,874	252,754	..	862,596	54,430	—
Totals ..	70,125,374	2,384,754	2,693,000	18,069,596	411,430	660,000
		£308,246 Net Decrease.			£248,570. Net Decrease.

Mr. Bronterre O'Brien, a leading Chartist about twenty-five years since, has recently died in London.

Cider has been selling in the apple districts as low as £1 per hogshead of 100 gallons.

A new process of weaving, by means of compressed air, is being privately exhibited in London and is well thought of.

The New Gazette of Verona of the 29th ult. states that on the previous day there fell into the hands of the police authorities thirteen Orsini bombs, which, with those before seized, make the number seventy.

The new Exchange at Birmingham was opened on Monday by Mr. Scholefield, M.P., the senior member for the town, in the presence of the Mayor; Mr. Bright, M.P.; Mr. Davenport Bromley, M.P.; Mr. Adderley, M.P.; and a large number of the principal magistrates and citizens of the town. The Rev. Dr. Miller, the Rector, offered up a prayer at the commencement of the proceedings. Mr. Scholefield then, in a few words, declared the Exchange open, and Mr. Bright also spoke briefly. The principal speaking was done after a luncheon, which took place in the Assembly Rooms at two o'clock. Mr. Adderley replied for the House of Commons; and Mr. Bright, in reply to his health as one of the members of the borough, spoke at some length. He dwelt on the increasing power of commerce on the world's affairs, and eloquently urged upon merchants to use their influence in the promotion of peace, freedom, and civilisation.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

AND so the pretty little romance, first delicately whispered abroad by our friend Punch, then tossed upon a thousand tongues by London gossips and club quidnuncs, then gravely asserted to be an accomplished fact by the orthodox Churchman, and commented upon in a florid leading article by the equally orthodox Standard, is reduced to the complexion of an "absurd rumour," and directly contradicted, on the authority of a virtual communiqué, by the Times. Lady Sneerwell, we hear, is in despair; Mrs. Candour vows she will never believe the newspapers again; Sir Benjamin Backbite has gone out of town in dudgeon: and Mrs. Malaprop, wishing to stand well with all parties, has left her card at Cambridge House, forgetting—the dear blundering dame!—that Viscount Palmerston lives there now, and not a scion of Royalty. The bonny Royal lady, whose portrait in the cavalier hat and the many flounces is so familiar to us in photographs, and who is so generally esteemed and beloved, has not "contracted a matrimonial alliance" with anybody.

"Contracted a matrimonial alliance." Dean Alford will scarcely deny that to be the "Queen's English," for Royal personages are never married. They always "contract," and are "allied." What a disappointment this direct negative to an unauthorised statement will be to the great tribe of tattlers! What a cold douche to the ingenious scribe who classicised the name of a noble officer in the Guards into Viscount "Cucullus"! However, the nice little rose and orange tinted bubble has been pierced, and melts away in thin air. As loyal people, who would wish all our princes and princesses to be as happy as the day is long, we may paraphrase the Italian proverb, and say of this charming but baseless hymeneal figment, Se non era vero, era ben trovato.

But they are saying at the clubs, too, that Lord Lyons will not return to Washington. His Lordship has but recently returned to this country on leave of absence; but, if the sages of Pall-mall are to be believed, he will not resume his arduous and thankless mission. He is said to be suffering from an affection of the eyes; and, certainly, the climate of Washington—scorching in summer and scarifyingly cold in winter—is not favourable to the cure of affections of any kind. But who is to replace an amiable and discreet diplomatist, who, all things considered, has been the very best Minister we have ever accredited to the United States? Washington might be an agreeable change from Madrid to Sir John Crampton; but, alas! Sir John knows the District of Columbia but too well. Did not our cousins turn him out of it, and out of the country to boot, ten years ago? Lord Napier, too, has been promoted; but were it possible to take him from St. Petersburg, his return to America would eminently please the Northerners, among whom his frank and cordial manners have made him exceedingly popular.

One more diplomatic mem. The Hon. Mr. Scarlett goes out as Minister Plenipotentiary to the new empire of Mexico. Nobody knows much about Mr. Scarlett, but to the majority of Mexicans any Minister we chose to send would be preferable to the last one, Sir Charles Wyke, a very well-meaning gentleman, but whom we have heard accused of having done much towards bringing about that undesirable consummation known in Transatlantic parlance as "knocking a country into a cocked hat." Mr. Scarlett has no easy task before him. The Mexicans are perhaps the most difficult people in the world to understand or to manage; the which we have no doubt his Imperial Majesty Maximilian I. has by this time discovered. We hear that the coronation of the Emperor will be deferred until matters are a little more settled. That they are still very far off from settlement may be gathered from the fact that the son of General Alvarez has quietly stepped (vice his papa, deceased) into the dictatorship of the State of Guerrero, where Maximilian or the French have no more authority than we have at Cayenne or San Domingo.

Old General Alvarez (of whom probably not one of our readers has ever heard) was a tremendous ruffian, but he kept the State of Guerrero in capital order. "My people are very good," he once remarked to an English traveller. "We have no highway robberies here. This is a State where people are hanged for stealing pocket-handkerchiefs."

We saw lately in a review of the new and beautiful edition of the "Ingoldsby Legends," issued by Mr. Bentley, a surmise that the illustration facing the titlepage (the Spectre of Tappington) was by a "new hand." We thought, however, that the droll picture of the skeleton donning the pantaloons of the Indian officer, while the officer, from under the bedclothes, contemplates the act with amazement as blank as that of Henry IV., in Mr. Callcott's picture, when he sees his son trying on the crown, was an old and familiar acquaintance. It turns out that the "new hand" is a son of the late Mr. Barham (Tom Ingoldsby), and that he has made a very graphic and accurate copy of the etching by Hablot K. Browne, which originally illustrated the Spectre of Tappington in Bentley's Miscellany. This new edition of a work whose popularity will never fade is, throughout, superbly embellished. Mr. John Tenniel's cartoons to "The Brothers of Birchington" are really marvellous. They are the quaintest caricatures of mediævalism it is possible to conceive. And to think that Mr. Tenniel should have gained a prize for a real, bonâ-fide cartoon in the Westminster Hall competition, more than twenty years ago!

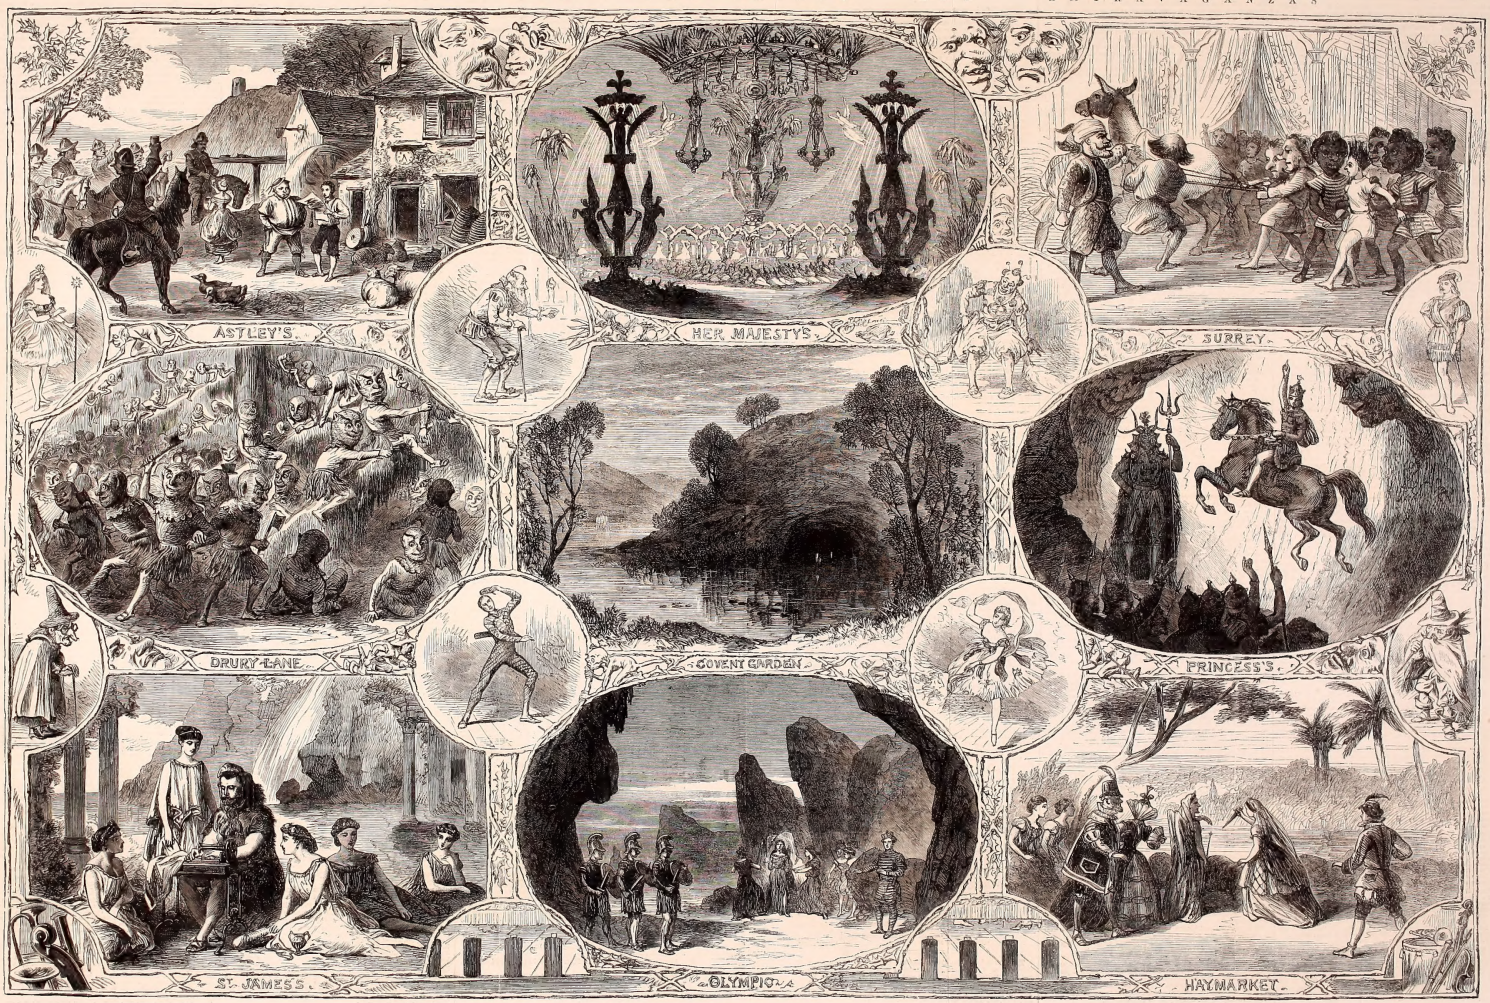
A newspaper-critical friend of ours once had sent him for "review"—whatever do you think?—a scythe. It was carefully wrapped up in straw; but it looked such a very murderous implement that the recipient was afraid of it, and kept it for months in a cupboard till it grew quite rusty. We have ourself received at various times within our journalistic experience, a filter, a set of harness, and two dozen bottles of a patent washing fluid, all accompanied by modest requests for "review." We distributed the washing fluid among our lady friends, and had subsequently the pleasure of hearing that it had burnt innumerable holes in their body linen. The other day we found at our club a very long mahogany box, of which the porter evidently could not make anything. We jumped at first to the conclusion that it was a new patent coffin sent us by some friend in the United States; then we imagined it might be a theodolite; then we fancied it to contain an eight-day clock. We found on examination that it was one of Mr. W. H. Cremer, junior's "little games" of croquet—a parlour arrangement which could be played in the back drawing-room or on the billiard-room table. We don't play croquet ourselves, but to those who approve of that merry recreation Mr. Cremer must be a great benefactor. Unconsciously, too, this meritorious toyseller is increasing to a great extent the sale of those most interesting articles of merchandise, marriage licenses. We hear that the Registrar-General is prepared to prove from statistics that, in the year 1864, 19,302 weddings were brought about mainly through the agency of croquet.

Bella! horrida bella! Wars and rumours of war! Such a row as there is in the buildings. The air is full of dreadful echoes. All the newspapers and their editors are said to have gone or to be going to law. When we came back, a month since, from a far country we heard (on the authority of "our own correspondent" in the country press) that we were in for a lawsuit; but, as it turned out, we didn't want to go to law with anybody and nobody wanted to go to law with us. But the reports which are current of the legal squabbles, actual or imminent, in the world of journalism are absolutely astounding. The Superfine Review has become a powder-magazine, and a "blow-up" is confidently expected. The acropolis and Albemarle-street—Joannes de Moravia, junior—have had a set to; another quasi-literary journal is at loggerheads with its contributors; and even the great Gog-Magog of Journalism is ankle deep in a Chancery suit with some of its shareholders. Let the galled jade wince; our withers are unwrung. Let us be thankful for peace at home.

Advices from Calcutta announce that, on the 22nd of November, the Government issued a notification, authorising the sovereigns and half-sovereigns of the coinage of Australia, as well as of England, to be received at all the treasuries, as the equivalent respectively of ten and five rupees. The various agencies of issues of the several circles of Government paper currency in British India were at the same time authorised to issue notes against these coins to the extent of one-fourth of the amount of their issues on bullion generally.

A considerable legacy has lately been bequeathed to the city of Lyons by M. Pleney, a native of that place, and the founder of a large house of business there. The sum amounts to about two millions of francs. M. Pleney has made the city of Lyons his universal legatee on the following condition, that immediately after the death of his wife the whole of his property shall be converted into Three per Cent Rentes, and the interest accruing therefrom shall be every year employed in the purchase of livrets of 500f. each in the savings' bank to be distributed to such persons, male or female, as shall by their labour have supported their poor parents. Rewards will next be offered, we suppose, to those parents who maintain their children.

SCENES FROM THE PANTOMIMES AND EXTRAVAGANZAS



SCENES FROM THE PANTOMIMES AND EXTRAVAGANZAS

D EXTRAVAGANZAS

SCENES FROM THE PANTOMIMES AND EXTRAVAGANZAS

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE PANTOMIMES AND ENTRAVAGANZAS.

THE season has not only been worthily represented by the Christmas pieces, but these fantastic dramas have been warmly received by the festive crowds of spectators who have thronged the theatres to witness their performance. According to our usual custom, we have presented our readers with a scene from each of the principal theatres as a sample of each minor entertainment, by which they may the more readily judge of the attraction offered by the several managements.

We begin with Her Majesty's Theatre, which, although one of the last to adopt pantomime, is not the least in the scale of excellence. We have already stated that the chief attraction relates to the contention between the Lion and the Unicorn for the Crown, so celebrated in nursery lore and so thoroughly known to every well-nurtured juvenile. The scene of the Resplendent Gentle, which, by the combination of the graceful movements of Mdlle. Adelina Theodore, is one of the most effective, though followed by two others well calculated to excite surprise and admiration. The scene of the Enchanted Forest, in which the glades appear and disappear on rapidly changing principles, forms the pictorial page; but that of the Shower of Golden Rain, which introduces the Transformation, is less imaginative, though it is carried throughout is ambitious in its aim and gorgeous in effect.

At Drury Lane, as we have already mentioned, the subject, being Scandinavian, gives the author the advantages of introducing a comparative novelty, in substitution of the fairy lore of our nursery tales, that of the Trolls who do duty for them in northern mythology. Here they are seen in full vigour, as they do in any Thorsh, as we have already told, had endeavoured to save himself and his brethren, when designedly lost in the forest, by dropping crumbs of bread on the path by which they came; but the birds ate up the crumbs, and so the young hero is defeated in his benevolent purpose. For awhile they are abandoned to despair; but the King and Queen of the Trolls, seen set things to right; for they arrive in large numbers, and proceed to clear the road to the castle of the King, whose children in daughter and the twelve brothers a could welcome. The rest of the tale we have already recorded, and enough is here indicated to show the picture.

The pantomime at Covent Garden is incomparably rich in its appointments, and great justice is done to the beautiful tale of "Cinderella." There are in the drama some departures from the nursery tale; and thus the plot might be said to be somewhat in the discontented hobgoblin who thought that the supernatural fraternity had grown much too familiar with mortals, and was determined to put a to a sort of hermitage. But he is not long permitted to enjoy his solitude, for the spot he has chosen is the favourite haunt of fairies; his contemplations are disturbed by the Butterfly Fairy, who successfully restores him to return to the world of love and joy. Under the Butterfly Haunt, with its calm, unruffled lake, its lovely island, its fire-work banks, its overhanging cliffs, and orchid scenes, caused the to advance the fame of Mr. Grieve, the artist. It is, indeed, a "haunt" ful exceedingly."

The next theatre entitled to take rank for its efforts in the cause of pantomime is undoubtedly the Surrey. The piece of this year is especially mountain, and deals grandly with the ironbound into the scene—cave, bounds, sheep, and donkeys. Here, or hereabouts, the black-faced Celt with the mild-horned cow and the Welsh mountain goat are observers. The work is in all respects magnificently produced.

We now proceed to the extravaganzas, which, though less known subjects, and therefore require much less description.

First, to take the Haymarket, for the "Bronze Horse" yet maintains a kind of precedence which merits respect. The "Princess Seringa time" is in excellent fairy dress. Our minister, Prince Pompolino, after her elopement, she is tempted by the malignant fairy to kill her husband on the beautiful island where they were living in a fogitive, and uncomfortable state of existence. She is dissuaded of her object, and the arrival of the lady's father, and the reveal of the lady's husband that he is of noble birth, and the whole ends happily as to a happy conclusion.

At the Pavilion, "The Bronze Horse" is the object of interest. Our Illustration shows the hero of the piece seated on his back, and progressing through the air by means of it. In this manner he performs wonders, and, as suspended in his flight, is a mystery with which we do not pretend to be acquainted. But the contrivance, be it what it may, is cleverly managed.

The St. James's presents as with "Hercules and Omphale." Here we have the strong god subdued to the will of a female, and working himself with the sewing-machine. This modern piece of drawing-room furniture has furnished a joke to nearly all the burlesques and pantomimes.

The drama at the Olympic, if treated rightly, should be regarded as a poetic production. Its theme is the tale of "Cupid and Psyche." We need only allude to the story. In this piece the name of Psyche is pronounced by the Anthropoglossus. She is tied to a rock by her sisters, but is liberated by Cupid and Zephyr. The artist represents the former operation, the rest is left to the reader's imagination. Psyche, by his actual inspection, when "assisting," as the French say, at the performance himself.

The lines under the Engravings of the Supreme Court—Lisbon, Wellington, New Zealand, and the Government Building—in Canterbury, which appeared in our Number for last week, were transposed in a part of the Impression.

According to the Warrington Guardian, the bill for the enfranchisement or disposal of the Bridgewater Estate, which we mentioned has been withdrawn. It met with a good deal of opposition from the merchants of Liverpool.

The performance of a new contralto singer, Signora Donna Emilia Corsi, in Donizetti's opera of "Lucrezia Borgia," on Monday, is commended by the Spanish papers. She made her first appearance lately at the Liceo de Novedades at Barcelona, and obtained almost as great applause by her delivery of the brindisi in the third act. She is said to possess a voice of great sweetness and agreeable tone, with an excellent style of singing.

By permission of the War Department, Mr. Caswell, accompanied by Mr. Gaultier, made another interesting experiment with Arnold yesterday week for scientific purposes, the object being to ascertain the condition of the atmosphere at various altitudes. The balloon ascended to the height of 29,000 feet, after ascending to a considerable altitude, preceded over the Chelsea Barracks, following the course of the river in the direction of Gravesend.

The news brought by the Pacific mails which arrived last Saturday is important. A congress of the South American Republics had held a meeting under the presidency of the representative of Peru, and resolved that immediate steps should be taken to wrest the Chincha Islands from Spain, and that Peru should not be an hereby to pay the debt due to the Madrid Government until the islands had been given up. The Peruvian fleet is to be increased to twenty vessels, and the army to 30,000 men. The Peruvian fleet is to proceed to the Chinchas, destroy the other vessels, and take possession of the islands.

The officers of the Hyderabad Contingent, like other gentlemen of the service in India, keep up the English sports of the field, as we are informed from Lieutenant Fane Sewell, of the Madras Staff Corps, Secretary to the Hyderabad Hunt Club, who has sent us a photograph of a group of Sowarsin with the residency of the Hingolee district, and the kennel in the field of action. Accompanied was an easy winner, making 72 runs in the first innings and 100 in the second; while Hingolee made 54 and 52 in the return match, Hingolee made 34 in the first innings and 53 in the second; while Aurangabad, in a single innings, made 128.

A retired officer has just died at Vienna, after making a will by which he leaves the greater part of his property to a woman respecting that he shall never read a newspaper. To secure the exact accomplishment of his wishes the testator has left considerable legacies to three of his friends, whom he charges to keep strict watch over his nephew in future. In case of infringing the prohibition the nephew will be immediately deprived of the enjoyment of his uncle's estate, and the executors will dispose of it as directed by the will. The nephew is employed in a public office, of the utmost zeal shown by the prohibition may be conceived.

FINE ARTS.

THE Art-Workmanship Exhibition now open in the Great Room of the Society of Arts is a great improvement on its predecessors, though still far from what might be expected in response to offers of a series of prizes amounting to nearly £900. Yet the scheme is a very excellent one, and doubtless will fructify, while even in the specimens sent in there is evidence of a wonderful advance in the arts of ornament. We offer a few notes on the principal contributions, conceiving that the more freely their merits or demerits are discussed the more satisfactory are the awards likely to be. Of the ninety-eight articles sent in sixty-four are from the fine old city of Limoges, celebrated of old for its enamels between the Lion and the Unicorn for the Crown, so celebrated in nursery lore and so thoroughly known to every well-nurtured juvenile. The scene of the Resplendent Gentle, which, by the combination of the graceful movements of Mdlle. Adelina Theodore, is one of the most effective, though followed by two others well calculated to excite surprise and admiration. The scene of the Enchanted Forest, in which the glades appear and disappear on rapidly changing principles, forms the pictorial page; but that of the Shower of Golden Rain, which introduces the Transformation, is less imaginative, though it is carried throughout is ambitious in its aim and gorgeous in effect.

At Drury Lane, as we have already mentioned, the subject, being Scandinavian, gives the author the advantages of introducing a comparative novelty, in substitution of the fairy lore of our nursery tales, that of the Trolls who do duty for them in northern mythology. Here they are seen in full vigour, as they do in any Thorsh, as we have already told, had endeavoured to save himself and his brethren, when designedly lost in the forest, by dropping crumbs of bread on the path by which they came; but the birds ate up the crumbs, and so the young hero is defeated in his benevolent purpose. For awhile they are abandoned to despair; but the King and Queen of the Trolls, seen set things to right; for they arrive in large numbers, and proceed to clear the road to the castle of the King, whose children in daughter and the twelve brothers a could welcome. The rest of the tale we have already recorded, and enough is here indicated to show the picture.

The pantomime at Covent Garden is incomparably rich in its appointments, and great justice is done to the beautiful tale of "Cinderella." There are in the drama some departures from the nursery tale; and thus the plot might be said to be somewhat in the discontented hobgoblin who thought that the supernatural fraternity had grown much too familiar with mortals, and was determined to put a to a sort of hermitage. But he is not long permitted to enjoy his solitude, for the spot he has chosen is the favourite haunt of fairies; his contemplations are disturbed by the Butterfly Fairy, who successfully restores him to return to the world of love and joy. Under the Butterfly Haunt, with its calm, unruffled lake, its lovely island, its fire-work banks, its overhanging cliffs, and orchid scenes, caused the to advance the fame of Mr. Grieve, the artist. It is, indeed, a "haunt" ful exceedingly."

The next theatre entitled to take rank for its efforts in the cause of pantomime is undoubtedly the Surrey. The piece of this year is especially mountain, and deals grandly with the ironbound into the scene—cave, bounds, sheep, and donkeys. Here, or hereabouts, the black-faced Celt with the mild-horned cow and the Welsh mountain goat are observers. The work is in all respects magnificently produced.

We now proceed to the extravaganzas, which, though less known subjects, and therefore require much less description.

First, to take the Haymarket, for the "Bronze Horse" yet maintains a kind of precedence which merits respect. The "Princess Seringa time" is in excellent fairy dress. Our minister, Prince Pompolino, after her elopement, she is tempted by the malignant fairy to kill her husband on the beautiful island where they were living in a fogitive, and uncomfortable state of existence. She is dissuaded of her object, and the arrival of the lady's father, and the reveal of the lady's husband that he is of noble birth, and the whole ends happily as to a happy conclusion.

At the Pavilion, "The Bronze Horse" is the object of interest. Our Illustration shows the hero of the piece seated on his back, and progressing through the air by means of it. In this manner he performs wonders, and, as suspended in his flight, is a mystery with which we do not pretend to be acquainted. But the contrivance, be it what it may, is cleverly managed.

The St. James's presents as with "Hercules and Omphale." Here we have the strong god subdued to the will of a female, and working himself with the sewing-machine. This modern piece of drawing-room furniture has furnished a joke to nearly all the burlesques and pantomimes.

The drama at the Olympic, if treated rightly, should be regarded as a poetic production. Its theme is the tale of "Cupid and Psyche." We need only allude to the story. In this piece the name of Psyche is pronounced by the Anthropoglossus. She is tied to a rock by her sisters, but is liberated by Cupid and Zephyr. The artist represents the former operation, the rest is left to the reader's imagination. Psyche, by his actual inspection, when "assisting," as the French say, at the performance himself.

The lines under the Engravings of the Supreme Court—Lisbon, Wellington, New Zealand, and the Government Building—in Canterbury, which appeared in our Number for last week, were transposed in a part of the Impression.

According to the Warrington Guardian, the bill for the enfranchisement or disposal of the Bridgewater Estate, which we mentioned has been withdrawn. It met with a good deal of opposition from the merchants of Liverpool.

The performance of a new contralto singer, Signora Donna Emilia Corsi, in Donizetti's opera of "Lucrezia Borgia," on Monday, is commended by the Spanish papers. She made her first appearance lately at the Liceo de Novedades at Barcelona, and obtained almost as great applause by her delivery of the brindisi in the third act. She is said to possess a voice of great sweetness and agreeable tone, with an excellent style of singing.

By permission of the War Department, Mr. Caswell, accompanied by Mr. Gaultier, made another interesting experiment with Arnold yesterday week for scientific purposes, the object being to ascertain the condition of the atmosphere at various altitudes. The balloon ascended to the height of 29,000 feet, after ascending to a considerable altitude, preceded over the Chelsea Barracks, following the course of the river in the direction of Gravesend.

The news brought by the Pacific mails which arrived last Saturday is important. A congress of the South American Republics had held a meeting under the presidency of the representative of Peru, and resolved that immediate steps should be taken to wrest the Chincha Islands from Spain, and that Peru should not be an hereby to pay the debt due to the Madrid Government until the islands had been given up. The Peruvian fleet is to be increased to twenty vessels, and the army to 30,000 men. The Peruvian fleet is to proceed to the Chinchas, destroy the other vessels, and take possession of the islands.

The officers of the Hyderabad Contingent, like other gentlemen of the service in India, keep up the English sports of the field, as we are informed from Lieutenant Fane Sewell, of the Madras Staff Corps, Secretary to the Hyderabad Hunt Club, who has sent us a photograph of a group of Sowarsin with the residency of the Hingolee district, and the kennel in the field of action. Accompanied was an easy winner, making 72 runs in the first innings and 100 in the second; while Hingolee made 54 and 52 in the return match, Hingolee made 34 in the first innings and 53 in the second; while Aurangabad, in a single innings, made 128.

A retired officer has just died at Vienna, after making a will by which he leaves the greater part of his property to a woman respecting that he shall never read a newspaper. To secure the exact accomplishment of his wishes the testator has left considerable legacies to three of his friends, whom he charges to keep strict watch over his nephew in future. In case of infringing the prohibition the nephew will be immediately deprived of the enjoyment of his uncle's estate, and the executors will dispose of it as directed by the will. The nephew is employed in a public office, of the utmost zeal shown by the prohibition may be conceived.

SPORTS OF THE MONTH.—JANUARY.

SKATING.

They sweep
On bounding skates, a thousand different ways,
In circling pose, swift as the wind along.
The three fey band is mobbed all at by.

SKATING is a most healthy exercise, bringing the body into action by a variety of motions, and circulating the blood during the period King Frost holds his glacial reign. Klopstock, the celebrated German poet, was so strong an admirer of skating as an exercise, and, among other remarks, says "it is an exercise in which man, like a bird, seems to move with his own wings; and, as it were, transported into solid ground." His dithyrambic countryman Gleim, the classical disciple of Anacreon, and other Germans of note, have also celebrated skating. It is likewise referred to in that ancient Icelandic work "The Edda," written more than 600 years ago on the mythology of the gods and heroes of the north of Europe, in which work Uller is represented as distinguished by his beauty, arrows, and skates. The best skates are found in Holland, on account of the frozen dykes, and where men and women often skate to market—Russia, and Germany. The Russian skates are of a rude construction, being usually fastened to thongs of bullock hide, the soles of which are cut in various forms. The Dutch skates are more scientifically made, and are generally of steel, with a high curved point in front, and a projecting piece of wood behind, which is fastened to the foot by straps. The Germans, however, are the most scientific skaters. One has been known to go at the rate of fifteen miles an hour. Another, a Dutchman, is said to have performed the journey from Amsterdam to Leyden, a distance of fifty miles, in three hours. It is, indeed, recorded that a Dutch lady that an officer of her acquaintance skated from Rotterdam to the Hague in one day; and when we consider the state of the ice, such as it is on very large rivers, this performance is not impossible. It is related that, in 1806, two young women, in a prize-skating at Copenhagen, performed the distance of a German mile (four miles) for a wager of a hundred guineas, a said to have skated a mile within two seconds of the time. The Swiss, it is not unlikely, are fond of such of the above facts, and are perfectly willing to believe that the Germans have performed the above-mentioned wonderful feats of skating tasks; but we are rather sceptical as to the Canadian exploit. The Canadian journey was performed in 1838 by an officer in the navy parts of the River St. Lawrence the ice is so uneven that it would be impossible to skate a mile without a fall. Large blocks of the glacial element, with here and there a frozen raft of timber, are scattered over the solid mass and grass, would impede his progress; and, even with a fine day and a bright moonlight, the journey from Kingston to Montreal would be next to impossible. We remember perfectly well leaving Quebec on a beautiful morning, and, after a pleasant sail of about 100 miles, arriving at night, having previously ordered relays at different places, and it took us about the time mentioned, though usually the journey is more variable impassable, and, even where passable, was not at all adapted for skating. Perhaps, however, we are underrating the feat, as in the late lady whose authority is quoted must have been imposed upon by some impostor. Mary Queen of Scots

Skating in England, however ancient the practice may have been, is first noticed by Fitzstephen in his description of London. This writer says, "When the great lake in the fields which bounds the wall on the city on the north side is frozen, many young men play upon the ice. Some striding a wide step, they, moving their legs with agility, slide swiftly; others make themselves seats as large as curling stones, sit down upon them, and, being drawn by each other's hands, run forward by turns. Sometimes, by mutual agreement, two take a birch fruth in the air, or an arrow out of a crossbow," which, Fitzstephen says, "seems to be preferable to the common sport." Shoes with iron, and were probably introduced into this country from Holland.

Those who wish to become first-rate figure-skaters, so as grace-fully to perform the outside edge, the inside edge forward, the inside edge backward and forward, the figure three and eight, and the counter as at an early period, so as not only to conquer fear but to become master of the art, must practise assiduously. As the head of the skate should correspond as nearly as possible with that of the foot, the wood should be cut to the shape of the foot, and, as to the respect to the iron, it should pass beyond the screw at the heel, nearly as far as the ball of the great toe, and the iron should be kept beyond the wood. As to the weather in our "light little island" is proverbially variable, and a thaw often comes and passes away without the ponds and lakes being sufficiently frozen for skating. We think that artificial skating might be practised with great effect by skates with the iron fixed to the sole of the boot, as in the case of the Bradshaw. For tyros we think double irons would be advantageous with which they could walk with ease, and, when accustomed to the exercise, proceeding to be drawn over the ice in their gaudy vehicles, be said, summarily, "Lucrezia Borgia" and the fine old "Yule log" with the wide toe."

The Hollanders made the art subservient to the necessities of war; for we hear from William Carr, in his "Remarks of the Government of revenal Parts of Europe," published in 1689, that the people of the Dutch skaters in the following passages, alluding to a sudden thaw by which the French army were mainly put to rout:—"In less than ten hours the ice broke up, and such floods of snow came down from the high lands that the French were fain to make a very decorderly retreat, leaving all their artillery behind them, and the banks there could not march above four men abreast, so they were constrained to leave behind them a great part of the plunder they had robbed from the innocent country people; and the nimble Dutchmen, on their skates, pursued the flying army with arms. All about down the French like ducks diving under water, so that it cost Leuxembourg many a thousand men before he could preserve to them the poor people, of which the French afterwards wickedly made their advantage."

In conclusion, how beautifully Wordsworth describes the sports on the ice in the following lines:—

So through the darkness and the cold we flew,
And not a voice was idle: with the din
Smitten, the precipices rang aloud;
The leafless trees and every icy crag
Tinkled like iron; while far distant hills
Into the tumult sent an alien sound
Of melancholy not unnoticed, while the stars
Eastward were sparkling clear, and in the west
The orange sky of evening died away.
Not seldom from the uproar I retired
Into a silent bay, or sportively
Glanced sideway, leaving the tumultuous throng,
To cut across the reflex of a star
That fled, and, flying still before me, gleamed
Upon the glassy plain.

The Journal de Rio states that the Mayor of that town and three members of the Bureau de Bienfaisance went last week to the Villa Isabel, and presented the Emperor Pedro a gold medal, as a testimonial of the gratitude of the poor and of the respect of the municipal administration. On the obverse of the medal, in relief, are the words:—"S. Pedro Secundo, Imperator Virgro, the bust of Nero and the Bureau de Beneficiencia, 1864." On the reverse, also in relief, are the arms of Brazil.

JAN. 7, 1865

THE COURT.

THE Queen continues at Osborne House, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louise, Lieutenant-Colonel Du Plat drove to Prince Leiningen's residence.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, Princess Louise, walked in the grounds of Osborne.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the grounds of Osborne.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louise and Prince Leopold attended Divine service at Whippingham Church, Osborne.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Louise, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne.

Prince Arthur, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne.

Princess Louise, accompanied by Princess Helena and Prince Leopold, left Osborne, accompanied by Princess Louise, for the residence of Lord Canterbury, Addington Park, Croydon.

Lord Canterbury was succeeded Lieutenant-General Du Plat, Equerry in Waiting to her Majesty.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

On Wednesday week the Prince of Wales gave a dinner at Sandringham, to the whole of the labourers employed on the farm, 150 in number, and in the afternoon went to the Sandringham, Wolferton, and Dersingham schools, where he distributed 300 suits of clothing to the poor. The Princess of Wales was present at the distribution. Mr. Hanbury Tracy, the Rector, in the speech he addressed to the children, said the labourers spent the evening in the Riding House, where Mr. Earl Cowper, Sir Frederick Arrott, and Mr. Bignold delivered addresses. Mr. Tracy said the Prince of Wales had given a dinner to the labourers on the occasion of the marriage of the Princess.

On Thursday week the Prince, accompanied by the Prince of Leiningen, the Hon. W. Grey, and the Hon. Charles Carington, shot the greater part of the day in Sandringham Park. Her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Duchess of Cleveland and the Hon. Mrs. W. Grey, visited the Rev. Mr. Hanbury-Tracy at Sandringham Rectory.

On Friday week the Prince, accompanied by the Hon. Charles Carington, left Sandringham House.

On Saturday last the Prince and Princess drove out. The Marquis of Hertford, Lord Alfred Paget, Lord Chesterfield, Lord Suffield, and Lord Carington left Sandringham House.

On Sunday last the Prince and Princess of Wales, with their children, attended Divine service in Sandringham Church.

On Monday the Prince, accompanied by Lord Suffield, Lord Carington left Sandringham House.

On Tuesday last the Prince, accompanied by the Hon. Wilbraham Egerton, left Sandringham House.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of the Earl of Dunmore with Miss Louisa Murray, daughter of Mr. Sidney Herbert, took place on the 29th ult., at Belvoir Castle, the seat of the Earl of Rutland. The ceremony was performed by Mr. and Miss Murray, brother and sister of the bride.

The marriage of the Hon. George Wentworth Fitzwilliam and Miss Anson, daughter of the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Anson, and niece of the Earl of Lichfield, took place on the 29th ult., at Tixall.

A marriage has been arranged between Wilfrid Arkwright, eldest son of Mr. Arkwright, of Hampton Court, Herefordshire, and Gertrude Ann Peel, eldest daughter of Colonel Peel, of Knypersley, Staffordshire, and niece of the late Sir Robert Peel. The marriage will take place on Thursday next at the Chapel Royal, St. James's.

The marriage of Mr. Edward Cecil Guinness, eldest son of Mr. Arthur Guinness, M.P., of Ashford, county Wicklow, with Miss Lee, daughter of Mr. Lee, of Dublin, took place on the 29th ult., at Kilmore Church, county Wicklow.

The marriage of the Hon. Grosvenor Charles Bellingham, second son of Lord Bellingham, with Miss Alice Mary Meynell, daughter of Mr. Meynell, of Yarlington, Somersetshire, took place on the 29th ult., at Kilmore Church, county Wicklow.

The marriage of the Hon. George Wentworth Fitzwilliam and Miss Anson, daughter of the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Anson, and niece of the Earl of Lichfield, took place on the 29th ult., at Tixall.

The marriage of the Hon. George Wentworth Fitzwilliam and Miss Anson, daughter of the Hon. and Rev. Augustus Anson, and niece of the Earl of Lichfield, took place on the 29th ult., at Tixall.

The Right Hon. Sir George Grey left town on Wednesday for Howick Hall, Alnwick.

The Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote and Mrs. Disraeli have returned to Hatherden Manor House, Whitchurch, Hants.

Her Excellency the Hon. I. Campbell Scarlett, the newly-appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of Mexico, left London on Monday to enter on his duties.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Dunton Church, Huntingdonshire, was reopened on Novem-ber 22nd, after being closed for seven weeks, for restoration.

The Rev. R. Scott, Fellow and Tutor, and Master of Wye College, Kent, and the Rev. Dr. Dornford, Curate of St. Paul's, Alnwick, have been appointed Inspectors of Schools under the Revised Code.

At the special Sunday Evening Services, which were begun very recently in the Parish Church of Leeds, the number of persons present on the first occasion was estimated at 2,000, and on the next return to Weddington. His Lordship preached in the afternoon, and it is believed, he will not remain long in the diocese. He is a decided opponent of the climate of Weddington, and has declared his intention to send a medical certificate to the Bishop of Lincoln. Bishop Wilberforce is also about to be removed from the Bishopric of Oxford, and has been offered the Deanery of Westminster, which he is expected to accept.

The Rev. Dr. Jeune, Master of Pembroke College, Oxford, has been appointed Vice-Chancellor of the University for the ensuing year.

At the Special Sunday Evening Services, which were begun very recently in the Parish Church of Leeds, the number of persons present on the first occasion was estimated at 2,000, and on the next occasion there were 1,500 persons present.

An iron church, in connection with the free and open seats movement, has been erected at Wednesbury, and was opened for the use of Lodge, incumbent of Trinity Church, with some of whose congregation it is connected.

The proposal to hold the Church Congress for 1865 at Norwich has received the sanction of the Bishop of that diocese, and the Congress will be held on the subject to-day (Saturday).

The Archbishop of Canterbury has appointed the Convocation of the Province of Canterbury to meet, for dispatch of business, on Tuesday, the 31st day of January next, when the Prolocutor of the Lower House will be presented for confirmation; the Bishop of Lincoln will preach the Latin sermon; and the Faculties of Lay Helpers; the Tables of Fees; and the Revised Code will be laid before the Convocation.

The reinstatement of the Church of St. Sampson, Cricklade, Wiltshire, has been completed, and the church, which has been closed for some time, was reopened for use on the 23rd ult., by the Bishop of Salisbury, who preached in the morning. The church has been restored at a cost of £1,000, of which the parish raised £100 per annum for 10 years.

Works of restoration at the west front of Lincoln Cathedral, which have been in progress for some time, are now completed. The work has been executed for many years by the Dean and Chapter. What is called the "Galilee" porch, at the west end of the north aisle, is a beautiful and easy door in the ancient detail of Roman date, the original material, in order to repeat the extreme of Yorkshire grit; and at the same time to preserve the ancient work, the whole has been carefully underpinned, step by step, these parts being also copied with the most minute accuracy. It is believed that the restoration of this portion of the work is the first in which attempts to the old date is done so. Lincoln is to restore the date, and the Dean and Chapter have determined to restore the whole of the Norman work, which is of the most beautiful character, and is unique in Norman design.

A memorial from the Dean, Canons, and Minor Canons of Durham Cathedral, and the clergy of the surrounding parishes, has been presented to the Bishop of Durham, praying his Lordship to take steps for getting that portion of the vicarage of Bishop, to which he has been appointed, and which is now occupied by the Rev. Archdeacon Thorp, separated from the benefice, and annexed to the Archdeaconry of Durham. Bishop Auckland is a large place, with a population of 8,000 souls, and the duties of the vicar are very heavy. The Archdeacon of Durham has, in addition to his other duties, the charge of the Bishop Auckland district, and the memorialists think it is impossible for him to perform the duties of both offices. The Bishop has promised to consider the matter.

The Church of Ashton-under-Lyne, which was destroyed by fire on the night of the 19th ult., has been rebuilt, and was reopened for Divine service on Sunday last. The church is entirely destroyed. The damage to the church is estimated at from £400 to £500, but the insurance is only £200. The organ, which was valued at £1,000, was also ruined by the organ-builder at £500. Messrs. Gray and Davison, of Great Portland-street, London, are the builders.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. H. H. Hill, Head Master of Bedford Grammar School, has been appointed one of the Rev. Dr. Rev. R. Wynne-Jones, Vicar of Bere Regis, Dorsetshire, to be Rural Dean of Bere Regis. The Rev. Thomas Vere Bayne, Rector of Hanbury, Worcestershire, has been appointed Rural Dean of Droitwich. The Rev. H. Bennett to be Canon of St. Asaph. Whitchurch; Rev. J. W. Ireland, Rector of Aston-juxta-Birmingham, to be Rural Dean of Aston. The Rev. Archdeacon Bickersteth has been appointed Rural Dean of Bishop Auckland. The Rev. D. T. E. Kingdon to be Domestic Chaplain to C. B. Hanbury-Tracy, Esq., M.P., Sandringham.

THE REVENUE.

THE Revenue returns for the week ending Dec. 31, 1864, and the corresponding week in 1863, and for the quarter ended Dec. 31, 1864, and the corresponding quarter in 1863, are as follows:—

	THE WEEK ENDED DEC. 31, 1864.			QUARTER ENDED DEC. 31, 1864.
	Net Receipt.	Increase	Decrease	Net Receipt.	Increase	Decrease
Customs	£ 337,000	£ 6,000	£ —	£ 8,265,000	£ 82,000	£ —
Excise	1,100,000	50,000	—	14,000,000	1,000,000	—
Stamps	250,000	17,000	—	2,225,000	—	72,319
Taxes	8,000	—	2,000	1,000,000	9,000	—
Property Tax	1,000,000	1,000,000	—	1,000,000	1,000,000	—
Post Office	207,000	20,000	—	1,000,000	1,000,000	—
Crown Lands	7,000	1,000	—	1,000,000	1,000,000	—
Miscellaneous	1,000	—	1,000	1,000,000	1,000,000	—
Totals	£2,911,000	£1,094,000	£3,000	£ 28,500,000	£ 4,091,000	£ 72,319
				£4,018,681
				Net Decrease

Mr. Beresford Osborne, a leading Charlist almost twenty-five years ago, has recently died in London.

Cider has been selling in the apple districts as low as £1 per hogshead.

A new process of weaving, by means of compressed air, is being introduced into some of the mills of Lyons.

The New Gazette of Verona of the 29th ult. states that the Austrian Government has ordered the expulsion of all Italian refugees.

The new Exchange at Birmingham was opened on Monday. Mr. Brindley, M.P., the senior member for the town, in the presence of Mr. Hardy, M.P., Mr. Beaumont Bromley, M.P., Mr. Adderley, M.P., and a large number of the principal magistrates and citizens of the town, declared the Exchange open for the transaction of business. The Rev. Mr. Miller, Independent Minister, in a few words, declared the meeting dissolved. The Bright Alley also spoke briefly. The principal speaking was then by a luncheon, which took place in the Assembly Rooms at the Exchange, where Sir Adderley replied for the House of Commons; and Mr. Bright, in a few words, on the success of the movement of the borough, spoke at some length on the increasing power of commerce on the world's affairs, and eloquently urged upon merchants to use their influence in the promotion of peace, freedom, and civilisation.

The Countess of Jersey and Lady Caroline Villiers have arrived in Wilton-place from visiting the Right Hon. Frederick Stanley, at his seat, Alderley.

Earl St. Maur arrived at the Admiralty on Wednesday from Scotland.

Earl De Grey left Carlton-gardens on Wednesday, on a visit to the Queen at Osborne.

The Earl of Rosslyn has left town for Wimpole Hall, Cambridgeshire.

Viscount Courtenay, M.P., has left town for Powderham Castle, Devon.

The Right Hon. Sir George Grey left town on Wednesday for Howick Hall, Alnwick.

The Right Hon. Sir Stafford Northcote and Mrs. Disraeli have returned to Hatherden Manor House, Whitchurch, Hants.

Her Excellency the Hon. I. Campbell Scarlett, the newly-appointed Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary to the Emperor of Mexico, left London on Monday to enter on his duties.

ECHOES.

AND as the pretty little poem we find Punch, then tossed about from one to another, designs and club appliances, published fact by the orthodox facial leading article by the the complexion of an "absurd the authority of a virtual secret we hear, is in despair; Mrs. Gamp's patronage, Mrs. Brigdudgeon; and Miss Malaprop has left her cast at Cambridge—that Vincenzo Pallavicini has been in London, and the canny Scotsman is so delighted with the "Auld Alliance" with anybody.

"Contemporaneously" is the discovery that to be the "Queen of Hearts" is not all a bed of roses. The disappointment this direct result of the Queen's visit to the Prince of Wales has been so severe that she has cancelled the engagement she had made to sing at Mr. Gye's Opera-house. Miss Isabella has been pierced, and is in consequence unable to sing. Her only hope is, that by the time she is to be married she may be able to sing.

Morning but baseless fabric of a vision,
Cloud-capped towers, gorgeous palaces, solemn temples, great globe itself, yea, all which it inherit, shall dissolve,
And, like this insubstantial pageant faded,
Leave not a rack behind.

Advices from Calcutta state that the Bengal Government has received half-a-million of the money which it has been compelled to refund to the ryots. The various agencies of the Government are now busily engaged in the work of distributing the money to the rightful owners.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

THE snow and frost have cleared away very suddenly in some hunting countries, but still there has not been half enough of the former to supply the terrible want of rain, which has made riding nearly as dangerous as in frost. In the midlands they may be said to have had no rain to speak of for fully ten months, and farmers are being put to an immense expense both in artificial food for their sheep and cattle and in carrying water. The state of the country has operated a good deal against Melton Mowbray, but still sixteen or seventeen scarlets may be seen leaving it on a hunting morning. The Six Hills country has been unusually short of foxes, and Old Hills, John O'Gaunt, Thorpe Trussells, and several other covers have been remarkably full. On one day, during cub-hunting, they found thirteen and a half brace in three covers. We hear that in the great run from Coston cover with The Duke's the horse of Cooper, the huntsman, died in the field. Sir J. Trollope's had a splendid run from Stapleford shortly before the frost set in. It so happened that Lord Wilton, who scarcely ever hunts on a Thursday, was out that day, and his Lordship led from end to end in a run of upwards of ten miles, with hardly a dozen ploughed fields in it. Mr. Gilmour, who strained the muscles of his neck very severely by a fall from Comeaway, who put his foot in a rabbit-hole during the great Bunny race, has never been out with the hounds since, but is getting better.

Seven hunters and four harness horses belonging to the Duke of Grafton, who is going, for her Grace's health, to Nice, will be sold at Tattersall's on Monday. General Hesse, a very good stamp for a hunter sire, and famous for his victories in the hands of Captain Little and Sam Rogers, will be put up on the same day; Atherstone on the 16th; and Gem of the Sea, Union Jack, &c., on the 23rd. The Lawyer has gone to Mr. Eyke's, and Claret to Rawcliffe. Liddington came sailing into the new year four points ahead in the Derby betting; but Breadalbane was in good force at 9 to 1, and people are determined to be safe by backing "the second string," Broomielaw, at 30 to 1. Friday and Congress were also intrusted with £10,000 to 150 each; Brother to Minie is at 25 to 1; but a "tight-un by Barbatus," as the stock of that sire, one of the worst behind the saddle and the sweetest in front of it that we ever saw at a starting-post, is a dangerous piece of horseflesh to confide in. At Middleham, Malton, Newmarket, and, in fact, at all the training head-quarters, the weather has kept the horses to their straw beds; but still we have the usual on dits:—"Zambezi is a greatly improved horse," "Chattanooga is well and wonderfully thickened," "Wild Agnes begins to thicken," "Scarcely any amount of reasonable work has any effect on Longdown," "A 1 cannot be called a Derby horse," "Nothing but Breadalbane goes down at Malton," "The Oppressor will make a Derby nag of the first class;" and so on, quantum valeat.

The Sundorne meeting has been revived after an interval of eight years. Riot and Seagull were among the cracks at the last, and now the blood of Riot ran up with Jessica and Rupert in two out of the three stakes, and Crabcatcher and En Route (brother and sister) by the latter won the Haughmond Abbey and the Uffington. The feature of the meeting was the appearance of Lord Uffington's £200 Waterloo crack Calabaroono, who fought a very decisive "battle of Shrewsbury," and won the £100 and the Silver Cup, after a "no go" with Jessica by Roger. Mr. John Jardine, whose kennel has been in good form so far, had Owersby, Innocence, and Jessica (by Regan) in the Cup; but two of them were beaten in their first courses, and his Harker suffered defeat in the Haughmond Abbey. The crusade against crinoline in Punch and elsewhere seems to have failed of its object, as at Coquetdale there is now a Crinoline Stakes, the greyhounds for which are to be "named by ladies."

THE FARM.

THE new year opened auspiciously, with an advance of 1s. to 2s. on old wheat at Mark-lane; and 1864, that remarkable era of high wool, low grain, and consistent drought, can only be summarised and dismissed, from a wheat point of view, as having begun at 39s. 10d., having ended at 37s. 10d., and having only reached as high as 44s. 1d. throughout the whole of its course.

The Board of Trade returns for the eleven months ending Nov. 30 present some remarkable results. The amount of stock entered during that period is 667,702, against 531,018 in the preceding year. In swine and hogs the increase is most marked; and that in cattle, which is nearly two thirds, is due in some measure to the Dutch cows, which seem to have pushed their conquests everywhere. We found a herd of these picturesque black-and-whites near the foot of the Cheviots last summer, and many of the London milk-dealers are growing very partial to them. The imports of guano have fallen off more than a half, and so have potatoes, bacon, ham, and lard; while salt pork and beef, butter, cheese, eggs, and wool have increased. Corn and flour stuffs, on the other hand, show a decrease of about 466,000 cwt. The exports of bacon and hams, butter, and cheese, amount to about £625,000, of horses to £221,380, and of wool to £653,227.

An Elgin paper states that the carcase and tallow of one of the prize oxen at the last Forres fat show weighed 153 stone of 14 lb. There was a time, quite within living memory, when an ox of 100 stone was thought a perfect prodigy in this now famous feeding district. If there was one, it was dressed out in ribbons and marched, with a piper playing before it (or seated, as some say, on its back), in a triumphal procession, through the streets, before it was led to the shambles. We understand that Sir W. de Capel Brooke's shorthorn steer, the winner of a first prize both at Birmingham and London, was sold to a butcher, at Salisbury, for £58, which gives, inclusive of his four or five prizes, £135 on the credit side. Mr. T. B. Marshall's Lincoln ewe, which was equally successful at the two great Christmas shows, is said to have weighed 67 lb. per quarter when she was killed at Deptford.

Naturalists seem as little likely to agree about the properties of wood-pigeons, against which the Marquis of Tweeddale and the East Lothian Society have issued such a stern edict as doctors did about castor oil during the time of the cholera morbus. Their advocates say that these "interesting birds" can neither scratch nor dig with their feet, and that, in newly-sown bean-fields, they "merely remove the seeds which would otherwise be wasted by slovenly and careless farming." Even after harvest, when grain and pulse do certainly form a considerable part of their food, they merely pick up the seeds which, "if allowed to grow, would only become useless weeds in the different crops of the following season." It would thus seem that they are simply a sort of Alderman Mechi in blue feathers, sent specially to exhort and admonish the benighted farmer. In the autumn they destroy wild mustard and charlock, and in the ploughing season their crops may be found distended with the roots of the silver weed, or goose grass, to say nothing of their daily attentions to the roots of the tansy—a weed well known on limestone soils. So far so good.

Mr. Scott Skirving (to whose articles on the Scottish labourer in the Cornhill we recently alluded) takes the East Lothian view of the question, and is most anxious to dispense with such volunteer labourers in the grain districts. "The word 'pest,'" he says, "has ceased to be applicable; the thing has become a plague. The vast congregation darkens the air, and as far as the eye can reach into the misty distance the endless train extends. When they alight on a field it seems as if a blue cloud had bodily descended upon it." It is only since improved cultivation introduced its clovers and early spring crops that the wood-pigeon has been attracted in such numbers from more northern districts to the Lothians; and Mr. Skirving speaks from a pretty bitter experience, as they devoured twenty acres of his rapeseed, although he had a man perpetually on guard, who killed 1200 in one week. In summer, too, with crops crammed with grain like a cricket-ball, they destroy far more than they eat. "Fixing on a part of the field where the grain inclines to one side, they trample it flat and beat out the corn with their strong wings, and leave nothing but broken and blackened straw;" while their love for wild seeds, as compared with grain, is like Falstaff's ha'porth of bread to his flagon of sack. The destruction of magpies and sparrow-hawks by game-preservers has also tended to destroy the balance of power.

A lackadaisical advocate of them puts in a rejoinder, to the effect that they are so very ornamental in demesnes, and that their note is cheery, and does not create the melancholy sensation which many experience, when listening to the all but human voice of the cuckoo. He also, however, must have his own misgivings, in spite of their efforts against goose grass, as he treacherously intimates that the best way to shoot them is to conceal yourself under the trees before they perch, in a windy evening or on a moonlight night, and that, when you have shot them, they are most capital eating if kept for eight or ten days, and then dressed with a stuffing of red herring.

POST-OFFICE NOTICES.

THE following notices relating to the pattern and book posts have recently been issued from the General Post Office:—

PATTERN POST TO GERMANY.

Henceforward, patterns or samples of merchandise may be transmitted by post, viâ Belgium, between England and the undermentioned countries and places, constituting the German postal union—viz., Prussia, Austria, Saxony, Hanover, Brunswick, Mecklenburg-Schwerin, Mecklenburg-Strelitz, Oldenburg, Hamburg, Bremen, and Lubeck. Places in the postal district of Tour and Taxis—viz., Frankfort-on-the-Maine, Grand Duchy of Hesse, Hesse Electoral, Hesse Homburg, Schaumburg-Lippe, Lippe-Detmold, Nassau, Reuss, Saxe-Coburg Gotha, Saxe-Meiningen, Saxe-Weimar-Eisenach, Hohenzollern Schwartzburg-Rudolstadt, and Schwartzburg-Sonderhausen; Bavaria, Wirtemberg, Baden, and Luxemburg. The rates of postage chargeable upon such packets of patterns or samples, which in all cases must be prepaid by means of postage-stamps, will be as follow—viz., Not exceeding four ounces, 4d.; above four ounces and not exceeding eight ounces, 8d.; above which weight no packet of patterns or samples can be sent.

PATTERN POST TO AUSTRALIAN COLONIES (EXCEPT QUEENSLAND) AND NEW ZEALAND.

Henceforward, patterns or samples of merchandise may be transmitted by post between England and the colonies of Victoria, New South Wales, South Australia, Western Australia, Tasmania, and New Zealand, either viâ Southampton or viâ Marseilles. For the present, patterns cannot be sent to the colony of Queensland. The following will be the rates of postage, which must be prepaid by means of postage-stamps—viz., Viâ Southampton: For a packet not exceeding 4 oz., 4d.; above 4 oz. and not exceeding ½ lb., 1s.; each additional ½ lb. up to 2 lb., 8d. Viâ Marseilles: For a packet not exceeding 4 oz., 6d.; above 4 oz. and not exceeding ½ lb., 1s.; each additional ½ lb. up to 2 lb., 1s. No packet of patterns or samples exceeding the weight of three pounds can be sent to New South Wales; but on patterns or samples addressed to any of the other colonies above mentioned, the postage for heavier packets will increase by two rates of postage for every half pound or fraction of half a pound, without limit.

PATTERN POST TO LABUAN.

Henceforward, patterns of merchandise may be transmitted by post between England and Labuan, either viâ Southampton or viâ Marseilles, at the following rates of postage, which must be prepaid by means of postage-stamps—viz., Viâ Southampton: For a packet not exceeding 4 oz., 4d.; above 4 oz., and not exceeding ½ lb., 8d.; every additional ½ lb., 8d. Viâ Marseilles: For a packet not exceeding 4 oz., 6d.; above 4 oz. and not exceeding ½ lb., 1s.; every additional ½ lb., 1s.

BOOK POST TO THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

The Government at the Cape of Good Hope having made provision for extending the book post to all parts of the colony, book packets addressed to any place at the Cape of Good Hope may, henceforward, be forwarded, subject to the same rules and regulations as those under which book packets may now be forwarded to Cape Town, Port Elizabeth, and Mossel Bay. The following rates of postage, which must be prepaid by means of postage-stamps, will be chargeable upon such book packets—viz., For a packet not exceeding 4 oz., by packet or private ship, direct, 3d.; viâ Southampton and Mauritius, 4d.; viâ Marseilles and Mauritius, 6d. Above 4 oz., and not exceeding ½ lb., by packet or private ship, direct, 6d.; viâ Southampton and Mauritius, 8d.; viâ Marseilles and Mauritius, 1s. Every additional ½ lb., by packet or private ship, direct, 6d.; viâ Southampton and Mauritius, 8d.; viâ Marseilles and Mauritius, 1s.

POSTAGE ON PRINTED PRICES CURRENT AND COMMERCIAL LISTS FROM THE COLONIES OR FOREIGN COUNTRIES.

Henceforward, printed prices current and printed commercial lists received in this country from the colonies and foreign countries will be classed, in all respects, with newspapers; and will not be charged on delivery with any postage above that usually charged upon newspapers from the same colonies and foreign countries.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

ALTHOUGH the transactions in nearly all Home Securities have been on a very moderate scale, both for Money and Time, prices have been well supported, and firmness has characterised the more general operations. The quantity of stock in the hands of the jobbers is by no means extensive; but very little disposition is shown to operate largely for the Account.

There is an ample supply of money on offer in the discount market. The demand for accommodation is by no means active; nevertheless, the lowest rates for the best commercial paper are as under:—

Thirty days' bills	5¼ ⅜ per cent.	Four months' bills	6½ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	6 "	Six months' bills	7½ "
Three months' bills	6¼ "

In the Stock Exchange the value of money for short periods is 5½ per cent.

The directors of the Bank of Holland have reduced their quotation for money to 5½ per cent. On other parts of the Continent capital is unaltered in value. The rates in the leading cities are:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	4½	4¼	Turin	6	6
Vienna	6	5¾	Brussels	6	6
Berlin	7	7	Madrid	9	9
Frankfort	5	5	Hamburg	—	4½
Amsterdam	5½	5½	St. Petersburg	6½	9

The Council for India have disposed of £300,000 in bills. The applications within the limits amounted to £710,000.

The demand for bar silver is steady, at 61⅝d. per ounce.

A few parcels of gold have been sent into the Bank of England; but £90,000 has been withdrawn for Alexandria. During the present quarter £646,892 will be applied to the reduction of the National Debt.

The following return shows the state of the note circulation in the United Kingdom during the four weeks ending Dec. 10, 1864:—

Bank of England	£19,896,134
Private Banks	3,058,541
Joint-stock Banks	2,751,143
Scotland	4,635,749
Ireland	5,872,795
Total	£36,178,323

Compared with the corresponding period in 1863, the above return shows a decrease in the circulation of £1,285,523.

The steamer for the East takes out only £38,302 in bullion.

The dividend of the Peel River Company is 1 per cent for the past six months; of the Colonial Bank 6 per cent, with an extraordinary dividend of 1 per cent.

On Monday Consols, for Money, were done at 89½ ⅝; Ditto, for the new Account, 90 to ½; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89⅜ ⅞; Exchequer Bills, par to 3s. prem.; Bank Stock was 238 to 240; India Stock, for Account, 212 to 214; India Five per Cents were 102¾ to 103; Ditto Four per Cents, 98¼; Ditto, Bonds, 8s. to 10s. prem. The transactions on Tuesday were very moderate, yet prices ruled firm. Consols closed at 89½ ⅝; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅜; Bank Stock, 238 to 240; India Stock, 212 to 215; India Five per Cents, 102⅞ to 103¼; Ditto, Bonds, 5s. to 10s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 3s. prem. On the following day Consols realised 89⅝ ¾; Bank Stock, 238 to 240; India Stock, 212 to 215; Ditto Five per Cents, 102⅞ to 103¼; India, Bonds, 7s. to 12s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 5s. prem. On Thursday the market was firm. Consols, for Money, realised 89¾ ⅞; for Account, 89⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ 89; Bank Stock, 238 to 239; India Five per Cent Stock, 103¼ ½; and Exchequer Bills, 1s. to 5s. prem.

American Securities have been in very moderate request. Virginia Six per Cents have sold at 28; and Illinois Central, 52½.

The market for the Confederate Loan has ruled heavy, and prices have declined. The quotation has been as low as 52 to 54, and is now 54 to 55. Most other Foreign Securities have shown a fair amount of activity, and the quotations have somewhat improved. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 83½; Chilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 81½; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 97; Greek, 23¾; Ditto Coupons, 10½; Mexican Three per Cents, 28 ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 26¾ ex div.; Moorish, 96; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 78½ ex div.; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47; Russian Five per Cents, 1822, 88⅞; Ditto, 1862, 89; Russian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 87 ex div.; Ditto Three per Cents, 54¾; Spanish Three per Cents, 48; Ditto, Deferred, 40⅞ ex div.; Ditto, Passive, 32¾; Ditto, Certificates, 14½; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 89¼; Ditto, 1858, 70⅞; Ditto, 1862, 69¾; Venezuela Six per Cents, 49; Ditto, 1864, 42½; and Italian Five per Cents, 64 ex div. The Scrip of the new Egyptian Loan has marked 1½ prem; of the Danish, 1½ to 1¾ prem.; and of the new Danubian Loan, ½ dis. to par. English Mexican Scrip has sold at 11⅞ dis.; and French ditto, 12 dis.

In the market for Joint-stock Bank Shares, only a moderate business has been transacted. Prices, however, have had an upward tendency. Alliance have realised 32⅝; Ditto, New, 33½; Australasia, New, 66; Bank of Queensland, 17¾; City, 123½; Consolidated, 11½; European, 14; Imperial, 34; Ditto, New, 33; Imperial Ottoman, 17 ex div.; Land Mortgage of India, 5¾; London and County, 83; London and South African, 22½; London and South-Western, 22¾; London and Westminster, 99½; Oriental, 58½; Ditto, New, 54; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 11⅝; and Union of London, 58½.

Colonial Government Securities have been dealt in to a moderate extent. Canada Six per Cents have realised 95½ ex div.; Ditto Five per Cents, 85; New Brunswick Six per Cents, 97 ex div.; New South Wales Five per Cents, 93 ex div.; Nova Scotia Six per Cents, 97½ ex div.; Queensland Six per Cents, 101¾ ex div.; and Victoria Six per Cents, 107¼.

The market for Miscellaneous Securities has been rather quiet. Berlin Waterworks have sold at 9; Continental Union Gas, 10⅝; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8¼; Ditto, New, 5½; Crystal Palace, 32¼; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 5¼; Electric Telegraph, 112; General Credit, 7⅞; International Financial, 7⅜; Joint-stock Discount, 9¾; London Financial Association, 23½; Ditto, New, 23¼; London General Omnibus, 3½; Millwall Ironworks, 4⅞; National Discount, 16¼; National Financial, 4½; North British Australasian, 60; Oriental Inland Steam, 2½; Rio de Janeiro City Improvements, 25¼; Thames and Mersey Marine Insurance, 7½; Universal Marine, 5¾; Upper Assam Tea, 6½.

The Railway Share market has continued steady, and, in some instances, the quotations have had an upward tendency. Annexed are Thursday's official closing prices:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Caledonia, 133; Great Eastern, 48¾; Great Northern, 137½; Ditto, A Stock, 158½; Great Western, 79½; Ditto, West Midland—Oxford, 59½; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 116¾; London and Brighton, 105½; London, Chatham, and Dover, 38; London and North-Western, 122½; London and South-Western, 98¾; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 64¾; Metropolitan, 124¾; Ditto, New, 4; Midland, 141; North British, 55½; Ditto, Edinburgh, Perth, and Dundee, 27; North Eastern—Berwick, 115; Ditto, Leeds, 73½; Ditto, York, 105¾; South Eastern, 85¾; Vale of Neath, 112.

British Possessions.—Atlantic and St. Lawrence, 58; Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 100¾; Eastern Bengal, 100¾; East Indian, 101¾; Grand Trunk of Canada, 29¾; Great Indian Peninsula, 101¼; Madras Five per Cent, 100¾; Scinde, 100; Punjaub, 100½.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 10; Great Luxembourg, 13½; Ottoman, 10¾ ex div.; Sambre and Meuse, 7½; Turin and Savona, 10.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending Jan. 4 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

An increase of circulation of	£1,196,780	An increase of other securities of	£1,921,365
A decrease of public deposits of	100,856	A decrease of bullion of	167,341
An increase of other deposits of	831,331	An increase of rest of	27,181
An increase of Govt. securities of	199,855	A decrease of reserve of	1,339,737

The total circulation is £21,007,215. Public deposits amount to £3,530,253; and private deposits to £13,874,977. Securities are £32,832,991; and the stock of bullion is £13,913,593.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Jan. 2.—A very limited supply of English wheat was on sale here to-day, and the demand was active, at 1s. to 2s. per quarter more money. Fine foreign wheat was in request, and 1s. per quarter dearer. Other kinds commanded extreme rates. Malting and grinding barley sold freely, at full currencies. In distilling sorts very little was doing. Malt—the show of which was good—met a dull inquiry, at late rates. Good sound oats realised full prices; but heated samples were in favour of buyers. Beans were very dull, and 1s. per quarter lower. In the value of peas, no change took place. The flour trade was moderately active, at full quotations.

Jan. 4.—Wheat, both English and foreign, was in moderate request, at quite Monday's currency. All other kinds of produce were a slow inquiry.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 36s. to 45s.; ditto, white, 36s. to 46s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 35s. to 40s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 25s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 21s. to 32s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 51s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; chevalier, 62s. to 63s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 18s. to 22s.; potato ditto, 22s. to 25s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 22s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 23s.; tick beans, 30s. to 34s.; grey peas, 31s. to 34s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 35s. to 38s.; boilers, 36s. to 39s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 36s. to 40s.; town households, 32s. to 33s.; country marks, 27s. to 33s. per 280 lb.; French, 31s. to 33s. per sack; American, 19s. to 21s. per barrel.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 270; barley, 530; malt, 420; oats, 13,150; flour, 250. Irish: Oats, 820. Foreign: Wheat, 530; barley, 3780; oats, 15,520; flour, 620 barrels.

Seeds.—Clover seed is in good request, and rather dearer. Most other seeds are a slow inquiry, at late rates. The demand for cakes is by no means active.

Linseed, English, sowing, 58s. to 61s.; Calcutta, 50s. to 60s.; hempseed, 42s. to 46s. per quarter; coriander, 18s. to 22s. per cwt; brown mustard seed, 9s. to 10s.; white ditto, 9s. 6d. to 10s.; tares, 8s. 0d. to 9s. 0d. per bushel; English rapeseed, 76s. to 80s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 5s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 11s.; rape cakes, £5 5s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 50s. to 56s. per quarter; red clover seed, 44s. to 84s.; white, ditto, 50s. to 78s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Imperial Weekly Averages.—Wheat, 37s. 10d.; barley, 27s. 11d.; oats, 18s. 10d.; beans, 36s. 8d.; peas, 34s. 7d.

The Six Weeks' Averages.—Wheat, 38s. 2d.; barley, 28s. 7d.; oats, 19s. 7d.; rye, 30s. 6d.; beans, 37s. 2d.; peas, 35s. 2d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 89,022; barley, 93,345; oats, 9340; beans, 3525; peas, 1729 quarters.

Tea.—There is only a moderate business doing in this market. Prices, however, are supported. The show of samples is extensive.

Sugar.—Dealers are operating somewhat freely in most kinds of raw sugar, at full quotations. The stock amounts to 110,181 tons. Refined goods are steady, at 41s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—The trade is steady, at fully late rates. Stock, 11,349 tons.

Rice.—There is a better feeling in the demand for this article, at extreme currencies. The stock amounts to 45,000 tons.

Provisions.—The transactions in all kinds of butter are not to say extensive; nevertheless, prices are firmly supported. Friesland, 126s.; Kiel, 125s.; Jersey, 112s. to 130s.; Irish, 112s. to 122s. per cwt. Bacon is rather dearer. The best Waterford is worth 62s. per cwt. Most other provisions sell steadily, at extreme rates.

Tallow.—The market is steady, at 41s. 3d. per cwt for P.Y.C., on the spot. Stock, 57,850 casks, against 70,062 ditto last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is in improved request, at 33s. 3d. to 33s. 6d. per cwt. on the spot; rape is firm, at £43 to £47; cocoanut, £35 10s. to £36 10s.; and fine palm, £35. French turpentine, 63s. to 64s. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum moves off steadily, at full quotations. Brandy, however, is a dull inquiry. English spirit, 11s. 8d.; malt spirit, 12s. 6d. to 13s. 6d.; and English gin, for export, proof, 2s. 3d. to 2s. 9d. per gallon.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 7s. 6d.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 6s. to £1 12s. per load.

Coals.—Hetton, 23s.; Hartlepool, 22s.; Hough Hall, 22s. 6d.; Gosforth, 21s. 6d.; Kelloe, 22s.; Tanfield, 17s.; and Belmont, 21s. per ton.

Hops.—Very little business is doing in any kind. Prices, however, are well supported. They range from 110s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—Most qualities are a slow inquiry, at about previous rates.

Potatoes.—The supplies are moderate and the trade is steady, at from 55s. to 115s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, Jan. 5).—Our market to-day was but moderately supplied with beasts, but their general quality was good. Prime Scots, &c., moved off steadily, at full prices, the top figure being 5s. 6d. per 8 lb.; otherwise the beef trade was in a sluggish state, on former terms. The show of sheep was rather limited, and all breeds were in request, at fully previous rates. The best Downs and half-breds realised 6s. per 8 lb. The few calves on offer were readily disposed of, at quite Monday's currency. Prime small pigs moved off freely, at late quotations; but large hogs were very dull. In milch cows next to nothing was doing.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 4d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; prime large oxen, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 4d. to 5s. 6d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; prime southdown ditto, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 0d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 10d.; large hogs, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 6d.; suckling calves, 16s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 26s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 970; cows, 105; sheep, 2981; calves, 120; pigs, 330. Foreign: Beasts, 200; sheep, 460; calves, 97.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 2s. 10d. to 4s. 6d.; mutton, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; veal, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 8d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d. per 8 lb. by the carcass.

ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, DECEMBER 30, 1864.

BANKRUPTS.

H. GROVE, Rowledge, Frensham.—J. BYFORD, Mistley, cattle-dealer.—J. WILLCOCK, Arundel-street, Strand, patent agent.—T. B. COMPERE, Norwich, cardboard-maker.—T. CUNNINGHAM, Acton, licensed victualler.—W. HILL, Shoreditch, cabinetmaker.—J. WINTER, Upper Norwood, house agent.—A. POWELL, Bermondsey, engineer.—H. W. GALE, Curdridge, farmer.—J. CHACK, Frith-street, commission merchant.—J. BAGLEY, Camberwell, tie and collar manufacturer.—W. GOODLAD, St. Leonards, beerseller.—G. BECKLEY, Oxford-street, saddler.—T. JOHNSON, Leicester-square, jeweller.—J. BOX, Blackheath, pianoforte-maker.—H. GROVE, Frensham, Surrey, grocer.—J. BYFORD, Mistley, Essex, cattle-dealer.—J. BUCKLEY, Old Brompton, Kent, shipwright.—S. HALES, Chatham, general dealer.—F. FUSSELL, Chatham, tobacconist.—T. B. COMPERE, Norwich, cardboard-maker.—H. W. GALE, Curdridge, Hampshire.—W. GOODLAD, St. Leonards, beerseller.—D. RAMSDEN, Ullingswick, Herefordshire, publican.—T. M. WIGLEY, Birmingham, butler.—E. BARFOOT, Coventry, tallow-chandler.—J. BROOM, Stourport, Worcestershire, licensed victualler.—J. WALTERS, Rhymney, Monmouthshire, seedsman.—C. H. L. MULLER, Middlesborough, Yorkshire, timber merchant.—S. WALTON, Pudsey, Yorkshire, innkeeper.—C. BURGIN, Sheffield, steel manufacturer.—J. M. HARRISON, Chesterfield, commercial traveller.—J. LAMBERT, Chesterfield, colliery owner.—T. S. BOWLING, Kingston-on-Hull, innkeeper.—J. WITHERS, Kingston-upon-Hull, bootmaker.—F. H. PATTISON, Manchester, commission agent.—J. HOLDEN, Manchester, auctioneer.—C. STANILAND, jun., Newark-upon-Trent, Nottinghamshire, joiner.—H. BUNTING, Belper, Derbyshire, fishmonger.—G. HILL, Claycross, Derbyshire, miner.—J. ECKERSLEY, Bolton-le-Moors, Lancashire, engineer.—R. METCALFE, Otley, Yorkshire, shoemaker.—G. JEFFERY, Bridport, Dorsetshire, innkeeper.—T. REDFERN, South Wingfield, Derbyshire, farmer.—E. WISE, Bloxham, Oxfordshire, maltman.—G. SCUDAMORE, Hereford, plasterer.—N. SHENTON, Cellerhead, Staffordshire, cratemaker.—J. SPRADBROW, Canterbury, shoemaker.—W. S. BURTON, Balsall-heath, Worcestershire.—E. JOHNSON, Birmingham, greengrocer.—F. G. BENT, Liverpool, tobacconist.—E. and O. BRIGGS, Halton, Yorkshire, masons.—E. M. JONES, Cowbridge, Glamorganshire, painter.—T. PICKWORTH, Sheffield, builder.—J. HAIGH, Ordsall, Nottinghamshire, cattle-dealer.—J. SHEFFIELD, Earls Barton, Northamptonshire, newsagent.—P. PARSONS, Peterborough, shoemaker.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

M. DUNNETT, Glasgow, merchant.—R. M. ROY, Alloa, Clackmannanshire, brewer.—J. YOUNG, sen., Glasgow, tallow-chandler.—A. LAUDER, Dunoon, Argyleshire, hotel-keeper.—H. M'INTYRE, Marybank, Ross-shire, merchant.—D. TURNBULL, Dalleagles, Ayrshire, joiner.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1865.

BANKRUPTS.

J. MAIDLOW, Bayswater, builder.—H. RICE, London-wall, builder.—C. MOODY, Clerkenwell, cheesemonger.—F. SCOTT, Commercial-road, engineer.—J. BROWN, Harrow-road, builder.—W. HAZLEWOOD, Islington, warehouseman.—W. S. BOULT, Bedford-square.—T. T. PEDE, St. George's-square, composer.—H. W. MALCHOLM, Maldon, stonemason.—H. H. SADLER, Heybridge, grocer.—D. SHEATH, Croydon.—J. V. WRIGHT, Tunbridge Wells.—J. TUPPENNY, Sedlescombe, butcher.—J. WILLCOX, Southampton, grocer.—T. GEARING, North Stoneham, farmer.—J. C. WOODWARD, Sandown.—S. WARD, Southsea, licensed victualler.—W. HOLT, Newark-on-Trent, watchmaker.—R. LEE, Bradford, surgeon.—J. PARSONS, Leeds, linendraper.—T. ROYSTON, Flint, doctor of medicine.—C. CHRISTISON, Liverpool.—W. BLAKE, Middlewich, inspector of police.—J. WOOLLEY, Salford, provision-dealer.—T. HUDDLESTON, Manchester, boot manufacturer.—W. GLOVER, West Hartlepool, chemist.—J. COOK, Hartlepool, confectioner.—J. S. BLOCKEY, Leeds, manufacturing chemist.—E. CARTER, Manchester.—T. CULLIP, Broseley, licensed victualler.—H. BOUGHTON, Abinghall, beerhouse-keeper.—T. ADAMSON, Poynton.—J. BOLTON, Wheatley Carr.—T. ASTLE, Draycott, farmer.—M. BINGHAM, jun., St. Neots, rag-merchant.—W. BRYANT, Needham, innkeeper.—J. HIBBERT, Dresden, butcher.—A. S. CROFT, Kingston-on-Hull, butcher.—M. WITTON, jun., Shelfanger, blacksmith.—T. G. DEAKIN, Birmingham, gold-beater.—W. DIX, Beeston, blacksmith.—H. TONER, Liverpool, marine-store dealer.—J. WADLEY, Bristol, hat manufacturer.—G. FULLER, Thurton, butcher.—R. ROSE, Salhouse, butcher.—J. BALL, Hillhampton, hallier.—W. TOMBLIN, Bisbrook, gardener.—P. F. DAVIS, North Bathourne, stonemason.—J. CRAVEN, Oakham, tallow-chandler.—T. BRIGGS, Middlesborough, grocer.—H. HOPE, Cardiff, publican.—C. WITNEY, Walsall, newsagent.—D. REES, Pontardawe.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

W. COCHRAN, Kilmarnock, tanner.—W. GRAY, Glasgow, glass merchant.—BAIRD, PATERSON, and BAIRD, Glasgow, sugar refiners.—J. REID, jun., and D. WALKER, Glasgow, merchants.—J. D. MURRAY, Edinburgh, dealer in fancy goods.—M. BAYNE, Fort Augustus, Inverness-shire, innkeeper.—A. and W. GRAY, Aberdeen, merchants.

SCENES IN KOREA, EASTERN ASIA.

THE peninsula of Korea, situated in the easternmost parts of Asia, to the north-west of the Japanese islands, is inhabited by a nation of the Mongol race, whose Sovereign pays tribute to the Emperor of China, and sometimes to the Tycoon of Japan, but is otherwise independent. The country is rather larger than Great Britain, but very mountainous, and its climate is very cold. There are several large towns, of which Kin-Phu (more frequently named Kin-Ki-Tao) is the capital; and the manufactures of iron, cotton, silk, and paper supply a considerable trade with China. The shore of the promontory of Korea is fringed with a number of islands, both large and small. Port Hamilton, of which we give a View, is one of the southernmost groups, and, lying in the track of ships proceeding to the Sea of Tartary, is occasionally visited by them.

The dress of the Korean people, as shown in our second Illustration, is invariably white; for though their under garments may be scarcely clean, yet, as a rule, except in the case of poor fishermen and labourers, the outer robe is of a dazzling appearance, especially in the hot, sunshiny days of a Korean summer. As for the hat, which is intended to serve as a shade to the face, it is made of a transparent network of very fine strips of bamboo, stained black, and the crown is formed steeple-shaped in order to fit over the top-knot into which the hair of the Koreans is always tied. The distinguishing mark of a chief is a string of amber or yellow glass beads pendant from the inner edge of the hat. The women wear trousers à la Turque, and their headdress consists of a white wrapper tied round the head somewhat in the shape of a turban. Their dress consists of a robe confined by a girdle round the waist. In general the men are tall and well formed, and their features and expression are more pleasing than those of their neighbours the Chinese. The women when young are of a pleasing appearance, but when old decidedly repulsive, and the latter stand in no need of the jealous fears of their male protectors, who invariably endeavour to conceal both old and young from the admiring gaze of European visitors. Our Engravings are from the sketches of Mr. F. L. Bedwell,

SKETCHES FROM KOREA, EASTERN ASIA.

PORT HAMILTON, KOREA.

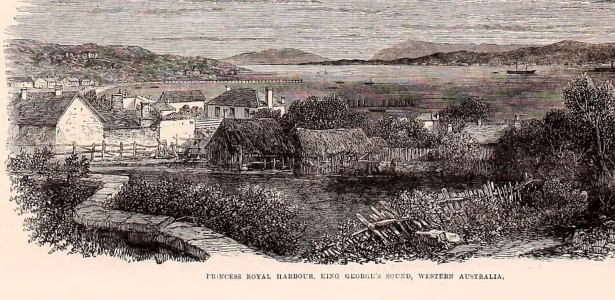
NATIVES OF KOREA.

THE LAST SURVIVING ABORIGINES OF TASMANIA.

THE last Australian mail brought us from Hobart Town, the capital of Tasmania, or, as it used to be called, Van Diemen's Land, an interesting communication, the subject of which is shown in our Engraving, from a photograph by Mr. H. A. Frith, of that town. We refer to the portraits of four unhappy people, the last survivors of their race, who now alone represent the aborigines of that large and fertile island (about equal to Ireland) which has been a British colony for the last sixty years. The following observation, quoted from the Hobart Town Mercury of the 22nd of October, will throw some light upon the subject :—

"At the last ball at Government House, Hobart Town, there appeared the last male aboriginal inhabitant of Tasmania. He was accompanied by three aboriginal women, the sole living representatives of the race beside himself, but not of such an age as to justify the expectation of any future addition to their number. We may, therefore, look upon this individual not only as the last man of his race ex esse, but also in posse. The number of the aborigines in the first decade of the present century has been variously estimated—by some at 7000, by others at 4000 to 5000 only. At first the aboriginal inhabitants of Tasmania are said to have been harmless, but this did not protect them from maltreatment by the whites. So early as 1810, Governor Collins had to complain of this, and issued an order to the effect that any person detected in firing wantonly on the natives, or murdering them 'in cold blood,' should suffer the extreme penalties of the law. And yet lesser offences against them were very leniently dealt with during Governor Collins's time. One man, for instance, was merely flogged for exposing the ears of a boy he had mutilated, and another for cutting off the little finger of a native and using it as a tobacco-stopper. Colonel Davey and Colonel Sorell, Governor Colin's successors, after a brief interval—the former from 1813 to 1817, and the latter from 1817 to 1824—seem to have had the same ground of complaint against the whites for their maltreatment of the natives; and during their governorships we meet with many a sad and mournful tale. In Governor Davey's time the practice of firing on the natives was common, and, in Governor Sorell's, the children of the natives were stolen with impunity and their women treated most shamefully. One ruffian boasted of having captured a native woman, whose husband he had killed; of having strung the bleeding head to her neck, and driven her before him as his prize. On Colonel Arther's assumption of the office of Governor, in 1824, things were not much better. He, therefore, conceived the design of making war upon the natives. All the settlers were required to turn out on Oct. 1, 1830, and every part of the island was invested. The force on our side consisted of nearly 5000 men, well armed, and that of the natives of not more than 1500 to 2000, including their women and children, with no other arms than their spears and waddies. The natives were, if possible, to have been driven into Tasman's Peninsula en masse. But the thing turned out a complete failure. Hundreds of recruits crawled away home before the campaign was half over. It had to be given up, with two natives captured and one soldier wounded as its only results. Nothing dismayed, however, it was now determined to effect by strategy what could not be done in the open field, and a very fitting agent was found in the person of Mr. Robinson, who was afterwards appointed to the office of Protector of Aborigines. He was appointed in 1829 to take charge of some natives in Bruni Island, then captured, and from them he acquired a partial knowledge of the native language. His business, after the 'black war' was over, was to take them by guile—to capture them, as he expressed it, 'by the withdrawal of intimidation and the employment of persuasive only'; and he succeeded to admiration. At this work he continued for a number of years, and the last batch of natives were captured, after he had left the colony, at Circular Head, and were conveyed to Flinders' Island, the place that had been determined upon in the interim for the reception of the rest, and where they were already provided for by the Government. As to the policy of their being cooped up in a small island, serious doubts were entertained from the first, and it was confidently asserted by many, as the event has proved, that that island would shortly be their grave. The Tasmanian natives, as a race, are now virtually extinct. There is only one man left. As savages they were found, as savages they lived, and as savages they perished."



THE LAST SURVIVING NATIVES OF TASMANIA.

this place shown in our Engraving is one of the colonists, who is now in this country. It is taken from the north-west of Princess Royal Harbour, looking towards the entrance. Bald Head, seen in the distance to the south-east, is a bold and striking promontory, forming one side of the entrance to King George's Sound. On the other side is Break-Sea Island, about two miles and a half distant, on which is erected a lighthouse. King George's Sound is in lat. about 35 deg. south, long. about 118 deg. east, and is distant from Cape Levein, the south-west cape of New Holland, about 190 miles. The outer Harbour is easy of access at all times, capable of containing any number of ships to anchor in safety, of any draught of water, the Great Eastern not excepted. About six miles to the north-west of Bald Head is the entrance to the Princess Royal, or inner, Harbour, which is entirely landlocked and capable of receiving ships drawing thirty-two feet of water. It is marked by a lighthouse at the entrance.

KING GEORGE'S SOUND, WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

THE town and port of Albany, Princess Royal Harbour, in King George's Sound, Western Australia, has become a place of some importance in the last few years, since the establishment of a line of mail steam-packets to the Australian colonies from Point de Galle, Ceylon, where the outward Australian mails, after traversing the Mediterranean, Red Sea, and Indian Ocean, are separated from those directed to Calcutta or to China. King George's Sound, being situated near the south-western corner of the Australian Continent, is the first place in Australia visited by these steamers on their outward passage, and the last place they touch at after leaving Melbourne when they return to the Indian Ocean. It has therefore been chosen by the Peninsula and Oriental Steam Navigation Company for their coaling station, and, as the store of coals is continually replenished by coaling vessels which bring it from England for the use of the steamers, the port is seldom free from bustle for more than a few days together. The climate of Albany is most salubrious and delightful, on which account it is often resorted to as a watering-place by families residing in the other provinces of Australia; it is exempt both from hot dry winds in summer and frosts in the winter season. The agricultural resources of this part of Western Australia are considerable, but their improvement has been much hindered by the existence of a plant which is poisonous to the sheep, though it has lately been proved that this nuisance does not extend so far as was at first imagined. The town of Albany, which stands between two lofty hills—Mount Clarence and Mount Melville—on the north side of Princess Royal Harbour, has a picturesque and thriving aspect. Its population is from eight hundred to one thousand souls. Its affairs are administered by a resident magistrate, Sir Alexander Campbell, with the assistance of a Town Council, subject to the provincial Government at Perth. There are barracks for a detachment of troops, a custom-house, a police-office, and an Episcopalian church, of which the Rev. W. B. Meade is the Chaplain, besides Wesleyan and Roman Catholic places of worship. The view of Albany here furnished by Mr. Chassell,

PRINCESS ROYAL HARBOUR, KING GEORGE'S SOUND, WESTERN AUSTRALIA.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." 1 vol.
BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. C. M. BELLEW. Second Edition. 3 vols.
"This story is interesting and full of incident."—Athenæum.
THE THREE WATCHES. By W. G. WILLS. 3 v.
"A decidedly clever novel."—Observer.
MR. STEWART'S INTENTIONS. By the Author of "Grandmother's Money." 3 vols.
THE ORDEAL FOR WIVES. By the Author of "The Morals of May Fair," &c. 3 vols.
Cheap Edition of BARBARA'S HISTORY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS. 5s. bound and Illustrated.
THE HAMMONDS OF HOLY CROSS. By LADY BLAKE.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

LODGE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE for 1865, under the especial Patronage of her Majesty, and corrected by the Nobility, 34th Edition, is now ready, in 1 vol., with the Arms beautifully engraved, 31s. 6d., handsomely bound.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, in 2 vols. 8vo, with Portrait,
THE HON. GRANTLEY BERKELEY'S LIFE AND RECOLLECTIONS.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

WHO'S WHO for 1865. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.
London: A. H. BAILY and Co., Cornhill.

At all Libraries, in 3 vols.,
UNCLE SILAS. A Novel. By J. SHERIDAN LE FANU, Author of "Wylder's Hand," &c.
"A powerful and exciting tale. The book takes a real hold of the imagination, and we shall see 'Uncle Silas' for many a day."—Spectator.
RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

Now ready, in 2 vols., post 8vo, with Portraits, 21s.,
A CENTURY OF ANECDOTE FROM 1750. By JOHN TIMBS, F.S.A.,
Author of "Anecdote Biographies of Statesmen, Painters, &c."
"The best collection of anecdotes which modern times have produced."—Athenæum.
RICHARD BENTLEY, New Burlington-street.

SUPERIOR SCHOOL BOOKS.
BUTTER'S READING AND SPELLING in Easy Gradations. 52nd Edition. Price 1s. 6d., bound.
BUTTER'S ETYMOLOGICAL SPELLING-BOOK AND EXPOSITOR. 262nd Edition. Price 1s. 6d., bound.
BUTTER'S GRADUAL PRIMER. 47th Edition. Price 6d.
London: SIMPKIN and Co.; Whittaker and Co.; Longman and Co.

THE NEW NOVEL.—LYNN OF THE CRAGGS, by CHARLOTTE SMITH, 3 volumes, may be obtained at all the Libraries.
London: SAMPSON LOW, SON, and MARSTON, 14, Ludgate-hill.

Now ready, 16mo, cloth gilt, 2s. 6s., post-free,
ACROSTICS IN PROSE AND VERSE: a Sequel to "Double Acrostics by Various Authors." Edited by A. E. H.
London: THOMAS BOSWORTH, 215, Regent-street.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL, New Volume. First of the New Series.
Besides the usual amount of interesting and instructive matter, the first volume of the new and improved series, now ready, contains the following interesting and popular Serial Tales:—
LOST SIR MASSINGBERD.
LORD LYNN'S WIFE.
MARRIED BENEATH HIM.
For the Village Library, the Mechanics' Institute, the Parlour of the Middle Classes, or the Drawing-room Table, the first volume of the New and Improved Series of "Chambers's Journal" will be found alike suitable.
Price 9s., handsomely bound in cloth.
W. and R. CHAMBERS, Edinburgh and London.

CHAMBERS'S JOURNAL. The popular Tale of MARRIED BENEATH HIM is now finished; to be followed in January, 1865, by another serial Romance, entitled LADY FLAVIA.

THE WASPS OF THE OCEAN; or, Little Waif and the Pirate of the Eastern Seas. A Romance of Travel and Adventure in China and Siam. By WILLIAM DALTON. With Illustrations. Price 6s.—E. MARLBOROUGH and CO., London.

WHIST, Laws and Principles of. By CAVENDISH. Seventh edition. Price 3s. 6d.; by post, 3s. 8d. "Admirably illustrated."—Macmillan. "Admirable."—J. C.'s Treatise. "Displays peculiar ability."—Illustrated News. "Very lucid."—Field.—BANCKS, 12, Glasshouse-street, W.

LE JOURNAL DES DEMOISELLES for 1865.—Subscribers' names received for the "Journal des Demoiselles," at 14s. per annum, or post-paid 16s. The Supplemental Edition, with Extra Costumes, 19s. per annum, or post-paid 21s.—By S. B. FULLER, 61, Pall-mall (late of Rathbone-place). Post-office orders payable at the post-office, St. James's-street.

NUMBER ONE of the New and Enlarged Series of CASSELL'S PAPER, ready 18th of January, price One Penny. "The School of Self-Culture," "The Play-Hour," "The Young Folks' Club," "Domestic Economy," "The Platform," "Found in the Letter-box," in addition to a higher order of "Fiction," are the titles of some of the valuable new features which will in future render "Cassell's Paper" one of the most distinctive magazines of the day.

THE COURT CIRCULAR.—The Leading Fashionable Journal, or Weekly Record of Events and Movements in High Life; and of Politics, Literature, Science, and the Arts, with Essays, Reviews, and Tales, and Critical Notices of the Theatres, Concerts, and all Public Amusements. Price 5d. unstamped; 6d. stamped. Annual subscription, £1 1s.—Office, 12, Crane-court, Fleet-street.

THE RED BOOK FOR 1865.—Just published, thoroughly revised, 5s.; or, with an Appendix, or Index of Names, contained in the volume, 2s. in addition,

THE ROYAL KALENDAR AND COURT AND CITY REGISTER for England, Scotland, Ireland, and the Colonies, containing an improved and enlarged Peerage and Baronetage—The House of Commons, with the latest alterations—The Queen's Ministers—The Royal Households—Government Departments—Ambassadors, British and Foreign—Navy and Army—Law and Civil Officers—Ecclesiastical Establishments—Universities—Literary, Scientific, and Religious Societies—Charitable and Commercial Institutions—Magistrates, Hospitals, &c.—London: R. and A. SUTTABY, 2, Amen-corner; and other Proprietors.

Tenth Thousand, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,
HUNT on the SKIN; a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By THOMAS HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, No. 21A, Charlotte-st., Fitzroy-sq. "Mr. Hunt has transferred these diseases from the incurable class to the curable."—Lancet.—London: T. RICHARDS, 37, Great Queen-st.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,
DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.
MITCHELL and CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,
ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

THE BOY'S OWN POCKET-BOOK, containing an Almanack, Diary, and Cash Account for the Year 1865; with notices of the public schools of England; rules for cricket, football, rowing, and swimming; remarks on skating, fishing, and croquet; with various useful tables. Bound in roan, gilt edges, with pockets and elastic band. Price One Shilling and Sixpence.
R. and A. SUTTABY, 2, Amen-corner, L.C.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A PRICED CATALOGUE of FOREIGN POSTAGE-STAMPS sent, post-free, for two stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 462, New Oxford-street, London. Liberia stamps, Red, 1s.; Blue, 1s. 6d.; Green, 2s.; or the set of three sent, post-free, on receipt of 4s.

NEW MUSIC.

THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY. Operetta by MACFARREN.
"A simple tune sometimes we hear." Ballad .. .. .. 2s. 6d.
"I never knew my heart held fast." Ballad .. .. .. 2s. 6d.
"You promised to come with the dawn of day." Ballad .. 2s. 6d.
Sent free half price.
EWER and CO.'S Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

MACFARREN'S OPERETTA, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY.—"The success is as legitimate as it is indisputable."—Times. "The most finished work—graceful, melodious, and effective."—Queen. This charming operetta is particularly adapted for private performances. The three principal ballads have just been published. The complete score, price 4s. net, will be ready on the 1st of February.
EWER and CO., 87, Regent-street.

NEWS FROM ALL QUARTERS! The New Song for Christmas. Price 3s. Composed by J. WILCE, and beautifully Illustrated by Scanlan. Also, the "Reception" Waltz. With Portraits of Mr. and Mrs. General Tom Thumb, and Commodore Nutt and Miss Minnie Warren; and the "Donato" Waltz, with Portrait of the celebrated Dancer Donato. Composed and arranged by Louis Rénard. Price 4s. each.
RANSFORD and SON, 2, Princes-street, Oxford-circus.
All Music Half Price.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by Easy Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years. Drawings free.

TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, 7 octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe. Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—BAGATELLE BOARDS, of the best make, from 30s., complete.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—MINIATURE BILLIARD TABLES.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—CROQUET FOR THE CARPET, from 14s., complete.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—PARLOUR GAMES, from 1s. to £20.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

ELEGANT PRESENTS. A new and Well-assorted Stock of Articles suitable for Presentation, from 5s. to £30.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

NEW STEAM CARRIAGE for common roads. No smoke or noise. Works for a farthing an hour for fuel. Prospectus free for two stamps. Steam Working Carriage Models, £1 rail-free.—J. PARKER, 6, Lilford-road, Camberwell.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The £5 Set of Magic, Microscopic, and Phanta Apparatus comprises a 3½ in. improved Achromatic Lantern, producing 12 ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable comic slides; one panorama, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with view and revolving watermill. S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for £5, which will also distinguish the features of a man four miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. Powerful Pocket Telescopes, Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE MESSRS. SOLOMONS' NEWLY- INVENTED TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give by day and night extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. DEWDNEY beautifully makes and mounts in fine gold Hair Bracelets, Chains, Brooches, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at about one half the usual charge. An elegant collection of specimens handsomely mounted kept for inspection. A splendid assortment of Jet in every variety. An Illustrated Book sent post-free.—Dewdney, 172, Fenchurch-street, London.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

WATCHES and CLOCKS.—FREDC. HAWLEY (successor to Thomas Hawley), many years watch-maker by special appointment to his late Majesty George IV., invites inspection of his carefully-finished Stock, at 148, Regent-street, W. Elegant Gold Watches, £2 15s. to £35; Silver Watches, £1 5s. to £12 12s. Eight-day Timepieces, 12s. 6d. Clocks, striking hours and half-hours, £2 15s. and upwards.—Frederic Hawley, Watch-maker, 148, Regent-street, W. (from the Strand and Coventry-street) Established nearly a century. Merchants and Shippers supplied.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.
M. F. Dent, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, from 25s. to £4 4s. For Letterpress, Lithographic, or Copper-plate Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stamp-maker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, W.C.

TOYS AND GAMES FOR THE SEASON. 10,000 Penny and other Toys to select from. The 5s. 6d. parcels contain 73 articles. N.B. Choice articles collected and sent post-free to the country upon prepayment, and valuable information to persons commencing the above business.
ARTHUR GRANGER, 308, High Holborn, W.C.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,
THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

ST. GEORGE'S RIFLE CONCERT, JAN. 11. ST. JAMES'S HALL.—The ST. GEORGE'S RIFLE VOLUNTEERS will give their FOURTH ANNUAL REGIMENTAL CONCERT on WEDNESDAY EVENING NEXT, JAN. 11. Vocalists: Miss Louisa Pyne, Mdme. Louisa Vinning, Miss Palmer, Mr. Renwick, and Mr. Sims Reeves. Instrumentalists: Mr. Brinley Richards, Herr Wilhelm Ganz, Mr. G. A. Osborne, Mr. Wüstermann, Lieut.-Col. the Hon. C. H. Lindsay, the Band of the St. George's Rifles, conducted by Mr. Haydn Millais. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and at the Office of the Corps, 39, Maddox-street.

MR. SIMS REEVES will SING "The Requital," "Sigh no More, Ladies," and "Annabelle," at the ST. GEORGE'S RIFLE CONCERT, JAN. 11, in ST. JAMES'S HALL. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

GEOLOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON. Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will commence a Course of WEDNESDAY EVENING LECTURES on GEOLOGY, from Eight to Nine. First Lecture, JAN. 25. And a more extended Course on Wednesday and Friday Mornings, from Nine to Ten. First Lecture, Friday, Jan. 27. This Course will be continued till May.
R. W. JELF, D.D., Principal.

APOLOGY from CAPTAIN DONALD (late Northamptonshire Militia).—JOHN QUICKE, Esq.—Sir,—I apologise for the unjustifiable attack I made upon you at the Gloucester Hotel, Weymouth, on the 24th of November, 1864. I admit that you have made no apology, and that I require none; and I consent to your publishing this in the newspapers, or in any other way you please. THOMAS DONALD.

ROYAL ASYLUM OF ST. ANNE'S SOCIETY, affording Home, Education, Maintenance, and Clothing to Children of Parents who have moved in a superior Station of Life, by Voluntary Contributions.
This ancient Institution is not only national, but universal. Children from all parts of the World, orphans or not, are eligible.
Subscriptions (much needed) earnestly solicited, and gratefully received by Messrs. Barclay and Co., Lombard-street; or by E. F. LEEKS,
Office, 36, Moorgate-street, E.C. Secretary.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Hundred and Ten Beds are now occupied. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT IS REQUIRED to meet the current expenses of this Charity.
PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

ILKLEY WELLS HOUSE HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT, near Otley, Yorkshire.
Resident Physician, Dr. William Philip Harrison.
The absolute purity and extreme dryness of the air of Ilkley are too well known to require comment. An equable temperature is preserved in the spacious corridors by Stuart and Smith's Patent Apparatus, rendering this superb mansion a desirable WINTER RESIDENCE for the invalid, at which season the treatment is equally efficacious with the summer. For prospectuses apply to Mr. STRACHAN, House Steward, as above.

MATRON.—HOUSE OF CORRECTION, WANDSWORTH, SURREY.
NOTICE IS HEREBY GIVEN, that at the ADJOURNED QUARTER SESSIONS, to be holden in and for the County of Surrey, at the Sessions House, St. Mary, Newington, on MONDAY, FEB. 6 next, at One o'Clock p.m., the ELECTION of a MATRON for the said prison will take place. The person to be elected must be an unmarried woman or a widow, of not more than thirty-five years of age on her last birthday. The salary will commence at £100 a year, with furnished apartments, coals, and gas, but no other allowances of any kind whatever. Persons desirous of becoming candidates for the said office may apply personally to the governor of the said prison, who will give them all necessary information relative thereto, and show them the prison, which it is desirable they should see, from the 7th to the 18th inst., between the hours of ten a.m. and two p.m., on each day, except Sundays, and they must deposit with him their applications, in their own handwriting, stating age, whether single or widow, and previous occupation, and their testimonials, on or before the 21st inst. All qualified candidates will be required to attend personally at the said House of Correction on Monday, the 23rd inst., at 11 a.m. precisely, to meet the visiting justices, who will then investigate their testimonials, &c.
An exact compliance with the above-named requisites is essential, and no written application without personal attendance will be noticed in any way.
Jan. 4, 1865. RICHARD ONSLOW, Governor.

TO GOVERNNESSES, TEACHERS, &c. The COMMITTEE of the HOME AND COLONIAL SCHOOL SOCIETY have a great demand for Governesses, and there are still two or three vacancies in that department of their Training Establishment. There are also vacancies in the House for girls under eighteen, and for young females above that age, of sound religious principles, who desire to become teachers.
The Classes recommence on the 9th of January. For the queries, &c., to be answered, apply to the Chaplain at the Institution, Gray's-inn-road.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE INSTITUTION FOR LADIES,
Tufnell Park, Camden-road, London.
The ensuing Term opens Jan. 25.
Fee for Residents in Finishing School, 60 guineas } per annum.
" Middle School, 40 guineas }
" Elementary School, 30 guineas }
Payment reckoned from Entrance.
Governess-Students received. Certificates granted.
For Prospectuses, with list of Rev. Patrons and Lady Patronesses, address Mrs. MOREL, Lady Principal, at the College.

CITY OF LONDON COLLEGE FOR LADIES.—The PIANOFORTE LESSONS by Mr. HAROLD THOMAS (Professor at the Royal Academy of Music) will be RESUMED on the 28th inst. Pupils can attend the College for Music only. Fee, three guineas the term.
8, Artillery-place, Finsbury-square, E.C.

CARLTON-HILL COLLEGE for LADIES. The PIANOFORTE LESSONS by Mr. HAROLD THOMAS will be RESUMED on the 20th inst. Pupils can attend the College for Music only. Fee, three guineas the term.
308, Carlton-hill Villas, Camden-road, N.

STOKE NEWINGTON COLLEGE for LADIES.—The PIANOFORTE LESSONS by Mr. HAROLD THOMAS will be RESUMED on the 17th inst. Pupils can attend the College for Music only. Fee, three guineas the term.
2, Paradise-row, Stoke Newington, N.

EDUCATION.—The Poplars, Mitcham, Surrey, eight miles from London. A. GROVER, Principal.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

1865. IMPORTANT TO ADVERTISERS. Arrangements for the New Year. Respectable Firms may be informed how to secure the largest circulation of their announcements throughout the United Kingdom, at less than half the usual cost, and a saving of all the ordinary trouble. Principals of respectable houses only treated with by appointments. Medical Advertisers need not apply. Address Mr. GOULD, 23, Lisle-street, Soho, London, W.

TO INVENTORS.—All intending Patentees should procure the HANDBOOK presented gratis by the GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Fleet-street, E.C. Patents obtained at moderate charges, and special facilities afforded to Inventors. R. MARSDEN LATHAM, Sec.

FIRE IN GRESHAM-STREET WEST, LONDON, E.C.
MESSRS. THOMAS TAPLING and CO., Carpet Warehousemen, &c., will, until further notice, CARRY ON THEIR BUSINESS in premises, all communicating, at 44A, GRESHAM-STREET, and 74, ALDERMANBURY (opposite those of Messrs. Bradbury, Greatorex, and Beall).

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in the finest condition, in bottles and in casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, TODD, and CO., at their new London Bridge Stores, London Bridge, S.E.

MYTTON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Legs, Saddles, and Haunches.
D. B. DOSSETOR, 5, Russell-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is equal in wear to sterling silver.

	Per Dozen. £ s. d.		Strong. £ s. d.
Table Forks	1 10 0	and	1 18 0
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,,	1 10 0
Table Spoons	1 10 0	,,	1 18 0
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,,	1 10 0
Tea Spoons	0 12 0	,,	0 18 0

Ivory Table Knives, full size, Balance Handles, First Quality.	Per Doz. £ s. d.
Table Knives	1 2 0
Dessert Knives	0 15 6
Carvers (per pair) ..	0 6 9
Kitchen Knives & Forks	0 8 6

Catalogues gratis or post-free. Orders carriage-free by rail.
Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London. Established 1818.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.		£ s. d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.		£ s. d.
12 Table Spoons	30	..	11 0 0	12 Table Spoons	40	..	15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	..	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	..	9 7 6
12 Table Forks	30	..	11 0 0	12 Table Forks	40	..	15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	..	7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	..	9 7 6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	..	3 13 4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	..	4 0 0
1 Soup Ladle	10	..	3 13 4	1 Soup Ladle	11	..	4 2 6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	..	3 18 4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	..	4 15 0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)	..		1 0 0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)	..		2 2 0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)	..		2 10 0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)	..		3 5 0
12 Tea Spoons	10	..	3 18 4	12 Tea Spoons	14	..	5 12 0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs	..		0 15 6	1 Pair Sugar Tongs	..		1 5 0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.
For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free. West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street; City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill; Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormoulu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers. LAMPS FOR INDIA.
Five New Show-rooms.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

CLOCKS, CANDELABRA, BRONZES, and LAMPS.—WILLIAM S. BURTON invites inspection of his Stock of these, displayed in two large show-rooms. Each article is of guaranteed quality, and some are objects of pure virtù, the productions of the first manufacturers of Paris, from whom William S. Burton imports them direct.

Clocks, from	.. .. ..	7s. 6d. to £45
Candelabra, from	.. ..	13s. 6d. to £16 10s. per pair.
Bronzes, from	.. ..	18s. 0d. to £16 16s.
Lamps, moderateur, from	..	6s. 0d. to £9 0s.
Pure Colza Oil	.. ..	4s. per gallon.

Illustrated Catalogues sent (per post) free.
39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE. BALLS, FORMAN, and CO., 170, Oxford-street, have twenty large ware-rooms, with every description of serviceable Furniture, marked in plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

HEAL and SON'S EIDERDOWN QUILTS, from 1 guinea to 10 guineas.—Also GOOSEDOWN QUILTS, from 8s. 6d. to 24s. List of prices and sizes sent free by post. Heal and Son's Illustrated Catalogue of Bedsteads and Priced List of Bedding, also sent post-free.
196, Tottenham-court-road, W.

J. MAPLE and CO.'s CHIMNEY-GLASSES, in best French Plates and double gilt. The following is a list of prices:—

Size of Plate.	Outside Measure of Frame.	Price.
40 by 30 inches ..	50 inches wide by 39 inches high ..	£2 12s.
40 by 30 inches ..	50 inches high by 45 inches wide ..	3 15s.
50 by 40 inches ..	63 inches high by 52 inches wide ..	4 15s.
60 by 50 inches ..	74 inches high by 66 inches wide ..	8 8s.

Larger sizes in proportion. Among which are several handsome pairs, 7 ft. 6 in. by 6 ft., price 15 guineas each; girandoles, from 14s. 9d. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S DINING and DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE surpasses any other for beauty of design and lowness of price. The present large assortment presented to view in their new and extensive show-rooms makes it most desirable for intending purchasers to inspect the same, or to send for their Illustrated Catalogue, with prices of every article.—145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; and 1 to 12, Tottenham-place.

J. MAPLE and CO. for BEDSTEADS, in Wood, Iron, and Brass, fitted with Furniture, and being complete. Magnificent Brass Bedstead, 4 guineas. Iron Bedstead, from 7s. 6d. An Illustrated Catalogue on application.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requiring no calendering. A few bales of this new and fashionable material of the choicest designs just received. J. MAPLE and CO.

CARPETS.—Carpets down 4d. per yard. New and exclusive designs for 1865.—J. MAPLE and CO., 145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; and 1 to 12, Tottenham-place.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS. CARPETS.—Stout Brussels for Bed-rooms, 2s. 4½d. per yard. Good Handsome Brussels, 3s. 6d. per yard. Very choice ditto, new in design, 4s. to 4s. 9d. per yard. 500 pieces of Old Patterns, 2s. 11d. per yard. Velvet, Axminster, and Turkey Carpets.

BEDSTEADS, BEDDING, and BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—An ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, with Prices, of 1000 articles, sent (free by post) on application to T. H. FILMER and SON, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, London, W.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited).
F. J. ACRES, Manager.
24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

BED-ROOM FURNITURE.—The GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY are now exhibiting an entirely novel description of furniture, manufactured expressly for them, of native British wood. It is light, chaste, and elegant in character, and suitable for first-class bed-rooms. The General Furnishing and Upholstery Company (Limited), F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W. N.B. The Company's Illustrated Catalogue of Furniture is forwarded, post-free, on application.

THE PATENT SIDE CARRIAGE-SPRING- ACTION METALLICOR WOODEN PALLIASSE.—This novel invention, which affords the most perfect combination of elasticity, cleanliness, and durability, is now being exhibited by the GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W., sole Agents to the patentee. Shippers and the trade supplied.

TRELOAR'S COCOANUT MATTING, as supplied to Her Majesty's Palaces and Public Buildings.
10, Ludgate-hill, London.

EVANS'S PRIZE KITCHENER.—This matchless Kitchener obtained a prize at the Exhibition of 1862. It is adapted for the cottage or mansion, from £5 5s. to £30; also larger sizes, for hotels, taverns, private and public schools, and hospitals, with steam apparatus, from £50 to £100 and upwards. Show-rooms—33 and 34, King William-street, London Bridge; Manufactory, 10, Arthur-street West, adjoining.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (The Monument), London Bridge.

PICTURE-FRAMES for the CHRISTMAS-TREE.—Handsome Gilt Frame, Glass, and Back, 3s. Maple and Gilt, 5s. The trade supplied with Mouldings, at GEO. REES', 57, Drury-lane, and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

CHI LEGGE REGGE, 15, Old Bond-st., W. Dépôt Subscription, for Two Volumes, 10s. 6d. per annum; Four Volumes, 21s.
Subscribers can select from the Dépôt List, containing 1000 recent works, and from the Catalogue of the entire standard collection of 120,000 volumes.
ENGLISH AND FOREIGN LIBRARY COMPANY (LIMITED).

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly volumes bound in the appropriate Covers, with gilt edges, at 5s. each, if sent carriage-free with P. O. order, to LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only Binders authorised by the Proprietors.

THIRTY-THREE charming COLOURED SCRAPS (Second Series), printed in oil colours, something in the style of Baxter's celebrated pictures, are now sent post-free for 2s. 10d. in stamps. The subjects are as follow:—The Bashful Maiden, the Evening Walk, Soldier's Return, the Stroll in Park, the Bird's Nest, Return from Labour, Coming from the Fair, the Performing Monkey, Good Doggie! Contentment, the Dancing Bear, the Cotter's Saturday Night, &c.—altogether forming one of the cheapest sets for scrap-books ever submitted to the public.—Address JOHN JERRARD, 172, Fleet-street, London, E.C., where the sets are open for inspection.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your carte de visite and 32 stamps, to the LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COPYING INSTITUTION, 73, Great College-street, Camden Town, N.W., or to 63, Tollington-road, Holloway, N., and you will receive 12 full-size copies with original. Tinting, three extra stamps for each carte. Address, WM. CHARLESON.

FOR FAMILY ARMS.—Important to Everyone.—Just completed, a valuable Index, containing the Arms, Crests, and Mottoes of nearly every family in England, Scotland, and Ireland, the result of thirty years' labour, extracted from public and private records, church windows, monumental brasses, and sources throughout the kingdom. Families desirous of knowing their correct crest should send name and county. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Colours, 6s.; Arms, Crest, and Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced, with the origin of family names; wills searched; arms quartered and impaled. The "Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. CULLETON, Genealogist, Lecturer on Heraldry, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CREST ENGRAVED on SEALS or RINGS, 7s. 6d.; on Steel Die, 6s.; Book-plate, with Arms and Crest, 15s.; Handsome Desk Seal, with Crest, 10s.; Livery-button Dies, 2 guineas.—T. CULLETON, Engraver to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 25, Cranbourn-st. (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

SOLID GOLD RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, Engraved with Crest, 43s. Ditto, very massive, for Arms, Crest, and Motto, £3 15s. The Hall mark is a guarantee for pure gold. Gold Seals engraved with Crest, 15s.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Dies with Arms, Crest, Monogram, or Address (as charged for by other houses) if an order be given for a Guinea Box of Stationery, all stamped free.—T. CULLETON, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards, for 2s.; post-free. Wedding and Invitation Cards, 50 for 3s.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S PATENT ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. By means of this invention a thousand pieces of linen can be marked in a few hours. Initial Plate, 1s.; Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, 2s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 5s., with directions, post-free.—T. Culleton, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

STATIONERY OF EVERY DESCRIPTION. Including Invitation Note Papers, Return Thanks Note (gilt-edged and black-bordered), Fancy Bordered Note Papers, Dish Papers, Foreign Post Papers, Black-bordered Papers, Cream-laid Note Papers, Dance Programmes, Photographic Albums, and Carte de Visite Portraits of Eminent Personages. Leather Goods in great variety, comprising Pocket-books, Purses, Metallic Memo. Card Cases, Tourists' Cases, Blotters, &c., in morocco and russia leather. All kinds of Engraving and Printing executed in the best style and at moderate prices. Crests, Monograms, or Addresses cut in steel for stamping Note Paper and Envelopes in plain or colour. Copper Plates engraved and Cards printed. Specimens and Price-Lists post-free. Playing Cards, 8d., 10d., 1s., 1s. 3d., 1s. 6d., 1s. 9d., 2s., 2s. 3d., and 2s. 6d. per pack, forwarded post-free on receipt of stamps.—J. GILBERT, City Engraving Office, 19, Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS, at Moderate Prices. By far the largest Stock in London.

Writing Cases.	Students' Writing Cases.
Work Boxes.	Dressing Cases.
Trinket Ditto.	Dressing Bags.
Stationery and Envelope Cases.	Despatch Boxes.
Blotting Books.	Inkstands of every kind.
Book Slides. Fans.	Glove and Knitting Boxes.
Desks of every kind.	Reticules and Hand Bags.
Purses and Card Cases.	Tea Caddies and Tea Trays.

Portrait Albums, Stamp Albums, Crest Albums; Electro-gilt and elegantly-mounted articles.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PRESENTS.—Purses, Pocket-Books, Cigar-cases, Card-cases, Wallets, Opera-glasses, Scent-bottles, Double and Single Pencil-cases, Fans, Note-cases, &c. N.B.—Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon pre-payment.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for Christmas presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

NEW-YEAR'S GIFT for 2s.—The 2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, 260,000 already sold, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pencase, &c., can be sent post-free by sending 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-st., W.

INDOOR GAMES OF EVERY KIND, at very Moderate prices.

Miniature Billiards,	Carpet and Table Croquet,
German Billiards,	Bagatelle (all sizes),
Cannonade, Mangola,	Ringolette,
Squails, Merelles,	Parlour Quoits,
Chess Men and Boards,	Dominoes,
Draughts, Pope Joan,	Backgammon, &c., &c.

PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

DANCE PROGRAMMES; Invitation and At Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers, Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Overland, Fancy, and Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

PLAYING CARDS (good), 8d. per pack, 7s. 6d. per doz.; gilt back ditto, 1s. per pack, 11s. per doz. All the new patterns now ready. Clubs, messes, and hotels supplied on liberal terms.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, London.

MINIATURE BILLIARD-TABLES, all Sizes; also Bagatelle-Tables and Croquet-boards.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S, 25, Oxford-street, W.

ALTAR-CLOTHS, SURPLICES, ROBES, and every other Requisite for Sacred Use.
FRANK SMITH and CO., 13, Southampton-street, Strand.
Price on application.

R. E. SIMPSON and CO.'S SEWING-MACHINES will Bind, Braid, Hem, Cord, Quilt, &c.; by self-adjusting gauges, produce a stitch which, for strength, beauty, and regularity, is unparalleled; and make, by a simple method, shown to purchasers, patterns for Braiding or Stitching.—116, Cheapside. Manufactory—Maxwell-street, Glasgow.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. Ninety thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

SILKS FOR 1865.
Imperial Check and Stripe Glacés,
in new Designs, and suitable for Young Ladies' wear,
from £1 7s. 6d. to £2 19s. 6d.
Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS
(Both Sides Alike),
including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VERY RICH
PLAIN SILKS.
Comprising our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, which can be had in 48 entirely new shades of colour, and made expressly for 1865, at £2 15s. 6d., £3 9s. 6d., and £4 9s. 6d.
the Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHION.
THE New Embroidered SILK ROBE,
from 7 guineas,
including Trimming for Bodice to match the Skirt.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Two decided Novelties for
RICH WINTER DRESSES.
The "Paris Silk Poplins," 2 guineas.
The "Lyons Silk Poplin" (reversible), 47s. 6d. Full Dress.
Can be had in Black, and an endless variety of brilliant colours.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A NEW FABRIC, FOR CHEAP AND USEFUL
WINTER DRESSES.
The Mexican Cloth, all Colours.
Checked, Striped, or Plain, 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d. to 25s. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NOW READY, IN GREAT VARIETY,
TARLATAN BALL-DRESSES.
Numerous Designs, on Black, White, or Coloured grounds,
12s. 9d. the extra Full Dress (fine quality).
Plain Tarlatans, all colours, in any quantity.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

MADE-UP COLOURED OR BLACK
TULLE and TARLATAN ROBES,
trimmed in the latest style of fashion,
each pattern in every colour, 18s. 6d. to 5 guineas,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES,
adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses,
18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE AMPHIKALUPTRA,
a Registered Table-cover,
to be obtained at
PETER ROBINSON'S
New Furnishing Drapery Department,
103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RHUMPORE CHUDDAH SHAWLS in all Colours.—FARMER and ROGERS have just received, direct from India, several cases of superb India Shawls, suitable for Wedding Presents. Also, a beautiful variety of full-sized Rhumpore Chuddah Shawls, so much esteemed for their peculiar softness.
171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street, W.
India Shawls bought and exchanged.

IMPORTANT ARRIVAL.—CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—Large Importation of Chinese and Japanese Curios, including Thousands of beautiful Japanese Hand-screens, One Shilling each.—Oriental Warehouse, 179, Regent-street; India Shawl Warehouse, Nos. 171, 173, 175.—FARMER and ROGERS.

THE ORIGINAL MOUNT ST. BERNARD CLOAK.—This beautiful warm Winter Cloak can be purchased only of FARMER and ROGERS, 171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street. Illustrations sent free by post. Attention is requested to a large lot of Real Fur Seal Jackets at greatly reduced prices.

RICH LYONS AND PARIS SILKS. SEWELL and CO., having previously announced their large purchase of Silks in the Lyons and Paris markets, beg to solicit the attention of the Nobility, Gentry, and the Public to the important Sale which commenced on MONDAY, JAN. 2, 1865. The Silks are suitable for Morning, Walking, and Evening Dresses, and are from 2s. 7½d. per yard to 5 guineas the Full Dress.
Compton House, Frith-street, Soho-square.

EVENING and BALL DRESSES. SEWELL and CO. have, in anticipation of Christmas festivities, prepared a choice variety of TULLE, NETT, and TARLATAN DRESSES.
They have also some beautiful patterns in Evening Robes, exclusively designed for their house.
Sewell and Co., Compton House, Old Compton-street, and Frith-street, Soho-square.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

EVENING GRENADINES, 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Several hundred White and Coloured Grenadine and Tarlatan Dresses, from 6s. 9d. to 12s. 6d., the extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE MOST LADY-LIKE HEAD-DRESSES of the Season are new Velvet Coronets and Rosettes, in Scarlet, Black, Black and White, Green, Blue, Brown, Violet, &c. Coronets, 1s. 9d.; Rosettes and elegant streamers, with single rosette, 1s. 9d.; Double, 2s. 3d.; Treble, 3s. 6d. All post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

A LADY'S DRESS.
THE ROYAL SILK CORDS 35s. 6d. and 2 guineas (all colours).
Equal in appearance to any dress at 5 guineas.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! Rich, bright, wide, and durable Gros Grains, Glacés, Ducapes, and Corded Black Silks, from 1 guinea to 3 guineas the Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 DOZEN SOILED FRENCH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, at Half Price. Hemmed, Stitched, or Bordered, at 10s. 6d., 15s., and 1 guinea the dozen. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

BAKER and CRISPS'
LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, FRENCH BAREGES, BALZARINES, MOHAIRS, GRENADINES, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISP'S
LAST YEAR'S SILKS, One Shilling the Yard under regular prices. White, Pink, Sky, Striped, Checked, Fancy, Corded, and Damasks. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

TO LADIES.—A large Assortment of STAYS, Skirts, Hosiery, and Ready-made Linen, at moderate prices. Flannel Dressing-gowns, from 30s. Price-lists free by post. GEORGE ROBERTS, 183, Oxford-street, and 11, Lowndes-terrace, Knightsbridge, London.

SEAL FUR PALETOTS,
and other Choice Furs,
Selected from the Finest Skins,
At POPE and PLANTE'S, 4, Waterloo-place, Pall-mall.

G. POLAND and SON, FUR MANUFACTURERS, 90, Oxford-street. The oldest established in London. Rich Fur Seal Mantles; Velvet and Cloth Cloaks lined and trimmed with fur; Fur Wrappers, Coats, Rugs, &c.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

BONNETS.—MARKS and GAVELLE, returned from Paris with the Newest Fashions for their Elegant Guinea Bonnets, in every material. Wedding orders executed. Show-rooms, 61, Regent-street (near to Swan and Edgar's).

KING and CO., SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that (in anticipation of the great rise that will take place in silk goods during the spring of 1865) they have purchased many thousand pounds' worth of Black and Coloured Silks suitable for the present season as well as the approaching spring, and solicit ladies to make their purchases early.
N.B. The whole of the Winter Stock of Silks, Shawls, Mantles, Fancy Dresses, and Made-up Robes is now being sold off at an immense reduction in price.
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£30,250 COLOURED SILKS.
Striped Silks, £1 1s., 14 yards, wide width.
Checks,
£1 5s.
Tartans,
£1 7s. 6d.
Corded,
£1 10s. 6d.
Chéné,
£1 15s. 6d.
Richest Glacés,
£1 17s. 6d.
Gros Grains,
£1 19s. 6d.
Drap de Lyons,
£2 2s. 6d.
Moire Antiques,
£3 3s. 6d.
Patterns post-free.—Address to KING and CO., Regent-street.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£25,450 BLACK SILKS.
Black Glacés, £1 1s. the Full Dress.
Gros Grains,
£1 5s. 6d.
Corded,
£1 10s. 6d.
Poult de Soies,
£1 15s. 6d.
Drap de France,
£1 17s. 6d.
Drap de Lyons,
£2 2s. 6d.
Widows' Silks,
£2 10s. 6d.
Moire Antiques,
£3 3s. 6d.
Patterns post-free.—Address to KING and CO., Regent-street.

THE NEW BALL DRESSES at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
A large and varied selection of Black Silk
Net Dresses, from
£1 1s.

PETER ROBINSON'S
NEW FAMILY MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson, having removed this branch of his business to new and larger premises, is enabled to display a larger stock of rich and medium-class goods, adapted for Court, Family, and Complimentary Mourning, and at more economical prices than have hitherto been attempted by any other house in this country.
Families requiring Mourning will find it much to their advantage to forward their orders at once to this warehouse. Goods are forwarded, if necessary, to any part of London or the country, free of expense (accompanied by a dressmaker, if desired), immediately on receipt of note or telegram.
Address Peter Robinson,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(The premises lately occupied by Hodge, Lowman, and Orchard.)

BLACK NET EVENING DRESSES. An elegant variety of entirely new designs in Made-up Skirts. Also, Tarlatan and Grenadine, worked in Gold, Silver, and Soufflé, in beautiful patterns, suitable for Ladies in or out of mourning.
Wreaths, Ornaments, Berthas, Canezous, &c.,
in the latest Parisian Novelties,
at the New Show-rooms of
PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

BLACK SILKS. A Spécialité. PETER ROBINSON would respectfully draw attention to a large lot of superior Silks, recently purchased, much under usual prices.

Black Glacé; Black Poult de Soie	from 35s to 5 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Gros de Suez; Black Royal Cord; Black Barathea; Black Radzimore	from 56s. to 7 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Clerical Silks	from 4s. to 10s. per yard.
Black Moire Antique; Black Watered Silks; Black Satins	from 4 to 10 guineas, or cut by the yard in any length. Patterns free.

Also a variety of very richly-embroidered Silk Dresses.
At PETER ROBINSON'S,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

FAMILY MOURNING.
Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that GREAT ECONOMY IS EFFECTED
by purchasing Mourning at their Establishment, 247 and 249, Regent-street,
their Stock of Family Mourning, being
THE LARGEST IN EUROPE.
Though Messrs. Jay professedly keep the BEST ARTICLES for Mourning and Half-Mourning,
AT ALL TIMES THE CHEAPEST,
they supply a Complete Suit of Domestic Mourning for 2½ guineas.
MOURNING COSTUME
of every description is kept ready made, and can be forwarded in Town or Country at a moment's notice.
The most reasonable prices are charged, and the wear of every article is guaranteed.

The London
General Mourning Warehouse,
Regent-street (next the Circus),
JAYS'.

NOVELTY.
THE "NEACLAINE" DRESS
is the most perfect novelty ever yet invented, and which, for its great variety in detail, bids fair to realise a permanent and popular character. For illustration,
AN EVENING DRESS
may be so altered, by the introduction of different colours, that each change represents a new dress, and this at a nominal cost.
A WALKING SILK DRESS may, without cost, be so metamorphosed as to display the fashions of the place or season. And A MORNING DRESS
may contain all the characteristic colours of autumn, winter, and spring to be developed, as taste suggests, by a simple readjustment of the folds and buttons.
Invented, Patented, and Sold by Messrs. JAY,
THE
LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.
"THE NEACLAINE.—Its simplicity consists in the adaptation of the prevailing fashion to a promenade or dinner costume embodied in one and the same skirt, thereby saving much inconvenience to ladies travelling or visiting, and yet affording them a varied choice of dress suited to any occasion for which it may be required."—Morning Post, Nov. 17, 1864.

MESSRS. JAY have just purchased at Lyons the very best specimens of Black Silk which can be manufactured, and under such advantageous circumstances that they can now supply their patrons and the public with any quantity required, and at last year's prices.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.
CAPPER and WATERS, 26, Regent-street, London, S.W.

H. WALKER'S NEW NEEDLES.—The Patent ridged eyes are easily threaded and work without the slightest drag. Post-free for 12 stamps for every 100, of any respectable dealer.—H. Walker, Queen's Works, Alcester, and 47, Gresham-street, London.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

USEFUL PRESENTS for the SEASON. SANGSTERS' UMBRELLAS, on Fox's Patent Paragon Frames.—W. and J. S. have prepared a large assortment of Ladies' and Gentlemen's Umbrellas, with elegant ivory and other mounts, suitable for presents, from 10s. 6d. to £5 5s.—140, Regent-street; 94, Fleet-street; 10, Royal Exchange; 75, Cheapside. Shippers supplied at their Wholesale Warehouse, 75, Cheapside.

MDME. VALERY'S NEOLIN HAIR WASH, for infallibly imparting to Grey Hair its natural colour in two or three weeks. In proof, Mdme V. requires no payment until successful in those cases treated by herself. In bottles, 7s. 6d.; packed for the country, 8s. 6d. See Mdme. Valery's "Treatise on the Hair," post-free, 1s.—46, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, W.

LOVE and KISSES.—PIESSE and LUBIN have made several NEW PERFUMES for the festive season:—Love and Kisses, the Congress of Flowers, the Sandringham Bouquet, "The rose looks fair, but fairer we it deem for that sweet odour which doth in it live." Three bottles, in an appropriate case, very pretty, 10s. A sample of any perfume, 2s. 6d.—Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

"NUTS TO CRACK."—PIESSE and LUBIN'S new and pretty CONCEITS for evening parties, scent crackers, perfume bonbons, scented shells, scenting gems. The walnut and the cracker contain a model bottle of scent, Stolen Kisses, Ever-sweet, &c., a snap, and a new motto. 4s. per dozen; 12 dozen delivered free anywhere for 40s.—No. 2, New Bond-street.

NEW-YEAR'S GIFT.—Forty Years of Success have proved that nothing can equal OLDRIDGE'S BALM of COLUMBIA for Restoring and Strengthening the Hair, Whiskers, or Moustaches. Price 3s. 6d., 6s., and 11s. per bottle. C. and A. Oldridge, 22, Wellington-street, Strand.

NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS,
for all who court the GAY and FESTIVE SCENES.
ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL,
an improver and beautifier of the Hair beyond all precedent.
ROWLANDS' KALYDOR,
for imparting a radiant bloom to the Complexion, and a softness and delicacy to the Hands, Arms, and Neck.
ROWLANDS' ODONTO,
or Pearl Dentifrice, for giving a pearl-like whiteness to the Teeth and a pleasing fragrance to the Breath.
Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
Ask for "Rowlands'" articles.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the sole proprietors, N. Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

SKIN DISEASE.—Dr. HARVEY'S CHAMELEON POMADE is a most valuable Preparation for all Skin Diseases. It is certain and safe in its effects. In pots, at 2s. 9d. and 4s. 6d. each pot.—Prepared only by J. H. THOMAS, Boston. London Agents—Barclay and Son.

BEAUTY: How to Obtain, Preserve, or Recover it.—For information on this subject write to Mdlle. BERNHAIS—inclosing 25 stamps—who will give every information in the new and delicate art of improving the complexion without the use of injurious mineral cosmetiques.—Address, Mdlle. Bernhais, 46, St. Michael's-hill, Bristol.

RIMMEL'S ROSEWATER CRACKERS, for Evening Parties, 2s. per Dozen. Six dozen for Half-a-Guinea.—Eugene Rimmel, 96, Strand, and 24, Cornhill.
New West-End Branch—128, Regent-street, London.

A DELIGHTFUL FRAGRANCE and a delicate Skin by using the celebrated UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each. Manufactured by J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. Sold everywhere.

A RECIPE for Compounding a universally esteemed Cordial in NAPOLEON PRICE'S PERFUMED ALMANACK for 1865. Price 6d.; by post, 7d.
27, Old Bond-street, London

BAY RUM, superior to all other preparations for PRODUCING HAIR, and preventing it from falling off or turning grey. Prepared by UNWIN and ALBERT, 24, Piccadilly, in bottles, 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and 10s. 6d.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal 1862.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st.; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."
No connection with anyone of the same name.

TEETH AND DENTAL SURGERY. Mr. ESKELL at home daily. Consultations free.—Mr. Eskell has no connection with anyone of the same name.
8, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street.

GABRIELS' GUTTA-PERCHA ENAMEL
for stopping decayed Teeth, 1s. 6d. per box.
Messrs. Gabriel, Dentists. Diploma, 1815.
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street, W.
Liverpool: 134, Duke-street. Birmingham: 65, New-street.
Complete Sets of Teeth, from Four Guineas the Set.

TEETH WITHOUT ANY PAIN.
Osteo-Eidon for Artificial Teeth.
Equal to Nature.
Messrs. GABRIEL, the old-established Dentists,
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street;
134, Duke-street, Liverpool; and 65, New-street, Birmingham.
A single Tooth from 5s.; Complete Set from £4 4s.

ROUND SHOULDERS, Stooping Habits, &c., CURED by wearing CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPANDER, for both sexes. Specially adapted to children to assist growth and produce a symmetrical figure.—66, Berners-st., W. Illustrations sent.

DR. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for
CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. LAWRANCE,
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

MORSONS' PEPSINE WINE is a perfectly palatable form for administering this popular remedy. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 19 and 46, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., in bottles at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each. Pepsine Lozenges, in boxes, at 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

YOUNG'S ARNICATED CORN PLASTER, 1s. and 6d. box. YOUNG'S ARNICATED BUNION PLASTER, 1s. Best ever invented. Sent by post 14 stamps. Observe the trade mark, H. Y.—31, Shaftesbury-place, City.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ELAM'S ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior make and construction, for debility, corpulency, pregnancy, &c. Directions for self-measurement forwarded free.—196, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

ELEGANT CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.

CHAPPELL'S COLLECTION of OLD CHRISTMAS CAROLS, with the Tunes to which they are sung; chiefly traditional, with some few of more modern date. Harmonised for one or more voices. Sixty pages, from engraved plates, and with ornamental cover. Price 2s. 6d.; or elegantly bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S COLLECTION of NURSERY RHYMES, with FAMILIAR TUNES, for Voice and Pianoforte. Adapted to the capacities of young people. In ornamental cover. Price 2s. 6d., or elegantly bound in cloth, with gilt edges, 4s.
This work has been prepared for the express gratification of the young, and contains a large number of the well-known ditties of the nursery:—"Sing a song of sixpence," "Little Bopeep," "Girls and boys," "Three blind mice," "What are little boys made of?" &c. They have been carefully arranged for the Pianoforte (to suit the most juvenile performers), and may be played alone or sung to an accompaniment, as desired.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S ENGLISH BALLAD ALBUM: containing 36 Songs by Balfe, Wallace, Barker, Glover, Linley, Lover, Walter Maynard, and other popular composers, all with Pianoforte Accompaniments.
Price 4s., bound and gilt edges; post-free, 4s. 6d.
In this Album will be found many of the most popular ballads of these favourite composers.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S 1st ALBUM DE DANSE for the Pianoforte; containing 10 Sets Quadrilles, 50 Valses, 40 Polkas, chiefly by Charles D'Albert.
Price 4s., bound, with gilt edges; post-free, 4s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S 2nd ALBUM DE DANSE for the Pianoforte; containing Quadrilles, Valses, Polkas, Galops, Schottisches, Varsovianas, Polka-Mazurkas, Redowas, and French Country Dances.
Price 4s., bound, with gilt edges; post-free, 4s. 6d.
N.B.—The two Albums de Danse comprise a complete collection of all music requisite for the ball-room.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S CHRISTY MINSTREL ALBUM: containing 53 Songs, with Choruses and Pianoforte Accompaniments.
N.B.—This collection alone contains various popular songs, including "I'm leaving thee in sorrow, Annie," "Friends of my youth," "I'm returning to thee, Annie," "Rosaline," &c.
Price 4s., bound, with gilt edges; post-free, 4s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S SACRED VOCAL ALBUM contains 36 Songs and Duets, by Handel, Barnett, Glover, the Hon. Mrs. Norton, Smart, Abt, Moore, Marcelle, &c. Price 4s. bound, with gilt edges; post-free, 4s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S ITALIAN SONG-BOOK: containing 32 Italian and German Songs, by Verdi, Mozart, Flotow, Schubert, &c., all with English as well as the original Words, and Pianoforte Accompaniments. Price 4s. bound, with gilt edges.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S MUSICAL GIFT-BOOK. A Collection of Pianoforte Music and Songs, arranged for young performers. Illustrated and elegantly bound for a present. Price 5s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

EARLY LOVE WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B. M. Gren. Guards. Just published, a new and beautiful Waltz, by the Composer of the celebrated Guards' Waltz. Exquisitely Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGHERITA WALTZ. A new set of Waltzes on favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with a scene from "Faust," containing Portraits of Patti, Mario, Faure, &c. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new WALTZ by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new quadrille on favourite airs from Offenbach's popular opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. Godfrey, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a New Quadrille on Popular Marches of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gren. Guards. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price (Solo or Duet) 4s.; Septet, 2s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 15s.; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP-CUP QUADRILLE. Just published, a New Quadrille on favourite Airs, including Santley's celebrated Song, "The Stirrup Cup." By CHARLES COOTE. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, composed on all the popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY, Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HUNT QUADRILLE. a new Quadrille, on popular hunting melodies, by A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.—CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE JOCKEY GALOP. By A. F. GODFREY, B. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with portraits (in colours) of Fordham, H. and J. Grimshaw, Wells, Custance, and Challoner. From Photographs by Mason, of Brighton. Price 3s.; Military Band, 15s.; Brass Band, 7s. 6d.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 2s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Song by Mrs. MURRAY GARTSHORE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50 New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O, RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY—Handel's celebrated Song, sung by Santley—transcribed for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
MARION. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 2s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SERA. Venetian Gondola Song, for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BENEDICT'S NEW PIECE.

BENEDICT'S SEA BREEZES.—Brilliant Waltz for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MRS. JOSEPH ROBINSON'S NEW PIECE.

MAY MORNING. A Sketch for the Pianoforte by Mrs. Joseph Robinson. Price 3s.
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE MUSICAL SCRAP-BOOK contains nearly three hundred perfect compositions, including complete Quadrilles, Valses, Polkas, Galops, Schottisches, Varsovianas and Redowas, Country Dances, Scotch Reels; English, Irish, Scotch, and Welsh Airs; Christy Minstrel Melodies, National Songs; Selections from "Il Trovatore," "La Traviata," "Rigoletto," "Martha," "Ernani," "Un Ballo in Maschera;" classical compositions by Handel, Beethoven, Haydn, Weber, and Mendelssohn; Fantasias and Pieces by Brinley Richards, Osborne, and Cramer; Original Songs by Balfe, Hatton, Linley, Barker, Glover, Mori, Glover, &c.; and standard Songs by Braham, Bishop, Arne, Dr. Blow. Handsomely bound, gilt edges, price 7s. 6d.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MARYLAND QUADRILLE. A most brilliant set, on new Confederate melodies, introducing "My Maryland," "Bonnie Blue Flag," and a number of other airs. By COLLINE. Price 4s. Illustrated.—BOOSEY and CO.

MARYLAND. By GEORGE FORBES. An effective piece for the Pianoforte on the celebrated Confederate air "My Maryland." Published this day. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

CHERE AMIE VALSE, founded on the most lovely of all Rossini's Melodies, has already passed through several editions. It is published for Pianoforte, 4s.; Duet, 4s; Septet, 1s.; Full Band, 3s. 6d.
BOOSEY and CO.

LOVE'S RANSOM QUADRILLES and WALTZES, on Hatton's New Opera, by Van Maanen. Price 4s. each.
BOOSEY and CO.

MARIE WILTON VALSES, with her Portrait in Colours, this day. Price 4s. Also, STELLA COLAS VALSE, with Portrait in Colours. 4s. Both by VAN MAANEN.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GENTLE FLOWER, CANST THOU TELL? Madame Sherrington's popular Ballad in J. L. Hatton's new Opera. Price 2s. 6d. Always encored. "One of the most elegant ballads which for a long time it has been our good fortune to hear."—Daily Telegraph.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

RÉNÉ FAVARGER'S SOUVENIR DE GOUNOD. A new Fantasia on "Mirella" in the most popular form. Illustrated with a beautiful Portrait of M. Gounod. Price 4s.
BOOSEY and CO.

RÉNÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE. An exquisite Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Published this day. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

MADAME ARABELLA GODDARD'S NEW SOLO, MIRELLA. By LINDSAY SLOPER. Fantasia, composed expressly for and performed by Mdme. Goddard during her Pianoforte Recitals. Price 5s. Also, New Editions of "Erin," "Caledonia," and "Cambria," three National Fantasias by Benedict; composed for Mdme. Goddard. 4s. each.

SWEET MARGUERITE. A simple and most charming Ballad. By Mdme. OURY. Published this day. Price 2s. 6d.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S SOUVENIRS D'EDINBOURG. New and brilliant Fantasia on Two Scotch Airs, in the same style, and companion to her celebrated "Souvenirs d'Ecosse." Price 4s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

FORBES' GIOJA GALOP BRILLANTE, 3s.
FORBES' CASTELLUCIA, Neapolitaine (A charming piece).
FORBES' CAPRERA (Third Edition), 3s.
FORBES' MIRELLA (Fantasia), 3s.
FORBES' RAPPELLE TOI (Tenth Edition), 2s. 6d.
FORBES' STRING OF PEARLS (Valse Brillante), 3s.
FORBES' JENNY JONES (Transposition), 2s. 6d.
FORBES' MARYLAND, 3s.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "DREAM, BABY MINE."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "LIGHT IN THE WINDOW."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "SKIPPER AND HIS BOY."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "RISE, MY SOUL."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "WEEP NOT FOR ME."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "OH! MAYST THOU DREAM." Duet.
All 3s. each.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. New Song. Published this day. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

THE BELLS WHISPER. By CLARIBEL. New Song. Published this day. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

DO YOU REMEMBER? By CLARIBEL. New Song, after the manner of "You and I." Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and CO.

GOUNOD'S NEW OPERA "MIRELLA." Pianoforte Arrangements of this highly-successful Opera.

The Overture	4s.
The favourite Airs by W. H. Callcott, in three books .. each	5s.
Kuhe's Fantasia	4s.
Mdme. Oury's Fantaisie Brillante	5s.
Rosellen's Souvenirs de Mirella (a Selection of Airs)	4s.
Nordmann's Bouquet de Melodies	4s.
Brinley Richards' Chœur de Magnanarelles (the opening Chorus)	3s.
Brinley Richards' Savoyard Melody	3s.
Ketterer's Fantasia, transcription	4s.
Lysberg's Fantasia	4s.
Ganz's Reminiscences of Mirella	4s.
Forbes's Fantasia Mirella	3s.
Talexy's Mirella Polka Mazurka	3s.
Brissac's Chanson de Magali	3s.
Réne Favarger's Souvenir de Gounod	4s.
Lindsay Sloper's Fantaisie, composed for Mdme. Goddard	5s.

BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE CHRISTY MINSTRELS' SONG-BOOK, price 8s., superbly bound, gilt edges, containing 120 Songs, with Choruses and Piano Accompaniments. Or in two vols., 4s. each.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

IN MEMORIAM, MEYERBEER, and L'ALBA, Morceaux for Pianoforte. Published this day. Composed by CESARE CUTOLO. Price 4s. each.
BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

BOOSEYS' MUSICAL LIBRARY.—Two-Guinea Subscribers have the use of twelve pieces of music in town and twenty pieces in the country, besides receiving a Guinea Illustrated Album at Christmas or an equivalent amount in music. Full particulars from Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR, for Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. A brilliant, easy, and effective transcription of this beautiful song.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG—"HOME ONCE MORE." Composed by STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This ballad, by the composer of the celebrated "Good-bye at the door," will be equally popular with that decided favourite, as it is both pleasing and attractive.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SACRED SONG, MORNING PRAYER. Composed by E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. The truly beautiful words of this song are here admirably set to music.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S LATEST SONG.

THE GARDEN OF ROSES.—The most favourite of all Miss Gabriel's compositions. Post-free for 19 stamps from EVANS and CO., 77, Baker-street, Portman-sq., W.

GRANDE FANTAISIE, sur les deux motifs "God Save the Queen," and "Partant pour la Syrie." Par Mdme. W. G. STRETTON née Lilla Thoumin.
ADDISON and CO., 210, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HALF PRICE.—All full-priced Music sent post-free at Half the Marked Price.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

NOW PERFORMING AT COVENT GARDEN THEATRE.

THE BRIDE OF SONG, Operetta in One Act. Written by HENRY FARNIE; Composed by JULES BENEDICT.
The complete Operetta, for Voice and Pianoforte, 12s.

The Overture		4	0
1. Duet—"Night and morning"	S. and C.	3	0
2. Song—"My home in Cloudland," original key, D flat; transposed key, B flat	S. or M. S.	3	0
3. Trio—"News! girls, news!"	S., C., T.	3	0
4. Song—"Boot and saddle"	B.	3	0
5. Trio—"My heart is breaking"	S., T., and B.	3	0
6. Duet—"Ah! Captain, I can see you"	S. and B.	3	0
7. Chorus—"The cattle in the clover"		4	0
8. Song—"For her sweet sake"	T.	3	0
9. Song—"Ah! do not take her from him"	C.	2	6
10. Duet—"We waited late, we waited long"	S. and T.	3	0
11. Chorus—"The Rheinland"		3	0

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S Arrangement of the admired Tenor Song, "WEAR THIS FLOWER," from Macfarren's "Helvellyn."
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

DONATO!—Now ready, THE DONATO WALTZ—DONATO GALOP—DONATO QUADRILLES. 4s. each. With authentic Portrait of this celebrated Dancer in the Shawl Dance.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

MARRIOTT'S HELVELLYN QUADRILLES, GALOP, and WALTZES (Illustrated). 4s. each.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

RÉNÉ FAVARGER'S Latest Pieces.

Fantaisie sur "Masaniello"	4s. 0d.
Mélodie Russe	3s. 6d.
Stradella Fantaisie de Salon	3s. 6d.
„ Caprice sur les Motifs favoris	4s. 0d.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

THE WITCHES' OWN. Galop. By J. P. CLARKE, Composer of the celebrated "Night Bell" Galop. Splendidly Illustrated, 3s. Played by the Military Bands.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S NEW ENGLISH SERENADE.

THE GONDOLIER'S LAST GOOD NIGHT (a legend of Venice). Beautifully Illustrated. Words by Henry Farnie. 3s.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

THE HAPPY DAWN OF DAY. 3s. Song. Written and Adapted by Henry Farnie to a favourite Air from "Nicolai."
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

THE CAVALIER'S STEED. By J. ASCHER. Written by Henry Farnie. Now ready. In E flat, &c. 3s. Beautifully illustrated.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

HANDSOME CHRISTMAS PRESENT.

MY LOVE IS AN OLDEN STORY. By A. SCHLOESSER. Written by Henry Farnie. 3s. Beautifully illustrated.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S LAST SONG. SEPARATION. Poetry by J. J. Lonsdale. 3s.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

TWO NEW SONGS by HENRY SMART. CHARGE, CHESTER, CHARGE! Poetry by Henry Farnie. 3s. Illustrated.
ROSE OF MAY. Poetry by Frederick Enoch. 2s. 6d.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S Two Celebrated WALTZES, "L'ARDITA" and "IL BACIO," with English Words, 3s. each.
CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

NOW PERFORMING AT HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

PUNCHINELLO: A Comic Opera in One Act. Written by Henry Farnie; Composed by WILLIAM CHARLES LEVEY.
The Complete Work in Quarto, for Voice and Piano, Bound and Illustrated, 15s.

SEPARATE NUMBERS.

1. "Coo!" says the Gentle Dove (S.). Beautifully Illustrated	3	0
1A. The same, transposed in F	3	0
2. Sabot Song—From fair Auvergne I come (M.S). Beautifully Illustrated	3	0
3. The Showman's Ditty (B.). Splendidly Illustrated	3	0
4. Sixty's Serenade (B.). Illustrated	3	0
5. Hurrah! for the Bombardier (T.), in F. Beautifully Illustrated	3	0

CRAMER and CO. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)
LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

28-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut	10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut	15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut	20 guineas per annum.

Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or Walnut	2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or Walnut	3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or Walnut	4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or Walnut	5 guineas per quarter.

Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE. 22 guineas. Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small instrument. It has all the requisites of the best Pianoforte—check action, solid touch, agreeable tone. The case is of polished ash or pine. In practising on this Pianoforte the fingers of the player will be strengthened much more rapidly than on an old instrument loose in the key and worn in the hammer. In rosewood or walnut, 26 and 28 guineas.
Purchasers are particularly requested to observe that this instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or check action; and that Cramer and Co. were the original manufacturers.

BROADWOOD'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 165 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) beg to direct attention to these extremely elegant and greatly admired new Pianofortes. Cramer and Co. have selected the very finest specimens, and they will be found to fulfil all the requirements of the most fastidious performer. The prices the same as those charged by the manufacturers themselves—the public having the advantage of the very choicest instruments. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 150 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. have now in their Gallery a large number of these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The cases are of walnut and rosewood, and very elegant. The tone and touch are everything that can be wished for. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW SEMI-GRAND, price 110 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. exhibit the largest selection to be seen in London. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, in Rosewood, 135 guineas; in Walnut, 155 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. have selected from the manufactories of these celebrated makers the most perfect instruments, both as regards tone and touch, that have yet been produced. They are very greatly in advance of the older class of instruments, and come very near the power and fulness of the largest grand. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE new COTTAGE PIANOFORTES, by Broadwood, Collard, and Erard, at from 20 to 25 guineas per annum, and at the end of three years the instrument becomes the property of the hirer without further payment. Hire paid quarterly.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they extend their system of three year's hire to all parts of the United Kingdom, satisfactory references and a quarter's hire in advance being the only indispensable preliminaries.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) manufacture for India a superior COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with metallic bracings, and all other appliances necessary to resist the effect of extreme climates. Unusual skill and attention are bestowed upon the manufacture of these instruments, which, for their excellent quality of tone and durability, have obtained the highest commendation. Cramer and Co. deliver these instruments, f. o. b., packed in cases lined with zinc, at any home port, for 50 guineas. Size:—Height, 3 ft. 11½ in.; width, 4 ft. 4½ in.; depth, 2 ft. 1¼ in.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S.—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments:—

	Per Month.
No. 1 and 2. One Stop	10s. 6d.
3. Three Stops	12s. 0d.
4. Five Stops	15s. 0d.
5. Ten Stops	21s. 0d.
6. Fourteen Stops	25s. 6d.
9. Ten Stops, Percussion Action	25s. 0d.
10. Fourteen Stops	31s. 6d.
11. Fourteen Stops	35s. 0d.
12. Fifteen Stops	42s. 0d.
13. Eight Stops, Two Keyboards	35s. 0d.
14. Twenty-two Stops	42s. 0d.
DRAWING-ROOM MODELS.
No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swells	21s. 0d.
2. Eight Stops	31s. 6d.
3. Sixteen Stops	42s. 0d.

N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on Instruments taken by the year.
In the case of parties purchasing and paying for an Instrument within six months from the time of hiring, the amount due for hire will be given up in lieu of discount for ready money.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD and COLLARD, COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.
A number of these instruments, just returned from hire and nearly as good as new, at £35 each. Also, Erard's Oblique Cottages (90-guinea instruments), from £40 to £50, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (the only Pianino to which the Prize Medal was awarded).—A very elegant Pianoforte, of small size, the full compass, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Yachts, Boudoirs, &c. Warranted to keep in tune and to be the best and cheapest Pianoforte, with check action and all the latest improvements.
Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 26 guineas. A great variety may be seen at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTES.—To amateurs preferring the pure English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English Model will be found the most perfectly satisfactory instrument, at a moderate price. The action is of the same simple description as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated actions are objectionable to many of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in every respect to other instruments at 50 guineas, price 35 guineas; in walnut, 40 guineas.
Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the newest kinds by those celebrated makers, may be tried side by side (and hired with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and all the latest improvements. Messrs. Chappell strongly recommend this instrument as superior to any other pianoforte at or about the same price, whether new or secondhand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 60 guineas; other varieties at 25 and 35 guineas. Illustrated Catalogues and Pianofortes and Harmoniums upon application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and in oak case. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to
CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, nearly (if not quite) as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, 13 stops, 4 rows of vibrators, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, in oak cases, 32 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

PIANOFORTES FOR HIRE, at
BOOSEY and CO.'S, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM (The Cottage) has a soft and agreeable tone, suitable for a small room.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S TEN-GUINEA HARMONIUM (The School) has a rich, full tone, suitable for class-singing or a school-room.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

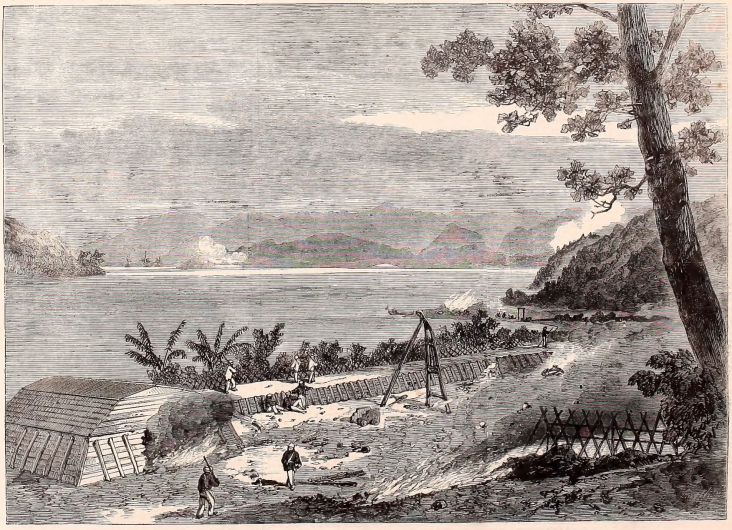
BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS at 20, 25, 30, and 40 guineas, are voiced either with a moderated tone for the chamber, or with great power for places of worship. Catalogues of all Harmoniums upon application.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 17 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument is confidently recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. The touch and tone are alike excellent, and the workmanship is of the best description.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with every modern improvement. The touch is elastic, and the tone of that rich pure quality that especially distinguishes first-class English pianos,
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be desired. It is in a richly ornamented case, has the registered keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.
Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, which still maintain their unrivalled reputation, possess a rapid speech, good quality of tone, and remain longer in tune than other Concertinas. Prices, 4 to 12 guineas.—BOOSEY and CO., Holles-st.



PRATTEN'S SEVEN-GUINEA PERFECTED CYLINDER FLUTE, old system of fingering. This instrument, the result of many years' experiments, possesses all the advantages of the cylinder flute on Boehm's and other principles, without changing the familiar fingering of the old eight-keyed flute; in addition to which, through Mr. Pratten's ingenious improvements in its construction, the manufacturers are enabled to produce this instrument at one third of the expense of any cylinder flute hitherto sold. An illustrated Prospectus may be had on application to the manufacturers, BOOSEY and CO., 24, Holles-street, W.

MUSICAL BOXES for CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES from the celebrated Nicole, of Geneva, made expressly to their order, and containing all the newest and most popular music of the day, including selections from "Faust," &c. Lists upon application.—24, Holles-street, W.

SKETCHES FROM JAPAN.

A JAPANESE LITTER.

VIEW FROM THE UPPER BATTERY, SIMONOSAKI.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

ILLUSTRATIONS FROM JAPAN.

On page 20 we have engraved a review of British and Japanese troops at Yokohama, respecting which our Special Artist writes as follows:—

"October 20 will be long remembered at Yokohama as the first day on which Japanese troops were brigaded with the British; and it was certainly a magnificent sight. A few days before this, indeed, the Ministers and Admirals had been invited to see a Japanese review, in which the Japanese infantry went through various evolutions in conjunction with the armour-clad warriors; but on this occasion the review was held on the European parade-ground, and in the presence of almost the whole population of Yokohama, native and foreign. The British troops, first and second battalions of the 20th regiment, and after which the Japanese drum and conch-shells were heard in the distance, presently the banners appeared, and then the blowers of the conchshells, followed by the drums; after which came the troops, about three splendidly dressed officers on horseback. These spearmen all were samurai, which was of course a guarantee for the quality of the officers, instead of shooting the word of command, directed all their movements by waving a stick with long strips of paper at the end, as shown in the hands of the first man in the foreground of my sketch. Besides the dress of the officers, the most striking feature was their helmet insignia, which were stuck upright on their backs. The appearance of all was to me extremely novel and interesting, especially when they formed a phalanx, with the three mounted officers in the centre, and spearmen in the rear. Then followed the troops, in close order, with their red coats, and the Belochees, in dark green, forming a most picturesque array. The men looked brilliantly all the time, and the sky was cloudless. The Japanese went through various exercises and manœuvres, in one of which they spouted down and bowed, beginning at the front rank and finishing with the rear rank kneeling. The performances of the drum and conch-shells were, at the same time, very curious; there being a drum and conch-shell played by three blasts of the conch-shells, making a noise most delectable to hear. They then advanced in line, with the rear rank presented their spears, after which they ran across the ground, when the British line opened to allow them to pass through a short time. Saksi Sana Takenaca, Awadsi-no-Kami, and other high officials, came on the ground and were presented to the generals and staff. Rutherford Alcock and his Staff. The soldiers then marched off; the British going the same way and the Japanese in the opposite direction, bearing very quickly, their banners flying, and their spears aloft."

We present two other Japanese illustrations to accompany the Engraving of this grand military review. One of these (p. 20) is an example of the kind of litter, or sedan-chair, in which persons who do not like the trouble of riding on horseback are accustomed to travel. The other is a view taken from the hill of the upper battery at Simonoseki, a day or two after the late conflict there.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

6th Hussars: Lieut. J. Kennedy to be Captain, vice Curzon. 7th Fusiliers: Lieut. and Capt. W. H. D. Llewellyn to be Lieutenant-Colonel, vice Lloyd, who retires. 14th: Staff Surg. D. Armstrong, M.D., to be Surgeon. 16th: Lieut. the Hon. F. W. Ashley to be Lieutenant. 18th: Lieut. the Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain, vice Hall, who retires. 19th: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. 19th Lancers: Surg.-Major J. Macbeth, M.D., to be Surgeon.

Rifle Brigade: Lieut. and Capt. C. Hall to be Captain, vice Ashley. 1st Life Guards: Lieut. A. C. Abbott and R. H. Dashwood to be Cornets. Royal Horse Guards: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain, vice Hall. Royal Engineers: Lieut. and Capt. J. J. Osborne to be Lieutenant-Colonel, Capt. G. H. C. Dyer to be Captain. 38th: Lieut. R. H. Hutton to be Captain, vice Hall, who retires. 39th: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. 40th: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. 42nd Highlanders: Lieut. and Capt. H. T. Curtis to be Captain. 46th: Under A. S. Davies to be Ensign. 51st: Staff Surg. J. Hall, M.D., to be Surgeon. 60th Rifles: Lieut. and Capt. H. W. Mostyn to be Captain. 63rd: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. Brigade of Guards: Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. Staff: Lieut.-Col. C. Bruce to be Lieutenant-Colonel. Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. Lieut. and Capt. H. W. Mostyn to be Captain. Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain. Lieut. and Capt. W. Mount, M.D., to be Surgeon. Lieut. and Capt. H. T. Curtis to be Captain. Lieut. and Capt. Hon. F. Ashley to be Captain.

Rifle Brigade: Lieut.-Col. W. Bruce to be Lieutenant; Staff Surg. J. D. C. Boyle to be Surgeon.

Royal West India Regiment.—Lieut. and Capt. J. Hall to be Major.

ENSIGNCIES.—Capts. G. B. Pitt and J. C. Addison to be Majors.

BREVET.—Lieut.-Col. W. C. Nepean to be Colonel.

STAFF COLLEGE.—Brevet Col. T. E. Lyall to be Commandant.

MEMORANDUM.—Lieut.-Col. Hon. F. Ashley, Capt. and T. P. Abbott to be Lieutenant-Colonels, dated Nov. 24, 1864.

BREVET.—Brevet Col. W. C. E. Napier to have the temporary rank of Brigadier-General while in command of a brigade.—Brevet Lieut.-Col. Hon. F. Ashley to be Colonel. Brevet Major F. G. Christie to have the honorary rank of Lieutenant-Colonel.

Colonel F. H. F. Pocklington is appointed to succeed the late Colonel Addison as a member of the Council of Military Education. The latter officer having succeeded Colonel T. E. Lyall as the Royal Military College, Sandhurst.

Mr. James P. Fraser, Chief Clerk in the Admiralty Record Office, Somerset-yard, was last week superannuated, with an allowance of £370 per annum. In order to obtain this expenditure of a public servant's time, one hundred men have been discharged.

The examination of candidates for admission to the Royal Military Academy, Woolwich, before the Vice-President of the Council and the Council of Military Education, began on Monday, at the Royal Hospital, Chelsea. As usual, on the first day, the number of candidates was small. The examination will last out the week. There are above 130 candidates for the thirty-two vacancies.

Mr. James Mackay states, in a letter to the Times, that he tested his new 7-inch gun on the shores of Loch Ryan, on Friday last, by firing 15-lb. shell, were loaded with 4-lb. of powder. The first shot, at 10 deg. elevation, made its first graze at 1,600 yards, and the last shot, at 20 deg. elevation, made its first graze at 2,600 yards, with 10 shots, compare favourably with the achievements of any other weapon of equal calibre.

An improvement is about to be made in the Long Valley at Aldershott, which, if successful, will be the means of saving a large sum of money. The present construction of the common, near Brew's Plain and the Long Valley, is composed of sand and gravel, which, during the dry season, rapidly shifting a number of people into a cloud of dust. The trees will be so placed as to shelter the camp and town from the drifting sand, the cost of which alone at present discomforts all in the vicinity.

Her Majesty's ship Raccoon, a screw-vessel of 695 tons and 300-horse power, and carrying four guns, struck on a rock in the China Seas on the night of Nov. 1, and became a wreck. The crew were all saved on land and safely arranged. A few days after they were moved from the rock, and an attempt was made to steam at full speed to the shore, but the vessel sank in deep water. Some days after were made divers to see if the wreck was a complete wreck. The Captain (Bevor) states that during that dreadful night the officers and men were cool and collected, and worked with the greatest zeal and energetically. But the cold and the force of the sea proved too much for the brave fellows, and out of a company of 120 men, 70 perished. The gunner master, the boatswain, a boatswain's mate, two able seamen, a stoker, a marine, and a private of the 99th regiment were landed by the Japanese steamer (Tartar) at Kobe, Hiogo, and were sent on board the Japanese steamer, the naval gunnery officer, the surgeon, the chief engineer, the first and second masters, and the engineer's assistant, were sent on board the Japanese gun-boat Kasuga, and were landed at Kobe.

From the official return of the number, name, tonnage, armament, and horse-power of each vessel, both steamers and sailing-ships, possessed by the Royal Navy, published in the London Gazette of Tuesday, it appears that the Admiralty, we find that the total strength of the Navy of England, including vessels of all descriptions, whether afloat or not, now amounts to 588 ships, the various kinds of ships and private firms twenty-eight others, which will mount from one to four guns each, and are intended for the protection of harbours, and not of a character to go to sea. Of the total number of ships, 588, only twenty-eight are iron-plated ships, frigates, corvettes, sloops, &c., the latter being to put to sea at any moment, and are known as "first-class" boats. The number at present in commission and doing duty in various parts of the world amounts to 224, leaving 364 in ordinary, and there are also in the steamers 46 coastguard cruisers and 16 watch-vessels. The above total may be classified as follows:—Ships of the line, 5; frigates, 31; corvettes, 14; sloops, &c., including those from 14 to 6 guns each, 114; screw gun-boats, from 200 to 370 tons each; 103 sailing-ships and brigs, 19 troop-ships, 4 hospital ships employed in harbour service as receiving-ships, 3 hospital ships, powder depots, coal depots, &c.; 48 coastguard cruisers, and 16 coastguard vessels.

OUR MILITARY ESTABLISHMENTS.

The changes in our military establishments are likely to be made with the view of effecting a reduction in the Army Estimates of next year have been, to a great extent settled upon by the Commander-in-Chief and those comprising the depôts of regiments serving in the United Kingdom, are to be abolished, and the Inspector-General, to be styled a Lieutenant-General's, and Commander-in-Chief in Ireland, to command.

The office of Inspector-General of Fortifications will be done away with, and the Inspector-General together with his sub-department, and Assistant Adjutant-General will disappear from the Estimates of 1865-6. The name will be changed, as might be inferred from the title of the office, with the duty of inspecting the infantry generally; it was only intrusted with the supervision of the depôt battalions, and our fourth of these are to be abolished. The remainder—the depôts of regiments abroad—will now be under the charge of general officers in whose districts they are stationed, and we cannot in fairness say that any diminution of efficiency is likely to take place in consequence. Six of these battalions are under the direct supervision of officers of rank—the three at Chatham are under a Major-General, and the three at Colchester under a Colonel on the Staff.

The post of Assistant Adjutant-General of Cavalry is to be abolished, and a Brigade Major will probably undertake the duties hitherto discharged by the Assistant Adjutant-General.

The cavalry depot at Maidstone is to be abolished, and one depôt at Canterbury will include all the depôts of regiments on the Indian establishment. The depôt of the 17th Lancers will proceed to join the head-quarters of the regiment at Canterbury. A royal horse artillery depôt will be formed in place of the 4th Dragoons, 7th Hussars, and 21st Hussars, will go to Canterbury.

The depôt of the three artillery will be removed from Canterbury to Woolwich, and the artillery barracks at the former place will be sufficient for the accommodation of the depôts of the Guards' regiments. The establishment at Maidstone will not, we believe, be interfered with, and that place will be made a first-class artillery station.

The consolidation of the two depôt battalions will involve no hardship or loss to the officers supplanting officers now commanding depôts. The Commandant at Maidstone, being very near his promotion to the rank of Major-General.

The consolidation will take place in consequence of the extinction of the two depôt companies of the battalions abroad, which will be reduced to the establishment of the service companies, but only they are absorbed by death vacancies or voluntary retirements in the rank and file.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

The members of the London Scottish (Highgate) assembled yesterday week at Child's-hall for their Christmas festivities. The company, chiefly private volunteers, presented a very picturesque appearance, a variety of tartan, kilts, plaids, and other costumes being worn. Dancing was commenced at 8 o'clock, and was kept up with great spirit until a late hour. Among those present were Colonel Holder, Mr. Dighton, Messrs. Lewis, Cooke, and Mr. Lockhart. At eight o'clock in the supper-room, at head-quarters, when the prizes were presented to the winners by Lieutenant-Colonel Holder. The ceremony took place in the presence of a crowded audience, in observing the vigorous condition of the corps.

The Christmas-day competitions in the 40th Middlesex received their prizes at the hands of Sir John Shelley, their Lieutenant-Colonel. The ceremony took place yesterday week in the presence of a numerous audience. Sir John Shelley addressed the members at some length on general matters connected with the corps. The Rev. Mr. Hutchinson delivered the prizes in the following order:—Battalion prizes, 20s, 10s, and 5s.; Class A, 20s, 10s, and 5s.; Class B, 20s, 10s, and 5s.; Class C, 20s, 10s, and 5s.; Rifles, 10s. Prizes, Eagle Series: 5th, Private Robinson. Prizes for the highest scores at four times firing: 1st, Private Hall, 24 points; 2nd, Private Adjutant Bridgman, 22 points; 3rd, Private Gardner; 4th, Private E. Lane; 2nd, Private New; 3rd, Private Wells. 2nd Series: 1st, Private Hall; 2nd, Private Bridgman; 3rd, Private Gardner; 4th, Private Lane; 5th, Private Crance; 3rd, Private Malone. 150 yards—1st, Corporal Skinner; 2nd, Sergeant Taylor, 3rd, Sergeant Bridgman; 4th, Sergeant Hall; Private Twanginer; 2nd, Private Grumsaar; 3rd, Lieutenant Bagster; 4th, Private Gollin; 5th, Private Lane; 6th, Private Wells. Prizes, Private Robertson; 8th, Sergeant Shirres; 9th, Lieutenant Combes; 10th, Private Cooper; 11th, Private Wells.

The second competition for the gold champion badge of the West Middlesex took place at Wormwood-scrubbs last week. The badge, which is due for months, was again won by Private C. Hall.

Captain Hyde Rifles Jackson (Abingdon), on Tuesday last week offered for competition to the officers of the corps he commands, the Oxford Guards, a gold cup, to be held for the ensuing twelve months by that gentleman in the neighbourhood some fortnight since. The cup, which is massive, and of elegant design, is valued at 50 guineas. The inscription, in lieu of beer, hampers of spirits, turkeys, geese, fowls, ducks, roasting-pigs, beef a-la-mode, barrel of oysters, &c., presented to competitors at a shoot, other pastry-cook, Parian bust of Lord Clyde, gold seal-gilt, and a five-years' pulley in the Volunteer Service Gazette. There were 30 entries for the handsome competition, and each had a prize.

The 2nd Middlesex, Major Robinson, of the 2nd Lancashire, stationed at Blackburn, distributed the prizes won by the members of the 4th Administrative Brigade at the rifle competition in Blackburn, last September. The presentation took place, in front of the Townhall, in the presence of a large crowd of spectators, on Friday. The Mayor remarked that the scores which they had made were a credit to any corps, and on that account he was very glad to see so many of the gentlemen of the town present this way. The prizes consisted of the challenge and Major's silver cups, three of which fell to the lot of the 2nd Lancashire, which regiment has won upwards of 200 years successively by Private Yates (or became his own property—The Corporation Challenge Cup, which was competed for on Monday last, on the Corporation Rifle Range, at Barton Moss. The competitors competing were No. 9 and No. 12. The result was as follows:—

THE INTERNATIONAL RIFLE CONTEST AT WIMBLEDON.

The accompanying Illustration shows the design of the permanent badge worn by the members of the English "twenty" who were victors in the International Match at the last meeting of the National Rifle Association at Wimbledon. The contest was then instituted under the auspices, more especially, of Captain Williams (19th Middlesex) and Lieutenant Mackenzie (1st Sussex), who had been elected captains of the two countries, and the men whom they devoted the difficult and responsible task of selecting the champions to uphold the honour of their respective countries. The following were the twenty selected by Captain Williams:—Captain Williams, 19th Middlesex; captain Chatterton, 1st Norfolk Artillery Company; Lieutenant Bent, 1st Warwickshire; Captain Robinson, 8th Middlesex; Lieutenant Marrivew, West Middlesex; Lieutenant Wilson, West Middlesex; Sergeant Winser, 2nd Kent; Sergeant Wood, 1st Kent; Sergeant Thornbury, 1st Middlesex; Private Hall, 1st Gloucester; Captain Dear, West Middlesex; Private Sanders, 1st Newcastle; Sergeant Brook-Pratt, Inns of Court; Private Lindley, 1st Gloucester; Sergeant Robinson, 16th Middlesex; Sergeant Cater, 1st Kent; Private Wood, York; Corporal Gould, 57th Middlesex; Corporal Rumbull, 1st Herts; Private Parker, 2nd Kent.

The terms of the contest, which is now established as an annual event, and will always be one of the most interesting matches at Wimbledon, are the same as those instituted by the Queen's commission for the first stage of her Majesty's prize; but, in order to be eligible for the "twenty," the candidate must have made the score of "thirty efficient." In connection with the above match a committee has been formed, with the chairmanship of Lieutenant-Colonel Lindsay, Lieutenant-Colonel of the St. George's Rifles, for the purpose of raising a subscription for the purchase of a challenge cup, called the Elcho Shield, to be held by the successful country in each year. The badge is designed from the shield, and bears the representation of St. James's street. It is made of silver, the wreath and scroll being richly gilt. The letter is engraved "International Volunteer Match," while the date is in carved letters above. It is worn on the left sleeve, attached to a short piece of the Stuart-plaid ribbon—the Royal ribbon of Scotland. The prize of the "twenty" should Scotland be victorious, the Scotch "twenty" would wear the St. George.

According to an account published at Vienna, there are 105 political journals in the Austrian possessions, of which 16 are in German, 22 in Italian, 19 in Polish, 9 in Hungarian, 7 Bohemian, 1 each Slovenian, Croatian, Illyrian, Wallachian, and Armenian. There are also 163 non-political, one—in German, 2 Italian, 2 Polish, 2 Bohemian, 2 Hungarian, 1 Slovenian, and 1 each Croatian and Illyrian.

An Atlas of America, illustrating the physical and political geography of North and South America and the West India Islands, has been published by Messrs. Longman, Mr. Colton, of New York, and Messrs. Bell and Co., of Philadelphia. The maps and city plans, sixty-five in number, admirably executed by George Philip and Son, accompanied by descriptive, geographical, statistical, and historical, by Richard Swainson Fisher, M.D. At the eventful period in the history of the States of Canada, of Mexico, and of parts of the southern continent, this elaborate work supplies a great want.

MUSIC.

A Musical Festival took place last week at Swansea, the most remarkable music-meeting, probably, that has ever been held in the Principality. It was patronised by a large body of the most distinguished individuals of the neighbourhood, and was highly successful. The arrangements were carried out on a large and liberal scale. The band, led by Mr. Blagrove, consisted of the most able members of the London orchestras; there was a chorus of harps (the national instrument of Wales), which included Mr. J. B. Chatterton, Mr. John Thomas, Mr. Wright, Mr. Price, Mr. Cheshire, and other first-rate performers; and a numerous chorus, selected from the local choirs of the district. The performances took place in the new and spacious and elegant building. The festival began on Tuesday morning, with a full rehearsal of the choristers, the band, and harps. Mr. Henry Leslie, who expressed astonishment at the ability displayed by the chorus, then took his place, composed of hard-working men, belonging to the neighbouring collieries. The first concert in the same evening consisted of a selection of national and miscellaneous music. Among the most remarkable pieces were Palmer, and Mr. Morton Smith; Rodney was sung by Mr. Weiss, and "The Eyelchen" (the Bluebird), sung by Miss Edith Gwynne; "Llwyn Onn" (the Ash Grove), by Miss Lascelles; and several other Welsh melodies, sung by the same performers and Miss Lascelles. Some of the finest Welsh choruses, and among them the famous "March of the Men of Harlech," were given with great effect. All the Welsh airs, in which the harps were employed in the band, by Mr. John Thomas, and all the choruses by the band of harps. Mr. John Thomas performed, on the harp, a Fantasia on Welsh airs, composed by himself, and arranged for the occasion. The vocal portion included Barnett's trio from "The Mountain Sylph," "The Mariners of England," by Miss Edmonds, Mr. Monteith Smith, and Mr. Lewis Thomas; Mr. Brinley Richards's fine song, "The Pilgrim's Vale," sung by Mrs. Wynne and encored. The whole selection was highly classical, and the performances excellent. The festival terminated on Thursday evening, with a very grand performance of "The Messiah." The solos were sung by the performers above mentioned. The general direction of the festival was assigned to Dr. Evan Davies, a gentleman who has done much to promote the cultivation of sacred music in Wales; and its success is a fresh proof that the inhabitants of the Principality have a decided taste for musical pursuits, and a talent attached to the ancient strains of their own land, but capable of appreciating and executing the music of the highest forms.

A great innovation has taken place in the Cathedral city of Scotland. Instrumental accompaniment to the psalmody has been introduced—a thing unheard of in Presbyterian Scotland. The organ in the Tron Church of Glasgow, where the psalms are regularly accompanied on the harmonious instrument, is the first towards the use of the organ. A few years ago a similar attempt was made in Edinburgh, but quickly relinquished.

The "Huguenots" has been performed at Rome; the title being changed to "Renato di Grenwald," and the drama much mutilated, like all operas performed with ecclesiastical sanction.

A letter from Florence, in the Daily News, gives an account of a performance of Rossini's "Stabat Mater," at the Palazzo Municipale, in aid of the poor who suffered by the recent inundations. It was a performance of great importance. The Marchesa Maria Piccolomini, a lady of rank and accomplishments, the daughter of Sir Joseph Hawkins Whitehead, and Madme. Alberton Bascarini, an English lady, also well known in the musical world, sang the solos. Their voices were received with deserved warmth. But the highest vocal praise was due to the Italian tenor attained by young English tenor, who lately left the Civil Service to seek his fortune on the lyric stage, and who, in Florence, "has been handsomely endowed by Nature; he has good looks, a fine figure, beautiful features, and very bearing; and he has also a pure tenor voice, of a rich and rare quality, that reminds you of Mario in his prime, even sometimes in the timbre of a voice at once virile and tender, sweet, resonant, full. It is not a "robusto" voice, but happy is the ear that receives the first impression of its music from amateurs on Tottenham-court-road, rather than from the professional training, to fill the largest theatre; but a graceful, flexible, suave, expressive voice, for which a master of the art of singing might have written before the present "robust" generation of tenors had usurped the stage, and ruined audiences, morals and vocal art. Mr. Hohler has, it seems, been studying uninterruptedly for several months past with Signor Lamperti, the best method of delivering the voice from the chest, of taking breath, of graduating the transition from the lower to the higher parts of the register, the exquisite portamento, the perfect subtlety of the discipline of that celebrated master. His success was complete. The Sala Filarmonica, crowded, fairly surprised an audience by no means uncritical or facile; it was encored in every piece, and the duet was twice called for and vociferously applauded. In the duet "Sulla riva" (Bellini), the first part of the concerted, which he sang with an American lady, he had already created a sensation. But in the "Cujus animam" (Rossini) he triumph was complete; and the young English tenor was all the more to be added that Mr. Hohler was to make his début at Venice this Christmas.

MUSICAL WORKS.

ENGLISH is far from being as rich in musical literature as Germany or France; but it is gradually obtaining additions to our hitherto scanty stores; and one of the most valuable additions is that to the historical work of M. Carl Engel, entitled "The Music of the Most Ancient Nations," which has been published by Messrs. Longman and Co. Germans, but his book is written for the British public, and there is nothing of the pedantry of the German about it. It is in good, idiomatic English; it is English in tone and manner as well as in style; though we could wish that the author had followed Professor Ruskin's example, and covenant with the practice of music as he shows himself to be. The work is one which has been accomplished by patient research. Besides our own Bunsey and Hawkins, other historians have treated of the subject, but they have done so in a more slender manner, and as such a subject; and their treatment of it—save in relation to the Egyptians—has been very meagre. Bunsey has hardly said to have examined—has been slight and unsatisfactory. On the music of the Egyptians he has written at length, and elaborately; but, indeed, they have been able to throw but little light; and on that which he has found to be but imperfectly acquainted with the branch of the subject—the music of the Assyrians—they have thrown no light at all. The Assyrians are going over the ground already explored by musical historians. He takes it for granted that the readers are acquainted with their history, and enters upon the new field of interesting inquiry which has been opened by modern travellers in the East. He has examined the antiquities discovered by Layard, Rawlinson, and other Oriental explorers among the ruins of Nineveh and elsewhere, and treasured up in the British Museum and other similar repositories, and has found that they furnish information as to the music of the Assyrians and other Eastern nations of remote antiquity, the importance and value of which had never before been dreamt of. The sculptures and paintings dug by Layard from the ruins of Nineveh alone are sufficient of themselves to give a lively idea of the Assyrian music as it existed three thousand years ago—say, as it existed at a period still more distant, for it is evident that music, at the time to which these relics belong, was in so advanced a state that it must then have been cultivated for ages. They show what were the various Assyrian instruments; what were their forms and powers; what were the musical scales which they were capable of producing; what were the ways they were played on, either singly or by bands of performers on public occasions, whether religious, warlike, or festive; how they were used in combination with the human voice, and what feelings and emotions these performances were calculated to excite in the minds of the people. But it is not to everyone that the Assyrian pictures and sculptures show these things. Even the discoverers themselves (as is apparent from the baldness of their descriptions) learned only that the Assyrians had instruments more or less similar to our own. It is only the practical and experienced musician that can draw from an examination of them, and from a comparison between them and the instruments of other nations and ages, inferences and conclusions as to the music of the people among whom those relics were found. Such is the purpose of M. Engel's work. Hitherto the music of the Egyptians has been the extreme point from which the history of the art has started; but M. Engel has shown that there was a music more ancient still, from which that of the Egyptians themselves was derived, and which has left traces in the music of subsequent times, in all parts of the world, even down to the present day. He has proved his propositions by an array of facts full of interest to every musical inquirer; and few readers will doubt that he has dug deeper than any preceding writer into the foundations of the history of Music.

The multiplicity of collections of metrical psalmody and works connected with that subject has often been complained of as an evil. And so, in some respects, it is. When the musical press, both in the metropolis and in provincial towns, is constantly producing heaps of such books, most of which are mere concoctions of old materials—crambe recocta—mixed up with modern rubbish from the incompetent pens of parish clerks and country organists, much mischief is done; for works of real merit and utility are lost to the public, who are unable to pick the grains of wheat from the bushels of chaff, and thus the popular taste is vitiated and degraded. But the increasing amount of evil shows, at all events, the growing attention that is paid to psalmody as a branch of the services of religion. Dr. Burney, among other prejudices, had, in common with many people of his day, a prejudice against psalmody. "Why," he said, "is the whole congregation to sing, any more than to preach or read prayers?" Such a question would not be asked nowadays. It is felt and acknowledged that an act of devotion in which the whole congregation is able to join has a sympathetic influence on the feelings of the people; and hence the singing of psalms and hymns has become an essential portion of public worship among all denominations of Christians. The enlarged demand thus created for musical manuals of devotion has led to a corresponding enlargement of the supply; and it is gratifying to observe, among the most recent contributions, works by eminent persons, both divines and musicians, which are worthy of their important object. Of these, the most valuable that we have found is "A Selection of Psalms and Hymns, arranged for the Public Services of the Church of England, by the Rev. Charles Kemble, M.A., Rector of Bath; the Music selected, arranged, and partly composed by Samuel Sebastian Wesley." (Shaw and Co., Paternoster-row.) Of this book the names of its joint authors—the one an eminent clergyman of the Church, the other the greatest living master of the English ecclesiastical school—would of themselves be a sufficient recommendation; but an attentive examination of its contents will show that a still stronger recommendation will be found in its intrinsic merits. It contains a copious collection of devotional poetry, consisting of one or more of the most approved versions of each of the Psalms of David and above six hundred hymns, selected with the judgment of a sound divine and the taste of an accomplished man of letters. The musical portion of the work is worthy of Dr. Wesley's high reputation. There are nearly two hundred tunes, among which we find all the fine old German chorales which have been introduced into the service of the English Church since the Reformation; the best tunes composed from that period to the present time; and, where the occurrence of unusual metres in the poetry rendered new tunes necessary, a number of these have been composed by Dr. Wesley himself. Unlike most of the new tunes to be found in modern collections, those of this great musician are fine specimens of sacred music. The melodies are beautiful, expressive, and clothed in the grand but simple harmony of the old German school. In regard to the music, we may add that the selection of tunes is derived from a much larger work of Dr. Wesley, "The European Psalmist," the greatest and most complete collection of this class of music in existence. That however, is a costly work, designed for the use of church choirs, organists, and members of the musical profession; while the volume before us, though sufficiently ample for every devotional purpose, is, in size and price, within the reach of every lover of metrical psalmody.

Another valuable work of this class is "A Book of Common Praise, being an incorporation and enlargement of the Rev. W. H. Havergal's 'Old Church Psalmody;' selected, harmonised, and arranged by S. G. Hatherley, Mus. B." (Shepherd, Newgate-street.) "The intention of the present work (we are told in the preface) is to supply a desideratum; for the editor is not aware of any volume which contains only such tunes and such harmonies as strictly accord with the style of those times when psalmody appears to have been best understood. The date of Thomas Ravenscroft's Psalter, 1621, may be reckoned the zenith of those times." "In compiling the present volume," he adds, "anxious attention has been paid to the rules and taste of the times alluded to. No composition of any living author is introduced, nor any of a later date which does not accord with the style of an earlier age." This design has been strictly adhered to: though the collection is ample and drawn from a variety of sources, almost all of the tunes are ancient—belonging to the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries, and they are given in their original purity, both of melody and harmony. The preface, to which we have referred, is an able essay on psalmody, containing a great deal of interesting matter. Connected with this book there is another bearing the same title, "A Book of Common Praise," but published by another house (Novello and Co.). It is a selection of hymns for parochial use, to be sung with the tunes contained in the other collection. These hymns are uniformly excellent, being selected from the works of the most distinguished sacred poets.

"Haslam's Supplement to the Tune-books in General Use" (Nisbet and Co.) is a praiseworthy work. It consists of fifty sublime melodies from the ancient Temple services, the modern Jewish synagogue, and the Greek, Latin, Russian, Moravian, and other rituals, arranged, with simple harmonies, as metrical psalm-tunes for the use of the Anglican Church, with accompanying hymns. The poetry of this book has been revised by the Rev. Charles Day, LL.B.; and the music by Mr. Turle, the eminent organist of Westminster Abbey. It will be found to be, as it professes to be, a most interesting supplement to the tune-books in general use; for the tunes are not only in a great measure unknown but are beautiful, expressive, and admirably harmonised.

There is another work which may be included in the same category as the above:—"Hymns, Sacred Part-Songs, and other Pieces, for Two, Three, and Four Voices, with an Accompaniment for the Pianoforte or Organ. Edited by F. Weslake, Associate of the Royal Academy of Music." (Lambert and Co.) This work—a series of ten numbers now issued in a handsome volume—consists of original music written expressly for it by eminent living composers, English and foreign. Its object is stated by the editor to be "the union of good religious poetry with good music;" an object which has been accomplished, for the poetry includes many fine English sacred lyrics, and the music is from the pens of Benedict, Molique, Leslie, Silas, Macfarren, Lutz, Weslake, and other eminent living composers, and includes some pieces of the great old masters, Marcello, Glück, Michael Haydn, and others. The work is intended for public and private use. Many of the pieces may be advantageously introduced into churches and places of worship, and all of them are well fitted for domestic devotion and recreation.

The fourteenth and fifteenth numbers of Messrs. Cock, Hutchings, and Co.'s excellent serial, "Chamber Anthems, arranged for Three Equal Voices," consist of two anthems by Mendelssohn; the one, "How long wilt thou forget me, O Lord!" in G minor; the other, "O hear, thou Shepherd of Israel!" in A flat major. They may be sung by three female, or three male, voices, and have an accompaniment for the pianoforte. They are short, simple, and so easy of execution as to be quite within the reach of amateurs; while they are full of that pathetic solemnity which characterises the sacred music of Mendelssohn.

Among the most recent publications of secular music, we may specify an edition of Hatton's opera, "Love's Ransom," published by Boosey and Co., to whom the copyright of the work belongs. The opinion of the merits of this opera given by us on its production at Covent Garden by the Royal English Opera Company has been fully confirmed by its success, which has been greater than that of any other new piece that they have yet brought forward; and its popularity will be extended by its publication. The entire work forms an elegant volume, and the most favourite pieces are likewise issued separately, several of the airs being transposed from the original keys into others more convenient for the voices of amateurs. The charming soprano ballad "Gentle Flower" (the gem of the opera) is lowered from A flat to F; the mezzo-soprano air, "My own native vale," from E natural to E flat; the tenor song, "Free as the mountain air," from D to B flat; and the tenor ballad, "Farewell, my mountain home," from A flat to F. These transpositions will be found very useful.

Gounod's new opera, "Le Médecin Malgré lui," of which an English version under the title of "The Mock Doctor," is about to be produced at Covent Garden, has just been published by the proprietor of the copyright, Messrs. Chappell and Co. This opera has not yet been performed even at Paris, and our knowledge of it is derived wholly from the perusal of this English edition, which has enabled us to form a very high opinion of the work. We can perceive from Mr. Kenny's version that Molière's dialogue, so rich in wit and humour, is rendered with fidelity and spirit, and that the plot, though a little simplified, is closely adhered to. We have no doubt that when this opera comes upon the stage it will turn out to be one of Gounod's happiest productions if it receive justice in the performance; for the principal character (the medical woodcutter) demands, as a representative, another Lablache or Ronconi—a buffo of the highest powers, comic and vocal; and, we are told, it is the difficulty in finding such a performer that has hitherto delayed the production of the opera at Paris.

A song composed by J. M'Murdie Mus. Bac., Oxon, "As the Wild Flower to the Mountain," the poetry by Jessica Ranken, is one of the most elegant vocal pieces we have lately met with. The verses are beautiful, and have already attracted the attention of composers, but have never been so happily united to music as they have been by Mr. M'Murdie. We have often spoken with admiration of his vocal compositions, and consider this song as calculated to do honour to his name. The music is extremely simple in form (the melody lying within the compass of an octave), has the simplicity of genius, is full of feeling, and marked with the stamp of individuality. The expression given to the words, "Lonely and weary," will strike every listener. The pianoforte accompaniment is remarkable for the total absence of remplissage. There is not a superfluous note, nor is there a note wanting: any attempt, either to fill up the harmony on the one hand, or to thin it on the other, would only impair its clearness and effect—a precious quality at a time when it is the fashion to load vocal music with as many notes as the accompanyist has fingers for.

Two pieces for the piano, by the young and gifted composer, Mr. Harold Thomas, will add to his rising reputation. The one is a Fantasia on themes from Nicolai's Opera, "Falstaff; or, the Merry Wives of Windsor" (Cramer and Co.); the other is a Fantasia on themes from Flotow's "Stradella" (Chappel and Co.) They are admirable specimens of writing for the instrument—brilliant, graceful, and, though sufficiently difficult to require a good performer, free from the passages of mere display and feats of musical gymnastics with which modern music for the piano is so often deformed. A new edition, moreover, of Mr. Thomas's already popular piece entitled, "Across Country" has been published (Ollivier and Co.) It is one of the best things of this class that we are acquainted with—gay, animated, and full of the rapid, impetuous movement of the hunting-field.

Mr. Brinley Richards, one of our most successful and indefatigable pianoforte composers, has not lately been neglecting his vocation. Two pieces from his pen have just been published simultaneously in London and Paris. The one is "Alexandra, a Nocturne;" the other is a "Pastorale, andante con moto." Mr. Richards's merits as a writer for the piano are so well known to our musical readers that it is sufficient for us to direct their attention to these his most recent productions, and to add that they are in every way worthy of him.

CHRISTMAS AMUSEMENTS.

Modern amusements of a theatrical character extend nowadays beyond the walls of theatres, and present themselves, in semi-dramatic forms, in halls, chambers, and galleries for the entertainment of fastidious people who prefer the drawing-room style of performance to the strictly professional. This free-and-easy mode of doing the thing makes much less demand on the attention and better suits the nerves of those who wish not to be strongly stimulated by any performance, but simply to be gently diverted and moderately excited by the series of objects not altogether familiar, by which they are willing, for a time, that their senses should be delicately addressed. A new class of entertainment has accordingly been created for polite audiences, and adroitly adapted in various shapes to the tastes of cultivated persons who seek for their families a perfectly innocent representation, such as might form the subject of a clever charade in their own parlour. In this direction considerable talent has lately been shown, and profit derived from its exertion, in favour of those fashionable circles by which it can be best appreciated.

The institution in which this tendency is gratified in the highest possible form, and where, indeed, a scientific value is given to it, is the Polytechnic. Here may holiday folk not only be thoroughly well amused, but profitably instructed. Professor Pepper is the genius of the place, and a more competent conductor of such an entertainment is not to be found. He has already rendered himself famous by his manufacture of ghosts, and is now proceeding in a manner likely to be still more famous in his application of the ingeniously-invented method of producing apparitions, and demolishing the whole fabric of superstition in regard to ghosts by which the vulgar in all ages have been deluded. The application to which we allude is given in the shape of a lecture delivered by Mr. Pepper, illustrated by some curious optical effects and ocular illusions, and associated with an Oriental romance touching the love of a beautiful Hindoo maiden, and the ceremony of the suttee, all of which is performed by a company of ghosts. He likewise reads the story of "Snowy White and Rosy Red," from the repertory of the Brothers Grimm, accompanied with a series of fine views of the most romantic description. Mr. Cheshire, also, has introduced many improvements into the shadow-pantomime; and Mr. Coote gives a ludicrous exposition of Bruce's travels in Egypt and Abyssinia, and the fabulous adventures of Baron Munchausen. The comic pictures by which the narrative is accompanied, are designed by Mr. Brunton, and executed on glass by Messrs. Child and Hill. Herr Whautkins, the king of jugglers, likewise amuses the juveniles with his feats of legerdemain; and Signor Blitz rivals him with artifices which are really surprising. Other optical illusions, produced by refraction, together with the wonders of the opaque microscope and physioscope, and a long series of marvels too numerous to mention, compose an exhibition with which nothing similar in the metropolis can compete.

Next in importance is the Gallery of Illustration, where Mr. and Mrs. German Reed, with Mr. John Parry, continue to give their admirable representations. "The Rival Composers," with the Sisters Pry, "The Bard and His Birthplace," and "Mrs. Roseleaf at the Seaside" are as amusing as ever. The entertainments are varied on Tuesdays and Thursday with the excellent opera di camera, entitled "The Soldier's Legacy" and "Too Many Cooks," productions well entitled to take their place with the best in the musical and dramatic world.

The Polygraphic Hall is now tenanted by the C. C. C. Christy Minstrels, and their merry doings, and sayings, and singings, cannot fail of adding to the festivities of the new year, and enabling multitudes to enter on a fresh career with cheerfulness and spirit.

The Agricultural Hall at Islington has become quite an institution, and is applicable to a variety of purposes. It was opened on Christmas Eve as a Hippodrome, under the direction of M. Price. This gentleman is the head of a foreign equestrian company, which has migrated through Continental cities, and especially in Spain and Portugal, where it has been patronised by the several Courts. They came direct to us from Madrid. The arrangements of the hall have been modified for the occasion. The hippodrome and the circus are enlarged, and skilfully-managed private boxes are added to the conveniences of the public, and chairs, provided with carpets, supplied for the reserved seats. The hall is, therefore, now a comfortable place, notwithstanding its size. A stud of a hundred horses gives immense resources to the management, and it must be added in justice that the animals are very beautiful. The quadrilles executed by them were performed in a manner which testified to their complete training. The entertainment is skilfully varied, and the riders are good. Mr. Nelson, in the nautical act, portrayed "The Life of a Sailor" with great pantomimic power. Mdlle. Lina Schwaz is an equestrienne of much grace and beauty. Herr Leonard Renz, M. Henri Herzog, and Mr. Frank Pastor, the well-known American rider, came off triumphantly; but all were eclipsed by the leaping of Mdme. Herzog, on her grey palfrey. The Clowns are amusing, particularly two Spanish Clowns, named Los Hermanos Dallot. There is also a singularly clever dog, who rolls a globe up and down a plane with precision and safety. The circus entertainments concluded with Mdlle. Christiana Renz, who performed some extraordinary feats of leaping through hoops and over flags. Then succeeded the spectacles in the hippodrome—a horse-race by four ladies, a Roman chariot-race by three drivers, and racing by other three artists on two bare-backed steeds. Three African lions and lioness, under the direction of Mr. George Newcome, were also exhibited. A maypole dance by ten couples on horseback, in bright glittering dresses, was not the least attractive feature in the performance. A steeplechase of the most daring kind followed. Altogether, the performances are distinguished by much novelty of detail and great beauty of execution.

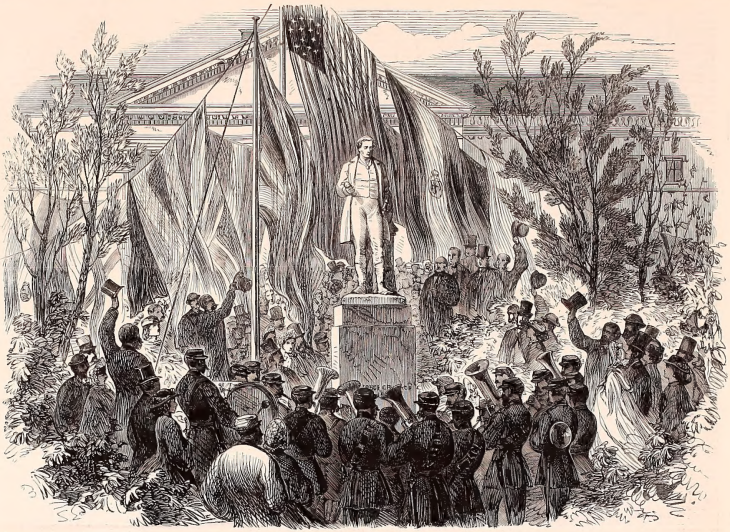
ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland, in his second lecture "On the Chemistry of a Coal," delivered on Thursday, Dec. 29, continued the description of its elements, especially those which exist in the form of water, which he decomposed into its constituents, oxygen and hydrogen, by means of the electric current of a voltaic battery. Oxygen was shown to be a colourless, transparent, inodorous gas, slightly heavier than air. It constitutes about one fifth of the bulk of the atmosphere, eight ninths of the weight of all water, and nearly three fourths of the weight of carbonic acid. It will not burn, but supports the combustion of ignited bodies with tremendous energy, and its presence in air renders it capable of supporting combustion and animal life. Hydrogen is also a colourless, transparent, and inodorous gas, fourteen times lighter than air. Its chemical properties were shown to be the reverse of those of oxygen. It is highly combustible, but extinguishes burning substances immersed in it. Violent explosions took place when it was intimately mixed with air or oxygen. When hydrogen was burnt in air or oxygen water was reproduced, and it was stated that one ninth of the weight of all water consists of hydrogen. Among the experiments were various methods of producing oxygen and hydrogen, the brilliant combustion of charcoal powder, phosphorus, iron, &c., in oxygen; the burning of specimens of the Japanese matches described in our last Number, page 683; the exhibition of the old firework "fur-fire," &c.

Professor Frankland's third lecture, delivered on Saturday last, was devoted to the consideration of the question, "How Coal was put together in Nature." It was shown what great force is required to separate the elements of carbonic acid and water, the constituents of coal, and that this force, which remains stored up in the separated elements, reappears as heat and light when they recombine; and the elements, which are comparatively powerless when united in water and carbonic acid, become very powerful matter when isolated. The sun is the agent which converts powerless carbonic acid and water into wood and coal, and in them are stored up the sunshine of past ages. It has been computed that the force given off when fifty-two grains of charcoal are burnt is equal to that of a ton weight falling thirty-five feet; and that a moderate-sized geranium in one summer's day acquires force sufficient to raise a weight of two tons one foot. Wood is composed of forty parts of powerful and sixty parts powerless matter. It loses some of the latter (as carbonic acid and water) when exposed to moisture, and becomes peat, which when dry, consists of forty-seven parts of powerful and fifty-three parts of powerless matter. Again, losing carbonic acid and water, peat becomes lignite (fifty-eight parts of powerful and forty-two parts of powerless matter); and, finally, after losing firedamp and more carbonic acid and water, lignite becomes coal (eighty-five parts of powerful and fifteen parts of powerless matter). The whole of the work of making coal was performed by the sun, with the apparatus of living plants, the power required to transform wood into coal being derived from the wood itself. Among the experimental illustrations were—the production of water by the combination of hydrogen and oxygen; the transformation of powerless into powerful matter, by chemical affinity; the production of heat by friction, &c. The formation of coal was illustrated by illuminated diagrams and specimens of various kinds of fossil fuel.

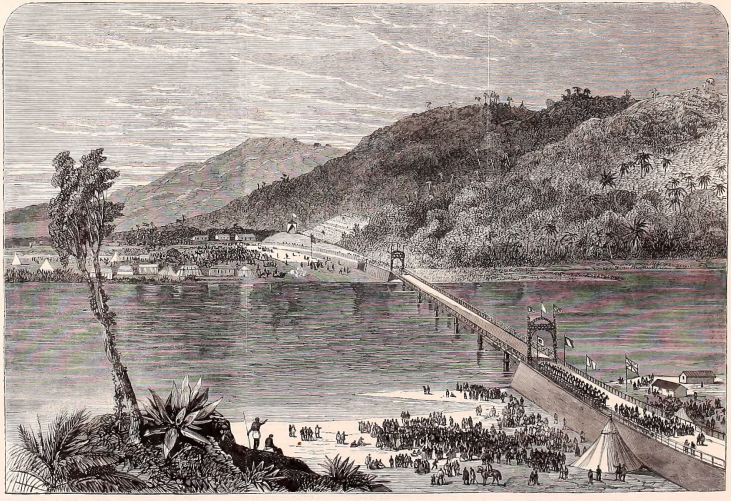
Professor Frankland, in his fourth lecture "On the Chemistry of a Coal," delivered on Tuesday last, especially dwelt on the combustion of coal and its results, heat and light. It was shown that the flame of coal is due to the escape of its hydrogen and oxygen, chiefly in the form of oxycarbon and hydrocarbon gases; and that smoke is produced when the temperature of these gases is not sufficiently high, or when the supply of air is insufficient. Black smoke contains fine particles of carbon, and coloured smoke consists chiefly of condensable vapours, the colour of blue and yellow smoke varying as they are seen by reflected or transmitted light. Pure flames contain no solid matter, and are always coloured; but mixed flames contain solid matter, and are generally white. After the gases are expelled from burning coal the remaining carbon burns without flame as glowing cinders. When this combustion is ended the mineral, or incombustible part, remains as ashes. When coal is completely burned it returns to the same forms of matter from which it sprang—water and carbonic acid. The numerous illustrative experiments concluded with examples of flames, white and coloured, and the exhibition of their spectra by means of the electric lamp and a large white screen.

It is understood that the Lord Chancellor intends to bring in a bill next Session to substitute stipendiary for ordinary borough and county magistrates



A building for the permanent exhibition of works of Art, Science, and Industry is to be erected at Laeken, for which purpose a company, with a capital of 3,000,000f., has been formed at Brussels.

The report recently issued by the Commissioners of Woods, Forests, and Land Revenues shows that in the financial year 1863-4 the income amounted to £425,766—namely, £391,785 from estates, and £33,981 from Royal forests and woodlands. The expenditure out of income amounted to £123,206—namely, £18,123 for compulsory charges, including property tax and fixed charges; £26,565 in respect of the Royal forests and woodlands; and £78,518 in respect of the estates, for cost of collection of rents, management, and improvements, under which latter head two items appear to fall—viz., £21,561 for repairs and improvements, and £9906 for the reclamation and improvement of portions of the Delamere Estate. The balance of the account is £302,560, but in fact the sum of £305,000 was paid over to the Exchequer, leaving rather a smaller balance in hand than at the beginning of the year. But the salaries and expenses of the Office of Woods and Forests are not paid out of income, but voted annually by Parliament; this expenditure in the year in question is stated at £26,290, besides £1029 for the Landed Estates Record Offices.



The Patent Laws are, it is understood, to be amended in the next Session of Parliament. As the time approaches for the opening of Parliament, the subjects to be brought forward are matured, and at the commencement several matters resolved upon by the Government, founded on reports of Royal Commissioners and Select Committees of the House of Commons, will be submitted for consideration. Among the number the patent laws will be introduced, but whether to the extent anticipated is another question. The patent laws are becoming of daily importance. The number of applications for provisional registration last year was 3309; and the number of patents passed thereon was 2068. In the year, as much as £110,313 14s. 4d. was received in stamp duties. On the 3309 petitions for letters patent, at £5 each, the sum was £16,545. The other charges were heavy, making the stamp duties in the year amount to the sum already stated. Some idea may be formed of the number of patents, when £114 15s. 6d. was actually paid for "wax" for sealing patents. The fees paid to the law officers of the Crown under the Patent Act form an important ingredient in the expenses of obtaining patents. To the Attorney General and to the Solicitor General and their respective clerks the "fees in the year amounted to no less a sum than £9901 14s. The clerks of the two law officers receive considerable fees, whilst the Attorney-General and Solicitor-General receive fees of two guineas on nearly every matter connected with patents. And the fact that nearly £10,000 was paid in one year to the law officers and their clerks is proof that the patent law is an expensive affair. It is understood that the amendments to be submitted will deal with the administration of the present law. A commission was appointed to inquire into the working of the law. It seems that the present mode of trying questions of patent right, as expressed in the recently-issued report of the Social Science Association, has not only been productive of protracted litigation and consequent expense, but is at once unsatisfactory to the suitor and obstructive to the general interests of justice. The association believe that one of the recommendations of the Royal Commissioners will be that the validity of patents should be tried by a Judge sitting without a jury, but with the aid of scientific assessors, occupying much the same position as the Masters of the Trinity House in trials by the Judge of the Admiralty Court. The suggestion, if carried out, would save much trouble and expense. One case recently occupied a Court for thirty days.—Observer.

REVIEW OF BRITISH AND JAPANESE TROOPS AT YOKOHAMA.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 24.

INAUGURATION OF A STATUE OF GOVERNOR SIR GEORGE GREY AT CAPE TOWN.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

OPENING OF THE QUEEN'S BRIDGE, NATAL.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE STATUE OF GOVERNOR SIR GEORGE GREY AT CAPE TOWN.

THE people of the Cape colony have erected a monument to their late Governor, Sir George Grey, now the Governor of New Zealand. A statue of him, by Mr. W. Calder Marshall, R.A., has been placed in the Botanic Gardens, on a granite pedestal 18 ft. high, in front of the building which holds the public library and museum at Cape Town. The situation is a fine one facing the Table Mountain. The uncovering of this statue was performed, with some little ceremony, by Mr. Ebden, chairman of the "Grey Memorial Committee," on the 10th of November. There was a large company of spectators, and the band of the 10th Regiment and that of the volunteer corps were in attendance. The statue was covered with a flag (the Royal ensign), and the flags of other nations were hung around. The members of the committee stood on a platform, and Mr. Ebden, with a suitable speech, removed the veil from the statue, the band played the National Anthem, and the crowd gave three hearty cheers. Our Illustration is from a sketch by Mr. T. W. Bowler, of Cape Town.

OPENING OF THE QUEEN'S BRIDGE, NATAL.

A MOST useful public work has just been accomplished in the prosperous colony of Natal, South Africa. Of late years the coast lands of that dependency have been steadily opened up for the cultivation of sugar-cane, coffee, cotton, tobacco, and other tropical products. The county of Victoria is separated from the seaport of Durban by the river Umgeni, which, though shallow enough during the dry winter months, is in the summer so deep and dangerous that it has been a formidable obstacle to traffic. While production and traffic were alike small, the inconveniences entailed by such a troublesome stream were not felt to any material extent. In ten years, however, a great change has come over the country. There are now thirty sugar-mills, driven by steam, at work in the county. This year about 4000 tons of sugar have been produced. Coffee and other plantations are springing up in all directions, and the Cotton Plantation Company alone has nearly a thousand acres under cultivation. Hence has arisen the necessity for a bridge over the Umgeni. During several years the subject was brought under the attention of the local Government by Mr. J. R. Saunders, representative of the county; and in 1861 the colonial engineer was instructed to arrange for the construction of the present work, which was opened with much ceremony on the 22nd of last September. The Queen's Bridge is an iron girder bridge, erected on cylinders, which rest on a bed of creosoted timber piling. There are seven spans of about a hundred feet wide each; and the bridge, with its approaches, is altogether about 1100 ft. long. The roadway is twenty feet wide, and paved with asphalte. No other bridge in South Africa can at all vie with this, as regards size and appearance; and it is creditable to the young colony that it should have accomplished, at a cost to itself of about £17,000, what the older provinces of the Cape have not yet contemplated.

The scene presented on the day of opening was singularly pleasing. Nature has favoured the locality. At this point the river, after having run a tortuous course of eighty miles from its source near the Drakenberg range of mountains, spreads out into a wide and somewhat sluggish stream. On each side bold bush-clad headlands form natural buttresses. The rich tropical vegetation clothing the overhanging cliffs is interspersed with numberless euphorbia and cacti, whose sombre and leafless shafts have a strange aspect to home-bred eyes. A mile distant the flashing Indian Ocean hems in the view, which, as it appeared on this occasion, was animated by the motley throng of Europeans, Africans, and Asiatics gathered round and enlivened by the masses of colour that met the eye at every accessible point about the bridge.

The bridge was opened at noon, by his Excellency, the Lieutenant-Governor, who was accompanied by the Colonial Secretary, Major Erskine; and the Secretary for Native Affairs, Mr. Shepstone. Mr. Scott was received by the Mayor of Durban (distant four miles); Mr. Gillespie, the Town Clerk; Mr. Fisher, and the members of the Town Council. A procession was then formed, including the functionaries we have named, the representatives of the borough and county in the local Parliament—Mr. Millar, Mr. Robinson, and Mr. Crompton—together with the Consuls, heads of departments, and all the other official personages able to attend. An address was presented to his Excellency by the Durban Corporation; and another address was presented at the other end of the bridge, where Dr. Blaine, R.N., accompanied by three representative men, received the party, and joined the procession. The Governor then returned to the centre of the bridge, and named it after the Sovereign of whom the colonists of Natal have ever been such true and loyal subjects. After these ceremonies were over, luncheon took place on both sides of the river, and the usual congratulatory speeches were delivered.

Our View is taken from the north or Victoria side of the river, and represents the procession halting under the arch to receive the Durban address. Two hundred and fifty volunteers belonging to mounted and infantry corps were on the ground, and may be seen on guard at the approaches. The Royal salute was fired by a volunteer artillery corps from Armstrong guns recently imported. Overlooking the bridge was a bank of ladies and children, for whose convenience the hillside had been scarped out into terraces. Here, too, were stationed the Sunday schools of the town, who admirably sung the National Anthem. Near the river edge will be seen the tents and pavilions where the day's festivities were held. In the foreground are sugar-plantations and banana-groves, suggestive of the natural wealth of the country. About 4000 people were present, and it is not often that such a mixture of white, black, and yellow faces—representatives of Europe, Asia, and Africa—can be met. There are about 4000 Indian coolies in Natal, and arrangements have been made for the introduction of two or three thousand yearly, if not more, so great are the demands of advancing enterprise. Eighty produce-laden waggons crossed the bridge immediately.

Natal at this moment is in a very prosperous state. In 1864, the revenue has been fully £150,000, and the exports have reached to about £225,000. Nearly 5000 tons of sugar, valued at £90,000, have been shipped. The other staple exports are wool, ivory, arrowroot, hides, and cotton. The local demand absorbs all the coffee produced. The shipping trade is rapidly growing, and for many months past there has been from 15 ft. to 20 ft. of water in the channel, which admits vessels to the secure waters of the lovely and almost landlocked bay.

We may add that the local Legislature has accepted, under certain conditions, the proposals made by the Central Railway Company and the Natal Coal Company. By this means it is expected that a line of railway, running 160 miles into the interior and connecting some inexhaustible coal-fields with the seaport, will be completed in eight years. Two weeks after the bridge was opened, the planters of Victoria County had resolved also upon having a coast line, which will finally go up to the northern boundary, sixty miles distant from Durban, though only a portion will be proceeded with at once. There is thus a noble future opening out for South-Eastern Africa, and it is easy to foresee that in course of time British dominion will extend as far as Delagoa Bay. The colonists of Natal have worked quietly; but they are now achieving larger results, in both a commercial and social sense, than are attained by some lands of larger pretensions, and towards which the stream of emigration flows more rapidly.

The bridge was contracted for by Mr. Arnold Taylor, acting for Mr. Thomas Jackson, of Cannon-street, London, and was erected by him, under the supervision of Mr. Paterson, the colonial engineer.

A letter from Vienna states that General Benedek has again applied to be removed from the command he holds in the Venetian provinces.

A general exhibition of the products of industry is to be held at Stettin in May and June next. The manufactures of all nations will be admitted.

Dr. Chapman, having devoted himself much to the treatment of sea-sickness, is said to have come to the conclusion that the remedy consists in lowering the temperature of the spinal region by the application of ice. An indiarubber bag has been invented by means of which the ice is kept in contact with each region of the spine.

Some of the German journals speak of a projected maritime convention between Austria and Hanover. Austria would agree, it is said, to maintain a fleet in the North Sea, for the protection of the coasts and of commerce in that part of Germany; and, with that view, the Hanoverian Government would place the port of Geestemunde at the disposal of Austria.

THE PRESENT EFFECT OF THE COTTON FAMINE.

(From our own Correspondent.)

WE have not yet got rid from amongst us of Lancashire distress. The cotton famine may be considered at an end; not so the distress occasioned by it. Its dimensions from time to time are shown in the columns of our daily journals; and we are reminded that, although on the wane, it has not disappeared and become so entirely a matter of history as to be found only in Arnold's "Memoir of the Cotton Famine." In the unions of Glossop, Ashton-under-Lyne, Bury, Preston, Haslingden, Stockport, Todmorden, and Wigan—towns almost exclusively depending on the cotton manufacture, and to a large extent engaged in the fabrication of American cotton—where an immense body of the operatives are yet unemployed, it is still to be seen and has still to be dealt with. Of the twenty-eight unions affected by the American struggle, Prestwich shows the lowest percentage of recipients of relief on population—lower, in fact, than it was in 1861—that is 1·9; but the unions I have just named show the proportions of pauperism to vary from 5·3 to 6·2 per cent on the population. Ashton last month showed an increase of 13·9 per cent over the year 1861, when mills were in full work; Bury of 13·1; Glossop of 14·4; Preston, of 7·6 per cent. In these places, on lifting the latch, it is possible to enter upon scenes of misery—great as compared with the competence and comfort which characterised those abodes in former years.

Notwithstanding the retirement of the calamitous wave which swept athwart the cotton-manufacturing district, and extinguished suddenly and at once the fire on the hearths and hope in the hearts of half a million of working men, it can hardly be expected that the dire effects of such an unparalleled ruin can be as suddenly effaced, the damage as speedily repaired, and all the busy operations interrupted by it at once recommenced. The dislocating effects of the Calcutta cyclone will be felt for years, and so will those of the Cotton Famine, the distress of the people being only one phase of them.

In my last communication I had reason to speak hopefully of the future. The cotton already received and "to arrive" was said to be sufficient to keep the mills of Lancashire running four days a week. The price, of course, remained an element of difficulty and distrust. Since that time the market has been affected by events in the States of America. The contest between Lincoln and M'Clellan for the presidential chair has produced mischief here. Both candidates promised to maintain the Union; but, while M'Clellan was ready to receive back the South with slavery, Lincoln would only receive it back without slavery. The chances of the soldier chief were exaggerated in this country; and, he being the acknowledged representative of a peace policy, the price of cotton fell 9d. a pound, and millowners who had commenced running early in the autumn closed their mills, disappointed and bitter. This act on their part pressed down the springs of the voluntary and compulsory funds levied for the relief of the destitute, and hence the considerable increase in the number of applicants for relief during the last two months.

In addition to the temporary inconvenience that must be suffered by the workpeople so ejected, I find that some 24,000 operatives have lost their ordinary employment in consequence of the suspension of payment of no less than 120 masters, their liabilities being estimated at about £750,000. The population of the twenty-eight unions alluded to is 2,060,000. Of this number, in November last, 153,295 were altogether without work—nearly as many as in January, 1864. The total number of persons relieved, from all sources, in November last was 161,990. The reduction is not great, as compared with 196,116 last January; but, when compared with the numbers of January, 1863 (468,610), we see how far the wave has receded. During the past month the guardians expended in relief £27,761, and the local committees £19,096; together this inoperative body cost for maintenance £42,230, against £258,357 in November, 1862, and £118,541 in November, 1863. Perhaps nothing will better show the present extent of the distress than to give in a few of the worst instances what proportion the numbers of unemployed bear to the total numbers of operatives. Ashton-under-Lyne, total operatives, 45,470: 21,065 entirely out of work; 11,629 full work; monthly loss of wages, £16,935. Bury, total operatives 35,654: entirely out of work, 14,964; full work, 9314; monthly loss of wages, £9311. Glossop, total operatives, 6567: unemployed, 4303; full work, 1932. Preston, 24,342 operatives: unemployed, 3739; full time, 15,115; loss of wages, £5612. Wigan, 7742 operatives: 5159 unemployed; 2084 full work; monthly loss of wages, £2616. The loss of wages per month over the whole area is still estimated at £104,339. In place of this the workpeople are fain to shift with £42,230—that is to say, the average weekly income per head, including relief and earnings, amounts to 1s. 11¾d.

I have again and again been asked whether a second subscription is advisable. I have invariably replied, it is not needed; but, were it needed, it would be inadvisable. Were the several parishes unable to brace themselves for a higher assessment, the present rates, with the funds in the hands of the various committees, would tide over another year; and, if the distress lasts so long, it will have gained so chronic a character as to render very doubtful the policy of offering any artificial impediment to the absorption of the cotton operatives into other branches of industry. I am assured, too, that Lancashire itself would be the last county in England to respond to any such appeal. It would be dangerous further to tamper with the self-reliance of the people. Considerable injury has undoubtedly been done. However much we may praise the readiness displayed during the last autumn of the "hands" to return to the mills when work set in, it were folly, for the sake of the time to come, to underrate the mischiefs of the period through which they have recently passed. I mention not the fact as a charge against those who were the very personification of independence; I simply state that rates and subscription funds are now resorted to on the slightest pretence by large numbers of persons who three years ago would have shrunk from a public avowal of indigence. It could scarcely be otherwise; and, were this enforced idleness to continue, together with the present method of subsidising the cotton operatives, it is clear that the whole district would be steeped in pauperism.

The subscribed fund now in hand amounts to about £200,000. This, with the poor rates at their present altitude, will bear the burden imposed upon it through another twelve months. It is most improbable that it will continue so long; but, if it do, thousands of the population will in the mean time have given themselves to other occupations, or found homes across seas, and those who remain unemployed, on discovering that public opinion is against their being maintained in idleness to await a probable emergency, will find some way of life for themselves. It is generally felt that, if the cotton trade does not revive in another year, the people who have been drawn together to work the mills must be disbanded, to be re-collected whenever it should revive.

This proceeding will, of course, involve an immense sacrifice to the millowners. We may trust them to do what they can to prevent it. Perhaps it would have been wise to allow this instinct to work more freely before we interposed with national subscriptions in 1862. Come when it will, the revival of the trade will find a great hindrance in the paucity of hands. Before the cotton famine every man, woman, and child was employed. Since that time, I am informed, that hundreds of new mills have been built and furnished, and many in positions absurdly destitute of accommodation for increased population. When the tide does turn, therefore, the demand for labour will be greater than ever, and the supply smaller. Then will be seen the sight of several masters seeking one workman, and wages will rise proportionately. This rise in wages will speedily bring back from the woollen and other districts all who had gone thither from the cotton districts.

As for the present, the confident tone of the Federals and their recent victories will give an upward tendency to cotton, and if confidence increases trade will commence again. Uncertainty about political events in America and the prospect of an accommodation of the existing state of things of course promotes a fear of a fall in the price of cotton, not on account of any large supply to be thrown upon us from Confederate warehouses of the South, but because the cotton-fields of America will once again stock the markets, and the holders of "Surats," deliverance from which is fervently prayed for by the zealous piety of Lancashire, will experience prodigious loss; for spinners will forego six or twelve months' work with Indian cotton, if there is reason to expect a sufficient and speedy supply of the American.

THE MAGAZINES.

"ARMADALE" continues to be worthy of the author's celebrity and the prominent position it occupies in the Cornhill. It might not be difficult to demonstrate its inferiority in most of the qualities of art to Mrs. Gaskell's elegant fiction, but it possesses a power of exciting interest and compelling attention to a degree to which the latter cannot pretend. Every reader will have turned to "Armadale" with impatience and genuine anxiety about the progress of the story, while he will have contentedly reserved "Wives and Daughters" for the amusement of a leisure hour. Incident certainly commands a more absorbing interest than character, though the faculty of contriving it as certainly belongs to a lower order of talent than the discriminating subtlety required for Mrs. Gaskell's dainty delineations. Comparatively speaking, the incidents of this instalment are sober and natural. We cannot, indeed, believe that young Armadale made himself an accomplished scholar while sweeping a bookseller's shop, which seems a somewhat clumsy invention to get rid of the incongruity between his situation and his antecedents; but neither are we inclined to be critical upon an autobiographic passage which rivals anything Mr. Collins has ever written for enthralling interest of incident and masculine vigour of style. The story breaks off at a very interesting point, bequeathing a rich legacy of expectation to the next number. "Wives and Daughters" displays a rare talent for observation, and is most effective in its quiet, delicate way. The interest is of a rather painful character, being chiefly derived from a minute delineation of the domestic misery wrought by a silly, selfish stepmother, whose character is sketched to the life. Mr. Lewes's paper on "Shakspeare in France" is very acute and readable, but is little more than a réchauffée of an article contributed by him to the Edinburgh Review some years since. He easily shows that the French taste is not to be pooh-poohed indiscriminately, but his representation of the classic drama of France as a form of art equally legitimate as that of England and other countries will find little assent out of France. The implied comparison of it to a "Greek temple," while the art of Shakspeare is a "Gothic cathedral," is singularly unfortunate. The laws of Greek and Gothic art are equally derived from nature, while those of the French drama are entirely conventional. The reminiscences of Thackeray, by his schoolfellow, amount to very little, but serve to introduce some curious specimens of his juvenile drawings. "My Escape from Futtehgurh" should have been published five years ago. "Politics in the Sandwich Islands" contains much curious and interesting information respecting the working of free institutions among Polynesians. "Oyster Farming" is also a valuable paper. The recent progress of this branch of industry in France can only be characterised as stupendous; and, as our own beds are becoming exhausted, it is high time for us to follow the example of our neighbours.

Macmillan offers an interesting and varied number, commencing with the brief, hasty, and animating chapters of Mr. Henry Kingsley's romance. The scene is this time laid entirely in Australia, which is a great advantage, for here Mr. Kingsley is upon ground not merely well known to him, but as yet almost peculiar to him. The clearness and vigour of observation at first hand are visible in everything he writes about Australia, while the English portion of his story often degenerates into extravagance. If the paper on Sturt's exploring expedition be also by him, it is evident that he is even better qualified to be the historian of Australia than the writer of fictions about it. The article presents nothing novel, being merely an abstract of the published accounts of the expedition; but the fire and spirit of the narrative are almost Homeric; it is a noble canto in the great and unfinished prose epic of English adventure. "A Son of the Soil" is full of delicate observation and suggestive thought. Lady Duff-Gordon contributes some agreeable pages about Cairo, and Professor Cairnes has a very valuable one on "Co-operation in the Slate Quarries of North Wales." "A Basque Pastorale" is a curious account of a rude form of drama still surviving among the Basque provinces of France. It is evidently a relic of the ancient mysteries, and, though not exclusively occupied with sacred subjects, has no little affinity with the Ammergan drama on the Passion, introduced in this magazine to the English public by the Dean of Westminster. There is a very pretty translation from Schiller, by Professor Anster.

The opening paper in Fraser, "President Lincoln," by an American Abolitionist (Mr. Conway, we imagine), is remarkable as a manifesto from that small but earnest band whose triumphant contest in the name of principle against oppression, supported by the entire strength of a mighty nation, forms as remarkable and as encouraging a chapter in the history of the world as the Reformation itself. We fear, however, that it is plain, on the writer's own showing, that the Abolitionist leaders were incompetent to carry out the movement they had so nobly inaugurated. An erroneous fallacy pervades his essay, he fancies that he and his friends represent the sense of the American people, and talks as though the chief magistrate of the nation were bound to make himself the mere instrument of a bare majority of the people of Massachusetts. Had Mr. Lincoln done so, he and Massachusetts and the negro would long ago have been swept away together in a tempest of popular wrath, and his caution has been the salvation of the very men by whom he is so fiercely denounced. He has been to Garrison and Phillips what Peel was to Cobden, or Cavour to Mazzini—a practical, worldly wise man, standing on a far lower moral level, but without whom lofty principles and ardent imaginations would never have appeared in the guise of substantial realities. "Spiritualism" is another remarkable paper, of no particular weight or novelty as respects the phenomenon with which it is professedly occupied, but evidently composed to introduce a train of thought on subjects of much greater importance. The interesting disquisition on "The Condition of the Navy" is also written with a purpose—that of advocating Captain Coles's system of ship-building, and inflaming the indignation with which the Admiralty's treatment of him is already very generally regarded. Personal feeling is also traceable in the essay on "The Drama in London," obviously written to lead up to the rough attack on Mr. Phelps and partial panegyric on Miss Faucit, with which it concludes. It has, however, many judicious passages, especially a denunciation of the silly practice of "calling" actors before the termination of the piece. "Gilbert Rugge" is very agreeable; and Miss Cobbe contributes the first of what bids fair to be a very acceptable series of papers on Art. The poetry is very poor.

This month's Blackwood witnesses the conclusion of "Tony Butler," which has not wholly redeemed the promise of its commencement, but is still entitled to the praise of an interesting, animated tale. "The Man and the Monkey" is a most amusing story, of a kind almost peculiar to Blackwood. "Cornelius O'Dowd" writes with sense and point, except when treating of America, when his remarks betray great flippancy and ignorance. The English officer's account of his visit to the Confederate States is more satisfactory, though it is impossible to repress a groan over the stupidity which could turn such splendid opportunities to such poor account. However, we must take him as he is, and be thankful. Charleston and the Chatanooga campaign are the subjects of his present instalment. With characteristic infelicity he managed to arrive at General Bragg's head-quarters just too late for the battle of Chicamauga, and to quit them just before that of Missionary Ridge. The article on the "Nile Basin" treats of a subject which can never be satisfactorily settled except by the personal investigation of some disinterested explorer. The writer is, of course, a champion of Speke, but his tone is commendably temperate, considering the bad blood imported into the question, and the provocation given by Captain Burton's attack. The political article is lively and sensible, the reverse, therefore, of the dismal screeds on such topics habitual with Blackwood.

"Broken to Harness" is concluded with undiminished ability, but to the regret of all readers of Temple Bar. We are glad to see that Mr. Yates is coming forward with a new story in March, while the indefatigable Miss Braddon is announced as ready for the next number. "David Chantrey" is very clever. If we have a fault to find, it is that there is too much dialogue and too little of that vivid description in which Mr. Wills excels. Mr. Sala's chapter on Venice is one of the best of his "Streets of the World" series, and the miscellaneous contents of the magazine are in general pleasant reading. The St. James's is also entertaining, but offers nothing calling for particular remark. London Society is as good as usual, and "The Mulready Envelope" deserves to be singled out as a most amusing and ingenious little story. Bentley's Miscellany and the New Monthly are better than usual. Of Good Words and the Quarterly Journal of Science it is only necessary to say that they attain their usual mark. The Churchman's Monthly is uninteresting. The Englishman's Magazine is a new candidate for popular favour, and appears to be a High-Church imitation of Good Words. We wish it success, but must warn the conductors that this will not be attained unless they can contrive to impart a lighter and more popular character to the contents. They should take a lesson from the writer of their first article, and inform him, in return, that he must not talk about the Jew Apelles.

Our Mutual Friend. By Charles Dickens. No. IX. (Chapman and Hall.) This is one of the very best numbers that have yet appeared. The first chapter is extremely clever, but, as too often the case in Mr. Dickens's later works, is occupied with persons and things incapable of exciting any deep interest. Far otherwise is it when we are conducted to the den of "Rogue Riderhood," and make the acquaintance of his "pleasant daughter." The Thames is to Mr. Dickens what the atmosphere was to Turner; his mastery over it and everything directly or indirectly connected with it is absolutely preternatural. We know not whether most to admire the poetry or the accuracy of his delineations, or his inexhaustible variety. Rokesmith's story is melodramatic to the highest degree, but so well told that we do not care to criticise it. The action is also materially advanced, and we seem to be on the verge of some eventful crisis.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

A New Comet was discovered at Narten, near Berlin, by M. Bœker, a distinguished amateur astronomer, on Dec. 11, at six o'clock in the morning. It had then the splendour of a star of the seventh magnitude.

A Magnetic Needle, for showing rapid and minute alterations of declination, was exhibited at a recent meeting of the Philosophical Society of Manchester, by Dr. Joule. The following description is given in the report of the meeting by the Chemical News:—"It consisted of a piece of hardened and polished watch-spring, an inch long and one tenth of an inch broad, suspended vertically by a filament of silk. The steel was magnetised in the direction of its breadth. Dr. Joule remarked that Professor Thomson had long insisted upon the advantages which would attend the use of very small bars in most magnetical investigations, and had employed excessively minute needles in his galvanometers with great success. Dr. Joule stated his intention to fit up his needle so as to be observed by light reflected from its polished surface or otherwise, by viewing a glass pointer, attached to the bottom of the steel, through a microscope. He believed that, by the latter plan, he should be able to observe deflections as small as one second of an arc."

We extract a few particulars relative to the earthquake at Florence on Dec. 12 from a letter from M. de Tchihatchef, read at a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences at Paris. After heavy rains and violent south winds during a greater part of November, at the end of the month the wind changed to the south-west. A succession of fine days with clear sky ensued till Dec. 11, when the south wind returned, but the sky still remained serene. On the 12th, at nine o'clock in the morning, a struggle between the winds from the south, south-west, and north-west began. At three o'clock p.m. the sky became cloudy; and at 4h. 49m. 32s. came an undulatory shock which lasted nearly ten seconds; at 5h. 58m. a slighter shock followed; and a third, at 6h. 50m., was scarcely felt. Immediately after this the sky darkened, the barometer fell, and at eight o'clock rain began, which lasted several days. According to observations collected by Professor Donati, the centre of the commotion appears to have been at Fierenzuola, about twenty-eight miles north of Florence. At that place the phenomenon was manifested with much more intensity than at Florence, which seems to have been the term of its activity; while in the villages of Mugello and Scarparia, and other places round Fierenzuola, no less than thirteen shocks were observed on Dec. 11, between five o'clock in the evening and midnight.

At a recent meeting of the Geographical Society, a paper was read by Dr. Julius Haast, on supposed causes which have led to the excavation of the deep lake-basins in the Southern Alps of New Zealand, in which he expresses his concurrence with Professor Ramsay's views on the glacier theories. Referring first to the submergence of New Zealand during the pliocene period, and to its subsequent elevation, Dr. Haast stated that the chief physical feature of the country after that elevation was a high mountain range, from which glaciers of enormous volume, owing to peculiar meteorological conditions, descended into the plain below, removing in their course the loose tertiary strata, and thus widening and enlarging the pre-existing depressions, the occurrence of which had at first determined the course of the glaciers. The country having acquired a temporary stability, the glaciers became comparatively stationary, and therefore formed moraines, the materials of which were cemented together by the mud deposited from the water issuing from the glaciers; new moraine matter would then raise the bed of the outlet and dam up the water below the glacier, and from this moment, he believes, the formation and scooping-out of the rock basin begins; for the ice being pressed downwards, and prevented by the moraine from descending, its force would be expended in excavating a basin in the rock below. Though opposed to the theory of the excavation of basins in hard rocks by the action of ice, Sir Roderick Murchison, who communicated Dr. Haast's paper, commended his researches, as showing the mutations of the surface in successive geological periods.

The increasing rarity of silver lately induced the French Government to form an alloy for monetary purposes consisting of 835 parts of silver and 165 parts of copper; and pieces of 50 centimes, with the figures 835 stamped upon them, are actually in circulation. The fabrication presents no difficulty; the malleability is nearly the same, and the slight yellowish tinge can only be detected by rigid comparison. M. Eugene Peligot (as we learn by his article in the Annales de Chimie) has been making experiments, with the view of substituting zinc for copper in the alloy. The process employed is very simple, and the results of combination in various proportions are said to be very satisfactory. The fusibility of the new alloys is greater than the alloys of silver and copper; and they are very sonorous, elastic, and malleable; and no verdigris is formed by contact with acids. The most economic method of restoring the coinage would be the employment of the old silver in the new alloy—1 per cent of zinc is already employed in the French copper coinage—and this small proportion suffices to give qualities to the coinage which copper does not possess. The small Swiss coins made at Paris contain zinc, associated with copper, nickel, and silver. M. Peligot has formed alloys in the following proportions:—Silver, 950; zinc, 50. Silver, 900; zinc, 100. Silver, 800; zinc, 200. Ternary alloys: Silver, 900; copper, 50; zinc, 50. Silver, 800; copper, 100; zinc, 100. Silver, 835; copper, 93; zinc, 72.

It is stated that the experiment of warming railway carriages by steam has been successfully made in Prussia.

During the year 1864 we paid, upon an average, from £60,000 to £70,000 a month for foreign eggs.

The Ottoman Government has granted a concession for the construction for a railway from Jaffa to Jerusalem.

A letter from Bagdad states that the British Consul-General, Colonel Kemball, C.B., had proceeded to the Montefik territory to inspect the route destined for the construction of the Indo-European telegraph.

A company has been formed in New York, styled "The American and British West India Cotton Company," which has leased for a term of years 2000 acres of land on Long Island, one of the group of Bahamas.

A Jewish merchant at Hamburg, Herr Heine, has presented 500,000 marks for the support of the "Betty Heine Hospital," which was built at the expense of his father, and takes its name from his mother.

Sun-dried beef, from South America, is beginning to be imported into our large manufacturing towns and seaports, where it sells for 3d. per pound.

About sixty tons of copper ore are now brought monthly to Southampton from the Cape of Good Hope by the Cape mail-packet. This ore a few years ago was worth nearly £20 a ton. It is now doubled in value.

The Queen has appointed George Brackenbury, Esq., her Majesty's Consul at Charante, to be Consul in the Philippine Islands; and the Hon. Henry Prendergast Vercker, her Majesty's Consul at Rio Grande do Sul, to be Consul at Charante.

The Board of Trade returns for November have been issued. The declared value of the exports during the month were £12,065,213, against £12,758,323 in November, 1863. In the eleven months of the year the exports are returned at £148,340,865, against £132,135,368 in the corresponding period of last year. The imports of bullion and specie during the eleven months were £25,279,600, and the exports £20,706,913.

During the past year there have been dispatched by the Emigration Commissioners thirty ships with Government emigrants to Australia and four to Natal. Of the Australian ships, ten sailed for New South Wales, eight for South Australia, two for Victoria, seven for Queensland, and three for Western Australia. Seven ships were dispatched from London, three from Southampton, seventeen from Plymouth, and seven from Liverpool. The passage-money ranged from £12 10s. 6d. to £15 9s. 3d. per statute adult; and averaged £12 13s. 10d. for Natal, £13 1s. 4d. for Queensland, £13 3s. 4d. for New South Wales, £13 4s. for South Australia, £14 1s. 11d. for Victoria, and £14 5s. for Western Australia. The ships at present under charter for the conveyance of Government emigrants are the Burlington, which sails this week; and the Clara, on the 30th inst., from Plymouth to Adelaide; the Trebolgan, on the 20th of February, from Birkenhead to Sydney; and the Tartar, on the 28th of February, from Plymouth to Brisbane.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

L., British Burmah.—Amazing! No check? What hinders White from checking and mating too by 2. Q to K R 8th? You seem to have quite overlooked the beauty of the position.

I. B., Birmingham.—The first of your problems has a blemish. Mate can be effected by playing 1. Kt to Q B 2nd as well as by the move you propose. The second is ineligible, on account of the number of moves required to accomplish the mate.

G. S.—As we supposed, they have all been published, and more than once. Three of them are admirable.

MR. MORPHY.—From the first outbreak of the war in what were formerly the United States it has been commonly reported that the American Chess champion's sympathies were all on the Confederates' side, some papers going the length of declaring that he held a commission in the Confederate army. A New York journal called Wilkes' Spirit of the Times flatly denies all this, and prints the following circular to show that Mr. Morphy has loyally settled down in New Orleans to the practice of the law:—

"New Orleans (12, Exchange-place, up stairs), Nov. 4.

"The undersigned, having resumed the practice of his profession, will attend to the collection of claims in the United States' and State Courts.

"His connection with a leading member of the Bar affords him exceptional facilities for a satisfactory adjustment of business confided to his charge. PAUL MORPHY."

W. BOSBING.—1. The idea has occurred to us frequently; but you may be assured that there is nothing, after all, which is comparable to actually played games. What we want is a higher class of players in England. If we obtain that there will be no lack of fine games. 2. You must be good enough to send another copy of the position; the former was destroyed after examination.

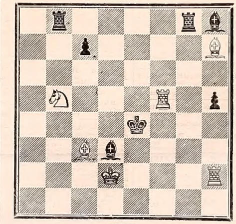
SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1087 by Fiddle, Mavis, E. D. R. G. N., Ruy Blas, Derevon, P. T. L., M.P., Wee Pawn, Dr. Fould, Veritas; R. S., Malines; Atcheffen, Box and Cox, Lucy, D. C. L., Minnie, S. P.; Q. B., of Bruges; A Bath Archer, Julio, A. M., Nereus; H. W., of Oxford; A. Z., Felix, W. N. W., E. G. S., Carfax, T. V. D., I. Amboise, L. S., Cora, Ben Block, T. V. K., Rowland, E. W., F. C. S., W. Carmichael, Ernest, Dolly; H. W., Ipswich; Cosmos, D. L., Pip, Try-again, Juba, W. D., Willy, Cantab, Q. E. D., H. Fenton, Delta, Sissa, Aunt Sally, W. E. F.; G., of Croydon; A. T. E.; L., of Banbury; B. W. R., T. C., Knight, 1864, are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1088, by Carlo, T. V. D., I. W., M. P., Sigma, A. Z. Felix, T. M., Conrad, W. P. S., I. O. F., Henry, W. W. D., Percy, H. W. O., Black and White, L. A. C., Argus, D. V., Iota, Presia, B. W., Manfred and Man Friday, D. C. L., Hyman, T, V. K., Theseus, R. R.. C. B., G. W. R.. Peterkin, A Clerk, Rook, F. C. N., Vigo, Fidele, Civis, W. A., T. M. W., Derevon, 1865, Dr. Fould, A. B. C., Nereus, Old Christmas, Ruy Blas, Eqnes, A Bath Archer, Millie, T. E. I., Petruchio, are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1086.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to Q B 8th	R to Q Kt 2nd, or (a)
2. B to Q B 6th	Any move
3. Q to Q B 4th, or to Q B sq, or to Q 6th, according as Black plays. Mate.
(a) 1.	P to Q Kt 6th (b)

(If he play 1. P to K B 4th, or R to Q Kt 3rd, or R to Q R 4th, White answers with 2. Q to K 3rd (ch), and mates next move.)



WHITE.	BLACK.
2. Q to Q B sq (ch)	K to Q Kt 3rd
3. Q to Q B 3rd. Mate.
(b) 1.	B to K Kt 4th, or R to Q Kt sq
2. Q to K B 2nd, or Q takes R (ch), and mate next move.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1088.

WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to Q 7th (ch)	K to Q 4th
2. Q to K 6th (ch)	K takes Q
3. B to Q B 4th. Mate.

PROBLEM NO. 1089.
By Mr. TURTON.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White, playing first, gives mate in three moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A smart little Game, played recently at the Grand Cigar Divan, between the Swedish amateur, Dr. LINDEHRN, and another amateur, Mr. S.—(King's Bishop's Opening.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
3. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
4. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
5. P to Q 4th	P takes P
6. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
7. Kt to K B 3rd	P to Q 3rd
8. Castles	B to K 3rd
9. B takes B	P takes B
10. Kt to K Kt 5th	Q to K B 3rd
11. P to K 5th	P takes P
12. P takes P	Q to K 2nd

(Taking the K Pawn would manifestly have been imprudent.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
13. Kt to K 4th	Kt to Q 2nd
14. B to K Kt 5th	Q to Q Kt 5th
15. Q to K Kt 4th

(Threatening, evidently, to win the Queen.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
15.	B to Q B 4th
16. Q takes P (ch)	Kt to K 2nd
17. K Kt takes B	Q takes K Kt
18. Kt to Q 2nd	P to K R 3rd
19. B to K B 4th	Castles on Q's side
20. K R to Q B sq	Q to Q 5th
21. P to K Kt 3rd

(This is rather tame, considering what a fine attack White has. We should have taken the K Kt, after which the following moves are probable:—

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
21. Q takes K Kt	Q takes B
22. R takes P (ch)	K takes R

If K to Kt sq, White may either play 23. R takes P (ch), or 23. R takes Kt, or 23. Q R to Q Kt sq, secure in every case to win the game.)

23. Q to Q 6th (ch), &c.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
21.	K Kt to Q B 3rd
22. Kt to Q Kt 3rd	Q to Q Kt 7th
23. Q R to Q Kt sq	Q to K 7th
24. Kt to Q B 5th

(Not nearly so strong as Kt to Q 5th; but the move in the text is productive of a very elegant end-game, so we need not cavil about it.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
24.	Kt to Q 5th
25. Kt takes Q Kt P

(Cleverly played.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
25.	K to Q Kt sq

(Dreadful as this is, he really appears to have no move less so. If he take the Queen, mate follows next move; if he play Q R to K sq., he is mated in three moves; and so on, play as he may.)

WHITE (Dr. L.)	BLACK (Mr. S.)
26. Kt takes R (dis. ch)	Kt to Q Kt 3rd
27. Q to Q 5th	Q to Q R 3rd
28. R takes Q B P	K takes R
29. P to K 6 (dis. ch)	K to Q B sq
30. Q to Q R 8th (ch)	Kt takes Q
31. R to Q Kt 8th. Mate.

CHESS IN MANCHESTER.

An instructive Game between Messrs. KING and STEINKÜHLER, of the Manchester Chess Club.—(Evans' Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
6. P to Q 4th	P takes P
7. Castles	P to Q 3rd
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q R 4th
10. B to Q 3rd	B to K Kt 5th
11. B to K 3rd	B takes Kt
12. P takes B	P to Q B 3rd
13. K to R sq	Kt to K 2nd
14. P to K B 4th	P to K Kt 3rd
15. R to K Kt sq	Q to Q 2nd
16. Q to K B 3rd	P to Q 4th
17. P to K 5th	Kt to K B 4th
18. B takes Kt	Q takes B
19. R to K Kt 5th	Q to K 3rd

(This obliging move may be said to cost the game, while by moving his Queen to Q 6th Black would have gone far towards winning it.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
20. P to K B 5th	Q to Q 2nd
21. P to K 6th	P takes P
22. P takes P	Q to K 2nd
23. Q to K Kt 4th	Castles on Q's side
24. Q R to K sq	Kt to Q B 5th
25. B to Q B sq	Kt to Q 3rd
26. B to Q R 3rd	K to Q Kt sq
27. Kt takes Q P

(The prudence of this sacrifice is questionable.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
27.	P takes Kt
28. R takes Q P	B to Q B 2nd
29. R to Q Kt 5th	Q to K sq
30. R to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to K B 4th

(He should rather have checked with his Queen at Q B 3rd.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
31. Q to K 4th	B to Q Kt 3rd
32. P to Q 5th	B takes K B P

(Black has no good move left; but he might have found one somewhat less injurious to his interests than this, which enables his opponent to advance the centre Pawn without impediment of any kind.)

WHITE (Mr. S.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
33. P to Q 6th	B to Q Kt 3rd
34. P to Q 7th	Q to K Kt sq
35. Q R to Q Kt sq	Q to K Kt 2nd
36. R takes B	P takes R
37. R takes P	R takes Q P
38. P takes R	Q takes P
39. Q to K 5th (ch)	K to R 2nd
40. B to Q B 5th

and, after a few checks, Black resigned.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

LADY DE DUNSTANVILLE.

The Right Hon. Harriet, Dowager Lady De Dunstanville and Basset, who died on the 30th ult., at her town house, 10, Charles-street, Berkeley-square, in her eighty-ninth year, was the fourth daughter of Sir William Lemon, M.P., first Baronet of Carclew, in the county of Cornwall, by his wife, Jane, eldest daughter of James Buller, Esq., of Morval, in the same county, and was sister of Sir Charles Lemon, F.R.S., the second and present Baronet. Her Ladyship was married, on the 13th of July, 1824 (she was his second wife) to Sir Francis Basset, Bart., of Tehidy, in the county of Cornwall, who was created Baron De Dunstanville and Baron Basset, and who died on the 5th of February, 1835, leaving an only daughter by his first wife, when his baronetcy and barony of De Dunstanville became extinct, and his barony of Basset passed to his daughter, Frances, Baroness Basset, who died unmarried on the 22nd of January, 1855, when that barony became also extinct, but the great Basset estates passed to the male heir, the present John Basset, Esq., of Tehidy.

THE HON. C. H. MAYNARD.

The Hon. Charles Henry Maynard, whose death occurred on the 2nd inst., at his residence, in Hill-street, Berkeley-square, was the only son and heir-apparent of Sir Henry Maynard, third Viscount Maynard, by his wife, Mary, daughter of Reginald Rabett, Esq., of Bramfield Hall, Suffolk. He was born in 1814, and was early in life a Lieutenant in the Royal Horse Guards; and was, in 1854, appointed Colonel of the West Essex Militia. He was a Deputy Lieutenant for Essex. He married, first, Jan. 16, 1840, Lady Frances Julia Murray, younger daughter of James, Baron Glenlyon, and sister of George, sixth and late Duke of Athole, by whom (who died Nov. 4, 1858), he had no issue. He married, secondly, Oct. 13, 1860, Blanche Adeliza, second daughter of Henry FitzRoy, Esq., of Salcey Lawn, Northamptonshire, cousin of the Duke of Grafton, and by her (who survives him) has had two daughters, Frances Evelyn and Blanche. This premature demise of the Hon. Charles Henry Maynard leaves the viscountcy of Maynard without an heir, either apparent or presumptive.

SIR ALEXANDER BANNERMAN.

Sir Alexander Bannerman, who died on the 30th ult., at 1, Cumberland-street, Eccleston-square, was the son of Thomas Bannerman, Esq., a merchant of Aberdeen, by his wife, Jane, daughter of George Simpson, Esq., of Hazelhead, and was great-great-grandson of Sir Alexander Bannerman, first Baronet, of Elsick, in Kincardineshire, and cousin and heir-presumptive of Sir Alexander Bannerman, the ninth and present Baronet. He was born in 1783. He was for many years engaged in mercantile, shipping, and banking business in Aberdeen, and was Provost of that city. He was M.P. for Aberdeen from 1832 to 1847, in the Whig interest. He was successively a Commissioner of Greenwich Hospital, Lieutenant-Governor of Prince Edward Island, Governor of the Bahamas, and Governor of Newfoundland. He was knighted in 1851. Sir Alexander married, in 1820, Mary, daughter of Guthrie Gordon, Esq.

SIR JOHN FRASER.

Sir John Fraser, of Balnain, in the county of Ross, K.C.M.G., who died on the 26th ult., at Bath, his natal town, was the third son of the late Dr. William Mackenzie Fraser, an eminent Scottish physician, by his wife, Miss Skinner, daughter of General Cortland Skinner. He was born in 1792, and was educated at Eton College. He, in 1810, entered the British Army and served in the 8th Light Dragoons, from which he retired in 1827. He was for many years Persian Interpreter and Aide-de-Camp to the Commander-in-Chief in India, and he was subsequently Secretary to the Lord High Commissioner of the Ionian Islands. He was made a Knight Commander of the Order of St. Michael and St. George, in 1853, in consideration of his official services. He married, in 1834, Mary Anne, daughter of William Baldwin, Esq., of Steele Hill, Harrietsham, Kent.

GENERAL SIR WILLIAM AND BARON DE TUYLL, K.C.H.

This venerable and gallant soldier, who died on the 26th ult., at the Hague, was the head and representative of the very ancient and noble Dutch family of De Tuyll. He was first in the army of Holland, but left that for the British Army. He, in 1779, accompanied the Prince of Orange to the Helder, and served in the British Adjutant-General's department. He subsequently entered the 7th Light Dragoons, and became a Captain in 1804. He was Aide-de-Camp in Portugal, Spain, and the Walcheren, to the Marquis of Anglesey, then Lord Paget. He had the war-medal for his conduct at Sahagun and Benevento. He, in 1812, went with the 25th Light Dragoons to India, and there had command of Arcot. He was private secretary to the Marquis of Anglesey when Lord Lieutenant of Ireland. He was knighted and made a K.C.H. in 1831, and was appointed Colonel of the 7th Regiment of Hussars in 1846. Tuyll became a Major-General in 1837, a Lieutenant-General in 1846, and a General June 20, 1854. He married, in 1846, Mdme. de Muilman.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Count de Vigney, of France, has just been proved in London, the testator having died possessed of property in England, the executrix, according to the tenor of the will, being his esteemed friend Mdme. Louise Lachand, wife of M. Charles Alexander Lachand, residing in Paris, whom he has appointed universal legatee, with directions to carry out his wishes. To this lady he has left his lands, capital, and all his real and personal estate. His literary property and works will revert, and are bequeathed, from father to son: his estate of Maine Giraud is to be divided between her son (the testator's godson) and her daughter.

The will of the Right Hon. Thomas Erskine, P.C., formerly of Fir Grove, Eversley, Hants, but late of Little Green, Sussex, was proved in the London Court, under £25,000 personalty in the United Kingdom. The executors appointed are the relict and the eldest son, Henry Trail Erskine, Esq. The testator has bequeathed to his wife the whole of his personal estate. He was formerly Chief Judge of the Court of Review, and afterwards transferred to the Court of Common Pleas, which he resigned in 1845, and died, in November last, at the age of seventy-six.

The will of Thomas Rammell, of Sturry Court, near Canterbury, was proved in London under £25,000 personalty, the executors being the relict; George Rammell, the son; and Robert Lake, the brother-in-law. The testator has left to his wife his real estate, land, farms, and personal estate, which at her decease is to be divided amongst their children as she by will may appoint.

The late Mrs. Hodgson, wife of the Rev. T. D. Hodgson, M.A., of East Woodhay, Hants, has bequeathed legacies of £500 to the Societies for Promoting Christian Knowledge and the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts.

The late Mr. Ambrose Lanfear, of Hungerford, Berks, has bequeathed to the Religious Tract Society, the London City Missions, the British and Foreign Bible Society, and the London Missionary Society, £50 each; and to the Sunday School Society, Dublin, and the Ragged School Union, £25 each.

The Vienna journals state that the King of Prussia has sent a splendid Christmas-tree to the children of the Emperor of Austria.

The Queen has approved of Mr. Stephen Tobin as Consul at Halifax, Nova Scotia, for the King of Denmark.

A greater portion of the Havannah cigars imported to this country, and also large importations for the French Government, are brought to Southampton by the Royal Mail Company's steamers. The Seine, which arrived at that port on Saturday last, brought 882 cases of cigars from Havannah, of which number 530 cases were for the French Government. Most of the cases for France contain 10,000 cigars each.

On the 21st ult. the library of the cathedral church of Strongnaes, Sweden, was destroyed by fire. It contained a great number of Scandinavian antiquities, valuable manuscripts, and rare books, which came from the pillage of the convents of Bohemia and of Moldavia during the Thirty Years' War. The library was founded in the fifteenth century, and science and literature have by this catastrophe suffered an immense loss.

The trial of the persons charged with participation in the riots at Geneva last August has ended in the most satisfactory manner for the accused. All the prisoners on both sides—Radical and Conservative—were acquitted; and the Court decided that the expenses of the trial should be borne by the Federal Government.

The tracing out of the line of the canal between the North Sea and the Baltic is finished, and the engineers have returned to Berlin. According to Voss's Gazette, it will be eleven geographical miles in length; commencing at the mouth of the Elbe, traversing Holstein and a part of Schleswig, and terminating in the Bay of Eckernforde. The depth throughout will be 31 ft., and the tide of the Baltic will reach beyond Rendsburg.

The seal of the Confederate States of America, the composition of which is by J. H. Foley, R. A., contains as a centre a representation of that statue of Washington which was executed by the American sculptor, Crawford, and erected at Richmond. The figure is mounted and in uniform, as commanding in an engagement. It is surrounded by a wreath, beautifully composed of the most valuable vegetable products of the Southern soil, as tobacco, rice, maize, cotton, wheat, and sugar-cane. The rim bears the legend, "The Confederate States of America, 22nd February, 1862. Deo Vindice." The seal is of silver, and its diameter is from three to four inches.

There appears to be as large an amount of carelessness on the part of the letter-writing community in America as in the Old Country. The report of Postmaster Dennison shows that 3,580,325 dead letters were received during the past year—over 9000 a day. Many of these letters contained money, deeds, bills of exchange, draughts, cheques, jewellery, and other valuables. Some of them were misdirected, others not directed at all, others unstamped, and others only partially directed. Thousands of these dead letters were returned to the writers, but the great majority had to be destroyed.

NEW MUSIC.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, sent post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (bound works excepted). HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECES.

SOUVIENS TOI. GANZ. 3s. 6d.
Sentiment Poetique. Jucho. 4s.
Hélène Nocturne. Campana. 4s.
Mountain Rose. Reverie. Muller. 4s.
La Danoise. Grand Galop. Macfarren. 4s.
Ballerina Mazurka. Ganz. 3s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW BUFFO QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC. On the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. L. Toole and Paul Bedford, comprising "He, She, and the Pos man," "Jolly Nose," "The Whistling Song," "Married on Wed-nes-day," and "A Norrible Tale." Price 4s.
"Enthusiastically received at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most brilliant success."—Vide Times.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ELEGANT MUSICAL PRESENT, price 10s. 6d.

COOTE'S ALBUM of NEW DANCE MUSIC for 1865. Illustrated in Colours and Bound in Silk.
"This beautiful book of new dance music forms one of the most simple and elegant Christmas offerings ever yet pub'ished, being beautifully illustrated in colours, with presentation plate, &c., and elegantly bound with silk."—Vide Illustrated News.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

LIVELY AND SPARKLING.

COOTE'S WINTER'S NIGHT SCHOTTISCHE. Price 3s. Illustrated with a Snow Scene.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST SUCCESS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful Illustration of the Game in colours.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S INNOCENCE VALSE. Price 4s. "This simple and beautiful Valse has become quite the rage of the season."—Review.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE GALOP IS

COOTE'S PRINCE IMPERIAL GALOP. Price 3s. Redemanded nightly at all the balls.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE, Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Watercresses," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Perkins," &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "So Early in de Morning," "The Cure," and other popular Airs. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always redemanded.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S DÉBUTANTE VALSE. Illustrated. Price 4s. Also, by the same Composer, LA FIANCEE VALSE. Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A NEW SONG BY CAMPANA.

COME WHERE THE SUNLIGHT SLEEPETH. Price 3s. A beautiful melody.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SUNG BY C. C. C. CHRISTY MINSTRELS,

SNOW-WHITE BLOSSOMS. Ballad. 2s. 6d. And COME O'ER THE STREAM, JESSIE. 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CONFEDERATE SONGS.

My Maryland. 2s. 6d.	My Southern Home. 2s. 6d.
Bonnie Blue Flag. 2s. 6d.	It is my country's call. 2s. 6d.
Down among the cotton. 2s. 6d.	Boy of the Rappahannock. 2s. 6d.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE SONG, BY F. BUCKLEY,

OH! IF I HAD SOME ONE TO LOVE ME, My trials and troubles to share.
Price 2s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL, Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for hot climates, and to keep well in tune, from Two guineas, with case, lock and key, &c.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE PRETTIEST SONG IS

COME WHERE THE MOONBEAMS LINGER. By FRED. BUCKLEY. Price 2s. 6d.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS,

The Weepin' Willer	3s. 0d.
On board o' the Kangaroo	2s. 6d.
The Hardware Line	2s. 6d.
The Parlour Blind	2s. 6d.
Jemima Brown	1s. 6d.
A Norrible Tale	3s. 0d.
Polly Perkins	2s. 6d.
Waterford Boys	2s. 6d.
Look at the clock	2s. 6d.
Pull Back	2s. 6d.
Society	3s. 0d.
Granny Snow	2s. 6d.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S LIST of NEW MUSICAL PUBLICATIONS:—
MINNIE'S QUADRILLE. For Piano. By Stephen Glover. Finely Illustrated. 3s.
THE RIVULET. Song. By Dolores. 2s. 6d.
THE LIQUID GEM. For Piano. By Brinley Richards.
DREAM OF THE WANDERER. For Piano. By Brinley Richards.
SACRED (Vocal) MUSIC FOR SUNDAY EVENINGS. By G. F. West. 4s.
PART-MUSIC.—Just issued, gratis and post-free, Robert Cocks and Co.'s New Catalogue of Part-Songs, Anthems, &c.
FOURTH GRATUITOUS EDITION.—Robert Cocks and Co.'s Thematic Catalogue of recently-published Vocal Music, giving the first four bars, with words, of each song, postage-free.
HEADS OF SCHOOLS should not defer obtaining a LIST (furnished gratis and postage-free) of the most POPULAR EDUCATIONAL WORKS on MUSIC in use throughout Europe and in all the Colonies and Dependencies of Great Britain.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street, W. All Musicsellers.
Agents for India, Messrs. BURKINYOUNG and CO., Calcutta.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. By C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre with immense success. Solo or Duet, 24 stamps. Illustrated with a view of the great Charing-cross Scene by Moonlight.
D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

STREETS OF LONDON GALOP. 3s. Streets of London Polka. 3s. Streets of London Waltzes. 4s. All Illustrated. Half price and post-free.
D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S New Song, I THINK IT SEEMS VERY MUCH LIKE IT. Published this day. Illustrated. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S GREATEST SUCCESSES. "Of course it's no business of mine," and "It's wonderful how we do it." Immensely funny. Illustrated. Each free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

IXION. The New Medley Comic Song on Popular Tunes, with Comical Rhymes by H. Miller. Illustrated in Colours. Companion song to "Alonzo the Brave." Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

JOLLY DOGS; We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new Convivial Song, sung by the great Vance at the Crystal Palace and the Strand Musick Hall. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

NEW MUSIC.

SYDNEY SMITH'S REVE ANGÉLIQUE. Berceuse. A new and charming piece by this unprecedentedly popular Composer. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S SPINNING-WHEEL. Just published. A beautiful and characteristic piece, the melody throughout elegant and well sustained. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

SYDNEY SMITH'S MARCHE DES TAMBOURS. A brilliant, vigorous and thoroughly effective military piece, played by the composer with extraordinary success. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S BLUE BELLS OF SCOTLAND. Of the numerous transcriptions of this beautiful Melody, not one is comparable to this immensely-successful piece. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR. A new and most admirable piece on the best airs in Donizetti's beautiful Opera. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S LUCREZIA.—One of the happiest and most brilliant operatic pieces by this well-known Composer, on Melodies from Donizetti's "Lucrezia Borgia." Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

GANZ'S LA VIVACITÉ Polka de Concert. Played by the Composer at all the principal concerts of the season with immense success. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S SING, BIRDIE, SING, VALSES. On the popular song of Ganz. Graceful, melodious, and pleasing. Unequalled for dancing. Price 4s., Solo or Duet.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE BANTING QUADRILLES. By MARRIOTT. On the Popular Comic Tunes of the day. The most successful quadrille of the season. Splendidly Illustrated. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE PUNCH AND JUDY QUADRILLES, on Popular Comic Tunes, by H. S. ROBERTS. Decidedly the merriest set that has been published for many years. Solo or Duet, price 4s.—ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE PUNCH AND JUDY LANCERS' QUADRILLES, on Popular Comic Tunes, by H. S. ROBERTS. The universally-favourite set for the "Lancers." Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE PUNCH AND JUDY WALTZES, on Popular Comic Tunes, by MARRIOTT. Played by the Composer's Orchestra every evening, with enormous success. Price 4s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE PUNCH AND JUDY POLKA, by MARRIOTT. Brilliant, well marked, and excellent for dancing. Extremely popular. Price 3s.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE PUNCH AND JUDY GALOP, by MARRIOTT.—The most successful Galop of the season. Price 3s. All the above dance-music is splendidly Illustrated.
ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

GASTON DE LILLE.—BRIGHT EYES VALSES.—A New Set by this popular Dance Composer. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GASTON DE LILLE.—NINA. Serenade Espagnole for the Pianoforte. A most effective little piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FOR A FEW DAYS. Galop. By TULLY. One of the best of the season. Played everywhere. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FOUNDRY GALOP. By J. RIVIERE. With a splendid Illustration of the "Foundry Scene," from "The Workmen of Paris." Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE BRIDE OF DUNKERRON. By HENRY SMART. Favourite Songs.
"The Full Moon is beaming." Tenor, 2s. 6d.
"Our Home shall be on this bright Isle." Soprano, 2s. 6d.
"The Sea rules all." Bass, 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

---

50 NURSERY SONGS and RHYMES, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, suited to young people, Illustrated with a Chromolithograph of "The Babes in the Wood," and a Comic Sketch on the cover. Price 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 10d. The most amusing as well as the most useful present.
METZLER and CO., 35 to 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

KUHE'S LA PIQUANTE. Valse Impromptu. The latest and most attractive Pianoforte Piece by this popular Composer. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S DANISH AIRS. Transcription for the Pianoforte, introducing Et Bondebryllup. Price 3s. Also "Masaniello." Grand Fantasia. 5s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

KING'S BUTTERFLY GALOP. By W. H. MONTGOMERY. Price 3s.; Orchestra, 2s. 6d. Introduced in the Overture at Her Majesty's Theatre, and in the Harlequin's Dance at Covent Garden Theatre. Now playing with great success.
JOSEPH WILLIAMS, 11, Holborn-bars; and 123, Cheapside.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S New Pianette is acknowledged the best and cheapest in Europe, about two thirds the price of the much-advertised French pianos. Can be had for twelve months on trial. One in the window marked with price; plain woods cheaper.
Patentees, 151, Regent-street. The only address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB let on hire for three years, after which the instrument will become the hirer's, their new Pianettes, in walnut, £2 5s. per quarter; their elegant drawing-room Pianoforte, 7 octaves, £3 3s. per quarter, registered keyboard; more expensive instruments equally moderate. These Pianofortes will be found to excel anything yet offered to the public. They can be obtained upon the same terms of all the respectable Musicsellers in the United Kingdom.—151, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions of Alexandre's, being the best acknowledged harmonium manufacturer in the world. 5 oct., in oak case, hire at 6s. per month; and a very nice 4 oct., suitable for schools, £4 purchase. 5, 7, 9, 11, 16 stops can be had either on hire for a number of years or purchase at moderate prices.—151, Regent-street. The only address.

OETZMANN and PLUMB undertake any repairs to Pianofortes and Harmoniums, which are executed by skilful workmen. Estimates given—moderate charges.
151, Regent-street.

FLUTE-HARMONIUMS for NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS, with four beautiful stops, in rosewood cases, 6½ guineas.
OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street.

LARGE SALE of SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES from £12 upwards. Seldom such an opportunity occurs for purchasing a good, warranted Pianoforte at a small price.—OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street. The only address.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great Makers, for SALE or HIRE, at MILLSOM and SON'S Music Warehouse, 2, Argyle-street, Bath. Parties met at the Manufacturers'. Liberal discounts for cash.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

PHOTOCHROMY.—A new Method of Colouring Photographs, preserving all their correctness and their most delicate shadows. No knowledge of painting is required. Box, containing the colours and materials, with Instructions and Specimen, 10s. 6d.
LECHERTIER, BARBE, and CO., 60, Regent-street; Wholesale, 7, Glasshouse-street, Golden-square.

HEDGES and BUTLER, 155, Regent-street, London, W., and 30, King's-road, Brighton, invite attention to their varied Stock of WINES, amongst which will be found—

Claret	at 18s., 20s., 24s., 30s., 36s., to 84s. per Dozen.
Sherry	at 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., to 60s. "
Port	at 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., to 108s. "
Champagne	at 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 66s., to 78s. "

Lists and Prices of all other Wines on application.
Originally established A.D. 1667.

R. and W. STONE, 22, Panton-street, London, S.W., invite attention to their large and varied Stock of Old Bottled Ports, of the finest vintages, shipped by Thompson and Croft and others. Old Port, from the wood, 24s., 30s., 36s.; Old in Bottle, 36s., 42s., 48s., 54s., 60s., to 96s. Sherries, 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., to 60s. Amontillado, 48s., 60s. Champagnes, 36s., 42s., 48s., to 72s. Moselles, Clarets, &c. Priced lists of every kind of Wines and Spirits forwarded on application. Established 1777.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very whole ome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN BURGESS and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand (corner of Savoy-steps), London.

2280 AGENTS—HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA.—Chemists, Confectioners, &c., are Agents, and supply it in Packets. It is choice and strong, moderate in price, and wholesome. This Tea therefore secures general preference.

THE

ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any English Manufacturers of CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of sweetmeats.
Few articles of confectionery embrace so many advantages. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment in a portable and convenient form.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Druggists.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS, an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.

Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in many Varieties, in elegant fancy Boxes, from 6d. each. Very suitable for Presents, Christmas Trees, &c.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is sold at the Crystal Palace, at various Railway Refreshment Rooms, and by Grocers, Confectioners, and Italian Warehousemen throughout the United Kingdom.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Medical Men.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice. J. EPPS, of London, homœopathic chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. It is readily prepared for use, being sold in the form of powder, of which two teaspoonfuls are put in a breakfast-cup, then filled up with boiling milk or water.
As a breakfast beverage, grateful and invigorating, with delicious aroma, no beverage has become so distinguished.
Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles; every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea."

EPPS'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, secured in tin-lined ¼lb., ½lb., and 1lb. packets, labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street. Manufactory, Euston-road, London." Sold, at 1s. 6d. per lb., by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemists.

TAYLOR BROTHERS' MUSTARD, WARRANTED GENUINE.
Dr. Hassall, having subjected this Mustard to a rigorous microscopical examination and chemical analysis, reports that it contains the three essential properties of good mustard—viz.,
PURITY, PUNGENCY, and DELICATE FLAVOUR.
See that each Package bears their Trade Mark, the "Prize Ox," and Dr. Hassall's Report.
Sold by all Grocers, &c., throughout the Kingdom.
Taylor Brothers, Brick-lane and Wentworth-street, London, N.E.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.

COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article Manufactured for Laundry purposes.
26, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

CANDLES.—Her Majesty's Government use FIELDS' PATENT PARAFFINE CANDLES. Sold everywhere, but see that "J. C. and J. Field" is on each packet. Wholesale at the Works, Upper Marsh, Lambeth.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or seen in use," writes Mr. Bladon, Refreshment-rooms, House of Lords, where FLOWER'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE POWDER has been in use the last seven years. Sold in boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Ironmongers.—Inventor, T. S. Flower, Chemist, Cheshunt, London, N.

MARK YOUR LINEN.—BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING INK is by far the best and blackest. Price 1s. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, &c. N.B. Observe, "10, Bishopsgate-street Within, E.C.," is on the label, without which the ink is not genuine.

ELLIMAN'S UNIVERSAL EMBROCATION cures RHEUMATISM, Gout, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Sore Throats, Toothache, Chaps, Chilblains, Weak Limbs. Applied outwardly. The same as supplied to the Crimean Army, General Garibaldi; and used by most families. Sold by all Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d.

IMMEDIATE RELIEF of the most violent Coughs is given by DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.
Price 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. per box, of all Druggists.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA is an excellent remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

AGENTS WANTED for a well-known MANURE, which commands a ready sale, is highly recommended by Customers for several years, and sold carriage-free. Liberal terms given. Address, B. C., 10, Pall-mall East, London.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, beg to announce that they have just received their first delivery of NEW SILKS, Foreign and British, made for the ensuing Spring. These goods were purchased before the great rise which has just taken place on all silk goods, and comprise an extensive variety of new and elegant Designs in both Black and Colours.
Messrs. N. and Co. have also bought several lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices—viz., from 2s. to 4s. 6d. per yard. 200 patterns of Silk, representing a Stock of £20,000 in value, sent post-free. Established twenty-one years. No connection with any other firm.

50,000 YARDS NEW SILKS.—Coloured Glacés, 30 different shades, from 1s. 4½d. per yard. 200 Patterns post-free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50,000 YARDS NEW SILKS. Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea a Dress, reversible. 200 Patterns post-free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50,000 YARDS NEW SILKS. Broché and Chéné Silks, reversible, from £1 18s. 6d. 200 Patterns post-free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50,000 YARDS NEW SILKS. Moire Antiques and Corded Silks, from 2 guineas. 200 Patterns post-free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

50,000 YARDS NEW SILKS. Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Drap de Lyon, Drap de Londres, Drap de Paris, &c., &c., from 1s. 6½d. per yard. 200 Patterns post-free.
Write to NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Boys' Knickerbocker Suits in Cloth, from 15s. 9d. Useful School Suits, from 12s. 9d. Patterns of the Cloths, directions for measurement, and 45 Engravings of New Dresses, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DURING THIS MONTH

JAMES SPENCE and CO., previous to Stock-taking, will offer the remaining part of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK at Wholesale Prices, consisting of the following Departments, viz.:—

Silks,	Furs,	Made-up Dresses,
Velvets,	Hosiery,	French Merinoes,
Shawls,	Gloves,	Winceys,
Jackets,	Ribbons,	Fancy Dresses,
Mantles,	Trimmings,	Flannels, &c.

Ladies and the Public are respectfully invited to make an early inspection.
Closed on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.
77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

FORD'S NOTICE of REMOVAL. MANTLES and JACKETS.—Thomas Ford respectfully requests the particular attention of his customers and the public to this notice of the REMOVAL of his Business from 42, Oxford-street, to his New Premises, 76, OXFORD-STREET (opposite the Partheon), where his business will be conducted as soon as the necessary alterations are completed.—Thos. Ford, Habit-maker, 42, Oxford-street (near Newman-street), London, W.

FORD'S GREAT SALE of MANTLES and JACKETS previous to Removal, commencing JAN. 9 and following days, when the whole of his extensive Stock will be offered at greatly reduced prices in order to effect an entire clearance. Thos. Ford, 42, Oxford-street, London, W.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.
Dark Princess Royal Cord, very bright, £2 15s. 6d. for 14 yards.
New Dark Checked Glacés, £2 2s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 Yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 Yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW FABRICS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Aberdeen Linseys, Knickerbocker Linseys.
All mixtures. Best and medium qualities.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT,
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips.
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

SANSFLECTUM JUPONS, 8s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
"Like vulcanite or indiarubber."—Queen.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA, or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d. and 21s.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

AMERICAN TRAIN JUPONS, 5s. 11d. and 7s. 6d.
Light and graceful for the ball-room.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

EIDERDOWN PETTICOATS, very light and warm, and 4 yards round:—
Puffed and quilted, in Black Silk, 55s. and 70s.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

PATTERNS FREE OF NEW SILKS AND OTHER MATERIALS.

GRANT and GASK are selling an immense purchase of the Richest FRENCH SILKS of the very Latest Fashion, at 3½ to 5½ guineas the Dress, being from £2 to £3 under present value. Also rich French Plain, Figured, and Fancy SILKS, at 2½ guineas the Dress of 14 yards, full width. Rich MOIRE ANTIQUES, Plain and Figured, in all the New Colours, 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
The Best LYONS SILK VELVETS, 10s. 6d. to 12s. 9d. per yard.
MADE-UP SKIRTS, BALL and EVENING DRESSES, in great variety.
BEST SEALSKIN MANTLES, 6½ guineas; VELVET MANTLES, ASTRACAN and SNOWSTORM JACKETS, &c.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

GENERAL MOURNING.
GRANT and GASK
invite an inspection of their large and well-assorted Stock of Goods for Family and Complimentary Mourning.
The SICILIAN CLOTH, BALMORAL CRAPE, and other new textures suitable for the season.
Several new makes in plain and figured BLACK SILKS, DRAPS DE LYONS, RADZEMERES, GROS GRAINS, &c., which can be recommended to wear, particularly a large purchase, at 3s. 9d. per yard, wide width, greatly under present value.
A large selection of made-up MOURNING SKIRTS, always in stock.
Mourning orders in town or country carefully and quickly executed.
Patterns by post free.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, 5, Wells-street, London.

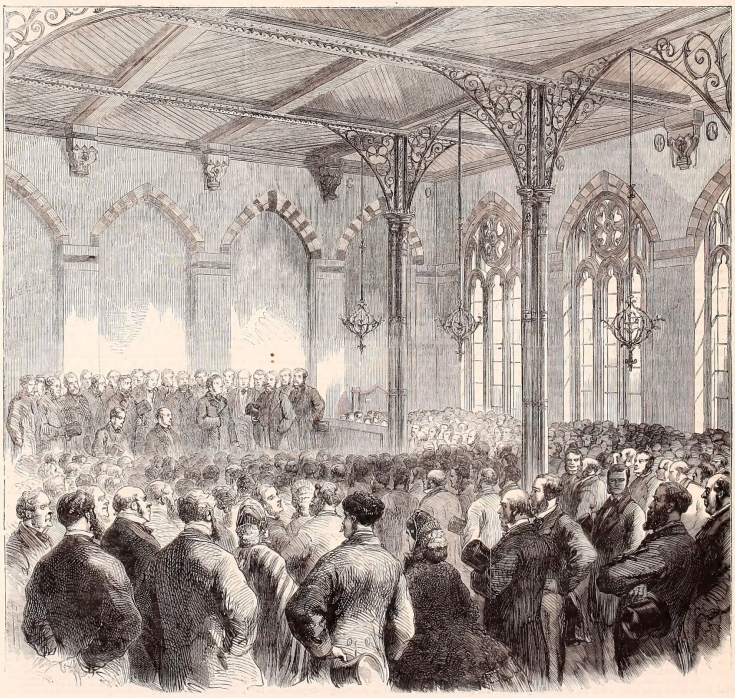
IRISH LINENS.—JAMES LINDSAY and CO., Belfast, will forward, carriage-free, at manufacturers' prices, Damask Table Linens, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Diapers, Glass Cloths, Towellings, Cambric and Lawn Handkerchiefs &c. Patterns, with price-list, post-free.

LADIES' UNDERCLOTHING, LACE, and EMBROIDERY, in every variety for the season, well selected, elegant, and moderate in price, at SCOTT and THOMSON'S (late Nunn's), 259, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London.

BABYLINEN, Cloaks, Robes, and Hoods, of the Newest and most Elegant Styles, with every requisite for the Infant, at SCOTT and THOMSON'S (late Nunn's), The Juvenile Dépôt, 259, Regent-circus, Oxford-street, London. Price-lists free by post.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that their recent extensive purchases of French Fancy Silks and Cashmere Shawls will be included in their usual January Sale, which has just commenced.—Piccadilly and Regent-street.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JANUARY 7, 1865.



THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1297.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

SPAIN.

THERE was a time when the name of Spain commanded the deferential attention of the world quite as decidedly as that of England or of France does at the present moment. She was believed to hold in her hands the destinies of Europe and of the greater portion of what was then known as the New World. Her policy determined the policy of the Continent. From her proceeded the balmy breath of peace or the stern rigours of war for many peoples. She had acquired for herself a splendid inheritance, and, like the rich man in the parable, she said to herself, "Soul, take thine ease; eat, drink, and be merry." She understood not the great law, applicable to all human affairs, that where progress ends decay inevitably sets in. She lived upon herself and grew exhausted. As her internal vitality diminished, the extremities of her empire fell away from her. She slowly dwindled into a fourth or fifth rate Power; and, after having suffered the humiliation of conquest, and of subsequent deliverance, by foreign arms, passed through a term of civil war, became a prey to military anarchy, and ceased to hold a recognised place in the family of European nations.

OPENING OF THE NEW EXCHANGE AT BIRMINGHAM.—SEE PAGE 42.

Spain, however, possesses immense resources which even improvidence could not wholly waste. Under the strong Government of Marshal O'Donnell, repose somewhat recruited her energies, and she became conscious of a new life tingling in her veins. She rose from her prostrate position, and, stretching her half-torpid muscles, looked round her for a suitable enterprise in which to try her newly-acquired strength. Unfortunately for her, national pride and ecclesiastical exclusiveness had shut up her spirit against all modern influences. She was still full of sixteenth-century ideas, and she believed in the existence of no other path to eminence than that which she had successfully climbed centuries ago. Else when she again stood erect, and shook from her raiment the dust in which she had ignominiously measured her length, she would have discovered a glorious opportunity of redeeming her name from contempt. Within a quarter of a century Spain might have made herself happy, powerful, and respected. By directing all her newly-awakened energies into the channel of self-improvement,—by opening up her rich domains by means of railway communication and good roads,—by turning to account her matchless water-power,—by unshackling industry and commerce from absurd restrictions,—by husbanding her revenue and rehabilitating her used-up credit,—and by liberalising to some slight extent such of her laws as paralyse intellectual vigour and put handcuffs upon conscience, she might speedily have recovered the position and influence of a great Power. She had nobody to fear. It was not likely that she would be molested. Her degradation did nobody any good, and she would have received not only a welcome back to her own place, but assistance.

She saw nothing of this. Spain has not been accustomed to recognise the importance of those reforms which begin at home. Misled by Old World notions, she aspired to set somebody else right instead of righting herself, and fell into the common mistake of identifying national glory, not with self-control and self-development, but with dictating the law to, and destroying the resources or the independence of, other States. Hence her needless war with the Emperor of Morocco, from which she gathered barren laurels; hence, also, her attempted resumption of authority over her old colony of San Domingo; hence the designs she had formed on Mexico; and hence her seizure of the Chincha Islands and her breach with the Republic of Peru.

Spain, however, as well as other nations, has to bow to "the inexorable logic of facts." Not the most invincible self-confidence can wholly protect her policy from the force brought to bear upon it by actual events. She may fight off innovating ideas. She may kill within her own bosom the seeds of the kindlier sentiments. She may shut both her ears to the teachings of reason. But she cannot dispose of events. When they hit her a staggering blow she has no choice but to reel before it. Even the most crystalline orthodoxy will not reverse the laws of Providence. Spain is beginning to find, what other nations have found, that the lust of extended dominion can only gratify itself in this age in the face of considerable danger and at ruinous pecuniary cost. International morality, moreover, cannot well be set at naught without waking up an angry and inexorable Nemesis. Spain has made light of financial credit, and, accordingly, has none. She has exhausted her treasury of cash in foolish expeditions; and, in the very midst of them, finds that she wants the "sinews of war." She cannot go forward without a sufficiency of means; she cannot retire without damage to her reputation. Let us not be too hard upon her. She made a grievous mistake, and she has discovered the blunder. That she should be reluctant to publish it to the world is but natural. One can easily pardon her effort to throw a veil over her shame when she has made it quite clear that she means to retrieve her error.

The Narvaez Ministry, as our readers will remember, suddenly resigned office about a month ago, and, on the failure of her Catholic Majesty to obtain a new Government, resumed it at the Queen's command. The Cortes had been previously summoned, and it was necessary, of course, that an Administration having some sort of claim to their confidence should be in a position to meet them. The Narvaez Cabinet—having become convinced that a policy of re-conquest promised but small success and demanded large immediate sacrifices; that San Domingo, of which Spain had ostentatiously taken possession on the treacherous invitation of Santana, and the Peruvian Republic, from which, under cover of a trumped-up quarrel, she had snatched the Chincha Islands, could give plenty of inglorious employment to her arms, drain her coffers, and yield her no profit—wisely concluded to bring to a close expeditions which were more troublesome than gainful. But the return from a pompous folly to simple good sense is sure to be rendered difficult, even to the repentant, by unexpected obstacles, as if to teach them that, although it is easy enough to transgress, it requires a strenuous effort to reform. Queen Isabella, speaking the mind to which her pride and superstition have made her a puppet, said "No" to the sensible advice of her Cabinet, and received the resignation of all its members. Her Majesty, however, could not delegate to her real advisers behind the throne, whether male or female, the official authority which the Cortes might be expected to recognise; and, to her chagrin, she found that no others would accept it on the terms proposed. Accordingly, she made a virtue of necessity. She commanded the Narvaez Cabinet to withdraw their resignations, and saved her Royal dignity by surrendering in substance the supremacy which she retained in form.

The Cortes met. The Queen's speech was skilfully framed to hide important political announcements behind vague phrases. Spain, under the teaching of an imperious necessity, is taking her place with those who Do good by stealth, and blush to find it fame.

Marshal Narvaez has introduced a bill for abandoning San Domingo, on the ground, as stated in the preamble, that "Spain believed that the Dominicans were desirous of living under Spanish protection, but resistance has become too serious to render it possible any longer to maintain such an illusion—it would be a conquest, and the policy of Spain is not one of conquest." The bill, if carried, as there is little room for doubt that it will be, settles in principle the existing difference with Peru. For Spain's quarrel with the Peruvian Republic was even more indefensible than her resumption of authority in San Domingo. In the latter case, she could plead facts which seemed to warrant a pretence that she did but comply with the wishes of the inhabitants; in the former, she plainly attempted to override them. She sent to Peru a "Special Commissioner," in place of a Minister, with the scarcely-concealed purpose of signifying her non-recognition of Peruvian independence. As a matter of course, the Peruvians declined to receive him under a designation which implied that the Republic still belonged to Spain; whereupon, the Spanish Admiral seized the Chincha Islands, declaring that the forty years' peace had been but a truce, and that Spain intended to resume her sovereignty. The declaration, but not the act, has been disavowed; and the Queen's speech justifies public expectation that Spain is disposed to remove by friendly negotiation the cause of quarrel which she created by violence. Possibly, her political wisdom and sense of justice have been quickened by the determination of the whole group of South American republics to make common cause with Peru in resisting her reassertion of obsolete Transatlantic claims.

There is, in fact, some ground for hope that Spain is beginning to see the world as her neighbours see it, and that the illusions with which she woke up from her long sleep are being dispelled by the daylight of modern facts. It is even asserted that she meditates the recognition of the kingdom of Italy, and that, impressed by the conviction that "honesty is the best policy," she may restore her credit by satisfying the just claims of her bondholders. If so, she may rest assured that none will care to cast her former errors in her teeth. The best interests of Europe require that Spain should take and hold the high position which belongs to her, and it is a real pleasure to hail the commencement of her endeavours to qualify herself for it. To be great is the surest, if not the shortest, way to acquire greatness.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

M. Fould's financial report to the Emperor was published on Tuesday. The Finance Minister thus summarises and concludes his report:—"The year 1863 will leave a deficit less by 15,000,000f. than had been anticipated; the budget of the year 1864 will probably balance itself; in 1865 our military expenditure will be reduced—for the army by 21,000,000f., for the navy by 23,000,000f.: together 44,000,000f.; and, lastly, we shall carry forward to the Budget of 1866 the sum of 18,000,000f. arising from the surplus of the resources of 1865. This sum may be notably increased at an early future, if, as is permitted to hope, the extraordinary expenses for the army and navy, which still figure in the anticipatory Budget for 1865 to the amount of 65,000,000f., shall successively decrease, and at last disappear. There will then be considerable resources, the employment of which will be ulteriorly determined. The situation, generally speaking, presents a favourable aspect. The monetary embarrassments have disappeared, a recovery of business seems near, and our revenues cannot fail to increase with the activity of commerce and industry. These happy results," adds the courtly financier, "are due to the confidence inspired by the Goverement of the Emperor, and to the pacific sentiments with which Europe knows your Majesty is animated."

The financial report of M. Fould is followed by a report of MM. Behic and Fould to the Emperor, including petitions addressed to his Majesty upon the rise in the rate of interest which has taken place in France as well as the rest of Europe, and has been maintained for nearly fifteen months. The petitions, signed by 300 commercial men in Paris, by manufacturers and commercial men in Lyons, precede a lengthy document, presented to the Emperor by the governing council of the Bank of France, praying an inquiry into the state of the establishment. The recommendation is approved by the Emperor.

Mdme. Bure, nurse of the Emperor, died recently at the age of eighty-four. Her son, the Emperor's foster-brother, has a situation in the household, under the title of Treasurer-General to the Crown.

A few days since an aged artist, Karl Christian Sparrmann, died suddenly at Dresden. In 1824 he was drawing master to Prince Napoleon (the present Emperor), and in that capacity resided with his pupil at Arenenberg during the summer, and at Rome in the winter. Under his guidance the Prince arrived at a remarkable degree of proficiency. Up to the last, Sparrmann treasured a collection of affectionate letters written to him by the Prince.

The two galleries of the Louvre which join the Pavillon Dénon are finished. They run to right and left of a spacious vestibule, decorated by a double row of columns, and contain a most interesting historic museum. The gallery to the right is devoted to Roman Iconography: a vast number of manuscripts illustrative of that science is to be found there. In the left-hand gallery are the casts, in copper, taken from Trajan's Pillar by the galvano-plastic process from plaster-moulds executed by Oudry. One of the ten sections has been sent by the Emperor to the Palais d'Industrie as one of the best specimens of Oudry's productions. Bullet marks on the bas-reliefs may be traced, telling tales of the many struggles that have taken place under the walls of old Rome, since the days of the siege by the traitor Connetable de Bourbon to the bloody scenes enacted in 1849.

The fashionable season at Paris shows signs of animation. M. Drouyn de Lhuys, Count Walewski, and some of the Foreign Ambassadors gave dinners and held receptions last week.

A general visit to the Paris catacombs has taken place, under the direction of M. Lamé-Fleury, engineer of mines. A number of persons who had obtained tickets delivered by the Prefect of the Seine assembled in the courtyard of the octroi building at the old Barrière d'Enfer, and each, provided with torches or lanterns, descended into the catacombs, and remained there for more than an hour, coming out by the Tombe-Isoire, near the Orleans-road.

The French iron-clad frigate Invincible has just been taken into the dry dock at Castigneau, which has afforded an opportunity of judging of the efficacy of the system applied to that vessel for preserving her iron plates. A band of zinc, which, by isolating the electric currents, guarantees the plates from that green coating which causes injury, has transformed the nature of that vegetation, and, instead of a casing of marine herbs, there was found attached to the frigate's bottom a fine collection of corals.

Wednesday's Moniteur denies the report that a modification of the government of Algeria is contemplated, or that any dissensions on the subject exist between the War Minister and the Duke of Magenta. Another decree has been issued in reference to the alienation of the land in Algeria now belonging to the State, but which it is intended to allot for the purposes of colonisation.

SPAIN.

The Congress was definitively constituted on Thursday week, when Senor Alexandre Castro was elected President by 171 votes, against 36 obtained by the Opposition candidate.

The Government have resolved on abandoning their pretensions to San Domingo. Marshal Narvaez has submitted a bill to the Cortes for that purpose, the preamble of which says:—"Spain believed that the Dominicans were desirous of living under Spanish protection, but resistance has become too serious to render it possible any longer to maintain such an illusion. It would be a conquest, and the policy of Spain is not one of conquest." The preamble of the measure is an elaborate and a candid document. It frankly admits that the Spanish Government was deluded in supposing that any large proportion of the population of San Domingo desired annexation to Spain. The abandonment of San Domingo is being discussed in the Spanish Senate. Calderon Collantes attacked the Ministry for having resolved on such a policy. Marshal Narvaez contended that the interest of Spain demanded that an exhausting and futile struggle should be abandoned.

The Epoca of Madrid publishes a circular, dated the 8th of November last and addressed by the Foreign Minister to the Spanish representatives abroad, in reference to the dispute with Peru. The document is an elaborate recapitulation of the grievances which Spain alleges against Peru and a justification of the course taken by the former Power, which repudiates any intention whatever to realise a policy of conquest or aggrandisement. The Minister offers, if the terms tendered in June last are accepted by Peru, to give up the Chincha Islands and to establish by treaty peaceful and satisfactory relations between the two countries. If, however, Spain does not receive a favourable answer to this proposal within such interval as her Government may fix, then the offer is to be considered as withdrawn, and it is intimated in tolerably clear terms that Peru must take the consequences upon herself.

Admiral Pinzon has addressed a report, dated Nov. 26, to the Government announcing the loss of the frigate Triunfo by fire on the previous day, in consequence of the combustion of the turpentine deposited in the painter's store-room. No loss of life was to be regretted. The treasure, chronometers, and the greater part of the armament and fittings were saved.

Queen Christina has gone back to France. In passing through Logrono her Majesty received a visit from General Espartero.

PORTUGAL.

The Cortes were opened on the 2nd inst., by the King in person. His Majesty said, in the Speech from the Throne, that the Budget would show no deficit. He congratulated the representatives on the friendly relations of the country with foreign Powers. His Majesty stated also that the accession of the Emperor Maximilian to the Mexican throne was likely to lead to important commercial relations between Mexico and Portugal.

The Portuguese Minister in London, adds a telegram, was expected to amicably arrange the difficulty between England and Brazil.

DENMARK.

The Minister of Finance has submitted a bill to the Rigsraad throwing the coasting trade open to all nations who will grant a similar privilege to Danish shipping.

AUSTRIA.

The Government has announced that the Pope's Encyclical Letter and the list of errors appended may be promulgated by the bishops in the ordinary way.

The sittings of the Lower House of the Reichsrath were resumed on Monday. The Finance Committee presented its report on the Budget, in which it proposed that the Government should state to the House every detail of the public expenditure. The House rejected this proposal, and empowered the Government to apply, according to its own judgment, the funds granted for each department.

TURKEY.

A report of the Grand Vizier upon the Budget has been published. The necessity for the last home loan is explained by the non-receipt of revenues. A large proportion of the army is to be furloughed for six months, and the conscription stopped, as a measure of economy.

AMERICA.

By the Peruvian we have news from New York to the evening of Dec. 31.

Savannah has fallen into the hands of the Federals. General Sherman thus pithily notifies the welcome fact to President Lincoln:—

Savannah, Georgia, Dec. 22.

I beg to present you as a Christmas gift the city of Savannah, with 150 heavy guns and plenty of ammunition, and also about 25,000 bales of cotton.

W. J. Sherman, Major-General.

General Sherman occupied the city on the morning of the 21st ult., and found the 20,000 inhabitants, he says, "quiet and well disposed." The Confederate General Hardee had previously rejected a summons to surrender; but during the 20th ult. he succeeded in transporting all his infantry and field artillery across the river from the city to a place called Union Causeway, and had thus escaped the assault which the Federals intended to make, and withdrawn his troops before the Federal works had advanced enough to impede his passage of the river. Savannah advices of the 26th ult. report that an effort was being made to intercept General Hardee's retreat before he could reach the Broad River; but the Richmond journals stated that General Hardee had arrived at Charleston.

As a set-off against the Federal success at Savannah, we have to record the failure of the Federal attack on Wilmington. General Butler had returned to Fort Monroe, and the transports with his troops on board were also arriving there. Admiral Porter, with his frigates and monitors, had proceeded to Beaufort, and was there awaiting further orders. Admiral Porter, in his report of the operations, stated that on the 24th ult., after a large powder-ship had been blown up under the walls of Fort Fisher, without doing any damage, his fleet bombarded the fort, and in an hour silenced the Confederate fire. On the afternoon of the 25th 3000 troops, under the command of General Weitzel, landed under cover of the fire from the fleet, captured two batteries, and advanced within fifty yards of Fort Fisher, some of the men even entering the outworks. General Weitzel, however, deemed a successful attack impracticable, and re-embarked on the same evening, though about 1000 men remained ashore during the following day, in consequence of the state of the weather. General Butler informed Admiral Porter, on the night of the 25th ult., that an assault was impracticable, as Fort Fisher was substantially uninjured as a defensive work by the navy fire, and could only be reduced by a regular siege; and he added that he should return to Fort Monroe as soon as the transports for his troops were ready. Admiral Porter vainly assured General Butler that the fire of his ships could keep the Confederates inside the fort from showing their heads until a storming column should be within twenty yards of the works, and that the capture of the fort by assault, if attempted, would have been easier than was supposed. An interesting feature in Admiral Porter's report is his condemnation of the 100-pounder Parrott guns, which he says were unfit for the service. Six of them burst, killing and wounding forty-five men.

The notion of the powder-ship which, as stated above, was blown up near Fort Fisher with such trivial result, was suggested by the effect of the explosion at Erith; and the method of fitting out and firing the vessel is thus described:—

The United States steam gun-boat Louisiana was taken to the Norfolk Navy yard about a month ago, and such changes made in her as would adapt her to receive the powder. She was also disguised as much as possible, so as to give her the appearance of a blockade-runner. After all the required changes had been made the Louisiana was towed to Craney Island, where she was loaded. The hold was left empty, as the powder at the explosion was desired to be as much as possible above water. The powder was contained in a bulkhead occupying a portion of the berth-deck and extending nearly to the boilers. The first tier of powder was placed in barrels with the heads taken out, and the remainder was in bags. For the purpose of exploding the powder, there were three clock-fuses placed in the vessel, one in each gangway and one aft, near the boilers. From each of these a patent Gomez fuse led completely round the vessel, and terminated one in the hold and the others in the centre of the berth-deck. Any one of the fuses ignited would fire all the others, because each one crossed one of the others, and wherever they crossed they were grafted. There were no absolute soundings of the shore in the vicinity of Fort Fisher, and it was only a matter of conjecture how near the Louisiana could go before she ran aground. When her bottom first grated the sand her furnace-doors were to be thrown open, the engines left running, and caps placed upon the fuses, the clocks set, and everybody hurriedly transferred to the picket launch, the tug, and the boats. The explosion was expected to take place in thirty or forty minutes, and by that time the party, with their steam-launch, would probably be five miles away. A provision was made, however, in case something should occur—some accident befall the launch. Under such circumstances they were to take the surf-boat and row for life till just within the time for the explosion, when they were to jump overboard, go with ropes and buoys as far as possible from the boat, submerge to the head, and, with cotton in their ears, await the shock.

The Federals have been again repulsed in an attempt to land on Roanoke Island; and an expedition by Granger against Mobile had, according to Confederate accounts, been driven back.

There are contradictory reports as to Hood's movement. One account says that he had crossed the Tennessee. Another states that the Federal gun-boats had prevented him from crossing, and even adds that the remnant of his army had been captured.

Although it was declared that the Federal Generals Stoneman and Burbridge had been defeated in Western Virginia, it seems that they have captured Saltville, the great manufactory of salt for the South.

At Richmond there has been no new movement, but it was reported that Lee was preparing to attack the Federals. The Southern press urge Lee's appointment as Commander-in-Chief of the armies of the Confederacy.

President Lincoln has been made an LL.D. by the College of New Jersey.

The President has remitted the sentence of the court-martial upon Admiral Wilkes to a period of one year from its date. The sentence suspended him three years from the service.

The Brazilian demand for explanation and reparation for the seizure of the Florida has been replied to by a note from Mr. Seward. Regret is expressed for the proceeding at Bahia. Captain Collins is suspended and ordered to be tried by court-martial. The United States Consul at Bahia is dismissed, and the men captured in the Florida are to be set at liberty. Mr. Seward says the United States have a complaint against Brazil for recognising the Confederates as belligerents, but he adds that it is no part of the duty of an officer to take upon himself the redressing of his country's wrongs.

President Jefferson Davis has issued a declaration that B. G. Burley—who has been apprehended in Canada, and who headed the men who endeavoured to take the steamer Michigan on Lake Erie and then release the Confederate prisoners on Johnson's island—is a Confederate officer, and acted under the authority of the Confederate Government.

The esteemed veteran English actor, Mr. James William Wallack—a contemporary of Edmund Kean and Elliston—died at New York on Christmas Day, aged sixty-nine, having been born in London in 1795. He made his first appearance in America at the Park Theatre, New York, in 1818, and his great success and popularity with the play-going public of that city induced him to divide his time thenceforth between England and the United States. In 1836 he opened the National Theatre, New York, and remained manager of it until it was destroyed by fire, in 1839. He then returned to England, and played for some time at the Princess's Theatre. In 1851 he once more crossed the Atlantic, with the intention of residing permanently in America. The New York papers record his decease with strong expressions of sympathy and regret.

The steam-ship North America foundered while on her voyage from New Orleans to New York. She had on board 203 sick soldiers, twelve cabin passengers, and a crew of forty-four men. Of these only sixty-two persons were saved. Among the lost were Colonel Saunders and Lieutenant-Colonel Horn.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Governor of Canada issued a proclamation offering a reward of 200 dollars for the apprehension of each of the St. Albans raiders. More of the raiders have been re-apprehended in Canada, and sent for examination to Montreal. Their trial began on the 27th ult., in the Superior Court, before Mr. Justice Smith. It was stated that three of the raiders had made their way into the United States, and had enlisted into the Federal service in New Hampshire, but had been recognised and arrested.

The Montreal Gazette has the following statement relating to the ballot for the service militia, which took place on Dec. 30 :—

Sixty-one battalions are to be draughted in Upper Canada, and fifty-one in Lower Canada. As each battalion is to number 795 men, it follows that if the law is fully carried out 58,495 will be draughted in Upper Canada, and 40,545 in Lower Canada. The force, exclusive of the volunteers, would therefore amount to 89,040 men, or, with the officers, to more than 100,000. The battalions continue organised for three years, and are then succeeded by a new ballot. The Act provides that the Commander-in-Chief may call out the militia so draughted at any time in order to organise it for service, and that he may also call it out for six days' drill each year, when each non-commissioned officer and man will be paid at the rate of fifty cents a day, and for the time being be subject to the "Queen's regulations and orders for the Army." It may be well, in order to prevent misconception, to state that the Commander-in-Chief's order to organise these service battalions was not called for by the recent complications, but is simply a carrying out of that portion of the Act which provides "that at some period of the year 1861, to be fixed by the Commander-in-Chief, and in each third succeeding year," the registrars shall proceed to ballot as above stated for candidates. The ballot was put off to the very last moment.

INDIA.

The news from India by the Bombay mail is to the 14th ult., and is of a satisfactory character, the only exception to tranquillity being the warlike operations against the Bhootanese. Throughout British India (says the Times of India) dissatisfaction has ceased to show itself by any outward manifestations, and the increasing prosperity of the country, adding daily to the comfort and well being of the people, is reconciling them more and more to the dominion of England in Hindostan.

Sir Hugh Rose was recovering from the effects of his accident; his retirement, however, was expected, and Sir Hope Grant is named as his successor as Commander-in-Chief.

The affairs of Cabool were as complicated as ever. A large army had been collected by Ufzil Khan's uncle, with the intention of attacking the Ameer. The Russians, having captured the whole territory of Kokan, were reported to be preparing to march against Turkestan.

A Persian army was said to be moving against Herat.

AUSTRALIA.

(From our own Correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, Nov. 26.

The elections have terminated and the new Parliament will meet for the transaction of business on Monday next, the 28th inst. The result of the elections, I am sorry to say, is anything but encouraging; for, while some of our ablest politicians have been rejected, their places have been filled by men, some of them good enough in their way but totally untried and inexperienced. Protection to native industry has been the winning card at the different contests; and we have as motley a crew of Protectionists as were ever got together, such a gathering as would gladden the heart of the late Lord George Bentinck. The whole of Mr. O'Shanassy's followers—Mr. Wood, Mr. Haines, Mr. Anderson, Mr. Johnson, and Dr. Evans—have disappeared from political life for the nonce, Mr. O'Shanassy himself only escaping defeat by a narrow majority—a striking instance of the fickleness of the popular feeling in Victoria. The majority of the members have been returned as Ministerialists, one or two of the Cabinet having declared themselves in favour of a revision of the tariff, whatever that may mean; but, whilst Protectionist views have been encouraged by some of the Ministry, it is well known that the Attorney-General and the Minister of Justice are out-and-out Free-traders. In such a state of things the probability is that the very strength of the Ministry will prove its weakness; for, whilst the bulk of its supporters will not be satisfied with anything short of Protection, the more experienced and intelligent members of the House and of the Cabinet will not stultify themselves or their convictions by acquiescing in the exploded doctrine.

The news brought by the last mail of the intentions of Russia as to the Australian colonies, in the event of a war with England on the Polish question, has caused no little alarm and anxiety. We shall certainly take it as a warning to set our house in order. What Russia deemed practicable and desirable may be deemed equally practicable and equally desirable by any other Power with which England may choose to have a quarrel. It is understood that the Treasurer has made, or is to make, provision in his estimates for such defensive works as will, at least, quiet the apprehensions of the more timid until such time as the mother country can be appealed to for the use of something in the shape of gun-boats, steamers, or block-ships. We have a large and efficient volunteer force, and our noble bay is almost land-locked; so that timely and wise precautions would render us safe against the attacks of any enemy. In South Australia active steps have already been taken, £20,000 having been recently voted for the purchase of guns.

I hope you will try and put your daily contemporaries right regarding the geographical position of the different Australian colonies. Errors in this respect may be a light matter to them, but to us such errors are annoying. Perhaps you will allow me to state that New Holland, or Australia, is a continent, and that its explored and inhabited portions are known as New South Wales, of which Sydney is the capital; Victoria, of which Melbourne is the capital; South Australia, of which Adelaide is the capital; Western Australia, of which Perth is the capital; and Queensland, of which Brisbane is the capital. The last-named colony is the youngest of the lot, and it feels excessively annoyed at being spoken of in London, as it has been, as that part of Australia to which British convicts are sent.

The weather has recently been somewhat remarkable, and we are without the usual allowance of dry, warm weather usually experienced at this season. Weather prophets are in great favour here. Saxby, as I mentioned before, is the chief. Mr. Ellery, our Astronomer-Royal, however, has recently stated that Saxby's theory has been here proved unsound. Nearly everyone believes in the Lieutènant, notwithstanding; and if he were to come out here he would probably be elevated to the rank of a Government prophet to protect native industry from foreign influences exerted against our poor world by the stars.

With reference to gold-mining, new discoveries are of frequent occurrence, and thus the known area of our auriferous deposits is gradually extending. As a matter of course, the time must come when the search for alluvial gold will be unprofitable; but the best-informed practical men here are of opinion that there is hardly a limit to the development of quartz mining. As regards this and all other enterprises there is great necessity and ample room for the introduction of additional capital. This colony can never make progress equal to the great resources of the territory until English capitalists can be induced to invest some of their wealth in at once aiding our productive enterprise and in adding largely to their own gains.

The annual meeting of the Acclimatisation Society of Victoria was held on the 11th inst., his Excellency Sir Charles Darling presiding on the occasion. A highly satisfactory report was submitted and adopted. It was resolved to spend a further sum of £400 in co-operating with the authorities of Tasmania in introducing another supply of salmon ova. The Hon. Mr. Haines was elected president, in the room of Mr. Edward Wilson, who retired on account of his going to England.

By the outgoing mail petitions from every town of note against the transportation of convicts to any part of the Australian colonies will be transmitted for presentation to her Majesty and the Imperial Parliament. Upon no question is there such unanimity as upon this.

Politically and socially, things are about as disorganised in New South Wales as they well can be. Parliament was dissolved after the recent want-of-confidence debate, and the constituencies are now in the heat of a general election—at which, as in Victoria, the Protection cry predominates. With a deficiency in the revenue of something like £500,000, the opinion prevails that nothing but Protection will bring back to New South Wales that prosperity for which at one time it was so noted. Bushranging becomes more outrageous and frequent, gangs of desperadoes pursuing their avocations without any check being placed on their proceedings. The other day a mail-coach, although under the protection of a police escort, was stopped by three men, who, in the encounter that took place with the police, killed one of the latter, and took one prisoner—the remainder fled. The mail-bags were then rifled of their contents. Scarcely a day passes without the occurrence of something similar. The police, either from fear or indifference, seem utterly unable to prevent these deeds of blood and plunder; and the people stand aloof, evidently from a dread of bringing down upon their heads the vengeance of the outlaws, whose numbers are now and again recruited from the ranks of young squatterdom.

NEW ZEALAND.

The situation of affairs in New Zealand, as described in the advices brought by the present mail, although not satisfactory, was, at all events, simpler. The Maori prisoners, so strangely kept and so strangely allowed to escape, were still at large, and seated, armed and defiant, in a strong pah, built on a hill 1100 ft. above the sea level.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Mr. Elihu Burritt (generally known as the "learned blacksmith") has been appointed United States Consul at Birmingham.

The emigration from the Clyde last year shows an increase of fifty per cent compared with the preceding year.

Mr. William Nichols, Judge of the Birmingham County Court, died at Mentone, in Savoy, on the 29th ult.

The Marquis of Westminster has presented £500 to the Denbighshire Infirmary.

Mr. Robartes has announced his intention of retiring from the representation of East Cornwall.

The New Townhall, in Stretford-road, for the township of Hulme, was opened on Tuesday, and the occasion was celebrated by a dinner.

The memorial ward of the late Dr. Smyly, in connection with the Meath Hospital, at Dublin, was opened on Thursday week, in the presence of Lord Wodehouse.

On Monday the old Liverpool and New York packet-ship Dacotah arrived in the Mersey from Nassau, with a cargo consisting of 4000 bales of blockade-run cotton. At the present rates for fine American staple in Liverpool, this cargo is valued at £280,000.

In one of the processes of steel-pen making done by women, at Birmingham, a quick worker will cut out in one day of ten working hours 250 gross, or 36,000 pens, which involves 72,000 distinct motions of the arm, two in every second.

The death of Mrs. Eliza Hughes, of Wolverhampton, in her 102nd year, is announced. She had five children, the eldest now living being in her seventy-fourth year; thirty-four grandchildren, and seventy great-grandchildren. She retained her faculties to the day of her death.

At a meeting of the proprietors of the Manchester Royal Exchange, held on Wednesday, the report of the committee of management respecting the proposed erection of a new building on the site bounded by Market-street, Cross-street, Bank-street, and Ducie-place, was received, and the resolutions proposed were unanimously passed.

In Liverpool, last week, the births were 321, the deaths 442; in Manchester and Salford the births 269, the deaths 275; in Birmingham the births 208, the deaths 213; in Leeds the births 117, the deaths 138; in Bristol the births 124, the deaths 81; in Edinburgh the births 109, the deaths 90; in Glasgow the births 357, the deaths 313.

The Queen has approved of Mr. Alfred Lloyd Fox as Consul at Falmouth, Mr. Albert Hugo Adolf Zeden as Consul at Liverpool, and Mr. Peter Romyn as Consul at Hartlepool, Stockton-on-Tees, and Middlesborough, for the Grand Duke of Oldenburg; and of Mr. William L. Raymond as Consul at Leeds for the United States of America.

A silver medal has been presented by the chairman of the Liverpool Local Marine Board, on behalf of the Swedish Government, to Captain Williams, of the Liverpool Ship Simla, the chief officer and crew of which saved the crew of the Swedish ship Vestfold, waterlogged and sinking, in a severe gale off Cape Finisterre.

The annual meeting of the Kidderminster School of Art was held on Wednesday week, Sir John Pakington, M.P., in the chair. There was a fair attendance of ladies and gentlemen interested in the working of this important institution, and these, added to the successful students, nearly filled the body of the room.

The Mayor of Salford, Mr. Wright Turner, has received from the inhabitants of his native place—the village of Hayfield, in Derbyshire—an address of congratulation, very numerously and respectably signed, upon the occasion of his being elected to preside over the municipality of the borough in which he now resides.

The Hartlepool Hospital was opened for reception of patients, on Thursday week, by Mr. James Groves (Mayor), in the place of Mr. R. Burden, of Castle Eden, to whose liberality the building has been converted into an hospital. The alterations, by Mr. Burden, have cost £1000, and that gentleman has offered another £250 as an endowment fund.

A gathering took place at Brighton, on Tuesday evening, on the occasion of the opening of a new Working Men's Union. Speeches were delivered by Mr. White, M.P., Professor Fawcett, who dwelt upon the usefulness of such institutions as that in preventing the spread of strikes—the stumbling-block to a good understanding between employers and employed, and other friends of the working men.

The Lord Bishop of Salisbury entertained about 100 poor men and women from the various parishes in the city at the palace last week. A substantial dinner was provided, to which ample justice was done.

Mr. W. E. Forster addressed a meeting of his constituents, at Bradford, on Tuesday night. The hon. gentleman touched upon most of the leading questions of the day, and at the conclusion of his speech he received a vote of confidence.

The Marquis of Exeter, the principal proprietor of the Stamford and Essendine Railway, has taken the working of it into his own hands. He has purchased new rolling stock, and has commenced running the trains with officials of his own appointment, the agreement with the Great Northern for the working of the line having expired.

A disgraceful scene occurred on the first Sunday in the new year near Chacewater. A funeral procession was set upon by a gang of ruffians and snowballed, the hats of the followers being knocked off and their clothing covered with snow. The "fun" of the snowballers reached its height as the procession entered the churchyard.

A meeting was held yesterday week in the Athenæum, Bristol, presided over by the Mayor of the city, for the purpose of considering the question of constructing a tunnel under the bed of the River Severn, so as to improve the communication between the mining districts of South Wales and Bristol. The importance and practicability of the undertaking having been commented upon by the chairman, Mr. Willis, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Cossham, and others, resolutions were adopted approving the scheme.

The Government having withdrawn their annual grant of £40 to the School of Art at Birkenhead, a meeting was held on Monday—Mr. John Laird, M.P., presiding—at which a committee was formed to raise subscriptions and take other measures to carry on the school. The school was established in 1861, and since that time 4303 pupils, principally children and the working classes, have attended it. There have been 500 "art-students;" 226 students in the industrial school and 217 in the "poor school" had passed examinations successfully.

As a gratifying proof of the mutual good understanding between employers and employed in the Manchester trade, we observe that the sixty-third anniversary of the foundation of the business of Messrs. Potter and Taylor, formerly Potters and Norris, of George-street, Manchester, was celebrated by an entertainment to all their people on Monday week. The late member for Manchester, Sir John Potter, Bart.; and his father, Sir Thomas Potter, who was the first Parliamentary representative of that town, belonged to this commercial firm.

At the general meeting and soirée of the Birmingham and Midland Institute, on Monday, the Right Hon. C. B. Adderley, M.P., addressed those present respecting the increased public taste for literature and science, as compared with a few years since. He thought everybody must admit that such an appetite was growing. There were many proofs of it patent to every one, and amongst those proofs were the establishment of libraries at railway stations and the increasing circulation of the penny newspapers, the latter being most healthy exponents of public opinion. Their enormous circulation showed that they must be in the hands of almost every reading man throughout the kingdom. In addition to these, there was the rapidly improving taste for music. He would appeal to the recollection of those who could look back twenty or thirty years, whether, even amongst the higher classes—amongst, for instance, the young men in public schools and universities—music was not looked upon rather as an effeminate accomplishment, and as that which a man could hardly apply himself to without some little discredit to his manliness. Now, there was hardly a large town in the country in which there were not concerts among the people, and choral societies performing some of the finest pieces of music, that have been produced in a manner which he had heard described by the best judges as equal to the highest-class performers. The hon. member, in concluding his remarks, expressed his opinion that such institutions as the one they were met to further were doing a real good in promoting this taste for reading.

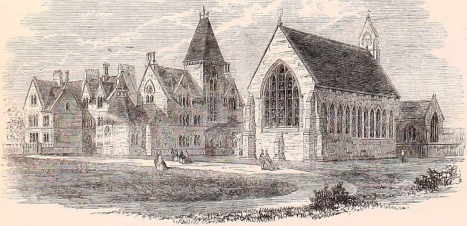
ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.—At the Preston Quarter Sessions, yesterday week, John Newton, a bankrupt cotton manufacturer, was sentenced to six months' imprisonment for secretly removing from his mill some property which had passed into the hands of his assignees.

A man, named Crawleigh, aged twenty-two, a printer, was yesterday week found guilty of a shop robbery at North Shields. Several previous convictions were proved against him; amongst others it was shown that he had undergone six years' penal servitude for robbery with violence. Crawleigh said he wished to speak to the Court ere they pronounced sentence. Addressing the Chairman as "Learned Sir," he said that, although he (Crawleigh) had been found guilty according to the evidence of the jury, yet his conscience acquitted him, for he was sure that he was not the first by hundreds who had been convicted on false evidence. As an instance of this he quoted the case of Mr. Bewick, who, he said, had been falsely condemned, and then afterwards was able to clear himself through the power of money. Then, if they turned their attention to the Bible, that best of books, they found that many false witnesses rose up against our blessed Lord himself, and if false evidence prevailed against that Spotless Lamb, how much more might it do so with him? He had already undergone all the horrors of penal servitude—horrors calculated to appal the soul of man—and he had not yet had sufficient time since then of producing fruits for either good or evil. Therefore, he asked them to let his punishment go with the smallness of the present offence; for to his inevitable grief he found that English dispensers of justice passed sentence, not according to the enormity or the contrary of their offence, but to the number of past offences. Whatever past offences he might have committed—and which were now exhibited before them—he hoped would not affect their judgment in passing sentence upon him, but that they would be looked upon more as the eccentricities and follies of youth, and not cause him to again pay the penalty for offences committed some time ago. He asked them, then, on that account to pity rather than condemn; and though the morning of his life had been stormy, yet he hoped the afternoon might be more tranquil, and that he might have the opportunity of showing that he had many germs of virtue and usefulness, which he trusted might be spared to him for many years to come. In conclusion, he quoted some verses from Burns. Crawleigh's harangue does not seem to have benefited him much, as he was sentenced to ten years' penal servitude. When sentence had been passed, he said, in a tone of injured innocence, "Well, Sir, an evil which cannot be cured must surely be endured. I will endeavour with fortitude"—— The prisoner was prevented from giving further vent to his proposed heroic intentions by being removed from the dock.

Last Saturday Henry Brown was hanged at Liverpool. He and a man named Lindon were convicted at the last assizes of the murder of a man whose name was M'Carthy. Lindon was respited.

The Daily News is warm in the praise of the jerked beef of South America, to which we referred last week as being sold at 3d. a pound. It is capable of being cooked as soup, mince, stew, &c.; but requires to be first steeped for three or four hours, or else washed in hot water, when it swells, and loses its dry, shrunken appearance.

All the posthumous papers, with the exception of the memoirs, of Heinrich Heine have been bought for the Austrian Government. Prince Metternich, the Austrian Ambassador at Paris, concluded the purchase of these important literary remains from the poet's widow, who is residing in Paris. Mrs. Heine is to receive an annuity of 3000f. for life as the price of her husband's papers.



THE NEW CHURCH AT DEPTFORD.

CHRIST CHURCH, Deptford, which was consecrated by the Bishop of London on Tuesday, the 27th ult., has been erected to supply the wants of the populous parish of St. Paul, Deptford. The church will take the place of a temporary place of worship which, until destroyed by fire a few weeks since, existed over a building used as a sawmill, and more recently as a kamptulicon floorcloth manufactory. This place had been for two or three years well attended by the poor of the district, drawn together by the exertions of the Rev. J. P. Courtenay, who for five years has been labouring in the parish in connection with the London Diocesan Home Mission. The site was purchased for £700. The church is of a plain and substantial character, the style of the architecture being somewhat akin to the Lombard Romanesque. The exterior is of brick, with courses of coloured bricks introduced, with a little Bath stone in the windows; the tower, which is 85 ft. high, has a saddle-back roof. The interior of the church has a light effect, the roof being of one span carried by iron columns, which also serve to support the galleries on three sides, so that the view of the preacher is in no way obstructed. The galleries are approached by stone staircases at the east and west ends of the church. The chancel, which is lighted by a four-light window, has been ornamented by the munificent gifts of friends; for instance, the east window is filled with stained glass by Warrington, the subjects represented being scenes in our Saviour's life, the gift of a widow lady, who desired to place it there in memory of her husband. The reredos, which is of stone, sculptured with a representation of The Last Supper, together with the encaustic tiles on the walls of the chancel, was presented by another widow lady for the same purpose. The west window, by Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, is the gift of Lady Anstruther, the widow of Sir Ralph Anstruther, who, when alive, took a deep interest in the mission work, and often visited from house to house amongst the poor of the district. The font, which is of Caen stone and hexagonal in form, has been paid for by the united contributions of the poor forming the congregation of the church. It has subjects from the Gospels carved in the panels of the sides. The pulpit, which is also of Caen stone, with columns of marble and alabaster, is the result of a collection made by Mr. Burnside, of Blackheath, among friends in that neighbourhood. The pulpit, reading-desk, font, and rerodos have all been executed by Mr. Seale, of Walworth, from the designs and under the superintendence of the architects. The lighting of the church is by gas coronæ, suspended from pendants in the roof between the columns which support the roof and galleries. The accommodation provided is for 1200 persons. The cost of the church, exclusive of the before-mentioned gifts, the lighting, and warming, has not exceeded £4000. The architects are Messrs. Newman and Billing, F.R.I.B.A., who have given their services gratuitously. Mr. Peake, of Horsleydown, was the contractor.

NEW EXCHANGE BUILDINGS AT BIRMINGHAM.—SEE PAGE 31.

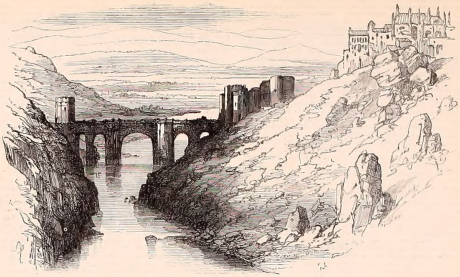
CHRIST'S COLLEGE, BRECON, SOUTH WALES.—SEE PAGE 33.

CHRIST CHURCH, DEPTFORD.

Leaves from a Sketch-book.



TOLEDO.

TOLEDO, like many other cities in Spain, is a place of such remote antiquity that nothing can be stated with certainty as to its origin. Hercules, however, is claimed as its founder; and, as this hero is said to have passed beyond the Strait of Gibraltar—called from him the "Pillars of Hercules"—and to have slain, at Cadiz, the three-bodied and three-headed monster, Geryon, this claim is at least as probable as the exploit attributed to him. There is nothing like going far enough back for the pedigree of cities or people, even though we should at length arrive at the last term of the series in the pair who "delved and span" when no one was a gentleman. Indeed, one whose ancestor is on the "Roll of Battle Abbey," or, with Christopher Sly, "came in with Richard Conqueror," is the merest nouveau homo and parvenu in comparison with the fabulous antiquity which tinges the sangre azul of the highborn Spaniard. The blue ichor that courses through the veins and streaks the delicate organism of the Hidalgo is as the mould that marbles the genuine Stilton—a proof at once of age and quality, and, the profane might add, of decay. Still, without accepting all the pretensions of the old Spanish writers, who assert that Spain was first colonized by Tubal, the grandson of Noah, and that it was subsequently governed for twelve years by King Nebuchadnezzar after his conquest of Jerusalem, it is certain that the fertility of its soil, the beauty of its climate, and its mines of gold and silver, very early attracted to it the enterprise of the various tribes that fringed the shores of the Mediterranean. Some one of these founded Toledo, which is several times mentioned by LIVY under the name of Toletum, and was taken and retaken by Carthaginians and Romans during the second Punic War, in the third century before the Christian era. He calls it "urbs parva, sed loco munita," but, though small in extent, its strong situation made its possession a matter of considerable importance for "strategic reasons." It occupies one of those spots which seem to have offered a

A STREET IN TOLEDO.

THE TAGUS, AND THE CONVENT OF ST. JUAN DE LOS REYES.

BRIDGE OVER THE TAGUS.

THE PUERTA DEL SOL.

THE SWORD MANUFACTORY.

natural asylum for the defence of man as soon as he had begun to awaken to the material advantages arising from the desertion of the wigwam and the cave for the walled and moated town. Toledo is situated about forty miles to the south-west of Madrid, in the very centre of Spain, so that, like the Grecian Delphi, it acquired the appellation of "umbilicus terræ." Seen from a distance, it rises like a cone above the surrounding country, and has a most striking appearance. The Tagus, winding between two granite rocks, here assumes the form of a horseshoe, or Moorish arch, and surrounds, on all sides but the north, the steep and craggy eminence on which Toledo is built. Towards the land side the double wall and formidable towers of the city aided its natural defences, and rendered it almost impregnable against the imperfections of siege artillery. There are those who claim for it a Hebrew origin, and tell us that it was founded by a son of Japhet, who came into Spain after the Babylonish captivity, and called this city Toledoth, or generations, because they had been driven into so many nations, genealogies, and so to trim and prune their family trees. This derivation, being anything but probable, we may be content with still more improbable by the fact that the Jews are not a building people. They are a people to carry out and not to leave any trace behind, nor are they inclined to invest the fruits of their thrift in that which soon fades, crumbles, liberates, or upholders right and left, and so leaves, or blow up for the good of mankind. However this may be, on the decline of the Roman power it fell into the hands of the Visigoths, who, under their King Leovigildo, made it the Gothic capital the capital of their vast empire. The episode of violence and treachery which, in 711, sent Roderic, the last of the Visigoths, his throne and his life, is considered by Gibbon to be one of good authority, and the Arabian historians have adopted it as a sufficiently romantic subject for poetry. The main incidents, however, are authentic, as is insignificant enough to mention the Royal city of Toledo in the springtime of the year 711. King Roderic, the Visigoth, no barbarian, but a monarch of high culture and literary, is drowning in licentiousness his anxiety as to the approaching Saracen. His favourite, Count Julian, whose fair daughter Florinda he had basely deserted in the enemy's camp, has himself been the first to invite the dauntless Tarik to the conquest of Spain. The news is brought that Tarik has landed at the point opposite to Africa, which is still known as Gebel al Tarik, Tarik's Rock or Gibraltar. Day by day the messengers rode to the city with the tidings of the progress of the conquering Arabs. Roderic becomes half-sensible of his danger. An army is hastily prepared, and placed under the orders of Don Rodrigo, the Royal standard. The Archbishop of Toledo, soldier as well as priest, is intrusted with the sacred standard of Hercules and Pelayo, which he means to betray in the heat of the battle. The armies meet at Xeres, where a bloody contest takes place, and the Moors triumph from its grapes. Roderic, like Agag, comes forth delicately. He occupies the throne of Alaric, but the spirit of the Goth is departed. The command of the warrior race has passed away. The sons of Rome rides to the battle reclining on an ivory car drawn by two milk-white mules, and his head is adorned of pearls. The Gothic feminine form is luxuriously clad in a silken robe embroidered with gold. The trumpet sounds, and the gaudy sculptures of Rome are driven by their superior numbers, press upon the foe. But now treason begins its work. Sedition joins public strife, and the Moors, with their native cunnance cause with the Moslem. The tide of victory turns; Roderic rumours himself to a beat effort to rally his followers, is wounded and flees leadlong from the battle to find a grave in the waters of the Guadalquivir. Toledo speedily fell into the hands of the victorious Tarik, and became one of the most important cities in the new empire of the Saracens. The city remained in their possession for upwards of 300 years, till, in 1084, it was taken by Alfonso VI., King of Leon and Castile, who assumed the title of Emperor of Toledo, and made the cathedral Cut its first Christian church. Many changes occurred in the course of about four centuries, to Ferdinand and Isabella, who by the expulsion of the Moors from Granada in 1492 found their power reduced under one sway the previously-divided kingdom of Spain. Each ancient city, then, has its history, its memories, its vicissitudes, and has so often changed its masters, still bears the impress of its various conquerors. Near it one may see the ruins of Roman magnificence in the amphitheatre and aqueduct. Looking up at that old and crumbling gate, one may read an inscription that tells how the Visigoths built it, how the Arab left it and the inner wall of the city; or one may gaze upon the beautiful Puerta del Sol (see Engraving), and see the combination of Moorish fancy, and advanced civilisation were in those old Moslems, "who thus would build." Nor is Toledo behind many of Andalusia in such a monument of the boundless wealth and lavish expenditure of a past age. This is emphatically a city of the dead. Where once were was a population of 200,000, there are now not 12,000. The archbishop, formerly a prince for a king's son, and next to the see of Bologne, formerly a prince for a king's son, and next to the see of Rome the richest bishopric in the world, has now sunk to moderate dimensions; the treasury of the cathedral, which contained jewels and gifts of inestimable value, has been sold by the Jews. Indeed, Toledo, whose history is so interwoven with that of Spain, has no important event in the nineteenth century in which it has not played a prominent part, is now a mere city of the dead—the dead and the living—a monument of the lifeless symbol of decadence and ruin. The very streets, steep, narrow, and tortuous, give no idea of the place they lead to. Almost each once have swept merrily along them, but cheerlessly echo with the cry of the water-carriers as they drive their asses laden with skins up the ascent. And yet this sterility of the past possesses a charm of its own. The lover of the venerable and picturesque may here feed and revel to the full, or, if he prefer it, may find a more modern and merry city with the shadows of the things that were. At the extremities of the horseshoe-like enclosure which the Tagus forms for Toledo, there are two bridges, the one that of Alcantara, the other that of San Martin. It was on one of these bridges that Cervantes laid the scene of the plight of all egos and the glory of his own, only a few days before his death. Cervantes had his apprenticeship and his early servitude with the Moors as Socrates in the Athenian dungeon. Even then, though suffering from the most terrible malady, he had the courage to begin to be writing some humorous description of an eccentric student who was mounted on a sorry donkey and had just accosted him as "the dashing of Mancha!" He was at the time in the daily pursuit of his pulse he fiends that his life will have finished its course by the "Theodore Rock." Here he says, "I am going to die, and I hope to meet you again in the other world as happy as heart can wish." Then, as if to console himself, he says, "I may pass up from the Bridge of Alcantara into the city, and face southwest with Gil Blas and his companions. Here the archbishop's palace, whom, alas! of its former luxury, but still adequate to the wants of a bachelor ecclesiastic. The gate of the city of Bisagra, and so it has drawn an amusing picture of the hybrid Scipio snuffing at his fragrant steam which issued from the kitchen, and declaring in a little that remarks he was paying into practice a trick which was plagiarised in later days by "Mr. Terry, the player, and his friend Theodore Rock." Here, too, he has placed the scene of the Archbishop's private theatricals to surreptitiously nave the dukes and rulers of which he had been a spectator in the days of his youth. Here, too, at a little distance into the savoury odour of a ragout, which Gil Blas, the son of Antonia Mendez, and his companions are feasting in the gate, and one cat the less yawled that night from the homestep, and one rabbit the more nestled safely in the warren. Alcantara is a bridge, but still exist. Spanish Passives, no nearer extinction than when they were fort created. Here and there, in the narrow streets of Toledo, the eye will be directed to the by the remains of the Moorish style, in the grisana, or gipsy-woman, plying her vocation with the same marked individuality, the same features, and the same bravery in though she had made a wishing carpet of her red cloak, and had only just left Epsom Downs or Norwood-common. Strange people both Jews and Gipsies—each a people which has no continuing city, but is ever seeking, will, hope long delivered, one yet to come!

It is time to turn our gaze from the still living memorials of the past to the more than regal monuments of this once renowned city. Passing rapidly by the Alcazar, or Royal Palace, whose remains still look majestically down upon the Tagus and tell an imposing tale of the departed splendour of Toledo, let us make our way to the centre of the city, where its world-renowned cathedral stands. This noble pile, which, if Spain had no other attraction, would of itself draw hither the feet of the artist and the antiquary, bears evidence of having been built on the ruins of a temple. It is the work of the most ancient cathedral in the world, as it is said to have been founded by St. James the Apostle, the patron saint of Spain, who, if he did not give the metropolitan church of Toledo a local habitation, yet a name. Santiago has given a name to the numerous cities in the New World which owe their origin to the enterprise of the Spaniards. The cathedral, which was finished in the fifteenth century, is a work of great magnificence, and the whole of the Gothic beauties, or rather its terrific details of cruel superstition, is still fresh in our recollection. The cathedral, as it now is, certainly cannot trace back any portion of it to the time of the Arabs, nor even to the days of Ferdinand I. It was rebuilt in the thirteenth century by Ferdinand III. of Castile, and Alfonso X., surnamed the Wise, and the Moorish mosque which had stood upon the same spot, which was plundered by the Saracens in the year 1085, and converted into a mosque. Spain continued into a Christian temple by Alfonso VI., in 1084, when Toledo was made an archbishopric, and the cathedral consecrated to the Virgin Mary. However, looking upon it as a desecration that Christian worship should be performed in the place of the false prophet, and so built the first church down and the present fabric erected in its stead. Its dimensions are magnificent, and worthy of the great position it has played in the history of Spain. It is 404 ft. in length by 204 ft. in breadth, and contains five naves, supported by eighty-four stately columns, and a number of smaller ones, which form the aisles and the groups of chapels. In addition to the height of 325 ft., and is terminated by a spire which is encircled by seven crowns, each of 12 ft. in diameter. The interior presents, in the extreme, for although it suffered greatly from the French invasion, the spoliation which then took place was not nearly so great always bring in their train could not obliterate the surpassing richness of its decorations, the splendour of its ornaments, and all that time obscures offerings upon its shrine. Dark days have fallen upon Spain; but the Catholic religion, light as it may have fallen on the windows and flecks with rainbow hues the marble pavement and sculptured canopies of the gorgeous choir. But these are things rather for the hands and feet than for the eye. But the general effect is also of a description. It has been reserved, almost as a specialty, for modern Spain to produce the most magnificent of all the arts, the stained, the hazy light, the incandescence shade, and the primatic hues of the sculptured windows. Of these Cervantes says, in the "Don Quixote," that "the house not made with hands." An Engraving from Mr. S. Read's sketch, and a description of the cathedral, appeared in the Exhibition of the Old Water-Colour Society, appeared in our Journal for the year 1859, and to which we refer the reader. The portion which the central nave is divided are two bronze or gilt pulpits of the most exquisite workmanship, based upon columns of jasper, and said to be worth 1,000 ducats each. The choir is one of the finest that escaped "instauration" to Paris in 1808, with the pictures and other ornaments of the church, which were carried off by the spoil of the downfall of Napoleon. These, however, are only too among the treasures of the cathedral. The Sacristy contains a magnificent collection of the letters, with its admirable carvings; the candelabra, the real marble, ornamented with gilt bronze, and the sculptured marble panels, of the very earliest antiquity—was reintroduced, in the sixteenth century, by Cardinal Ximenes, the founder of the University of Alcala, connection to the Romish See. Several of the prayers in our English Prayer-book are taken from its ritual. The splendid gates, the cloisters, the chapter-house, the library, and the sacristy are all of the highest rank, combined with the other attractions of the cathedral, require as much as its time, so as to make a week too short for one to see it as it deserves. But with this we must quit the cathedral. And as we turn our backs upon this noble pile, and look for the last time on the Tagus, that still we so change and how to nothing new under the sun, rolls its waters as it has done for centuries, and will do for ages within a tomb. Its very bell,—next to that of Moscow the largest in the world—has tolled its last over the dead city, and, cracked and toneless, with

Its big, manly voice
Turning again toward childish treble, pipes
And whimpers in its sounds.

We will pass out, as we entered, by the Puerta del Sol, and make our way to the shed opposite the Fonda de Lino, and thence to the city on a plan (as the Engraving shows) by the right bank of the Tagus. The memory of man runneth not to the century but that the Toledo sword-blades have enjoyed a high and well-deserved humanity, finding the fat too soft and the club not hard enough, and therefore the sword is the weapon of the true gentleman of "decreasing the surplus population. So the sword did duty, before the Christian era, as well as during the days of the spotless beauchos. First the nude Chalybes, then the Romans, and next the Goths, carried on their several conquests by the sword, and when the Arabs introduced the mode of tempering which made the Damascus blades famous, they were soon introduced into Toledo, and still give edge to the Indian tolwar. Borrow tells us that he once visited the factory here and was invited to try a rapier of Toledo steel against one of Damascus. The experiment did not thrust well all his might, expecting that the blade would sliver into a thousand fragments, but it bent double, and then sprung straight again, to the delight of the proprietor, who was a Christian, and not disgusted by the violence of the concussion and that the point was uninjured. Thus, however Toledo may have degenerated from the days when the proud Archbishops and Royal occupants of its Alcazar, the Spanish blades, of which Shakspeare speaks, were still famous in the days of the ancient's tempest," though Romeo, in those days of love and peasy which have no bones in them, "more apt to use his tongue than his sword." And perchance the Spanish youth who bids us a courteous adieu, as we finally leave our posada, thinks of the days of the Peninsular War, and glances upon him from beneath the mantilla of the senorita by his side.

Letters state that the cultivation of cotton in Sicily this year will be very extensive, the soil being particularly well suited to it.

The exhibition of the Royal Academy, and of other objects connected with fisheries will be held at Bergen, in Norway, from the 15th of August to the 16th of September next.

An almanack in the Polish language has hitherto been published annually in Prussian Silesia under the title of "Gorzel Mouswiell has now prohibited this publication, and replaced it by one in German.

The International Commission at Constantinople for the settlement of the Danubian question has had a number of meetings for two months, on the proposal of M. Negri, the diplomatic agent for the Principality of Roumania, who is charged with the duty of drawing up the conference of the protocols of the Greek monks.

The Russian Government has recently taken under disadvantages from the short notice given them and the difficulty of obtaining legislative grants at so late a period, that the Government of India is represented by small but interesting collections of products and manufactures at Dublin in May next. The Government of Bombay will have collections of raw wools, wines, fibres, silk, woods, oils, cotton, grain, arrowroot, minerals, and objects of natural history, and even some specimens of fine art, such as photographs and pictures. India will show a magnificent collection of raw products and manufactures. Captain Fenwick, Captain Wallace, Mr. John Marshall, Colonel Colvin sends carved wood tables; a fine collection of fibres and rapes, grain, oils, grain, and pharmaceutical products. Malta will show its carved stone-work, silver filigree, and the fine lace for which she has so long been famous. Ceylon will send a large collection of its products, and Australia is making some preparation to be represented. Several of the West Indian Islands send furniture, cotton, and other fibres; objects of natural history, starches, pimento, coffee, and walking-sticks, which have recently risen into a large and profitable trade; besides samples of those staple products which are the mainstay of their industry. Lagos, Sierra Leone, and other West African colonies will make a fine display of native fruits and basket-work, country cloths, native curiosities, carved calabashes, and articles of produce. Most of the African merchants and companies have promised their aid in contributions. Other colonies contribute produce and miscellaneous objects of various kinds.

BIRTHS.

On the 21st ult., at Berrycombe, Bolhaim, the wife of Captain Alure, Royal Artillery, of a daughter.

On the 28th ult., at Ashtead, Surrey, the wife of the Hon. and Rev. O. Hastings, of a daughter.

At Chatticbrot Lodge, Dorchester, Lady Poltimore, of a son, still-born.

At Belgrave-square, the Hon. Mrs. A. Ellis, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 10th inst., at Christ Church, St. Marylebone, by the Rev. William Cosham, the Rector, Mor; Ann S. Clark, eldest daughter of Samuel B. Clark, of New Cavendish-street, Portland-place, to Edward Rennie, only son of R. R. Bullman, Esq., of Montpelier-square, Brompton, S.W.

On the 11th inst., at All Saints' Church, Stoke Newington, by the Rev. E. Claughton, M.A., Vicar of Kidderminster and Hon. Canon of Worcester Cathedral, assisted by the Rev. C. F. Bennett, M.A., Rural Dean and Vicar of Warfield, Joseph Doyle Smithe, Esq., F.G.S., &c., H.M. Indian Service, eldest son of the Rev. Joseph Parsons, Gloucester, to Beatrice Rose, only daughter of the Rev. R. A. Wellesley Cosmithe, M.A. Incumbent of Alverley, and grandson of the late Sir Thomas Cosmithe, of Dublin, and Lady Cosmithe, of Mount Cosmithe, Queen's County.

On Tuesday, the 10th inst., at St. John's Church, Torquay, by the Right Rev. the Bishop of Montreal, assisted by the Rev. W. G. Parks-Smith, Crawford Logan, Esq., of Watten, Liverpool, to Wilmot, daughter of the late Rev. R. Wilmot, Rector of Sandiacre, Derby.

On the 10th inst., at Woodcote Church, Oxfordshire, by the Rev. Edward Bouverie Hall, M.A., Rector of Maplederwell, and Fellow of Balliol College, and by the Rev. R. Leslie Morris, M.A., of Poole, Dorsetshire, Richard Loveland Loveland, second son of the late Rev. Loveland Loveland, Rector of Tiffield, Brackley, and Guadalupe, Bandon, Isle of Wight, Esq., J.P. for the county of Cork, to Mary Anne, eldest daughter of the late Rev. Richard Morris, Rector of Woodcote, and Vicar of Nuneham Courtney, Oxfordshire.

At Bodmin, Cornwall, on the 27th ult., Lieutenant Goodin, to the Hon. Ella Colbeck, daughter of Lord and Lady Colbeck, and granddaughter of Lord Erthalenlago.

On the 28th ult., at St. George's Cathedral, Madras, by the Ven. Archdeacon Trotter, Henry George Prichard, Esq., solicitor, son of Henry Prichard, Esq., of Guy's Cliffe, Warwick, to Frances Emily, only child of Captain Hamilton, late Royal Artillery, and granddaughter of Charles Murray Duff, Esq., M.D., Surgeon-Major Madras Army.

On the 29th ult., at Christchurch, Lower Tooting, Surrey, by the Rev. Dr. Irving, assisted by the Rev. David Walker, brother of the bride, Captain Alexander Hamilton, of Madras Artillery, to Mary, only daughter of the late David Walker, Esq., Glasgow.

On the 3rd inst., at his residence, Aylmerd, Lockhampton, near Cheltenham, Thomas Gilbert, Esq., of Lanhydrock, Cornwall.

On the 10th ult., at Tarragona, Spain, Mary Jane, third daughter of Cowen Lambarth, Esq., engineer of the North Kent Railway, aged 28.

At Dublin, Lady Griffith, wife of Sir R. Griffith, Bart., in her 80th year.

On Tuesday, the 10th inst., at Dalkeith, near Edinburgh, Jane Dundas, the Earl of Dalkeith, aged 63.

On the 11th inst., at Bath, safe surviving sister of the first Lord de Saumarez, in her 94th year.

At Ballyellis, Rinnalea, G. W. W. Wynn, son of the late Right Hon. Sir C. W. W. Wynn, Bart.

On Nov. 28, at Thorwood, London, Upper Canada, Sarah Brannon, wife of H. C. de Blaquiere, Esq., aged 58.

On the 10th inst., at Heywood, Queen's County, Ireland, Helen Maude, second daughter of the late Rev. Thomas Esq., aged two years.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 21.

Day.	Day of Month.	Day of Year.	Sun Rises.	Sun Sets.	Moon's Age.	Moon Rises.	Moon Sets.	Moon's Southing.
Sunday	15	349	8h 0m	4h 0m	26	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m
Monday	16	350	8h 0m	4h 0m	27	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m
Tuesday	17	351	8h 0m	4h 0m	28	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m
Wednesday	18	352	8h 0m	4h 0m	29	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m
Thursday	19	353	8h 0m	4h 0m	30	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m
Friday	20	354	8h 0m	4h 0m	31	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m
Saturday	21	355	8h 0m	4h 0m	32	10h 0m	10h 0m	0h 0m

On Sunday, 15.—Second Sunday after Epiphany. The Right Honourable Lord Brougham and Vaux, born 1779. Created by King George IV., 1830. The new crossing-room there opened, 1859.

Monday, 16.—Accession of Queen Anne and of Sir John Moore at Corunna, 1809.

Tuesday, 17.—St. Anthony, the patriarch of monks, 356. John Ray, the naturalist, died, 1705.

Wednesday, 18.—Prince, Roman virgin and martyr, about 87. British Museum opened to the public, 1759. Battle of Aztan occurred, 1876.

Thursday, 19.—Cuidad Rodrigo, taken by storm by Wellington, 1812. Battle of Maida, between the British and the French under Compère, 1806.

Friday, 20.—Fabian, bishop and martyr, 253. The Independence of the United States acknowledged by Great Britain, 1783. Moon's last quarter, 7h. 30m. a.m.

Saturday, 21.—St. Agnes, Roman virgin and martyr, 306. Wreck of the Taylors emigrant-ship off Langley Island, near Howth, about 380 lives lost, 1864.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 14, 1865.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m	h m h m
0 0 12 30	1 0 1 30	2 0 2 30	3 0 3 30	4 0 4 30	5 0 5 30	6 0 6 30

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH MUSEUM.
Lat. 51° 31′ N. Long. 0° 7′ 30″ W. Height above Sea level, 75 feet.

DAY.	BULB BEADS OF THERMOMETER.							THERMOMETER.			WIND.		RAIN in 24 hours.
	Highest Reading.	Lowest Reading.	Mean Reading.	Mean Dew Point.	Mean Elastic Force of Vapour.	Mean Weight of Vapour in a Cubic Foot of Air.	Mean Degree of Humidity.	Highest Reading.	Lowest Reading.	Mean Reading.	General Direction.	Number of Hours.
	°	°	°	°	in.	gr.		°	°	°			in.
Sunday	46·0	39·0	42·5	39·2	0·259	4·0·3	0·92	46·0	39·0	42·5	S.W.	24	0·10
9	39·7	34·0	36·8	33·2	0·227	3·6·2	0·91	39·7	34·0	36·8	W.S.W.	24	0·00
10	40·0	34·0	37·0	33·2	0·227	3·6·2	0·91	40·0	34·0	37·0	W.S.W.	24	0·00
11	42·0	37·0	39·5	37·2	0·249	3·9·2	0·94	42·0	37·0	39·5	S.W.	24	0·00
12	44·0	39·0	41·5	39·2	0·259	4·0·3	0·92	44·0	39·0	41·5	S.W.	24	0·00
13	45·0	40·0	42·5	40·2	0·269	4·1·3	0·92	45·0	40·0	42·5	S.W.	24	0·00
14	47·2	37·1	42·1	39·2	0·259	4·0·3	0·92	47·2	37·1	42·1	S.W.	24	0·10
15	47·0	47·0	47·0	45·0	0·307	4·7·3	0·93	47·0	47·0	47·0	S.W.	24	0·00

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the week ending January 14, 1865:

Barometer (in inches) reduced to the Sea-level	29·835	29·974	30·071	30·247	30·168	29·970	29·770
Temperature of Evaporation	42·0°	42·0°	42·0°	42·0°	42·0°	42·0°	42·0°
Direction of Wind	S.W.	S.W.	W.	W.S.W.	S.W.	S.W.	S.W.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published with the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1863, it has been re-engraved, and will be

REPUBLISHED EARLY IN FEBRUARY NEXT. PRICE 6d.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given during this month.

Office, 198, Strand.

The Titlepage and Index to Engravings of Volume XLV. of the Illustrated London News—from July to December, 1864—will be given with next week's Number, which will consist of Two Whole Sheets.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1865.

"From Erith to Wilmington." The quiet little village, on the right bank of the Thames, with its interesting old church and sandhill thereon, its yacht proclivities, and its water-side population, who seem to get their living by leaning, in a long row, against the wooden rails and shouting one another in some dialect of Kent, was awfully astonished on the morning when the powder blew up, by nobody's fault, and in a second converted a scene of orderly industry into a hideous ruin. But it must be almost as much astounded to learn that the story of that explosion, having found its way across the Atlantic, see the Federal Admiral Porter upon a scheme for reducing a strong Confederate fortress. Such, it appears, was the case; and the ruin wrought by that Erith catastrophe would, it was hoped, be paralleled at Fort Fisher. Every clever precaution was taken to ensure success. A tremendous quantity of powder was stowed on board a ship, and the most ingenious system of clockwork was devised to fire the train at the right moment. A grand expedition sailed against Wilmington, bearing this floating mine with it, and in due course, and under favourable circumstances, the powder-vessel was moored at the spot which had been judged the best. Brave men fixed her at her moorings, set the terrible clocks going, and escaped. The expedition watched with bated breath for the eruption of the volcano. The clocks were faithful,

> The nitre fired, and, while the dreadful sound
> Responsive shook the yielding air around, the assailants' hearts beat high; and, as the smoke cleared, the Federals hoped to see a ruin where Fort Fisher had been. The shock was nothing like so severe as was expected," writes the frank sailor: "it shook the vessel some, broke one or two glasses, but nothing more." Wilmington is luckier than Erith.

However, Admiral Porter, with a fine courage that not the man to be satisfied with one failure. The experiment had been fruitless: but he had his guns, and plenty of them, and he brought up his ironclads, and commenced a fierce bombardment, which he describes, in the language of that poet of the Sebastopol, as a fen d'enfer. It silenced several of the fort batteries, blew up two magazines, and set the place on fire. But there was delay in bringing on the troops for the assault; and when it was effected the magazines would not explode, and not succeed. When 3000 men had landed, the Admiral was informed that they were re-embarking. Some brave feats were performed, and General Butler did not land in the worst of storms. The Admiral was clearly disgusted. He uses the ordinary civil language towards a brother officer, and is certain that the latter had good reasons for his conduct, but the gallant Porter thinks that it "would have been worth while to make one more attempt after coming so far." But then he is only a smart sailor, while Butler, who has been an attorney, may have known better when to leave his nolle prosequi. Finally, the attack was given up, the expedition returned to head-quarters, and Wilmington is safe and defiant

This is an item which the Confederates are proud to set against the series of Federal successes that marked the close of the year. They have fairly beaten back the fleet of the most formidable squadrons ever sent against a fortress, and have been able to laugh at the failure of a new and terrific-seeming engine of war. They gain nothing, it is true; while Atlanta has been destroyed, and Savannah has been captured; but they have saved a far more important port than either, and may reasonably be exultant.

As regards the state of the war generally, the opening of 1865, we think, is as good a season to look at as stating that it impossible for people here to form a decided opinion, inasmuch as it is clear that neither North nor South has an exact knowledge of the case. Sherman's brilliant retreat, or march, has puzzled us. The American papers are very much puzzled also. No one in the Federal district would speak confidently of the probable success of Sherman; but those who did attempt to demonstrate that he must win all wrong. They thought that he was to pass through a poor and exhausted country, and that the responsibility for the hardships he was to undergo that the most compassionate articles were written upon the state of his army, and a painful contrast was drawn between the hungry Christmas fare of his troops and the ample comforts provided for the grand army of the Potomac. The truth turned out to be that Sherman's men were marching through a rich agricultural region, had the best food, ever wanted a meal, and arrived at Savannah in the highest health and strength. The Northern writers now admit that folk generally did not know the resources of Georgia. The truth is that the masses in America, with all their real sharpness and with their love of news-papers, are very ignorant about most things; and smart as is their talk, its chief cleverness is that it covers a singular absence of exact knowledge. But, on the other hand, the Confederates seem to have been equally surprised at the fact that Sherman could or could not do. His able feints at Macon and Augusta no doubt bewildered them; but they must have known, one might suppose, whether he could be encountered at all. Hence arose the most opposite statements on the subject proceeded from the Richmond papers. They know now that he marched all the way in triumph, his main body scarcely hearing a cannon, his detachments burning and laying waste, his whole force feeding on the fat of the land, and the negroes crowding to his ranks, and having to be sent away sometimes by force. But until the event had occurred neither South nor North could speak secure for its anticipations; it hardly is to be expected that English readers, even with the beautiful maps published under Federal authority, should know more; although we have some idea that our military men, with those clauses before them, are not at sender judgments than many folk in America, and that some of our journalists give far more complete and truthful details than we find in the Northern or the Southern press. But, so far as we can understand the decision, we must say that the enormous resources of the North are now telling distressingly upon its antagonist, and that the admitted want of men in the South, evidenced, too, by the renewed proposal to arm the negroes, seems to point towards a crisis. The splendid valour which the Confederates have displayed is unabated, and must not only command respect in Europe, but in the North, and, with a generous enemy, will certainly improve the terms on which the two parties will soon, we trust, confer. On our Foreign Secretary has said that, though we are strictly neutral, the subjugation of the South would be an injury to the cause of humanity, and we trust that both the word and the idea will be alike discarded. The moment it is not important for the discussion of an honourable peace, which must be obtained by mutual concessions; and it could be wished that some Nestor could step in between the Transatlantic Ajax and Ulysses, and say, > Forbear, my son, your further might to prove.

THE COURT.

The Queen, with the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Osborne House, in good health.

On Wednesday (to-day) her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by the Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe and Colonel Phipps, will drive out. Thursday being a drive, Earl De Grey and Ripon arrived at Osborne, and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne. Princess Louisa rode out.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Prince Arthur and Prince Leopold, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne. Princess Louisa took a drive. The Duke of Lexington arrived at Osborne on a visit to the Queen. Admiral Sir Michael Seymour, Commander-in-Chief at Portsmouth, also arrived at Osborne, and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Saturday last the Queen held a Council, at Osborne, which was attended by Earl De Grey and Ripon, the Right Hon. T. Milner Gibson, and the Right Hon. Sir Benjamin Hall, First Commissioner of the Council, was in attendance. At the Council it was ordered that Parliament should be further prorogued from the 15th inst. to Thursday, the 7th of February next, when it is to assemble and be holden for the dispatch of divers urgent and important affairs.' Later in the day the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne. Princess Helena, attended by Lady Churchill, took a drive. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, walked, rode, and drove, on pony-chaise. The Right Royal Highness proceeded in her Majesty's yacht Elfin to Southampton, and thence by the Right Hon. Mr. Arthur Peel's yacht of the Turkish frigate Pakki Mourel played the National Anthem, and the English colours were dipped in compliment to her Highness. His Royal Highness continued his journey from Southampton by the South-Western Railway. Sir James Clark returned in the Elfin to Osborne, on a visit to Her Majesty.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service in the Private Chapel at Osborne by the Rev. G. Prothero.

On Monday the Queen walked and drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by the Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe, Princess Helena, attended by the Hon. Emma Lascelles, rode out. Princess Louisa, attended by Mrs. Bruce, walked and drove. Prince Leopold, Duke de Nemours and Princess Margaret and Princess Blanche d'Orleans arrived at Osborne on a visit to the Queen. Their Royal Highnesses proceeded from Southampton to Osborne in her Majesty's yacht Alberta.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Prince Leopold, drove out. Princess Helena, accompanied by Princess Margaret d'Orleans, took a drive. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, walked and drove out. The Duke de Nemours left Osborne.

Lady Churchill, attended by the Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe as Lady in Waiting to her Majesty. The Hon. Emma Lascelles has succeeded the Hon. Lucy Kerr as Maid of Honour in Waiting to the Queen.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

On Thursday week the Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Earl of Leicester and a large party of friends, arrived at Holkham Hall, passed the day shooting in Hibbard's Belt and the Common Beats (Coke's), and rode over Newmarket Heath. Pheasants were two thousand head of game. The Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Countess of Leicester and Lady Mary Coke, arrived at Holkham Hall, where the Prince and his companions were enjoying their sport. In the afternoon her Royal Highness and the Earl and Countess of Leicester at the hall in honour of the Prince and Princess, at which between three and four hundred persons sat down to dinner. Many of the county were present. We give an illustration of the hall, accompanied by some interesting particulars, in the supplement at page 61.

Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by the Earl of Leicester, passed a few hours duck-shooting on the lake at Holkham, and had capital sport. The Prince of Wales and his party took leave of the Earl and Countess and warmly expressed the pleasure the visit had afforded them. The Prince's carriage and four horses proceeded on their homeward journey in a phaeton and pair, the Prince driving. Their Royal Highnesses, the Duke of Manchester, Cumnathon and Captain Grey, in attendance upon their Royal Highnesses, rode on horses a second carriage. A number of persons had assembled near the park to witness the departure of the Prince and Princess. Holkham. The Royal Highnesses arrived at Sandringham at six o'clock.

The Prince and the Princess and Princess dove out. Rear-Admiral Sir Henry Keppel arrived at Sandringham House on a visit to their Royal Highnesses.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess attended Divine service in Sandringham Church. This was the first anniversary of the birthday of Prince Albert Victor. The Rev. Mr. Hervey preached a sermon in the forenoon.

On Monday the Duke of Cambridge arrived at Sandringham House on a visit to the Prince and Princess.

The Prince of Wales left Sandringham to proceed to Merton Hall, near Thetford, yesterday, on a visit to Lord and Lady Walsingham.

The Prince and Princess and Princess Albert Victor, proceeded to take their departure from Sandringham House at the end of next week.

It is stated that the Prince is likely to become the purchaser of the Rushton estate, near Kettering. The estate possesses an excellent mansion, and has advantageous shooting and hunting facilities.

PRINCE ALFRED.

His Royal Highness Prince Alfred has been on a visit to the Crown Prince and Princess of Prussia at Berlin.

On Wednesday week a grand dinner-party was given at the Crown Prince's palace in honour of Prince Alfred's birthday.

On Thursday week his Royal Highness was present at a musical soirée given at the King's palace.

Yesterday week the Prince, accompanied by Prince Albrecht and his son and various members of the Prussian Corps Diplomatique, proceeded to Wetzlar, where a grand entertainment was abundant sport on the island of that place.

The Royal visitor returned to Bonn. His Royal Highness was accompanied to the railway station by the Crown Prince of Prussia.

Her Royal Highness the Princess Mary of Cambridge is expected to arrive at the Royal residence in the Ambassadors' Court, St. James's, next week, from visiting her sister, the Grand Duchess of Mecklenburg-Strelitz, in Germany.

His Excellency the French Ambassador entertained at dinner on Saturday last, at the French Embassy, Albert-gate, his Royal Highness the Duke of Cambridge and various members of the Corps Diplomatique.

The Duke of Somerset arrived at his official residence at the Admiralty on Saturday last, from Stoer Park, his Grace's seat in Devon. The Duchess and Lady Gwendoline St. Maur arrived at the Admiralty, on Wednesday, from Stoer Park.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester have arrived at Kimbolton Castle from Paris.

The Duchess (Dowager) of Cleveland has arrived in St. James's-square from Dorndean Hall.

The Earl of Dunmore arrived in town on Wednesday from his seat in Scotland.

Viscountess Jocelyn and the Hon. Miss Jocelyn have arrived at Stoer Park from Brocklesbank, on a visit to Lord and Lady Egerton.

The Right Hon. Sir George Grey, M.P., and Lady Grey arrived in town on Tuesday from visiting Viscount Ebrington at his Lordship's seat in Hants.

The Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer left town yesterday week for Hatfield House, Herts.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage between Viscount Baillie, eldest son of the Countess of Arran, and the Hon. Edith Jocelyn, second daughter of Viscountess Jocelyn, will take place next month.

A marriage is arranged between Lord Rosehill, of the Scots Fusilier Guards, and Miss Elliot, youngest daughter of Admiral George Elliot, Admiral-Superintendent at Portsmouth.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

Her Majesty has ordered that the Convocations of the provinces of Canterbury and York be prorogued to the 8th of February next.

On Tuesday week the Rev. Dr. Hamilton was consecrated in the new manner which has been added to St. Mary's Church, Longhurst, near Dover.

Hopton parish church, midway between Great Yarmouth and Lowestoft, was re-opened for Divine service on Sunday week.

The congregation of St. Mary's Church, Whitechapel, have presented testimonials to the Rev. Rev. J. Cobb, and to Mrs. Cobb.

Viscountess Downe, in compliance with the intentions of her deceased husband, has built a large iron church at Castleton, Yorkshire, which was opened on Sunday last.

The Duke of Argyll, who was recently elected President of the Associated Societies of the University of Edinburgh, has formally declined to accept that office.

A stained picture, by Cross, representing the murder of Archbishop Becket, has been placed by the Dean and Chapter in the north aisle-side of Canterbury Cathedral.

The Rev. F. Heppenstall has been appointed Head Master of the Grey School, Cambridge; and the Rev. W. H. Maddock, Fellow of St. John's College, Assistant Master. Both are Masters of Hitchen Grammar-School.

On Christmas Day St. Paul's Church, Heathall, was reopened after undergoing extensive repairs. The edifice was built in 1800, and was increased to 650, of which half are free, the best seats in the church being set apart for the working classes.

The archdeaconry of Westminster, which became vacant a few months ago by the death of Archdeacon William Bennett, D.D., has been conferred upon the Rev. Christopher Wordsworth, D.D., one of the Canons Residentiary of Westminster.

Holywell Church, Caerby, Lincolnshire, has been restored under the superintendence of the architect, the Rev. J. R. Boucher, at a cost of the restoration, which will be about £600, is defrayed by Mr. C. C. B. Cracroft-Amcotts. The church was re-opened on Sunday week.

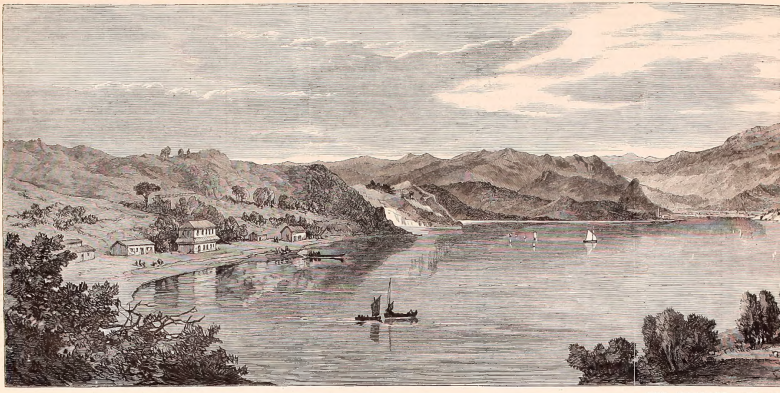
The new national schools in connection with St. Clement's Church, Sheppey-street, Liverpool, were opened on Tuesday by the Bishop of Chester. These schools have been enlarged at a cost of £4000, of which £750 was given by the Bishop of Chester. The land by a moderate rent-charge has not transpired. The remainder was subscribed by the congregation.

The new schools of St. John's, Weymouth, were formally opened on Wednesday, after an appropriate service in the parish church, service of the new building was last completed by the Bishop of Salisbury, and the cost, including the site, has been £2000, defrayed by Mr. Russell Sharpe. The land cost £1000.

A stained-glass memorial window has been placed in Bageley church to the memory of Assistant Viscount Curzon, of Bagley Hall, and his youngest son, Robert Edward Curzon, of Hopley, who died on the 10th of January, 1863, in his nineteenth year. The window is erected by Mr. Curzon's widow, Baroness Zouche, of Hartington.

The Queen has ratified a scheme of the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, incorporating the Lady Margaret Professorship of Divinity for abolishing certain fellowships in the said University, and for appropriating the proceeds exclusively to the endowment of the said professorship, the endowment of the School of Theology, and of a proposed School of Physical Science in the University of Oxford, and for the augmentation of the stipends of certain other professorships and of canonries of the said commissioners.

A consecration of a new cemetery, chiefly of the London diocese, met at the Bishop Wilson's Memorial Hall, Islington, on Tuesday, when the Bishop of Rochester, Dr. Tait, presided, and a number of clergy attended. Addresses were delivered on various subjects. The chairman spoke of the necessity of the Church of England suffering her offices to be used in cemeteries; the Rev. C. D. Bayliss made an address in reference to the cost of burials in consecrated ground. Other addresses were delivered by the Rev. Edward Bickersteth, the Rev. Dr. Hessey, the Rev. Dr. Jenkyns, and the Rev. Mr. Burgess, of Cadoxa.



The Bishop of London has appointed the following days and places for his annual series of diocesan confirmations:—Jan. 27, the Royal British Asylum, Upper Norwood; Feb. 1, Christ Church, Surrey; Feb. 2, Lambeth; Feb. 3, Fulham; March 5, Holy Trinity Church, Paddington; March 8, St. Peter's Church, Westbourne-terrace; March 9, St. Mary's Church, Bayswater; March 10, St. Pancras Church; March 17, St. John's Church, Hampstead; March 20, St. Luke's Church, Berwick-street; March 24, St. Dunstan's Church, Stepney; March 29, Harrow School and Church; April 1, Hackney; April 2, Stoke Newington; April 3, Christ Church, Spitalfields; April 5, St. Anne's Church, Limehouse; April 6, St. Matthew's Church, Bethnal-green; April 7, St. Barnabas' Church, Pimlico; April 9, Trinity Church, Somers Town; April 10, St. Mary's Church, Stoke Newington; April 11, St. Matthias' Church, Poplar; April 12, Charlton and Woolwich; April 13, Kensington Parish Church; May 10, Islington Parish Church; May 12, Islington Church, Upper-street; May 15, Holy Trinity, Westminster; May 16, St. Peter's Church, Pimlico; May 24, Hammersmith Parish Church; May 26, St. Paul's Church, Knightsbridge; May 31, All Saints' Church, Margaret-street Church, Brompton; June 14, Fulham Parish Church; June 16, St. George's Church, Hanover-square; June 20, Chelsea Parish Church; June 21, Kensington Hospitted Parish Church; June 23, St. James's Church, Paddington; June 28, Willesden Church; June 29, Acton; July 3, Ealing; July 5, Hanwell; July 6, Cowley Town; July 7, Christ Church, St. Marylebone; July 8, St. Peter's Church, Eaton-square; July 10, St. Mary's Church, Bryanston-square; July 11, Highgate; July 12, Hornsey; July 13, Whittington College Chapel; July 28, St. Mary's Church, Newington-butts; Aug. 2, St. Matthew's Church, Bethnal-green.

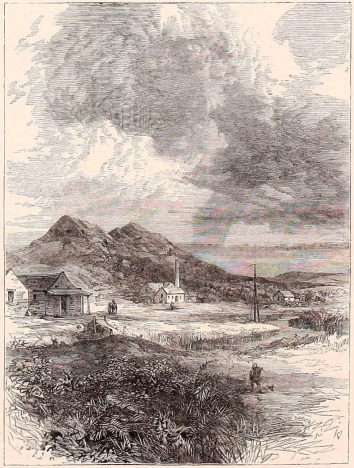
PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. J. Cooper, Vicar of Ewelme, to be Archdeacon of Westmoreland; Rev. F. Pretyman, Rector of Orton-cum-Tebay, to be Vicar of Ewelme; Rev. J. Pretyman, Rector of Sandringham, to be Rector of Orton-cum-Tebay, Vicar of Lambeth, to be Rural Dean; Rev. J. Sandford, Archdeacon of Salop, Vicar of Lambeth, to be Vicar of Sonbridge, Kent; Rev. W. M. Heald, Vicar of Bristol, to be Honorary Canon of Worcester Cathedral; Rev. T. Lockwood, Incumbent of Longford Manor in Lincoln Cathedral; Rev. B. Cattley, M.A., Minor Canon and Precentor Canterbury Cathedral, Surrogate of the diocese of Canterbury; Rev. H. Hake to be Precentor of Canterbury Cathedral. Rectories: Rev. J. C. Edwards to Ingoldmells, Lincolnshire; Rev. H. D. Harington to Kensington, Leicestershire; Rev. J. W. Hedgeland to St. Stephen's, Exeter; Rev. A. B. H. G. Palmer to Barnby, Suffolk; Rev. J. Pretyman to Sandringham with Tawburgh, Norfolk; Rev. C. A. Wilkinson to South Willingham, Lincolnshire; Rev. J. Wilson to Bolton-upon-Dearne, Yorkshire; Rev. Bert. T. Byers to Leake, Lincolnshire; Rev. F. L. Harrison to South Hanham; Rev. J. Sandford to Lambeth; Rev. J. Wilson to Bolton-upon-Dearne, Yorkshire; Rev. Archdeacon Sandford to Lambeth. Appointments: Rev. F. Bennett, Rural Dean, Cambridgeshire. Incumbencies: Rev. H. C. Michelmore to Christ Church, Bethnal-green; Rev. W. Bennett to Christ Church, Barton, Cambridge; Rev. Chapelmay, Rev. D. A. Doudney, jun., M.A., Incumbent of St. James's, Poplar, Holborn; Rev. J. Hodgson to Bishop of Carlisle. Perpetual Curacies: Rev. J. C. Sansome to Cottam, Notts. Curacies: Rev. G. Armitage to St. Paul's, Preston; Rev. J. Bennett to Christ Church, Bethnal-green; Rev. J. Bell to Ecclesall, Lincolnshire; Rev. J. B. Fawcett to St. Mary, Leeds; Rev. T. B. Hardy, to Kirkdale; Rev. J. Hodgson to Bishop of Carlisle; Rev. J. Hodgson to Bishop; Rev. G. R. Knowles to Bonby, Lincolnshire; Rev. H. Lloyd to Christ Church, Bethnal-green; Rev. J. Norman to Brocklesby, Hants; Rev. C. Pease to Surrey; Rev. J. Rice to Ripponden, New Wortley, Yorkshire; Rev. R. Ruby to Minting, Lincolnshire; Rev. J. Shields to Lockwood, Yorkshire; Rev. A. L. Smith to Hammersmith, Middlesex; Rev. M. Stocks to Christ Church, Bethnal-green; Rev. H. G. Southwell to Bonby and Crowby, Lincolnshire; Rev. N. H. Sumner to Little Hulton, Yorkshire; Rev. J. B. Turner to Pyrl St. Mary, Lincolnshire; Rev. J. Wharton, M.A., to St. John, Huddersfield; Rev. J. White to Castle Bytham, Lincolnshire; Rev. H. Wood to Kirkby-le-Thorpe-cum-Asgarby, Lincolnshire; Rev. A. O. Medd to Bonbury; Rev. A. Lewis to be Colonial Preacher in the diocese of London.—Guardian.

There have been serious disturbances and disorganisations in Crete and Corfu.

The budget for 1865 has been laid before the Chambers of the Danubian Principalities. The total revenue amounts to £2,840,000, and the expenditure to £2,740,000. The total debt does not exceed £1,250,000.

COROMANDEL GOLD-DIG

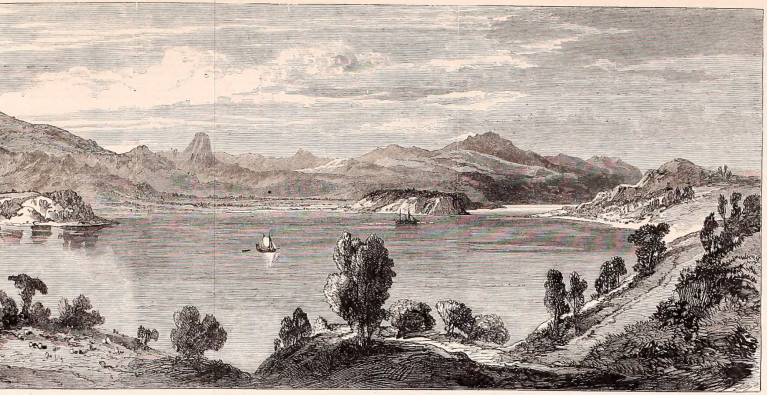
THE HARBOUR AND GO



FORTY-FIVE miles eastward of Auckland, on the opposite side of the Gulf of Hauraki, now more commonly known as the firth of the River Thames, is a bold projecting headland, surrounded with small islets and detached rocks, marking the entrance to Coromandel Harbour, on the peninsula of the same name. This harbour is formed by a chain of hills stretching from the extremity of the peninsula into the sea and affording a welcome shelter to the small vessels which run across the gulf. The scenery of this part of the coast is very picturesque; but two or three years ago it was a comparative solitude. A little native village, close to the mouth of a large creek that winds through the fern-covered and bushy plain, alone gave, with a few clusters of grass-thatched huts and their curls of smoke, an indication of human habitations on this shore. Further up, along the gradually rising and contracting valley, through the dark foliage of a magnificent forest, might be heard the distant hum of a water-wheel, or the untiring propeller of a sawmill, where the Kauri timber is prepared for the market. Now the scene is changed; the spell of its primeval solitude is broken. Gold, that universal and all-powerful attraction for mankind, has been exhumed from the soil; and the restless activity of those who seek for the precious ore has invaded this retreat. It is believed that the most abundant deposits yet remain untouched, and are contained in the hills of Coromandel. Gold has been found alike in the quartz formations, and in the creek beds, where it lies in a more or less waterworn condition. The richness of the Coromandel quartz is said to exceed that of any other country; but the quartz mining, carried on with little capital and machinery, takes long to develop its productiveness, and does not employ the same number of diggers as the searching of alluvial gold-fields, where every evening shows clearly the result of the day's toil and chance. Up the valley of the Thames there exists a large alluvial gold-field, which is not yet opened by the Government, because that would precipitate the settlement of the native question, by inviting the concourse of many thousand European diggers, who would dispute with the Maories the possession of the soil. It cannot be expected that this state of things will much longer continue. In the mean time, we give some illustrations of the present aspect of the Coromandel gold-fields, from sketches by Mr. Allen Martin, which have been placed at our disposal. They comprise a view of Coromandel harbour; one of a digger's hut, and one of the tavern called Simpson's Hotel, near which is shown the building erected by a gold-crushing company for its machinery and stores. A view across the Kapanga Flats is the subject of our fourth illustration.

THE NEW EXCHANGE AT BIRMINGHAM.

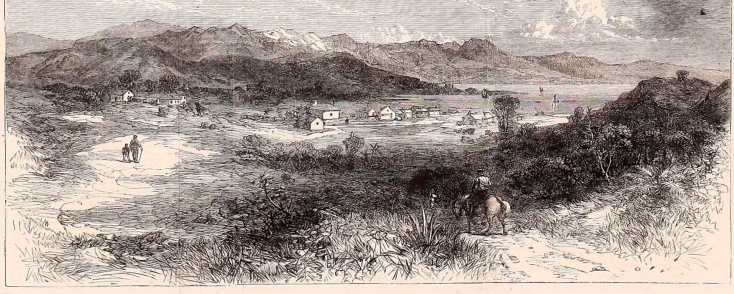
THE opening of the new Exchange at Birmingham, and Mr. John Bright's speech on that occasion, were noticed in our last. This building, with the adjoining tenements, has been erected by a limited liability company, at a cost of more than £20,000. The site is close to the central railway station in New-street, and near King Edward's Grammar School. The Exchange is built of stone, in the Gothic style of architecture, treated in the fashion now prevailing. The main front is in Stephenson-place, forming a handsome façade, having a central clock-tower 143 ft. high, and wings at the extreme ends. The intermediate portion of the edifice is four stories high, exclusive of the mezzanine; but the side wings are carried up an additional story, and the upper wings is continued to the same height throughout the New-street front, which forms an elegant mass, unbroken in main outline, except by the dormer windows and chimney-stacks, which rise rather gracefully from the high-pitched roofs; and by an angle turret, which springs from a deeply enriched corbel, and, carried by a granite shaft, rises about 45 ft. above the main cornice. Over the clock a gallery extends round the tower, from which there is an extensive view of the surrounding country.



A DIGGER'S HUT.

SIMPSON'S HOTEL.

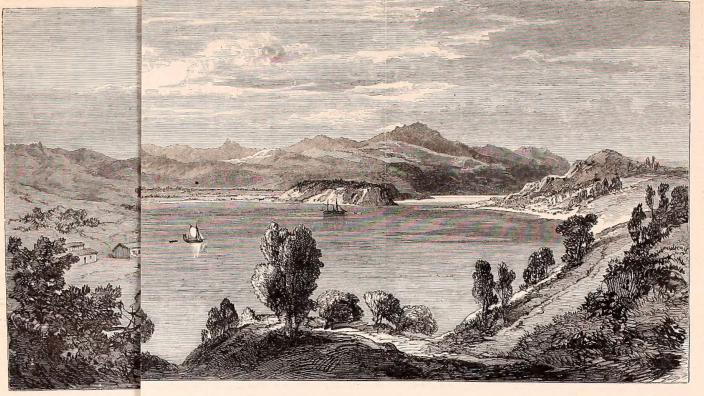
NGS, NEW ZEALAND.



STRICT OF COROMANDEL.

The main entrance to the Exchange is beneath a lofty arch, supported by polished granite columns, inclosed by large iron gates of elaborate ornamental design. The Exchange-hall is a spacious apartment, 70 ft. long, 40ft. wide, and 23 ft. high, with boarded and panelled ceiling, the beams of which are supported by ten groups of iron clustered columns, in two rows, standing on stone octagonal bases; and the room is lighted by six lofty three-light windows, with traceried heads. In addition to an assembly-room and the usual offices, there is a telegraph office, with windows into the Exchange, adjoining the principal entrance. There are, besides, committee and refreshment rooms, and a hall for the Chamber of Commerce. In New-street and Stephenson-place the lower part of the edifice is appropriated by a number of handsome shops, fitted up in the most approved modern style, and already tenanted. The buildings were erected from the designs of Mr. Edward Holmes, architect of Birmingham, which were chosen in competition, and the works were executed by Messrs. Bennon and Murray, the contractors for the Midland Institute buildings and Central Reference Library.

The opening ceremonial took place at noon on Monday week, when a numerous company, including most of the leading merchants, manufacturers, and others, assembled in the lower room of the Exchange. The Mayor (Mr. Henry Wirgin) presided, and on the dais at the west end of the hall, were Mr. William Scholefield, M.P.; Mr. John Bright, M.P.; the Right Hon. C. B. Adderley, M.P.; Mr. W. Davenport-Bromley, M.P. for North Warwickshire; the Rev. Canon Miller, D.D.; Mr. Sampson S. Lloyd, president of the Associated Chamber of Commerce, and other gentlemen. The Rev. Dr. Miller, at the request of the Mayor, offered up an appropriate dedicatory prayer, invoking the Divine blessing upon the undertaking. In the absence of Mr. Van Wart, chairman of the company, Mr. Scholefield, M.P., then announced that the Exchange was opened, and, at the same time, expressed his hope that it would serve to promote an increased intercourse between the merchants and manufacturers of Birmingham, and to improve the commercial prosperity of the town. The Mayor added his congratulations to those of Mr. Scholefield, and observed that, although it had been said by some persons that Birmingham had no need of an Exchange, he felt convinced that, however the state of the town some twenty-five years ago might have justified that opinion, its condition as a mercantile town no longer did so. Their commercial transactions were not only much more numerous, but on a much more extended scale; and it was to be hoped that, now a proper building had been erected, gentlemen connected with the trade of the town would enrol themselves as members of the Exchange, and set apart a portion of the day to meet together in that room. He thought it would be an immense advantage to the trading interests of the town if the Exchange were properly appreciated and supported. The speech of Mr. Bright, which followed, was an eloquent panegyric of commercial pursuits and occupations, which he declared to be intimately allied with political freedom and all the highest interests of mankind. We refer to the Illustration of this scene on our front page.

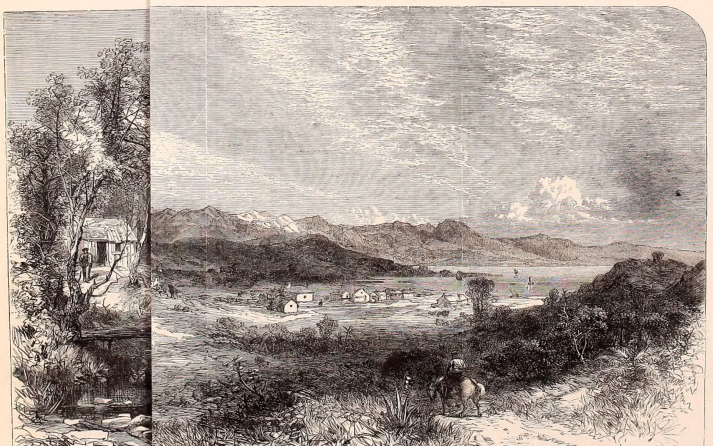


CHRIST'S COLLEGE, BRECON.

THE avowed object of Henry VIII., who, in the year 1541, transferred the College of Abergwili, with all its rights and possessions, to the Priory of the Friars Preachers at Brecon, was to secure for the Welsh a liberal education, and place them on a level with their English fellow-subjects. By the provision which he made for the purpose, a grammar-school was long conducted there with good success; and its divinity class supplied a large proportion of the candidates for ordination in South Wales. Its usefulness in this respect was superseded in the present century by the foundation of Lampeter College;

THE KAPANGEE FLAT.

ZEALAND.



FORTY-FIVE miles eastward of Auckland, ...city arch, supported ... gates of elabo-
Gulf of Hauraki, now more commonly known ...acious apartment, Thames, is a bold projecting headland, wooded and panelled and detached rocks, marking the entrance ...ten groups of iron the peninsula of the same name. This has ...octagonal bases of hills stretching from the extremity of ...lows, with traceried and affording a welcome shelter to the ...nual offices, there the gulf. The scenery of this part of the ...hange, adjoining the but two or three years ago it was a comp... and refreshment native village, close to the mouth of a large... New-street and the fern-covered and bushy plain, alone ga... appropriated by a grass-thatched huts and their owls of smo... approved modern habitations on this shore. Further up, also ... erected from the contracting valley, through the dusk foliage ...ham, which were might be heard the distant hum of a water... executed by Messrs.
peller of a sawmill, where the Kauri timber ... Institute buildings
Now the scene is changed: the spell ... broken. Gold, that universal and all-pow... onday week, when kind, has been exhumed from the soil ... merchants, manu-of those who seek for the precious ... of the Exchange, retreat. It is believed that the mo...

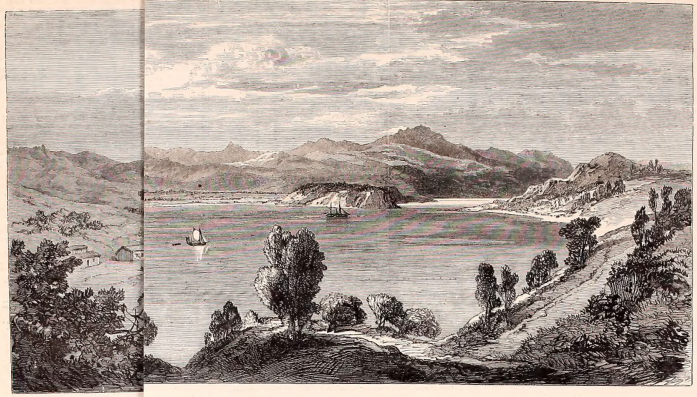
The Mayor (Mr. Henry Wiggin) presided, and on the dais, at the west end of the hall, were Mr. William Scholefield, M.P.; Mr. John Bright, M.P.; the Right Hon. C. B. Adderley, M.P.; Mr. W. Davenport-Bromley, M.P. for North Warwickshire; the Rev. Canon Miller, D.D.; Mr. Sampson S. Lloyd, president of the Associated Chamber of Commerce, and other gentlemen. The Rev. Dr. Miller, at the request of the Mayor, offered up an appropriate dedicatory prayer, invoking the Divine blessing upon the undertaking. In the absence of Mr. Van Wart, chairman of the company, Mr. Scholefield, M.P., then announced that the Exchange was opened, and, at the same time, expressed his hope that it would serve to promote an increased intercourse between the merchants and manufacturers of Birmingham, and to improve the commercial prosperity of the town. The Mayor added his congratulations to those of Mr. Scholefield, and observed that, although it had been said by some persons that Birmingham had no need of an Exchange, he felt convinced that, however the state of the town some twenty-five years ago might have justified that opinion, its condition as a mercantile town no longer did so. Their commercial transactions were not only much more numerous, but on a much more extended scale; and it was to be hoped that, now a proper building had been erected, gentlemen connected with the trade of the town would enrol themselves as members of the Exchange, and set apart a portion of the day to meet together in that room. He thought it would be an immense advantage to the trading interests of the town if the Exchange were properly appreciated and supported. The speech of Mr. Bright, which followed, was an eloquent panegyric of commercial pursuits and occupations, which he declared to be intimately allied with political freedom and all the highest interests of mankind. We refer to the Illustration of this scene on our front page.



CHRIST'S COLLEGE, BRECON.

THE avowed object of Henry VIII., who, in the year 1541, transferred the College of Abergwili, with all its rights and possessions, to the Priory of the Friars Preachers at Brecon, was to secure for the Welsh a liberal education, and place them on a level with their English fellow-subjects. By the provision which he made for the purpose, a grammar-school was long conducted there with good success; and its divinity class supplied a large proportion of the candidates for ordination in South Wales. Its usefulness in this respect was superseded in the present century by the foundation of Lampeter College;

THE KAPANGEE FLAT.

ZEALAND.

FORTY-FIVE miles eastward of Auckland, Gulf of Hauraki, now more commonly known Thames, is a bold projecting headland, and detached rocks, marking the entrance the peninsula of the same name. This hab of hills stretching from the extremity of and affording a welcome shelter to the sma the gulf. The scenery of this part of things, adjoining the but two or three years ago it was a comple native village, close to the mouth of a large the fern-covered and bushy plain, alone gra grass-thatched huts and their curls of smoke habitations on this shore. Further up, also contracting valley, through the dark foliage might be heard the distant hum of a water peller of a sawmill, where the Kauri timber Now the scene is changed: the spell is broken. Gold, that universal and all-pow kind, has been exhumed from the soil of those who seek for the precious retreat. It is believed that the mos fty arch, supported on gates of elabo- spacious apartment, erected from the been groups of aeon octagonal bases; flowe, with traceried usual offices, there and refreshment In New-street and appropriated by a approved modern

CHRIST'S COLLEGE, BRECON.

THE avowed object of Henry VIII., who, in the year 1541, transferred the College of Aberpwll, with all its rights and possessions, to the Priory of the Friars Preachers at Brecon, was to secure for the Welsh a liberal education, and place them on a level with their English fellow-subjects. By the provision which he made for the purpose, a grammar-school was long conducted there with good success; and its divinity class supplied a large proportion of the candidates for ordination in South Wales. Its usefulness in this respect was superseded in the present century by the foundation of Lampeter College;

Institute buildings

Monday week, when

The Mayor (Mr. Henry Wiggin) presided, and on the dais, at the west end of the hall, were Mr. William Scholefield, M.P.; Mr. John Bright, M.P.; the Right Hon. C. B. Adderley, M.P.; Mr. W. Davenport-Bromley, M.P. for North Warwickshire; the Rev. Canon Miller, D.D.; Mr. Sampson S. Lloyd, president of the Associated Chamber of Commerce, and other gentlemen. The Rev. Dr. Miller, at the request of the Mayor, offered up an appropriate deficatory prayer, invoking the Divine blessing upon the undertaking. In the absence of Mr. Van Wart, chairman of the company, Mr. Scholefield, M.P., then announced that the Exchange was opened, and, at the same time, expressed his hope that it would serve to promote an increased intercourse between the merchants and manufacturers of Birmingham, and to improve the commercial prosperity of the town. The Mayor added his congratulations to those of Mr. Scholefield, and observed that, although it had been said by some persons that Birmingham had no need of an Exchange, he felt convinced that, however the state of the town some twenty-five years ago might have justified that opinion, its condition as a mercantile town no longer did so. Their commercial transactions were not only much more numerous, but on a much more extended scale; and it was to be hoped that, now a proper building had been erected, gentlemen connected with the trade of the town would enrol themselves as members of the Exchange, and set apart a portion of the day to meet together in that room. He thought it would be an immense advantage to the trading interests of the town if the Exchange were properly appreciated and supported. The speech of Mr. Bright, which followed, was an eloquent panegyric of commercial pursuits and occupations, which he declared to be intimately allied with political freedom and all the highest interests of mankind. We refer to the illustration of this scene on our front page.

THE KAPANGEE FLAT.

but its prestige had already declined, for various reasons. The obligations of the collegiate body were too obscure to be satisfactorily discharged, and the buildings had fallen into a ruinous state of disrepair, when the possessions of the college were vested in the Ecclesiastical Commissioners. Through the urgent representations of Sir Thomas Phillips and Mr. Alexander Wood, aided by Sir John Lefevre in the Commission itself, the claims of the foundation to a permanent establishment were at last recognised. By the Act of Parliament and the Chancery decree, in 1853 and 1855, the government of the college was intrusted to twelve persons, among whom were the two Bishops of South Wales; and the school, which has been since in operation, and entered last year upon the occupation of its permanent buildings, is already distinguished among the schools of the Principality, and may fairly aspire, as its merits become more widely known, to comparison with the best classical schools of England.

The reopening of the chapel and other buildings of Christ's College took place on Midsummer Day last, when the sermon was preached and the school prizes delivered by the Lord Bishop of St. Davids, and the Marquis Camden, K.G., presided at the public luncheon which followed. The sermon has been published at the request of the governors, with an account of the restoration. The group of buildings, an Illustration of which we give this week, cost about £10,000. They were designed by John Prichard, Esq., architect, of Llandaff, then of the firm of Prichard and Seddon, and include a master's house, and residence and accommodation for about forty boarders, with school and class rooms, for which some of the decanal buildings were restored and adapted; these are of noble proportions, with fine open oak roof. The chancel of the collegiate church prominent in the Illustration has been also restored to serve as the chapel of the college, and is a very dignified and beautiful Early English structure. Unfortunately, the pile of buildings is not as yet complete, as the central tower and the cloister connecting the chapel with the other buildings have unavoidably been postponed for want of funds. The octagonal kitchen, seen in the Illustration, is a striking feature. The works have been executed in a most substantial and excellent manner by Messrs. Williams, builders, of Brecon, and the building has all the conveniences such an establishment requires. Brecon has now become a central point for several important railways. Being situated in a peculiarly beautiful and healthy country, this College of Christ Church will doubtless attract a large number of scholars.

ROMANTIC TRIAL IN SPAIN.

The Supreme Tribunal of Barcelona, in Spain, has been for some time past engaged in hearing a trial from a judgment given by an inferior Court of that district in July, 1861, relative to the identity of a young man who claimed to be the son of a wealthy banker of Barcelona, dead some years ago. The circumstances of this strange affair may be briefly stated as follow:—

The Marquis Don Francisco de Cara-Fontenallas, a partner in the well-known banking firm of Lamberto y Fontenallas, had two sons, Don Lamberto and Don Claudio, and one daughter, Donna Eulalia, married to the Marquis of Villamediana, residing on his extensive estates in the neighbourhood of Madrid. In September, 1845, the younger son, Don Claudio, then twenty-three years of age, suddenly disappeared, and all efforts to find him proved fruitless. It was afterwards ascertained that he had been seized by the brigands, who carried him off to the mountains. Some days later, however, two or three letters were addressed to the Marquis by his son, stating that he was in the power of brigands, who refused to release him until a ransom of 1000 ounces of gold should be paid. Perhaps the Marquis did not believe in the reality of the capture, and regarded it merely as an expedient adopted by his son to obtain a large sum of money. At all events, he did not send the gold demanded, and from that time nothing was heard of Don Claudio till May, 1860. Meanwhile, the Marquis made a will, dated May, 1850, in which he expressed his wish that his property should not be divided between Don Lamberto and Donna Eulalia until his lost son had been found or his death satisfactorily proved.

When the Marquis died, some time after, Don Lamberto succeeded to the title, and at once divided his father's property between himself and his sister, the Marchioness de Villamediana. This prompt division of the property caused some scandal at the time, as the provisions of the will were generally known, but it was soon forgotten. In 1852, however, a man named Gomez, who had been arrested for robbery, gave the police a full account of the abduction of Don Claudio by the brigands, and the authorities determined on making a further investigation, when it was found that all the documents relating to the circumstances had disappeared, with the exception of Don Claudio's two letters written while in the power of the brigands, which the deceased Marquis had given to a police magistrate in 1850.

The investigation, therefore, led to nothing; but nine years later, in 1861, Don Lamberto, the new Marquis, received a letter, dated May 15, and signed "Your brother, Don Claudio," stating that the writer had just arrived at Barcelona by the steamer Puerto Rico from Charlestown. Don Lamberto immediately sent an old clerk of the bank, named Don Francisco Juan Marti, to meet his brother. As soon as Marti set foot on the deck, he was accosted by Don Claudio, who called him by his name and shed tears of joy on meeting him. They went together to the Marquis Don Lamberto, who appeared to gladly recognise the young man as his brother Claudio, and instantly sent off a telegraphic despatch to his sister, the Marchioness of Villamediana, announcing the return of their brother. On the following day Don Lamberto informed the Governor of Barcelona of his brother's arrival, and also formally acknowledged him as his brother in presence of a magistrate. Not the least doubt was entertained by anybody that the new comer was really Don Claudio, and he continued to be entertained by his brother as such till the 23rd of May; but at two o'clock in the morning of that day he was arrested by the police in his brother's house, on the charge of being an impostor. This arrest was afterwards ascertained to have been made at the instance of the Marquis and Marchioness of Villamediana. Don Claudio was so overcome by this terrible accusation that he was instantly seized with a violent fever, and begged to have a glass of water, which was brought by one of the servants. He had no sooner drunk it than he exclaimed that he was poisoned. He was, nevertheless, carried off to prison, where antidotes were administered and he recovered, after three weeks' illness, but still remained in the prison infirmary in a very weak state.

While he lay there a tailor and his wife, named Feliu, were brought to see him, and they declared the supposed Don Claudio to be their son Claudio, who had gone to Buenos Ayres in 1857, being then only twenty years of age; their son and daughter also recognised him as their brother. All four gave evidence on oath to this effect. Two other persons, however—Don Claudio's nurse and foster-brother—declared that he was really Don Claudio.

In his defence before the examining magistrate, Don Claudio produced four documents in which he was styled Don Claudio Fontenallas. The first was his commission as Ensign in the army of Buenos Ayres, dated April, 1857, which proved that he could not be Claudio Feliu, as the latter sailed from Barcelona to Buenos Ayres late in February in that year, and therefore could not have arrived at the time. The second was a passport delivered to Don Claudio Fontenallas by the Spanish Consul at Rosario de Santa Fé; the third was a commission of sub-lieutenant of artillery, dated Buenos Ayres, July 22, 1858; and the fourth was the muster-roll of the men under his orders in a ship which he had commanded. These four documents, of such vital importance for the accused, were left in the possession of the examining magistrate, who, when the cause was tried, asserted that he had lost them. During the trial a great number of witnesses were examined, but their evidence was contradictory; some declaring that the prisoner was really Don Claudio Fontenallas, others as positively maintaining that he was the tailor's son.

The prisoner himself explained the manner of his capture, how one day he had escaped from the brigands while they were intoxicated, and made his way to Barcelona. He did not go home, because, as his father had refused to pay the ransom, he concluded that the brigands had acted by his orders; but what could be his father's motive for giving such orders he did not know. He therefore went to America, and remained there till 1861. When several old servants of the deceased Marquis were examined, the prisoner reminded them of many circumstances which could hardly be known to any except the real Don Claudio; but the Marquise de Villamediana, though she had at first recognised the prisoner as her brother, afterwards declared herself convinced of the contrary, as she had found him unacquainted with many facts which her brother must have known.

The result of the trial was that the Tribunal, which consisted of only one Judge, declared that the prisoner was the son of Feliu, and condemned him to twelve years' hard labour. The Tribunal also ordered that twenty of the prisoner's witnesses should be prosecuted for perjury. The prisoner's counsel, M. Niviera, complained that the defence had not been free, that the Judge had refused to hear several of his witnesses, and also that his demand for further inquiry in the Argentine Republic had been rejected, and concluded with protesting against the manner in which the previous examinations and the trial had been conducted. In consequence of those observations the Judge committed him to prison for contempt of Court.

The conviction was so general at Barcelona that the prisoner had been unfairly treated, that a subscription was opened in his favour, which produced a sum of 40,000f. Part of this sum was applied to relieve the prisoner's immediate necessities, and the rest was offered to M. Caso, a celebrated advocate of Madrid, to conduct the appeal against the above judgment. After long delays the appeal was made, and the Supreme Court of Barcelona has given its decision, substantially confirming the judgment, but reducing the sentence of hard labour from twelve years to two. The prisoner's counsel was reprimanded by the Court and thirteen witnesses were declared guilty of perjury.

The last accounts received from Mons state that the catastrophe which recently occurred at the Chevalleres coalpit has cost the lives of sixty-one persons.

FINE ARTS.

A new Water-Colour Exhibition will be opened on the 20th of February next at the Dudley Gallery, Egyptian Hall, Piccadilly. The exhibition is being organised to supply the want of a free exhibition of water-colour art, open to all comers, subject only to a power of selection, which is properly retained by the committee. The two existing societies in Pall-mall are the only art-bodies which maintain the character of close monopolies, in so far that their exhibitions are exclusively composed of the works of a given number of members. Hence, no painter in water colours not being a member of either of them can submit his works to the public eye except under disadvantages in the open and generally the second-rate exhibitions of oil paintings. There can be little doubt, however, that a considerable number of water-colour painters have grown up outside the established societies—artists who either regularly or occasionally practise this fascinating branch of art, and who exist in sufficient number and possess sufficient ability to form a new and attractive exhibition. But, besides drawings and sketches of every description, the exhibition will be open for etchings, wood-engravings, casts, and sculpture. Wood-engraving has come into such general request (especially since the establishment of this Journal) that if the invitation of the committee be fairly responded to, the display in this section will be peculiarly interesting, as supplying another desideratum, the want of which has been felt by lovers of art. We may add, for the information of artists, that all works intended for exhibition must be sent to the Dudley Gallery between Jan. 31 and Feb. 10, inclusive, between the hours of ten and four. Frames must be gilt, and not more than 2 in. in width; margins, either in white or gold, are indispensable, and must not exceed 4 in., nor be less than 2 in., in width. The comparatively moderate commission of 7½ per cent will be charged on all works sold. The guarantee fund now amounts to £250.

It is a hopeful sign of architectural progress that the Architectural Association recognise, in their last report, the "evident necessity to the architectural student of a better state of art-teaching, with respect to accurate drawing and modelling of the human figure and of animal and vegetable forms in their application to architectural decoration." And, accordingly, it was resolved to establish, in conjunction with the Architectural Institute and Architectural Museum, a school of architectural decoration, to be called the "School of Art Accessorial to Architecture." This school has just been got into working order and received provisional accommodation—till the scheme be fully carried out—at the West London School of Art in Great Portland-street. Mr. Poynter, a thoroughly-qualified artist, attends; and the classes are divided into beginners who study from casts, and those more advanced who study from the living model. The example thus set by the architects might with very great advantage be followed analogously by sculptors studying architecture. To the almost universal ignorance among sculptors of the simplest principles of architecture we owe the unmeaning blocks—the hideously disproportioned pedestals to so many of our public statues, the tasteless fountains, and the want of all forethought in adapting statues to their destination and to combine agreeably with the masses they should decorate. The failure, too, of some of our mural painters is owing to their want of acquaintance with both sculpture and architecture. When our artists shall study the three great branches of art together, like their brethren of late Mediæval and Early Renaissance times, then, and then only, may we hope to see the art-marvels of those periods repeated.

The Fine-Art Department of the forthcoming International Exhibition at Dublin promises to be very comprehensive. Applications for space have already been received from 117 Belgian artists. Forty or fifty of the best artists of Dusseldorf have promised to send pictures; and a large number of Scandinavian painters, headed by Mr. Tidemand. Munich will furnish cartoons of the most celebrated artists, and her leading painters will contribute. Even Austria is endeavouring to be well represented. There will, as our readers are aware, be no less than three international exhibitions during the year: this at Dublin; the Prussian one at Stettin, to which we alluded last week; and a third in Portugal. In reference to the last, a letter from Oporto in the Moniteur says:—"The Crystal Palace in which the International Exhibition is to take place, and the opening of which is definitively fixed for Aug. 21, is situated on a vast eminence called the Torre da Marca. By the side of this eminence is a quinta, or country house, delightfully placed, and a portion of its park has been purchased by the Crystal Palace Company, and will afford a pleasing recreation to the visitors to the exhibition."

There can be little doubt that the majority of competent judges approve of the purchase of the statues from the Farnese Collection lately placed in the British Museum, three of the principal of which we recently engraved. Nevertheless, great diversity of opinion regarding them has been publicly expressed. In one or two quarters (evidently, however, by the same writer or under the same inspiration) the new acquisitions are set down as very inferior copies. The "Mercury" cannot be much nearer the lost original "than a shilling coloured lithograph is to Raphael's "San Sisto;" and not only is the propriety of the title "Diadumenos" questioned, but, so far from the statue bearing this name being a unique copy of the famous work by Polycletus, it is maintained to be probably one of a common type or class of statues and not entitled to a place among the really fine specimens of Hellenic art. On the other hand, however, Professor Westmacott, R.A., has expressed great admiration of some of the new purchases, and, in a recent lecture, is stated to have gone so far as to say that he was strongly inclined to think the Diadumenos not a copy merely, but the actual original, which (with the Doryphorus of the same great sculptor) was recognised in antiquity as affording a perfect canon of proportion.

Speaking of antique sculptures, we may mention that the colossal bronze-gilt statue of "The Youthful Hercules," recently discovered at Rome, to which we have already referred more than once, besides having engraved a scene of its exhumation, is spoken of in terms of ever increasing eulogy. After examining it, Mr. Gibson, the great sculptor, is reported to have said, "It made me melancholy the whole of the day after I had seen it to think that, after the labour of a life, I had made such slight approaches to the perfection of the master-hand which had executed that work." The statue has been given by its proprietor to the Papal Government. Reverting to Mr. Gibson, we have already chronicled the sculptor's munificent intended bequest of £32,000 to the Royal Academy, on condition that rooms are provided to receive casts of his works; but it may be interesting to add that Mr. Gibson instanced Thorwaldsen and Canova as having left their works to their native countries under somewhat similar arrangements.

During the long life of the Art-Union of London, the council of that body have rarely issued a more effective engraving than "Claude Duval," the plate for the present year. It is from a picture by Mr. Frith, exhibited in the Royal Academy some years ago, and is founded on an incident related by Macaulay. The engraving is admirably executed by Lumb Stocks, A.R.A., and will, we doubt not, be very popular with the subscribers to the Art-Union of 1865, for whom it is intended. This is not the first time the council of the Art-Union have been the means of introducing Mr. Frith to the "Homes of England," and it may justly be said of them that they have done good service in bringing the works of such a thoroughly English painter within the reach of the many.

A proposal has been made to erect a memorial to the late Earl of Carlisle.

A very graceful memorial to W. Hilton, the Royal Academician, and P. De Wint, the eminent painter in water colours, has been erected in the presbytery of the cathedral of their native Lincoln. The memorial is in the form of an altar-tomb, and the subjects of the sculpture on the panels are taken from the works of the deceased artists, including, by Hilton, "Mary Anointing the Feet of Our Lord," from a large painting in St. Philip's Church, College-hill, London; the Crucifixion, a colossal triptych in the Liverpool Townhall (exhibited in the International), and the "Raising of Lazarus," another large work, in Newark Church. The remaining panel is taken from a drawing by De Wint, representing the west front of the cathedral.

M. Joseph Lies, the eminent Belgian painter (not the still more celebrated Baron Henri Leys), died a few days back, and has been interred with much ceremony. "Never," says the Indépendance Belge, "at Antwerp did so large a crowd attend an interment"—six or seven thousand persons having collected.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The Working Women's College, Queen-square, Bloomsbury, has reopened for the regular classes.

The range of houses which formerly stood on the north side of New Palace-yard has now been removed.

Monday last being Plough Monday, the Lord Mayor and Lady Mayoress entertained the gentlemen of the household and some of the officers of the Corporation, according to custom, at a dinner at the Mansion House.

Mr. Ayrton, M.P., addressed a large number of his constituents at the Beaumont Institution, Mile-end, on Tuesday evening. A vote of confidence in the hon. gentleman was passed at the close of his speech.

A gift of £100, for investment, has been received by University College Hospital from Mr. John Hibbert, of Braywick Lodge, Maidenhead, in addition to ten sums of the like amount previously received from the same gentleman.

A series of lectures on maritime international law will be delivered before the members of the Inns of Court, by Leone Levi, Esq., LL.D., and Professor of Commercial Law at King's College, in the hall of Lincoln's Inn, by permission of the benchers. The first lecture was given on Wednesday, and the remainder of the course will be given on the 18th and 25th inst., and the 1st of February.

A deputation from a public meeting of watchmakers and jewellers, comprising the officers of the British Horological Institute and others, had an interview, yesterday week, at the Goldsmiths' Hall, with the wardens of the company on the subject of an improved system being adopted of assaying, marking, and charging for gold and silver cases and jewellery, to meet the competition of the foreign producers and the requirements of the public. The prime warden promised the careful consideration of the company to the question.

Last week the births of 2059 children—1043 boys and 1016 girls—were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1855-64 the average number (corrected) was 2055.——The deaths in London were last week 1660, or 102 above the average of the corresponding weeks in the last ten years. From the Registrar-General's report, from which we take this number, we observe that the capitals in the continental kingdoms and some of our largest towns are about to adopt this mode of birth and death registrations.

The annual general meeting of the subscribers to the Church Schoolmasters and Schoolmistresses' Benevolent Institution was held at the Whittington Club, Arundel-street, Strand, on Saturday last, under the presidency of the Bishop of Rochester. From the report for 1864 it appears that the society had made great progress during the year. The Archbishop of Canterbury has become a patron of the society, and in its list of vice-presidents are the Bishops of St. Asaph, Oxford, Rochester, and the Coadjutor Bishop of Edinburgh. The Bishop of London was re-elected president, a position which his Lordship has filled since the foundation of the society, in 1857.

A meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works was held yesterday week, at which it was stated that £3500, the sum originally proposed to be levied by the Board to meet the claims of the houseless poor—which duty has been cast on the Board by the late Act of Parliament—would not more than half suffice for the wants of these houseless persons, as new buildings for the purpose were in many instances necessary. It was therefore agreed to levy £7000 for the purpose.——A report on the progress of the sewers and of the Thames Embankment was read by the Engineer, from which it appeared that all were advancing with more or less rapidity, and that the middle-level sewer was so near completion that it would be brought into use towards the close of the present month.

The annual general meeting of the governors of the Hospital for Diseases of the Chest, Victoria Park, was held on Tuesday, at the London Tavern—Mr. Alderman Stone in the chair. The number of in-patients under treatment during last year was 436; the number of out-patients admitted during the year was 10,819. The receipts for the year, including a balance in hand on the 1st of January of £434, amounted to £9729, while the expenditure was £8940. The collection at the last festival (presided over by Lord Feversham) amounted to £5024. The new wing was stated to be completed, and the portion of the building appropriated to the out-patients' department to be now occupied, and with much advantage, by the patients and medical officers. Two wards, containing sixteen additional beds, had been opened, and the committee are very desirous of opening the whole of the new wards as soon as funds can be obtained. £6000 is required to carry on the institution. The Bishop of Oxford and Lord Feversham were appointed vice-presidents, and Dr. Southey was elected assistant-physician.

From the recently-published report of her Majesty's Postmaster-General we gather the following statistics:—In the year 1854 there were in the metropolis 382,949 inhabited houses; in 1863, 445,787; the population in the former year was 2,831,950; in the latter, 3,316,932; in 1854 there were 471 receptacles for posting letters; in 1863, 1045. In the town, or "three mile circle," there were in the former year 10 deliveries of letters daily, in the latter 12; beyond the town delivery 7 as against 6; beyond 4 miles and within 5 miles of the General Post Office, 6 as against 5; at the principal places beyond the 5-mile circle, and within a radius of 12 miles, 5 as against 4; and at the remaining places between the 5 and 12 mile circle, 4 as against 3, the number in 1854. In that year there were delivered in London 103,000,000 letters, in 1863 the number was 106,000,000; besides which there were posted in the district for delivery therein 76,000,000, or nearly 20 times more than in the city of Manchester. In 1854 there were in London 96 money-order offices; in 1863, 373; representing an amount for each year respectively of orders issued £178,955 and £3,181,874, and as paid £2,989,985 and £4,688,801. On the 31st of March, 1864, there were in London 374 post-office savings banks, showing a balance due to 117,995 depositors of £1,143,337.

It was stated last week that Mr. Albert D. Sassoon and Mr. S. D. Sassoon, sons of the late Mr. David Sassoon, the eminent Bombay merchant and philanthropist, had expressed their willingness to hand over a sum of £1000 to Mrs. Gladstone, the founder of the Newport-market Refuge, to aid her in her benevolent exertions on behalf of the London poor. The Times on Wednesday morning says:—"We now learn that Mrs. Gladstone has accepted the gift on behalf of the charities in which she takes an interest, and expressed her high gratification to the Messrs. Sassoon for the confidence they have placed in her. Mrs. Gladstone has drawn up a plan for the management of the fund, which she has transmitted to Mr. Lumley. In it she proposes that the sum in question, under the name of the 'David Sassoon Fund,' should be vested in trustees to be applied in the erection of a building in connection with the Newport-market Refuge or with the House of Charity in Soho-square, and that the building should have the name of David Sassoon permanently attached to it. She states that she takes a deep interest in both the charities mentioned, and she believes them to be calculated to help one another and to do great permanent good. She therefore proposes that until the capital sum is employed in building, the proceeds shall be applied towards the current expenses of one or both of these institutions. She has also announced to Mr. Lumley that, if the Messrs. Sassoon wish it, Mr. Gladstone will become one of the trustees. The plan proposed has met the approval in all respects of the executors of the late Mr. Sassoon, so that the two charities above named will at once derive advantage from this munificent gift."

With a view of completing the amount necessary for the erection of a proper church for the accommodation of the 2000 deaf and dumb in London, and of thus affording them spiritual aid in their own gestural language, a soirée, which was well attended, took place on Monday night at the Hanover-square Rooms. The association, which is under the patronage of the Bishop of London, has already afforded much assistance to the class of afflicted persons under its care by holding services, by giving lectures, by house-to-house visitations, by finding employment, and by aiding the sick and needy, and now seeks to extend the benefits it has conferred by means of a fitting building in which Divine service can be performed by the Chaplain, the Rev. S. Smith, who has been specially ordained for the work. The building to be erected will include not only a place of worship, but a home for the aged and infirm, and a room in which weekly lectures can be given, and in which the deaf and dumb can associate together. About £3000 is required, and of this amount £2000, including £50 from the Queen, has been received or promised.——The half-yearly general meeting of subscribers and Christmas election of children to the Asylum for the Support and Education of Deaf and Dumb Children was held on Tuesday, at the London Tavern, for the purpose of receiving a report and statement of accounts, and electing thirty-five children—fifteen girls and twenty boys. The secretary read the statement of receipts, and the income of the asylum during the past year was about £8000, exclusive of life subscriptions, and the expenditure about £9000. The real income, however, of the charity was about £1500 less than the expenditure. The number of children in the asylum was 347, who were in the enjoyment of good health. Mr. Alderman David H. Stone was unanimously elected a vice-president of the institution.

The half-yearly meeting of the Royal Humane Society was held on Wednesday at the office in Trafalgar-square—Mr. B. B. Cabbell in the chair. The report stated that the number of cases since July last had been 141, of which 123 had been successfully treated, four were beyond recovery, seven attempted suicide, and seven had been referred to the general committee. The Hyde Park cases had been forty-five, of which twenty-five were successfully treated, one beyond recovery, nine found drowned, and eight attempted suicide. The total number of general cases during 1864 had been 177, comprising 240 persons, of which 232 were successfully treated, and eight more attempted suicide. The total number of bathers in the Serpentine during the year had been 246,926, amongst whom there had been thirty-five casualties, but none of a fatal character. During the late frost forty persons had been immersed through venturing on the ice, but no fatal accident had occurred. The receiving-house and the tents and apparatus were all in good working condition. The rewards given during 1864 had been fifteen silver medals, fifty-eight bronze medals, nineteen thanks on vellum, fifty ditto on parchment, and sixty-four pecuniary rewards. The total income of the year had been £1583, and the expenditure £1492. The report concluded with an appeal to the public for extended support, rendered necessary by the extended operations of the society. The report having been adopted, the Duke of Argyll was elected as president of the society; Mr. Baker as treasurer; and Dean Stanley, Mr. D. Nicoll, and Mr. W. H. Ashurst were appointed to fill vacancies on the general committee. Mr. Baker stated that a member of the committee lately deceased (Mr. Dalton) had left a legacy of £200 to the society. The following persons then received the silver medal of the society for saving life or attempting to do so, viz.:—Mr. Albert Williams, for saving Mr. Toll and three others, whose boat upset in King George's Sound, Australia, May, 1864. Mr. Philip Ahier, for saving Private Tcokes, 61st Regiment, while bathing at Jersey, July 2, 1864. Samuel Moon, AB., H.M.S. Orlando, for saving Mr. E. Rooke, midshipman, and Mr. W. Exiner, R.M., in Zante Bay, and Bay of Tunis, Jan. 26 and Aug. 28, 1864. Mr. W. Corrington, steward of H.M.S. Acorn, for trying to save Private Hardey, Royal Marines, in the Shanghai river, China, June 12, 1864. Mr. R. Frost, for trying to save two persons at Bude, Cornwall, Sept. 15, 1864. Mr. F. Halloran, naval cadet of H.M.S. Britannia, for saving his brother in the River Dart, Dartmouth, Nov. 2, 1864. Honorary medals were voted to three of the vice-presidents, the secretary, and the chaplain of the French Humane Society; and the proceedings terminated with a vote of thanks to the chairman.

An ordinary meeting of the Royal Geographical Society was held on Monday in Burlington House—Sir Roderick Murchison (president) in the chair. The first paper was read by Mr. Taylor, describing a visit to the source of the Tigris and Euphrates. The numerous sources of these rivers were explored by Mr. Taylor, who described very clearly the main features of the physical geography of a region that has been seldom visited by Europeans. As a geographical communication, the chief value of the paper consisted in the maps of the sources of the rivers, which were accurately depicted. The principal source of the Tigris issues from a cavern about two miles long, at the entrance of which he perceived an ancient inscription carved on the rock, with the figure of an Assyrian King. He stated that the mountains whence the sources of the rivers flow abound in caverns, and one stalactite cave was of vast dimensions, reaching much farther than he was enabled to penetrate. Sir Henry Rawlinson threw much light on the value of Mr. Taylor's labours as a geographer and discoverer of antiquities. He said that some of the most ancient monuments now in the British Museum had been contributed by Mr. Taylor, who had explored several ruined cities of the Chaldees and had discovered many monuments of that people that were of several hundred years earlier date than the Nineveh marbles. He mentioned a curious and interesting coincidence connected with the inscription and figure carved on the rock of the cavern. In deciphering the inscriptions on the Nineveh monuments that had been made by order of the great King of the Assyrians, Sir Henry Rawlinson said he found it was there stated that that monarch had extended his conquests to the sources of the Tigris, and that on the rock out of which the river issued he had commanded an inscription and figure to be carved to commemorate the event. Mr. Taylor was not aware of what he had deciphered; nor did he at the time know of Mr. Taylor's discovery: therefore, the combined testimony was entirely independent. Sir Henry Rawlinson alluded to the great difficulty which all travellers experience when deviating from main routes, in consequence of the very defective state of all maps; and the contribution of Mr. Taylor's map of the region he had visited was a valuable acquisition. The paper which that gentleman had read he hoped would be followed by another giving a more extended account of his travels. One matter that had been mentioned to him by Mr. Taylor, which possessed great interest, was the successful result of the labours of American missionaries in Aleppo, and he thought the meeting would like to hear a statement on the subject. At the request of Sir Roderick Murchison, Mr. Taylor mentioned that when the American missionaries first went to Aleppo they were insulted by the boys and men in the streets, so much so that they could scarcely stir out with safety; but by steady perseverance they succeeded, with very inadequate means, to completely change the state of feeling towards them, and 500 families became converts. The converts were not hastily received, but were made to undergo probation, and the moral conduct of the people had been greatly improved. The missionaries have now two churches, and, though they have done so much, he believed the money expended by them did not exceed £2000 or £3000.——A communication by M. Abramof, a Russian gentleman, "On Lake Nor Tzai-San," was next read. The lake described is one of the largest among the chain of mountains along the frontiers of Russia and China, and is about one hundred versts long and thirty wide.

LAW AND POLICE.—On Wednesday, being the first day of Hilary Term, the several Courts of Law and Equity resumed their sittings. The arrears in the Common Law Courts number, in the three, 147—of which seventy-four are in the Queen's Bench, fifty-two in the Common Pleas, and twenty-one in the Exchequer. In the Common Pleas there are several registration appeals, both for hearing and for judgment. There are a few arrears in the Court of Chancery.

Major Lumley surrendered at the Central Criminal Court on Tuesday to take his trial for having sent a challenge to Mr. Lawrence Desborough. The Major pleaded guilty, and Serjeant Parry having on his behalf withdrawn the letters, and expressed his sincere regret for what he had done, Mr. Metcalfe, on behalf of his client, said that he was satisfied. The Recorder, after commenting upon the ridicule to which the Major had exposed himself, required him to enter into sureties, himself in £500 and one in £250, to keep the peace for twelve months.

At the Central Criminal Court, on Tuesday, Mr. Burroughs, the member of the Stock Exchange whose attempt to escape with some Confederate bonds caused so much excitement on the Stock Exchange a few months ago, pleaded not guilty to the charge of obtaining the bonds by false pretences—that is, by giving cheques on banks where he had "no effects." But as it appeared that in some instances the bonds were given him before he made out the cheques, and almost all the witnesses stated that they would have trusted him even though he had not given the cheques at the instant, the jury returned a verdict of "Not guilty."

A charge of obtaining goods under false pretences was heard at the Guildhall Police Court on Monday. The defendant was a draper, named John Kirby; the complainant, Mr. Thomas Simmons, agent to a Nottingham house. The alleged false pretence consisted in Kirby having represented himself to be perfectly solvent and able to meet his engagements. On this representation, Mr. Simmons let him have goods to a considerable amount, and shortly afterwards he failed, having been insolvent all the time. The charge was not supported by the evidence, and Kirby was dismissed.

Two fellows were brought up at Bow-street on Tuesday, charged with conspiracy to defraud. They were in a cart, in a street near the Strand, and one of them was selling purses. Into one of these purses he apparently put two half-crowns, and offered to sell the whole for a shilling. A lad in the crowd paid his shilling and got the purse, but, on opening it, he found two halfpennies instead of two half-crowns in it. This was the offence charged. The prisoners were committed for trial.

Mrs. M'Dermott complained to Mr. Selfe, the Westminster police magistrate, last week, that her daughter, a girl of sixteen or seventeen, had left her; that Mr. Bowden, one of the "Fathers" of the Brompton Oratory, knew of her hiding-place, and that the rev. gentleman declined to say where she was. Mr. Selfe put himself to a good deal of trouble to ascertain the facts of the case. It would seem that twelve months ago Mr. Bowden, who had made up his mind that some special measures were necessary for securing the spiritual welfare of the girl, suggested to her that she should leave her mother and seek the shelter of a "home." The suggestion was not at that time acted upon, but on Friday week the girl disappeared from her mother's house, and, as it afterwards turned out, became an inmate of a conventual institution. The case wore a very disagreeable appearance at first; but Mr. Selfe stated on Saturday that, although Mr. Bowden had acted imprudently in counselling the girl to leave home without the knowledge of her natural guardian, "in other respects he acted quite properly, knowing her position and the state of her mind." As for the girl herself, she had acted wisely, with the exception of having left her mother as she did."

We have to record another case of death by starvation. The victim in this case was an old man named Cartwright, who got his living by picking up paper in the streets, and selling it at 2s. per cwt. His brother, who was said to be almost as emaciated as the deceased, and to bear a shocking resemblance to him, stated that he was sometimes able to pick up 1 cwt. per week, while at other times he could not find more than ten pounds. The last supper he and his brother had consisted of a halfpennyworth of oatmeal and three halfpennyworth of bread. The medical evidence left no doubt that the wretched man had died from starvation, and the jury returned a verdict to that effect.

Ferdinand E. K. Kühl was tried on Wednesday and Thursday at the Central Criminal Court for the wilful murder of John, alias Christian, Fuhrop, in the Plaistow marshes, on the 3rd of November last. A verdict of "Guilty" was returned, and the prisoner was sentenced to death without hope of mercy.

Saturday (to-day) will be the last day on which deposits, in accordance with the Act, on account of private bills to be brought forward next Session can be received in the Accountant-General's Office of the Court of Chancery. Last year the sum deposited thus amounted to £6,322,889, representing a capital of nearly £80,000,000. It is anticipated that the sum deposited and security found this year will be considerably in excess of these amounts.

Mr. John Clare, jun., appeared in the Court of Queen's Bench on Wednesday to apply for a new trial in the case in which he charges the Crown with an infringement of his patents in the building of the Warrior. His ground of application was that the verdict against him on the trial had been obtained by conspiracy on the part of the Duke of Somerset, the Solicitor-General, and other parties connected with the case. The Lord Chief Justice told him that a new trial had been refused once, and that the complaints he now made must be carried to another Court.

At the Central Criminal Court on Wednesday Mr. Hammond was called up to receive judgment for the illegal confinement of his wife. Baron Bramwell commented on the prisoner witholding from his wife the half of her fortune, and sentenced him to twelve months' hard labour.

Mr. Tyrwhitt, the magistrate at Marlborough-street Police Court, gave judgment on Wednesday in the case where Mr. Strange, of the Alhambra, was charged with performing stage plays at that place of amusement without a license to do so. The alleged stage play was a ballet. Mr. Tyrwhitt held that this came under the terms of the Act, either as a pantomime or as a stage entertainment, and he fined the defendant £3. Notice of appeal was given, so that the case will be taken to the superior courts.

The Italian, Polizzioni, who is charged with the murder of a man named Harrington on Saffron-hill, was brought up at the Clerkenwell Police Court on Wednesday. Several witnesses were called for the defence, their evidence being to the effect that the prisoner was not the man who stabbed Harrington. Polizzioni was, however, committed for trial.

BURKE'S PEERAGE FOR 1865.—Sir Bernard Burke's annual comprehensive volume has just been published for the present year. The size of the book is increased; and the fullest information is, as usual, given respecting the peers, bishops, baronets, and their families. More ample details are this time presented of the knights of the different orders and the knights bachelor. The desirable improvement in the engraving and description of the arms continues; and everything, in fine, shows a determined intention to maintain the success of the work.

In the Wirtemberg Chamber on Thursday week a Ministerial answer was given to a question on Schleswig-Holstein, from which it appears that the Wirtemberg Government regard a union of the smaller German States as neither advisable nor possible at present.

A telegram from Berne states that the British Government has officially announced its adhesion to the principles of the International Sanitary Association, founded at Geneva, for the better care of the sick and wounded in time of war.

Count Frederic of Stolberg-Wernigerode, owner of the lordship of Peterswoldau, died on the 5th inst., aged sixty. As he leaves no male descendant the lordship passes to his younger brother, Count Francis, of Stolberg-Wernigerode.

The new Governor of the Bahamas, Rawson William Rawson, Esq., C.B., arrived at Nassau on Dec. 9, from New York, and among the first of his official acts was the taking possession of the steamer Mary (late the Alexandra). She was formally seized on the 13th ult., at Nassau, by the Receiver-General, John D'A. Dumaresq, Esq., under instructions from the Government, for an alleged infringement of the Foreign Enlistment Act. A detachment of the 1st West India Regiment was stationed on board.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

THE payment of the dividends having increased the supply of money in the hands of the public, rather more business has been transacted in National Stocks, and prices generally have been well supported. The Unfunded Debt has been tolerably firm, but the dealings in it have been by no means numerous.

On Thursday the Directors of the Bank of England reduced their minimum rate of discount to 5½ per cent. In the open market the quotations are as under:—

Thirty days' bills	5½ ¾ per cent.	Four months' bills	5¾ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	5¾ ,,	Six months' bills	5¾ 6½ ,,
Three months' bills	5¾ ,,

At the discount establishments the rate of interest for money at seven days' notice is reduced to 4¾; and at fourteen days', to 5 per cent.

The imports of the precious metals have been on a moderate scale, and only a limited supply of gold has been disposed of to the Bank of England. Mexican dollars have sold slowly, at 60⅝d. per ounce.

The Bank of Holland has reduced its quotation for money to 5 per cent. On other parts of the Continent capital rules about stationary. The rates in the leading cities are:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	4½	4½	Turin	6	6
Vienna	6	5¾	Brussels ..	5	4
Berlin	6	5	Madrid	9	9
Frankfort ..	5	5	Hamburg ..	—	4
Amsterdam ..	5	5	St. Petersburg	6½	8

At the half-yearly meeting of the shareholders of the Union Bank of London a dividend and bonus equal to 20 per cent per annum were declared. Various other meetings of joint-stock companies have been held, and at which large dividends have been announced.

On Monday Consols advanced ¼ per cent, with a steady market. For Money the closing price was 89⅞ 90; Ditto, for Account, 90⅛ ¼; Bank Stock, 238 to 240; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89 to ⅛; India Stock, 212 to 215; Ditto Five per Cents, 103¼; India Bonds, 10s. to 18s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem.; and the Five-and-a-Half per Cent Rupee Paper, 109½. There was a slight fall in the quotations on the following day. Consols, for Transfer, left off at 89¾ ⅞; Ditto, for Account, 90⅛ ¼; Bank Stock, 239 to 241; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89 to ⅛; India Stock, 212 to 215; Ditto, New, 103¼; Ditto, Bonds, 8s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 5s. prem.; India Four per Cents, 97½; and the Five per Cent Enfaced Paper, 102½. On Wednesday Consols, for Money, were done at 89⅞ 90; Ditto, for Time, 90⅛ ¼; Exchequer Bills, 5s. to 2s. prem.; India Five per Cents, 103½ to 104; Ditto Four per Cents, 97¼ 98; Ditto Bonds, 7s. prem. Bank Stock was firm, at 240 to 242; the Five per Cent Rupee Paper, 102¼; and the Five-and-a-Half per Cents, 110½. On Thursday the market was flat. Consols, for Money, sold at 90, 90⅛, 89⅞; for Account, 90¼; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 89⅛ ¼ ⅜; Bank Stock, 242 to 240½; India Stock, 212 to 215; Ditto, Five per Cents, 103¼; Ditto, Four per Cent Rupee Paper, 91; Long Annuities, 14 5-16; and Exchequer Bills, par to 5s. prem.

In the early part of the week Federal Securities were firm in price. Since then they have become heavy and drooping. Erie shares have been 38 and 35½ to 36½; and Illinois, 53½.

In the early part of the week the market for the Confederate Loan was very dull, and the quotation was as low as 48 to 52. The failure of the Wilmington expedition, however, has produced a firmer market, and prices have improved, the quotation having advanced to 54 to 55. In other Foreign Securities only a moderate business has been transacted; nevertheless, prices have, in most instances, ruled firm. The scrip of the new Egyptian Loan has been done at 1½ to 1¾ prem.; Danish Scrip is quoted at 2½ to 3½ prem.; Danubian, ½ dis. to par; English Mexican Scrip, 10s. to 8s. dis.; and French Ditto, 10s. to 8s. dis.; Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 83¾; Equador, 11¾; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 95; Greek, 21½; Mexican Three per Cents, 28 ex div.; Ditto, 1864, 26½ ex div.; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 78½ ex div.; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47½ ex div.; Russian Old Five per Cents, 90; Ditto, 1862, 89⅛; Ditto Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 86¾ ex div.; Spanish Three per Cents, 47½; Ditto, Deferred, 40¾ ex div.; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 89¾; Ditto, 1858, 72; Ditto, 1862, 70¾; Venezuela Six per Cents, 48; Ditto, 1864, 42¼; Dutch Four per Cents, 98¾; and Italian Five per Cents, 64½ ex div.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been in very moderate request, yet prices have ruled firm. Alliance have sold at 33; Bank of Otago, 5½; Consolidated, 11¼; European, 15¾; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 30¾; Imperial, 34¼; Ditto, New, 33½; Imperial Ottoman, 17 ex div.; Land Mortgage of India, 5¾; London Chartered of Australia, 21½, ex div.; London and County, 82; London and South African, 22; London and Westminster, 100; Merchant, 28½; South Eastern, 11; Standard of British South Africa, 25; Union of Australia, 51½; and Union of London, 57½.

The market for Colonial Government Securities has been somewhat active. Canada Six per Cents have realised 95¾ ex div.; Ditto Five per Cents, 85 ex div.; Mauritius Six per Cents, 105 ex div.; New South Wales Five per Cents, 93 ex div.; New Zealand Five per Cents, 89; Queensland Six per Cents, 101½ ex div.; and Victoria Six per Cents, 107½.

In Miscellaneous Securities about an average business has been transacted. British Indian Tea, 15¾; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8¾; Ditto, New, 5¾; East Indian Financial, 3½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 5½; Electric Telegraph, 112; Financial Corporation, ¾; Fore-street Warehouse, 9½; General Credit, 7⅞; Hudson's Bay, 16½ ex div.; International Financial, 7⅞; Joint-stock Discount, 9½; London Financial, 23¾; Ditto, New, 23½; London General Omnibus, 3½; Mediterranean Extension Telegraph, 3½; Natal Land, 5; National Discount, 15¼; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 80½; Rio de Janeiro City Improvements, 25½; Société Financière d'Egypte, 4¾; Universal Marine Insurance, 6½; Warrant Finance, 9.

There has been about an average business doing in the Railway Share Market, and prices have been well supported. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Great Eastern, 47½; Great Western, 80½; Ditto, West Midland—Hereford, 102; London, Chatham, and Dover, 37½; London and North-Western, 122; London and South-Western, 99; Manchester, Sheffield, and Lincolnshire, 64; Midland, 139½; North Staffordshire, 79; South-Eastern, 86½.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 100½; East Indian, 101½; Grand Trunk of Canada, 20; Great Indian Peninsula, 101¾.

Foreign.—Great Luxembourg, 13¼; Namur and Liege, 8¾; Ottoman, 9⅞; San Paulo, 13.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending Jan. 11 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

An increase of circulation of ..	£5,563	A decrease of other securities of ..	£1,873,833
A decrease of public deposits of ..	4,051,731	An increase of bullion of	163,798
An increase of other deposits of ..	2,299,189	An increase of rest of	38,755
A decrease of Govt. securities of .	1,186	An increase of reserve of	193,853

The total circulation is £21,012,778; public deposits amount to £4,445,535; and private deposits to £16,174,166; securities are £30,957,830; and the stock of bullion is £14,097,390.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Jan. 9.—The supply of English wheat on sale here to-day was very moderate, and most kinds were disposed of at last week's prices. Fine foreign wheat commanded full quotations; but inferior samples were dull, at late rates. Floating cargoes of grain commanded very little attention. Malting barley moved off steadily; other kinds slowly, on former terms. There was a fair inquiry for malt, at full quotations. Good sound oats were unaltered in value; but heated samples gave way 6d. per quarter. Beans and peas were heavy, at late currencies. The flour trade was tolerably healthy.

Jan. 11.—Fine wheat, barley, and oats were in fair request to-day, at full prices. Otherwise, the demand was in a sluggish state.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 36s. to 45s.; ditto, white, 35s. to 46s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 36s. to 40s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 25s. to 26s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 24s. to 32s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 51s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; chevalier, 62s. to 63s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 18s. to 22s.; potato ditto, 22s. to 25s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 22s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 23s.; tick beans, 30s. to 34s.; grey peas, 31s. to 34s.; maple, 36s. to 39s.; white, 35s. to 39s.; boilers, 36s. to 39s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 36s. to 40s.; town households, 32s. to 33s.; country marks, 27s. to 33s. per 280 lb.; French, 31s. to 33s. per sack; American, 19s. to 24s. per barrel.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 890; barley, 1350; malt, 2250; oats, 2720; flour, 950. Irish: Oats, 1230. Foreign: Wheat, 1050; barley, 21,930; oats, 1020; flour, 100 sacks, 3510 barrels.

Seeds.—Clover seed is in request, and again rather dearer. Trefoil and tares are held for more money. In other seeds very little is doing. Cakes move off slowly.

Linseed, English, sowing, 58s. to 61s.; Calcutta, 59s. to 60s.; hempseed, 42s. to 46s. per quarter; coriander, 18s. to 22s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 9s. to 10s.; white ditto, 9s. 6d. to 10s.; tares, 8s. to 9s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 76s. to 80s. per quarter; Linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 5s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 11s.; rape cakes, £5 5s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 50s. to 56s. per quarter; red clover seed, 48s. to 88s.; white ditto, 50s. to 78s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Tea.—Nearly all kinds are a slow inquiry, and low qualities are the turn lower. The supply on offer is extensive.

Sugar.—The demand is restricted to very moderate quantities, at a further decline in the quotations of from 6d. to 1s. per cwt. The stock consists of 110,236 tons, against 77,116 tons last year. In refined goods very little is doing, at 43s. 6d. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—Good and fine samples have changed hands at full prices. Otherwise, the trade is heavy, at 1s. per cwt. less money. Stock, 11,339 tons, against 11,735 tons in 1864.

Rice.—Only a limited business is doing in our market. Prices, however, are supported. The stock amounts to 46,107 tons, against 47,190 tons last year.

Provisions.—The butter market is steady, and prices are well supported. There is a fair sale for bacon, at 62s. per cwt. for Waterford on board. Hams and lard move off heavily, at drooping currencies; whilst most other provisions are a dull inquiry.

Tallow.—The demand is steady, at full quotations. P.Y.C., on the spot, 41s. 6d. per cwt. Stock, 56,544 casks, against 69,316 casks last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is in fair request, at 31s. per cwt. Rape is selling at £43 to £17; cocoanut, £35 10s. to £37; and fine palm, £36. French turpentine is freely offered at 63s. 6d. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum moves off steadily, at full prices. In the value of brandy and grain spirits we have no change to notice.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 8s.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 6s.; and straw, £1 8s. to £1 12s. per load.

Coals.—Hetton Hall, 21s.; Kelloe, 21s.; West Hartley, 17s. 6d.; Walker Primrose, 15s. 3d. per ton.

Hops.—There is a fair demand for good and fine samples, at full prices. In other kinds, very little is doing. The quotations range from 110s. to 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—English qualities are selling freely, at extreme rates; but foreign and colonial wools are a dull inquiry.

Potatoes.—The supplies are large and the trade is heavy, at from 50s. to 120s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, Jan. 12).—The supply of beasts in our market to-day was only moderate. Prime Scots, crosses, &c., moved off steadily, at full quotations, the top figure being 5s. 6d. per 8 lb.; otherwise, the beef trade was inactive, on former terms. Sheep—the show of which was rather limited—were in good request, at extreme currencies. The best Downs and half-breds sold at fully 6s. per 8 lb. We have to report a slow inquiry for calves, at late rates—viz., from 4s. 6d. to 5s. 8d. per 8 lb. The supply was very moderate. In pigs and milch cows the transactions were limited, at about stationary prices.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 4d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 6d. to 4s. 10d.; prime large oxen, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 4d. to 5s. 6d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; prime Southdown ditto, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 0d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 6d. to 5s. 2d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 0d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; suckling calves, 18s. to 21s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 902; cows, 110; sheep, 3040; calves, 116; pigs, 300. Foreign: Beasts, 130; sheep, 300; calves, 92.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—The supplies of meat are moderate, and the trade is steady, as follows:—Beef, from 3s. 0d. to 5s. 0d.; mutton, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; veal, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 10d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 6.

BANKRUPTS.

H. TUFF, Walmer, Kent, agent.—W. WILLIAMS, Little Shelford, Cambridge.—J. and L. J. NATHAN, Houndsditch, clothiers.—J. HUMBLE, Blackman-street, Borough, milliner.—J. M'KINNELL, Brunswick-square, Middlesex, ventilating engineer.—J. H. BOND, Cambridge Villas, Camden Town.—M. CORDER, Shad Thames and Rotherhithe, lighterman.—F. CALLOW, sen., Hoxton Old Town, cabinetmaker.—J. MULLIS, Little Guildford-street, Southwark, marble mason.—J. WHITEHEAD, Westleton, Suffolk, miller.—C. MACE, Fakenham, Norfolk, draper.—G. LEACH, Farnborough, Hants, gardener.—F. T. WILLIS, Watling-street, City.—J. STERNER, Catherine-court, Tower-hill, wine and spirit merchant.—J. BRAND, Saffron Walden, cordwainer.—C. PEARSON, Banbury, Oxford, and Birmingham, hairdresser.—H. BARNETT, Cannon-street-road, St. George's-in-the-East, dealer in cloth goods.—W. SIBBETT, Eastgate, Rochester, painter.—J. AARONS, New-road, Whitechapel-road, shoe manufacturer.—E. K. GRAYLING, Caletplace, Commercial-road East, confectioner.—W. AMBLER, Manchester, attorney.—W. M. ANDREWS, Kidderminster, market-gardener.—G. BARRETT, Weymouth, plumber.—W. BAILEY, Packington, innkeeper.—P. BAYNES, Luton, straw-plait dyer.—W. BUBB, Southsea, builder.—J. T. BEDDOWS, Wolverhampton, butcher.—W. BUCKETT, Oxford, plasterer.—T. BIRCHWOOD, Liverpool, broker.—W. BURGESS, Thornley Colliery.—W. CAWTHRAY, Yeadon, Yorkshire, tailor.—W. CLAPHAM, Otley, farmer.—D. COLLYER, Luton, draper.—W. DRAYCOTT, Alton, farmer.—T. B. EAMES, near Bishop's Waltham.—E. and A. EDMONDSON, Halifax, worsted-spinners.—E. EVANS, sen., and E. EVANS, jun., Llanbrynmair, builders.—A. EDMUNDSON and J. WIGGLESWORTH, Burnley, cotton manufacturers.—F. HARDAKER, Rawden, cloth manufacturer.—W. A. HOLGATE, Jersey.—A. C. LYCETT, Scarborough, linendraper.—T. NELSON, Steeple Aston, general dealer.—J. NICHOLSON, St. Bees, grocer.—R. WHEELER, Cowley, Oxfordshire, dairyman.—D. NISBETT, Brighton, tailor.—W. PAGE, Lewes, bookseller.—J. RAYNER, Wakefield, butcher.—G. RIVERS, Crookham.—J. ROBINSON, Rusholme.—J. SHAW, jun., Chorlton-on-Medlock, painter.—T. SUFFOLK, Lichfield, butcher.—E. TEE, Wath-upon-Dearne, Yorkshire, grocer.—A. TURNBULL, Spennymore, innkeeper.—J. TURNER, Plymouth, butcher.—T. J. and G. TURNER, Stalbridge, butcher.—J. WARD, Cottenham, Cambridgeshire.—T. WARDLE, Burslem, ironmonger.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

R. RUSSELL, Port Dundas, Glasgow, storekeeper.—J. M'LEOD, deceased, Helmsdale, Sutherlandshire, fishcurer.—A. RITCHIE, Woodside, Aberdeen, baker.—D. H. SMITH, Dundee, merchant.—J. WILLIAMSON, Glasgow, oil merchant.—J. YOUNG, Aboyne, wood merchant and farmer.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 10.

BANKRUPTS.

T. W. BRADLEY, City, merchant.—R. GOTTEL, City, merchant.—J. ARKILL, City, greengrocer.—G. EURIPIDI, Surrey-street, merchant.—W. J. DEVON, Homerton.—W. F. FEARN, Bethnal-green, licensed victualler.—F. BALLS, Soho.—D. T. WOODHAMS, Camberwell, attorney.—T. COOK, Old Kent-road, engineer.—A. LONG, Islington, commission agent.—F. W. SMITH, Lewisham, general agent.—W. B. WIGELSWORTH, Wallom-green, licensed victualler.—F. RICKARDS, sen., Tongham, coal merchant.—T. ANTHONY, Aldershott, grocer.—W. ALDWORTH, South Hinksey, licensed victualler.—A. BATTEN, Kintbury, farmer.—J. B. CLARKE, Norwich, wharfinger.—R. W. PALMER, Botesdale, grocer.—F. MORTIMER, Mark, draper.—J. BYRNS and T. W. BARNES, Gloucester, shipbuilders.—J. C. HENLEY, Torquay, carpenter.—J. FOSTER, Horbury, worsted-spinner.—W. DEACON, Windhill, flannel manufacturer.—P. CROSSLAND, Earlsheaton, woollen manufacturer.—L. WALKER, Leeds, cloth merchant.—R. STONE, Liverpool, joiner.—W. WILLIAMS, Llanyflin, grocer.—G. JACKSON, Liverpool, filemaker.—G. F. CROSSLEY, Hulme, silk dyer.—G. G. ARMITAGE, Luton.—M. DAVIES, Milford, grocer.—S. PALMER, Newcastle-under-Lyme.—T. SIMPSON, Sheffield, butcher.—J. W. CULWICK, Wolverhampton, baker.—C. SPOONER, Chapel Ash, plumber.—J. COULSON, Leeds, commission agent.—G. MARSH, Sheephouse.—J. RUSSELL, Bristol, coachbuilder.—G. W. THOMAS, Cardiff, accountant.—M. THOMAS, Ystradowen, carpenter.—S. DIGGLE, Loughborough, trimmer.—W. HILL, Sheffield, chandelier-maker.—J. ARROWSMITH, Kingston-on-Hull, nailmaker.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

D. H. SMITH, Dundee, merchant.—J. YOUNG, Aboyne, Aberdeenshire, wood merchant. W. T. TEMPLETON and J. CLAPPERTON, Greenock, merchants.

DISTRIBUTION OF THE QUEEN'S NEW-YEAR'S-DAY BOUNTY AT WINDSOR.

WE give an Illustration of the ceremony of distributing her Majesty's New-Year's gifts to the poor of New Windsor and the district. It took place at ten o'clock in the morning, on Monday week, in the Butchers' Market, beneath the Townhall, Windsor, in the presence of Mr. W. R. Harris (the Mayor), the Rev. H. J. Ellison, Vicar of Windsor; the Revs. Messrs. Simpson, Rooke, and Stone, and H. Hawtrey, of Windsor; the Rev. T. Carter, of Clewer, and others. The Queen's bounty—which in happier times was given to the poor of Windsor in the presence of her Majesty and the late Prince Consort at the Riding-school of Windsor Castle—consisted of portions of beef of the finest quality, weighing from 3 lb. to 7 lb. (supplied by Messrs. Bedborough and Sons, purveyors to the Queen and Prince of Wales; and Messrs. Copeland and Hughes, the principal butchers in Windsor), and quantities of coals of from 1 cwt. to 3 cwt., supplied by Mr. Little, coal merchant, of the Great Western Railway yard, Windsor. The coals were delivered at the homes of the poor people. The beef was presented in the market, the distribution to several hundred persons being superintended by Mr. Miller, the clerk controller of the kitchen at Windsor Castle, assisted by Mr. Renwick. The scene was a very striking and interesting one. The benches and stalls in the market, the avenue leading to which was guarded by the borough police, were loaded with pieces of beef, ticketed with the proper weights. As soon as the gates were opened the market was thronged with those of the poor entitled to partake of her Majesty's bounty, and the distribution of the beef was commenced. Gradually the large red piles of meat were reduced in size as the recipients, with smiling faces, retired with their gifts, and in about twenty minutes all had received the bounty awarded to them. During the distribution the bells of the parish church of St. John rang out a merry peal.

THE ZULU KAFFIRS OF PORT NATAL.

THE name Kaffir, or Caffre as formerly written, is an Arabic word, meaning simply heathen, or not Mussulman; but it is chiefly applied by ourselves to that race of mankind which occupies the extensive regions of South Africa eastward and northward of the Cape Colony. There are four principal nations, originally of one stock—the Amakosa, near the Great Kei and Keiskamma rivers; the Amatimba, in the back country towards the Orange River Free State; the Amaponda, farther along the coast, or in British Kaffraria; and, lastly, the Zulus or Vatvahs, in the neighbourhood of Port Natal. But these last appear to have some affinity with the Sechouana or Bechouana nation, and it is believed that they came from the north of their present abode, from somewhere about Delagoa Bay. They are, as may be seen, a fine athletic race; and that they have a fair share of intellectual capacity we learn from the experience of Bishop Colenso, who made himself acquainted with their language and habits of mind for the sake of instructing them in the truths of the Bible. The Kaffirs, says a missionary, generally acknowledge the existence of a supreme deity, for whom they have several names; "but they observe no form of worship, and their notions of a future life are vague and unsettled. They have no idols, but they have other superstitions, believing in witchcraft, spirits, and apparitions; and they sacrifice animals to propitiate the ghosts of the dead." As the Zulus of Port Natal are peaceable and docile, it is to be hoped that they will benefit by the arts of civilisation.

RECENT AUSTRALIAN EXPLORERS.

THE expedition led by Mr. John M'Kinlay in the autumn of 1861, from Adelaide, South Australia, due northwards across the interior of that vast continent previously unknown, was undertaken with a view to relieve the party of Burke and Wills, who had been missing for some time, and whose fate was then a subject of the most anxious speculation. Mr. M'Kinlay discovered, on the 20th of October, the graves of one or two of the former party on the shores of Lake Massacre; but intelligence of what had befallen them was, in the mean time, brought to Melbourne by the escape of the survivor, George King. The further progress of Mr. M'Kinlay's expedition to the region of the Gulf of Carpentaria, and thence to the east side of the Australian continent, was productive of some valuable results; but the expedition of Mr. John M'Douall Stuart, who, in the year 1862, travelled, with nine companions, from Adelaide to the shores of the Indian Ocean by a different route, was of no less importance. A minute record of their adventures, in each case, is preserved in the diaries of Messrs. M'Kinlay and Stuart, published by order of the Government of South Australia, at whose expense these difficult and perilous journeys were undertaken. We present the Portraits of the two leaders, as brave and hardy Scotchmen, whose exploits have done honour to the land of their birth. Mr. Stuart, we learn, gained his first experiences under Captain Sturt in 1844, in whose expedition he was draughtsman. It was not, however, till 1858 that he had the command of an expedition, which, though only composed of three persons and undertaken at private cost, was one of considerable importance. It lasted from May to September, 1858, and on his return Mr. Stuart was presented with a large grant of land by the South Australian Government. The country explored was from Mount Eyre to Denial and Streaky Bays on the west coast of the Port Lincoln district. Mr. Stuart's next expeditions were started at the expense of his friends, Messrs. James Chambers and William Finke. They lasted from April 2 to July 3, 1860; and again from Nov. 4, 1859, to Jan. 21, 1860. His fourth expedition started from Chambers Creek (discovered by him in 1858, and afterwards made his head-quarters) on

MR. JOHN M'DOUALL STUART, AUSTRALIAN EXPLORER.

March 2, and on April 23 he reached the centre of Australia, from which he travelled in a north-westerly direction; but afterwards he changed his route to north-east till he reached lat. 18 deg. 47 min. south, long. 134 deg., when he was driven back by the natives. On New Year's Day, 1861, Stuart again left Adelaide; and on this occasion the Colonial Government gave £2500 in aid of the expedition, the rest being provided by Messrs. Chambers and Finke. He made lat. 17 deg., long. 133 deg., about 100 miles beyond his former point. On this occasion the party were 106 hours without water. They reached, however, the settled districts safely in September, and in about a month afterwards started again. This time Stuart was successful in reaching the sea at a place he called Chambers Bay, where the union jack was erected, amidst the cheers of his party; and here Mr. Stuart buried a tin case, which contained a paper with the following record:—

MR. BOYLE TRAVERS FINNIS, GOVERNMENT RESIDENT OF NORTH AUSTRALIA.

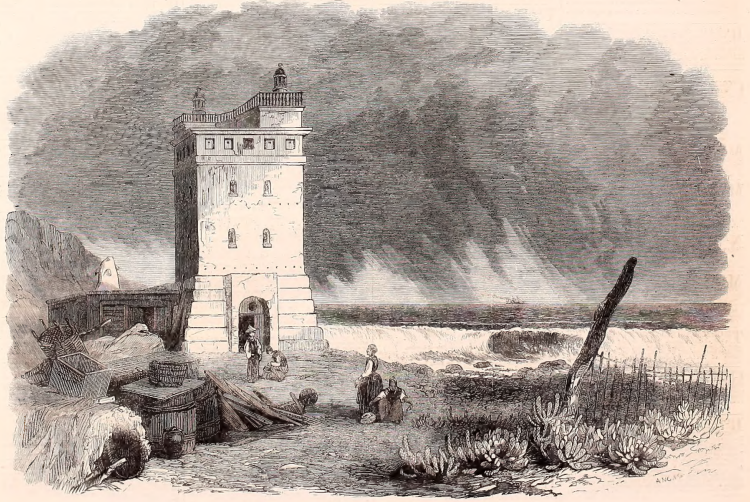
"The exploring party under the command of John M'Douall Stuart arrived at this spot on the 25th day of July, 1862, having crossed the entire Continent of Australia from the Southern to the Indian Ocean, passing through the centre. They left the city of Adelaide on the 26th day of October, 1861; and the most northern station of the colony on the 21st of January, 1862. To commemorate this happy event they have raised this flag. All well. God save the Queen!" "South Australian Great Northern Exploring Expedition."

THE GOVERNMENT RESIDENT OF NORTH AUSTRALIA.

THE successful exploration of the northern territory of Australia was soon followed by preparations for its settlement. Quick to see the advantages arising from such a step, the Government of South Australia applied to the home authorities for permission to found a colony upon the shores of the Gulf of Carpentaria, which should be under its superintendence. The request, with some restrictions, was granted. Mr. Boyle Travers Finniss has been appointed the first Government Resident of North Australia. He will lay out the surveys and select the site for the capital of the colony; and, from his large colonial experience and his reputation as an efficient officer commands, in every way, the confidence which has been reposed in him. Mr. Finniss's career in the public service is of nearly thirty-eight years' standing. He was educated in the Royal Military College of Sandhurst, entered the Army in 1825 as an ensign of the 88th Regiment, was transferred to the 56th, exchanged into the 82nd, and sold out in 1835 to settle in South Australia. Having been previously employed at the Mauritius in the department of roads and bridges, he became deputy Surveyor-General of South Australia. In 1843 he was appointed a magistrate and a Commissioner of Police. In 1847 he became Treasurer and Registrar-General, and a member of the Legislative Council, from which he rose to be Colonial Secretary and member of the Executive Council in 1849. In 1854 he received a commission as Lieutenant-Colonel on the Staff of the Volunteer force; and on the departure of Sir Henry Young, in December of that year, Mr. Finniss became Acting Lieutenant-Governor of the colony of South Australia, which post he held until the arrival of Sir Richard M'Donnell, on the 7th of June, 1855, when he resumed the office of Colonial Secretary.

MR. JOHN M'KINLAY, AUSTRALIAN EXPLORER.

On the establishment of responsible government with the new Constitution, Mr. Finniss was appointed the first Chief Secretary, and elected to a seat in the first House of Assembly by the citizens of Adelaide. On Aug. 21, 1857, he resigned, with the rest of the Ministry, but again accepted office as Treasurer in another Ministry in June, 1858, resigning on the 9th of May, 1860. In addition to these services, Mr. Finniss was subsequently made Lieutenant-Colonel of the Adelaide volunteer regiment at a time when the force numbered 2000 volunteers. During his legislative career Mr. Finniss took part in passing the Act incorporating the city of Adelaide, the Volunteer and Militia Acts, the Act establishing the railway system, the Act for introducing a supply of fresh water to the city of Adelaide, and the Constitution Act. Mr. Finniss's appointment as Resident of North Australia seems to be approved: the salary attached to the office is £1000 a year.



DISTRIBUTION OF THE QUEEN'S NEW-YEAR'S DAY BOUNTY AT WINDSOR.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

ZULU KAFFIRS OF NATAL, SOUTH AFRICA.—SEE PAGE 35.

THE LIGHTHOUSE AT GREEN POINT, CAPETOWN.

At the southern entrance to Table Bay stands the Green Point lighthouse, and round this point ships have to pass coming to anchor in the bay from the eastward. At times the huge surf-rollers of the southern ocean break heavily upon the rocky point just beyond the lighthouse, which is built low to prevent its being at times shrouded in the masses of white vapour which rest on the hillsides above during the prevalence of S.E. winds. The drive from Capetown to Green Point is a very pleasant one, and the locality contains the residences of many of the wealthy residents of the city, who here enjoy the cool sea-breezes, which are shut out by the Lion's Head mountain from Capetown itself, where the heat and dust are sometimes oppressive.

LIGHTHOUSE AT GREEN POINT, CAPE TOWN, SOUTH AFRICA.

GOUNOD'S GRAND OPERA, FAUST, and the GREAT CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME Every Evening. Morning Performances, Tuesdays and Saturdays. HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. Managers, Messrs. EDMUND FALCONER and F. B. CHATTERTON.—The Free-list entirely suspended.—On MONDAY, JAN. 16, and during the Week, the Farce of A YOUNG LAD FROM THE COUNTRY. Principal characters by Messrs. G. Belmore, G. F. Neville, Fitzjames, G. Spencer, Miss Helen Howard, and Miss Wilmott. Doors open at Half-past Six; commence at Seven, and terminate at Eleven. Morning Performances of the Pantomime on Monday, Jan. 16, and every Wednesday and Saturday until further notice. Children and Schools at reduced prices to the following parts of the Theatre:—Dress Circle, First Circle, and Stalls, for Morning Performances only. At the Grand Morning Performance on Saturday, Jan. 21, the Boys of the Duke of York's School, with their Band, will attend. The Holidays, the GRAND CHRISTMAS COMIC PANTOMIME, written by E. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled HOP O' MY THUMB. The gorgeously-beautiful character of the decorations, inclusive of more than the usual amount of scenical surprises and transformation wonders, are ensured by the fact of their being entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley, whose eminent services have been retained this Christmas exclusively for the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane. The general action of the pantomime arranged by, and the whole produced under the direction of, Mr. Robert Roxby. Characters in the opening:—Miss Lydia Thompson, Miss E. Falconer, Miss Hudspeth, Mr. G. Belmore, Tom Matthews, Mr. Fitzjames, Mr. Mcagreson, Mr. G. Weston, and Master Percy Roselle, &c. The Harlequinade will include the services of those popular pantomimists (forming a Double Company), Harry Boleno and Mr. C. Lauri, Clowns; Mr. W. A. Barnes and Mr. J. Morris, Pantaloons; Mr. Cormack and Mr. S. Saville, Harlequins; Mdme. Boleno and Misses Gunniss, Columbines. Signor Toscano, the talented One-legged Dancer, and Mdlle. Deteto, four years of age, who will introduce her celebrated Imitations à la Perea Nena. The Masks, Devices, and Dresses from designs by the humorously-renowned Dykwynkyn. The Dances and Action of the Ballet arranged and invented by Mr. Cormack. Comic Scenes, Tricks, &c., invented by Messrs. H. Boleno and Cormack. The Music selected and arranged by Mr. J. Barnard. Machinery by Mr. Tucker and Assistants. Gas Effects by Mr. J. Hinkley. Properties by Mr. Needham and Assistants. Dresses by Mr. S. May and Mrs. Lawler. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.—On MONDAY, FEB. 13, 1865, a MORNING PERFORMANCE will take place in AID of the above FUND. Sir E. B. Lytton's Comedy of MONEY, with a powerful cast. Full particulars will be duly announced.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Immense Success of Mr. Sothern in his two famous characters of David Garrick and Lord Dundreary Married and Done For, which he will represent every evening. Mr. Buckstone will also appear in both pieces. Great success of Mr. Byron's Christmas Fairy Extravaganza of PRINCESS SPRINGTIME; or, The Envoy who Stole the King's Daughter—Miss Louise Keeley, Miss Nelly Moore, Mr. Compton, &c. MONDAY, JAN. 16, at Seven, DAVID GARRICK; at Nine, LORD DUNDREARY MARRIED AND DONE FOR; after which, PRINCESS SPRINGTIME; concluding with A DAY AFTER THE WEDDING.—N.B. The Christmas piece concludes at Eleven.—Box-office open daily from Ten till Five.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE.—LAST NIGHTS of RUY BLAS, withdrawn for the production of a New Drama, in which Mr. Fechter will perform.—On MONDAY, and during the Week, to commence with, MY WIFE'S OUT—Mr. H. Widdicombe. After which, at Eight o'Clock, RUY BLAS—Ruy Blas, Mr. Fechter; Messrs. Ryder, Fitzpatrick, F. Charles, M'Intyre, Garden, Raymond, Collett, Clifford, Moreland; Misses Carlotta Leclercq, H. Percy, and Mrs. Winstanley. To conclude with a Farcical Oriental Extravaganza, entitled BEAR-FACED IMPOSTORS—Messrs. H. Widdicombe, Moreland, Garden, Raymond, Collett, Miss B. Percy, and Miss E. Lavenue. Divertissement des Podalcrques. Doors open at Half-past Six. Box-office open daily from Eleven till Five.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—MONDAY and during the Week, ICI ON PARLE FRANCAIS—Mr. J. L. Toole. At Eight, LEAH—Miss Bateman; and DARK DOINGS IN THE CLOSET—BY THE KNOTTING-'EM BROTHERS. Mr. J. L. Toole, P. Bedford, Mrs. A. Mellon. Commence at Seven.

NEW GREAT NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Shoreditch.—This magnificent Theatre open Every Evening with the successful Pantomime of DAME DURDEN AND HER FIVE SERVING-MAIDS; or, Robert and Richard were Two Pretty Men. Concluding with a Drama.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL. The talk of London is the Great Success of PRICE'S SPANISH HIPPODROME and CIRCO, Nightly crowded by enthusiastic Patrons. Constant change of Novelties. GRAND MILITARY and EQUESTRIAN SPECTACLE, entitled THE BRIGAND OF CALABRIA, introducing upwards of 300 Performers and the whole of the Magnificent Stud of 100 Horses, the Spectacle being interspersed with Feats of Arms, Grand Charges of Cavalry, Combats, &c., concluding with the Terrific Leap of a Horse, mounted by two persons, over a broken bridge raised 40 ft. high.

This extraordinary feat has never before been attempted in this country.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL. Open EVERY EVENING at Seven, commence at Half-past. Admission—Private Boxes (holding six persons), 30s.; single tickets to the same, 5s.; Reserved Seats, numbered chairs, 3s.; First Class, 2s.; Second Class, 1s.; the whole of the Galleries, 6d. Box-office open daily from Eleven till Four. Proprietor, Mr. Thos. Price. Acting Manager, Mr. John Henderson.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.

COMMODORE NUTT and MINNIE WARREN.—THREE GRAND LEVEES DAILY, at Eleven, Three, and Eight o'Clock. "Nature's smallest edition of her choicest works"—a bachelor and belle of mature age, not larger than two infants. At Eleven o'Clock they appear in the identical Costume worn by them at the Marriage of General Tom Thumb; and they also perform Songs, Duets, Dances, &c., with change of Programme at each Levée. Box-office open from Ten to Half-past Twelve, and from Two to Half-past Four. Admission, 1s. and 2s.; Reserved Seats, 3s. Children Half price in 2s. and 3s. seats.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, and Mr. JOHN PARRY, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight, Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Opera di Camera, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY, and TOO MANY COOKS, every Tuesday and Thursday Mornings at Three.

MUSICAL UNION.—Members declining to Subscribe Season 1865 to notify the same, in writing, before the 1st of March. The Record of 1864, with a Portrait of Meyerbeer, will be published next month. The library of the Institute is open from Two to Four o'Clock, Mondays, for the loan of its contents to Donors. Several additions have been made of Foreign and English works. Director, J. Ella.
18, Hanover-square.

NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY, EXETER HALL: Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.—Performance of THE CREATION, WEDNESDAY, JAN. 25. Commence at Eight. Miss Louisa Pyne, Mr. Sims Reeves. Band and chorus, 700. Tickets, 2s., 3s.; Numbered Stalls, 5s., 10s. 6d., 21s.—14, 15, Exeter Hall.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS. The SEVENTH SEASON will commence on MONDAY EVENING NEXT, JAN. 16, at ST. JAMES'S HALL. Pianoforte, Herr Pauer; violin, Herr Ludwig Straus; violoncello, M. Paque. Vocalists, Miss Louisa Pyne and Mr. Renwick. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s. Admission, 1s. Programmes and tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; Cramer and Co.'s, Regent-street; and at Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s, 48, Cheapside.

THURTON'S ODD FOLKS, with a new piece of Extravagance, termed GOING TO COURT. The Japanese Dandy, the Right of Way, and other Novelties, at the BROADMEAD ROOMS, BRISTOL, JAN. 16, 17, 18, 19, and 20. Tickets of Mr. A. Dimoline, Bookseller, 34, College-green, Bristol.

GEOLOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON. Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will commence a Course of WEDNESDAY EVENING LECTURES on GEOLOGY, from Eight to Nine. First Lecture, JAN. 25. And a more extended Course on Wednesday and Friday Mornings, from Nine to Ten. First Lecture, Friday, Jan. 27. This Course will be continued till May.
R. W. JELF, D.D., Principal.

ROYAL INSTITUTION OF GREAT BRITAIN, Albemarle-street, W., Jan. 11, 1865.
PROFESSOR TYNDALL will commence a Course of Twelve Lectures on "Electricity" on Tuesday next, at Three o'Clock, to be continued on Tuesdays and Thursdays till Feb. 23.
PROFESSOR MARSHALL will commence a Course of Twelve Lectures on "The Nervous System in Man and Animals" on Saturday next at Three o'Clock, to be continued on Saturdays till April 8.
Subscription to either of these Courses, One Guinea; to all the Courses in the Season, Two Guineas.
The Friday Evening Meetings will commence on Friday next at Eight o'Clock. Professor Tyndall will give a discourse on "Combustion by Invisible Rays," beginning at Nine o'Clock.
To the Friday Evening Meetings members and their friends only are admitted. H. BENCE JONES, Hon. Sec.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE.—SUMMER in WINTER.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY to FRIDAY.—The Wizard of the North and Miss Anderson in their World of Magic and Second Sight.
No extra charge.
Palace lighted up from Dusk till Half-past Six. "A sight alone well worth a journey to Norwood to see."—Vide Times.
The New Picture Gallery.
In addition to these:—The Fine Arts Courts, in variety and beauty unequalled in the world—The decorations of the Palace, with the Great Christmas-tree—The Great Fair and Bazaar—Shakspere House—Montanari Models—Swings, Roundabouts, Invigorators, and other popular amusements—Galleries of Models and Ships—Armour-plates, lent by official authority—The extraordinary Chimpanzee—The unique Aquariums. All these things render the Crystal Palace the one place for holiday enjoyment.
Admission, One Shilling. Children under twelve, Sixpence. Luxuriously warm and dry.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—This Day (Saturday), THE WIZARD OF THE NORTH and MISS ANDERSON in their WORLD OF MAGIC and SECOND SIGHT. Commence at Three o'Clock.
After the Entertainment, the usual Saturday Afternoon Promenade, the Palace being lighted up.
Admission, Half-a-Crown; Children, One Shilling. Guinea Season Tickets free. Reserved Seats, unnumbered, One Shilling extra.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND. INCORPORATED BY ACT OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY. Bankers to the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments of Auckland, Canterbury, Otago, &c.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £100,000.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand.

Auckland	Blenheim	Oamaru	Invercargill
New Plymouth	Lyttelton	Tokomairiro	Riverton
Napier	Akaroa	Wetherstone	Waikitipu
Wellington	Christchurch	Waitahuna	Shotover
Wanganui	Kaiapoi	Dunstan	Kingston
Nelson	Timaru	Manuherikia	Queenstown
Picton	Dunedin	Teviot	Hogburn

This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places in New Zealand, and transacts every description of Banking business connected with that colony, on terms which may be learned on application at the London Office. F. LARKWORTHY,
No. 50, Old Broad-street, City. Managing Director.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, secured by a payment of from £3 to £5 5s. per annum to the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street. W. J. VIAN, Secretary.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

NAVAL CADETSHIPS, &c.—EASTMAN'S ROYAL NAVAL ESTABLISHMENT, Eastern-parade, Southsea.—At the Quarterly Examinations of 1864 Pupils stood on their respective lists:—2nd, 3rd, 4th, 5th, 5th, 6th, 6th, 12th, 12th; 1st, 2nd, 3rd, 4th, 6th, 7th, 8th, 11th, 20th, 31st, 42nd; 1st, 2nd, 4th, 7th, 8th, 8th, 11th, 13th, 32nd; 2nd, 4th, 7th, 9th, 11th, 13th, 27th, 32nd, and 35th. More than 700 Pupils have entered her Majesty's service. Pupils received from ten years of age and upwards. For every information address Dr. SPICKERNELL, as above.

PICTURE-FRAMES for the CHRISTMAS-TREE.—Handsome Gilt Frame, Glass, and Back, 3s. Maple and Gilt, 5s. The trade supplied with Mouldings, at GEO. REES', 57, Drury-lane, and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

ILKLEY WELLS HOUSE HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT, near Otley, Yorkshire. Resident Physician, Dr. William Philip Harrison.
The absolute purity and extreme dryness of the air of Ilkley are too well known to require comment. An equable temperature is preserved in the spacious corridors by Stuart and Smith's Patent Apparatus, rendering this superb mansion a desirable WINTER RESIDENCE for the invalid, at which season the treatment is equally efficacious with the summer. For prospectuses apply to Mr. STRACHAN, House Steward, as above.

FIRE IN GRESHAM-STREET WEST, LONDON, E.C.

MESSRS. THOMAS TAPLING and CO., Carpet Warehousemen, &c., will, until further notice, CARRY ON THEIR BUSINESS in premises, all communicating, at 44A, GRESHAM-STREET, and 74, ALDERMANBURY (opposite those of Messrs. Bradbury, Greatorex, and Beall).

TRELOAR'S KAMPTULICON FLOOR CLOTH. Manufacturer's Warehouse, 10, Ludgate-hill, London.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS. HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE'S New Catalogue, containing 18 pages of Illustrations, including completed Windows of the highest character, also Church Decorations and Memorial Brasses, now publishing, 3s. 6d., post-free.—Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

MARBLE CHIMNEYPIECES.—EVANS, SON, and CO. respectfully invite the attention of purchasers to their extensive Stock of the above, as well as of Stoves, Grates, and Fenders, en suite, adapted to every style of decoration and to apartments of all descriptions.
Show-rooms, 33 and 34, King William-street, London Bridge.

R. E. SIMPSON and CO.'S SEWING-MACHINES will Bind, Braid, Hem, Cord, Quilt, &c.; by self-adjusting gauges, produce a stitch which, for strength, beauty, and regularity, is unparalleled; and make, by a simple method, shown to purchasers, patterns for Braiding or Stitching.—116, Cheapside. Manufactory—Maxwell-street, Glasgow.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. Ninety thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal 1862.

DR. DE JONGH'S (Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium) LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL, prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.

DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. LAWRANCE,
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS immediately relieve the most violent fit of Coughing. They have a pleasant taste.
At 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, by all Druggists.

LADIES NURSING.—ELAM'S NEW NIPPLE SHIELDS, Improved Enemas, Abdominal Supporters, and all Domestic Appliances and Nursery Requisites. Catalogues forwarded.—196, Oxford-street.

NEW BOOKS.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—The JANUARY DOUBLE NUMBER, 1s., now ready. Post-free, 2 stamps extra.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—GILMOUR'S WARD, a New Novel, is begun in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A CHAT WITH DULCY. By FRANCIS DERRICK, Author of "The Kiddle-a-Wink," is begun in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—STRIKING TWELVE AT KILGOON, a Christmas Story, appears in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—TEACHERS AND TEACHING, an Essay, is printed in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—FAMILIAR LINES—"The Maids of Merry England, how beautiful they are," drawn by Adelaide Claxton and written by the Odd Boy, illustrate the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—The FASHIONS are minutely and veraciously described by Mdme. Adolphe Goubaud in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—CHRISTMAS LITERATURE; what is Read and What is Looked at. In the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—FOR VALOUR, a new Story, by Thomas Hood, commences in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—THE COUNTESS'S COIFFURE, a brief, but emotional Novel, by a new Author, is begun in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—MADAME'S PILGRIMAGE: A Tale of Country Circles, is related in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—HELEN FAUCIT is the first of a group of celebrated actresses whose Biographies will be Sketched in "The Englishwoman's Domestic Magazine."

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—OPERAS, Oratorios, and Musical Entertainments are Described and Criticised in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—LA MODE and A NEWS LETTER from Paris, containing an Account of the Latest Changes in the Dresses and Toilettes of Le Beau Monde, are printed in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A COLOURED FASHION PLATE (octavo) of a Lady's Ball and a Dinner Dress, and of a Little Girl's entirely New Evening Dress for Juvenile Parties, accompanies the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A SECOND COLOURED FASHION PLATE (large 4to), illustrating Two New Styles of Morning and Walking Dresses, is included in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A BERLIN PATTERN, painted by hand, in fifteen colours, for the Back and Seat of a Drawing-room Lounging Chair, is comprised in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—New DANCE MUSIC for the PIANOFORTE, consisting of a New Set of Quadrilles by Arban, the Original Lancers, a New Waltz, printed separately from the Magazine, and inclosed in a handsomely-engraved wrapper, accompanies the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A very large sheet of fine tissue paper, with Braiding or Applique Design traced thereon ready for trimming the full Skirt, Epaulettes, and Cuffs of a Lady's Dress, is included in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A full-sized PATTERN for CUTTING-OUT and MAKING the IMOGEN SASH is given in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—A full-sized PATTERN for CUTTING-OUT and MAKING the JULIET FICHU is given in the January Number.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—The FASHION ENGRAVINGS in the January Number comprise:—The Josephine Ceinture; Merino Dress; Child's Striped Cloak and Paletot; Three Cashmere Scarfs; Travelling Hood; Juliet Fichu; Morning Dress; Morning Wrapper in Checked Flannel; Child's Garden Hood; Quilted Evening Cape; 17 Illustrations of Artificial Hair; Three Ceintures; Nine Illustrations of the newest Boots and Shoes; Six Head-dresses for Morning and Evening; Two half-page Cuts of the Toilettes for the month—The Ural Jacket.

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—The NEEDLEWORK ENGRAVINGS in the January Number comprise Four Patterns for Josephine Ceintures; Knitted Boot; Four Designs for Braiding or Applique; three Patterns for Cashmere Scarf; Crochet Purse; Child's Crochet Paletot; Knitted Muffatee; Handkerchief Corners, with Initials and Monograms; Two Braid Trimmings; Banner Screen; Berlin Pattern for the same; Two New Stitches in Crochet à Tricoter; Two New Patterns for Woolwork; Foot-muff in Crochet à Tricoter (four Illustrations); Pattern in Drawn Linen; Netting for Window-Curtains; Bead Cigar-case.

LONDON: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

THE PALL-MALL GAZETTE. An Evening Newspaper and Review.
It is difficult to describe the plan of an enterprise like the "Pall-Mall Gazette" without seeming to boast, or to decry the efforts of others. But we are unwilling to lose the advantage of a few words of explanation, and we therefore trust the candour of the reader for a just interpretation of our meaning.
The "Pall-Mall Gazette" will contain all the news proper to an evening journal. But, addressed as it will be to educated men and women, the space of the paper will not be occupied by trifling chronicles nor by that excess of words which adds nothing to the interest of newspaper records while it destroys their significance. Literary considerations alone would determine us to have our news reports written in plain English; but, beyond these, there is the fact that the lessons to be found in many an accident of human life or social polity are lost in the turgid language in which they are commonly narrated.
Events made known by the morning papers may be discussed in the "Pall-Mall Gazette" of the same day, but they will not be reported anew. Trustworthy advices from the Money Market will be included in the news of the day.
The rest of the paper (by far the greater part) will be made up of original articles upon the many things which engage the thoughts, or employ the energies, or amuse the leisure of mankind. Public affairs, literature, the arts, and all the influences which strengthen or dissipate society will be discussed by men whose independence and authority are equally unquestionable, and who are accustomed to regard the public expression of opinion as a serious thing. This is the chief aim of the "Pall-Mall Gazette:" to bring into Daily Journalism that full measure of thought and culture, which is now found only in a few reviews.
At the same time we by no means intend to make the Paper pedantic or solemn. Humour is too powerful, as well as too pleasant, to be left out of the design; which will lose none of the advantages of occasional trifling. If a thing can be said better in verse than in prose, it will be said in verse. Epigram, but not spite; burlesque, but not vulgarity; will be readily admitted into its columns; and since a joke is often as illustrative as an argument, good jokes will be welcome too.
It will be understood that this Advertisement is rather a proclamation of idea and of effort than of promise. But the proclamation is not made before a large number of able writers have accepted the idea, and pledged themselves to the effort.
Office of the "Pall-Mall Gazette,"
14, Salisbury-street, Strand, W.C.

J. GILBERT respectfully invites the attention of the Public to his SHOW-ROOMS for BOOKS, Maps, Atlases, Educational Works, Bibles, Prayers, and Church Services, all arranged in the most convenient way for purchasers to select from, and supplied at the most liberal prices. Catalogues gratis and post-free.—18, Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

NEW BOOKS.

MOLIÈRE CHARACTERS. By CHARLES COWDEN CLARKE, Author of "Shakespeare Characters," chiefly subordinate, &c., &c., will be ready next week, post 8vo, cloth, price 7s. 6d.
Edinburgh: W. P. NIMMO. London: Simpkin and Co.

THE JOURNAL OF HORTICULTURE, COTTAGE GARDENER, AND COUNTRY GENTLEMAN, conducted by GEO. W. JOHNSON, F.R.H.S., and ROBERT HOGG, LL.D., F.L.S., assisted by an efficient Staff, is a first-class Illustrated Gardening Periodical, published every Tuesday morning, in time for the day mail's. Price 3d.; stamped, 4d. A Specimen Number free for four stamps. A new Volume was commenced on Jan. 3, 1865.—Journal of Horticulture Office, 171, Fleet-street, E.C. To be had of all Booksellers, and at the Railway Stalls.

HARDWICKE'S SCIENCE GOSSIP about Animals, Aquaria, Bees, Beetles, Birds, Butterflies, Ferns, Fish, Fossils, Lichens, Microscopes, Mosses, Reptiles, Rocks, Seaweeds, Wild Flowers, &c. 4d. Monthly. No. 1, January, 1865.
HARDWICKE, Piccadilly; and all Booksellers.

Now ready, price One Shilling,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK for 1865, containing Ferns and Butterflies, with descriptive Letterpress by Mrs. Lankester, printed in Colours by Leighton Brothers; Twelve Fine-Art Engravings; Astronomical Diagrams of Remarkable Phenomena, with Explanatory Notes; and Twelve Original Designs as Headings to the Calendar.
It contains also Lists of the Royal Family of Great Britain; the Queen's Household; her Majesty's Ministers, and Public Offices and Officers; London and County Bankers; Law and University Terms; Fixed and Movable Festivals; Anniversaries and Remarkable Events; Times of High Water at London and Liverpool; Tables of Stamps, Taxes and Government Duties; the Christian, Jewish, and Mohammedan Calendars; Astronomical Symbols and Abbreviations; and a considerable amount of useful and interesting information, rendering the ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK an acceptable and elegant companion to the library, boudoir, or drawing-room.
The ILLUSTRATED LONDON ALMANACK is inclosed in an elegant cover, printed in colours.
Published at the Office of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, 198, Strand, and sold by all Booksellers and Newsagents.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,

DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.
MITCHELL and Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PRESENTS.—Purses, Pocket-Books, Cigar-cases, Card-cases, Wallets, Opera-glasses, Scent-bottles, Double and Single Pencil-cases, Fans, Note-cases, &c. N.B.—Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon pre-payment.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for Christmas presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

INDOOR GAMES OF EVERY KIND, at very Moderate prices.

Miniature Billiards,	Carpet and Table Croquet,
German Billiards,	Bagatelle (all sizes),
Cannonade, Mangola,	Ringolette,
Squails, Merelles,	Parlour Quoits,
Chess Men and Boards,	Dominoes,
Draughts, Pope Joan,	Backgammon, &c., &c.

PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

DANCE PROGRAMMES; Invitation and At Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers, Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Overland, Fancy, and Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

PLAYING CARDS (good), 8d. per pack, 7s. 6d. per doz.; gilt back ditto, 1s. per pack, 11s. per doz. All the new patterns now ready. Clubs, messes, and hotels supplied on liberal terms.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, London.

MINIATURE BILLIARD-TABLES, all Sizes; also Bagatelle-Tables and Croquet-boards.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S, 25, Oxford-street, W.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

FOR FAMILY ARMS.—Important to Everyone.—Just completed, a valuable Index, containing the Arms, Crests, and Mottoes of nearly every family in England, Scotland, and Ireland, the result of thirty years' labour, extracted from public and private records, church windows, monumental brasses, and sources throughout the kingdom. Families desirous of knowing their correct crest should send name and county. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Colours, 6s.; Arms, Crest, and Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced, with the origin of family names; wills searched; arms quartered and impaled. The "Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. CULLETON, Genealogist, Lecturer on Heraldry, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CREST ENGRAVED on SEALS or RINGS, 7s. 6d.; on Steel Die, 6s.; Book-plate, with Arms and Crest, 15s.; Handsome Desk Seal, with Crest, 10s.; Livery-button Dies, 2 guineas.—T. CULLETON, Engraver to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 25, Cranbourn-st. (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

SOLID GOLD RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, Engraved with Crest, 42s. Ditto, very massive, for Arms, Crest, and Motto, £3 15s. The Hall mark is a guarantee for pure gold. Gold Seals engraved with Crest, 15s.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Dies with Arms, Crest, Monogram, or Address (as charged for by other houses) if an order be given for a Guinea Box of Stationery, all stamped free.—T. CULLETON, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards, for 2s.; post-free. Wedding and Invitation Cards, 50 for 3s.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S PATENT ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. By means of this invention a thousand pieces of linen can be marked in a few hours. Initial Plate, 1s.; Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, 2s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 5s., with directions, post-free.—T. Culleton, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your carte de visite and 32 stamps, to the LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COPYING INSTITUTION, 73, Great College-street, Camden Town, N.W., or to 63, Tollington-road, Holloway, N., and you will receive 12 full-size copies with original. Tinting, three extra stamps for each carte. Address, WM. CHARLESON.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE IRON AGE! STEEL COLLARS! PERFECT WHITENESS! PERFECT COMFORT!
Ladies' or Gentlemen's Collars, 1s. 6d. each.
Ladies' or Gentlemen's Cuffs, 2s. 6d. a pair.
By post, 4d. each extra.
Sold by Mr. YEATMAN, 27, Leadenhall-street, E.C.; and 91, Regent-street, W.
May be had by post from the Patentee and Sole Manufacturer C. F. ATKINSON, Sheffield.
A Collar for 22 stamps; Pair of Cuffs, 34 stamps.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of England, Paris, and Spain, will forward, on receipt of thirty stamps, full directions in the new and beautiful art of getting-up the FACE and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other recipes for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Talbot, Folkingham, Lincolnshire.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR, for Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. A brilliant, easy, and effective transcription of this beautiful song.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG—"HOME ONCE MORE." Composed by STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This ballad, by the composer of the celebrated "Good-bye at the door," will be equally popular with that decided favourite, as it is both pleasing and attractive.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SACRED SONG, MORNING PRAYER. Composed by E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. The truly beautiful words of this song are here admirably set to music.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

GRANDE FANTAISIE, sur les deux motifs "God Save the Queen," and "Partant pour la Syrie." Par Mdme. W. G. STRETTON née Lilia Thoumin.
ADDISON and CO., 210, Regent-street.

THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY. Operetta by MACFARREN.

"A simple tune sometimes we hear." Ballad	.. ..	2s. 6d.
"I never knew my heart held fast." Ballad ..	.. ..	2s. 6d.
"You promised to come with the dawn of day." Ballad ..		2s. 6d.

Sent free half price.
EWER and CO.'S Library, 87, Regent-street, London.

MACFARREN'S OPERETTA, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY.—"The success is as legitimate as it is indisputable."—Times. "The most finished work—graceful, melodious, and effective."—Queen. This charming operetta is particularly adapted for private performances. The three principal ballads have just been published. The complete score, price 4s. net, will be ready on the 1st of February.
EWER and CO., 87, Regent-street.

NOTICE.—The Elegant and Beautiful WALTZ Danced by Donato at Covent Garden Theatre, and nightly encored, is the Soldaten Lieder, by Josef Gung'l, published by A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), 24, Regent-street. Price, Solo and Duet, 4s. each; Full Orchestra, 5s.; Military Band, 15s. Publishers of all the new compositions of this celebrated Dance Writer.

ET BONDEBRYLLUP. Arranged as a Pianoforte Piece by ADRIEN TALEXY. Price 3s. This beautiful melody was nightly encored at Jullien's Concerts in the celebrated Danish Fantasia, "Danske Toner."
A. HAMMOND and CO., 214, Regent-street.

ET BONDEBRYLLUP, with English Words, Welcome Home the Bride, price 2s. 6d.; The Wedding Ring, price 2s. 6d. Both sung by the Danish Singers at Jullien's Concerts.
A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), 214, Regent-street.

BONDEBRYLLUP GALOP. By PIERRE CALKIN. Embellished with a Photograph of the Three Danish Vocalists. Price 3s. Post-free at half price.
A. HAMMOND and CO. (Jullien's), 214, Regent-street.

MDLLE. LIEBHART will sing the new and highly successful Song, "Bird of the Forest," composed by Goldberg:—Brighton, Jan. 14th; Leamington, 20th; Cheltenham, 24th; Liverpool, 28th.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by Easy Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years. Drawings free.

TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, 7 octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe. Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE JEWELLERY.—A very elegant STOCK of GOLD CHAINS, 18s. to 20 gs.; Gentlemen's Albert Chains, 21s. to 18 gs.; Gold Brooches, 20s. to 15 gs.; Gold Bracelets, 55s. to £20; Wedding and Keeper Rings, 10s., 15s., and 20s.; Gem ditto, 12s. 6d. to 20 gs.; Gold Earrings, 12s. 6d. to 5 gs. per pair. Gold Lockets, 10s. to 16 gs. Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. to 10 gs.—FREDC. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 148, Regent-street. Old Chains, Jewellery, Diamonds, and other Precious Stones purchased or taken in exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds reset. List of Prices free. Shippers supplied. London.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,

THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

THE £5 entertaining Set of MAGIC, Dissolving, Microscopic, and Phanta APPARATUS comprises a 3½ in. improved lantern, producing 12-ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; 10 slides, 40 subjects; eight movable comic slides; one view, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with revolving water-mill. All packed in case, and guaranteed of superior quality.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE £5 DAY and ASTRONOMICAL TELESCOPE.—From F. Dundas, Esq., M.P., 21, Brunswick-square, Brighton, 13th October, 1864:—"Gentlemen,—Since my interview with you on the subject of the telescope I have heard from Lord Rosse, and will thank you to send one similar to that supplied to his Lordship."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. N.B. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. Powerful pocket telescopes, opera, race, field, and general outdoor glasses.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, the heights of mountains, direction of winds, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for twelve months. Price £4 15s., sent free.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision. The adaptation of spectacles to imperfect vision by experienced persons is, indeed, of vital importance. One of the Firm, who has had great experience and practice, attends to this branch only.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, £1 5s. to £4 4s. For Letterpress, Lithographic, and Copper-plate Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stamp-maker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (The Monument), London Bridge.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free.
West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street.
City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

CLOCKS, CANDELABRA, BRONZES, and LAMPS.—WILLIAM S. BURTON invites inspection of his Stock of these, displayed in two large show-rooms. Each article is of guaranteed quality, and some are objects of pure virtû, the productions of the first manufacturers of Paris, from whom William S. Burton imports them direct.

Clocks, from ..	.. ..	7s. 6d. to £45
Candelabra, from	.. ..	13s. 6d. to £16 10s. per pair.
Bronzes, from	.. ..	18s. 0d. to £16 16s.
Lamps, moderateur, from	..	6s. 0d. to £9 0s.
Pure Colza Oil	.. ..	4s. per gallon.

Illustrated Catalogues sent (per post) free.
39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers. LAMPS FOR INDIA. Five New Show-rooms.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c. Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s. Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2. All articles marked in plain figures. Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents. Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormolu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE. BALLS, FORMAN, and CO., 170, Oxford-street, have twenty large ware-rooms, with every description of serviceable Furniture, marked in plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

FILMER and SON'S UPHOLSTERY and CABINET FURNITURE SHOW-ROOMS, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, W. Attention is requested to these spacious Show-rooms, which are among the largest in London.

OAK FURNITURE, at the BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square.—To Clergymen and Gentlemen furnishing.—A very superior suite of Antique Oak Dining-room Furniture, enriched with superb and artistic carvings, for sale, for the remarkably low sum of 40 guineas.
The above is in admirable condition, and such a bargain as is seldom offered.
Also, a very large and costly suite, adapted for a mansion, equally cheap.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

THE COMPANY'S COTTAGE SUITE of LIGHT OAK DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.

THE COMPANY are SOLE AGENTS for the PATENT SIDE CARRIAGE, spring action, metallic or wooden palliasse.—N.B. The Company supply this article to the trade.

THE COMPANY'S French-polished and Japanned DEAL BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

THE COMPANY'S complete ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, free by post.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

HEAL and SON'S EIDERDOWN QUILTS, from 1 guinea to 10 guineas.—Also GOOSEDOWN QUILTS, from 8s. 6d. to 24s. List of prices and sizes sent free by post. Heal and Son's Illustrated Catalogue of Bedsteads and Priced List of Bedding, also sent post-free.
196, Tottenham-court-road, W.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, 3 and 4, Goodge-street; and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road, W. Curtains, Portières, Chintzes, &c., of first-class manufacture, for every style of decoration.

NOTICE.—PROFESSOR BROWNE respectfully invites Ladies and Gentlemen to an inspection of his Stock of Head-dresses, Perukes, Scalps, and Ornamental Hair of every design, suited to the present fashion, at his well-known Establishment, 47, Fenchurch-street, City. Specimens can also be seen in the Animal Production Department of the South Kensington Museum, Case 278. Material and workmanship guaranteed of the first quality. For self-measurement, see "Punch."

FORD'S NOTICE of REMOVAL. MANTLES and JACKETS.—Thomas Ford respectfully requests the particular attention of his customers and the public to this notice of the REMOVAL of his Business from 42, Oxford-street, to his New Premises, 76, OXFORD-STREET (opposite the Pantheon), where his business will be conducted on completion of the alterations.—Thos. Ford, Habit-maker, 42, Oxford-street.

FORD'S Superior Stock of MANTLES and JACKETS is now being offered at greatly reduced prices, in order to effect an entire clearance previous to Removal.—T. Ford, 42, Oxford-street, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Illustrations of the new Riding-jacket, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free. Riding-trousers, 21s. per pair.—Thos. Ford, 42, Oxford-street (near Newman-street), London, W.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS, Dark Princess Royal Cord, very bright, £2 15s. 6d. for 14 yards. New Dark Checked Glacés, £2 2s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE. New Striped Glacés, 14 Yards, £2 2s. Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE. New Checked Glacés, 14 Yards, £1 15s. 6d. Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW FABRICS.—PATTERNS FREE. Aberdeen Linseys, Knickerbocker Linseys, All mixtures. Best and medium qualities.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT. JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill. Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths. Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips. Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

EVENING and BALL DRESSES. SEWELL and CO. have, in anticipation of Christmas, prepared a choice variety of TULLE, NETT, and TARLATAN DRESSES.
They have also some beautiful patterns in Evening Robes, exclusively designed for their house.
Sewell and Co., Compton House, Old Compton-street, and Frith-street, Soho-square.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest Selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the new Colours, at 4½ gs. the Full Dress.
Compton House, Frith-street, and Old Compton-street, Soho, W.

SILKS FOR 1865. Imperial Check and Stripe Glacés, in new Designs, and suitable for Young Ladies' wear, from £1 7s. 6d. to £2 19s. 6d. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS (Both Sides Alike), including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VERY RICH

PLAIN SILKS. Comprising our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, which can be had in 48 entirely new shades of colour, and made expressly for 1865, at £2 15s. 6d., £3 9s. 6d., and £4 9s. 6d. the Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHION.

THE New Embroidered SILK ROBE, from 7 guineas, including Trimming for Bodice to match the Skirt.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

Two decided Novelties for

RICH WINTER DRESSES. The "Paris Silk Poplin," 2 guineas. The "Lyons Silk Poplin" (reversible), 47s. 6d. Full Dress. Can be had in Black, and an endless variety of brilliant colours.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A NEW FABRIC, FOR CHEAP AND USEFUL

WINTER DRESSES. The Mexican Cloth, all Colours. Checked, Striped, or Plain, 12s. 6d., 14s. 6d. to 25s. Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NOW READY, IN GREAT VARIETY,

TARLATAN BALL-DRESSES. Numerous Designs, on Black, White, or Coloured grounds, 12s. 9d. the extra Full Dress (fine quality). Plain Tarlatans, all colours, in any quantity.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

MADE-UP COLOURED OR BLACK

TULLE and TARLATAN ROBES, trimmed in the latest style of fashion, each pattern in every colour, 18s. 6d. to 5 guineas, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE

RICH SILK GRENADINES, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, 18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress. Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FANCY FLANNELS (Fast Colours) for

DRESSING GOWNS and GARIBALDI JACKETS. An endless Variety of new Patterns, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE AMPHIKALUPTRA, a Registered Table-cover, to be obtained at PETER ROBINSON'S New Furnishing Drapery Department, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH LIGHT SILKS, Extra Lengths, reduced from 15 guineas to 11 guineas,

"	13	"	10	"
"	9	"	6½	"
"	8	"	5½	"
"	7	"	5	"
"	6	"	4	"
"	5	"	3	"

in consequence of the premises being for disposal,
J. ROBINSON (formerly Howell's),
79, Gracechurch-street.

J. ROBINSON, late HOWELL'S, begs respectfully to inform his Customers and the Public that in consequence of not having succeeded in disposing of the premises, the whole of the remaining portion of his stock has undergone a further reduction. It comprises some French and Paisley long Shawls, reduced from 3½ to 2½ guineas, 5½ to 4 guineas. Rich ditto, 7½ to 6 guineas. Real Sealskin, Velvet, and Astrakan Mantles. Black Glacés, Dark and Light French Silks, now selling at £3; worth £5. Fancy Dresses, Linsey Skirts, and Quilted Silk Petticoats. Damask Table Linen, Sheetings, Quilts, &c., which will be found of the best manufacture and at less than present wholesale prices.
79, Gracechurch-street.

MESSRS. JAY beg to invite special attention to the DEEP MOURNING Department of their Establishment, consisting of every article for First and Family Mourning, either made-up and ready for wear or materials cut from the piece, according to the wishes of purchasers.
Silks, Crapes, &c., of the very best, most serviceable, and enduring qualities.
JAYS'.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

By Appointment to the Queen, her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.

MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that great saving may be made by purchasing Mourning at their establishment, the Stock of Family Mourning being the Largest in Europe. Mourning Costume of every description is kept ready made, and can be forwarded—town or country—at a moment's notice. The most reasonable prices are charged and the wear of every article guaranteed.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Regent-street, near the Circus.
JAYS'.

THE NEACLAINE DRESS. Patented in England, France, Germany, and Belgium.
Messrs. JAY beg to assure their customers and the public that this novel and convenient Dress can be made suitable for wear in the morning, and at dinner, or for evening. The impression is erroneous that "The Neaclaine" is designed for evening wear only. It can be made of silk, or any other material which taste or circumstances may suggest; and, by a reversal of the lappets, a dress is perfected for any occasion required.
JAYS'.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

ANNUAL SALE, 238, 240, 242, REGENT-STREET.
ALLISON and CO. beg most respectfully to announce that their Annual Sale will commence on MONDAY, JAN. 16, and continue for one Month.
The remaining Fancy Stock has been revised, and will be found unusually cheap.
At the same time they will be prepared to show a large quantity of Silk and other Dresses purchased from some of the most eminent French manufacturers much below the cost of production, and of which they solicit an early inspection.

SILKS, FANCY DRESSES, &C., AT REDUCED PRICES.

GRANT and GASK, in accordance with their custom at this season of the year, are selling the whole of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK of SILKS, FANCY DRESS FABRICS, VELVETS, MADE-UP SKIRTS, MANTLES, &c., at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.
Most of the MADE-UP SKIRTS, MANTLES, and FANCY ARTICLES will be sold at half their former prices.
Last Season's best FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, all reduced to 6½d. per yard.
Remnants and Odd Dress Lengths of SILKS proportionably cheap.
RICH MOIRE ANTIQUES, in all colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
BEST SILK VELVETS for Mantles and Dresses, in a variety of colours, from 6s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns forwarded to the country.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that their recent purchases of French Fancy Silks and Cashmere Shawls will be included in their usual January Sale, which has just commenced.—Piccadilly and Regent-street.

WHITE SILKS and SILKS for Wedding, Walking, Evening, or Dinner Wear, £1 19s. 6d. the Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

A LADY'S DRESS.

THE ROYAL SILK CORDS 35s. 6d. and 2 guineas (all colours). Equal in appearance to any dress at 5 guineas.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! Rich, bright, wide, and durable Gros Grains, Glacés, Ducapes, and Corded Black Silks, from 1 guinea to 3 guineas the Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 DOZEN SOILED FRENCH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, at Half Price. Hemmed, Stitched, or Bordered, at 10s. 6d., 15s., and 1 guinea the dozen. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

BAKER and CRISPS'

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, FRENCH BAREGES, BALZARINES, MOHAIRS, GRENADINES, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

BAKER and CRISPS'

LAST YEAR'S SILKS, One Shilling the Yard under regular prices. White, Pink, Sky, Striped, Checked, Fancy, Corded, and Damasks. Patterns free.
198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free. Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

EVENING GRENADINES, 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Several hundred White and Coloured Grenadine and Tarlatan Dresses, from 6s. 9d. to 12s. 6d., the extra Full Dress.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE MOST LADY-LIKE HEAD-DRESSES of the Season are now Velvet Coronets and Rosettes, in Scarlet, Black, Black and White, Green, Blue, Brown, Violet, &c. Coronets, 1s. 9d.; Rosettes and elegant streamers, with single rosette, 1s. 9d.; Double, 2s. 3d.; Treble, 3s. 6d. All post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

A NOVELTY IN MOURNING.—The New CRAPE LAINE, very durable and inexpensive. Patterns free. Obtainable only at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street, London.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-street, W.C., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

ANNUAL REDUCTIONS, January, 1865. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

ELEGANT SILK SASHES, all colours, 4s. 6d. and 5s. 6d. each; ditto, very richly trimmed with Lace, 8s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., post-free.
The New Tyrolese Bodice, in Velvet and Silk, profusely ornamented with bugles, in black and all colours, 7s. 6d. and 10s. 6d., post-free. BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

SANSFLECTUM JUPONS, 8s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
"Like vulcanite or indiarubber."—Queen.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

ONDINA, or WAVED JUPONS, 18s. 6d. and 21s.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

AMERICAN TRAIN JUPONS. 5s. 11d. and 7s. 6d. Light and graceful for the ball-room.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

EIDERDOWN PETTICOATS, very light and warm, and 4 yards round:—Puffed and quilted, in Black Silk, 55s. and 70s.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

PETER ROBINSON'S

NEW FAMILY MOURNING WAREHOUSE. Peter Robinson, having removed this branch of his business to new and larger premises, is enabled to display a larger stock of rich and medium-class goods, adapted for Court, Family, and Complimentary Mourning, and at more economical prices than have hitherto been attempted by any other house in this country.
Families requiring Mourning will find it much to their advantage to forward their orders at once to this warehouse. Goods are forwarded, if necessary, to any part of London or the country, free of expense (accompanied by a dressmaker, if desired), immediately on receipt of note or telegram.
Address Peter Robinson,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(The premises lately occupied by Hodge, Lowman, and Orchard.)

BLACK NET EVENING DRESSES. An elegant variety of entirely new designs in Made-up Skirts. Also, Tarlatan and Grenadine, worked in Gold, Silver, and Soufflé, in beautiful patterns, suitable for Ladies in or out of mourning.
Wreaths, Ornaments, Berthas, Canezous, &c.,
in the latest Parisian Novelties,
at the New Show-rooms of
PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

BLACK SILKS. A Spécialité. PETER ROBINSON would respectfully draw attention to a large lot of superior Silks, recently purchased, much under usual prices.

Black Glacé . . . / Black Poult de Soie	from 35s to 5 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Gros de Suez . / Black Royal Cord . / Black Barathea . . / Black Radzimore .	from 56s. to 7 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Clerical Silks,	from 4s. to 10s. per yard.
Black Moire Antique / Black Watered Silks / Black Satins . . .	from 4 to 10 guineas.

or cut by the yard in any length. Patterns free.
Also a variety of very richly-embroidered Silk Dresses,
At PETER ROBINSON'S,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

RHUMPORE CHUDDAH SHAWLS in all Colours.—FARMER and ROGERS have just received, direct from India, several cases of superb India Shawls, suitable for Wedding Presents. Also, a beautiful variety of full-sized Rhumpore Chuddah Shawls, so much esteemed for their peculiar softness.
171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street, W.
India Shawls bought and exchanged.

IMPORTANT ARRIVAL.—CHRISTMAS PRESENTS.—Large Importation of Chinese and Japanese Curios, including Thousands of beautiful Japanese Hand-screens, One Shilling each.—Oriental Warehouse, 179, Regent-street; India Shawl Warehouse, 171, 173, 175.—FARMER and ROGERS.

DURING THIS MONTH. JAMES SPENCE and CO., previous to Stock-taking, will offer the remaining part of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK at Wholesale Prices, consisting of the following Departments, viz.:—

Silks,	Furs,	Made-up Dresses,
Velvets,	Hosiery,	French Merinoes,
Shawls,	Gloves,	Winceys,
Jackets,	Ribbons,	Fancy Dresses,
Mantles,	Trimmings,	Flannels, &c.

Ladies and the Public are respectfully invited to make an early inspection.
Closed on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.
77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

G. POLAND and SON, FUR MANUFACTURERS, 90, Oxford-street. The oldest established in London. Rich Fur Seal Mantles; Velvet and Cloth Cloaks lined and trimmed with fur; Fur Wrappers, Coats, Rugs, &c.

TO LADIES.—A large Assortment of STAYS, Skirts, Hosiery, and Ready-made Linen, at moderate prices. Flannel Dressing-gowns, from 30s. Price-lists free by post. GEORGE ROBERTS, 183, Oxford-street, and 11, Lowndes-terrace, Knightsbridge, London.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW AND POPULAR BALLAD MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grcn. Guards. Just published, a new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated Guards' Waltz, by the same Composer. Price 4s. Illustrated by Kriehuber.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new WALTZ by GERALD STANLEY. Composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s. Sqnet, 3c, Orchestra, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. A new set of WALTZES on favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. D'ALBERT. Illustrated. Price 4s. Solo or Duet, 4s. Orchestra, 3s. Sqnet, 3s. "Faust," containing Portraits of Faiti, Mario, Faure, &c. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new quadrille on favourite airs from Offenbach's popular Opera, "Orphée aux Enfers." Illustrated by Kriehuber. Composed of the Guards' Waltz Quadrilles. Price 4s. Orchestra, 3s. Sqnet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A Galop on airs from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated by Kriehuber.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of the Guards' Waltz. Illustrated. A New Quadrille on Popular Melodies of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Grcn. Guards. Illustrated. Price 4s. CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price Solo or Duet, 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s. Illustrated. Price Band, 1s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP-CUP QUADRILLE. Just published, a New Quadrille on favourite Airs, including Balfe's celebrated Song, "The Stirrup Cup." By CHARLES COOTE. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s. Orchestra, 3s. Sqnet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNE OF LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers composed on all the popular and merry tunes of the day. By D. GODFREY, Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Sqnet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HUNT QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille on popular hunting airs. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Coldstream Guards. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Sqnet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES GLOVER (Composer of "Jolly Nose"). Gleefully Illustrated. Price 4s.; Duet, 3s.; Sqnet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HOCKEY GALOP. By A. F. GODFREY, B.M Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with portraits in costume of Fordham, H. and A. Chandler, Wells, Custance, and Challoner. From Photographs by Mason, of Cambridge. Price 4s.; Military Band, 1s.; Brass Band, 2s. 6d.; Orchestra, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, played by the Composer at the St. Georges's Hall Volunteer Concert (Illustrated by Brandard). Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GARDEN WALTZ. A brilliant Waltz on Gounod's celebrated Song, "Ah! ma belle Marguerite." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Six Books of Fantasies on favourite Airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s. each.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CLYDE DONDINE. Popular Melodies from Sir Henry Bishop's celebrated Song. For the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUPID ANIMAM (from the "Home Music"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY. Handel's celebrated Song of Jealousy—just settled for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. LE FREJUSTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

MARION. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SEBA. Venetian Gondola Song for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BENEDICT'S SEA BREEZES.—Brilliant Waltz for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MR. CHARLES SCHONWALD'S NEW SONG.

MAY MORNING. A Sketch for the Pianoforte by Mrs. Joseph Robinson. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and Books at half the published prices, and post-free for postage-stamps or Post Office order (send works enclosed).

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECES.

SOUVIENS TOI CANZ. 3s. 6d. Sentiment Pedigree. Joachs. 4s.
Hélène Nocturne. Campana. 4s.
Mountain Song. Reverie. Muller. 4s.
Bolero. Ascher. 4s. Fantasia. Ascher. 4s.
Infernal Galopade. Cusins. 4s.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW SUITE QUADRILLE.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC. On the popular Songs sung by Messrs. J. E. Toole and Paul Herrmann, at the Royalty. "Marriage of Mr. Toole" and "Paul Herrmann's Tactics." "Married on the Rocks" and "Mr. Toole's Tactics." Price 4s.

"Indescribably humorous at Albert Mellon's Concerts, and proved a most terrifical success."—Vide Times.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ELEGANT MUSICAL PRESENT, price 6s. 6d.

COOTE'S ALBUM OF NEW DANCE MUSIC for 1865.

Contains Quadrille, Waltz, Polka, and Galop.

"The best collection of new dance music that has come of the most simple and easy-to-play New-Year's offerings ever yet published, being beautifully illustrated in colours, with interesting titles, &c., and elegantly bound with silk."—Vide Illustrated News.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ISRAELI POLKA. Price 3s.—"One of the prettiest polkas we have ever listened to, and will be sure to be even more overpowering."—Vide Times.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST SUCCESS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful Illustration of the Game in colours.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S INNOCENCE VALSE. Price 4s. "This single and beautiful Valse has become quite the rage at the season."—Review.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE GALOP IN

COOTE'S PRINCE IMPERIAL GALOP. Price 3s. Illustrated brilliantly in all the Colours.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

HALF PRICE.—All full-priced Music sent post-free, at Half the Marked Price.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIANOFORTE PIECES.

Les Adieux. 4s.; La Sicilia, 3s. 6d.; Tyrol (Tema Tirolese). 4s. CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

WALLACE'S NEW MAZURKA. Le Reveil du Serail. 3s. CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

FAVARGER'S NEW PIECES. Bonjour (Romance sans Paroles) 3s. 6d. Tempo di Valse. 3s. CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ASCHER'S LE CHANT DES NAIADES. 3s. Extremely pleasant drawing-room pianoforte music by Ascher. Illustrated.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S LEAH'S SONG (The Portrait of Miss Poole). Price 3s. Illustrated in C, D, and E. Price 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

GOUNOD'S New Ballad, FOR LACK OF GOLD HE LEFT ME. Beautifully Illustrated. One of the most popular songs of the day. Price 3s. Illustrated.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ASCHER'S CAVALIER'S STEED, in C and E. Price 3s. Illustrated.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S New Serenade, THE GONDOLIER'S LAST GOOD-NIGHT. Sung in every drawing-room. Illustrated. Price 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

BENEDICT'S MY HOME IN CLOUDLAND. Sung by Madame Lemmens Sherrington. Price 3s. Illustrated.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

SCHUBERT'S SERENADE, THE OLDEN STONE. 3s. Beautifully Illustrated. In E and F.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

WALLACE'S BIRD OF THE WILD WING. With elegant Illustration. 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

SMART'S CHARGE, CHESTER! Beautifully Illustrated. 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S BEAUTY, SLEEP (the celebrated Ballad). With Beautiful Illustration. 3s.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S DREAM OF HOME! (the celebrated Ballad). With Beautiful Illustration.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

NOW PUBLISHING, Price 1s. each Number.

PUNCHINELLO: a Comic Opera in One Act. Written by Henry Farnie; Composed by WILLIAM CRAMER LEVEY.

The Complete Work, Price 5s. Boards, Cloth, and Illustrated, 10s.

SEPARATE NUMBERS.

1. Don't say the Night is Fine. Beautifully Illustrated 2 0
14. The name, transposed for F 2 0
15. Ah! Sweet Dream. Pure air accepts I cons (M.S. Beautifully) 3 0
16. Ah! Sweet Dream. Pure air accepts I cons (M.S. Beautifully) 3 0
2. The Horseman's Duty (B.). Splendidly Illustrated 3 0
3. Sicily's Isle (Tema Siciliano). Illustrated 3 0
4. Hurrah! for the Bombardier (T.), in F. Beautifully Illustrated 3 0

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

FORGIVE ME, SWEET.—New Song. Words by Cornish Gilbert. Music by Miss LINDSAY.

Published by Messrs. CRAMER and WOOD, 210, Regent-st. Price 3s.

THE WINTER'S WIND.—New Song. Words and Music by ANNA FREDERICA.

Published by CRAMER and WOOD, 201, Regent-street. Price 3s.

THE GARDEN OF ROSES.—The most favourite of all Miss Gabriel's compositions. Post-free for 18 stamps from the Composer, 9, Cambridge-terrace, Hyde-park.

KING'S BUTTERFLY GALOP. By W. KING. Played with great success by Mr. Levey. Introduced in the Overture of Mr Harvey's Theatre, and in the Harlequin's Trip to the Moon, at the Crystal Palace. Price 4s.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street, and 22, Chappell-st.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED.

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing "Polly Perkins of Paddington Green," "Isabella," "Watercress," "Have you seen the Ghost?" "Polly Parkes," &c. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT THE STATE BALL.

COOTE'S HUMMING BIRDS. Price 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "Cherry Ripe," "Ah! ma belle Marguerite," "So fierly is Mornings," "The Stars," and other popular Airs. Illustrated in Colours. Considered the best Lancers by this Composer. Always recommended. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP, 3s. Illustrated in Colours.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S NEW PIANETTE VALSE. Price 3s. 6d. By the Blue Comet. PIANETTE GALOP. By Ditto. Illustrations in Colours.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NOW SUNG BY ALL THE CHOIRS.

COME WHERE THE SUNLIGHT SLEEPETH. Price 3s. A beautiful melody. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

SUNG BY C. C. C. CHRISTY MINSTRELS.

SNOWWHITE BLOSSOMS. Ballad. 2s. 6d. And COME OVER THE STREAM, JESSIE. 2s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NOW SUNG BY MADAME LEMMENS SHERRINGTON.

CONFEDERATE SONGS. By Maryland. 2s. 6d. My Southern Home. 2s. 6d. Dixie. 2s. 6d. Bonnie Blue Flag. 2s. 6d. Dorcasiana Polka. 3s. 6d. Dorcasiana Quadrille. 3s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE SONG BY T. H. BURLEY.

OH! THINK OF THE MOONBEAMS LINGER. By FRED. BURLEY. Price 3s. 6d. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS.

The Worrin' Miller ... ... 3s. 0d.
The heart of a Lodger ... ... 3s. 0d.
The Fairborne Inn ... ... 3s. 0d.
The Old Arm Chair ... ... 3s. 0d.
Jordan Brown ... ... 3s. 0d.
A Merrin Tale ... ... 3s. 0d.
The Old Bachelor ... ... 3s. 0d.
Waldorf Boy ... ... 3s. 0d.
Look at the clock ... ... 3s. 0d.
Have you seen her baby? ... ... 3s. 0d.
Ben Bolt ... ... 3s. 0d.
Dorby Melodie ... ... 3s. 0d.

HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by CHAPPELL. Full Compass, with all the latest Improvements. Warranted to stand in any climate. Every reed in tune, from Two guineas to Twenty guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

MARYLAND QUADRILLE. A most exciting and spirited Quadrille, entitled, Interesting "My Maryland." Beautifully Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s. Orchestra, 3s. Illustrated.—BOOSEY and Co.

MARYLAND. By GEORGE FORBES. An effective piece for the Pianoforte on the celebrated Confederate Song. Illustrated in Colours. Price 3s.

BOOSEY and Co.

CHERE AMIE VALSE, founded on the most lovely of all Rossini's Melodies, has already passed through Seven Editions. Published for Pianoforte, 4s.; Duet, 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Band, 1s.

BOOSEY and Co.

LOVE'S BANSON QUADRILLES and WALTZES. By LAMOTHE. Illustrated. Price 4s. BOOSEY and Co.

MARIE WILLIAMS'S VALSES, with her Portrait in Colours, this day. Price 4s. Also, STELLA VALSE. By LAMOTHE. Illustrated in Colours. In Rink by VALO MAAYER.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

LEVEY'S CELEBRATED CANOT THOU TELL! Madame Rudersdorff's popular English Ballad in J. C. Nobleby's new Opera of "Punchinello," at the Royalty. One of the most successful ballads which for a long time it has been our good fortune to hear.—Daily Telegraph. Illustrated in Colours. Price 3s.—Ditto, Ditto.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S SOUVENIR DE BOSQUET. A new Fantasia on "Rosalie," by the most popular farce. Illustrated with a beautiful Portrait of the Composer. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

RENÉ FAVARGER'S JOSEPHINE. An Exquisite Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Published this day. Price 3s.

MADAME ARABELLA GODDARD'S NEW SONG. SHALL HEARTS, HOPES, FADED, respond expressly for and performed by Miss. Goddard during her Provincial Tour. Price 3s. Also, Miss Goddard's New Cadenza, "Ah! non giunge," from Auber's National Fantasia by Boosey; composed for Miss. Goddard. In each.

SWEET MARGUERITE. A simple and Pretty Song. Words by Miss. CLIFT. Published this day. Price 3s. net.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S SOUVENIRS DE BOSQUET. A new Fantasia on "Rosalie," by Mdme. Oury. Illustrated in Colours. Price 4s.

MADAME OURY'S AULD ROBIN GRAY. A new Fantasia on the popular Scotch melody. Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co.

FOSBROOKE'S CAVOTA GALOP BRILLANTE, 3s. FORBES' CASTELLINA. Reputation (A charming piece). FORBES' ROSALIE (Favarger). 4s. FORBES' NIBELLA (Favarger). 3s. FORBES' LA SEBA (Pauer's Edition). 3s. 6d. FORBES' LA SEBA (Pauer's Edition). 3s. 6d. FORBES' JENNY JONES (Favarger). 4s. FORBES' LA SEBA (Pauer's Edition). 3s. 6d.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "DREAM, BABY DEAR."

VIRGINIA and ALICE GABRIEL'S "GIRLS IN THE WINDOW."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "SKIPPER AND HIS BOY."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "WHEN I'M AWAY."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "WHEN ANNIE'S AWAY."
VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S "WHEN I'M AWAY THE DREAM."
Each.

All 3s. each.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. Now Published this day. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE BELLS WHISPER. By CLARIBEL. Now Song. Published this day. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

DO YOU REMEMBER? By CLARIBEL. New Song, after the manner of "Ben Bolt" and L'. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Co.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song. Just published. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s. BOOSEY and Co.

TWELVE SONGS of the AMERICAN WAR, in "Boosey Musical Cabinet," No. 68, with Pianoforte Accompaniments. Price 1s. net. In No. 68 are Words, &c., of Two Books, 6d. each (post-free, 7d.), as follows:—

Dixie. Bonnie Blue Flag. Confederate Songs.
Maryland, My Maryland. Bonnie Blue Flag.
Glory, Hallelujah! Battle Cry of Freedom.
Yankee Doodle. Star Spangled Banner.
Hanging, and sad beauty. Old King Cotton.
Rally round the flag. Dixie.
A Bottle Hoax. Yankee Doodle.

THE CHORALIST, for JANUARY, contains the celebrated Confederate Song, "My Maryland," admired by Madame Lemmens Sherrington, and sung by her at the Beaumont-street, Tottenham-court, and Hanover-sq. Rooms. Price 1d.

SIXTY GLEES for HALF-A-CROWN, in "Boosey Musical Cabinet," No. 69, with Pianoforte Accompaniment.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

120 (the CHRIST'S MINSTRELS' SONG-BOOK, price 8s. 6d., published by BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street, 30 old and modern, in each.—Holles-street.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

LET us Have the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer:—

18-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut ... 10 guineas per annum.
20-guinea Pianette, Trichord, Cottage ... ... 12 guineas per annum.
26-guinea Small-size, rosewood or walnut ... 15 guineas per annum.
30-guinea Trichord Cabinet Model, in rosewood ... 18 guineas per annum.
Inferior Pianettes and Harmoniums included from the stock.

Quarterly payments are required.

CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD, 201, Regent-street, 207 and 209, Regent-st., W.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

LET us Have the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer:—

18-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut ... 10 guineas per annum.
20-guinea Pianette, Trichord, Cottage ... ... 12 guineas per annum.
26-guinea Small-size, rosewood or walnut ... 15 guineas per annum.
30-guinea Trichord Cabinet Model, in rosewood ... 18 guineas per annum.
Inferior Pianettes and Harmoniums included from the stock.

Quarterly payments are required.

CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD, 201, Regent-street, 207 and 209, Regent-st., W.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ALL Pianettes, Pianofortes for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the Hirer:—

18-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut ... 10 guineas per annum.
20-guinea Pianette, Trichord, Cottage ... ... 12 guineas per annum.
26-guinea Small-size, rosewood or walnut ... 15 guineas per annum.
30-guinea Trichord Cabinet Model, in rosewood ... 18 guineas per annum.
Inferior Pianettes and Harmoniums included from the stock.

Quarterly payments are required.

CRAMER, BEALE, and WOOD, 201, Regent-street, 207 and 209, Regent-st., W.

CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

PIANETTES.—Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small Instrument, which has all the qualities of the best Pianofortes—touch, action, solid tone, agreeable tone. The case is of polished oak or walnut, and the price is 18 guineas. The Pianette is recommended to those who require a small Instrument, but do not like to sacrifice quality in the leg and worn in the latencies. In rosewood or walnut, 18 guineas.

The Pianette is especially recommended to choirs: that is, to those who require the utmost or single action, but the double or check action; and also to those who require a Pianette with extra latencies.

BROADWOOD'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, price 120 guineas in Rosewood, and 135 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited) beg to direct attention to these extremely elegant and greatly admired new Pianofortes. The touch, tone, and all the modern improvements in Pianofortes will be found to fulfil all the requirements of the most fastidious performer. The prices the same as those charged by the manufacturers themselves—the public having the advantage of the very choicest instruments. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s Three Years' System of Purchase, which is strongly recommended to the hirer without further payment.—Pianettes Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW SEMI-GRAND, price 110 guineas.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited) beg to direct attention to this elegant and beautiful Pianoforte, which is strongly recommended. The touch, tone, and all the modern improvements in Pianofortes will be found to fulfil all the requirements of the most fastidious performer. The prices the same as those charged by the manufacturers themselves—the public having the advantage of the very choicest instruments. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s Three Years' System of Purchase, which is strongly recommended to the hirer without further payment.—Pianettes Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 140 guineas in Rosewood, and 150 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and Co. have much pleasure in directing attention to these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The cases are of walnut and rosewood, and very elegant. The tone and touch are unsurpassed by any Pianofortes. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which further gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianettes Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE new Pianofortes by BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD, at from 21 to 31 guineas per annum, and at the end of three years the Pianoforte becomes the property of the hirer. The easy terms of purchase adopted by Cramer and Co. in their Pianofortes Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they have the honour of being sole agents for all parts of the United Kingdom, subsidiary to their London House, for the sale of the Pianofortes manufactured by Messrs. Broadwood, Collard, and Erard, the largest in Europe, 207 and 209, Regent-street.

TUDOR PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) manufacture for John Tudor, Esq., of Eton College, a Pianoforte of peculiar construction, which, unlike other sparkling necessary to retain the effect of extreme clearness, and which, when used in a large room, produces a full and rich tone. The Pianoforte possesses in the highest excellent quality of tone and durability; have obtained the highest character for the Tudor Pianofortes, which are sold at 25 guineas, packed in case, and carriage free, set any home part, for 25 guineas. Size—Height, 3 ft. 11 in. Width, 4 ft. 3 in. Depth, 2 ft. 1 in.

CRAMER and Co., 201, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S.—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments—

No. 1 and 2 Model Harmoniums ... ... 15s. 6d.
3. Three Stops ... ... 1l. 5s.
4. Four Stops ... ... 1l. 15s.
5. Ten Stops ... ... 2l. 2s.
6. Ten Stops ... ... 2l. 10s.
7. Ten Stops, Percussion Action ... ... 3l. 3s.
10. Fourteen Stops ... ... 3l. 3s.
11. Fourteen Stops ... ... 4l. 4s.
12. Eight Stops, Two Rows ... ... 4l. 4s.
13. Eight Stops, Two Keyboards ... ... 6l. 6s.
14. Sixteen Stops ... ... 8l. 8s.

DRAWING-ROOM MODELS.

No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion Action ... ... 5l. 5s.
2. Eight Stops, Two Rows of Vibrators ... ... 8l. 8s.
3. Sixteen Stops ... ... 10l. 10s.

N.B. A deduction from the above charges on Instruments hired for Lent.

In the case of parties purchasing and paying for an Instrument within six months of the time of hiring, the whole amount so paid for hire will be given up in lieu of discount for ready money.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD and COLLARD, 4, Great Pulteney-street, Golden-square.

A number of these Instruments, just returned from hire and warranted equal to new, for SALE, at Moderate Cottage Charges (Pianofortes purchased).

CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PIANINO (Registered). This elegant little Instrument, which has all the qualities of a Pianoforte—viz., sustaining power, check action, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Concerted Pieces, Rossini's Overtures, &c., is now in use at the Royal Italian and concert Pianofortes, with check action and all the latest improvements.

Price, in mahogany, rosewood, or walnut, 25 and 28 guineas. A great variety may be seen at

CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and Co.'S ENGLISH MODEL COTTAGE PIANOFORTE.—The success of the new English tone of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English touch, and the new English check action, continues unabated. The handsome cases. The action is of the same simple description as that of the Grand Pianofortes, and is not liable to get out of order. The check action and the improved actions are unchangeable by any of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar to drawing, price 25 guineas; ditto, with carved legs, price 30 guineas; in walnut, 30 guineas.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD, the Pianofortes which have been exclusively honoured with the royal command, may be tried side by side at CHAPPELL'S Pianoforte Gallery, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM MODEL HARMONIUM, the best that can be made, price 50 guineas, also with two rows of vibrators, 60 guineas. Illustrated Harmonium and Harmoniums upon application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with the Patent Percussive Forte Pedal, &c. These instruments are lower in price and superior to all other Harmoniums at this price. Illustrated Harmonium gratis and post-free.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, many of not quite so good as new, at CHAPPELL'S Pianoforte Gallery, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, for the CHURCH, Chapels, Rooms of Instruction, &c., with Pedals, Knee-swells, and Percussive Forte Pedal, 80 guineas. A descriptive list may be always seen at CHAPPELL and Co.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

PIANOFORTES FOR HIRE, BOOSEY and Co.'S, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 18-GUINEA HARMONIUM (The Cottage) has a soft and agreeable tone, suitable for small rooms.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S TEN-GUINEA HARMONIUM (The School) has a rich, full tone, suitable for the teaching of singing.

Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS at 20, 30, 36, and 42 guineas, are voiced either with a modified or full organ tone, and are unsurpassed for all places of worship. Catalogues of all Harmoniums sizes application.

Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

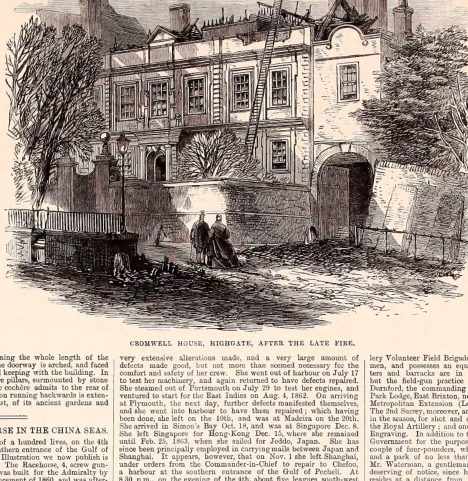
BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, 25 guineas, in rosewood or walnut, is a superior Instrument in solidity recommended as the best cheap piano before the public. Its touch, tone, and check action are unsurpassed. Sole Agents for the Manufacturer.

Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S COTTAGE PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant rosewood case, with fret, and possesses a full, rich tone in elastic, and the tone of that rich pure quality that especially distinguishes the Pianofortes of this firm.

Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 32-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage Pianoforte, and no better can be desired. It is a really excellent Instrument, has the additional keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.

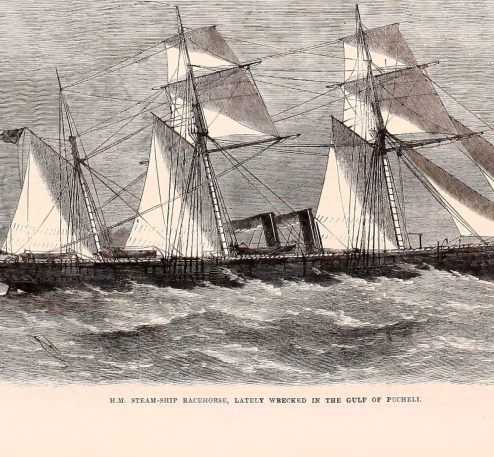


Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, which still maintain their unrivalled reputation, possess a rapid speech, good quality of tone, and remain longer in tune than other Concertinas. Prices, 4 to 10 guineas.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

PRATTEN'S SEVEN-GUINEA PERFECTED CYLINDER FLUTE, six system of fingering. The Instrument, the result of many years' experiments, possesses all the advantages of the cylinder flute on Boehm's six system principle, without changing the familiar fingering of the old eight-keyed flute. In order to bring this Instrument within the reach of all professors in the musical profession, the manufacturers are enabled to produce the instrument at one third of the expense of any cylinder flute hitherto made. Descriptive circulars may be had on application to BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CROMWELL HOUSE, HIGHGATE.



THE old house on the bank at Highgate, well known as Cromwell House, which has for some years past been occupied by a school for young gentlemen, conducted by the Rev. Henry Stretton, M.A., was much damaged by a fire which broke out there on Tuesday week; but, thanks to the prompt use of several fire-engines and the willing assistance of a number of the inhabitants of Highgate, the fire did not extend beyond the upper floor, and the staircase especially, which is an object of some historical interest, was preserved from injury. We learn from Prickett's "History of Highgate" that this house is said to have been built by Oliver Cromwell; it was certainly the residence of General Ireton, who married Cromwell's daughter. The staircase, which, like the principal rooms of the house, is of noble proportions, is adorned with carved oaken figures, originally twelve in number, but now only ten, on the posts of the balustrades. These figures, which are about a foot high, represent the costumes of the different corps of soldiers in the army of the Commonwealth, and the balustrades are filled in with various other devices emblematical of warfare. On the ceiling of the drawing-room are the arms of General Ireton, and the ceilings of this and the other chief apartments are decorated in the fashion of the time. The front of Cromwell House does not boast much architectural beauty, but is a good example of substantial brickwork. It stands low, being only of two stories, finished with a parapet, so that the roof, which is thrown backwards, adds little to its elevation. The house commands, nevertheless, a picturesque and extensive view of the surrounding country. It has a narrow cornice or entablature running the whole length of the front over each row of windows. The doorway is arched, and faced with a portal of painted wood, in good keeping with the building. In front is a gateway with solid, square pillars, surmounted by stone globes. At the lower end a lofty porte cochère admits to the rear of the building. The mass of the mansion running backwards is extensive, and behind lies a portion, at least, of its ancient gardens and pleasant grounds.

CROMWELL HOUSE, HIGHGATE, AFTER THE LATE FIRE.

THE LOSS OF H.M.S. RACEHORSE IN THE CHINA SEAS.

THE wreck of this ship, with the loss of a hundred lives, on the 4th of November, near Chefoo, at the southern entrance of the Gulf of Pechell, was reported last week. The Illustration we now publish is from a drawing made some time ago. The Racehorse, 4, screw gunvessel, 200-horse power and 685 tons, was built for the Admiralty by Messrs. Wigram and Co., at the commencement of 1860, and was afterwards sent to Chatham to be fitted with screw engines. She was first commissioned at Sheerness, on the 16th of May, 1862, under Commander Charles Richard Fox Boxer, and left for China on the 2nd of June following, calling at Portsmouth next day. At that port she had very extensive alterations made, and a very large amount of defects made good, but not more than seemed necessary for the comfort and safety of her crew. She went out of harbour on July 17 to test her machinery, and again returned to have defects repaired. She steamed out of Portsmouth on July 29 to test her engines, and ventured to start for the East Indies on Aug. 4, 1862. On arriving at Plymouth, the next day, further defects manifested themselves, and she went into harbour to have them repaired; which having been done, she left on the 10th, and was at Madeira on the 20th. She arrived in Simon's Bay Oct. 18, and was at Singapore Dec. 8. She left Singapore for Hong-Kong Dec. 15, where she remained until Feb. 25, 1863, when she sailed for Jeddo, Japan. She has since been principally employed in carrying mails between Japan and Shanghai. It appears, however, that on Nov. 1 she left Shanghai, under orders from the Commander-in-Chief to repair to Chefoo, a harbour at the southern entrance of the Gulf of Pechell. At 8.30 p.m., on the evening of the 4th, about five leagues south-west of Chefoo Cape and about two miles east-south-east from White Rock, in Lung-san Bay, she struck, apparently, not far from the shore and in comparatively smooth water. The weather being at the time extremely thick and hazy, it was thought that the vessel was entering Chefoo Harbour, to which Lung-san Bay bears a strong resemblance. Similar accidents have occurred on previous occasions, as, for instance, in the case of the British barque Homer, which was totally wrecked there during last winter; and the steamer Swatow, which, under exactly similar circumstances, was indebted to a mere accident for preservation from destruction. As soon as the Racehorse went on shore the masts were cut away and every attempt made to lighten her and get her off. These efforts were, however, unsuccessful, as a gale, which had been threatening for some time before, set in with terrific violence, and prevented the men from either working at the ship or launching the boats. Nothing remained, then, for the crew to do but to fasten themselves down as best they could. Enormous seas continued to sweep over the wreck, so that next morning, out of a total strength of 196 officers and men, only nine survivors were found, the rest having perished of cold and exhaustion or having been swept off the decks. The survivors are the commander, the paymaster, boatswain, and six sailors, who saved themselves by taking to the last remaining boat, and drifting about for thirty-six hours, when they were picked up by a junk. On the morning after the wreck H.M. gun-boat Insolent, accompanied by a French despatch-vessel, cruised for a considerable time in the neighbourhood, but did not succeed in picking up any others of the crew. Commander Boxer, is among the saved.

H.M. STEAM-SHIP RACEHORSE, LATELY WRECKED IN THE GULF OF PECHELI.

THE 2ND SURREY ARTILLERY VOLUNTEER CORPS.

WE present, on page 45, two Illustrations of the appearance made by the 2nd Surrey Artillery Volunteer Field Brigade, which now musters about four hundred men, and possesses an equipment of some value. Its head-quarters and barracks are in Gresham-road, Angell Town, Brixton; but the field-gun practice is in the ground belonging to Major Durnford, the commanding officer, adjacent to his own residence, Park Lodge, East Brixton, near the Loughborough-road station of the Metropolitan Extension (London, Chatham, and Dover) Railway. The 2nd Surrey, moreover, are accustomed to go to Plumstead-marshes, in the season, for shot and shell practice at the ranges belonging to the Royal Artillery; and one of these occasions is shown in our first Engraving. In addition to the four guns (nine-pounders) lent by the Government for the purpose of drill and practice, this corps has a couple of four-pounders, which were presented by Major Durnford, and a park of no less than eighteen six-pounders, lately given by Mr. Waterman, a gentleman whose munificent patronage is the more deserving of notice, since he is not connected with this corps, and resides at a distance from London. The organisation of the corps includes five field-batteries, A, B, C, D, and E. Our second Illustration shows the portraits of some of the officers, grouped about a gun. Major Durnford, the Commander, stands in the centre, with his hand upon a paper which he is delivering to Captain Bryon, who stands, in a listening attitude, a little to the right of Major Durnford, the wheel of the gun-carriage between them. Captain J. Spark, the Adjutant, is behind, his head only being seen, close to that of Major Durnford, and at his left hand. Captain Meade is leaning upon the muzzle of the gun; Captain Jenkins, Captain M'Lean, Lieutenant Frankwater, Lieutenant Porter, and others, find place in this group, or may be recognised, perhaps, among the figures in the Plumstead practice-ground, where we observe Major Durnford at the extreme right, and the Adjutant near him, with a note-book to record the effect of each shot that is fired.

THE ENVIRONS OF SAVANNAH.

THE TOWN AND PORT OF SAVANNAH.

THE town and port of Savannah, which General Sherman has captured without a siege, by the refinement of the Confederate General Hardee, whose forces were unable to defend the place, is situated on the right bank of the River Savannah, eighteen miles from the sea. It is the terminus of three railroads connecting it with the neighbouring States of Alabama, Tennessee, and South Carolina. The Savannah river, indeed, marks the frontier between South Carolina and the State of Georgia, to which the town or city of Savannah belongs. The population was, previously to the war, about 25,000, and the place was a thriving mart for cotton, rice, and lumber, but especially for the Sea-Island cotton, the most valuable kind that is grown, produced nowhere except in the low lands along the coast. The harbour is good, there being from 18 ft. to 21 ft. of water at ebb-tide over the bar at the mouth of the river, while vessels drawing 18 ft. can get up to the wharves of the town, and those drawing 15 ft. or 16 ft. may go as far as Five-fathom Hole, three miles below the town. There is steam navigation up the river to Augusta, a distance of 140 miles. The town itself stands upon a sandy flat, about 40 ft. above the water. It is laid out with great regularity, in spacious streets and squares, crossing each other at right angles; the streets are lined with a double row of trees, and the squares have inclosed gardens in the centre, like those of London. There are fourteen or fifteen churches, one of which, the Independent Presbyterian, is an elegant and costly structure of granite; a Jewish synagogue, an academy, a courthouse, gaol, exchange, barracks, arsenal, theatre, market-house, and various charitable institutions. The accompanying Map or Plan will give some idea of the capabilities of the place for military fortification.

A meeting of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held on Thursday week, at its house, John-street, Adelphi. Rewards amounting to £79 18s. 6d. were voted to the crews of some of the life-boats of the institution, and to those of short boats and others, for saving seventy-six lives from the following wrecks during the late storms:—Brig Zoroaster, of Lucino, twelve men saved; yawl Bravo, of Yarmouth, nine; schooner Star, of Warren, six; smacks Pearl and Speedwell, of Carnarvon, five; barque Jenny Lowthe, of Whitehaven, eight; brig Hannah, of Whitby, seven; brig Ann, of Carnarvon, saved vessel and three men; brig Union, of Milford, seven; schooner Sydney Trader, of Cork, five; schooner Euphemia, of Aberdeen, four; brigs Mary Ann and Curlew, of North and South Shields, sixteen; total, seventy-six lives saved. Rewards amounting to £41 18s. were likewise granted to the crews of the institution's life-boats at Cuxton, Teignmouth, Filey, Kirkcudbright, and Bakefield, for either assembling or for putting off in reply to signals of distress from vessels which did not ultimately need their services. The silver medal of the institution and a copy of its vote on parchment were presented to Mr. Andrew Link, farmer, near Kirkcudbright, and £5 to his five servants, in admiration of their noble conduct in attempting to save the crew of the schooner Ann, of Whitby, which was wrecked on the 26th ult. The committee expressed their deep regret at the death of Mr. Jeffrey, Esq., V.P., of St. Mildred Court, who had given the cost of four life-boats to the institution, and who was a munificent contributor to its funds. It was reported that two life-boats, built under the superintendence of the institution, had been sent to the life-boat societies in South Holland and Marcellis. Legacies of £400 from the late Hon. Mrs. Fitzroy; £100 from Mr. J. Marchant, of Guildford; and £19 19s. from Mr. C. King, of the National Debt Office, had recently been left to the institution. Dr. Watson had sent to the institution the cost of a life-boat, promised by his late cousin, Miss Watson, who had died intestate. During the past month the institution had sent out fourteen life-boats to various parts of the coast. Contributions to the cost of the former boat had been collected by the Commercial Travellers and that of the latter by the Ancient Order of Foresters. Life-boats were also ready to be forwarded to Poole, Dorchester; Govan, Ayrshire; and Tramore, in the county of Waterford. Messrs. Forrests, of Limehouse, had life-boats building for the institution, the cost of which was between £2000 and £3000. New life-boats were ordered to be stationed at Sunderland, and Margate, Cumberland. Public meetings had recently been held at Manchester, Derby, and Henley to promote the objects of the institution; and some of its friends had suggested that the volunteers throughout the country might contribute one penny per man, which, according to the inspector-general, would produce £2000 annually. The thanks of the committee were voted to the inspector and assistant inspector of life-boats to the institution on their recent visits to the life-boats of the society on the coasts of North Wales, Cornwall, and Devon. Everywhere they found the boats in excellent order, and their crews perfectly satisfied with them. Payments, amounting to £1256, were ordered to be made on various life-boat establishments. The accounts of the institution for the past year were ordered to be sent to Mr. Reginis, public auditor, who has been the auditor for the past twelve years. Cordial votes of thanks were given by the committee to Mr. Chapman, the able secretary, and to the honorary secretaries, Mr. Hankey, jun., and Mr. Young, resident chairman of the preparatory committee. The committee also expressed their high appreciation of the ability and assiduity of the secretary (Mr. Lewis) and the inspectors of the institution.

The annual return of insane paupers in England and Wales at the beginning of the year has been issued. The return is made up to the 1st of January, 1865, and includes all lent a few paupers rendering no account. The total number of paupers in receipt of relief on that day was little over a million—namely, 1,027,000, or one in every 24 of the population. At the end of 1863 the total number of insane paupers had increased, and amounted to 37,576, of whom 27,690 were lunatics and 9886 idiots. Thus, the pauperism attributed to lunacy, which was 2·17 per cent of the whole pauperism on Jan. 1, 1863, was as much as 2·7 per cent on Jan. 1, 1864. In every hundred paupers forty-four were males and fifty-six females. The distribution of pauper insanity appears to be very unequal. Thus, at the date of this return, London had among its 116,868 paupers as many as 5859 insane. The south-western counties had among their large total of 109,518 paupers only 3766 insane. So also in the eastern counties, among their 89,771 paupers, there were but 2486 insane; and in Wales also only 2439, out of a total of 79,341. In the north-western counties, including Lancashire and Cheshire (including Salford), Warwick, Worcester, and Gloucester), we have 4887 insane, which is the last two numbers; among the not so greatly increased total of 104,764 paupers. Of the 37,576 insane paupers, the numbers in county or borough lunatic asylums had risen to 20,257. The number in workhouses was still as large as 9668.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THE explosion of fifty-five tons of gunpowder sufficed to frighten Erith out of its wits, shake Woolwich to its foundations, and knock a considerable portion of the Thames embankment into what is termed, in Hibernian parlance, "smithereens." But 215 tons of powder exploded by the Federals under the lee of a fort at Wilmington seem to have made no more impression on its walls than the hundred plum buns full of calomel and prussic acid made on Chunee, the mad elephant, at Exeter Change. Our cousins seem unfortunate in their blow-ups. What a disastrous failure was the springing of that mine before Petersburg last August! The superstitious among the warriors of the great armada, which is said to have returned to Fortress Monroe, may ascribe the failure of the expedition to the presence of General Butler in a position of high command. Jonah should have been cast overboard. But many of those who are not superstitious might feel inclined to augur that no success could attend an enterprise which was conducted on a Sunday and on Christmas Day.

The veteran James Wallack is dead. Not many weeks have elapsed since we saw him in his little bijou of a house in New York, surrounded by the portraits of Macready, and Younge, and Kemble, with his stalwart son Lester by his side, and a little grandson on his knee, looking as handsome and as dignified as of yore, and full of his old humour, vivacity, and grace. He had been for many years a cruel sufferer from the most atrocious form of rheumatic gout; chalkstones exuded from him like drops of blood; his limbs were all swathed in silken bandages; but at seventy years of age, and all but bedridden, there were still in his eye and in his voice the vigour and cheeriness of a young man. It was no wreck you saw before you. The gallant and chivalrous Don Cæsar, the dashing Massaroni, the audacious Monseigneur, could still be recognised.

James W. Wallack was something more than a brilliant and versatile actor. He was a high-minded and accomplished English gentleman. In his own country the noblest in the land were glad to associate with him, and more than one of his sons and nephews held commissions in the British Army. He was the proprietor of the most charming theatre in New York—a theatre wherein good English plays are performed by good English actors, and had realised, we believe, a handsome fortune. His son Lester, who is a great favourite as an actor in light comedy with the New York public, and who is married to a sister of Mr. Millais, the Academician, will, we presume, succeed to the management of Wallack's Theatre. Some of the best traditions of the English stage in its best days die with James W. Wallack.

Mr. Bentley writes to us to say that the original illustration to the spectre of Tappington in the Miscellany, thirty years ago, was etched by a son of Mr. Barham, and that Hablot K. Browne had nothing to do with it. The rectification is unimportant; but publishers are so particular. We hope we have not committed a fresh blunder in amending error number one.

The debtors in Whitecross-street are in a rage with the gaol authorities for excluding visitors on the Sunday, and have resolved to abstain from attending Divine service until the obnoxious order is rescinded. Out of a hundred prisoners, only four went to chapel last Sunday. The dissentients disclaim any wish to wound the feelings of their worthy Chaplain; but the proceeding strikes us as being very like cutting off one's nose in order to be revenged on one's face. Is separation from our friends a just reason for our ceasing to say our prayers? The entire Sunday question seems drifting into a labyrinth of rancour and prejudice. The other day the captain of a man-of-war punished a naughty middy by ordering his compulsory attendance for a certain number of months at an "extra" Divine service. This reminds us of the way sailors used to be "started" to church with a rope's end by boatswains' mates on Sunday morning, and of the stupid manner in which some parents correct their children—by setting them to learn, as a penal infliction, the genealogy of the progeny of Methuselah. In Scotland there is an awful controversy going on between the "pulpit and the press" on the question of the observance of Sunday and the running of luggage-trains on that day, and the odium theologicum has risen 50 per cent above proof. Surely, that which Mdme. Roland said of liberty might be said of the Sabbath with which Heaven has blessed us—Que de crimes on commet en ton nom.

The Pall-mall Gazette! The announcement has nothing to do with the novel of "Pendennis," but is a living, imminent fact. The prospectus which poor Captain Shandon wrote in the Fleet Prison for Bungay or Bacon (we forget which) has been paraphrased into choice English, and ere many days we are to see a Pall-mall Gazette in the flesh, in the shape of a new evening paper, price twopence, and professing, we hear, Liberal-Conservative principles. The new journal is to be a happy medium between a newspaper and a review; but, humour, verse and epigram are not to be excluded from its pages. Some of the most caustic and scholar-like writers of the day are said to have promised their collaboration to the P. M. G., among others Mr. James Hannay, who retires from the editorship of the Edinburgh Courant, and returns to London and to resume that position in literature and society which he has so worthily earned, and which he was perhaps rash in relinquishing, even to wield an editorial sceptre in North Britain.

Is there room for the Pall-mall Gazette? There is room for anything and everything, if it be good. Newspapers and periodicals are said to be increasing twentyfold; but, on the other hand, the number of readers is augmenting five hundred-fold:—

> Those now are readers who ne'er read before,
> And those who used to read now read the more.

There seems but one little slip in the design of the P. M. G. Why select Salisbury-street, Strand, as the locale for the publishing-office of the new paper? Could not an office have been found in Pall-mall itself, or at least in Jermyn-street?

The character of "Captain Shandon" alluded to above was drawn by Thackeray from the late Dr. Maginn—one who had many faults, but who, with all those faults, was one of the brightest scholars, one of the most trenchant writers, and one of the kindliest men that ever lived. Is there no one alive who knew William Maginn well to vindicate his memory from the cruel aspersions cast upon it in two recently-published volumes of "Personal Recollections?" Is there no organ of the great Conservative party whom he served so well to take up the cause of the dead free-lance? Have Blackwood and Fraser, of which he was the "Morgan O'Doherty," never a word to say in his behalf? He was once called the "Standard Bearer." There is a Standard still. Where is Dr. Kenealey, who was Maginn's warmest friend and admirer, his peer in learning and humour, and who should have been his biographer?

Another new magazine! Yes, another; not absolutely on the eve of publication, but on the tapis, on the anvil, on the stocks. It is to be called, we believe, the Traveller—a capital title; it is to be a shilling monthly—it should be illustrated; and it is to be published by Messrs. Tinsley. Among the well-known names which have been "secured" for the Traveller we notice those of the indomitable Captain Richard Burton, of Meccan, Californian, and Dahomian fame; of the author of "Guy Livingstone; of the author, or authoress, of "George Geith," of Miss Annie Thomas, of Mrs. Henry Wood, of George Meredith, and Edward Dicey. Who the editor is to be remains a profound secret. We may expect the Traveller about March.

We very rarely allude to matters personal to ourselves; but there is an acme of ill-treatment at which even the most patient camel will groan. Among the multifarious publications of a Mr. Beeton we perceive that there is a magazine specially devised for the delectation of young ladies. We notice that Mr. Beeton, or Mr. Beeton's editor, has chosen to appropriate two lengthy extracts from the series of papers entitled "America in the Midst of War," written by the writer of these "Echoes," and to publish them in his magazine as distinct articles, appending to them the author's name. This is the more unseemly, as in the whole course of our life we never wrote a line for Mr. Beeton. The whole proceeding is exceedingly untradesmanlike. Every bookseller in London knows that the experiences of the author of "America in the Midst of War" are about to be published in book form; and had Mr. Beeton's magazine been published in February instead of January, an injunction in the Court of Chancery would very soon have taught him the difference between meum and tuum. Editorial scissors are excellent things, but they are ill employed in taking the bread out of a labouring man's mouth.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

THE threatened invasion by the Conservatives of Liberal strongholds at the next election seems to be assuming enlarged proportions. There has been a distinct rally in the West Riding of Yorkshire, and the call to the standard has been sounded by very excellent lungs even in that borough where the construction of what Mr. Leatham humorously called a single-barrelled reform bill has so long been going on. It is no wonder that a few days since Mr. Baines took occasion to proclaim his astonishment (and how admirably his countenance is constituted to express astonishment!) that the people of Leeds, who are, as it were, the nurses of an inchoate six-pound franchise, should allow a Conservative gathering to take place in their very midst without some exhibition of protest. He forgot, or chose to forget, that Mr. Bright himself has been subjected to even such a demonstration at his own threshold in Rochdale, under the auspices of much milder leaders than those who took the initiative at Leeds last week. Indeed, it would almost appear that Mr. Baines was scolding against illegitimate poaching on his special manor, and was wondering how a spot so well-preserved by his annual motions, his speeches, and his newspaper articles, could be entered at all. He ignores, apparently, the fact that it is now a good many Parliamentary years since Mr. Beecroft introduced the element of Conservatism into the representation of the borough which Mr. Baines has so assiduously laboured to close against it; and to those who are not possessed with the self-belief, of which occasionally one may observe traces in the tutelary genius of Liberalism in Leeds, it is not surprising that the former gentleman should do something to enlarge the influence which he must have gained in order to have pushed into so well-guarded a constituency. Assuredly, when the design was formed of producing a Conservative candidate for the West Riding to a Leeds audience, it was good tactics to surround him with such a stalwart body-guard as Colonel Edwards, Mr. Ferrand, and Mr. F. S. Powell. The vocal qualities of the latter two gentlemen are great; and if it was supposed that there was a chance of a row, amidst which it would be necessary for speakers to make themselves heard, it would be difficult to find any endued with more strength of lung, more loudness of utterance, more capability of illimitable pouring out of words, or more indomitable blindness and deafness to the usual marks of discouragement to orators, than are possessed by them. Then, too, the sturdy courage, the self-reliance, the aplomb of Colonel Edwards would have enabled him to do yeoman's service in any tumult which might have arisen, and which one cannot help fancying that Mr. Baines thinks ought to have arisen, on the occasion. The Conservative irruption was unquestionably formidable; and as it was directed, not upon the representation of Leeds proper, but on that of the division of the county of which Leeds has rather arbitrarily assumed of late to be the capital city, it may be taken to have been successful. It should be remembered that it was by the Conservative party in the House of Commons, and in despite of a Liberal Government, that additional members were given to the West Riding; and that party has therefore some pretext for claiming to fill the seats which it won; and it would seem that organisation and exertion to that end are by no means wanting. Witness the manifest alarm and annoyance of Mr. Baines.

The triune character of the borough of Greenwich enables Mr. Alderman Salomons annually to make a sort of triumphal progress through his constituency. Whether the triumph is not lessened by his making his visits to each department of his Parliamentary ambit, somewhat wide apart, is a question for him alone; but it certainly is not to be attributed to any want of activity on his part that he pauses for rather a long while between Greenwich, Woolwich, and Deptford, for a more mobile member in the house is possessed by no electoral body; and every night and all night in the Session he may be seen glancing about from the lobby to the independent benches, appearing to be always charged with a short speech, which on due occasion he lets off like a steam-jet. It must not be understood by this comparison that what he says is mere fizz and vapour, for he is too sensible and too practical not to take care to talk about what he understands, and his deliverance is always of a shrewd suggestion or a pointed criticism. He is essentially a man of business, and always brings his outdoor habits to bear on his Parliamentary functions. When one remembers how hot was the contest on that political question of which Mr. Salomons was long a type, and the settlement of which is so largely due to him; how the exclusion of Jewish members from Parliament was treated as if it were an interest which concerned millions of a special class, and how Mr. Newdegate and his like invested it with a terror the images of which were borrowed from rushing floods and the devastating influences of hordes of locusts, one can hardly feel otherwise than surprised at learning, from statistics recently published, that the number of Jews in Great Britain does not exceed 42,000. As matters stand, therefore, that body has a very adequate representation in the house; and, looking to the proportions which other members bear to particular classes, and assuming that that proportion of representatives to represented is governed by some insensible law, it is not very likely to be increased even if the Jews as a race were more aggressive than they are.

In the faint remembrance of that reign of terror which prevailed in London two or three winters ago, and which was known as garotting, it may have escaped many or most people how it came that a resolute stand was made against that playful, not to say affectionate, system of robbery and half murder, and how its practitioners were taught to understand the force of that observation of Chief Justice Holt, "That the law would always be found too strong for those who offended against it." It was an occurrence something akin to that which was suggested by a late jocose Canon as a hint to railway directors that people were not to be locked in their carriages with impunity, which caused a crusade against the garotters; for it was from the time that a member of Parliament was manipulated in the very centre of Pall-mall that the doom of that unholy brotherhood was sealed. All those who now, for business or for pleasure, pass at dim hours through the streets of the metropolis safe from that unfraternal hug which operated on function as effectually and speedily as chloroform, should freshly remember the name of Mr. Pilkington, M.P. for Blackburn, whose transient martyrdom has been their perennial security. We are glad to find that this honourable and once-garotted member is flourishing and vigorous, as indicated by his having, a few days since, intercommunicated with his constituents after the fashion of his Parliamentary brethren. We are not aware that he has established any other special claim on the public, being in his legislatorial character singularly unobtrusive; and any fame which may accompany his name as a member to posterity will, probably, be that only which was rudely thrust upon him on a dark night between the Athenæum and United Service Clubs.

A new comet was discovered on the 29th ult. by Professor Respighi, of Bologna, in the constellation of Aquila.

The Imperial Library at Paris contains 2,000,000 printed works, 200,000 manuscripts, 3,000,000 engravings, and above 500,000 maps, plans, and views.

The Courrier de Verdun mentions that in a hunting-party, which took place two days back in the forest adjoining that town, four large wolves and one wild boar were killed.

There are 351 international money-order post towns in British America, 245 in Australasia, 46 at the Cape of Good Hope, 12 in the West Indies, and 2 at the west coast of Africa, at which money orders can be issued on the United Kingdom,

THE MEETING OF PARLIAMENT.—The following proclamation by the Queen in Council appeared in Tuesday's London Gazette:—"Whereas our Parliament stands prorogued to Friday, the 13th day of January instant, we, with the advice of our Privy Council, do hereby publish and declare, that the said Parliament shall be further prorogued, on the said 13th day of January instant, to Tuesday, the 7th day of February next; and we have given order to our Chancellor of that part of our United Kingdom called Great Britain to prepare a commission for proroguing the same accordingly; and we do hereby further, with the advice aforesaid, declare our Royal will and pleasure that the said Parliament shall, on the said Tuesday, the 7th day of February next, assemble and be holden for the dispatch of divers urgent and important affairs, and the Lords spiritual and temporal, and the knights, citizens, and burgesses, and the commissioners for shires and burghs of the House of Commons, are hereby required and commanded to give their attendance accordingly at Westminster, on the said Tuesday, the 7th day of February next.—Given at our Court, at Osborne House, Isle of Wight, this 7th day of January, in the year of our Lord 1865, and in the twenty-eighth year of our reign. God save the Queen!"

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

7th Hussars: Lieut. A. Peel to be Lieutenant.

3rd Foot: Lieut. F. T. Jones to be Captain; Ensign F. W. Kane to be Lieutenant. 11th: Lieut. W. G. Byron to be Captain; Ensign A. F. Astley to be Lieutenant; Cadet H. F. Burmester to be Ensign. 20th: Lieut. C. K. Chatfield to be Captain; Ensign J. Whybrow to be Lieutenant; Cadet W. A. Headeck to be Ensign. 22nd: Lieut. R. A. Carey to be Captain; Ensign W. F. Martin to be Lieutenant; B. S. Brookes to be Ensign. 28th: Lieut. T. Turner to be Captain; Ensign J. S. Greer to be Lieutenant; J. B. Clarke to be Ensign. 39th: Lieut. J. Tryon to be Captain; Ensign C. D'Oyly Harmar to be Lieutenant. 43rd: Colour-Sergeant J. Cooper to be Quartermaster. 48th: Lieut. H. H. Oldham to be Lieutenant. 52nd: Ensign H. C. H. Gwynne-Holford to be Ensign. 53rd: Major C. Clapcott and Capt. and Brevet Major J. A. Dalzell to be Majors. 79th: Lieut. G. Quin to be Lieutenant. 80th: Cadet A. S. Wilson to be Ensign. 82nd: Lieut. F. Cardew to be Lieutenant. 87th: Ensign W. W. Taylor to be Lieutenant; H. C. H. Gwynne-Holford and Cadet E. C. Money to be Ensigns. 88th: Capt. T. E. Anderson to be Captain. 94th: Lieut. P. R. Anstruther to be Captain; Ensign W. E. Montague to be Lieutenant; F. M. Stow to be Ensign. 101st: Lieuts. H. B. Pedder, A. J. C. Birch, and W. B. Hatton to be Lieutenants. 102nd: Cadet S. D. Turnbull to be Ensign. 104th: Lieut. W. R. Bunbury to be Lieutenant.

COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT.—Messrs. A. R. Gibbs, A. Meyer, and G. J. Parkyn to be Deputy Assistant Commissary-Generals.

ADMIRALTY.

Dr. A. E. Mackay has been promoted to the rank of Deputy Inspector-General of Hospitals and Fleets in her Majesty's Fleet.

Royal Marine Light Infantry: First Lieut. A. H. Ozzard to be Captain; Second Lieut. T. Lakin to be First Lieutenant.

Cadets R. B. Kirchhoffer, R. D. D. Jervois, E. B. Byrch, A. B. Crosble, A. H. Blaxland, J. H. Price, A. H. Des Barres, R. W. Heathcote, R. P. Coffin, and A. A. Crespin, have been appointed Second Lieutenants.

Commander F. E. Johnstone to be retired Captain. Commanders W. W. Kay and C. C. Talbot have been placed on the retired list of their rank.

Mr. W. Brown has been promoted to the rank of chief engineer in her Majesty's Fleet. Mr. W. Powell to the rank of acting engineer; and Mr. J. Sharp, Mr. W. Green, Mr. J. Brough, and Mr. G. Edwards to the rank of first-class assistant engineers in the Fleet.

Mr. G. A. Browning has been promoted to the rank of Master in her Majesty's Fleet.

Major-General Viscount Templeton has succeeded General Hutchinson as Commander-in-Chief at Plymouth.

The next examination for direct commissions will not take place before the month of May.

The authorities at the War Office have decided on adopting Major Palliser's invention of chilled cast-iron shot.

Captain A. C. Key, C.B., who is to be at the head of the Naval Gunnery Department in London, is, it is stated, to have a salary of £1200 per annum.

Mr. James Mackay states that on Saturday last he fired a shot 14 in. long and weighing 116 lb., with 20 lb. of powder, from the 7-inch "Mackay" gun, at 25 deg. elevation, and that the shot was found buried in the sand (first graze) at a distance of 7153 yards from the gun.

There are still 120 military officers above the rank of captain holding the Waterloo medal. Of these eighteen are generals, twenty-two lieutenant-generals, twenty-four major-generals, nineteen colonels, twenty-four lieutenant-colonels, and thirteen majors. Three or four years since the number of officers wearing this medal (above the rank of captain) was 150.

On Thursday week the division at Aldershott paraded for field manœuvres on a portion of the common, near the waterworks. Lieutenant-General Sir J. L. Pennefather, K.C.B., accompanied by his staff, arrived upon the ground at half-past ten. The generals of brigades and commanding officers of regiments having been assembled, Sir John addressed them for a short time in explanation of the intended operations of the day. The troops were then put in motion to repel an enemy supposed to be advancing on Aldershott from Reading. The various evolutions were performed in a most satisfactory manner, and occupied about two hours.

The following dépôt battalions are to be reduced:—The 8th, at Pembroke; 9th, at Colchester; 12th, at Athlone; 13th, at Birr; 15th, at Buttevant; 16th, at Templemore; and 22nd, at Stirling. The dépôts at these places will join the head-quarters of their regiments if they be serving in the United Kingdom, and will join other dépôt battalions if they be abroad. The numbering of the dépôt battalions will be changed, and several moves among the staff will take place after the six junior lieutenant-colonels, eight junior majors, and seven junior adjutants shall have been placed on half pay.

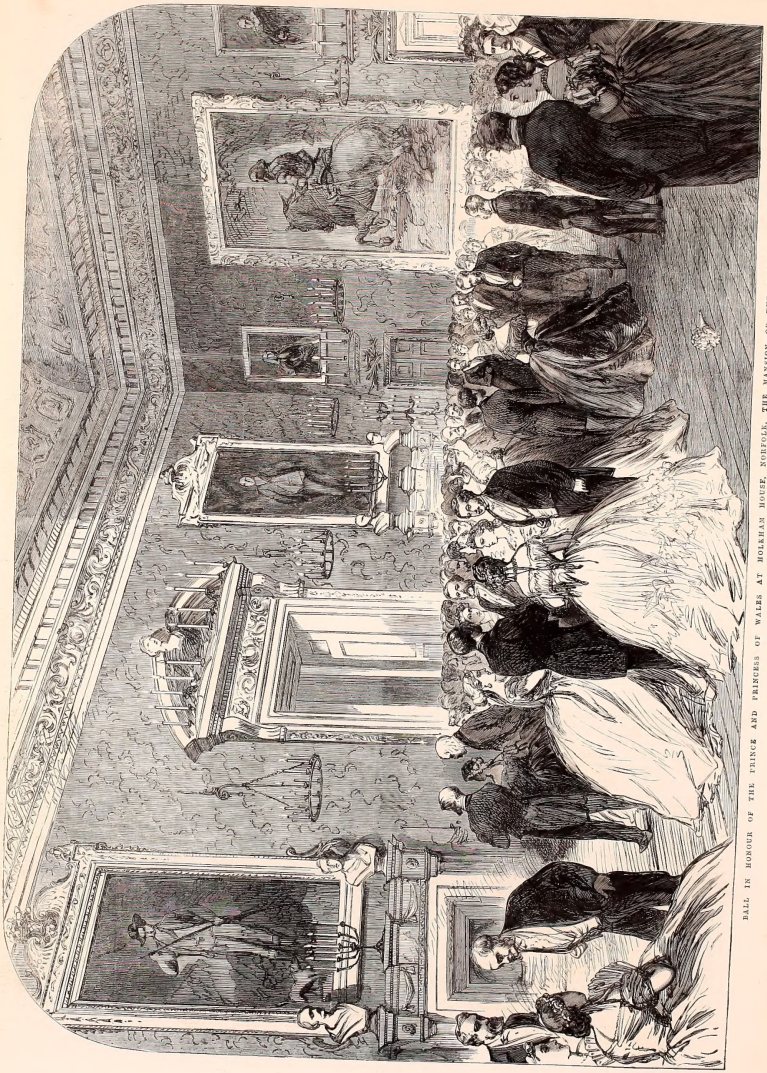
THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

A numerous and brilliant company was assembled in Westminster Hall, last Saturday evening, to witness the presentation of prizes to the Queen's (Westminster) Rifle Corps. The prizes, which amounted to between £1400 and £1500, were presented by Lady Constance Grosvenor, who was loudly cheered. The corps was addressed by Earl Grosvenor and by Colonel M'Murdo. The latter said it was to be regretted that persons who were possessors of land in the vicinity of ranges proved themselves such great opponents to the volunteer force, and took the steps they did for obstructing the progress of the volunteer movement, through the medium of the law. It was to be regretted that through a misapprehension Parliament had not adopted certain clauses in a bill to protect volunteers in discharging their duties as efficients, and which would have prevented the wholesale destruction of ranges. Range after range, either through foolish fear or the malicious feeling of individuals, had been done away with; but he hoped that the time was not far distant when the obstructions to the force he had referred to would be removed. As one who would always take an interest in the volunteers, he was happy to tell them that the volunteer force was increasing, not merely in numbers but in efficiency; and he said this not only as an inspecting officer of volunteers, but as one who had seen 97,000 men under arms. He was well satisfied with their efficiency, but what he wanted was to see greater rapidity in their movements. He then explained the advantages of rapidity of movement before an enemy, and, in reference to this point, said that a new species of volunteers corps had been organised, with twenty-one lieutenant-colonels, which would soon amount to thirty, and they were composed of engineers and others, who would be able to take the actual command of our railways, on which rapid transit would be of the highest importance in the event of our shores being invaded.

The annual meeting of the County of Lancaster Rifle Association, which has usually been held at Preston, was held on Monday at Manchester, in the Mayor's parlour, at the Townhall. Lord Stanley, M.P., took the chair. The income was stated to be about £1300 yearly. At the last county contest the number of competitors showed a considerable increase; the average scores both of volunteers and all-comers showed a slight falling off.——On Saturday a meeting of a portion of the 1st Manchester was held on Bowden Moss, Manchester, when prizes were shot for.——The distribution of prizes won by members of the 3rd Manchester took place on Wednesday week, in the music-hall, Belle Vue Gardens. The Hon. Algernon Egerton, M.P., Lieutenant-Colonel of the regiment, occupied the chair.——Last Saturday a rifle-match took place, at Barton Moss, between ten non-commissioned officers of the 8th Regiment of Infantry and the same number of the 3rd Manchester Rifles. The weapon was the long Enfield, five rounds at 200 and 400 yards. The total hits and points were as follow:—3rd Manchester, 235; 8th Regiment, 227.

The septennial corn averages for regulating the tithe commutation has been published in the Gazette; and the average per bushel is—wheat, 6s.; barley, 4s. 3¼d.; oats, 2s. 10d.

A lion-hunting expedition, under the leadership of M. Pertuiset, a friend and rival of the late Jules Gerard, has been organised in Paris for the province of Constantina, in Algeria.



A fisherman recently hauled up a silver fork, marked "Atlantic," near the spot in Long Island Sound where the steamer Atlantic was wrecked on Nov. 27, 1846. It is described as a very heavy, old-fashioned silver fork, bearing marks of long immersion in water.

The Grand Duchess Dowager Maria Ferdinanda of Tuscany died, on the 2nd inst., at Brandeis, in her sixty-eighth year. She was daughter of the late Prince Maximilian of Saxony and widow of the Grand Duke Ferdinand III. At the time of her death she was living with her brother-in-law, the Grand Duke Leopold of Tuscany.

There has been discovered in the government of Tomsk, in Siberia, twenty-eight versts from the town of Kainsk, near the village of Oustiantseva, a sulphurous lake, the waters of which are, it is said, an infallible specific against even inveterate scrofula. The Russian journals make the comment that, when the proposed railways are made, people will go to the baths in Siberia as they now do to Germany.

Mr. Edward Watkin, M.P., president of the Grand Trunk Railway of Canada, had an interview yesterday week with Mr. Cardwell, at the Colonial Office, with reference to the recent raids from Canada, and to the consequent threatened proceedings on the part of the American Government to adopt a stringent passport system for passengers, and a rigid examination of goods passing between the States and the British North American Provinces.

Her Majesty's Emigration Commissioners have chartered the Coldstream, belonging to Messrs. Teighe and Smith, London, for the conveyance of emigrants to Adelaide, South Australia, at £12 14s. 8d. per statute adult. The Coldstream is appointed to receive the passengers at Plymouth on the 27th of February. The ship Dauntless, 1055 tons, Mr. J. Moore, master, sailed from Dublin, on the 30th ult., for Auckland, New Zealand, with 371 emigrants, under the care of Mr. William Eaton, surgeon superintendent. The Dauntless is the fifth ship dispatched by the New Zealand Emigration Board since the opening of the free emigration to Auckland, on the 1st of September last. The total number of emigrants to whom free passage to Auckland has been granted in that period is 2057, of whom 880 were English, 332 Scotch, and 845 Irish. The emigrants consisted of 916 married people, 327 single men, 231 single women, and 229 boys and 250 girls between the ages of one and twelve, and 104 infants, and were equal in all to 1718½ statute adults. Two ships sailed from London, one from Glasgow, one from Cork, and one from Dublin. The Canterbury, to sail from London on the 5th of February, is the next ship for the colony.

BALL IN HONOUR OF THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES AT HOLKHAM HOUSE, NORFOLK, THE MANSION OF THE EARL OF LEICESTER.

THE 2ND SURREY ARTILLERY VOLUNTEERS AT PRACTICE AT PLUMSTEAD.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES AT HOLKHAM.

THE visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the Earl and Countess of Leicester, at Holkham Hall, Norfolk, continued from Monday to Friday last week. Their Royal Highnesses travelled from the Prince's house at Sandringham—a distance of twenty-five miles—in an open phaeton, driven by the Prince himself, and followed by another phaeton with the Marchioness of Carmarthen and Captain Grey, the Lady and Gentleman in Waiting. They arrived at Holkham about five o'clock in the afternoon, so that it was dark when they passed through the triumphal arch erected at the south entrance of the park, where the people had assembled to greet them with cheers of welcome. The Prince and Princess were received at the entrance of the Egyptian Hall by the Earl of Leicester, who conducted their Royal Highnesses to the saloon, where they were received by the Countess of Leicester, with whom were the party of visitors honoured with invitations to meet them.

From the saloon their Royal Highnesses were conducted to the apartments which had been specially fitted up and decorated for their reception. These consisted of a suite of four state rooms. The bedroom and sitting-room devoted to the use of her Royal Highness face the north, and afford a full view of the noble obelisk known as the Leicester monument, erected about fifteen years since by the yeomanry and noblemen and gentlemen of all parties in the county in memory of the late Earl, better known as "Mr. Coke of Holkham," who not only represented the county in Parliament for more than half a century, but conferred the greatest benefits on all interested in agriculture by his successful experiments and improvements, to say nothing of that vast tract of country, comprising 700 acres, which has been reclaimed from the sea at this place. The Princess's sitting-room is handsomely decorated with white and gold, and presents a very light and pleasing appearance. The Prince's bed-chamber faces the east, and overlooks the pleasure-grounds. This apartment, as well as that appropriated to the use of the Princess, is hung with tapestry.

The party invited by the Earl and Countess of Leicester to meet their Royal Highnesses consisted of the Marquis and Marchioness of Normanby, the Marchioness of Huntly and Lady Mary Gordon, the Earl of Gosford, Viscount Hamilton, Viscount and Viscountess Powerscourt, Lord Suffield, Lord and Lady Dacre, Lady Laura Phipps, Mr. Grey, Mr. Baring, and Hon. Colonel and Mrs. E. Coke. In addition, the following ladies and gentlemen, who were staying in the vicinity of Holkham Hall, joined the circle in the evening:—The Hon. Henry and Lady Katharine Coke, Colonel the Hon. Wenman Coke, M.P., Colonel the Hon. George and Mrs. Miller, Adjutant Stephenson, Scots Fusilier Guards; Captain Powell, Mr. F. Tredcroft, and Miss Whitbread.

The entertainments at Holkham were of a private nature, but closed on Thursday evening with a grand ball, when 400 invitations were issued, including the three Archdeacons and several clergy of the neighbourhood. The company arrived at the main entrance at the north front, the great Egyptian Hall being the entrance-hall. It is situated in the immediate centre of the north front, and measures 58 ft. by 51 ft., on the ground floor, and 40 ft. in height. Tinted Ionic variegated marble pillars form the colonnade or gallery of communication, supported on a marble basement, with benches above and bench of black marble inlaid with white, à la Grecque. This hall forms a most majestic sight than can be conceived, and was planned after the Ionic Temple at Rome. The floor is of Portland stone, bordered with black marble. The ceiling is in hexagonal mosaics of the ceiling were copied from Degodin's description of the Temple of Peace, in the Forum of Vespasian, "Ital of Socrates," "Death of Germanicus," &c., in alto and bas relief. In the niches of the colonnade are statues of Apollo, Flora, Ceres, and, to add to the grandeur of the scene, the niches were filled by a splendid palm and other rare and choice exotics. At the south end is a flight of steps, 18 ft. wide, leading up to the saloon. The balconies conjoined these apartments, consisting of the saloon and the east and west drawing-rooms. The former is a magnificent apartment, 58 ft. by 28 ft., and 32 ft. in height, and the whole establishment is of the Composite order, and the decorations are most appropriate. The foliage in the frieze and the octagon mosaics in the cove of the ceiling are from the Temple of Peace. Engravings and coloured pieces, with bas-reliefs in the tablets of the friezes. The room is hung with crimson and embossed Genoa velvet, and the paintings are hung on them by eminent masters, few, if any, collections in the kingdom containing so many by Claude Lorraine. On the south side of the saloon a vestibule had been made on the portico for the band. It was designed and executed with such consummate skill as to resemble a fairy bower. The company began to arrive about nine o'clock, and shortly before ten during commenced, the Royal Highnesses leading off with the Countess of Leicester, and the Earl of Leicester leading off with the Princess of Wales. Supper was served at twelve o'clock, in the state gallery. After supper dancing was resumed, and continued till between one and four o'clock. The Princess wore a white lace skirt over a white dress, trimmed with pearl ornaments and pearls. Her Royal Highness and family, the Prince of Wales, Princess Alice, and the Duke of Edinburgh, left in their private carriages at half-past three o'clock. There were only one couch in the saloon, which was especially reserved for the Princess of Wales. Her Royal Highness danced with several gentlemen of the select circle of visitors staying at the hall, and who wore a sprig of fern to distinguish them from the general company. In the hall the Duke of Cambridge one of the younger sons of the Earl and Countess of Leicester—quite a little boy—and playfully pretended that he must teach her the steps. It is needless to say that she charmed every one by the graceful facility, and grace.

OFFICERS OF THE 2ND SURREY ARTILLERY VOLUNTEERS.—SEE PAGE 41.

The Prince and Princess returned to Sandringham on Friday.

We shall give a View of Holkham House in our next week's Paper.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Ballads and Songs of Brittany. Translated by Tom Taylor, from the "Barzaz Breiz" of Vicomte Hersart de la Villemarqué. (Macmillan.) Mr. Tom Taylor has made good use of that rich store of the ancient national ballads of Brittany which the Vicomte de la Villemarqué gathered from oral tradition among the peasants of his native province. This noble volume, which forms a most appropriate New Year's gift, contains a true and lively English version of the choicest examples of Breton poetry, with the original music of the songs and ballads arranged by Mr. Taylor. All many gifted illustrators from the pencil of Mr. Birket Foster, Tenniel, Corbould, Tenet, Keene, and Hablot K. Browne. The recovery of so many of the unwritten national traditions of a people so remarkable as M. de Villemarqué has been enabled to preserve is a highly interesting and valuable addition to our knowledge of the primitive history of Europe. We conceive that it may also serve to reflect some light upon the character and social condition of the contemporary people of own country. To a certain extent, indeed, we are naturally inclined to regard Brittany with a sort of sentimental interest, arising, no doubt, a very close affinity between the several nations of the Celtic race, the Breton, the Cymry, the Gael, and the Irish, who still retain their primitive tongue. The Breton people are also distinguished slightly from that of South Wales: and in the district of Cornouaille, between Quimper and Quimperlé, the last-named French dialect is so fabulous and obscure, have been an age when the Bretons and the Britons, who were among the most valorous champions of the cause and the neighbouring continent, were one and the same people. Many of the incidents of the close old tales of which Brittany have grown out of the soil of Britain, tend to prove that there was once a common passage to and fro, a familiar social intercourse, and perhaps also a political confederation, between those two branches of the Celtic race on the British Channel, as well as of the Bristol Channel. Mr. Tom Taylor even informs us that "the whole of Brittany is full of traditions of a wanton Virgen played her tricks upon Merlin, are somewhere in the department of Morbihan. He does not, however, include in his collection of Breton legends with any belonging strictly to the cycle of the Arthurian romance; though he has given a spirited version of "The March of Arthur," which was actually sung in chorus by the Cornouaillais in 1846, when they took part in the great French Republic. This song, which breathes the very spirit of a national insurrection, turns upon the mystic fancy, common to all the Celtic peoples, that at the moment when their country is invaded, or in the direst necessity for its defence, the host of Arthur may be seen, led by its heroic chief, riding quickly along the crest of the mountains, as a token of victory in their way of patriotism. Sir Walter Scott has cited a similar belief in the Highlands of Scotland; and it is remarkable that these verses, taken down by M. de Villemarqué from the mouth of a peasant of Scaër, should contain many words which are now obsolete in Brittany, but are still found in the Cymric of Wales. The song, composed in triplets, begins in this way:—

Tramp, tramp, tramp, tramp, tramp to battle din;
Tramp on, tramp, tramp ere, tramp kin and kin;
Tramp on, tramp all, tramp with valour's madness.

The chieftain's on his sire adorest,
And seven avail the world's dominion;
"Le" warriors on yon mountain crest—

"Le" warriors saved, their course that hold
To grey sea-waters, raising
With mettle snorting wide for cold.

"Rank riding up on rank,
Six by six, and three by three,
Spear-point by thousand glittering free.

* * * * *

"Nine sling-casts' length from me to tear,
I know 'tis Arthur's hosts appear:
Save Arthur riches, host of mail peer."

"If it be Arthur—Ho! what, ho!
Up upon! out arme! bend the bow!
Ready, after Arthur, ne'er slow!"

The concluding strophe of this energetic war-song is an eager and joyful response from the people to the summons of their chief. Altogether, it is a fine example of that class of compositions; but we have chosen to quote it more particularly because it appears to be one of merely local interest, being the general property of the Celtic race. That the people of Brittany, so late as the reign of our King Henry IV., were inclined to cherish the memory of a common nationality with the people of Wales, appears from the reference, in a poem called "The Wedding Gialla," to an expedition under Jean de Rieux, in 1403—

in aid, if aid may be,
Of the good Prince Owen Glendwr and the Breton strer son.

But we need not dwell further upon this interesting topic. The greater part of the historical ballads in Mr. Tom Taylor's volume relate to the conflict which the Bretons maintained for centuries against their own neighbours of France. "The Wine of the Gauls," and "The Dance of the Swords," which he has placed at the beginning of the series, are of extreme antiquity—the one being a fierce hymn, chanted probably by a horde of Scythian savages as, tossing aloft their naked weapons, they whirled around the altar of their bloody Baal; while the other is a picture of the social delights of a foray in the vine-lands of that fertile region of Gaul which the decay of the Roman Empire had left an easy prey to the Breton marauders. The first of the narrative poems which seem worthy of our attention is that of the exploit by which Nomenoë, feudal Prince of Brittany in the ninth century, delivered his people and country from the yoke of the Franks under the Bald, then residing in the city of Rennes, or "Roazon." This is the subject of the fine ratray of the Frankish monarch is said to have once struck off the head of a young Breton, son of the chieftain of Poher, and threw it into the midst of the host, in the full confidence of weight in the tale of silver brought to him for tribute. Nothing can be more true, as regards the dramatic interest of the story, than the manner in which it is told. The tone is bold and rapid throughout; the chief has imitated so well, glancing at each successive scene and incident, as to be fully equal to develop the spirit and feeling of the action. "The bereaved father, upon hearing the news of his son's death, goes, with all his people, to the castle of the Lord Nomenoë to demand redress. At the castle gate he meets Nomenoë, returned from the chase, with the head of a boar on his shoulders, and his hands stained with the animal's blood. This scene is finely illustrated by Mr. Mouret's pencil in the accompanying woodcut. We feel confidence of a grand, heroic presence in the person of this mighty hunter, who lifts his hands and head to heaven, as he vows. He washed till he has driven out the Franks and avenged the land of their perfidious race. The conclusion of the story is told, likewise, in matches of animated narrative :—

Nomenoë hath done, I trow,
What never child hath done till now.

Hath sought the sea-beach, sack in hand,
To gather up the dead Franks.

Pebbles as tribute-toll to bring
The bretadant of the bald-head King.

* * *

Nomenoë hath done, I trow,
What never child hath done till now.

Prince as he is, hath ta'en his way,
The tribute-toll himself to pay.

* * *

"Fling wide the gates of Rossen,
That I may enter in anon.

Nomenoë now comes to your gate,
His wains all piled with silver freight."

* * *

We should like to give the rest of this poem as Mr. Tom Taylor has given it, but we have not space for more. It is enough to say that the brave and generous Prince of Brittany, standing alone and fearless in the palace of the Frankish tyrant, contrives to settle the account with one bold stroke, and then, leaping on his horse, rides back unmolested to bid his people assert their freedom which he has reclaimed for them. There is not in the whole collection a story more finely conceived and executed than this, for its strength and simplicity of motive, and for the air of native nobleness which pervades the character of the hero. In another poem, "The Plague of Elliant," we find that brooding intensity of feeling which is a characteristic of the Breton mind, bent upon the awful picture of a town under desolate by the pestilence, in visitation of God. Such an image is that of the mother dragging the dead-cart, heaped with the bodies of her children, to the common grave, which is the grave, while her husband, crazed with fear and trouble, walks slyly behind her, to see that she performs her mission well. In an idea which bespeaks the passionate heart and lyrical imagination of the Celt, we have, in "The Fairy," a mystical tale of the horrors of the Irish famine and fever of 1847, and the doom which overtakes a Sicklehouse fairy, who may say, indeed, of all these Breton ballads, that they are eminently characteristic of the race. They are a sincere and genuine national poetry. But we cannot stop to refer to the many others which Mr. Tom Taylor has presented here to English readers. They display more variety of theme and treatment than we have room to show. The whole collection is worth a careful study; and the book is a literary treasure.

Lancashire at Home. By Edwin Waugh. (Manchester: John Heywood.) In this caustic and, we would almost add, well-merited attack upon the Government, Mr. Waugh expresses the feelings of the people of a settled policy adapted to times of exceptional distress. He is a great admirer of the poor people of Ireland, and of their wrongs, which never loses an opportunity of exposing its failure: and is therefore bitter against the Government which sent down to Lancashire by the Poor-Law Board, in 1862, to inquire and advise how relief was to be done; and, whose advice being followed, showed more than ever the weakness of the Government. We are sorry to see how very easy it is to point out, when a fire or a flood has abated, how this or that emergency might have been met. Mr. Waugh, in the heat of the moment and the confusion of the scene, some bungling took place. It is equally true that Mr. Farnall, the Government Commissioner, arrived in the metropolis from Lancashire, in our hurry to relieve the sufferers we made a great deal of confusion, and did not always act with good economy. It now seems very probable that, had proper attention been given to the subject, had the means prepared for such a state of things—and certainly persons acquainted with these matters have warned the Government that the cotton supply might be stopped at any moment—Lancashire would have been found sufficient to bear her own burden, and no appeal to the public would have been necessary. But the fact remains that the want of sympathy which in this instance has been called into play, the fiats of the people, have been the means of saving the Government for allowing the Lancashire operatives to sink into pauperism, when another course would have been found. Mr. Waugh's book shows that they had done what they could to break down the authority of the law; not only by their conduct on strike days, but by combining with a system of relief which should have been devised long before, and should always be applied when labour is diverted from its accustomed object, which, in the case of a country manufacturing for the world, must occur by reason of the disturbance of foreign markets, over which we have no control. Mr. Waugh contends that it should always be within the power of boards of guardians to obtain a remunerative labour for the unemployed upon the rates during times of enforced idleness, for the purpose of carrying out works of sanitary improvement, and of public utility, in supplying deficiencies of water, and thus thrown out of work. In this way the poor-law discipline would be upheld, the independence of the workpeople would be conserved, and they would be employed upon productive instead of unproductive work. If this be the result, Lancashire's lesson will have been well learned.

A shock of earthquake was felt on the morning of the 31st ult. along the banks of the Lake of Garda.

There are 134 applications for admission on the roll of attorneys and solicitors at the present Term, seventy-seven of which stand for examination. The number of attorneys is about 10,000.

The Paris Moniteur has announced the discovery of large Roman baths at Pontoeil, with the subjacent ruins of the ancient Mediolanum, which was destroyed by Constantius Chlorus, the father of Constantine the Great.

The Belgian authorities have issued orders for the strict levy of 2f. per ton on all vessels under the flag of Mecklenburg entering the Scheldt. This petty principality enjoys the singular distinction, among other peculiarities, of being the only State in the two hemispheres that has not entered into the common stipulation for the freedom of that estuary.

MUSIC.

A NEW musical association has been formed in London, under the name of "The Beethoven Society." The founders, in their announcement, say :—"In such a time as the present, when classical music is on the ascendant and the interest taken in chamber compositions of the highest order is so rapidly increasing, we, as a permanent series of concerts, for which only the most distinguished artists are engaged." "Although (it is added) the performance of Beethoven's quartets, quintets, &c., will be the main object of the society, it is intended occasionally to vary the concerts by the introduction of the chief quartets of Haydn, Mendelssohn, &c." The winter series is to consist of eight weekly performances, commencing on Jan. 16, the first concert to take place at Willis's Rooms, on Saturday evening last, under the direction of Mons. Carl Goffrie. There was a crowded audience, among whom were many noted musicians and amateurs of the profession. The programme was the finest quartets of Beethoven—the quintet in C minor, op. 18, and the quartet in F (Mendelssohn's posthumous in E flat minor; and a solo on the piano, composed and played by Mr. J. B. Bennett. The concert was opened by Mr. Henry Blagrove, Pollitzer, Doyle, and Paque. Several vocal pieces were sung by Madame Sainton-Dolby. Miss Emma Pyne was announced in the programme, but a severe cold the prevalent complaint at present) disabled her from appearing. The performances, without exception, were excellent in every respect, and warmly applauded by the very fashionable audience.

Mr. Howard Glover's concert at Drury Lane Theatre, on Monday morning last—the fourth of the series of concerts which he has inaugurated—was very successful. It consisted, as usual, of a great variety of vocal and instrumental pieces, sung and played by a host of performers. Its most interesting feature was the debut of Mr. Glover's pupil, Miss Emily Soldene, who performed, along with Mr. Swift, the scene in the garden of the fair Miss d'Trevelyan" between Lucy and Maurice. In this scene, which affords great scope for impassioned acting as well as vocalisation, the young lady made a strong impression on the audience. She has a fine contralto voice, sings like an educated musician, and promises to become a lyrical tragedian of the first class.

A new opera, "Le Capitaine Henriot," by M. Gevaert, was produced at the Opéra Comique on the 29th of December. It has had great success, and is highly spoken of by the critics.

Professor Sterndale Bennett left town a few days ago for Leipsic, being about to undertake, at one of the Gewandhaus concerts, the performance of his symphony in G minor, composed for the Philharmonic Society.

Millie, Titiens has returned to London from her triumphant visit to her native city, Hamburg.

A new opera, "Le Nozze Delorme," from the pen of Signor Bottesini, has just been produced at Barcelona, with complete success. Signor Bottesini is, we believe, indeed only at a visit to Barcelona from on the double-bass; but he enjoys a high reputation on the Continent as a dramatic composer.

The last of Mr. Aguilar's series of recitals of pianoforte music for the present season took place on Wednesday week. The following was the programme :—

Sonata in F, allegro assai—Mozart; "Cheristana" (a dramatic and romantic piece)—Aguilar; Fantasia in C minor, op. 15—J. S. Bach; "The Rivulet"—Mendelssohn; Prelude and Fugue in G—J. S. Bach; "Le Désir" (transcription)—Liszt; Sonata in A flat, marche funèbre—Chopin; "Under the Olive Wreath"—Mendelssohn; "Wanderstunden," No. 3—Heller; Fantasia on "Lucrezia Borgia"—Thalberg; "Last Thoughts"—Liszt; Tarantella—Liszt and Marsh—Aguilar.

Mr. Aguilar was assisted by his pupil, Miss Weldon, whose good taste was shown by her selecting for performance Mozart's sonata in A and Spohr's duo in E minor for pianoforte, all of which she played well. The rooms were fashionably attended.

THE THEATRES.

Until the popularity of the pantomimes and burlesques shall have been completely declined, we cannot expect that the various theatres will venture on the production of a new drama; therefore, the revived Miss Bateman has, indeed, returned to the Adelphi, and the drama of "Leah" is again in the enjoyment of its former influence. It was not so successful on its second presentation as to preclude the necessity of the actress appearing in another character. We therefore expect to see her shortly in some legitimate part. At any rate, to some such contingency rumour points. In the report to-night, we shall then have the means of testing this young lady's merits by comparison, and so gain a more decided opinion than was possible by a single trial in a novel role.

A very pleasant and suggestive drama has been produced at the Strand, by Mr. Byron, in two acts, entitled "Lawyer's Love Suit." The plot, as usual with this writer's pieces, is slight; but the situations are for the most carefully produced. Lawyer (Mr. Parselle) is brought up with two young ladies, and while he really loves one, is induced by the force of circumstances to make suit and proposal, even, to whom he really loves, is subject to the reproaches of her rival's confidence. Out of interested motives, she determines on leaving home, and takes service as a milliner. Lawyer, however, in vain sought to discover her retreat, becomes reckless, and loses all at play. At this juncture he discovers that she seeks, in the same fraternity until her rival resigns the hand of Lawrence, which she does because of his supposed poverty. The piece is, in fact, entitled "Lawyer's and the disinterestedness of her affection, comes forward and blesses the discomfited rival. The piece is, in fact, carefully produced, and the acting, by the lovers are, of course, happy. The success of the little drama depends on the exquisite acting of Miss M. Palmer, who represented the heroine.

"We have already announced," says the Patrie, "that Great Britain was negotiating with the brother of the Imaum of Muscat for the cession of the island of Zanzibar. The Imaum has also ceded that of Zenguebar, Eastern Africa. We are now informed that the negotiation has resulted that in the Imaum having handed the cession of all a considerable territory in the north of Zanzibar, where she is to found an establishment which will be of great importance to her when the Canal is terminated."

The exportation from Plymouth during 1864 was only 306 short of that in 1863, in which year emigration was greater than for a long period previously. By the same Parliamentary Return, New South Wales, Victoria, 593; South Australia, 3757; Queensland, 880; New Zealand, 53; Cape of Good Hope, 134; British Columbia, 1867. The emigration which in 1863 there were 11 less for Canada, 377 less to New South Wales, 653 to Victoria, 1,000 to Queensland, and 1,000 to British Columbia, while in reference to South Australia there is an increase of 1,000.

The Lord Chancellor has written a letter to Mr. Paget, M.P., on the administration of the bankruptcy law. He says there has been no apparent improvement in the working of the system since the time of a stricter judge. He has endeavoured, but imperfectly, to do the duty of a chief judge in bankruptcy, and has appointed Mr. Fane to act as his deputy in bankruptcy business, and assistance of Mr. Fane has relieved him a great deal. But there is another evil which he cannot reach. Creditors will not put themselves to the trouble and expense of the trial, looking after their interests, unless the property is eaten up by attorneys, brokers, and every description of unnecessary officer. The only remedy is a small estate for the official administration which should be bound to manage every estate at a maximum charge of ten or twelve per cent on the assets. "I mean," he says, "to enforce economy, I should have the opposition of every solicitor."

The City of Dublin picked up three men from the ship Bermuda, of Greenock, after they had been six days and nights with no other food than biscuit steeped in salt water, no other clothes than sailcloth wrapped round them, and no other shelter than the exposed deck of the ship.—Last Christmas Eve the barque Genevieve fell in with the Pride of Canada, in lat. 50 N., long. 45 W. The latter vessel was showing signals of distress and was labouring very heavily in a tremendous sea. The captain of the Genevieve lay to for several hours, and, after many attempts, succeeded in rescuing the crew of the Pride of Canada, consisting of eight men. The vessel, which was being fearfully laden with pulse oil, was sinking fast; but, owing to the heavy sea running at the time, the four poor fellows were left to their fate. Shortly after leaving the Pride of Canada the Genevieve lost sight of the barque, which is supposed to have gone down.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Frankland's fifth lecture "On the Chemistry of a Coal," delivered on Thursday, the 5th inst., was chiefly devoted to the production of light from coal. After stating that the blazing parts of coal mainly consist of coal gas, paraffin, and paraffin oil, the Professor proceeded to explain, by means of models and diagrams, every stage of the manufacture of our ordinary gas-light. Coal was heated in a miniature retort, and thus resolved into gas, vapour, and coke—the gas and vapour escaping, leaving the coke behind. By a cooling process, the vapour was condensed and separated from the gas; and the gas itself was then freed from ammonia by being passed through water, and from sulphuretted hydrogen by being brought into contact with rust of iron. When thus purified, the gas was found to consist of olefiant gas, firedamp, carbonic oxide, a little carbonic acid, and some other hydrocarbons. The nature of the mixed flame of gas was explained and contrasted with coloured flames produced by the combustion of various metals. The danger of permitting gas to escape was forcibly illustrated by a model, and the combustion of a combination of coal gas with common air was shown to form a highly explosive mixture. The lecture was concluded with an explanation of the method in which this explosive force is employed as a motive power in Lenoir's patent gas-engine. Perhaps the most remarkable experiment was the combustion of a jet of the air of the room in an atmosphere of olefiant gas by means of a most ingenious arrangement of apparatus.

Professor Frankland's concluding lecture, delivered on Saturday last, embraced the illustrative explanation of the processes employed in producing from liquid coal-tar, the refuse of gasworks, not only paraffin and paraffin-oil, but also the brilliant colours mauve, magenta, &c. The paraffin manufacture was first explained, and fine specimens of the oil and candles were referred to. It was stated that chemists, by distilling coal, had obtained no less than fifty new compounds—three of which, benzol, phenylic-alcohol, and aniline are the sources of the celebrated coal-tar colours, and all contain the same compound, organic radicle phenyl, although differing very much in their properties. It was shown that in the manufacture of colour benzol (discovered by Faraday) is converted into aniline by heating it first with nitric acid and then with acetic acid and scraps of iron. By heating aniline with bichromate of potash and sulphuric acid were produced mauve, and by heating aniline with arsenic acid or corrosive sublimate magenta was obtained. Blue and violet dyes were prepared by heating magenta with aniline. The following facts are remarkable examples of the commercial results derived from abstract scientific researches, especially those of Dr. Hofmann: to Mr. Perkin we owe the dye mauve:—"30 cwt. of coal yield 360 lb. of tar, which furnish 18 lb. of naphtha, containing 6 lb. of benzol; 6 lb. of benzol give 5 lb. of aniline, which produce 1 lb. of magenta; 1 lb. of magenta will dye 650 lb. of silk or 900 lb. of wool, the latter being the average produce of 160 sheep; 4 lb. of coal will dye 1 lb. of wool." Professor Frankland exhibited the properties of the coal-tar colours by dyeing cotton, wool, and silk in the presence of the audience, and referred to numerous specimens lent by Messrs. Simpson, Maule, and Nicholson. Previous to beginning the subject of his lecture Lenoir's gas-engine was shown in action.

Professor Tyndall will begin a course of twelve lectures "On Electricity" on Tuesday next, and Professor Marshall will begin a course of twelve lectures "On the Nervous System in Man and Animals" on Saturday next. The weekly evening meetings begin next Friday, when Professor Tyndall will give a discourse "On Combustion by Invisible Rays."

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Vice-Admiral Henry Francis Greville, C.B., of Chesham-place, Belgrave-square, was proved in London by the executors and trustees, Edward Howley Palmer, Esq., the son-in-law, and Captain Henry Lambert Fulke Greville, the son. The personalty was sworn under £14,000. This gallant Admiral had received many badges of distinction as well as foreign orders for meritorious services. His will bears date 1863, and he died, in October last, at Bray, in Berkshire. He has left his property to his two unmarried daughters for their lives, which upon their decease will revert to his said son, Captain H. L. F. Greville, R.A., but charged with a legacy of £1000 for his grandson and godson, Henry Loftus, son of Lord Augustus Loftus.

The will of Lieutenant-Colonel Charles Andrew Girardot (Coldstream Guards, retired), lately residing at Wellesley-terrace, Dover, was proved in the London Court by the executors and trustees, the Rev. William L. Girardot, M.A., of Hinton Charterhouse, Somerset (the testator's brother), and George Newcome, Esq., of Aldershott Manor, Hants. The personalty was sworn under £30,000. The gallant Colonel died on the 16th of November last, having executed his will in June, 1855. After leaving legacies to his executors, and making a provision for his wife, in which there is an annuity of £400 a year, he has bequeathed the residue of his property equally amongst his three daughters.

The will of Joshua Bates, Esq., formerly of Boston, in the United States, afterwards of Bishopsgate-street, of Portland-place, and of Arlington-street, was proved in London on the 16th ult.—the executors nominated being Thomas Baring, Charles Baring Young, and John Baring, Esqs. The personalty in this country was sworn under £600,000. The testator died, in September last, at New Lodge, Windsor, having executed his will in August, 1863. The principal legatee is his daughter, Elizabeth, wife of his Excellency Sylvain Van de Weyer, Ambassador at London for the kingdom of Belgium. To her he has left an immediate legacy of £10,000, and all his pictures, books, articles of virtù, and his residences, East Sheen and Arlington-street, and a life interest in the whole of the residue of his property, real and personal, and, after her decease, to her husband and her children. There is a legacy to Dr. Booth, of Gower-street, and to several of the testator's friends in America. To the testator's sister, Mrs. Cowing, £5000; and a like legacy to the children of the late Samuel Sturgis. All legacies to be paid free of legacy duty.

The late Jacob Stiebel, Esq., of Pembridge-terrace, Bayswater, has bequeathed to University College Hospital £5000, and to the Jews' Free School, Bell-lane, Spitalfields, £2000. His personal estate was estimated at £45,000.

The late Miss Frances Mainwaring, of Highfield, Derby, has left the following charitable bequests:—To the Church Missionary Society, £500; British and Foreign Bible Society, £200; Church Pastoral Aid Society, £200; Society to Promote Christianity amongst the Jews, £100; and to the Old Age Society, Leicester, £100.

A Paris letter in the Nord says:—"A duel has just taken place between Count de Choiseul-Gouffier and a Polish Count. The former was slightly wounded. Count de Choiseul, now a private in a cavalry regiment, took part in the Polish insurrection, and was made prisoner by the Russians. The due arose out of a discussion relative to the insurrection."

According to a calculation recently made (says the Moniteur) there exists in the whole world nearly 7,000,000 Jews, of whom one half are in Europe, especially in Russia, where there are 1,220,000. The number in Austria is 853,000; in Prussia, 284,500; and in the rest of Germany, 492,000. At Frankfort-on-the-Maine there is one Jew to sixteen Christians; in Sweden and Norway only one in 600. France contains 80,000, England 42,000, and Switzerland, 3200. A remarkable fact is, that in the countries where the Jews are completely emancipated—that is, in France, Belgium, and England—their number is diminishing, while elsewhere it is increasing. Since the commencement of the present century, the societies for the conversion of the Jews (thirty-three in number, and employing 200 missionaries), have at the most, and with great expense, made 20,000 proselytes.

The Government emigration officials at Liverpool have prepared their annual return, from which it appears that, during the past year, there sailed from the port of Liverpool, of vessels independent of the Act, 220 ships, conveying 4635 cabin and 3013 steerage passengers. Of these ninety-one sailed to the United States, with 3599 cabin and 1858 steerage passengers; and the rest to various parts. In 1863 the number of passengers not under the Act was 14,445, and this year 7608, so that there is a decrease of 6797 on the year. Of ships sailing under the provisions of the Act, 279 ships, carrying 3599 cabin and 96,403 steerage passengers, were for the United States. To Canada there were twenty-seven ships, with 768 cabin and 3860 steerage passengers; to New South Wales, three ships, with 1138 steerage passengers; to Queensland, six ships, with 35 cabin and 1892 steerage passengers; to Victoria, twenty-nine ships, with 378 cabin and 9661 steerage passengers; and to South America, one ship, with 2 cabin and 61 steerage passengers. Of the passengers sailing to the United States, 22,781 were English, 60,650 Irish, 2280 Scotch, and 9,692 other countries. There is a decrease of passengers sailing under the Act of 5640, compared with 1863, making a total decrease in the emigration of 1864, compared with 1863, of 12,537.

The railway schemes in reference to London which will next Session be submitted to Parliament are forty-seven in number, and represent 151 separate lines and branches, with a total length of 349 miles; of these twenty-three relate to the south side of London. The longest on the list is the London, Bucks, and East Gloucestershire, 59 miles 6 furlongs, which branches off from the Midland near Brent Reservoir, and comprises seven sections. Next in point of dimensions is the Surrey and Sussex Junction, 42 miles 5 furlongs, which begins a little to the south of Croydon, on the South-Eastern and Brighton, and includes six sections; and after this come the new lines of the South-Eastern (33 miles long) to Woolwich, Cranbrook, &c. The schemes, however, which most attract the eye by the number of red lines, in close contiguity, are those which centre at Blackwall on the one side of the river and New-cross on the other. A couple of rival projects contend for the honour and profit of connecting these two points by utilising the Thames Tunnel. The East London (which is in alliance with the Eastern Metropolitan Underground from Stepney to Houndsditch) begins at a point on the Great Eastern, near Cambridge-road, Bethnal-green, and passes through Wapping (traversing the London New Dock on its way) to the Thames Tunnel, by means of which it reaches Rotherhithe, and thence to New-cross. It forms junctions with the South-Eastern, London and Greenwich, London and Brighton, Blackwall, and North London Railways. The Metropolitan and South London (Thames Tunnel) Railway follows substantially the same route, with here and there, however, certain deviations. The East London is 8 miles 4 furlongs, and the other 9 miles 5 furlongs long.—Railway News.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. D. B., Pilot, Civis, and others, who write to us respecting the forthcoming periodical called "THE CHESS WORLD," should apply for information and the prospectus to Messrs. Trübner, the publishers. We have not space to furnish the particulars required.

S. B. S.—1. Our Solution of Problem No. 1087 is perfectly correct. Black gives check in taking the Queen, but White, in interposing his Kt, discovers check, and is thus enabled to mate next move. This sort of finesse, which constitutes a great charm in chess problems, young players seem seldom to appreciate. 2. The moves given to Black for his defence in a problem are the very best that can be found.

ELVETHAM.—From want of knowing the technical notation, you have made some serious mistakes in the description of your Problem. For example, the White Queen is said to be on K Kt 3rd, and the Black King on K R 5th, in which position the Black King is in check of the White Queen. Again, the Black Kt is described as on K Kt 6th, which is the square already occupied by the White Queen.

I. W. PORTER.—The solution of Problem No. 1084, which appeared in our Number for Dec. 3, you will find to be perfectly correct.

A. B. HOPKINS.—Nos. 1 and 2 are solvable at a glance. No. 3 is defective, since the mate may be given by 1. R to K 8th (ch); 2. Q to K Kt 5th (ch), &c. In No. 4, the White King is in check. No. 5 is merely a succession of checks, and No. 6 is composed from a very old and hackneyed idea. The solutions you required were given in our last.

MIRAVETE.—It is correct, but did not reach us in time for insertion in the list.

MATEO DE ZAMORA.—No. 14, we are sorry to say, admits of an easy second solution:—1. Q to K 2nd; 2. R to Q Kt sq, &c. No. 15 wants point and strategy.

T. S.—They shall be examined and reported on shortly.

F. J., Stratford-on-Avon.—Too easy and commonplace.

JOSEPH FINLINSON.—They both appear to admit of more than one solution.

GAVINO.—It was quite correct, and was so acknowledged in the list.

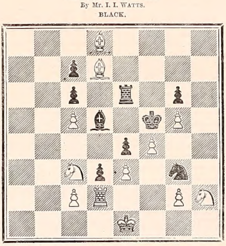
E.K., Henley-on-Thames.—You must be good enough to show the mate, if you can. We cannot see it, nor do we believe there is one in the way you propose to play.

R.T.M.—You will find the original of the problem sent us from the Punjaub, as by "Bhai Sadu Singh," in vol. xl., of this Paper, diagram No, 299.

F.W.—Quite wrong in all three cases you will find on looking at the positions again.

SOLUTION OF PROBLEM NO. 1088 (continued).—H. W., of Oxford; F. M. E., Lionel; John Gilpin, Somerset; Archacon, I. Ll, Calsi, T. D., Q. E. F., Kirk Leavington, I. Gould, Fatty, Nimrod, W. R., Charley, Tancred, H. W., Nym, Tyrone, L. E. F., D. U. I., Box and Cox, Wee Pawn, Civis, Eidolon, Brothers Davenport, F. G. T., Veritas, Pendleton, H. Frau, of Lyons; R. H., Toovey; R. S., of Malines; May, of Cairnsfoot; Topsey, Perdita, I. T. Pannell, Poplar; Hellene, Query, Myddleton, Laura, A. F. P., William Norton, Davus, C. T., Trial, W. Norris, Tring, are correct. All others are wrong.

SOLUTIONS OF ENIGMAS by Anna, Dereven, T. V. C., May of Cairnsfoot, Box and Cox, T. W., Nimrod, Q. E. D., Mercury, D. C. L., Civis, T. W., Francis, R. B. S., W. W. P., T. M. N., W. E., Ernest, W. Norris (except 1432), I. B., Peregrine, John Hammond; S. P. Q. B., of Bruges; Presis, Letty, F. N. C., R. B., Victoria, Somerset, A Clerk, Diggory, G. W., Pip, Oxoniensis, L. S. W., 1865, Pendleton, Januarius, Fergus, E. P. C., Veritas, Black and White, Wee Pawn, are correct. All others are wrong.



SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1089.

WHITE	BLACK	WHITE	BLACK
1. B to K Kt 7th	R takes B (best)	3. R to K Kt 5th, or R to K B 4th, according as Black plays, giving mate.
2. R from R 2nd to K B 2nd	Any move

PROBLEM No. 1090.

By Mr. I. I. WATTS.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN PARIS.

A capital Game between Messrs. KOLISH and HIRSCHFIELD.—(The Two Knights' Defence.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
4. Kt to K Kt 5th	P to Q 4th
5. P takes P	Kt to Q R 4th
6. B to Q Kt 5th (ch)	P to Q B 3rd
7. P takes P	P takes P
8. B to K 2nd	P to K R 3rd
9. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K 5th
10. Kt to K 5th	Q to Q 5th
11. P to K B 4th	B to Q B 4th
12. R to K B sq	Q to Q 3rd

(Apprehensive of Black moving 13. P to Q B 3rd, and 14. P to Q Kt 4th, &c.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
13. P to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q Kt 2nd
14. Q to Q R 4th	Kt to Q sq

(Neither party has a well-opened game; but the prettiness of the end compensates for the dulness of the beginning.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
15. P to Q Kt 4th	B to Q Kt 3rd
16. Kt to Q R 3rd	B to K 3rd
17. Kt to Q B 4th	B takes Kt
18. B takes B	Castles
19. B to Q R 3rd	Kt to Q 4th
20. P to Q Kt 5th	P to Q B 4th
21. P to K Kt 3rd	K to R 2nd
22. Castles	P to K B 4th
23. Q to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to K B 3rd
24. P to Q 4th

(This gives White the advantage of a "passed" centre Pawn; but, on the other hand, it enables Black to bring his Q Rook immediately into action.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
24.	Q to Q B 2nd
25. B to K 6th	P to K Kt 3rd
26. P to K Kt 4th	Kt takes B
27. Q takes Kt	P takes K Kt P
28. P to K B 5th	P to K Kt 4th
29. P takes Q B P

(White's game from this moment is indefensible, play as he can.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
29.	Q R to K sq
30. R to Q 7th (ch)	Kt takes R
31. Q to K Kt 6th (ch)	K to R sq
32. Q takes K R P (ch)	K to Kt sq
33. Q takes P (ch)	K to K R 2nd
34. Q to K R 5th (ch)	K to K Kt 2nd
35. Q takes P (ch)	K to K B 3rd and Black announced mate in six moves.

CHESS AT BRIGHTON.

An interesting Game played by the President and another Member of the Brighton Chess Club against Mr. F.—(The Two Knights' Defence.)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
4. Kt to K Kt 5th	P to Q 4th
5. P takes P	Kt to Q R 4th
6. B to Q Kt 5th (ch)

(The favourite move now is 6. P to Q 3rd.)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
6.	P to Q B 3rd
7. P takes P	P takes P
8. B to K 2nd	P to K R 3rd
9. Kt to K B 3rd	B to Q 3rd
10. P to Q B 3rd	Castles
11. Q to Q R 4th

(He would have confined the game of the allies much more by playing here P to Q Kt 4th.)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
11.	B to Q 2nd
12. P to Q 3rd	P to Q B 4th
13. Q to K R 4th	Kt to K R 2nd
14. Q to K Kt 3rd

(As his Queen is far from well posted, and has no satisfactory square of retreat, would he not have done better in exchanging Dames?)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
14.	Q to K B 3rd
15. Q Kt to Q 2nd	B to K B 4th
16. Kt to K R 4th

(This is certainly not commendable. He should have played 16. Kt to K 4th. By that move, whether the allies captured the Kt or left it, Black would have had complete command of the position.)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
16.	P to K 5th
17. Q takes B

(After the advance of White's K Pawn the loss of a piece on the other side was manifestly inevitable; but there does not seem to have been any necessity for Black to sacrifice his Queen.)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
17.	Q takes Q
18. Kt takes B	Q to K B 3rd
19. P takes P	Kt to K Kt 4th
20. P to K B 3rd	Kt to K 3rd
21. Kt to K B sq	K to R 2nd
22. B to Q 3rd	P to Q B 5th
23. B to Q B 2nd	Kt to Q B 4th
24. Q Kt to K 3rd	Kt to Q 6th (ch)
25. K to K 2nd	Kt takes B (ch)
26. Q R takes Kt	P to K Kt 3rd
27. Q Kt to K Kt 4th	Q to Q Kt 3rd
28. K Kt to K 3rd	Q takes Q Kt P
29. P to K 5th	P to K R 4th
30. Q Kt to K B 6th (ch)	K to Kt 2nd
31. Q Kt to Q 5th	Q to Q Kt sq
32. P to K B 4th	Q to Q B sq
33. P to K B 5th	K R to K sq
34. P takes P	P takes P
35. K R to K B sq	R takes K P
36. R to K B 6th	R to K 3rd

(With such an immense material superiority, White, we think, ought to have made much shorter work of the game than they did. Suppose, for example,

36.	R takes Kt (ch)
37. K takes R (best)	Q to Q B 4th (ch)
38. K to K 2nd (best)	R to K sq (ch)
39. K to B sq (best)	Q takes Kt and Black may resign.)

BLACK (Mr. F.)	WHITE (Messrs. C. and B.)
37. R takes P (ch)	R takes R
38. B takes R	Q to K 3rd
39. B takes K R P	R to Q Kt sq
40. R to Q sq	R to Q Kt 7th (ch)
41. K to K B sq	R takes Q R P
42. B to K Kt 4th	Q to K B 2nd (ch)
43. Kt to K B 5th (ch)	K to R sq
44. Kt to K B 4th	Kt to Q Kt 6th
45. R to K sq	R to Q R 8th
46. R takes R	Kt takes R
47. P to K Kt 3rd	Kt to Q B 7th
48. K to B 2nd	P to Q R 4th
49. P to K R 4th	P to Q R 5th
50. P to K R 5th	P to Q R 6th

and, after a few more moves, White won the game.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

Professor Owen has given, in the Geological Magazine for January, an illustrated description of the remains of a new reptile, found in the coal-beds of Llantrissent, Glamorganshire. From the characteristic density and thickness of the walls of almost all the long bones hitherto observed of this air-breathing vertebrate, the Professor has named it "anthrakerpeton crassosteum." He concludes, from the evidence before him, that it belonged to that low, probably primitive, air-breathing type which, with some developmental conditions of the bones like these in some fishes, showed forms of the skeleton more resembling those in Saurian reptiles than are attained by any of the more speculised Batrachian air-breathers of our own times. This magazine also contains some interesting remarks of the present state of geological research, with special reference to the Eozoön canadense, the earliest created being hitherto known in palæontology.

The Urotrichus, a singular little animal, apparently a link between the shrew and the mole, is the subject of a notice by Mr. J. K. Lord which appears in the January number of the Annals of Natural History, by which we learn that it is only known at present as a native of Japan, and the Cascade Mountains in North-west America. The colour of the animal is of a bluish black, and his hair is so arranged that it can be smoothed in either direction, and thus not impede his progress through his tunnels; but his nose is one of the most remarkable in nature, compensating for hands, eyes, and ears. "His snout," says Mr. Lord, "is very much like that of a pig, only that it is lengthened out into a cylindrical tube covered with short, thick hairs, and terminating in a naked, fleshy kind of bulb or gland; this gland is pierced by two minute holes, which are the nostrils. Each nostril has a little fold of membrane hanging down over it like a shutter, effectually preventing sand and small particles of dust from getting into his nose while digging." His fore feet are also very curious, being a species of diggers, each toe being armed with a strong scooped nail, like a garden trowel, which enables him to dig with great ease and quickness. The hind feet resemble scrapers, being about two thirds longer than the fore feet.

The Academy of Belgium has recently received a communication from M. Julius Schmidt giving the results of numerous observations recently made at Athens, by means of which he establishes the numerical relations between the number of the luminous meteors which were most remarkable for their dimensions and the rarer cases of detonation, falls of solid matters, trains or tails, and the different colours of the meteors themselves. He finds that—1. The maximum of shooting stars and bolides answers to the minimum of detonations. 2. These falls are more rare at the epochs when the shooting stars and bolides are most numerous—that is to say, in August and November. 3. The absolute maximum of tails is met with in August, when the greatest number of meteors is observed. The minimum in May accords with the greatest number of falls. It seems probable that the more complete the combustion the more tails are seen, while the falls are in an inverse ratio. 4. The maximum of red and green coloured meteors belongs to summer, the minimum to winter and spring. M. Schmidt insists on the necessity of multiplying good observations, in order to obtain results based upon figures and separated from purely hypothetical considerations, and especially insists on regarding the numbers according to their special colour. In respect to about 16,000 meteors, he has taken note of the colour of 5671. Of these 4300 were white, 905 yellow, 320 red, 146 green—that is, 75·8 per cent white, 15·9 yellow, 5·7 red, and 2·6 green.

At a recent meeting of the Academy of Sciences, at Paris, a note was read from Mdme. Lapeyrouse communicating the remarkable fact that silkworms which have been fed with leaves of an ungrafted mulberry, tree produce finer silk in larger quantity than those which have been reared with leaves of a grafted tree. At the same meeting M. Maumené presented a note relating to the artificial production of diamonds, especially on the difficulty which arises through the variable density of carbon in its various combinations, and giving an account of the methods that may be employed to determine this density. The Baron du Moncel also submitted to the members an account of a number of processes for closing electric circuits, which are so essential for the effectual action of electric telegraph apparatus. At the meeting of the Academy on Jan. 2 a memoir, by M. Déclat, was read, dilating on the advantageous employment of phenic acid (a product of coal-tar) in dressing foul wounds, &c. The action of this acid and its compounds is ascribed to its preventing the development of animalcules and even to its destroying their germs in the atmosphere.

By the Philosophical Magazine we still find the phenomena of heat and light occupying the thoughts and time of the leaders of science. In the January number Professor Tyndall, in his contribution "On the History of Negative Fluorescences," in a most searching manner examines the statements and arguments of Dr. Akins, set forth in his paper "On Raytransmutation" in the December number. Professor Tyndall concludes his article with a summary of his own experiments, which will be very useful to those interested in the controversy. In the same number Dr. Akin has given an account of his proposed new nomenclature for heat-phenomena (calescence, radiescence, renovation, &c.). In relation to heat we must also refer to the notes of Professor Magnus, of Berlin, "On Thermal Radiation," describing his experiments relating to the radiating powers of spongy platinum, lampblack, aluminium, &c. He considers that an hypothesis might be found "to account for the fact that change of density and distribution greatly alter the communication of the radiating power; and that from such an hypothesis a simple connection might be easily deduced between the radiation, absorption, diathermancy, and thermal conductibility of bodies." In the same number Mr. C. J. Monro has described a remarkable case of stereoscopic illusion. He combined the images of a straight row of flat vertical bars, about an inch and a half wide and an inch and a half apart, so as to form a stereoscopic image beyond them, his nearest eye being about six inches from their plane, to which the line joining the two was inclined at a considerable angle. The bars immediately formed themselves into the alternate faces of a vertical prism. Sudden changes of azimuth made by the flat surfaces gave the image the effect of perfect solidity. For this he endeavours to account by algebraic calculations.

The model of a new electro-magnetic locomotive is now exhibiting at Versailles. Its inventors, MM. Bellet and Rouvre, assert that locomotives constructed on their principle could travel on ordinary railroads at the rate of 124 miles an hour! The power is obtained by magnetising and de-magnetising by means of a current supplied by a fixed battery, and, it is said, utilises only a small part of the force developed.

Mr. Harrison's pneumatic loom has been shown at work near the Swan Pier, London Bridge. It is driven by the action of compressed air. We are informed that in the old loom the average rate of speed is 180 strokes (representing the passage of the shuttle across or through the weft of the fabric on the loom) per minute; and that, by the new process, sixty more strokes may be attained. This invention promises to be of national importance.

We learn that M. Cauderay, an engineer of Lausanne, has applied the galvanic battery to the sharpening of needles and pins, by connecting a bundle of wires with the negative pole in a most ingenious manner. The process is said to be cheaper than the present method, which is also very injurious to the health of the workpeople, in consequence of the fine metallic dust disengaged.

A son of Dr. Livingstone, who enlisted in the Federal service after the war broke out, was, in the latter part of last year, taken prisoner by the Confederates.

Dr. Baikie, whose name is so intimately associated with the efforts which have been made to explore the Niger, died of fever and dysentery, at Sierra Leone, on the 30th of November last.

THE MONTMORENCYS.—The action brought by the Prince de Montmorency-Luxembourg, Count de Montmorency-Luxembourg, the Marchioness de Biencourt, née Montmorency, and twenty-four other descendants of that family, against Count Adalbert de Talleyrand-Périgord, for assuming the title of Duke de Montmorency and the family arms, in virtue of an Imperial decree, came on for hearing on Saturday, before the French Civil Tribunal. MM. Berryer and Dufaure appeared as counsel for the Montmorency family, and M. Nicolet for the other party. M. Dufaure, in a speech full of historical facts and judicial decisions bearing on the case, combated M. de Talleyrand's usurpation of the name and arms of Montmorency; for, not content with the glorious name of his own ancestors, he had put the three lions of the Talleyrands at the bottom of his shield and placed in the upper part the sixteen eaglets which the Dukes de Montmorency bore at the top of their arms as a recompence and reminiscence of the Battle of Bouvines. M. Dufaure maintained the competence of the tribunal against the decree of the Chief of the State, and he concluded with a quotation from La Bruyère to the effect that the establishment of a great name was one of the noblest objects that could occupy a man's existence, and that a whole lifetime was often too short for the task. M. Nicolet supported the right of M. Adalbert de Périgord to assume the name and arms of Montmorency, in virtue of the Imperial decree conferring on him the title of Duke de Montmorency; especially as the decree had not been issued from a mere caprice of the Prince. The Council of the Seal, charged with the examination of titles, among whose members where M. Langlais and M. Duvergier, men remarkable for their learning, intelligence, and independence, had given decisions on two demands; one made by Prince de Beauffremont, son of the elder sister of the old Duke de Montmorency, based on the right which he considered he possessed to revive a female duchy; the other by M. Adalbert de Talleyrand-Périgord, based on the services rendered by his maternal grandfather and his father under the First Empire. The Council of the Seal did not recognise the right of the Prince de Beauffremont, which had become extinct by the marriage of the heiress of the elder branch with Anne Fosseux de Montmorency in 1767; the female duchy thus ceased to exist from that time. M. Adalbert had solicited an Imperial favour, and the Council of the Seal, having set aside the claims of the Beauffremont family, saw no reason why it should not be granted. M. Nicolet also took exception against the competence of the common law tribunals against an Imperial decree, which, he asserted, was amenable only to an administrative tribunal. M. Berryer was to have pleaded after M. Nicolet, but, owing to the lateness of the hour, the further hearing was postponed for a week.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." 1 vol.

BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. C. M. BELLEW. Second Edition, revised. 3 vols.
"This story is interesting and full of incident."—Athenæum.

THE THREE WATCHES. By W. G. WILLS. 3 v.
"A decidedly clever novel."—Observer.

MR. STEWART'S INTENTIONS. By the Author of "Grandmother's Money." 3 vols.

THE ORDEAL FOR WIVES. By the Author of "The Morals of May Fair," &c. 3 vols.

Cheap Edition of BARBARA'S HISTORY. By AMELIA B. EDWARDS. 5s. bound and Illustrated.

THE HAMMONDS OF HOLY CROSS. By LADY BLAKE.

HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

LODGE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE for 1865, under the especial Patronage of her Majesty, and corrected by the Nobility, 34th Edition, is now ready, in 1 vol., with the Arms beautifully engraved, 31s. 6d., handsomely bound.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, in 2 vols. 8vo, with Portrait,

THE HON. GRANTLEY BERKELEY'S LIFE AND RECOLLECTIONS.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

WHO'S WHO for 1865.
Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.
London: A. H. BAILY and CO., Cornhill.

Now ready, in one handsome volume, cloth extra, with 351 high-class Wood Engravings, Six Steel Plates, and Twelve Maps prepared expressly for the work by Bartholomew, and beautifully printed in colours, the GALLERY OF GEOGRAPHY.

By the Rev. THOMAS MILNER, M.A.,
Author of "The Gallery of Nature," &c.
Price One Guinea.

In offering this elaborate geographical work to the public, the publishers are strengthened in their confidence of its merits by hundreds of flattering eulogiums from the newspaper press of Great Britain.

To those who have to pass competitive examinations, to students and scholars generally, to teachers of geography, and to all who desiderate a high-class reference-book on the science, the "Gallery of Geography" will be found invaluable.

W. and R. CHAMBERS, Edinburgh and London.

In two volumes, cloth, profusely illustrated by quaint Wood Engravings, price Twenty-one Shillings,

THE BOOK OF DAYS, an entertaining and curious Work, consisting of—Matters connected with the Church Kalendar, including the Popular Festivals, Saints' Days, and other Holidays, with Illustrations of Christian Antiquities in general.

Phænomena connected with the Seasonal Changes.

Folk-lore of the United Kingdom—namely, Popular Notions and Observances connected with Times and Seasons.

Notable Events, Biographies, and Anecdotes connected with the Days of the Year.

Articles of Popular Archæology, of an entertaining character, tending to illustrate the Progress of Civilisation, Manners, Literature, and Ideas in these Kingdoms.

Curious Fugitive and Inedited Pieces.

Oddities of Human Life and Character.

A Repertory of old Fireside Ideas in general, as well as a means of improving the Fireside Wisdom of the present day.

W. and R. CHAMBERS, 47, Paternoster-row, London, and 339, High-street, Edinburgh; and sold by all Booksellers.

Now ready, in fcap 8vo, price 6s. cloth,

EDEN, and other Poems. By ALFRED DIXON TOOVEY.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER. New and Enlarged Series.

CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER. Number I. of the Enlarged Series. Ready Jan. 18. Price One Penny.

SCHOOL OF SELF-CULTURE. See No. I. of CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

THE PLAYHOUR. See No. I. of CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

THE YOUNG FOLK'S CLUB.—See No. I. of CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

MRS. PENELOPE JOT'S DOMESTIC ECONOMY.—See No. I. of CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

THE PLATFORM.—See No. I. of CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

MIRIAM ASHFIELD.—New Tale.—See CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, No. I., Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

FOUND IN THE LETTER-BOX.—See CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, No. I., Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

SOMETHING FOR EVERYBODY.—See CASSELL'S FAMILY PAPER, No. I., Enlarged Series, price One Penny.

CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED FAMILY PAPER is published every Wednesday, and is sold by all Booksellers, Periodical Vendors, and Newsagents in town and country, also at all the Railway Stations, price One Penny.

In addition to its issue in Weekly Numbers, "Cassell's Family Paper" takes a prominent place among the first-class Monthly Magazines. It is published on the 1st of every Month, price 5d. and 6d., in an Ornamental Wrapper.

WHIST, Laws and Principles of. By CAVENDISH. Seventh edition. Price 3s. 6d.; by post, 3s. 8d. "Admirably illustrated."—Macmillan. "Admirable."—J. C.'s Treatise. "Displays peculiar ability."—Illustrated News. "Very lucid."—Field.—BANCKS, 12, Glasshouse-street, W.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,

ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

THE TWOFOLD NEW TESTAMENT, being a New Translation accompanying a Revised Text, in parallel columns. By the Rev. THOMAS SHELDON GREEN, M.A. Small quarto, price 21s.
SAMUEL BAGSTER and SONS, 15, Paternoster-row, London.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly volumes bound in the appropriate Covers, with gilt edges, at 5s. each, if sent carriage-free with P. O. order, to LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only Binders authorised by the Proprietors.

WHAT WILL THIS COST TO PRINT? is a question often occurring to literary men, public characters, and persons of benevolent intentions. An immediate answer to the inquiry may be obtained. A Specimen Book of Types and information for authors sent, on application, by RICHARD BARRETT, 13, Mark-lane, London.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormoulu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVEPOPES with Arms, Crest, or Monograms, plain. Rodrigues' Cream-laid Envelopes, 4d. per 100; Cream-laid Note, full size, five quires for 6d. At H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

NEW MUSIC.

GASTON DE LILLE.—BRIGHT EYES VALSES.—A New Set by this popular Dance Composer. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GASTON DE LILLE.—NINA. Serenade Espagnole for the Pianoforte. A most effective little piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FOR A FEW DAYS. Galop. By TULLY. One of the best of the season. Played everywhere. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FOUNDRY GALOP. By J. RIVIERE. With a splendid Illustration of the "Foundry Scene," from "The Workmen of Paris." Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

---

50 NURSERY SONGS and RHYMES, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, suited to young people. Illustrated with a Chromolithograph of "The Babes in the Wood," and a Comic Sketch on the cover. Price 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 10d. The most amusing as well as the most useful present.
METZLER and CO., 35 to 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE BRIDE OF DUNKERRON. By HENRY SMART. Favourite Songs.
"The Full Moon is beaming." Tenor, 2s. 6d.
"Our Home shall be on this bright Isle." Soprano, 2s. 6d.
"The Sea rules all." Bass, 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

KUHE'S LA PIQUANTE. Valse Impromptu. The latest and most attractive Pianoforte Piece by this popular Composer. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S DANISH AIRS. Transcription for the Pianoforte, introducing Et Bondebryllup. Price 3s. Also "Masaniello." Grand Fantasia. 5s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

EARLY LOVE. Third Edition of this most popular Song. Written by H. T. Craven. Composed by FRANK MUSGRAVE. Price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LIMERICK IS BEAUTIFUL. Dion Boucicault's very popular Song. Composed by R. M. LEVEY. Price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Admired everywhere. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere.

THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A. BENEDICT, most facetiously illustrates the vicissitudes of Admiration, Flirtation, Declaration, Acceptation, Preparation, Celebration, Felicitation, Alteration, Irritation, Altercation, Desperation, and Separation. Post-free, 1s. 6d. The Matrimonial Polka, 1s. 6d.
OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

THE GRETNA GREEN GALOP. By C. J. PAVITT. Just published. One of the best Galops out. Post-free, 1s. 6d.
London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, W.

EIGHT HUNDRED YEARS OLD.

MAGDALENA, CEASE THY WEEPING. Sacred Song. By Peter the Venerable. Translated by the Rev. J. A. Ross. Composed by C. G. HAMILTON. In F and A flat.
"The most interesting and beautiful sacred song ever published." Post-free, 1s. 6d.
London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Fifty-fifth Edition of the Drawing-room Piece,

LA PRIÈRE EXAUCÉE (The Prayer Granted). Reply to "La Prière d'une Vièrge." Par THECLA BADARZEWSKA. Post-free, 1s. 6d.—OETZMANN, 27, Baker-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. Oetzmann's New and Valuable Catalogue of all the most popular Music of every Composer and Publisher, post-free, 6d. OETZMANN and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

MESSRS. ROBERT COCKS and CO. beg most respectfully to inform the Musical Profession and the Heads of Schools that they are prepared to send out parcels of Music for selection, returns to be made at Midsummer and Christmas. Terms (gratis and post-free) on application.

MESSRS. ROBERT COCKS and CO., of London, have just issued the following Songs and Ballads:—
HER BRIGHT SMILE HAUNTS ME STILL. 2s. 6d.
JENNY OF THE MILL. Song. 3s.
THE RIVULET. Song. By Dolores. 2s. 6d.
THE LIQUID GEM. Ballad. 2s. 6d.
THE BRIDGE. Song. Miss M. Lindsay. 2s. 6d.
MAY MORNING. Bell's Ballad. 2s. 6d.
LOVELY FLOWRET. Ballad. 2s. 6d.
HOW SWEET IN JOYOUS YOUTH. 2s. 6d.
THE GOLDEN GATE. 2s. 6d.
O LOVE MY WILLIE. Music by Miss M. Lindsay. 2s. 6d.
THE SAILOR'S MOTHER. Words by Jean Ingelow. 2s. 6d.
SWEET DAY SO COOL. Song. Brinley Richards. 2s. 6d.
JUST AS I AM. Adam Wright. 2s. 6d.
THOU, O LORD GOD. Miss M. Lindsay. 2s. 6d.
SPIRIT OF DREAMS. Miss S. J. Reilly. 2s. 6d.
HILDA'S ANSWER. By Ditto.
THOUGHTS OF THEE. F. Dalquen. 2s. 6d.
LOVELY FLOWRET. H. G. Dibdon. 2s. 6d.
FAR ON THE DEEP BLUE SEA. 2s. 6d.
YOUR BOY IN BLUE. 3s.
HAPPY BE THY DREAMS. J. R. Thomas. 2s. 6d.
LOO LATE, TOO LATE. Miss M. Lindsay. 2s. 6d.
RESIGNATION. Miss M. Lindsay. 2s. 6d.
GOD BLESS THE PRINCE OF WALES. Brinley Richards. 3s.
AND
MINNIE WARREN'S QUADRILLE. For Piano. By Stephen Glover. Performed every day at Commodore Nut.'s Levées, St. James's Hall. Finely Illustrated. 3s.
PIANO MUSIC.—Just issued, a new ADDENDUM to ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S CATALOGUE of PIANOFORTE MUSIC, &c., embracing about a Thousand recent Publications. Gratis and post-free.
Address 6, New Burlington-street, London, W.
Agents for India, Messrs. BURKINYOUNG and Co., Calcutta.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S New Pianette is acknowledged the best and cheapest in Europe, about two thirds the price of the much-advertised French pianos. Can be had for twelve months on trial. One in the window marked with price; plain woods cheaper.
Patentees, 151, Regent-street. The only address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB let on hire for three years, after which the instrument will become the hirer's, their new Pianettes, in walnut, £2 5s. per quarter; their elegant drawing-room Pianoforte, 7 octaves, £3 3s. per quarter, registered keyboard; more expensive instruments equally moderate. These Pianofortes will be found to excel anything yet offered to the public. They can be obtained upon the same terms of all the respectable Musicsellers in the United Kingdom.—151, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions of Alexandre's, being the best acknowledged harmonium manufacturer in the world. 5 oct., in oak case, hire at 6s. per month; and a very nice 4 oct., suitable for schools, £4 purchase. 5, 7, 9, 11, 16 stops can be had either on hire for a number of years or purchase at moderate prices.—151, Regent-street. The only address.

OETZMANN and PLUMB undertake any repairs to Pianofortes and Harmoniums, which are executed by skilful workmen. Estimates given—moderate charges.
151, Regent-street.

FLUTE-HARMONIUMS for NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS, with four beautiful stops, in rosewood cases, 6½ guineas.
OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street.

LARGE SALE of SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES from £12 upwards. Seldom such an opportunity occurs for purchasing a good, warranted Pianoforte at a small price.—OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street. The only address.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great Makers, for SALE or HIRE, at MILLSOM and SON'S Music Warehouse, 2, Argyle-street, Bath. Parties met at the Manufacturers'. Liberal discounts for cash.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, manufacture these very excellent Pianofortes with metallic plates, registered keyboard, full compass of seven octaves, and every recent improvement, and guarantee them, for tone, touch, and durability, to excel others usually sold at a much higher price. Drawings sent post-free.—Oetzmann and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

SEEDS FOR KITCHEN AND FLOWER GARDEN, of best quality and at lowest prices.—JAMES GARAWAY and CO., Durdham Down Nurseries, Bristol, supply the above. All orders over 20s. delivered free at nearest railway station. Priced Catalogues post-free on application.—Jas. Garaway and Co., Wholesale and Retail Seed-dealers, Durdham Down, Bristol.

HEDGES and BUTLER, 155, Regent-street, London, W., and 30, King's-road, Brighton, invite attention to their varied Stock of WINES, amongst which will be found—

Claret	at 18s., 20s., 24s., 30s., 36s., to 84s.	per Dozen.
Sherry	at 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., to 60s.	"
Port	at 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., to 108s.	"
Champagne	at 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 66s., to 78s.	"

Lists and Prices of all other Wines on application.
Originally established A.D. 1667.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

EAU-DE-VIE.—This Pure BRANDY (Pale or Brown), 18s. per gallon, 36s. per dozen, is very superior to recent importations of Cognac. Railway-carriage paid. No agents. To be obtained only of HENRY BRETT and CO., Old Furnival's Distillery, Holborn-bars, E.C.; and 30, Regent-street, S.W., London.

MORSONS' PEPSINE WINE is a perfectly palatable form for administering this popular remedy. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 19 and 46, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., in bottles at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each. Pepsine Lozenges, in boxes, at 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in the finest condition, in bottles and in casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, TODD, and CO., at their new London Bridge Stores, London Bridge, S.E.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'

WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
pronounced by Connoisseurs
"THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper.
Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Barclay and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

2280 AGENTS—HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA.—Chemists, Confectioners, &c., are Agents, and supply it in Packets. It is choice and strong, moderate in price, and wholesome. This Tea therefore secures general preference.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice. J. EPPS, of London, homœopathic chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. It is readily prepared for use, being sold in the form of powder, of which two teaspoonfuls are put in a breakfast-cup, then filled up with boiling milk or water.

As a breakfast beverage for general use it is distinguished as being grateful and invigorating, with a delicious aroma.

Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles; every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea."

EPPS'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, secured in tin-lined ¼lb., ½lb., and 1lb. packets, labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street. Manufactory, Euston-road, London." Sold, at 1s. 6d. per lb., by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemists.

THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862,
awarded to any English Manufacturers of
CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING,
in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of sweetmeats.
Few articles of confectionery
embrace so many advantages. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment in a portable and convenient form.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Druggists.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS,
an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.

Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING,
in many Varieties, in elegant fancy Boxes, from 6d. each.
Very suitable for Presents, Christmas Trees, &c.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is sold at the Crystal Palace, at various Railway Refreshment Rooms, and by Grocers, Confectioners, and Italian Warehousemen throughout the United Kingdom.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA,
in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Medical Men.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER. Recommended by the Analyst in the "Lancet" for making Bread without Yeast, and for Pastry. Sold everywhere.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.

COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

TAYLOR BROTHERS' MUSTARD,
WARRANTED GENUINE.
Dr. Hassall, having subjected this Mustard to a rigorous microscopical examination and chemical analysis, reports that it contains the three essential properties of good mustard—viz.,
PURITY, PUNGENCY, and DELICATE FLAVOUR.
See that each Package bears their Trade Mark, the "Prize Ox," and Dr. Hassall's Report.
Sold by all Grocers, &c., throughout the Kingdom.
Taylor Brothers, Brick-lane and Wentworth-street, London, N.E.

SAFETY FROM FIRE—By using FIELD'S Patent Snuffless, Hard, Self-fitting CHAMBER CANDLES.
Sold everywhere, and wholesale of the Manufacturers,
J. C. and J. Field, Upper Marsh, Lambeth.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or seen in use," writes Mr. Bladon, Refreshment-rooms, House of Lords, where FLOWER'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE POWDER has been in use the last seven years. Sold in boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Ironmongers.—Inventor, T. S. Flower, Chemist, Cheshunt, London, N.

MARK YOUR LINEN.—BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING INK is by far the best and blackest. Price 1s. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, &c. N.B. Observe, "10, Bishopsgate-street Within, E.C.," is on the label, without which the ink is not genuine.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0
Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12	12	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0
GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	10	10	0
Ditto, in stronger case and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	17	17	0
Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.

List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. DEWDNEY beautifully makes and mounts in fine gold Hair Bracelets, Chains, Brooches, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at about one half the usual charge. An elegant collection of specimens handsomely mounted kept for inspection. A splendid assortment of Jet in every variety. An Illustrated Book sent post-free.—Dewdney, 172, Fenchurch-street, London.

MDME. VALERY'S NEOLIN HAIR WASH, for infallibly imparting to Grey Hair its natural colour in two or three weeks. In proof, Mdme V. requires no payment until successful in those cases treated by herself. In bottles, 7s. 6d.; packed for the country, 8s. 6d. See Mdme. Valery's "Treatise on the Hair," post-free, 1s.—46, Wigmore-street, Cavendish-square, W.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ALEX. ROSS'S ALBANIAN WATER changes dark hair to any degree of lightness, 5s. 6d.; sent free for 84 stamps. His Skin Tonic immediately improves the complexion. 4s.—248, High Holborn, London.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS. Indispensable accompaniments to youth on their return to school are ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL, for accelerating the growth, preserving and beautifying the hair;
ROWLANDS' KALYDOR,
for improving the skin and complexion, and removing defects; and
ROWLANDS' ODONTO,
or Pearl Dentifrice, for beautifying the teeth and preserving the gums.
Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
 Ask for "ROWLANDS'" articles.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Napoleon Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-street, 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

LOVE and KISSES.—PIESSE and LUBIN have made several NEW PERFUMES for the festive season:—Love and Kisses, the Congress of Flowers, the Sandringham Bouquet, "The rose looks fair, but fairer we it deem for that sweet odour which doth in it live." Three bottles, in an appropriate case, very pretty, 10s. A sample of any perfume, 2s. 6d.—Laboratory of Flowers, 2, New Bond-street, London.

"NUTS TO CRACK."—PIESSE and LUBIN'S new and pretty CONCEITS for evening parties, scent crackers, perfume bonbons, scented shells, scenting gems. The walnut and the cracker contain a model bottle of scent, Stolen Kisses, Ever-sweet, &c., a snap, and a new motto. 4s. per dozen; 12 dozen delivered free anywhere for 40s.—No. 2, New Bond-street.

NEW-YEAR'S GIFT.—Forty Years of Success have proved that nothing can equal OLDRIDGE'S BALM of COLUMBIA for Restoring and Strengthening the Hair, Whiskers, or Moustaches. Price 3s. 6d., 6s., and 11s. per bottle. C. and A. Oldridge, 22, Wellington-street, Strand.

BAY RUM, superior to all other preparations for PRODUCING HAIR, and preventing it from falling off or turning grey. Prepared by UNWIN and ALBERT, 24, Piccadilly, in bottles, 3s. 6d., 5s. 6d., and 10s. 6d.

A DELIGHTFUL FRAGRANCE and a delicate Skin by using the celebrated UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each. Manufactured by J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. Sold everywhere.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet." No connection with anyone of the same name.

TEETH.—Dental Self-management.—A brief exposition of Mr. ESKELL'S Patented Invention in the construction of Artificial Teeth, free on application, or by post on receipt of one stamp.—8, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street.

GABRIELS' GUTTA-PERCHA ENAMEL
for stopping decayed Teeth, 1s. 6d. per box.
Messrs. Gabriel, Dentists. Diploma, 1815.
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street, W.
Liverpool: 134, Duke-street. Birmingham: 65, New-street.
Complete Sets of Teeth, from Four Guineas the Set.

TEETH WITHOUT ANY PAIN.
Osteo-Eidon for Artificial Teeth.
Equal to Nature.
Messrs. GABRIEL, the old-established Dentists,
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street;
134, Duke-street, Liverpool; and 65, New-street, Birmingham.
A single Tooth from 5s.; Complete Set from £4 4s.

ELLIMAN'S UNIVERSAL EMBROCATION cures RHEUMATISM, Gout, Lumbago, Sprains, Bruises, Sore Throats, Toothache, Chaps, Chilblains, Weak Limbs. Applied outwardly. The same as supplied to the Crimean Army, General Garibaldi; and used by most families. Sold by all Chemists, 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st.; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

HOPPER'S BLACK CURRANT COUGH ELIXIR—a certain and safe remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, influenza, spitting of blood, hoarseness, whooping-cough, croup, difficulty of breathing, and all diseases of the chest and lungs. Sold by all Chemists, in bottles, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA is an excellent remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

ROUND SHOULDERS, Stooping Habits, &c., CURED by wearing CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPANDER, for both sexes. Specially adapted to children to assist growth and produce a symmetrical figure.—66, Berners-st., W. Illustrations sent.

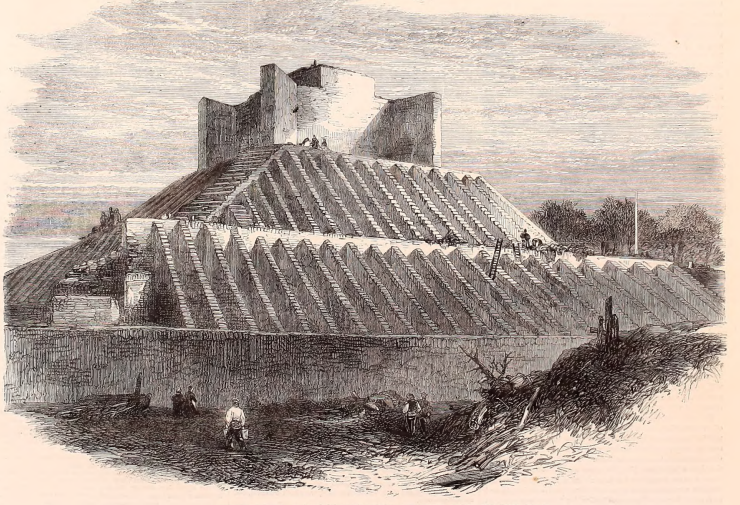
WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and Gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted. Established 1800.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JANUARY 14, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.



No. 1298.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JANUARY 21, 1865. TWO SHEETS, FIVEPENCE

OPENING OF THE PRUSSIAN CHAMBERS.

AFTER a night's debauch comes headache. After a run of extravagance the unpaid bills are sure to be presented, and prompt liquidation pressed. It is not permitted us in this world to quit the line of right without finding some proportionate disadvantage entailed upon us when we come back to it. Accomplices in wrongdoing, whatever the measure of their success, are always more in each other's power at the close of their enterprise than they were before its commencement. The Prussian Government and people, at odds with each other about their respective rights, suddenly agreed together in making the provocations of a weak neighbour a pretext for wresting from him provinces which they had long coveted. In concert with Austria, they have had their military expedition, they have seized the prize, they have drunk to the dregs with much enthusiasm their little cup of martial glory; and now they sit down face to face with one another, each morally weakened by their complicity in acts which cannot be justified, to try and adjust their old differences. The Chambers were opened last Saturday morning, and the King's speech, moderate and conciliatory as is its tone, shows, by the mode in which he handles controverted topics, that his confident claim of credit for a successful war leaves a balance of disadvantage to his account in regard to the extent of his prerogative.

His Majesty opens and closes his Royal Speech with topics sure to be received with acclamation; and, as a General on the march places his baggage between the van and rear guards, so the King thrusts his items of heavy and doubtful business into the centre. He begins by announcing to the "Illustrious, noble, and dear lords and gentlemen of the two Chambers," that "an honourable peace has been won by the brilliant valour of our united armies." Then, deeply impressed by the fact, he solemnly lays aside the garments of pride, and says, "We turn our hearts with humility towards God, whose blessing has enabled me to give thanks in the name of my country to the army for its exploits, which equal those of its most glorious military annals." We believe it was John Foster, the essayist, who, after listening with restless impatience to certain statements by a missionary in proof and illustration of the piety of Alexander I. of Russia, said, "Humph! I wonder whether the Emperor said grace before he swallowed Poland." Ambitious potentates invariably claim for their most questionable deeds of violence the sanction of Heaven, and the words of the King of Prussia will be sure to recal the irreligious scoff of his most renowned ancestor—that "Providence is always on the side of the biggest battalions." His Majesty, of course, has too sincere a religious faith to admit of his viewing the matter in this light; and so, again following the example of military conquerors, he talks of the "high mission imposed on Prussia by her geographical situation and her political position." Unfortunately, it generally happens that it is the "mission" of the strong to prey upon the weak. When human nature wills what is unjust, and has power to enforce its will, it is a very ingenious but also a very deceptive interpreter of its special duties. We have no doubt, however, that the Prussian people will heartily indorse his Prussian Majesty's reading of the stirring events of the year which has passed away.

The successful termination of the war enables the King of Prussia to speak with more commanding authority than heretofore on two of the matters nearest to his heart. "The maintenance of the organisation of the army" is one of these; "the development of the navy" is the other. On the latter the King and his subjects have always been agreed; on the former they were at almost deadly feud previous to the outbreak of the war. The King insisted upon adding to the term of years for which every Prussian subject is obliged to serve in the army, to which the Lower Chamber, for very obvious reasons, declined assent. They will now, probably, as their share of the penalty incurred by instigating and abetting the needless attack upon and ruthless dismemberment of the little kingdom of Denmark, feel compelled to withdraw from opposition to the Royal wishes. They have put into the mouth of his Minister an argument strong enough to silence their own objections; and, should they yield the point, as possibly they will, they will have reaped for themselves, as one of the bitter fruits of conquest, an arrangement calculated to interfere very seriously with every branch of industry in that and to weaken very materially all those sentiments from which love of liberty derives its chief nourishment.

PROGRESS OF THE PRINCE CONSORT MEMORIAL IN HYDE PARK.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

But it still remains to be seen whether the Monarch or his subjects have sacrificed position most entirely to the ruling crusade against Denmark. The power of the purse is the key to Constitutionalism. Economically as hostilities have been waged, on the part of Prussia, and shamelessly as she has acted upon the maxim of making the war feed the war, there can be little doubt that her well-filled treasury has been exhausted. Her Government cannot now fall back upon past savings. It has incurred heavy obligations. It must meet increased expenses. It must raise a larger revenue. The provision to be made for the augmentation of the fleet, for the comfort of "those soldiers whose health has been impaired in the field," and "for the families of those who have fallen"—to say nothing of the immediate outlay required for the projected "canal between the North Sea and the Baltic, across Holstein and Schleswig, to be constantly navigable for merchantmen and vessels of war of all classes," and which figure in the Budget of 1865, and will have to be balanced by a "new land and industrial tax," and also by a "tax upon buildings." The estimates of expenditure must be approved, and the new taxes voted by the representative branch of the Legislature, at least, if the Constitution is to be preserved. Money there is little or none in hand, and money must be had. The necessity of the Government is the opportunity of Parliament. Before the purse-strings are undrawn there are misunderstandings to be settled. Perhaps, if the Lower House will waive their opposition to the new military organisation, the King will give way in relation to the most questionable of the proposed articles. Some such mutual concession may, perhaps, be hinted at in the last paragraphs of the Royal Speech—"I am resolved still to respect and uphold the rights which the Constitution has granted to the representatives of the people. But I am bound in to maintain her independence and the rank to which she is entitled among European States, her Government must be firm and strong, and a good understanding with the representatives can only be secured by the maintenance of the organisation of the army, which guarantees its military efficiency, and, consequently, the security of the country."

The speech of Herr Grabow, the re-elected President of the Chamber of Deputies, intimates that the point of quarrel will be taken up precisely at the point at which it was interrupted by the prorogation shortly preceding the war. "The vital part of the Constitution," he said, "has been attacked, and it has been sought by military successes to destroy it. Those successes have has thrice distinctly declared itself, and to force the Chamber of Deputies into submission. But the conscience of the people holds the Constitution as sacred, and will steadfastly remain faithful to it." The vive qui vive is, therefore, the present state of the existing military organisations. The vive qui vive of the Chamber is the preservation intact of constitutional rights. The respective parties are at odds, but the two things are not irreconcilable. The King holds a stronger position than before in relation to the point which he has set his heart on carrying, because the army has achieved a conquest which his people desired. The Chamber has a better chance of enforcing observance of the Constitution, because the King wants money, and can get new taxes by no other means. Each has gained an advantage over the other, and, of course, each has also lost—in reference to one of the questions in dispute between them and it seems scarcely probable that either of them will win both.

As to the future disposal of the duchies torn by violence from Denmark the Royal Speech is discreetly reticent, or, where it briefly alludes to them, ambiguous. Treaties with Denmark has given back to Germany her disputed northern frontier;" but it is Prussia, it seems, not Germany, whose policy will secure this concession by instalments—a policy which shall facilitate the honourable duty of protecting this frontier, and allow the duchies to employ and turn to account their resources in developing the land and sea forces of the common country." It is the Government of Prussia, not the Diet, that "has had the preparatory technical works executed for the construction of a canal between the North Sea and the Baltic, across Holstein and Schleswig," and that will, "in the interests of commerce and of Prussian shipping," undertake or guarantee its execution by a participation of the State in the expenses it will occasion." This strikes one as the language of prospective, if not actual, proprietorship, but may possibly be held consistent with some other solution of the problem.

The conquest, in what way soever it may be finally disposed of, appears likely enough to cost both King and people some political sacrifices which neither of them will relish. But the question just opened will probably reveal them. It is not one duty, certainly, to aggravate them. Yet, it is impossible that the right-minded can give the same amount of sympathy to those who are struggling for their rights as they did before that struggle was interrupted by an act of aggression which showed how little they who demanded justice for themselves cared to observe justice to their neighbours. Let us hope that the act was one of transitory passion, and that, for the sake of the interests which coming generations have in the establishment of well-ordered liberty, the retribution exacted by inexorable law will not consign the people of Prussia to the unhappiness of witnessing in their own case the triumph of might over right.

PROGRESS OF THE NATIONAL ALBERT MEMORIAL IN HYDE PARK.

The substructure of that monumental edifice which Mr. Gilbert Scott has designed for the shrine or tabernacle of a statue of Prince Albert, in Hyde Park, is now so far advanced that the public generally will have thought it opportune to publish an illustration of the progress of this great work on the first page of our present Number. The contractor, Mr. Kelk, has been engaged during the past four or five months in building up the mighty pile of brickwork upon which, at each of its four sides, a noble flight of granite steps will lead to the platform around the base of the great pedestal. In this expected that, if the weather be favourable, two or three weeks longer may suffice to finish the brickwork, which will hereafter be concealed from view by the stone slabs to be laid upon it; and, since this part of the structure is worthy of remark for the architectural skill with which it has been framed, to support the immense weight of the intended monument as a considerable height above the ground, we shall limit our notice on this occasion to the brickwork alone, as shown in our Engraving. The form, in general, is that of a truncated pyramid, about 150 ft. square and 50 ft. or 60 ft. high, surmounted by the solid pedestal for the support of the central edifice. The four walls of this basement, which are each 11 ft. in height and 25 ft. in length, without reckoning the angular projection of each of the four corners, will be covered with sculptures in bas-relief. A platform, 20 ft. wide, will spread all round the basement at the top of the steps, will admit the visitor to a closer inspection of these sculptures, while a larger platform, half-way up the steps, gives ease to the ascent and descent, and adds to the substructure below. The massive skeleton of this huge building up to the summit of the pedestal, 100 ft. square, on which the gilded and gemmed colossus of Mr. Scott's beautiful design will lift the superb canopy to a height of 160 ft. above the natural level of the ground, is, we may now be seen, at least on its western side, almost complete. The Queen—for the present, at all events, the model of the monument is designed by Mr. Scott—has taken care to be informed, from time to time, of the successive stages of the noble undertaking which have been sent to her Majesty; and she came in person about a month ago to see what had been done, climbing the side to its very summit, at the part which appears in the Engraving, to overlook the western side, in order to comprehend the interior plan of its construction, it must be observed, that the brickwork is not to be laid all over the slopes, with the upper and lower platforms at two different levels, will rest upon regular series of brick piers, with the inclined lines of the cupaue coupled by this pyramid to the huge quadrilateral shaft which forms its base. The first pier, 9 ft. square, on the level of the floor, is a span of 6 ft. 6in., the next of 9 ft., and the next to that of 8 ft.; they are connected with wrought-iron girders of similar spans, the upper surfaces of which, sloping towards the summit of the pyramid, will support the granite flooring of the stairs and these walls at the same time, causing its sides towards the centre to be built upon arches, are more powerfully as flying buttresses to uphold the gigantic shaft in the middle despite the enormous vertical pressure of the superior edifice. In our Engraving the arches are concealed by those sloping lines of brickwork, and it is only by the openings between the four principal walls of the building, that we can perceive how skilfully they are planned, with the due regard to artistic effect and to necessary degrees of strength. The four groups of colossal bronze statues, which will be placed at the four corners of the upper platform, and at the bottom of the steps, have basements of solid brickwork, 12 ft. 6in. square, covered with the immense blocks of granite just received at Battersea Bridge, by the steamers of the Scottish Granite Company in the Isle of Mull. In the basements, which are 6 ft. 6in. in height, and which are to be placed upon the four granite pedestals above, projecting from the angles of the enlarged pedestal, at present only 3 ft. 6in. square, which will rest upon the solid brickwork of the square central shaft, the walls of which are 6 ft. 6in. in height, will be left a hollow square space, which is but 4 ft. 6 in. in diameter, is ground over so thickly as to admit not more than a single person. For the practicability, it may be well presumed, the stability of this pile is equal to that of the Egyptian pyramids, but we do not see that it is at all to be out endure for so many centuries, whatever may be the fate of the Egyptian monuments of structure with its clustered columns, its Gothic arches, its sculptured pediments, its statues, and its vases. Even as a work from all questions of taste in the Fine Arts, it must be acknowledged that the Mausoleum, which is the true forerunner Renaus, knew how to build with bricks more strongly than any other people in the world, and that the small bricks—best stock bricks, beautifully made by Messrs. Richardson, of Acton—used in this grand piece of work is almost equal to stone. The bricks of which the pyramids of eighteen millions were used in the Great Exhibition building. The manner in which Mr. Kelk's contract has thus far been executed is a most creditable to himself; and it may not be improper to mention also the names of Mr. Cook, general foreman; that of Mr. William Jacobs, the foreman of bricklayers; who, as a veteran of his craft having laid the bricks of the Great Exhibition building, and helped to build the Crystal Palace at Sydenham, is now in charge of the basement of the Nelson Monument in Trafalgar-square, has had a hand in some of the most famous national jobs of this kind.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

M. Henri Plon is busily engaged at the Imperial printing office superintending the publication of the Emperor's "Life of Cæsar." A magnificent edition of 1000 copies has been ordered to be got up for the purpose presentation to crowned heads, foreign Ambassadors, and literary or political men. A popular edition, however, will appear about the middle of February. The Emperor has ordered the work to be translated into English, and has undertaken to revise the proofs himself. The publishers of the English edition (Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin) are to receive the proofs from Paris in sheets as far by the end of February. Editions are also to appear next month, at Bonn and Vienna.

The list of bishops who have set at naught the circular of M. Baroche prohibiting the reading of the Archbishop of Besançon's letter is increasing. The Cardinal Archbishop of Besançon has joined the opposition to the Government in this matter, having read the entire document from the pulpit and publicly announced his adhesion to every one of its statements. The conduct of the Archbishop has been referred to the Council of State. If the Government prosecute the matter in all such cases they are likely to have enough to do in that way, for it appears that the opposition to M. Baroche's circular is not confined to the hierarchy, and that out of seven cardinals, fifteen archbishops, and sixty-eight bishops, only three appear to be.

Another new street, to be called the Rue Guy-Lussac, is about to be opened on the left bank of the Seine, near the Palace of the Luxembourg. Houses are already being taken down to make way for it on the Boulevard Saint-Michel, and in the Rue de la Sorbonne, at the old street St. Thomas d'Enfer. Among other houses to be removed is a large building at the corner of the Rue Royer-Collard, serving as a laboratory for the School of Mines. The Rue Guy-Lussac, commencing at the Boulevard Sebastopol and ending at the Rue d'Ulm, near the Normal School, will cause the suppression of the Rue St. Thomas, the Alley St. Catherine, a part of the Rue Royer-Collard, and will occupy all the gardens attached to the houses in the Rue St. Catherine, Royer-Collard, and St. Jacques.

A duel with swords, arising out of a quarrel respecting the Perigord trial, was fought near Paris on Monday. The principals, M. le Duc de Montmorency and M. de Larochebrochard, were both wounded, but not dangerously.

A company with a capital of 2,000,000f. has been started for the purpose of building an open-house at Marseilles.

The Emperor proposes to convene a European conference, to meet at Paris on the 1st of March, in order to modify some existing telegraphic conventions.

According to official accounts published in Paris, the revolt of the Arab tribes in Algeria may be regarded as terminated, as the last remnants of the insurgents had manifested their intention of submitting.

The Pays asserts that M. Outrey, Consul-General of France at Beyrout, will replace M. Tastet, Consul-General and political agent of France at Alexandria, who has been removed from his post at his own request.

According to a telegram published by the Paris papers the Governor of Aden has refused to accept satisfaction for the insults offered to some French officers in that place; and it will therefore be necessary to apply to the English Government to collect upon the subject.

ITALY.

The committee appointed to inquire into the lamentable events that took place in Turin on the 21st and 22nd of September last have reported that they are unable to perceive that there was sufficient provocation during the night of the 22nd to excuse the commencement of repression, and they regret that the King's Government did not on the circumstances display that unity of action, that energy, and that foresight which the grave nature of the facts demanded.

The Minister of Justice has addressed a circular to the bishops intimating that the ecclesiastical cannot be published without the consent of the Government. At Naples a crowd of young men insulted the clergy in the public streets.

A meeting has been held in Brescia to call for the abolition of the punishment of death, and to petition in a letter was read from Garibaldi declaring emphatically against capital sentences.

Cardinal Alieri, Treasurer of the Holy Roman Church, has sent in his resignation as Prefect of the Congregation of the Index, in which office he succeeds Cardinal Antonelli, who held it seven years. The Pope has since appointed to the post Cardinal de Luca, ex-Nuncio at Vienna.

AUSTRIA.

The financial committee of the Reichsrath sent back the other day the Budget to the Ministry, with the request that the Government would make certain reductions which appeared necessary to the committee in order to bring the Budget Estimates between income and expenditure. We are now informed that the Austrian Government does not consider the proposed reductions acceptable, and that they would effect the estimates of the war department.

The Vienna papers of the 28th say that the failure of the loan lately exchanged between Count Mensdorff and Herr von Bismarck — Austria decisively repudiates the participation proposed to her in Danish measures against the Duchies, which, supposed to be revolutionary by Herr von Bismarck. Austria will not abandon the ground of federal principle. Count Rechberg tells Bismarck, in effect, that Bismarck desire the annexation of the duchies, of the suggestion formerly offered by Count Rechberg to Count Rechberg, is open to the effect that Austrian would only consent to annexation in open ing compensation in the shape of her Lombardo-Venetian territory.

Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia has arrived at Vienna, and is lodged in the Palace of Prince Metternich. It is said that, in spite of his visit, the Austrian Cabinet will never assent to an annexation of Schleswig-Holstein to the Prussian dominions.

PRUSSIA.

The Diet was opened on Saturday last by King William in person. He also delivered a speech in which he declared that the present organisation of the army was one which he could not allow to be touched without calling out the Landwehr, and that he, therefore, expects the Diet to support the Government in its military arrangements. The navy of Prussia received strengthening, even at the cost of great sacrifices, and the fleet now consists of the vessels described, he had before the Diet. The Prussian and Austrian Courts were bound in a close alliance by the understandings based on the German settlements of himself and of the Emperor of Austria. The peace with Denmark, for which he had to thank the Almighty, had restored harmonies, and to the inhabitants of those countries the possibility of sharing our undisturbed labours. The object of my policy has been to secure this acquisition by measures which shall facilitate the honourable duty of protecting those boundaries, allow the duchies to develope their resources, and turn them to account for the advantage of the national interests of the common fatherland. For the maintenance of these objects my Government shall take it to be its duty to combine the legitimate demands both of the country and the Princes. In order, therefore, to be able to arrive at a decision in these legal questions, the law officers of the Crown have been summoned to give a joint opinion on the subject. Your Majesties shall take it to be a question and my duties towards my country will guide me in my endeavours to come to a friendly understanding with my illustrious ally, and has shared with me both the occupation and administration of the duchies." His next sentence is to the effect that a good understanding between the House of Deputies and the Government, and he is resolved to respect the rights of the people's representatives ; "but if Prussia is to retain her independence and position as a European power, the Government must be firm and strong, and a good understanding with the representatives can only be secured on the basis of the maintenance of the military organisation, which is a guarantee for the safety and the defence of the country." He continued,

The Roman Catholic members of the Prussian Chamber of Deputies have presented to the House an address in reply to the King's speech. It distinctly affirms that an understanding with the Chamber can only be obtained by the Government acknowledging the constitutional right of the Chamber to vote the Budget, and likewise taking steps to diminish as much as possible the military expenses of the country. The address also declares that the extension of the people's rights against the necessity of much of the system of military reorganisation insisted upon by the Government.

The Chamber of Deputies on Monday re-elected Herr Grabow its President, and Herr Von Unruh and Von Bockum-Dolffs (the famous Bockum-Dolffs of the last) its Vice-Presidents. The President steadily arraigned the reforms which the Ministry has resolved to attempt to suppress free opinion, and declared that what was formerly regarded in Prussia as a victim to a public cause was now considered as a sanction. The vital part of the Constitution had been attacked, and it had been sought to obtain by military successes to destroy it. But the people and their representatives held the Constitution sacred, and would steadfastly remain faithful to it.

The Government has replied to the publication of the Pope's encyclical as a matter wholly outside its sphere, and therefore to leave the Roman Catholic clergy to act as they think proper in it.

The Saxon Minister of State, Baron von Beust, has addressed a lengthened circular to Saxony's diplomatic agents at the Schleswig-Holstein question as treated by the minor German States.

RUSSIA.

The Grand Duke Constantine has been appointed President, and Count Milutine and General Lukkow members, of the Council of the Empire.

The Czarewitch arrived at Nice in such a delicate state of health that it was supposed he would not long. Ioan like to be a wife prepared for his reception.

The Russian military and naval expenditure for the current year is, we are told, to be reduced about £4,000,000.

Advices from Petersburg state that the publication of the encyclical letter is prohibited in Russia.

The Wilna correspondent of the Indépendance Belge thus describes the present state of the capital of Lithuania :—"The shop inscriptions are Russian ; in the streets, in cafés, restaurants, and shops of every kind you hear Russian spoken. Polish is considered to be bad taste, and little Hebrew ; but it is very rarely that a word of Polish, French, or German is spoken. In fact, you will hear less Russian at St. Petersburg and Odessa than at Wilna, where only lately the Russian language was almost condemned to banishment."

Letters from Lublin announce the escape from the town prison of Pyrzalo of a peasant from the Zamojski estates, who was the leader of the seythemen during the late insurrection. Eighty men and fourteen women have been arrested in consequence of this event.

THE CAPE OF GOOD HOPE.

The French steamer Japan, which left Table Bay on Dec. 3, brings thirteen days' later news than the last English mail-steamer.

The dispute between the Free State and the Basutos was still unsettled. No definite reply having been received from Moshesh to Nov. 24, a second messenger has been dispatched from Bloeemfontein to Thaba Bosigo, his capital, for his answer. A rumour prevailed at Bloeemfontein that at a great council of the Basutos nation it had been determined to respect Sir P. Wodehouse's arbitration, and to give up the disputed lands rather than incur a war. This pacific resolution was said to have been supported by Moshesh and his son Sebea, but opposed by Molappo and Moperi, chiefs whose followers are the aggressors in the Wittebergen, being the occupiers of the disputed lands. Although the month allowed for the withdrawal of those Basutos had nearly expired, they remained quietly squatting on the Wittebergen farms, which they had reclaimed and cultivated, hoping yet to realise the profits of their labours, and the impression that war would result was general. The Burghers of the Free State were assembling with an alacrity never before displayed by them. Four hundred had come in from Fauresmith and Philippolis, and were to be accompanied by a president to Winburg on Nov. 25.

AMERICA.

By the arrival of the Saxonia and the City of Manchester we have intelligence from New York to the 7th inst.

Everything was quiet at Savannah, and good order prevailed among the citizens. General Sherman is reported to be in occupation of both banks of the Savannah. It is believed that his next point of attack will be Branchville, where the Charleston and Savannah Railroad meets the Augusta road. The Confederates are preparing to defend this important position. The military authorities of Charleston have shown their sense of the near neighbourhood of Sherman by issuing an order making it imperative on all slaves, not having permission to remain, to quit the city, and interdicting entrance to the city to all non-combatants not having proper passes. At the same time the engineers have set to work on the land defences of the place.

Admiral Porter appears to have withdrawn from Wilmington. General Bragg reports the Confederate losses during the bombardment as three killed and fifty-five wounded. Two guns in Fort Fisher burst, two were dismounted by the Confederates, and two by the Federal fire. Southern despatches contain a report that the Federals had five vessels sunk and fifteen disabled, and lost all their horses in the gale off Wilmington.

It appears that the Federals were to be supported in their attack on Wilmington by a gun-boat expedition up the Roanoke River. According to Southern advices, this expedition met with a disaster. Six gun-boats were blown up by torpedoes and 1000 men were lost.

General Hood's whole army succeeded in crossing the Tennessee River, and his head-quarters were at Corinth, whence he had reported that his troops had sustained no material losses since his defeat near Nashville. The Richmond papers publish a story of the capture by Hood of a Federal brigade after his retreat from Nashville; but Hood, in his despatch, says nothing of such capture.

The only news of importance from before Richmond is the failure of Butler's Dutch Gap canal. An attempt was made to open it on the 1st inst., when the earth fell in and closed the channel.

Guerrillas are becoming numerous and troublesome on the Potomac. It is reported that Mosby is rapidly recovering from his wounds, and will soon be again in the saddle. [We give on page 56 an Illustration, from a sketch by our Special Artist, of a rendezvous of Mosby's men in a pass of the Blue Ridge.] No important military operations in the valley of the Shenandoah are reported, but the movements of the Confederates in that region are said to be mysterious. Federal cavalry is scouting the Loudon valley.

On the 24th ult. a force of about 2500 Confederates, under General Wirt Adams, was threatening Baton Rouge, Louisiana.

A special despatch from Cairo states that General Donas's raid on the Mobile and Ohio Railroad was successful. Twenty-five bridges were burnt, and 4000 carbines, a large amount of ammunition, and 300 army waggons captured. Many officers and men were taken prisoners, and thirty-two railway cars destroyed.

Secretary Stanton had left Washington for Fort Monroe, Hilton Head, and Savannah, in order to confer personally with Generals Grant, Foster, and Sherman.

It is rumoured that the Confederate Congress has secretly given power to the Commander-in-Chief to detail 50,000 slaves for service in the army as soldiers. Richmond papers continue to urge the Confederate Congress to appoint General Lee Commander-in-Chief of all the Confederate forces.

New-Year's Day falling on Sunday, the usual New-Year's holiday was observed on Monday the 2nd. At Washington, the President's mansion was freely thrown open, as is customary, and large crowds attended to pay their respects. Among those present were all the foreign Ambassadors.

The message of the Governor of New York to the Legislature recommends a vigorous support of the war for the Union. The new Governor calls upon the citizens to fill up their quota of the draught.

In the Federal Senate, Mr. Wilson, of Massachusetts, presented a petition from officers of the army and navy asking for increased compensation. Mr. Sumner presented a petition from coloured citizens of New York asking for the abolition of slavery in the United States. The Senate passed a vote of thanks to General Sherman and his army. In the House of Representatives, the joint resolution to abolish slavery by Constitutional amendment was debated without result.

Admiral Farragut has received a present of 50,000 dols. from the merchants and people of New York.

The Hon. George Miflin Dallas, ex-Vice-President of the United States, and more recently Minister to the Court of St. James's, died, at his residence, in Philadelphia, on Saturday morning, Dec. 31.

Four persons were recently killed, and fifteen or twenty wounded, by the breaking through the bridge at Hudson, Ohio, of a passenger-train on the Pittsburg and Cleveland Railroad.

Mr. Fessenden is nominated Senator from Maine, and the Treasury portfolio is virtually vacant.

The latest quotation of gold at New York was about 127 per cent premium.

The Olustee made her escape from Wilmington on the night of Dec. 25 while the fleet was engaged in the attack on Fort Fisher. On the following day she was chased by the United States gun-boat Lilian, but finally turned upon her pursuer; and the Lilian, having only two guns against five carried by the privateer, was forced to seek safety in flight. The Olustee pursued for some distance, but the Lilian escaped.

The Shenandoah has burnt several more American merchant-ships.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

New York advices report that the French Canadians at Montmorency took up arms to resist the draught for frontier service. The local militia were called out to restore order, and the disturbance was quelled.

Her Britannic Majesty's ship Charybdis, Captain Turner, arrived at Esquimalt on the 16th of November, bearing two of the mutineers from the John Stephenson, as prisoners. She was to remain at Esquimalt three weeks, at the expiration of which time she would leave for England with the crews of the two gun-boats and a few naval pensioners.

A great strike has been made at the head waters of Wolf Creek. A gold-bearing quartz lead, twenty-two inches in width, has been discovered by a company of three men. The gold is plainly visible in streaks, threads, and globules, to the naked eye. The quartz is of a kind known as rose-coloured. The company have sunk on the lead to the depth of twenty feet, and found gold from the croppings to the bottom of the shaft.

Advices received at New York from Mexico report the occupation of Mazatlan, Colima, Tepic, and Manzanilla by the Imperialists. The reported defeat and execution of General Cortinas is contradicted. A fight was expected at Oajaca. The Emperor Maximilian had changed his Cabinet.

The Queen has approved of M. Henri Du Chesne as Consul at Hong-Kong for the Emperor of the French. Her Majesty has also approved of Mr. A. Augustus Porter as Consul at Clifton, Canada; of Mr. Daniel K. Hobart as Consul at Windsor, Canada; of Mr. James Weldon, as Consul at Prescott, Canada; of Mr. William H. Eustis as Consul at St. Lambert and Longuell, Canada; and of Mr. Sylvanus B. Hance as Consul at Kingston, Canada, for the United States of America. Her Majesty has likewise approved of Don Francisco d'Uncilla as Consul at Malta for the Queen of Spain.

LATEST NEWS FROM ABROAD.

The following telegrams have been received through Mr. Reuter's office :—

AMERICA.

NEW YORK, Jan. 7.—The Governor of Kentucky, in his Message to the Legislature, recommends the gradual emancipation and ultimate removal of slaves from Kentucky.

MONTREAL, Jan. 7.—The Montreal Court has decided that it has jurisdiction in the case of the St. Albans raiders.

COUNTRY NEWS.

Lady Molesworth has returned a full half-year's rent to her Tetcot tenantry, making a Christmas gift of £2500.

A sheet of iron has been rolled at Llanelly measuring 8 in. by 5½ in., weighing 49 grains, and being the 1400th part of an inch thick.

The Town Council of Hull has adopted the Public-house Closing Act by forty-five against four votes.

Tuesday's Gazette contains the notice by the Speaker of the issuing of a writ for the election of a member for Buteshire, in the room of Mr. Mure, who has been appointed a Scotch Judge, vice Mr. Mackenzie, resigned.

In the ten principal cities or towns of the United Kingdom 3838 births and 3287 deaths were registered in the week that ended on Saturday last. In the seven cities or boroughs of England the mortality was at the rate of thirty per thousand annually; and the deaths were 2713.

On Monday morning a deputation, consisting of gentlemen connected with the Richmond Young Men's Society, presented to Earl Russell, at Pembroke Lodge, Richmond Park, an address of thanks on his Lordship becoming the president of the society to which they belonged.

The Mersey Docks and Harbour Board yesterday week adopted plans for a new Observatory, to be erected on Bidston-hill, Cheshire, at a cost estimated at £6000. The Observatory at Princes Dock will be removed, and the new building will be furnished with all the appliances known to modern science.

The customs returns for the port of Liverpool show a total revenue of £2,910,941 for 1864. This is a decrease of about a quarter of a million, as compared with 1863. The decrease on the duties of sugar and tea alone was nearly equal to the difference. On wine and spirits there was a considerable increase.

Mr. Baxter, M.P., delivered a lecture on Tuesday in the Mechanics' Institution at Blairgowrie. It related almost exclusively to the American civil war, and was, in fact, a history of that unhappy business. The hon. gentleman expressed a confident hope that the North would beat the South.

The Queen has approved of Mr. George Worms as Consul-General in the United Kingdom of Great Britain and Ireland for the Grand Duke of Hesse; of Captain Edward Banbury Nott as Consul at Deal, and of Mr. Wm. Henry Garland as Consul at Lynn, for the King of Hanover; and of Mr. C. Kühling as Consul at Hull for the Grand Duke of Oldenburg.

Sir George Bowyer, M.P., whose connection with the borough of Margate has given him an interest in the young Corporation of the town, on Tuesday presented, with appropriate ceremony, a silver mace to the Mayor, Aldermen, and burgesses assembled in the Townhall. The mace, which is 3 ft. 9 in. long, weighs 79 oz., and was formerly the property of the ancient Corporation of Kinsale.

Mr. John Turner, of Chester, for many years a compositor in one of the newspaper offices in that city, died last week. Among other objects which claimed his regard was the erection of another Wesleyan chapel in Chester, towards which he has directed his executors to apply the sum of £1000. He leaves £100 to the Wesleyan Missionary Society, £50 to the British and Foreign Bible Society, and legacies to the Wesleyan Ministers' Fund, the Blue Coat Hospital, the Blue Girls' School, and the Lying-in-Charity.

Dr. Trench, the Archbishop of Dublin, presided, on Thursday week, at a soirée of the Young Men's Christian Association, held in the Metropolitan Hall, Dublin. In addition to the right rev. chairman, the speakers were Mr. Whiteside, M.P.; Mr. Vance, M.P.; ex-Chancellor Napier; and others. The Lord Mayor (Mr. Barrington) attended on the occasion. Incidentally to the proceedings, it was stated that Alderman Atkinson, J.P., had given £1000 to the building-fund of the association, on condition of a like amount being raised in subscriptions within a reasonable time.

Her Majesty's ship Amethyst, an old sailing-corvette, which had received in the iron tank constructed in her hold a coil of 279 miles of the Atlantic telegraph cable, was on Monday towed down to the Medway, where she was laid alongside the Great Eastern, to deliver up this first instalment of the Atlantic cable. Up to Monday night there had been manufactured at the works of the Telegraph Construction and Maintenance (formerly Glass, Elliot, and Co.) 902 nautical miles, or about one hundred miles more than one third of the entire length of the telegraphic cable required to be laid between Valentia and Newfoundland.

The New-Year's entertainment to the patients in Colney-hatch Lunatic Asylum took place on Thursday week. The amusements commenced with the opening of a new theatre, which, with the scenery and decorations, had been constructed in the asylum, when a prologue appropriate for the occasion was spoken by Dr. Sheppard, the medical superintendent of the male department. The farce of "Box and Cox" followed, and the performances were concluded with the burlesque of "Bombastes Furioso." All the characters were performed by the male officers of the asylum. The patients, of whom between 500 and 600 males and females were present, thoroughly enjoyed the performance. It was interesting to observe how they applauded the various hits made by the performers. After the theatricals dancing was kept up for two or three hours.

Arrangements are in progress for holding industrial exhibitions in several large towns. A Birmingham committee of working men have issued an address announcing that a Birmingham and Midland Counties Industrial Exhibition will be held in August next. The terms "Birmingham and Midland Counties" includes such towns as Walsall, Wolverhampton, Derby, Northampton, Dudley, Stafford, Redditch, Coventry, Kidderminster, Worcester, Stourbridge, Hanley, Stoke (and the Potteries generally), Leicester, Nottingham, &c.; but exhibitors from any other part of the country will not be refused, if the committee have sufficient space at their disposal.——A public meeting was held at Nottingham on Monday evening for the purpose of promoting a working man's industrial exhibition for Nottingham and the midland counties. There was a large attendance of the working classes, who manifested great interest in the proceedings. Several gentlemen addressed the meeting, strongly urging that such an exhibition should be held. The following resolution was unanimously adopted, and a committee appointed to carry it into effect :—"That an exhibition, to be entitled the Nottingham and Midland Counties Working Classes' Art and Industrial Exhibition, be held, and that the manufacturers and working classes of the midland counties be invited to co-operate.——At a town meeting, held under the presidency of the Mayor (Mr. W. H. Lee), at Wakefield, on Thursday week, it was resolved to get up an industrial exhibition on the model of those which have been so successful in London. The exhibition is to be held next autumn.

A meeting of the Central Executive Relief Committee was held, on Monday, in the Townhall, Manchester—the High Sheriff, Sir J. K. Shuttleworth, Bart., in the chair. The hon. sec. reported that £5157 had been received during the past four weeks, including £3435 bank interest from July 1 to Dec. 31, 1864; and that the balance in the bank was £73,258. Mr. Maclure also presented his monthly report. Lord Egerton said he observed that no application was to be made that day for a grant to Stockport. A report had reached him that the Central Relief Committee of that place had resolved to discontinue their operations; and he should like to ask Mr. Maclure what was the reason which had induced them to come to that decision. Mr. R. Maclure replied that the committee considered that the number of people out of employment in Stockport was so reduced that they (the committee) ought to cease operations. In fact, a scarcity of hands for mills was beginning to be felt. The committee had been closed for three weeks. Lord Egerton—"You are satisfied that there is sufficient employment in mills, or on public or other works, for all who, under other circumstances, might legitimately have applied for aid from the relief funds? Mr. R. Maclure—"I am quite prepared to say so." Mr. Farnall read his report, which stated that on the 7th inst. there was a decrease in the number of persons receiving parochial relief in the twenty-seven unions of the cotton-manufacturing districts as compared with the number so relieved on the 10th ult., of 5876. A reference to the statistics of pauperism for the week ended the 7th inst. would show that 6651 able-bodied men received outdoor relief within the district. This was a decrease of 1017, as compared with the number of able-bodied men who received outdoor relief during the week ended the 10th ult. Of these 6651 able-bodied men, 2618, or 39·3 per cent, are reported as being capable of employment on public works, but who are not so employed at present. The hon. secretary presented the balance-sheet of the relief fund for the past year; and, in reply to a question, stated that the expense of administering the fund was less than 1 per cent on the receipts, or about £10,000 less than the amount allowed for bankers' interest. The committee considered this a highly satisfactory result. A number of grants were made.

Mr Robert Carruthers, editor of the Inverness Courier, delivered last week two lectures on the Hebrides—a subject on which he is well qualified to speak—to the members of the Philosophical Institution in Queen-street Hall, Edinburgh. The first lecture was devoted chiefly to the consideration of the outer, and the second to that of the inner, Hebrides. He described the leading topographical features of these islands, and stated that his object was to look historically at them, to discourse a little of the men and their doings, and so complete his Scottish historical sketches attempted in former lectures. The condition of the Hebrides under the Picts, the Scoto-Irish or Dalriads, and the Norwegians was vividly sketched; and a deeply-interesting review was given of the manners and customs of the inhabitants in times gone by, under the great families of M'Neil, M'Leod, M'Kenzie, and M'Lean—all Highland potentates or princes, who ruled over a wide stretch of stormy country, a space of about 120 miles; and under the dynasty of the Lords of the Isles, now represented by Lord Macdonald. The latter part of the second lecture related chiefly to the present condition and prospects of the Western Islands. Mr. Carruthers alluded to the cheering prospect of railway communication being extended to the Western Islands, or at least to Kyleakin, the sound between Skye and the main land. "When (he said) King Haco of Norway, with his fleet, sailed past the isles and promontories, the people, we are told, crowded to witness the magnificent spectacle; and, no doubt, at the pawing of the fiery horse, the people of the present day would no less eagerly rush to the heights and surf-beaten shores. Six hundred years have passed since Haco's splendid and powerful armament swept through the narrow sea that still bears his name, and during that long period no event has occurred, no sound has been heard so interesting, so important to the Western Islands as the shriek of the approaching railway whistles. That sound will, under God's blessing, summon the clans, not, like the fiery cross of old, to feudal strife, and war, and misery, but to a new life of peaceful and extended action, of increased energy and intelligence, fraught with results that must continue to operate through ages yet to come." Mr. Carruthers was frequently applauded during the delivery of the lectures, which were a pleasant mixture of history, topography, "random recollections," gossip about Gaelic lore, and practical suggestions—fused together in language always gracefully flowing and often eloquent.

ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.—At the Great Northern Engine-works at Peterborough, on Saturday last, the workmen were testing a boiler which had been repaired, when it exploded, killing three men, injuring several others, and spreading alarm throughout the city.

Ellis, alias Morgan, the daring thief who robbed Mr. Charles Ashworth of his watch and other property at Shrewsbury a short time ago, was committed for trial at Shrewsbury on Tuesday. The prisoner acknowledged his guilt, and coolly expressed his amazement at the stupidity which the Shrewsbury police had exhibited in assisting him in perpetrating such a transparent fraud. A previous conviction was proved against him; indeed, he had only just been released from gaol when he committed this robbery.

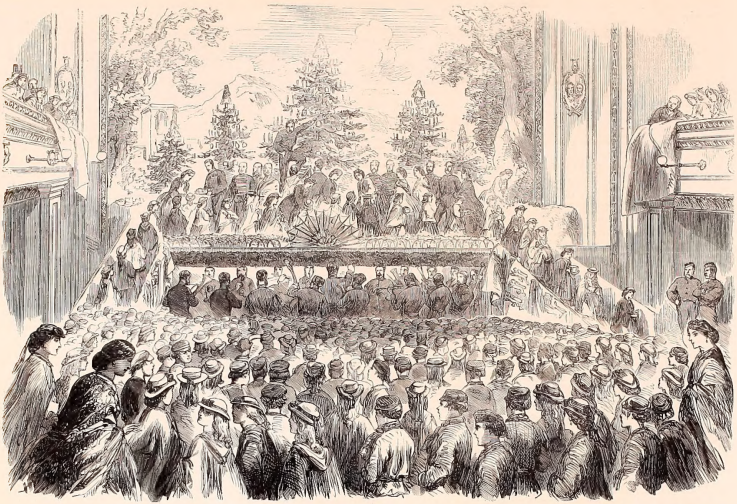
The coroner's inquiry into the accident at the Leeswood Colliery, Mold, by which eight men lost their lives by the irruption of water into the mine, has resulted in a verdict of "Manslaughter" against the proprietors, Messrs. Craig, Tayler, and Craig.

A typographical error last week in our notice of "The Ballads and Songs of Brittany," translated by Mr. Tom Taylor, made it appear that the music of those songs was harmonised and arranged by that gentleman, instead of by Mrs. Taylor, his wife, who has skilfully performed that part of the work.

EDUCATION.—Miss Burdett Coutts writes to the Times that, while reading some months ago the last report of the Committee of Council of Education, a plan suggested itself to her for the extension of our present system of national education, which would seem calculated to remedy the difficulty occasioned by the unequal operation of the present system. "The principle of this plan consists in the schoolmaster being the ambulatory centre of unity to a group of schools, carried on under his superintendence, according to local resources and capabilities; and its main advantage consists in the elasticity with which the plan can be adapted to varying circumstances. By this method grants of the public money would be given in aid of small and scattered parishes, while a sufficient guarantee would be secured for the efficiency of the instruction given in return. Previous to submitting this scheme to the Committee of Council of Education, it had been my intention to test the practical working of a group of schools by an experiment; and it was with this object, and in order to ascertain whether the children taught under this system could show the results required by the standards of the Revised Code, that the inclosed plan was drawn up. However, on asking the Rev. Edward Arnold, her Majesty's Inspector of Schools for the western districts, whether he would kindly examine such children, he requested me to allow him to send my plan at once to the Committee of Council on Education, and, though I am not aware that they have arrived at any conclusion as to the expediency of their giving any sanction to its general adoption, yet I am permitted to state that the subject is under their careful consideration, and that they have assisted me by enrolling in their books the name of the certificated master who is engaged by me to organise the experiment, under the guidance of the Rev. Reginald Barnes, Vicar of St. Mary's Church, in Devonshire. It promises to work satisfactorily, and is certain, from the novelty of the principle involved, to attract considerable attention, especially as the subject of education is likely to form one of the leading topics of legislative discussion in the ensuing Session."

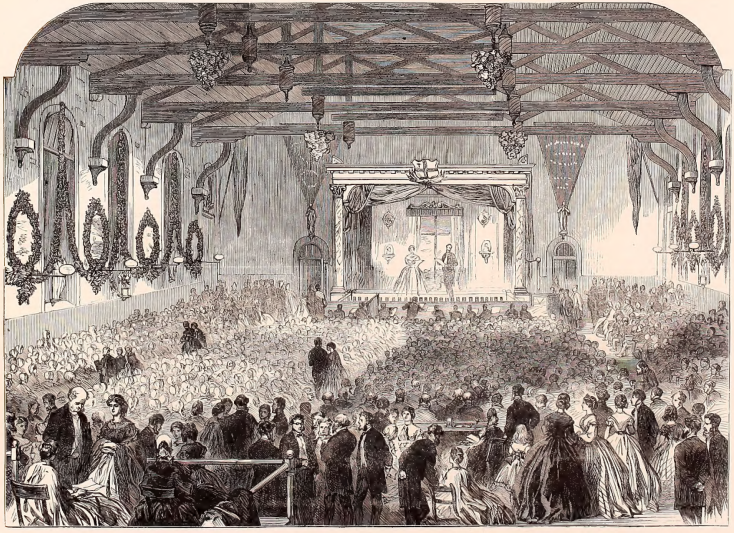
THE WOOLWICH GARRISON SCHOOLS.

THE children of soldiers of the Royal Artillery and Royal Engineers corps in Woolwich Garrison receive their education in schools maintained for their especial benefit. The younger boys and girls were entertained with their annual feast on Friday week, in the capacious riding-school of the garrison, under the patronage of Major-General Warde, C.B., the Commandant; and upon this occasion also the prizes were distributed to the most deserving scholars. About one thousand children, ranging from six to fourteen years of age, were regaled with tea and cake, while their school masters and mistresses, with the numerous staff of subordinate teachers, partook of the repast. A large company of visitors, including many officers of the garrison, with their families and friends, were present at this agreeable scene, and at the presentation of the school prizes, which took place in the Recreation Hall, fitted up as a theatre for the amateur performances so often exhibited there. We give an Illustration of this last-mentioned part of the proceedings.



CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT TO THE POOR OF THE CITY OF LONDON UNION.

THE guardians of the City of London Union, at their own private expense, give an annual entertainment at this season of the year to the inmates of the workhouse, situated in Bow-road, Mile-end. This festivity took place on Thursday week, and we give an Illustration of the scene. The spacious dining-hall of the workhouse had been adorned with festoons of evergreens and with a series of landscape-pictures, executed by an inmate of the workhouse named Ashby, whose artistic skill might have preserved him, one would have thought, from pauperism. These pictures were surrounded with floral wreaths. At the lower end of the hall were two large and brilliant gasstars; at the upper end was a stage with a painted scene, for the recitations and other performances of the evening. Over the entrances at each side of the hall were banners, bearing inscriptions, "Prosperity to the Chairman, Vice-Chairman, and Gentlemen of the Board," and "Grateful thanks to the Chairman and Gentlemen of the Workhouse Committee." The mottoes down the sides of the hall were, for the most part, exceedingly appropriate. As specimens we may mention the following:—"Content sleeps soundly," "Look at the bright side of everything," "If there were no clouds we should not enjoy the sunshine." The fine oaken roof of the hall was set off by a number of large hanging baskets of gay flowers. The inmates, to the number of nearly 800, assembled in the hall shortly before six o'clock, the hour named for the commencement of the entertainment. The chairman, Mr. Alderman Abbiss, was prevented by indisposition from being present. The vice-chairmen, Mr. Rigby and Mr. Warwick, were present; together with the chairman and vice-chairman of the workhouse committee; the following members—Messrs. Davidge, Crane, Warman, J. Taylor, Beckwith, and Ashby; and a number of other guardians and friends. There was a liberal supply of cakes and ale, with oranges and other dainties. The amusements of the evening consisted of dancing to the music of a quadrille band, and hearing a number of songs by Mr. Burgess, Miss Withers, Mr. Harry Sydney, Mr. Sam Collins, and other professional vocalists. One of Mr. Harry Sydney's songs, written for the occasion, was cheered immensely. A portion of it ran thus:—



The name of Abbiss, Alderman, as chairman, I must think on,
Who is, if not so powerful, more popular than Lincoln;
The chief commander 's Mr. Sanders, Mr. Moore to check with;
The entertainment is arranged by Clements, Crane, Gale, and Beckwith.

There may be some who care as much, but none more, I am sure,
Than the Guardians of this Union for the comfort of their poor.
If testimony were required, how soon would every one come
To praise the kind attention for the sick by Dr. Buncombe.

Shortly after ten o'clock the National Anthem was performed, and the poor people retired to their dormitories, though not before they had given three hearty cheers for Mr. W. Clements, Mr. Gale, and the members of the workhouse committee, who had organised the treat; paying also a similar compliment to Mr. Sanders and Mrs. Sanders (the master and matron), who, with other officers of the establishment, used their best endeavours to make the evening pleasant.

DISTRIBUTION OF PRIZES, IN THE RECREATION-HALL AT WOOLWICH, TO THE CHILDREN OF THE ROYAL ARTILLERY AND ROYAL ENGINEERS' SCHOOLS.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

CHRISTMAS ENTERTAINMENT TO THE POOR OF THE CITY OF LONDON UNION, BOW-ROAD, MILE-END.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

HOLKHAM HALL, NORFOLK, THE SEAT OF THE EARL OF LEICESTER, VISITED BY THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

THE late visit of the Prince and Princess of Wales to the Earl of Leicester's mansion at Holkham, in Norfolk, has induced us to publish a View of that place, which is famous in the history of British agriculture as the residence of that most enterprising and successful improver of soil and stock, Mr. Thomas Coke, M.P. for the county from 1774 to 1832, and afterwards Earl of Leicester, the father of the present Earl. The parish and village of Holkham, two miles from Wells, on the coast of Norfolk looking towards the north, was purchased, in the seventeenth century, by the family of the great Chief Justice Coke, one of whose descendants, in 1744, was raised to the Peerage by the title of Earl of Leicester. He left no son, and the title became extinct in 1759; but the estates, with the name of Coke, passed to Mr. Wenham Roberts, whose son, the famous "Coke of Holkham," already mentioned, came to this inheritance in 1776. At that time the rental of Holkham was £2200 a year. Mr. Coke, by his skilful application of such methods as are prescribed by modern agricultural science, contrived to increase the yearly value of his property tenfold; its rental amounting, in 1810, to no less than £22,000, besides timber, poles, and underwood, averaging £3700 a year more. An interesting account of these improvements may be found in the current serial publication, Agriculture, Ancient and Modern, by an Old Norfolk Farmer; the author, as a neighbour and contemporary of Mr. Coke having preserved authentic anecdotes of his proceedings at Holkham. We are here informed, by-the-way, that "one great cause of the highly prosperous condition of the estate was the liberal principle on which Mr. Coke acted in letting his farms, and the twenty-one years' leases on which they were invariably held;" as a superior class of tenants, with capital sufficient for the new style of farming, were thus attracted to the estate. Mr. Coke's efforts, during more than half a century, both by precept and example, to bring about a complete reform of English agriculture, entitle him to be regarded as a real benefactor of the nation. A Corinthian pillar, raised by public subscription, now stands in Holkham Park as a monument of this eminent country gentleman, in whose person the earldom of Leicester was revived in 1837, a few years before his death. The extensive waste of Holkham Heath, and a large tract beside, which Mr. Coke reclaimed from the sands of the sea, have been made to grow abundant crops of grain, or turnips to feed numerous flocks of sheep, where, says the writer already quoted, it was once observed, in jest, that "you might see two rabbits fighting for one blade of grass."

Holkham Hall is situated in a park of 3000 acres, of which a third part is covered with wood, presenting a ride of seven miles through groves of fir and other trees or evergreen shrubs, whose foliage displays, even in the winter season, a pleasing variety of tints. The plantations and pleasure-grounds are very tastefully laid out, and there is an ornamental lake one thousand yards long, on which the Prince of Wales enjoyed the sport of duck-shooting one morning while he stood at Holkham. The sea beach, which is here very fine, firm, and elastic, lies at a short distance from the mansion, and offers in summer an agreeable promenade. The house itself is a fine building, commenced in 1722, and finished by the late Earl. Its two fronts are each 344 ft. in length, with a Corinthian portico. The picture-gallery contains many valuable works, particularly some of Claudes; and there is a gallery of statues, besides a good library and a collection of manuscripts. The entrance hall, hall-room, and other principal apartments were described by us last week. The village of Holkham has a population of about 700, to whom the limestone quarries and the manufacture of bricks and tiles of Petercan afford employment.

BIRTHS.

On the 19th inst., at Belsay, Northumberland, the Lady Decies of a son and heir.

On the 19th ult., at Richmond Park, St. Andrews, Jamaica, the wife of Frederic Sullivan, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 19th inst., at the residence of her father, Peter Mare, Esq., 12, Portland-place, the wife of William Ireland Blackburne-Maze, Esq., of a son.

At Mocaya House, Hants, the Baroness Mocatta, of a daughter.

At Salisbury, the Hon. Lady Tichborne, prematurely, of a dead male infant.

At Brocklesby Park, the Countess of Yarborough, of a daughter.

MARRIAGES.

On the 14th inst., at St. Mary's, Chester, by the Rev. F. Haden Cope, M.A., Richard Cope, Esq., Custos Rotulorum of Cheshire, to Georgiana Mary Ann Anne, relict of the late W. S. Sands, Esq., of New York, and fourth daughter of the late Joshua Edwards, Esq., of Bryn-y-pys, Flintshire.

At St. George's, Hanover-square, John William, son of General Sir A. Woodford, G.C.B., to Marian Elizabeth, daughter of the Rev. C. Ambler, Rural Dean of Bishop's Hatfield, Herts.

On the 17th inst., at the Brompton Oratory, by the Rev. John Bowden, William H. Howell M'Carthy, Esq., of H.M. Indian Revenue, Bitry, King's County, Ireland, to Mary Pauline, second daughter of the late Capt. Henry Sharp, 23, Redcliff-road, West Brompton. At the same time and church, Francis D. Lemoine, Esq., of H.M. Civil Service, London, to Josephine Amélie, third daughter of the said B. H. Hickey, Esq.

DEATHS.

On the 14th inst., at Colton's-wood, Mitcham, Boyd Miller, Esq., in his 84th year.

On the 2nd inst., at the Camp at Aldershott, Mary Ann, the wife of Mr. Tubman, of the Royal Engineer Department.

At Brighton, Lady Brougham and Vaux, aged 78.

On the 16th inst., at Sussex-place, Regent's Park, the relict of the late Sir A. D. Croft, Bart., aged 63.

At Hendon, Essex, Sir J. S. G. Searle, Bart., of Penrice, Cornwall, aged 71.

At Oxford-terrace, Hyde Park, Georgina, daughter of the late P. Macgregor, Esq.

At Edinburgh, Lady G. Lennox, aged 61.

On the 9th inst., at Melsby House, Lincolnshire, W. T. H. F. Strangways, fourth Earl of Ilchester, aged 79.

On the 17th inst., at Medley, Yorkshire, E. J. Saville, third son of the Hon. and Rev. F. V. Saville, and grandson of the Dowager Countess of Scarborough, aged 18.

On the 23rd of October, at Sydney, Australia, Georgina Augusta, the beloved wife of Gordon Sandeman, Esq., member of the Legislative Assembly of Queensland, and eldest daughter of the Viscount and Viscountess Strangford.

On the 30th ult., at her house at Finchley, Sarah Rew, widow of the late William Hill Rew, Esq., in her 83rd year.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 28.

SUNDAY, Jan. 22.—Third Sunday after Epiphany. Vincent, Spanish deacon and martyr, 304. Meeting of the Royal Academy Banquet, 1815.

MONDAY, 23.—Inauguration of the Royal Exchange, London, by Queen Elizabeth, 1571. Death of Charles, Duke of Richmond, Lennox, and of the Queen, 1820.

TUESDAY, 24.—St. Timothy, martyr, at Ephesus, 97. Birth of Frederick the Great, 1712; and of Chevalier James Fox, 1749.

WEDNESDAY, 25.—Conversion of St. Paul. Birth of Robert Burns, 1759. Marriage of the Princess Royal to Prince Frederick William of Prussia, 1858.

THURSDAY, 26.—St. Polycarp, bishop of Smyrna, martyr. Death of Sydney Jenner, discoverer of vaccination, 1823; of Francis Jeffrey, the first reconnoiterer of the Edinburgh Review, 1850.

FRIDAY, 27.—Battle of Sinvimes: great victory of Philip Augustus of France over the Emperor Otho, 1214. Death of Mozart, 1791.

SATURDAY, 28.—Death of Peter the Great, 1725; of Ambrose, the great naturalist, 1851.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING JANUARY 28, 1865.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.	M. A.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
5 26	6 11	6 56	7 41	8 26	9 11	9 56
5 51	6 36	7 21	8 6	8 51	9 36	10 21

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE NEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 15′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 24 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF				THERMOMETER.			WIND.
	Barometer reduced to 32° and Sea Level.	Dew Point.	Humidity. Complete Saturation = 1000.	Ozone. Complete Saturation = 15.	Maximum in the Sun.	Minimum in the Air.	Mean of the Day.	General Direction.	Mileage.	Mean Velocity in Miles per Hour.
	Inches.	°	°		°	°	°		Miles	Miles
16	29·721	42·1	912	5·2	46·9	39·9	43·0	SSW. S.	1054	43·9
17	29·710	40·8	879	4·4	46·8	42·5	44·5	S. SSW. SW.	548	22·8
18	29·618	42·9	919	5·7	47·2	41·2	44·2	SW. W.	1048	43·7
19	29·670	42·9	939	5·5	47·3	42·0	44·7	SW. W.	659	27·5
20	29·747	42·1	921	5·2	47·0	42·0	44·5	W.	1035	43·1
21	29·975	42·7	975	5·5	47·9	42·9	45·4	W. WNW.	1149	47·9
17	29·789	34·2	29·7	4·5	32·0	30·0	30·6	NW. NW.WNW	149	6·2

* Rain and hailfall snow.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m. :—

Barometer (in inches) corrected | 29·621 | 29·727 | 29·710 | 29·582 | 29·747 | 29·967 | 29·995
Temperature of Air | 42·2° | 40·6° | 35·5° | 42·0° | 38·6° | 35·8° | 37·0°
Dew Point Temperature | 41·0° | 40·0° | 33·0° | 41·0° | 38·0° | 35·0° | 36·0°
Direction and Force of Wind | W. Light. | W. Light. | W. Light. | W. Light. | W. Light. | W. Light. | W. Light.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—Manager, Mr. ROBSON. EDMUND FALCONER and P. S. CHATTERTON.—To-night, and every succeeding evening, MONDAY AND TUESDAY excepted, at 7, the new and YOUNG LAD FROM THE COUNTRY. Principal characters by Messrs. G. Belmore, Paul Bedford, Harry Cox, Fred Vincent, Miss Fanny Josephs, Miss Caroline Parkes, and Miss Lydia Thompson. At 9, the extravaganza of SINDBAD THE SAILOR; or, the Merchant of the Fantoccini on Monday, Wednesday and Saturday of this week. Children and Schools will obtain prices to the Pantomime on Wednesday and Saturday next. Tuesday, 24, Stalls, by Morning Performance only. The GRAND CHRISTMAS GIFT-BOOK, containing the Pantomime, Songs, Scenes, Portraits, &c., is now ready. Tuesday and Saturday, Mornings at 12, Lectures on Physiology, illustrated with many of the amusing experiments of peculiar interest and transformation wonders, are entered by the first of Professors, Mr. Henry Evans, who will introduce his unique Entertainment, entitled Within and Without, which contains many novelties. Open every Morning and Evening for the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane. The general action of the pantomime arranged by Mr. Harry Cox. The scenery painted by Messrs. Grieve, Telbin, and Hodgkinson. Dresses and Music by Miss Lydia Thompson, Miss E. Forester, Miss Hodgetts, Mr. G. Belmore, Tom Matthews, Mr. Finlayson, Mr. Hengtsen, Mr. G. Wotton, and Master Percy Roselle, &c. The Entertainment will be preceded by the laughable farce, entitled Turning a Double Company; Harry Bolton and Mr. G. Leon; Cleaver, Mr. W. A. Brunton; Mr. Bolton, Mr. Fitzjames; Mrs. Bolton, Miss Fanny Josephs; Mrs. Cleaver, Miss Caroline Parkes; and Miss Rosalie, Miss Lydia Thompson. Miss E. Forester, Miss Hodgetts, Mr. G. Belmore, Dancer, and Mabb, Banks, four tears of age, who will introduce her celebrated Infelicitas Dance. Mr. Paul Bedford, Mr. Harry Cox, Mr. Fred Vincent, and Miss Fanny Josephs will conclude the Performance. The Doors are open at half-past Six, and the Entertainment will commence at Seven o'clock precisely. Private Boxes, Dress Circle, Upper Boxes, Pit Stalls, and Gallery, may be secured by Messrs. H. Rebuss and Gosnell. The Music selected and arranged by Mr. J. Barnett. Machinist by Mr. Tarlor and Assistants. Call Effects by Mr. J. Hinkley. Properties by Mr. Stoffman and Assistants. Business by Mr. Harry and Mr. Lewis. Acting Manager, Mr. Falconer.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY to FRIDAY. The Wizard of the North and Miss Anderson in the World of Magic and Sound Sight. No extra charge.

The New Picture Gallery.

In addition to those in the Fine Arts Courts, in variety and beauty unequalled in any other Gallery in the Kingdom, is the Collection of the Paintings, Water-Colour Drawings, Fine and Decorative Fabrics, Bronzes, Enamels, Majolica, Porcelain, Engravings, Engravers, and other popular amusements—Galleries of Models and Ships—Armour—Sculpture—Natural History—Geological Illustrations—Fine Arts—extraordinary Organ—Fine Arts—the unique Aquariums. All these things under the Crystal Palace the sole place for holiday enjoyment.

Attractive, fine Skilling. Children under twelve, Sixpence.

Open for Admission from Ten till Six o'clock.

THE CRYSTAL PALACE—SUMMER IN WINTER. Luminously warm and dry. Lighted up during next Week until Half-past Six.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—This Day (Saturday), at Three, a CONCERT of CHILDREN'S SONGS by the NORTH and MISS ANDERSON, Incidentally, also, the ROPE-TYING TRICK.

On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday, at usual, Admission Half-a-Crown, or by Season Season Tickets. Children, One Shilling. Palace Open at Ten.

NOTE.—A few numbered Stall-and-Table Half-a-Crown each; either Reserved Seats, One Shilling, may be now had at the Palace. Even the few remnants of persons unable to get more than four hundred, it is requisite to make early application.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published with the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1863, it has been re-engraved, and will be

REPUBLISHED EARLY IN FEBRUARY NEXT. Price 6d.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given during this month.

Office, 198, Strand.

POSTAGE OF THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS FOR THIS WEEK, CONSISTING OF SIX DOUBLE SHEETS.

AT HOME

Copies leaving the Office before Two o'clock are forwarded to every circuitous Post through the Post Office; for fifteen days from the date of publication, to all parts of the United Kingdom and the Queen's Dominions in Europe, without any further charge for delivery at the place where they are posted, when they become liable to a postage of one penny each. Copies leaving the Office after Two o'clock are forwarded to the Country Post Letter-bag for delivery in the following morning, but are not liable to the one penny rate of the General Post Office.

Unstamped Publications have Two penny postage-stamps affixed to each.

FOR FOREIGN PARTS.

The impressed stamps in or on covers for supply which are to be sent abroad; these must have postage-stamps affixed to them according to the following rates:—

Prussia—Two Stamps. This paper
Belgium—Two Stamps. This paper
Holland—Two Stamps. This paper
India—Three Stamps. This paper
Italy—Four Stamps. This paper
Malta—Four Stamps. This paper
Norway—Two Stamps. This paper
Portugal—Four Stamps. This paper
Spain—Four Stamps. This paper
Sweden—Two Stamps. This paper
Switzerland—Two Stamps. This paper
United States—Four Stamps
Turkey—Four Stamps. This paper

An edition is printed on this paper especially for foreign postage. The postage of this edition to the United States is Sixpence. Any double in these dates which require, is marked in the above list, the thin paper edition.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JANUARY 21, 1865.

GIVE us—and especially give us where children are concerned—the common sense of the ladies instead of a woman against all the Gradgrinds and M'Chockemchilds in the world. No better contribution to the solution of the vexed question, how to educate the children of the agricultural poor, has been offered for many a month than the simple but well-considered plan that has been propounded by Miss Burdett Coutts. The metropolitan authorities have very properly given her name and her father's to a road through a district which has been greatly benefited by their public deeds while settled at Westminster, partly in memory of him. We much mistake if "the Burdett School" will not be the name by which her own will be preserved in the rural districts for many a year to come. It shall not be our fault if her name is not associated with the plan of which journal is read; and we are undertaking no great task, for those suggestions are so plain and so self-recommendatory that they have but to be read and thought over to ensure their favourable reception.

In the true womanly spirit, Miss Coutts goes at once into the heart of the subject, without a single reference to first principles, or to anything flourish more or less after the model ones. She takes all that for granted. The fact is, that the children of the agricultural districts are not taught, and the questions are—first, why? and next, how to get rid of the why? Again, Miss Coutts takes that fact for granted, and knows it—and a thousand letters from schoolmasters and beadles will not do away with the effect of a single morning's walk though any small place in England. Then, what is the remedy? Not, in most cases, and with a reason cognate to the first of the nineteen given by the governor of a certain fort for not firing a salute in honour of Lord Nelson, "First, we have no guns." In hundreds of very small parishes in England are good schools. In numerous larger parishes the area is so large and the population is so scattered that it is impossible for the children to attend the central school, if there be one. There is the why, and Miss Coutts carries it out without any loss of time, and on the nature of the British agriculturist, who is probably a good deal like other people, and neither the hopelessly ignorant and sullen clown whom he is represented to be by those who prescribe the remedies of the knife for all wants and ignorance, nor the happy peasant of the opera-stage, who sings as he goes to work, and pauses, while lighting his pipe, to listen to the sweet bird-song gushing into the fresh morning air. He would scan his young rustics to a good school, if there were a good school within a little walk; there is none, so they pick up a little learning perhaps from a "dame," who is by no means up to the Gradgrind mark, but more probably they pick up nothing but sticks and bad habits.

Now, as this admirable lady incidentally points out, the state of things is simply absurd with the quantity of "teaching power" which exists in this country, and the very enormous quantity of that faculty desire nothing better than employment. Among women, especially, the teaching power often amounts to actual genius, as many a parent can testify who, having sent his girls to the best schools, has subsequently discovered that his only aground, and gives him the benefit of preparatory training under the eye and heart of a feminine instructor. Miss Coutts shows that nearly all that is needed for the organisation of a useful, unpretending system of teaching for the poor is a resolution on the part of their friends that schools shall be opened. She proposes that in very small parishes, where there are no schools, a committee shall be formed out of each parish, and that, in mine, the members shall arrange for setting up a little school in each. A committee, taken from a single large and scattered parish, is to be formed for the purpose of opening little schools in various parts of it. Each small or subdivisional school may meet in any decent cottage; and Miss Coutts, in order to show that no ostentatious plan is before her, actually recals the idea of the "dame's school" by way of marking the modest character of the scheme. Probably a better room than that of a cottage will be found or erected in most places before the system shall have been long in operation. It is clear that Miss Coutts's wish is that the teacher shall generally be a woman, and we shall not waste words in asserting the wisdom of this view. We see that the experimental instance which she brings forward in proof of the feasibility of the plan, out of a group of teachers only one is a man, the others being young single women, or, observe, "labourers' wives." But here she likewises to the dame's school exact. The children are not to be taught badly, or by rote, or "anyhow." System comes in. The leading idea of the Burdett schools is an "unalterable system and unity." The subsequent is to be literally abroad. A duly qualified master is to work in every school, in succession, one or two days in the week; he is to be responsible to the directors; he is to make reports; and it is through him that through a conduit-pipe from the centre electional watershed, that the stream of knowledge is to be laid on into all the rural reservoirs. Nor is this all. It is proposed that quarterly meetings of the more advanced scholars shall be held at some convenient place (Miss Coutts, with her experience nothing, shows how their means of attendance is to be considered); examinations are to take place; and even the dread official inspector is to be invoked, that he may inform his friends and the public how the system acts. Now that is more simple, and at the same time more complete a plan for dealing with a social problem has not been presented within our recollection; and there is some reason to apprehend that its very simplicity may prove to it some of its merit in the eyes of people who like fuss and complex machinery.

The rich must help, and will gladly do so, towards the support of the schools; but they must not be elecmosynary—the parents must pay a small weekly penny, and feel that they are buying good instruction for their children. This, of course, is part of the system. The question of Government aid must naturally be reserved, while the subject is "under consideration." But we lose no time in bringing Miss Coutts's proposal under the notice of our readers, thousands of whom belong to a class honourably distinguished for its energy in the cause of education, and to the best acknowledgment we can make to Miss Coutts is our promise that all in our power shall be done in recommendation of her kind, enlightened, practical wisdom to the attention of the public.

THE COURT.

THE Queen continues at Osborne, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and Princess Margaret d'Orleans, drove out. Princess Helena and Princess Margaret afterwards visited by the Princess Louise, rode out. Princess Beatrice and Princess Blanche d'Orleans drove to Whippingham.

On Thursday west the Queen, attended by Lady Churchill, walked and drove in the grounds at Osborne. Princess Helena drove.

Yesterday week the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds at Osborne. Princess Margaret, attended by Lady Churchill, drove out. Princess Margaret and Princess Blanche d'Orleans took leave of her Majesty and left Osborne for Cowes on board the Royal Highness, attended by Mdme. Bodisco and Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell, crossed the Solent, in the Royal yacht Alberta, and subsequently proceeded through the Isle of Wight and Western Railway. The Duke of Somerset arrived at Osborne, and had an audience of her Majesty.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds at Osborne. The Duke of Somerset left Osborne for London.

On Sunday the Queen, Princess Louise, and Prince Leopold attended Divine service, performed at Osborne by the Rev. G. Prothero. Princess Beatrice attended Divine service at Whippingham Church. In the afternoon Princess Helena and Princess Louise attended Divine service at Whippingham Church.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked and drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne. Princess Louise walked out.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena, walked in the grounds at Osborne. Later in the day her Majesty drove out. Princess Louise took a drive. Major-General Lord William Paulet, commanding the south-western district, arrived at Osborne from Portsmouth, and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Wednesday the Queen, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Colonel the Hon. A. Liddell, drove in the neighbourhood of Osborne. Princess Helena, attended by Lady Churchill, also rode out. Princess Louise walked in the grounds of Osborne.

The Court is expected to leave Osborne and return to Windsor Castle on Monday next, the 23rd inst., on the anniversary of the Queen's wedding-day.

The Queen has been graciously pleased to confer the Order of the Garter upon Earl Spencer.

The Queen has been pleased to appoint Susanna Stephania Duchess of Roxburghe to be one of the Ladies of the Bedchamber in Ordinary to her Majesty, in the room of Georgiana Augusta Countess Dowager of Mount-Edgcumbe, resigned.

The Queen has been pleased to appoint Caroline Augusta Countess Nowagrocka of Rothes to be an Extra Lady of the Bedchamber to her Majesty.

The Queen was graciously pleased to present to Dr. Cass, of Cowes, on New-Year's Day, through the hands of Sir Charles B. Phipps, a magnificent diamond ring, as a memorial from her Majesty of her Majesty's appreciation of his skill and attention during the many months he attended in his professional capacity at Osborne. Dr. Cass had been one of the medical attendants upon the Royal family at Osborne for nearly thirty years.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

On Tuesday week the Prince of Wales, accompanied by Viscount Hamilton, Colonel the Hon. F. Fielding, Mr. H. Woodward, and Mr. Arthur Helps, and attended by Captain Grey, passed the day shooting game at the Sandringham estate. The Princess of Wales, accompanied by the Duchess of Cambridge, drove out.

On Wednesday the Prince, accompanied by Viscount Hamilton, Colonel the Hon. F. Fielding, Colonel Purves, and Admiral the Hon. Sir H. Keppel, and attended by Captain Grey, joined the train of the Wide Norfolk Hunt at Babingley Bridge, on the Royal estate. The "field" was large, and some good runs were obtained.

Yesterday week the Prince left Sandringham, en route for Merton Hall, on a visit to Lord Walsingham. His Royal Highness drove to Wolferton station, and proceeded thence at forty-eight minutes past eight, by special train, to King's Lynn. At this station the carriages, containing the Prince and his suite, were attached to the ordinary Parliamentary train, and his Royal Highness continued his journey to Swaffham, arriving at thirty-seven minutes past nine. From Swaffham the Prince proceeded in a carriage and four to Heston Hall, where his Royal Highness arrived at a quarter to eleven. During the Prince's progress through the town of Swaffham he was greeted with the most enthusiastic demonstrations of loyalty by a large concourse of people which filled the streets along the route, as also in the villages of South Pickenham, Ashill, and Laham, through which his Royal Highness passed. At Watton, adjoining the Merton estate, business was entirely suspended and the day observed as a holiday, and the people gave the Prince a truly loyal reception. Upon arriving at Merton Hall his Royal Highness was received by Lord Walsingham, and joined his Lordship and a select circle at breakfast, after which the Prince, accompanied by Lord Walsingham, the Hon. T. De Grey, and Mr. H. Villebois, joined the "meet" of the West Norfolk Hunt at Merton Hall. [We give on page 72 an Engraving of the "meet," accompanied by an account of the day's sport.] In the evening a select circle was invited by the noble Lord to meet the Prince at dinner.

On Saturday last his Royal Highness, accompanied by Lord Walsingham, the Earl of Leicester, the Hon. T. De Grey, &c., shot over the home preserves known as Sturston Carr, Birchwood, and the forest, and capital sport was obtained. The Prince also inspected the celebrated Merton flock, and the fine estate which comprises the whole of Merton, Tottington, Sturston, Stanford, and a part of Thompson. His Royal Highness took leave of Lord Walsingham, and, accompanied by the Hon. T. De Grey and attended by Captain Grey, left Merton Hall at five o'clock in the afternoon and drove to Swaffham. The bells were rung, and at the station a number of people had assembled to witness the Prince's departure. His Royal Highness travelled by special train to King's Lynn, where the engines were changed, and the train proceeded to Wolferton, arriving at thirty-seven minutes past six. The Prince drove thence to Sandringham. Earl Spencer, Lord Suffield, and the Rev. C. Kingsley arrived at Sandringham House on a visit to the Prince and Princess. Viscount Hamilton, Admiral Sir Henry Keppel, Colonel the Hon. B. Fielding Mr. B. Woodward, and Mrs. Helps left Sandringham.

On Sunday the Prince and Princess, the Duchess of Cambridge, Earl Spencer, Lord Suffield, and the Hon. T. De Grey attended Divine service at Sandringham Church. The Rev. G. B. Moxon, B.A., the Rev. Mr. Bailey, and the Rev. C. Kingsley were the officiating clergymen.

On Monday the first public "meet" of the West Norfolk Hunt took place at Sandringham. The principal members of the hunt, to the number of 150, assembled on the lawn at the south front, most of whom partook of refreshment at the house. At eleven o'clock the Prince, accompanied by Earl Spencer, Lord Suffield, Mr. H. Villebois, &c., drove along the avenue of limes, preceded by the hounds. The Princess, accompanied by the Duchess of Cambridge, followed in an open phaeton. The hounds were first put in the Brickkiln cover, and went along to the Sandringham Heights plantation, in neither of which they found; then across the heath to Holly Hill Cover, where a fine fox broke away on the Dersingham side, getting a splendid burst into the open, a division of the pack being well after him. As the fox was running in a line with the plantation another division of the pack came after him, and in a short run reynard was killed. Another fox was found at Paper-mill Cover, and made a good run to Congham, where he was lost. One of the Rising Woods was also drawn. In the Wolferton Wood another fox was started, with which a good run was got.

On Tuesday the Prince, accompanied by his guests, proceeded by special train to Watlington, in order to visit Mr. H. Villebois, at Masham House. The Duchess of Cambridge left Sandringham.

The Prince and Princess and Prince Albert Victor were expected to leave Sandringham House on Thursday for London, and after passing the night at Marlborough House, to proceed yesterday to Osborne, on a visit to the Queen.

The Prince and Princess of Wales displayed their interest in the volunteer movement by ordering tickets to the value of £10 to be forwarded to Sandringham, for the concert given in St. Andrew's Hall, Norwich, on Wednesday week, in aid of the funds of the Norwich Volunteer Rifle Corps.

The Countess of Morton has succeeded the Marchioness of Carmarthen in attendance upon the Princess of Wales.

Her Royal Highness Princess Louis of Hesse is expected to proceed from Darmstadt to Berlin next month, on a visit to the Crown Prince and Crown Princess of Prussia. His Royal Highness Prince Alfred is also expected to arrive at Berlin at the same time, from Bonn, on a visit to the Crown Prince and Crown Princess.

His Royal Highness Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, honoured Her Majesty's Theatre with his presence on Saturday evening last.

Her Royal Highness the Duchess of Cambridge arrived at her Royal Highness's residence, Ambassadors' Court, St. James's Palace, on Tuesday, from visiting the Prince and Princess of Wales, at Sandringham.

Her Royal Highness the Duchess de Chartres gave birth to a daughter yesterday week, at Morgan House, Ham-common. The news was immediately telegraphed to Queen Victoria, at Osborne, and to Queen Amélie, the venerable grandmother of the Duchess.

Their Highnesses the Maharajah and Maharanee Dhuleep Singh have left Claridge's Hotel for Paris, en route for Egypt.

His Excellency the Marquis d'Azeglio left the Italian Legation in Grosvenor-street on Monday on a visit to Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston at Broadlands.

His Excellency the French Ambassador left Albert-gate House on Tuesday on a visit to Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston at Broadlands, Hants.

The Duchess of Somerset and Lady Gwendoline St. Maur arrived at the First Lord's official residence at the Admiralty, Whitehall, on Tuesday from Stover Park, Devon.

Earl Granville arrived at his residence in Bruton-street on Thursday week from Paris.

The Earl of Coventry has returned to town from Croome Hall, Worcestershire.

The Count and Countess de Jaucourt have joined the company visiting Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston at Broadlands.

Viscount Palmerston arrived in town on Thursday from Broadlands, to attend the Cabinet Council.

Lord Stanley of Alderley arrived at his residence in Dover-street on Wednesday from Alderley Park, Cheshire.

The Right Hon. the Chancellor of the Exchequer arrived in town on Wednesday from Hawarden Castle, Flintshire.

The Lords of the Admiralty have given directions for a survey to be made of the whole of the vessels composing the Anglo-Chinese squadron in the Medway, in order to ascertain the value of each vessel.

The members for Birmingham addressed their constituents on Wednesday evening. The Townhall, where the meeting was held, was densely crowded; and both the hon. gentlemen met with an enthusiastic reception. Mr. Scholefield briefly spoke, expressing his desire that the country should be prepared for war in case a quarrel should unfortunately arise. He reserved to himself the right of determining how he would vote should the question of the recognition of the South arise in Parliament. As to Reform, he advised that any measure which extended the suffrage and amended the distribution of seats should be accepted. Mr. Bright reviewed the proceedings of the last Session, and contended that it would have been wicked for us to have interfered in the Dano-German quarrel. He stated that the House of Commons, by its division on the vote of censure, had adopted the views which he and Mr. Cobden had long held, and had killed off the intervention superstitions of Lords Palmerston and Russell. The hon. gentleman touched on several other topics.

The annual meeting of the friends and supporters of St. John's Foundation Schools, for the free education, with board and lodging, of the sons of poor clergyman belonging to the Church of England, was held on Monday at the office, St. Helen's-place, Bishopsgate—Mr. W. Cotton in the chair. The report spoke in favourable terms of the progress of the institution, and the great advantages it had conferred upon numbers of the poor hard-working clergy. During the past year ten boys had been elected and one admitted by purchase, and nine boys had left, making the number now in the school sixty-one, all in good health, and making satisfactory progress in education. The anniversary dinner in April last had realised £1936, after payment of all expenses; and two legacies had been received during the year—one of £200, from Miss Hutcheson; and one of £100, from D. E. Smith. During the past year also 171 new subscribers (£208) and 272 new donors (£1315) had been obtained. The sum of £365 had been expended in providing a new school-room. The total income for the year had been £4625; and the expenditure, including £1200 invested, £4458. The invested stock is now £6403.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

A fire took place at the Coal Exchange on Wednesday, but was extinguished without doing serious damage.

The paper to be read at the evening meeting of the Royal Geographical Society on Monday next is, "Exploration of the North Pole," by Captain Sherard Osborn.

On Monday night the distribution of prizes in connection with the North London Working Classes Industrial Exhibition took place at Exeter Hall, when the Earl of Shaftesbury presented to every exhibitor a memorial volume and certificate of such prize as the judges had awarded.

On Tuesday the Earl of Shaftesbury presided at a breakfast at Radley's Hotel, Blackfriars, at which £3000 was presented to Dr. Campbell, the editor of the British Banner, for his successful conduct of two "Nonconformist and Evangelical" magazines. The testimonial was presented to Dr. Campbell on the occasion of his entering on his seventieth year.

We are informed that the committee who, at Earl Spencer's instance, were appointed to consider the provisions of the Wimbledon Common bill have presented their report to his Lordship. The report contains recommendations intended to remove objections suggested by certain of the clauses in the bill, and it is now under the consideration of his Lordship and his advisers.

The session of the Royal United Service Institution for the year 1865 began on Monday night, and was numerously attended. The chair was taken by the Duke of Somerset. Captain Selwyn read a paper "On the Superiority of Petroleum Oil as a power to propel Ships over the present system of using Coals." Mr. Richardson elucidated the lecture by several interesting experiments, showing how gas could be generated from petroleum oil, and the various stages through which it went in the hands of an engineer on board ship. A discussion took place, in which engineers and chemists had their respective theories; but the majority were in favour of the invention.

A Court of Aldermen was held on Tuesday, at which the report of a committee on the subject of sworn brokers in the City was brought up. The committee stated that they had not yet finished their inquiries on all the matters intrusted to them; but in the mean time they recommended that the fees paid by sworn brokers, which at present swelled their annual payment of £5 up to £13 13s., should be reduced to the uniform sum of 5s., thus making the total payment £5 5s. Some other recommendations relaxing the stringency of the rules with regard to brokers were recommended, and, unanimously adopted by the Court.

The bicentenary of the incorporated charity schools of the Spanish and Portuguese Jewish congregations was celebrated on Wednesday evening at the London Tavern by a dinner. These schools, poetically named the Gates of Hope, have branched from the Hebrew College, the Tree of Life, and in connection with them is an hospital for sick poor, and lying-in women, as well as an asylum for the aged. Mr. Nathaniel Montefiore, president of the institution, occupied the post of chairman. Donations announced by the treasurer amounted to about £1200, including the gift of £100 from Sir Moses Montefiore, Bart., "in memory of his beloved wife Judith, Lady Montefiore."

A deputation waited upon the President of the Board of Trade, on Tuesday, in reference to obtaining protection from piracy for the inventions of working men which are shown at working men's industrial exhibitions. It was explained that men who desired to exhibit their inventions were deterred from doing so by the fact that those inventions were liable to be pirated. The men were unable to pay patent fees, and they had therefore no protection. It was suggested that an Act similar to that which had been passed in reference to inventions shown at the International Exhibition should be made applicable to the industrial exhibitions. Mr. Gibson promised that the matter should have his most careful consideration, and he hoped something would be done to meet the views of the deputation.

Last week the births of 2002 children—1035 boys and 967 girls—were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1855-64 the average number (corrected) was 2013.——In the week that ended on Saturday, 1669 deaths were registered in London. In the corresponding weeks of ten years, 1855-64, the average number of deaths is, with a correction for increase of population, 1653. Zymotic diseases, in the aggregate, destroyed 359 lives. Sixteen deaths were caused by smallpox, 48 by measles, 55 by scarlatina, 77 by typhus, and 73 by whooping-cough. From diseases of the respiratory organs (exclusive of phthisis) 428 persons died; of this number bronchitis carried off 267 persons, pneumonia 99, and asthma 25. 161 deaths occurred from phthisis, 70 from diseases of the heart, and 189 from diseases of the brain and nervous system. 738 persons died under twenty years of age, 222 were twenty and under forty, 290 were forty and under sixty, 358 were 60 and under eighty, and 61 were eighty years and upwards. The deaths of nine nonagenarians were recorded, the oldest of whom was a widow, who attained the age of ninety-four years. Sixty-five persons lost their lives by accidents, 23 died from fractures or contusions (of this number 6 were killed by vehicles in the street), 11 infants and 1 adult were suffocated, and 13 deaths ensued from burns or scalds.

LAW AND POLICE.—The outlawry of the Hon. Richard Bethell has been countermanded, the action, which was for a large sum of money, having been settled.

In Vice-Chancellor Stuart's Court, on Saturday, Miss Mary Louisa Walford, a minor, appeared as a plaintiff against the Rev. J. D. Gray, of Abbotsley, and others, as executors of her grandfather, Mr. John Gray, of Clifton, asking the Court to make that gentleman's estate responsible for a third share in her grandmother's marriage settlement, which Mr. Gray had held out, inter alia, as part of her (the plaintiff's) mother's fortune, at the time of her marriage, his solicitor, Mr. Brice, also assuring her father that neither Mr. nor Mrs. Gray proposed to exercise their powers of appointment in her disfavour. The Vice-Chancellor, without hesitation, pronounced in favour of the plaintiff's claim, ruling that the estate must make good all the promises on the faith of which the plaintiff's father, the Rev. Edward Walford, married Miss Gray. The defendants were also ordered to pay the costs of the suit.

A prosecution at the Middlesex Sessions on Monday shows great looseness of dealing on the part of pawnbrokers. One John Wright was indicted for stealing a bracelet, value £50, the property of Lady Honoria Cadogan, in her dwelling-house, and pleaded guilty. The prisoner had taken the bracelet while employed in taking an inventory of the goods, which, under the will of the late Earl, were ordered to be sold. Soon after being missed, it was found to have been sold to Mr. Richard Attenborough, of Piccadilly, for ten guineas by the prisoner, who said he had bought it some days before for fifteen guineas. The bracelet was a present to the Cadogan family by Charles II.; great interest was attached to it and its fate was eagerly followed up. It was found that immediately it was sold at Attenborough's the stones in it had been taken out and the bracelet had been sent to another pawnbroker's, also living in Piccadilly. The gold was eventually traced to a house in Binfield-street, Hoxton, where it was found on the hob of a stove, and, but for the fact of its being Christmas time and the men not being at work, it would most probably have been melted down. The stones, four diamonds and a sapphire, were sold for £18. Having heard the case, the Assistant Judge called for some one from Attenborough's. An assistant appeared. The Assistant Judge: Did you buy this bracelet? Witness: I did.—Are you in the habit of dealing in these things? Oh, yes!—Did you know the prisoner at the time? No; he was a perfect stranger.—Then, do you think it right to buy articles like this from a perfect stranger? He gave the name of his employer.—And you made no inquiries to ascertain whether he told you the truth or not? No, I did not.—Is it your habit to buy these things of strangers? Yes, we buy these things daily, whether they are strangers or not.—And you break them up within forty-eight hours? Yes, if the things are old-fashioned we break them up at once. We make that a matter of principle.—And especially so if you buy them of strangers? If it had not been for the information we gave they would never have obtained the articles at all.—The Assistant Judge: If you had not given the information you would have been now standing in the dock instead of the prisoner. I regret I have no further power of dealing with you than to disallow your expenses. The prisoner will be brought up next Sessions to receive the sentence of the Court.

A daring burglary was committed at the residence of Mr. Bodkin, the Assistant Judge, at Highgate, on Sunday morning. The police on the beat had their suspicions excited, and on going to the house they alarmed the thieves, who attempted to make their escape. A desperate attack was made on the police, but two of the burglars were apprehended.

Joseph Wakefield Terry and Thomas Burch, the manager and secretary of the Unity Bank, have been committed for trial, at the Central Criminal Court, on the charges made against them of leading the public to believe that the Bank was in a sound and flourishing condition when it was in fact insolvent. The Lord Mayor admitted them to bail—themselves in £2000 each and two sureties each in £1000 respectively.

An inquest was held at Wapping on the death of a child of Catherine Connor, the Roman Catholic wife of a Protestant labourer. She had been delivered of three children, two of them alive; and, in her haste to have them baptised in her own Church before her husband could interfere, she immediately sent the latter off to a Roman Catholic chapel, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather and the dissuasions of her nurse. On arriving at the chapel one of the children was found to be dead from exposure, and a verdict to that effect was returned. The husband, in the course of his examination, said that had he been at home he should not have allowed the children to be taken.

Captain Peter Suther Corbett was on Wednesday brought before Sir Thomas Henry, at Bow-street Police Office, on the charge of enlisting seamen to serve on board the Shenandoah, and, some evidence having been adduced, he was committed for trial.

The affairs of Messrs. J. and T. H. Gladstone, whose failure caused considerable excitement in the City a few months ago, were brought before Mr. Commissioner Goulburn, in the Bankruptcy Court, on Wednesday. Only one of the bankrupts was present—the son, Mr. T. H. Gladstone, never having surrendered. The statement of the bankrupts' affairs had not been prepared, time enough for the purpose, had not been allowed, and an adjournment for the purpose was agreed to till the 8th of May next. It is said that the liabilities exceed £600,000, and that the assets will yield scarcely a shilling in the pound.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

We have to announce the death of the Ven. Charles James Hoare, M.A., successively Archdeacon of Winchester and Surrey, and for the last twenty-four years a Canon Residentiary of Winchester Cathedral.

The Bishop of Columbia, accompanied by Mrs. Hills, sailed, on Tuesday afternoon, in the West India mail steam-ship the Shannon, from Southampton, en route to his distant diocese.

The Rev. Augustus Adams, on resigning the curacy of St. Nicholas, Rochester, has been presented by the parishioners and by the teachers and scholars of the Sunday and day schools with some elegant gifts in token of their respect and affection.

The new Church of All Saints, Leyton, Essex, was consecrated on Wednesday, by the Bishop of London. The church, which has been erected to supply the wants of an outlying part of the parish, will remain for some time as a chapel of ease to the mother church.

Last Saturday the Rev. Lord Sidney Godolphin Osborne (known to many as an occasional writer in the Times under the initials of "S. G. O.") delivered a lecture in the temporary church of St. Michael, St. Leonard's-road, Bromley-by-Bow—the extreme east of London—to the working men who attend the evening schools in that district.

The Bishop of Durham has followed the example of the Bishop of London, and has established a church-building fund. He has contributed £2000 towards it, and, although no canvas has yet been made, about £5000 has been raised. One gentleman has promised to contribute a fortieth part of whatever sum is raised.

At the annual meeting of the Diocesan Board of Education, on Tuesday, at Worcester—the Bishop in the chair—Sir John Pakington made a speech and moved a resolution in favour of the celebrated "Conscience Clause." He was supported by Archdeacon Sandford, the Rev. W. Lea, the Rev. D. Melville, and others. The opposition was led by Lord Lyttelton, supported by Lord Redesdale, the Hon. F. Lygon, and the Rev. H. A. Woodgate. On a division the motion was rejected by 49 to 16.

The Incorporated Society for Promoting the Enlargement, Building, and Repairing of Churches and Chapels held its usual monthly meeting, on Monday, at the society's house, Whitehall—the Earl of Romney in the chair. Grants of money, amounting to £630, were made in aid of the following objects:—Building churches at St. David's, Carmarthen, and New Ferry, in the parish of Bebington, near Birkenhead. Rebuilding the churches at Forden, near Welshpool; Lesnewth, near Boscastle; and Wribbenhall, in the parish of Kidderminster. Enlarging or otherwise increasing the accommodation in the churches at Drayton-Parslow, near Bletchley, and Penrhos-Llygwy, near Amlwch. Grants from the special fund were also made in aid of building school-chapels at Somerset-bridge, in the parish of North Moorgreen, near Bridgwater; and at Spalding, in the parish of West Pinchbeck, Lincoln. The society likewise accepted the following repair funds:—Holy Trinity, Barnstaple; Rawtenstall, and St. Saviour's, Bacup, in the county of Lancaster. If the society had been able to continue the rate of grants given this time last year, at least £1660 would have been promised on this occasion. £2390 was ordered to be paid for works completed, and the following donations were reported since the last meeting:—The Marquis of Exeter, £200; O. Wigram, Esq., £50; Miss Salt, £21; F C. Hyde, Esq., £10; Mr. E. Wigram, £5; and a legacy of £2000 from the late Mr. John Farnell, of Isleworth.

THE GALE.

OUR country was visited by a gale, which at times swelled into a hurricane, on Friday night and Saturday last. Many lives were lost and much property was destroyed. From nearly all our ports we have intelligence of disaster and shipwreck. There were several wrecks in the Channel, and in some cases all hands perished. As usual in these times of peril by water, life-boats were promptly manned, and life risked—in two instances unhappily lost—in the cause of humanity. The gale was felt in its fury also on the French coast, and both in France and Germany the telegraphic service was for a while interrupted by damage done to the wires.

In London, on Saturday morning, a tall chimney, at the works of Pontifex and Co., Plumtree-court, Shoe-lane, was blown down, and in its fall destroyed a lodging-house, which contained thirty or forty persons, six of whom were severely injured. There were two others—one at Wandsworth, by the falling of a wall, and another at Kingsland, where a house in course of construction was blown down. In the latter case a man named Treems was knocked down, and sustained a scalp wound. In various parts of the metropolis injury was occasioned by the falling of chimney stacks and pots, and the parks were also damaged.

Of the cases of havoc caused by the storm, a double disaster at the mouth of the Mersey is the most distressing. At noon on Saturday, in the height of the gale, a fine new ship, the Leila, intended for a blockade-runner, left the Mersey on her outward voyage. She got as far as the north-west light-ship when she was struck by so tremendous a sea that she sank. Of her crew of thirty hands eighteen were drowned, but twelve succeeded in getting on board the light-ship. The intelligence of the catastrophe was brought to Liverpool by a steam-tug, which, in passing the light-ship, had been hailed by the master, but which could not render any assistance; and presently the Liverpool life-boat, manned by eleven men, went off in tow of the tug to bring back the survivors of the Leila's crew. Before half the distance, however, had been traversed, the life-boat was struck by a sea which capsized her and threw the whole of her crew into the water. Of these, four only could be rescued, so that seven lives were added to those already sacrificed. The life-belts prescribed by the regulations of the service were not worn. This boat was not a self-righting one, and was not connected with the National Life-boat Institution. The twelve survivors from the wreck of the Lelia were ultimately taken from the light-ship and landed at Liverpool.

The National Institution's life-boat at Holyhead, manned by fifteen men, went out on Saturday to the assistance of the schooner Henry Holman, of Plymouth. Four of the life-boat crew were put on board the vessel, and they succeeded in taking her and her crew of eight men to a place of safety. As the life-boat was returning to the shore thus short-handed the gale increased to a hurricane and broke the clamp of her mainmast, which caused the mast to hang over to leeward and the boat to fall off to leeward, when the boat upset from the joint action of the tremendous wind and sea. The life-boat instantly self-righted, and brought back with her six of her gallant crew; five others were left in the surf. Four of them were picked up, at great risk, by a steam-tug; but the fifth man perished from exhaustion.

On the same day the Rosslaw life-boat, belonging to the National Life-boat Institution, rescued the crew of four men and a pilot from the schooner Thomas, of Liverpool, which was on the Doggerbank. The surf was so fearful on the bank that the life-boat had to wait an hour for an opportunity to approach the wreck, and the rescue was then accomplished in a most gallant style.

From Portsmouth and the Isle of Wight the reports all speak of the extreme violence of the gale, and several small vessels were wrecked; but the loss of life appears to have been small, thanks to the activity and zeal of life-boats. Here the warning drum of Admiral Fitzroy was exhibited on Wednesday, which may account for the damage to shipping not being greater.

At Chatham, her Majesty's ship Terrible was blown from her moorings.

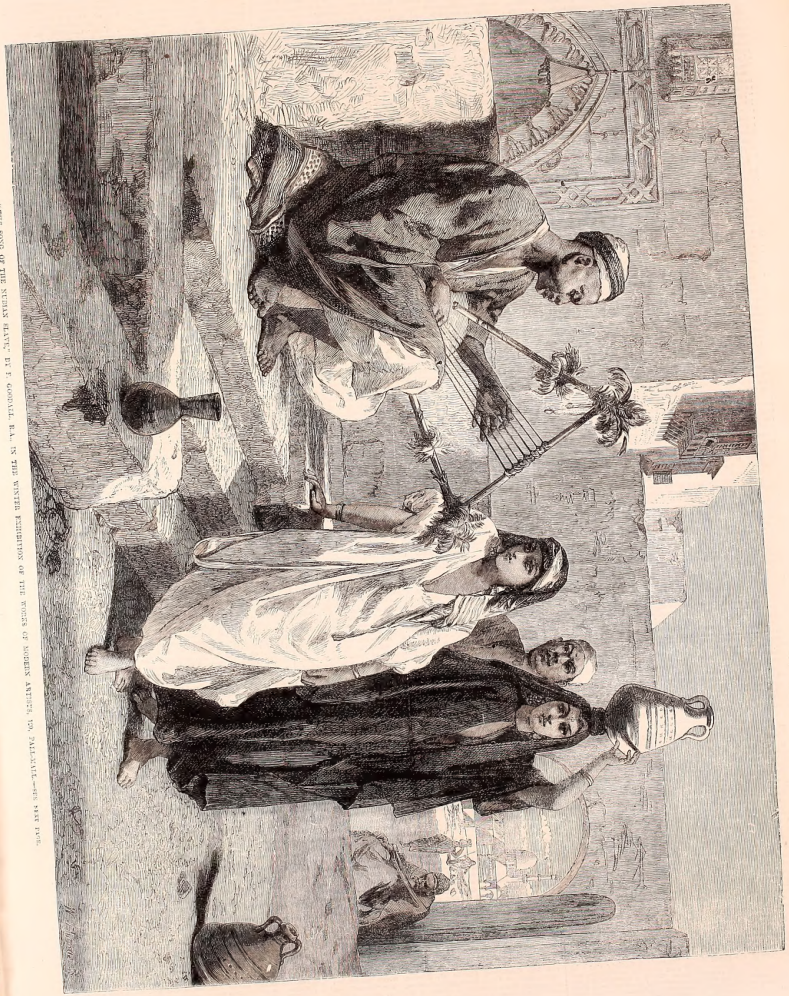
On Thursday, when the signal was hoisted at Plymouth, the weather was comparatively fine; but by midnight on Friday the wind blew furiously, accompanied with thunder and lightning. One of the ponderous gates at the entrance to Keyham Steamyard was thrown down and smashed. A man-of-war pinnace and several barges and fishing-boats were wrecked.

At St. Ives, the Henrietta, of that port, was lost, with all hands.

On Saturday morning a vessel was seen at anchor under Carrick Gloose, inside the Brisons (Rocks), off the parish of St. Just, Land's End. At three o'clock she went on the rocks and was instantly dashed in pieces. The sea was breaking in tremendous waves all round the coast. Nothing had been seen of the crew, nor had any bodies been picked up.

In common with the whole of the western district, Swansea was visited by the gale on Saturday, and about half-past five in the morning a high chimney, at the Spelter works, Landore, was blown down, killing one man and severely injuring two or three other persons.

The gale began on Friday night in Scotland. The Banffshire Journal reports considerable destruction of property and two cases of loss of life. At Cromarty three ships drove ashore, and large trees were snapped in two. The Northern Ensign mentions the death of a carrier near Wick, owing to his cart being blown over and falling on him. At Ord Mrs. Macdonald, of West Helmsdale, was returning from a visit to Mrs. Manson, of Berriedale, when the carriage stuck fast in the snow. As she had only about four miles to go, she proceeded on foot, in spite of the coachman's advice that she would return. Soon afterwards her body was found reclining against the southern parapet wall of the Ord, only about one hundred yards from the spot where she and the coachman had parted. At Thurso the mail-coach was upset, but only the driver slightly injured.



The French coast, as we have stated, suffered considerably during the storm. A fine Russian barque, called the Ilma, Captain Gronland, bound to Antwerp from Almeira, with a cargo of zinc ore, was cast on the rocks at Merle Mont, a few miles to the westward of Boulogne, and soon went to pieces, and out of a crew of eleven only two were saved. Another fatal loss took place in the vicinity of Boulogne during the height of the gale on Saturday morning. The brig True Blue, Captain Muir, bound to London from Mostaganem, was making her way up Channel for the Thames, when she was stranded on the French coast near the above port. The captain and crew were advised to reach the shore in the boat, and had nearly succeeded in doing so when they struck upon a small reef of rock, and the captain and six men were drowned, the mate and cook being saved.

The ship Powerful, with a large cargo of East India produce, on her way from Calcutta to London, foundered off Guernsey, and it is feared that every person on board perished.

The ship Ellen Sophia, under command of Captain Birkett, bound from Demerara to Liverpool, was totally lost off Dingle Head, near Cork, early on Sunday morning. When last seen the Ellen Sophia was scudding before the wind, and had signals of distress flying. She was evidently endeavouring to enter Smerwick Harbour, but, missing stays, she ran full on to the rocks near Dingle, and went down almost immediately. Not a soul on board, so far as can be learned, has been saved.

THE WAR IN AMERICA: SKIRMISHERS OF MOSBY'S MEN IN THE PASS OF THE BLUE RIDGE, SHENANDOAH VALLEY.—FROM A SKETCH BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.—SEE PAGE 65.

"THE SONG OF THE NUBIAN SLAVE," BY F. GOODALL, R.A., IN THE WINTER EXHIBITION OF THE WORKS OF MODERN ARTISTS, NO. PALL-MALL.—SEE PAGE [illegible].

"THE SONG OF THE NUBIAN SLAVE."

A winter spent in Egypt in 1858-9, on account, we believe, of delicate health, seems to have entirely diverted the tastes of the painter of the picture we have engraved on p. 57. From settling, as he appeared disposed to do—notwithstanding his early Britanny subjects and a memorable Italian representation—into one of the most homely of our painters of English life, Mr. Goodall has, since that journey, joined the band of eminent artists who, smitten with the picturesqueness of the life and costumes of the East, have resolved to perpetuate them ere they shall be replaced by "Frankish" manners and their inevitable accompaniments—the chimneypot-hat, tail-coat, and close continuations; the bonnet, crinoline, et hoc genus omne. Whoever had the pleasure to see the portfolio of sketches which Mr. Goodall brought back as the fruits of his Oriental studies (and they were exhibited at the time in some of the principal artistic conversazioni) will well remember not only his astonishment at the evidences of the artist's industry, but also the delight afforded by their extremely rare excellence as sketches. From the rich treasury of observation then accumulated the painter has since drawn for the subjects of those works which, year by year, have been among the chief attractions of the Academy exhibitions, such, for instance, as the "Early Morning in the Wilderness of Shur," "The First-born" (which we afterwards engraved from the International Exhibition), "The Return of a Pilgrim from Mecca," "The Palm Offering," "The Messenger from Sinai at the Wells of Moses," and the picture the title of which is at the head of these remarks. This picture, in the last exhibition at Trafalgar-square, was Mr. Goodall's "diploma" work, deposited, on the close of the annual display, according to custom, upon an artist's election as full R.A., in the collection belonging to the Academy of examples of the Royal Academicians since Sir Joshua Reynolds. The picture actually engraved is a somewhat reduced replica of this diploma work.

The scene here depicted is in a suburb of Cairo, looking towards the tombs of the Mamelukes, and the females listening are supposed to have come from the well at the citadel, called "Joseph's Well." The first thing which strikes the spectator in this picture is, how admirably the painter has rendered the effect of that scorching, glaring, all-pervading white light, which, aggravated by the vapour from the frequent watering, causes the frightful prevalence of ophthalmia. According to Sir Gardner Wilkinson, one out of every six of the inhabitants of Cairo is either blind or has some complaint of the eyes! How the light saturates the atmosphere, and percolates, as it were, into every recess! How it blanches the walls and calcines the earth! How it seems to fuse everything to a white heat, except human flesh, which it scorches into blackness! The kind of subject here represented is one common enough in the Egyptian capital, the grand Cairo of the Caliphs—that most intensely Oriental of Eastern towns, the city of four hundred mosques and minarets—"the superb, the holy city, the delight of the imagination, greatest among the great, whose splendour and opulence made the prophet smile." Happily, however, the slave-market or bazaar is no longer one of the sights of Cairo, and the slave trade, which was chiefly fed from Nubia and Abyssinia, has been abolished in Egypt by Saïd Pacha; yet those who possessed slaves are allowed to keep them in their service. But it seems that none owes this poor Nubian, "slave" though he is still called, and he is left to beg precarious bread or simple rice, singing to his harp. This particular harper was, we are informed, a well-known character in the streets of Cairo at the time Mr. Goodall was there. His extraordinary-looking instrument, decorated with ostrich-feathers, had a much finer tone than anyone would imagine from its appearance: its six strings, strained from the cross-bar, pass over a drum (which is only partially seen in the picture), and are tuned in a very simple manner. It, however, was only used as an accompaniment to his voice, which was of the most plaintive description and suggested much sentiment, even to those unable to understand a word he uttered. Who shall tell the bitter-sweet feelings poured forth in the plaintive "song"—perchance of his own native home—by the hapless slave. Of other solace to his condition there seems little chance from his present audience. Young Copt and Fellah water-carriers may well be not much richer than this poor beggar. Were he one of the story-tellers who, with great animation, relate the tales of the Thousand-and-One Nights, or other of the numerous stories for which the Arabs have been always famed, he would probably have many listeners—certainly through the month of Ramadan. However, though his audience, from the fact of their being unveiled, certainly belong to the lower orders, yet there are degrees among the women who may be seen with the familiar goollehs or water-bottles in Egypt. We should remember that there is not a woman on the banks of the Nile who, from the time at which she is first able to carry a pitcher on her head or bear one in her hand, does not daily replenish it in the sacred and venerable river. We say "sacred" river because to the Egyptian of to-day, as to his forefathers of three thousand years ago, the Nile is still a sort of divinity. And we may add, by way of conclusion to our gossip anent this fine picture, and in the words of an Oriental traveller, that "among the Egyptians the attachment is less to the soil than to the river. They speak of their Nile with the intensity of personal affection—it is their daily benefactor; to it they owe their wealth, great and small—the verdure of their fields, their food, their drink, their clothing—for it produces the vegetables and the fish they eat; it gives the water with which they quench their thirst and cook their victuals; it causes the cotton-tree to grow, of which they make their garments; it supplies their flocks and herds. I remember travelling to the Bahr el Yeressouff, and, having alighted, I gave my horse to a poor Fellah woman, when, on remounting, I put a small coin into her hand, she said, 'May Allah bless thee as he blessed the course of the Nile!' A hundred times I have been told in Egypt: 'You will return hither; no one ever drank the waters of the Nile without being irresistibly impelled to drink them again.' And the water, though not clean, is delicious and healthful. The Egyptian Levantines have a saying that 'What champagne is to other wines is the Nile to other waters.' And there is also an Arabian proverb:—'Had Mohammed drunk the waters of the Nile he would have stayed on earth, and not have allowed himself to be conveyed to Paradise.'"

The Brazilian mail has brought the news that Paraguay had declared war against Brazil.

Mr. Phelps, yesterday week, kindly lent his services to the entertainment of the patients of Bethlehem Hospital. He read a selection from the "First Part of Henry IV." to an audience of about 200 of the inmates of that institution, in their handsome ball-room, which had been tastefully arranged for the occasion.

Major Hidayet Effendi, lately dispatched to Rodosto to superintend the colonisation of 300 Circassian families, has returned from his mission, having established, at twelve leagues from Rodosto, a new village for the reception of the colonists, in a plain traversed by two rivers. It is expected that the cultivation of tobacco, for which the province of Rodosto was formerly famous, will be revived by the Circassians.

A wild boar, weighing 360 pounds, was killed a few days back by a labourer engaged in breaking stones on the road near Aumale (Seine-Inférieure). The animal issued from a neighbouring forest and attacked the man, who felled it to the ground by a blow on the head with his heavy hammer. The animal returned to the assault, but was finally dispatched by repeated blows.

A letter from the city of Mexico, in the Moniteur, says:—"The cultivation of cotton, which is already rather extensive in the departments of Vera Cruz and Oajaca, and in the territory of Colima, is giving excellent results on other points in the neighbourhood of this city. Thus, at Celaya a magnificent crop of a sort as fine as that of the United States has just been obtained."

The Admiralty have received despatches communicating the news of the destruction of H.M.S. Bombay by fire, at Montevideo, on the 22nd ult. The Bombay was a line-of-battle ship and the flagship of Admiral Elliot, on the South American station. She left England in May last year. No particulars of the catastrophe have been received, but we regret to learn that the Assistant Surgeon and about ninety-three of the ship's crew are supposed to have perished.

A meeting of the Royal Naval Benevolent Society was held on Monday, at Willis's Rooms—Admiral Lord Colchester in the chair, supported by a large number of naval officers. The total income of the year amounted to £3841, and the expenditure, including the purchase of £1400 Exchequer Bills, to £3188. The stock invested was £36,914 in Three per Cents, and £1400 in Exchequer Bills. The sum of £565 was voted in grants to deserving applicants from the families of deceased officers.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

The editor of "Debrett's Peerage and Baronetage" writes to the Times to say that there is no foundation in the report of Alfred Tennyson being about to be made a baronet. He bases his denial on a letter from the poet himself. So the sanguinolent hand is not (for the present, at least) to glow in the escocheon of the greatest poet of the age. Seldom would an honour so well deserved have been so gracefully bestowed; never, indeed, since George IV. made Walter Scott a Baronet. Sir Robert Peel, it is true, offered to procure a like honour for Robert Southey; but the then Laureate was not rich enough to accept it; and Southey's political conversion had been (to say the least) so very "thorough," that a good deal of ill-feeling might have arisen on his elevation to a baronetcy among that class of his countrymen who remembered that the author of the "Vision of Judgment" and the "Book of the Church" was likewise the author of "Wat Tyler" and "Joan of Arc." But Alfred Tennyson has, happily, good store of the world's gear, and has no politics save those of a gentleman. He is the lord of a manor; he has his (commuted) butt of Laureate sherry; he has his pension; and his relations with the eminent house of Moxon must be of an annually satisfactory nature. Let us still indulge in the hope that ere long we shall be enabled to greet Sir Alfred Tennyson, Bart.!

Would the artists have been jealous? No, we think not. Artists are never jealous; they never hate, never cherish a grudge against anybody—save, perhaps, the art-critics, whom, we unfeignedly believe, they would like to boil in megilp and copal varnish, if they could. There was some talk, when Thomas Babington Macaulay was made a Baron, of a Lord Landseer—the peerage to be a life one—but the project fell through. We hope soon to hear of Sir William Powell Frith, and should be much gratified if the rank bestowed on him turned out to be a baronetcy instead of a knighthood. But let the artists take comfort in the records of the past. Was there not once a Sir Nathaniel Dance Holland, Bart., a professional miniature-painter? and a Sir Charles Bunbury, Bart., the contemporary of Rowlandson and Gillray, and a very droll caricaturist? It is true that these gentlemen were "Barts." less on the principle parceque, than quoique they were artists. They succeeded to their rank, and had it not conferred on them.

But the actors? Hélas! Betterton was never a Baronet, Garrick was never "Sir David," though both found sepulture in Westminster Abbey. The King's sword never touched the shoulder of John Kemble. No silvery voice ever said to the greatest King Lear that ever trod the boards, "Rise up, Sir William Charles Macready." There has been one theatrical manager who has worn knightly spurs. This was old Sir John Gallini, an Italian by birth, dancing-master to the Princesses and impresario of the King's Theatre (now Her Majesty's), who was knighted by George III.

A correspondent writes to us to vindicate the character of the late General Alvarez from the sidewind of censure passed upon him in a last week's "Echo." In his opinion Don Juan Alvarez was the most hospitable as well as the most talented Governor the Mexican Republic ever had, and his province of Guerrero a model of good government. We are happy to agree with our esteemed correspondent in his estimate of General Alvarez' good qualities. Only if he has ever been in Mexico, in South America, he must know very well that things have been and are done there every day, by the most "hospitable" and the most "talented" public men, which, judged by a European standard, would certainly court the epithet we inadvertently bestowed on General Alvarez. What dreadful libels we might indite were we to comment on all the curious passages in the life of Don Antonio Lopez de Santa Anna, assuredly the most "talented" President the Mexicans ever had; and Marquez? and Gonzales Ortega? and Degollado? To one man, however, the Mexicans may point with unmixed pride—to the ill-fated Emperor Augustin Yturbide, the Washington of Mexico.

We met the other day a gentleman who has made several millions sterling by American blockade-running, and who spoke of one of his cunning Flying Dutchmen craft as having "gone to resume her career of usefulness." A new blockade-runner has just had her career cut lamentably short in the Mersey, breaking her back close to the north-west light-ship and going to pieces almost instanter. A life-boat which put off to rescue her crew capsized by the violence of the waves, and nearly all her gallant boatmen were drowned. We read that they were unprovided with life-belts, which, according to the rules of the service, they should have worn.

Now we have a little word to say about life-belts; and we are vain enough to hope—if it reach the proper quarters—that it will prove a valuable one. Mr. Cooke, the Academician, wrote some time since an admirable letter to the Times on these safeguards against drowning; but the point we wish to touch upon is this. In every state-room of every great ocean steamer there hangs over against your pillow a life-belt, to be donned in case of need. What we want done is this:—On the bulkhead, encircled by the pendent belt, let there be pasted half a dozen lines of plainly-worded directions telling the passenger how the life-belt should be used. To "smart" and unthinking people such a recommendation may seem absurd; but we have reached the mezzo cammin of life, and have gone over a good many thousand miles of salt water, and we declare we don't know to what part of the body the life-belt should be attached. We dare say there are thousands of people, young, old, and middle-aged, as ignorant as we. Experimentally, we asked the question lately of a lady who has twice crossed the Atlantic. She imagined that the belt was put over the head after the manner of a horse-collar. We asked a male friend. He said it went round the waist and under the armpits. We asked a third, and he said that when you found yourself in the water, you held the life-belt in one hand and struck out with the other. And those lanyards attached—what are they for? The printed directions we counsel would cost very little, and could possibly do no harm. We are not all "smart," and the lives of stupid people are as valuable to them as those of other folk. We hope next time we take our passage per Cunard or Royal West India Mail line to see these "Words to Simple Simons" hung up in every cabin.

Nothing is so abhorrent to the well-regulated mind as to give currency to an old bon mot, far less to put an "ancient and fishlike" jest in print under the impression that it is bran new. However, the one we wish to give is too good to be allowed to waste its sweetness on the desert air. We have asked a great many friends if they have seen it anywhere before. The reply has been in the negative, so we risk it. Somebody was talking to the illustrious French advocate, M. Berryer, on the defence that would be probably set up by the counsel for the atrocious Müller—viz., an alibi. "An alibi!" exclaimed M. Berryer, "in his case it must be the easiest thing in the world to prove. Il était Tailleur." "He was a tailor." Now, just read this another way (the pronunciation in both being precisely similar), and you have "Il était ailleurs," "He was elsewhere." The bon mot must needs be original, for we never before heard of a murderous tailor being advised to plead an alibi.

The awful catastrophe at Edinburgh, which has resulted in the total destruction of the Theatre Royal, the almost entire overthrow of a Roman Catholic church, and the death, with five others, of Mr. Lorimer, the Dean of Guild, is suggestive of an inquiry whether there is not something amiss in the internal construction of theatres (we mean that portion behind the curtain), and whether the mechanism in use in our dramatic establishments has kept pace with what modern science and intelligence have accomplished elsewhere. We cannot help thinking that much of the woodwork which cumbers the "flies," the "shifts," and the "bridges" of our theatres might be advantageously replaced by iron. The outlay in the first instance might be greater; but the result in the long run would be gratifying—as offering additional guarantees for safety—both to managers and to the public.

Mr. John Camden Hotten, whose curious volume on "The History of Playing-cards" contains a very droll sketch of a pack supposed to have been designed by the late Count d'Orsay, is about to give us an English edition of the famous work of American humour called "Artemus Ward his Book." Three or four years have passed since in this Journal we used to notice occasionally a little comic paper published at New York called Vanity Fair. To this paper (which was but short-lived) Charles H. Browne, whose pseudonym is "Artemus Ward," was the chief contributor. The "Book" itself is an exquisite piece of drollery. Artemus Ward is supposed to be a wild beast showman, travelling through the States and commenting upon men and manners as he goes along. His apocryphal narrative of a visit to the Prince of Wales in Canada is inimitably funny.

MUSIC.

The Monday Popular Concerts have begun for the season. The one hundred and fifty-seventh concert (the first of the seventh season) took place on Monday evening last at St. James's Hall, and was as attractive and successful as usual. The programme included Beethoven's tenth quartet in E flat, Mozart's pianoforte fantasia in C minor; Beethoven's sonata in E flat, op. 12; and Mendelssohn's pianoforte quartet in B minor, op. 3. The performers were:—violins, Messrs. Straus and Ries; viola, Mr. Webb; violoncello, M. Paque; pianoforte, Herr Pauer. The singers were Miss Louisa Pyne and Mr. Renwick. The former sang Mozart's "Vedrai carino" and "La Ciondina in gondoletta;" the latter, Adam's "Song for Christmas Eve" and Henry Smart's song "The Nightingale." The performance was conducted by Mr. Benedict.

Mdlle. Carlotta Patti is now at Stutgart, where her concerts are as successful as they have been in every other German town she has visited.

Mr. Santley has achieved the most brilliant success at Barcelona. A letter from that city, in the Paris journal La Comédie, says:—"We have heard the baritone, Santley, of Her Majesty's Theatre, in London, in the "Trovatore" and "Rigoletto." He is an artist of the first order, a highly-gifted singer, possessed of a magnificent voice, which he manages with exquisite skill. He has fully sustained his high reputation, and our public, generally so difficult to please, has given the warmest reception." It is said that Mr. Santley has received offers of engagements both at the Paris Grand Opéra and the Théâtre Italien; but, fortunately for the English public, he is engaged at Her Majesty's Theatre for two or three years to come.

Another English singer has made a brilliant début at Barcelona—Mdlle. Emilie Georgi, the young contralto, who was one of the favourites of the concert-room during the last London season. Mdlle. Georgi made her first appearance a few days ago in the character of Maffio Orsini, in "Lucrezia Borgia," and displayed such high qualities as a dramatic singer that she was immediately appointed contralto assoluto; a great mark of distinction, as the Teatro Liceo of Barcelona is one of the most splendid musical theatres in Europe.

"It is reported (says the Musical World), we know not on what authority, that the only works to be produced this season at the Royal English Opera are the operettas of Messrs. Frederick Clay and Frank Mori and Mr. Kenney's English adaptation of M. Gounod's "Medecin Malgré lui."

At Her Majesty's Theatre an English version by Mr. Oxenford of M. Maillard's new and successful opera, "Lara" is to be produced next week.

Signor A. Bettini and Mdme. Trebelli Bettini are now at the opera at Warsaw, where they have had great success in the "Barbière di Siviglia," "Don Pasquale," the "Trovatore," &c. They return to London in April next to resume their places at Her Majesty's Theatre.

Adelina Patti has been indisposed at Paris, and the run of "Linda di Chamouni" has been consequently interrupted; but her convalescence has enabled her to resume a character which the Parisians seem to regard as the most fascinating of all her performances. She is about to leave Paris for Madrid, where she is to appear, along with Mario, in Gounod's "Faust."

A correspondent of one of the Paris journals writes in the following enthusiastic strain of the appearance of a new star on the 1st of January, at Milan:—"Yesterday evening 'Norma' was performed at the Scala—success complete! La Galetti was simply sublime. I never heard or saw Malibran, to whom many seated near me last night compared her; but no other artist ever produced such an effect on my poor musical organisation. Mdme. Galetti made your hair stand on end, she made you weep! She is the Ristori of song!—and what song! what method! what art! Plaudits unanimous and spontaneous greeted the singer at each phrase, almost each note! I hear that the director of the Italiens at Paris has engaged Mdme. Galetti for next winter."

It is stated (says the Paris correspondent of the Daily News) that long-pending negotiations between Covent Garden Theatre and the Grand Opera here have been brought to a successful issue, and the result is that three French artistes, Mdme. Marie Battu and MM. Faure and Naudin, who were under an engagement to appear in London on April 1, will remain in Paris till June 1, in order to play in Meyerbeer's great posthumous work "L'Africaine." In return for this concession it is stipulated that after the production of the "Africaine" in Paris it is to be brought out at Covent Garden before any other theatre in Europe.

THE THEATRES.

We have to record the success of a new and original comedy, by Mr. John Oxenford, which was produced on Monday at the New Royalty. Partly founded on Goldoni's comedy of "Gli Inamorati," it is, nevertheless, entitled to take rank as an original work; for it is not a mere adaptation, but in arrangement, dialogue, and characters, is altogether new, the general action only having been suggested by the Italian play. The characters are of more importance than the plot, for the effects are derived rather from them than from it. The central character is Mr. Aircastle (Mr. W. H. Stephens), who though really in reduced circumstances, talks as though he were a man of great wealth and connections, and is supported in his imaginary greatness by his servant Timothy (Mr. J. Robins), who is evidently devoted to the interest of his master. Two nieces are dependent on him—one a widow, Lady Bell Honeycomb (Miss Clifford), and the other Clarissa Tantrum (Miss H. Pelham). The latter loves Theodore Fretleigh (Mr. C. Western), but indulges in a jealous fit because he has a fair cousin staying with him, and so constantly quarrels with him on this theme that Lady Bell dreads she will lose him altogether. She seeks, therefore, to conciliate both; but their madness is too strong for her prudence. In the midst of their tumult they are visited by Sir Thomas Turtle (Mr. J. G. Shore), who comes with a formal introduction, and is invited to stay and dine. The host praises his cook and his viands, thus raising the expectations of his guest, while without the means of entertaining him with decency. The timely arrival of a hamper, containing venison and burgundy, however, gets the family out of this scrape; and Sir Thomas finds himself on such good, easy terms with the ladies that Fretleigh is, in turn, jealous of his attentions to Clarissa. Lady Bell comes to his relief by attracting Sir Thomas within her own influence, and so pleases him by her display of culinary taste that an attachment is at once formed and a marriage arranged. Lady Bell, too, so manages a rising young barrister, Mr. Gilbert Easy, that he makes an offer to Fretleigh's cousin, which is accepted, and thus the two original lovers are left without an excuse for their mutual suspicions. There is a dash and vivacity in this little comedy which will make it exceedingly popular. Miss Clifford, as Lady Bell, acted with great vigour, and threw such vitality into her part that it carried the house by storm. Mr. Stephens, too, with his pleasant exaggerations, identified himself with the Aircastle idiosyncrasy, and was exceedingly amusing.

A new piece, slight in structure and subject, was also produced on Monday at the Strand. It is entitled "Mrs. Green's Snug Little Business," and is written by the ingenious Mr. Cheltnam. The lady is a widow, with a greengrocery business; so well off that she has many suitors—a clerk in a public office (Mr. Belford), a policeman (Mr. T. Thorne), a parish beadle (Mr. Turner), a water-rate collector (Mr. Collier), and her own shopboy (Mr. Fredericks). Each of these is a character-part, and the fun, of which there is plenty, arises from the specific display of caricature individualities.

On Thursday a deputation, headed by F. Helmsing, Esq., from the working men of Hull, waited upon Miss Louisa Pyne and Mr. W. Harrison, presenting them with a bracelet and a scarf-ring, ornamented with diamonds and rubies, and bearing the arms of Hull, as a small acknowledgment for their kindness in having given two benefits for the Hull Infirmary.

The Roumanian Chamber has unanimously voted an address in reply to Prince Couza's speech, sanctioning the coup-d'etat of last year and the political dispositions made by the Prince since then.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

ALTHOUGH money for commercial purposes is abundant, and gradually declining in price on the Continent, all national stocks have continued very inactive, and the quotations have had a drooping tendency. A new Italian Loan for £8,000,000, in 5 per cent bonds, at about 74, having been announced, sales of Consols have been rather numerous, and the investments in Exchequer Bills have fallen off. The demand for accommodation has been somewhat inactive. Loans may be had in the Stock Exchange for short periods at 4 per cent. The Bank of Prussia has reduced its rate for money to 5 per cent. The Joint-stock Banks are giving 4½ per cent for money at call, 4¾ with seven, and 5 percent with fourteen, days' notice.

On Thursday the market for Home Stocks was dull, and prices declined. Consols, for Money, sold at 89¾ ⅞ ¼; for Account, 89¾; Reduced Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅜; New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅛; Bank Stock, 240; India Stock, 213; Ditto Five per Cents, 103⅝ ⅞; and Five per Cent Rupee Paper, 101½.

All American Securities have sold heavily, and prices have not been supported. The market for the Confederate Loan has ruled firm, and prices have improved, the quotation being 56 to 57.

There has been less firmness in the market for Joint-stock Bank Shares, and the quotations have given way.

About an average business has been transacted in Colonial Government Securities.

The Miscellaneous Market, on the whole, has ruled steady.

The Railway Share Market has been very inactive, and pric s have not been supported.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Jan. 16.—Our market to-day was very moderately supplied with English wheat in good condition. All kinds were in fair request, at full quotations. Fine foreign wheats were steady in price; but inferior qualities commanded very little attention. Malting barley was quite as dear as last week; but grinding and distilling sorts were dull, at barely late rates. The malt trade was firm, and prices were well supported. Good sound oats maintained their previous value; but heated samples were dull. Beans gave way 1s. per quarter. In peas, next to nothing was doing, at late rates. The flour trade was steady, at full currencies.

Jan 18.—Wheat, fine barley, and oats were in fair request, at full quotations; but all other produce met a dull inquiry, at Monday's prices.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 38s. to 41s.; ditto, white, 40s. to 46s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 36s., to 40s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 24s. to 35s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; chevalier, 60s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 18s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 20s. to 25s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 20s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 22s.; tick beans, 30s. to 31s.; grey peas, 31s. to 34s.; maple, 34s. to 36s.; white, 36s. to 40s.; boilers, 37s. to 40s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 37s. to 40s.; households, 32s. to 33s.; country marks, 27s. to 33s. per 280 lb.; American, 19s. to 25s. per barrel; French, 30s. to 32s. per sack.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotish: Wheat, 350; barley, 120; malt, 520; oats, 1290; flour, 920. Foreign: Wheat, 1700; barley, 850; oats, 6790.

Seeds.—Clover seed continues to advance in price, and most other seeds rule steady, at full quotations. Cakes are tolerably firm.

Linseed, English, sowing, 58s. to 61s.; Calcutta, 59s. to 60s.; hempseed, 42s. to 46s. per quarter; coriander, 18s. to 22s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 9s. to 10s.; white ditto, 9s. 6d. to 10s.; tares, 8s. to 9s. per bushel; English rapeseed, 76s. to 80s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 5s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 11s.; rape cakes, £5 5s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 50s. to 56s. per quarter; red clover seed, 48s. to 108s.; white ditto, 50s. to 78s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—These averages are now confined to wheat, barley, and oats, and are derived from a limited number of towns. The last returns are:—Wheat, 38s. 7d.; barley, 28s.; oats, 19s. per quarter.

Sugar.—All raw qualities move off slowly, and, in some instances, prices are again rather lower. Stock, 110,532 tons, against 77,504 tons last year. In refined goods very little is doing, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Provisions.—The sale for Irish butter is dull, at previous rates. Foreign qualities are steady, at 126s. to 128s. per cwt. for fine Dutch. Bacon rules about stationary, with a moderate demand. In hams next to nothing is doing; but other provisions are steady in price.

Tallow.—The market is steady, at full prices. P.Y.C., on the spot, 41s. 3d. per cwt. Stock, 55,182 casks, against 67,690 casks last year. Rough fat, 2s. 1½d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £33. Rape is offering at £42 10s. to £46; olive, £48 to £57; and fine palm, £36. French turpentine, 61s. per cwt.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 10s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 10s.; and straw, £1 8s. to £1 12s. per load.

Coals.—Cowper Hartley, 17s. 6d.; Holywell Main, 17s. 6d.; Haswell, 20s.; Hetton, 20s.; Tunstall, 18s. per ton.

Hops.—Very few hops are on offer, and the demand is steady, at full prices—viz., 110s. to 200s. per cwt.

Potatoes.—Fair average supplies are on offer, and the trade is steady, at from 50s. to 130s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, Jan. 19).—Our market to-day was moderately supplied with beasts, in fair average condition. All breeds moved off slowly, at Monday's currency.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 8d.; prime large oxen, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 0d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 2d. to 5s. 4d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; prime Southdown ditto, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 0d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 0d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 6d.; large hogs, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 6d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; suckling calves, 19s. to 21s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 26s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 970; cows, 120; sheep, 2960; calves, 170; pigs, 300. Foreign: Beasts, 97; sheep, 260; calves, 110.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; veal, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 8d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 13.

BANKRUPTS.

J. F. MAY, Meeting House-lane, Peckham, greengrocer.—S. S. MICKLEBURGH, Kingston-on-Thames, brewer.—E. J. MAIDLOW, Barnsbury-road, builder.—T. W. BALDRY, London-street, Norwich, photographer.—J. J. OLD, Turkey-street, Enfield, miller.—W. MANSELL, jun., Great Titchfield-street, Marylebone, carpenter.—I. LAZARUS, Minories, grocer.—E. H. EVERARD, Sydenham Park, Sydenham.—B. GATES, Brighton, beer retailer.—I. MILLER, Emsworth, butcher.—R. F. KING, Warwick-street, Pimlico, clerk.—I. MARKS, Scarborough-street, Goodman's-fields, dealer in watches.—J. HUNT, Low Leyton, Essex, farmer.—J. G. SILOA, Caversham-road, Kentish-town-road, shipping broker.—E. M. BOWLES, Blackman-street, Southwark, dyer.—W. W. HUNT, High-street, Poplar, cheesemonger.—H. WRIGHT, South-place, Camberwell New-road, baker.—T. P. FISH, New-street, Borough-road, coach painter.—J. R. SEARL, Camberwell-grove, carpenter.—H. FREEMAN, Fetter-lane, newspaper agent.—G. H. ATTWATER, Worting, Hampshire, yeoman.—C. W. SWIFT, Deptford, cornchandler. E. T. REEVES, Smith-square, Westminster, vocalist.—C. WEIGHT, Brook-street and Cornwall-terrace, Paddington.—T. SINCLAIR, Adam-street West, Bryanston-square, tailor. R. H. MAIR, Cecil-street, Strand, clerical agent.—J. MILLS, Minerva-place, Kennington-green, cheesemonger.—C. KUGELE, Albert-terrace, Battersea, grocer.—J. W. WILLIAMS, Stainsbury-road, Poplar, lighterman.—P. PYNE, Charles-street, Grosvenor-square, wine merchant.—J. KNIELING, Blenheim-terrace, Kentish Town.—C. G. N. SALVUCCI, Jermyn-street, dealer in Italian goods.—J. VAUGHAN and A. WELLS, Chenies, Buckinghamshire, grocer.—J. HUGHES, Dorking, butcher.—G. H. GORRINGE, Brighton, carpenter.—J. ALEXANDER, Brighton, professor of music.—J. M. BAKER, Polesworth, farmer.—F. TURNER, Birmingham, grocer.—A. DAVIES, Briery-hill, grocer.—C. BARNARD, Wells, butcher.—W. SHEPPARD, Exmouth, shipowner.—S. WHITELEY, Wortley, machinist.—J. D. TREBILCOCK, Angarrack, farmer.—G. WRIGGLESWORTH, Helperby, corn-miller.—M. BRETT, Liverpool, woollendraper.—J. JAQUES, Spennymoor, innkeeper.—B. BUTTERWORTH, Shaw, tinplate-worker.—W. WILD, Oldham, cheese-dealer.—W. COX, Hathern, licensed victualler.—J. WALTON, Hyde, greengrocer.—J. J. BUCKLEY, Claines, Worcestershire.—J. FIELD, North Walsham, Norfolk, bricklayer.—J. PEGG, Worcester, ironfounder.—J. BAKER, Blackley, Lancashire, farmer. C. HAPPEY, Newcastle-on-Tyne, cabinetmaker.—J. PARRISS, Coventry.—W. KNIGHTS, jun., Sandy, tinplate-worker.—W. E. QUEENBOROUGH, Caddington, farmer.—J. HEYS, Glossop, broker.—W. HOPKINS, St. Bride's, grocer.—G. RICHMOND, Ratcliffe-on-Trent, carrier.—W. DAWSON, Gateshead.—W. WALKLEY, Skellingthorpe, farmer.—G. M. MOODY, King's Lynn, ropemaker.—J. N. CARPENTER, Swansea, commission agent.—W. THOMPSON, Elland, tinplate-worker.—T. BRISCOE, Monks, Coppenhall, confectioner.—M. THOMAS, Swansea.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 17.

BANKRUPTS.

M. CHAPPELL, Hammersmith.—J. C. DIX, St. Martins-le-Grand, engraver.—E. TEBBS, Limehouse, grocer.—H. STANIFORD, Lambeth, cabinetmaker.—J. CLYBOUN, Upper Thames-street, commission agent.—W. CATTOM, Norwich, lead merchant.—J. G. SILVA, Leadenhall-street, shipping-broker.—J. COLE, Golden-square, plumber.—S. KESSELL and A. SCHONFIELD, St. Mary-at-Hill, general merchants.—C. J. GLENISTER, East Barnet, butcher.—W. M. OPPENHEIM, Worship-street, mahogany merchant.—J. MASON, Hammersmith, painter.—R. VAUGHAN and A. WELLS, Chenies, grocers.—R. WHITE, Lower Winchendon, cattle-dealer.—H. CHAPMAN, Cheapside, commission agent.—F. JAMES, Camden Town, builder.—M. PEREZ, Houndsditch, gingerbeer-maker. W. BRIDGER, Salisbury, surveyor.—J. BUDGE, Kensal New-town, bootmaker.—T. DOWNING, Wolferton, bootmaker.—J. RITSON, Sedgley, farmer.—W. E. GIBBONS, Sedgley, ironmaster.—N. D. NORRIS, Hereford, hop merchant.—W. HAMLEY, Newton Abbot, innkeeper.—J. HAINE, Liskeard, butcher.—J. RICE, Wellington, builder.—A. NIBLETT, Liversedge, shoddy manufacturer.—W. R. SHIRTCLIFF, Sheffield, silver-plate manufacturer.—J. HOLLAND and W. ROBERTS, Ruthin, joiners.—E. HUGHES, Llandudno, hotel-keeper.—G. J. KEET, Liverpool, photographic artist.—T. and B. GOLDTHORP, Ashton-under-Lyne, timber merchants.—A. GRAHAM, Ashton New Town, cooper.—J. WAINWRIGHT, Wrexham, grocer.—E. HALLIWELL, Lees, doubler of yarns. W. TWIGG, Birmingham, button-maker.—J. HULLEY, Prestwich, upholsterer.—B. COLE, Wellingborough, machinist.—J. BENSON, Rusholme, hardware-dealer.—F. WHITWORTH, Rochdale, steam tenter.—W. DELAHAY, Ross, painter.—J. BEDDOWS, Shropshire, farmer.—P. BEVAN, Suckley, farmer.—J. NEWITT, Northampton, shoe manufacturer.—T. C. MARRIOTT, Northampton, shoe manufacturer.—J. HANSON, Bromsgrove, innkeeper. G. H. LEWIS, Gloucester, bootmaker.—W. STURT, Guildford, plumber.—W. TRIGG, Guilford, grocer.—J. HIRST, Leeds, warehouseman.—W. CARTER, Worle, miller.—F. NEVIN, Sheffield, metalsmith.—E. HIDES, Sheffield, engraver.—L. W. WILLIS, Cardiff, outfitter.—J. STARKEY, Leamington Priors, licensed victualler.—T. J. CHATER, Rugby, innkeeper.—W. SANDLAND, Lichfield, blacksmith.—A. BEWLEY, Calne, wheelwright.—W. T. JONES, Hirwain, collier.—J. DAVIES, Dudley, whitesmith.—J. LETTS, Sedgley, grocer.—D. J. EVANS, Aberayron, grocer.—R. JENKINS, Liverpool, baker.—E. M. HOLTON, Gravesend, grocer.

THE COLLECTION OF NAVAL MODELS AT THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.

THE very interesting collection of models of old ships of war, procured from time to time by order of the Surveyors of the Navy, from the Royal dockyards, with a number of models or designs for ships contributed by private persons, remained for many years utterly neglected, thrown into a heap and covered with dust, in a lumber-room of the cellars of Somerset House. About the year 1826 Sir Robert Seppings, who then filled the office of Surveyor, proposed to Sir Byam Martin, the Comptroller of the Navy, to have these curious specimens of the history of British shipbuilding properly arranged, and made the nucleus of a permanent exhibition, to which new models should upon occasion be added, illustrating the progress of naval architecture and its contemporary state, so as to form an instructive study for the shipbuilders of the future. This proposal was carried into effect, Mr. Robert Elwes being appointed the first custodian of the Model-Room at Somerset House. Models of all the most important ships of war built since that time have been added to the collection; but it has been latterly allowed to fall into the greatest confusion; and, there being no proper accommodation for it at Somerset House, the authorities had even thought of distributing the various models between the United Service Institute and other museums. The credit of saving this valuable collection from dismemberment and removing it to the Naval Court which has now been established in the South Kensington Museum, where it may be seen classified and arranged in excellent order, is due to Mr. Coghlen M'Hardy, secretary to the Comptroller of the Navy; and the public are much indebted to this gentleman for his exertions in providing them with such an exhibition. It consists, as to the first part, of the Admiralty Collection; while the second part is composed of the models sent by projectors or private manufacturers. There are, in the first place, a hundred and twenty models of whole ships of war in the British Navy, besides the Royal yachts; then come the half models, the models of bows and sterns, and the models of midship sections, all of ships actually built in her Majesty's dockyards; the aggregate number of specimens of this class being more than six hundred. The second class of models shows the various forms of boats used for the service of our men-of-war, and those adapted to the special purposes of fighting guns, laying out anchors, landing or embarking troops, with the life-boats used along our coast for the rescue of the shipwrecked. Illustrations of the contrivances for lowering boats, and for attaching them to ships, as well as all the other necessary fittings of a large vessel, are here provided, and will, no doubt, be examined with great interest by landsmen unfamiliar with those appliances. But for the instruction of naval architects, or ship-builders and mechanics generally, the fourth class is perhaps the most important, as it contains four hundred models of particular parts of ships, both timber and iron, showing the principal changes which have at different periods been introduced into their mode of construction. The remainder of the collection displays models of masts and rigging, of rudders and steering apparatus, of ship-guns with their carriages and tackle, and of a multitude of things requisite for the armament or equipment of a ship of war; besides the models of breakwaters, dockyards, and machinery.

We propose to give some Illustrations, the first of which we have engraved for this Number, showing a few of the most interesting examples of ancient ship-building, in the first class of this collection. The earliest here displayed is the "Great Harry," or, as she was more ceremoniously entitled, the "Henry Grace à Dieu," built by King Henry VIII., and launched in 1514. She was of 1000 tons burden, and carried 700 men, of whom 349 were soldiers, 301 "marines" or sailors, and fifty guns. She is said to have had nineteen brass and 103 iron guns, but they were very small, only a few of them being nine-pounders. She had four masts and a bowsprit, all square-rigged. The "Great Harry" took part in the successful attack on the French galleys at Brest, in April, 1513, where she bore the flag of Admiral Sir Edward Howard, whose impetuous bravery cost him his life in that engagement, which gave the English the command of the narrow seas during the whole reign of Henry VIII. Of this ship the Admiral thus expresses himself in a letter to his Sovereign:—

"Sir,—Your good ship is the flower, I trow, of all ships that ever sailed. Sir, she is the noblest ship of sail is this great ship at this hour that I trow in all Christendom."

She was again, in 1545, engaged with a French fleet off the Isle of Wight, where the next largest English ship, the Mary Rose, was accidentally sunk through having her ports too near the water. The Great Harry, on board of which the Admiral had hoisted his flag, was so much battered that she had to be towed away. She survived, however, till 1553, when she was accidentally burnt at Woolwich. This ship has also a particular interest, as having been the first vessel of the Royal Navy properly so-called in England, the Crown having been previously dependent on the Cinque Ports for a supply of vessels, which were sent up when required for any emergency, and resumed by their owners as soon as the special service for which they were called forth had been rendered. The Great Harry is a very remarkable vessel. The observer cannot fail to be struck with the small extent of the immersed portion of the hull compared with that out of water, and the enormous structures at the head and stern—the forecastle, aptly so called, and the poop—intended to harbour and protect large numbers of bowmen and arquebusiers, who played the most important part in naval engagements of those days, which were chiefly carried on hand-to-hand. With an armament similar to that of our modern ships the Great Harry would have been absolutely dangerous. As it was, it must have been a matter of no slight peril to navigate her during high winds and through heavy seas, even in the Channel. To have crossed the ocean in her would have subjected the bold mariners who attempted it to almost certain shipwreck. It is instructive to observe in the series of models of later date how very gradually the dimensions of the forecastle and poop were reduced to meet the exigencies of a heavier and more effective armament and of ocean navigation. A strongly-marked forecastle and poop were characteristic of our ships until nearly the middle of the eighteenth century, while the practice of building large vessels with flush decks, as in the case of our ironclads, has been introduced only within the last few years.

Between the building of the Great Harry and that of the Royal Sovereign, or Sovereign of the Seas, built in the reign of Charles I. with the ship money the collection of which led to such notable results, an interval of nearly 150 years occurs. There were no additions to the Royal Navy during this period. The vessels which played so important a part in the reign of Queen Elizabeth in defeating the Spanish Armada and establishing the supremacy of England at sea were hired from the private trade to meet the emergency, and reverted to their original owners as soon as the emergency was passed, and were engaged, probably, during the remainder of their existence in a traffic much resembling piracy, which completely broke the Spanish power at sea. These ships, however, are unrepresented in this collection. The Sovereign of the Seas, otherwise named the "Royal Sovereign," was designed by Captain Pett, built at Woolwich in 1637, and accidentally burnt at Chatham in 1695.

The third ship that appears in our Engraving is the Royal William, built at Chatham in 1670, from the designs of Mr. Phineas Pett, but rebuilt in 1692, and again, at Portsmouth, in 1719. The model shows her in this altered state, when her dimensions were—length, 175 ft.; breadth, 50 ft.; depth, 20 ft.; with 1918 tons burden. Her original tonnage was 1568. The Royal William was taken to pieces in 1813. We shall give some more Illustrations next week.

WINTER SKETCHES IN NEW YORK.

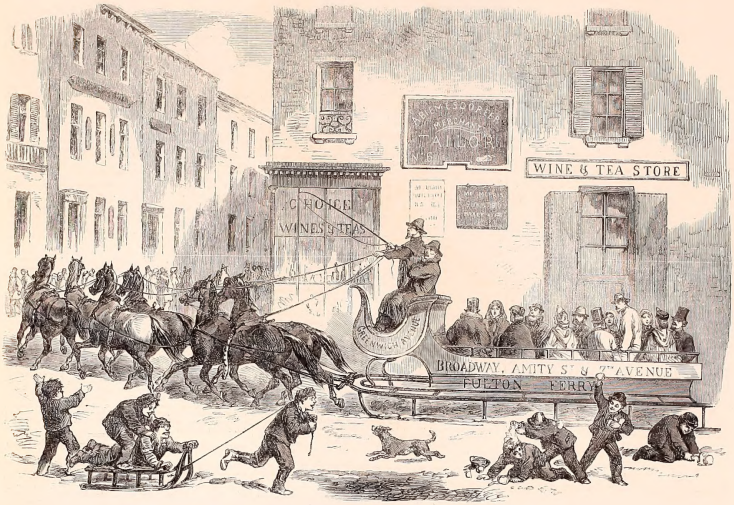
A CORRESPONDENT in New York, to whose pencil we owe the Illustrations of skating and sleighing in that city, writes as follows:—

"A few days before Christmas we had a heavy snowstorm here, which brought out the sleighs and made things look seasonable. Some of the omnibus proprietors laid up their wheeled vehicles for the time, substituting for them immense concerns on runners, drawn by six horses, and capable of holding some forty persons each when closely packed. I send herewith a sketch of one of these omnibus-sleighs. Their occupation is a transient and uncertain one in New York, and, even as I write, the snow has quite disappeared, and mud is the order of things once more.

"The brief spell of cold weather also brought out the skaters in great force. For two or three nights many thousands of persons enjoyed the sports of the ice in Central Park, the lakes and ponds of which favourite place of resort were in excellent condition. The scene at night, on such occasions, is very striking. Powerful burners are placed so as to illuminate the whole surface, and the light from these is reflected with great splendour by the clear ice. I send herewith a sketch of one of these night scenes. The buildings on the further shore of the lake contain accommodation for the skaters. There are refreshment-rooms, a cloak-room, and another room where skates are let out on hire. Here there is a long counter, behind which a great array of skates of every description is displayed upon the wall. Groups of persons are always collected round the great stove, which is a feature of all public rooms in New York. Numbers of young girls, attended by their beaus, are to be seen here, as skating has become quite the fashion since the opening of Central Park, some four or five years ago. The last day I visited the place I noticed in the group around the stove a very respectable looking negro woman, dressed in rather an expensive set of furs. She had with her two small boys of colour, whom I afterwards saw wheeling about on their skates with great glee. The policeman in the sketch is one of the park-keepers, who are picked from the metropolitan police, and are remarkably fine, soldierly-looking fellows, dressed in a very becoming, light-grey uniform. The Americans are a progressive people. I observed that some of the boys here who assist skaters in putting on their irons have discarded the time-honoured gimlet, so long and favourably known in connection with skates, using instead of it a bit and brace."

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE NEW CATHEDRAL AT CORK.

THE foundation-stone of the new cathedral at Cork, which is to replace the present church of St. Finn Barr, now insufficient for the congregation, was laid on Thursday week, with Masonic honours, by the Right Rev. Dr. Gregg, Bishop of Cork, Cloyne, and Ross. A numerous company, among whom were the Earl of Bandon, the Earl of Bantry, and other persons of rank and influence in the county of Cork, with Dean Magee, Archdeacon Kyle, and many of the clergy, had assembled on this occasion. About 400 members of the Masonic body, wearing the insignia of their order, were also present, headed by Mr. G. Chatterton, the Deputy Provincial Grand Master of Munster. A procession, led by the Dean and Chapter, advanced from the old church to meet the Bishop, on his arrival, and escorted him, attended by his Chancellor and Chaplain, to the site of the new building. Here the Bishop, with the Dean and Chapter, the churchwardens, some of the building committee, and principal Masons, ascended the platform. A hymn was sung by the choir, some versicles were recited by the clergy and people alternately, and the collect of St. Simon and St. Jude was read, followed by a special prayer for the success of the undertaking. The Earl of Bandon, as chairman of the building committee, then addressed the Bishop, with a brief explanation of their design, and requested him to lay the first stone of an edifice, which they trusted would be an ornament to the United Church of England and Ireland and to the city of Cork. Dean Magee, on behalf of the cathedral clergy, supported this request. His Lordship having signified his consent, they passed along the gangway to the spot where the stone was to be laid. A silver trowel was presented to the Bishop, who applied it to the mortar, while the stone, which was suspended over the site, was gradually let down to its resting-place, and the usual ceremony having been gone through, it was declared properly set, while a hymn was chanted by the choir. Mr. G. Chatterton, the Deputy Grand Master, then came forward, on the part of the Masonic order, and poured an offering of corn, wine, and oil upon the stone, while the following invocation was pronounced by the Provincial Grand Chaplain:—"May the Great Architect of the Universe enable us successfully to carry on and finish this work! may He protect the workmen from danger and accident, and long preserve the structure from decay! and may He grant us all our needed supply—the corn of nourishment, the wine of refreshment, and the oil of joy! Amen. So be it." This was responded to by all the brethren around. The choir and congregation sang the Hundredth Psalm, after which the Bishop and procession returned to the platform. The Bishop then spoke at some length to the assembled people, commending the design of those who had undertaken there to raise a grand and beautiful structure for the worship of God. He reminded them, at the same time, that a considerable sum was yet needed to provide for the cost of the building; and, as the Dean held the subscription-list, many of the company desired their names to be put down for various sums, amounting to nearly £3000. Among these donations was one of £1000 from the Rev. T. G. Speller, of Dublin. The architect of the proposed building is Mr. Burgess. The design is in the Gothic style of the thirteenth century. The ground-plan consists of a nave and chancel, with side aisles and a circular aisle at the eastern end, and there will be three towers of considerable elevation. An elaborately-wrought archway and porch will form the western entrance, surmounted by a stained-glass window. The contractor is Mr. Robert Walker.



THE LATE PROFESSOR BOOLE, OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE, CORK.

WE this week present our readers with the portrait of a man whose name to the majority of them is perhaps unknown, but whose fame rests on grounds more durable and solid than that of many a one who, in his lifetime, has secured a wide-spread celebrity. The events of his external life were few and simple. The history of his mind can only be read by those of kindred intellect and similar pursuits; but his labours, though yielding no immediate return of popularity or of profit to himself, were of a class which often prove fertile of results when the labourer is gone.

The late Dr. George Boole, Professor of Mathematics in Queen's College, Cork, was an instance of the attainment of high scientific and academical distinction by perseverance in private study, without the advantages of a course of university instruction. He was born on the 4th of November, 1815, at Lincoln, the son of a respectable tradesman who was himself attached to the pursuits of science, and died at Ballintemple, near Cork, on the 8th of December, 1864. The whole of his early life was passed, with but a short interval, in his native city or county, which he only left on his appointment to the professorship of mathematics, in the Queen's College, Cork, at its opening, in 1849. The duties of this office he continued to discharge until his premature and unexpected death, while still in the full vigour of his intellect, and engaged in investigations the results of which were looked forward to with anxious interest by the mathematicians of this and other countries. The history of his early life and studies reveals the obstacles which stood in the way of the development and cultivation of his extraordinary natural powers, and the indomitable energy and innate thirst for improvement which enabled him to surmount them. We subjoin a few particulars as an example and encouragement to others who may feel conscious of similar gifts, but may be tempted to succumb to the weight of adverse external influences.

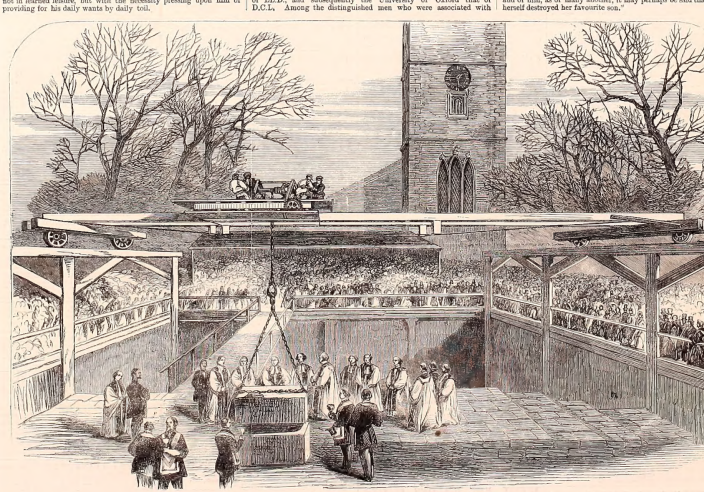
His father, for whose memory he always retained an affectionate and reverential regard, was a man of an ingenious and active mind, and from him he received his first and, we believe, only instruction in the rudiments of that science in which he afterwards so much excelled. From him also he inherited that taste for the construction and adaptation of optical instruments which he retained to the end of his life. It was not, however, until a comparatively late period of his earlier studies that his special aptitude for mathematical investigations developed itself. His earlier ambition seems to have pointed to the attainment of proficiency in the ancient classical languages; but his father being unable to assist him in overcoming the first difficulties of this course of study, he was indebted to a neighbour for instruction in the elements of Latin grammar. This good neighbour was Mr. William Brooke, bookseller, a man of mental culture and an accomplished antiquary, with whom he kept up an uninterrupted correspondence throughout his life, and who survives to mourn the loss of his friend and pupil. To the study of Latin he added that of Greek, we believe, without any external assistance, and for some years he devoured every Greek and Latin author that came within his reach. At the early age of twelve he was the subject of a small literary controversy in his native town. He had produced a metrical version of an ode of Horace, which his father, in the pride of his heart, had inserted in a local journal, stating the age of the translator. This drew forth a letter from a neighbouring schoolmaster denying, from internal evidence, that the version could possibly have been the work of one so young. But accident discovered to him certain defects in his methods of classical study, inseparable from the want of proper early training; and it cost him two years of incessant labour to correct them. At the age of seventeen he first applied himself to the study of the higher mathematics; and simply with the aid of such books as he could procure. Without other assistance or guide, he worked his way onward, and it was his own opinion that he had lost five years of educational progress by his imperfect methods of study and the want of a helping-hand to get him over difficulties. This opinion may be doubted, as it does not take into account the invigorating effect on the mental powers of the successful struggles to surmount such difficulties without external aid. And it is a fact that, in his efforts to clear up points on which his books failed to satisfy him, he often lighted upon methods which afterwards proved to be original discoveries. It is not our purpose or within our ability to mention in detail the various memoirs and publications by which he gradually established his reputation as a mathematical writer of rare ingenuity and power. For these we must refer our readers to the Cambridge and Dublin Mathematical Journal,

WINTER SKETCHES FROM NEW YORK.

AN OMNIBUS SLEIGH.

SKATING BY NIGHT IN THE CENTRAL PARK.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

to the Transactions of the Royal Societies of London and Edinburgh, and to the list of his separate publications, through which he soon made himself known as one of the ablest mathematicians of the day. The expectations of his future career which these performances had aroused were presently raised still higher by the publication of his essay "On the Mathematical Analysis of Logic." He received the bronze and gold medals of the Royal Society, and was strongly urged to enter himself at the University of Cambridge, with a view to obtaining those supreme honours and rewards of mathematical proficiency which that University alone can bestow. Mr. Boole refrained from this course principally for the sake of his aged parents. Notwithstanding this self-denial, he won a European reputation in his own department of science. Throughout his life his intellectual tastes were essentially catholic, and there was no department of human knowledge to which he was a stranger, and few in which he had not made vast acquisitions. Poetry, mental philosophy, theology, all engaged his attention; and his acquaintance with the languages and literature of modern Europe was both extensive and accurate. He possessed the true poetic temperament, and afforded another example of the important part which the imagination performs in the pursuit even of the exact and abstract sciences. Nor was the book of Nature closed to him; and there were few who had a keener appreciation of her sublimities and beauties. But the work on which we believe he was content principally to rest his fame as an original discoverer was "The Investigation into the Laws of Thought," a work of extraordinary originality and power, and by far the most successful attempt that has ever been made to reduce the processes of general reasoning to mathematical formulæ, containing also a special application of its method to the theory of probabilities. This work appeared in 1854; and though its author subsequently expressed himself as not altogether satisfied with the form in which he had submitted it to the public, he never wavered in his opinion as to the soundness of the principles on which it is based, or its importance as a contribution to the science of reasoning. We know that this opinion is shared by some of the most eminent thinkers of the day, and that they look forward to the time when a further carrying out of the same principles shall produce a complete change in the ordinary mode of teaching logic. And these works were produced, not in learned leisure, but with the necessity pressing upon him of providing for his daily wants by daily toil.



THE LATE PROFESSOR BOOLE, OF QUEEN'S COLLEGE, CORK.

Soon after his appointment to the professorship in Cork, the University of Dublin conferred on him the honorary degree of LL.D., and subsequently the University of Oxford that of D.C.L. Among the distinguished men who were associated with him in receiving this latter compliment was Sir John Lawrence, the present Governor General of India. He was shortly afterwards elected a Fellow of the Royal Society, and the few remaining years of his life were passed in the enjoyment of domestic happiness and in the society of a select circle of friends, who looked up to him with a feeling akin to reverence. Apart from his intellectual superiority, there was shed around him an atmosphere of purity and moral elevation which was felt by all who were admitted within its influence. And over all his gifts and graces was thrown the charm of a true humility and an apparent total unconsciousness of his own worth and wisdom. His intercourse with his pupils was of the most affectionate character. It was his delight to assemble those of whose conduct he approved in his own house and in association with his family; and this valuable privilege was accorded not to those who exhibited remarkable ability, but rather to those whose moral qualities had won his regard. He visited them in sickness, and, where their means were limited, supplied them with those little luxuries which their cases required, but which their own resources failed to supply. The hold he had obtained on their affection was apparent in their demeanour as they followed his remains to the grave.

It was evident to those friends who were admitted to his closer intimacy that higher interests than the claims of human science were gradually asserting their supremacy over his inner life. This deepening tone of religious thought and feeling did not manifest itself in any neglect of those claims; but it could not fail to be observed that the desire of earthly fame, which may have stimulated his earlier efforts, had lost its hold upon him, and that he continued his labours from a solemn sense of duty and the simple love of truth. Nor did it lead to any disregard of the common interests of life, but rather to an enlarged sympathy in the joys and sorrows of others, to a tenderness to their faults, and a ready recognition of any redeeming quality in the very worst of men. You could see by the expression of his countenance that it was absolutely painful to him to hear the shortcomings of others dwelt upon in his presence. But we need pursue this theme no further; enough, perhaps, has been said to convey to our readers some idea of the intellectual and moral proportions of this remarkable man.

He died of an attack of fever terminating in suffusion on the lungs. It is apprehended that his untimely death was hastened by an excessive devotion to study; and of him, as of many another, it may perhaps be said that "Science herself destroyed her favourite son."

LAYING THE FOUNDATION-STONE OF THE NEW CATHEDRAL AT CORK.—SEE PAGE 80.

GOUNOD'S GRAND OPERA, FAUST, and the GREAT CHRISTMAS PANTOMIME Every Evening. Morning Performances, Tuesdays and Saturdays. HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE. ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.—On MONDAY, FEB. 13, 1865, a MORNING PERFORMANCE will take place in AID of the above FUND. Sir E. B. Lytton's Comedy of MONEY, with a powerful cast. Full particulars will be duly announced.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET. Mr. Sothern as David Garrick and Lord Dundreary Married and Done For, Every Evening. Mr. Buckstone in two Pieces Every Evening. H. T. Byron's new Extravaganza of THE PRINCESS SPRINGTIME, Every Evening.
NOTICE.—Mr. Sothern's extraordinary success as David Garrick and Lord Dundreary necessitates the announcement that seats, &c., can be secured at the Box Office one month in advance.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. BENJAMIN WEBSTER.—MONDAY and during the Week, ICI ON PARLE FRANCAIS—Mr. J. L. Toole. At Eight, LEAH—Miss Bateman; and DARK DOINGS IN THE CLOSET—BY THE KNOTTING-'EM BROTHERS—Mr. J. L. Toole, P. Bedford, Mrs. A. Mellon.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. Mr. Fechter will perform the character of Robert Macaire, in the new Drama of THE ROADSIDE INN, on MONDAY and during the Week.

ROYAL SURREY THEATRE. MONDAY, JAN. 23, and during the Week, THE TRADESMAN'S SON—Mr. Fernandez, Miss Webster. With HARLEQUIN KING PUMPKIN; or, Richardo ye Lion Hearte. Juvenile Nights, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, on which occasions the Pantomime will be played first.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL. The talk of London is the Great Success of PRICE'S HIPPODROME and CIRCO. Doors open Every Evening at Seven o'Clock; Performances commencing at Half-past Seven. Constant succession of Novelties.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL. Great and Novel Feature.—A GRAND MILITARY and EQUESTRIAN SPECTACLE, entitled THE BRIGANDS OF THE CALABRIAN MOUNTAINS, introducing upwards of 400 Persons at one time, and the whole of the Magnificent Stud of Horses and Ponies, the Spectacle being interspersed with Cavalry Charges, Feats of Arms, Combats, Brilliant Tableau, &c. Terrific Leap over the Mountain Cataract.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL. FASHIONABLE MIDDAY PERFORMANCES on Tuesdays, Thursdays, and Saturdays, at Two o'Clock, commencing at Half-past.
Children under ten years of age admitted half price to all parts of the building except the galleries.
NOTICE.—The Proprietor will find great pleasure in admitting gratis the Schools of the various Charities to the Day Exhibitions upon an application from the Masters.
Private Boxes, 30s.; single tickets to the same, 5s.; Reserved Seats (numbered), 3s.; First Class, 2s.; Second Class, 1s.; Galleries, 6d. Box-office open Eleven till Three.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, and Mr. JOHN PARRY, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight, Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-st. Opera di Camera, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY, and TOO MANY COOKS, every Tuesday and Thursday Mornings at Three.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, PICCADILLY.
COMMODORE NUTT and MINNIE WARREN.—THREE GRAND LEVEES DAILY, at Eleven, Three, and Eight o'Clock. "Nature's smallest edition of her choicest works"—a bachelor and belle of mature age, not larger than two infants. At Eleven o'Clock they appear in the identical Costume worn by them at the Marriage of General Tom Thumb; and they also perform Songs, Duets, Dances, &c., with change of Programme at each Levée. Box Office open one hour in advance. Day Exhibition, 1s., 2s., and 3s. Admission, 1s. to all parts of the house, except a few reserved seats at 2s. Children Half price in 2s. and 3s. seats.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Every Monday Evening till Easter. On MONDAY NEXT, JAN. 23, Mr. Charles Hallé will make his first appearance this season. Violin, Herr Straus; clarinet, Mr. Lazarus; violoncello, M. Paque. Vocalists, Mdlle. Florence Lancia and Miss Susan Galton. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. The programme will include Mozart's quintet, for clarinet and stringed instruments; Mendelssohn's quartet in E flat, Op. 12, containing the Canzonet; Beethoven's sonata in C, Op. 53, dedicated to Count Waldstein, for pianoforte alone, &c. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and programmes at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; and at Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

THE CREATION.
NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY. EXETER HALL. Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.—Performance of "The Creation," WEDNESDAY NEXT, 25th. Commence at Eight. Principal Vocalists—Miss Louisa Pyne, Mr. Sims Reeves, and Mr. Lewis Thomas. Band and Chorus, 700. Tickets, 2s., 3s.; Numbered Stalls, 5s. 10s. 6d., 21s.—14 and 15, Exeter Hall.
NOTICE.—The 5s. Seats are numbered, cushioned, and reserved the whole evening.

MRS. FANNY KEMBLE will READ HAMLET on WEDNESDAY, JAN. 25, and AS YOU LIKE IT on THURSDAY, JAN. 26, at the MARYLEBONE LITERARY INSTITUTE, Edwards-street, Portman-square. Commence at Eight. Reserved seats, 5s.; Area, 3s.; Balcony, 2s. Tickets may be obtained of Messrs. Chappell, Bond-street; Keith, Prowse, and Co., Cheapside; Oetzmann and Co., Baker-street; and at the office of the Institution.

THURTON'S ODD FOLKS, with a new piece of Extravagance, termed GOING TO COURT. Ezekiel Pokes, Jenny Morgan, Kitty Harlin, The Japanese Dandy, and other Novelties, at STROUD, MONDAY, the 23rd; Gloucester, 24; Cheltenham, 25; Worcester, 26; Malvern, 27.
Manager, Mr. J. MORFEY.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, 69, Regent-street. Mr. BLAND and DAUGHTERS beg to announce that their ANNUAL FULL DRESS BALL will take place in the Saloons of the above Establishment on TUESDAY NEXT, the 31st inst. Gentleman's Ticket, 7s. 6d.; Lady's Ticket, 5s.; Double ditto, 10s. 6d., to be obtained of Mr. Austin, Ticket Office, 28, Piccadilly; or of Mr. Bland, 33, Brewer-street, Golden-square, W. Dancing to commence at Half-past Nine o'Clock.

THE LICENSED VICTUALLERS' LAST GRAND BALL THIS SEASON, and which will be in AID of the LICENSED VICTUALLERS' SCHOOL, will take place at ST. JAMES'S HALL, on THURSDAY NEXT, the 26th inst. Adams's Band of Forty Performers. Double Tickets, 16s.; Single Tickets, 10s. 6d.; to include Refreshments, may be had of the Governor and Committee; of many other friends resident in different parts of the metropolis and suburbs; at Austin's Ticket-office, Piccadilly; and at 127, Fleet-street, of WILLIAM SMALLEY, Secretary.

GEOLOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON. Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will commence a Course of WEDNESDAY EVENING LECTURES on GEOLOGY, from Eight to Nine. First Lecture, JAN. 25. Fee, £1 1s. And a more extended Course on Wednesday and Friday Mornings, from Nine to Ten. First Lecture, Friday, Jan. 27. This Course will be continued till May.
R. W. JELF, D.D., Principal.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (The Monument), London Bridge.

MYTTON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Legs, Saddles, and Haunches.
D. R. DOSSETOR, 5, Russell-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

A USEFUL PRESENT, and always appreciated.—Six-pound Canister of the Company's choice SOUCHONG for One Guinea, carriage-free. The most exquisite article ever offered to the public.—LONDON JOINT-STOCK TEA COMPANY (Limited), 37, Basinghall-street, E.C. HENRY STRUDWICK, Manager.—N.B. All Teas at Wholesale prices. No retail expenses or retail profits.

CANDLES.—Her Majesty's Government use FIELDS' PATENT PARAFFINE CANDLES. Sold everywhere, but see that "J. C. and J. Field" is on each packet. Wholesale at the Works, Upper Marsh, Lambeth.

GUTTER NO MORE.—THE NOZZOLETTE (1s. and 1s. 6d.), for the entire prevention of candles guttering, can be obtained of all Chandlers and Ironmongers. Inventors and Patentees, STEANE BROTHERS and CO., Brixton, London. An Illustrated Prospectus can be had on receipt of postage-stamp.

NEW BOOKS.

Just published, with 40 Illustrations, 5s., cloth elegant,
MERRY SONGS FOR LITTLE VOICES. By Mrs. BRODERIP and THOMAS HOOD. Set to Music by T. MURBY.
This attractive volume contains thirty-eight original songs written and composed expressly for children.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

New Edition, with 90 Illustrations, 3s. 6d., cloth; 6s. coloured,
OLD NURSE'S BOOK OF RHYMES, JINGLES, AND DITTIES. Edited and Illustrated by CHARLES BENNETT.
"The Illustrations are replete with fun and imagination."—Notes and Queries.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Just published, price 2s. 6d., cloth; 3s. 6d. coloured, gilt edges,
THE PRIMROSE PILGRIMAGE: a Woodland Story. By M. BETHAM EDWARDS.
"One of the best books of children's verses that has appeared since the early days of Mary Howitt."—Nonconformist. "Mr. Macquoid's illustrations are charming transcripts of nature."—Art-Journal.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

DARNELL'S EDUCATIONAL WORKS.
COPY-BOOKS gradually advancing from the simple stroke to a superior small-hand. Large post, 6d. each; foolscap, 3d. each.
A SHORT AND CERTAIN ROAD TO READING. 6d., cloth.
GRAMMAR MADE INTELLIGIBLE TO CHILDREN. 1s., cloth.
ARITHMETIC MADE INTELLIGIBLE TO CHILDREN. 1s. 6d., cloth.
A Specimen of either of the above sent post-free at the price of the book.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

Thirty-third Edition, revised, price 4s.,
BUTLER'S OUTLINE MAPS and KEY; or, Geographical and Biographical Exercises. By the late WILLIAM BUTLER; enlarged by his Son.
GAULTIER'S FAMILIAR GEOGRAPHY. 15th Edition. 3s. cloth.
HUGO REID'S FIRST BOOK OF GEOGRAPHY. Price 1s.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

ELEMENTARY FRENCH WORKS.
THE PICTORIAL FRENCH GRAMMAR. By M. DE LA VOYE. Price 1s. sewed, 1s. 6d. cloth.
LES JEUNES NARRATEURS; or, Petits Contes Moraux. By M. DE LA VOYE. 2s. cloth.
LE BABILLARD: An Amusing Introduction to the French Language. Seventh Edition. 2s. cloth.
GRIFFITH and FARRAN, Corner of St. Paul's-churchyard.

THE HISTORY OF JULIUS CÆSAR. By his Majesty, NAPOLEON III., Emperor of the French.—Messrs. Cassell, Petter, and Galpin have the honour to announce that they have been specially appointed the publishers of the English Edition of this Work. The English Edition will be translated under the direction of his Imperial Majesty, and will be revised by him. The First Volume will shortly appear.
CASSELL, PETTER, and GALPIN, London, E.C.

THE COURT CIRCULAR.—The Leading Fashionable Journal, or Weekly Record of Events and Movements in High Life; and of Politics, Literature, Science, and the Arts, with Essays, Reviews, and Tales, and Critical Notices of the Theatres, Concerts, and all Public Amusements. Price 5d. unstamped; 6d. stamped. Annual subscription, £1 1s.—Office, 12, Crane-court, Fleet-street.

THE PALL - MALL GAZETTE. An Evening Newspaper and Review.

Now ready, price 36s., 15s., and 10s., with Map,
POST-OFFICE LONDON DIRECTORY for 1865 (66th year).
The smallest Edition, price 10s., with newly-engraved large Map of London, is by far the cheapest Directory ever published, and comprises in two alphabetical lists, the "Commercial" and "Court," which contain no less than 151,000 names and addresses of persons residing in London, whether carrying on business or occupying a private residence.
COUNTRY DIRECTORIES NOW ON SALE:—
Devonshire and Cornwall.—Yorkshire (North and East Ridings).—Yorkshire (West Riding).—Cumberland.—Durham.—Suffolk.—Westmoreland.—Hampshire, Wiltshire, and Dorsetshire.—Lincolnshire, with Hull.—Somersetshire.—The Six Home Counties: Essex, Herts, Middlesex, Kent, Surrey, and Sussex.—Gloucestershire.—Birmingham, Staffordshire, Warwickshire, and Worcestershire (with Map of Birmingham).—Northamptonshire, Berkshire, Oxfordshire, Bedfordshire, Buckinghamshire, and Huntingdonshire.—Cambridgeshire, Huntingdonshire, and Bedfordshire.—Cambridgeshire.—Leicestershire, Nottinghamshire, Derbyshire, and Rutlandshire.—Lancashire (with Maps of Liverpool and Manchester).—General Trades Directory: containing the Trades of the Twelve Midland Counties.
KELLY and CO., Old Boswell-court, Strand, W.C.; Simpkin, Marshall, and Co., and all Booksellers.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,
ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,
DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.
MITCHELL and Co., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

TO INVENTORS.—All intending Patentees should procure the HANDBOOK presented gratis by the GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Fleet-street, E.C. Patents obtained at moderate charges, and special facilities afforded to Inventors. R. MARSDEN LATHAM, Sec.

POSTAGE STAMPS.—A PRICED CATALOGUE of FOREIGN POSTAGE STAMPS sent, post-free, for two stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 462, New Oxford-street, London, W.C. Standard Guide to Postage Stamp Collecting, post-free, 1s. 1d.

THIRTY-FIVE CHARMING COLOURED SCRAPS (Third Series), printed in oil colours, something in the style of Baxter's celebrated pictures, are now sent post-free for 2s. 10d. in stamps. The subjects are as follow:—The Hop Garden, the Swing, the Nutting Party, Feeding the Chickens, the Cornfield, the Return from Milking, the Dance on the Village Green, the Gleaners, &c.—altogether forming one of the cheapest sets for scrap-books ever submitted to the public.—Address JOHN JERRARD, 172, Fleet-street, London, E.C., where the sets are open for inspection.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

WATCHES and CLOCKS.—FREDC. HAWLEY (successor to Thomas Hawley), many years watchmaker by special appointment to his late Majesty George IV., invites inspection of his carefully-finished Stock, at 148, Regent-street, W. Elegant Gold Watches, £2 15s. to £35; Silver Watches, £1 5s. to £12 12s. Eight-day Timepieces, 12s. 6d. Clocks, striking hours and half-hours, £2 15s. and upwards.—Frederic Hawley, Watchmaker, 148, Regent-street, W. (from the Strand and Coventry-street). Established nearly a century. Merchants and Shippers supplied.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions daily at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free to any address for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

THE TIME O' DAY.—ARTHUR GRANGER'S POCKET TIMEPIECE, warranted to denote Solar Time correctly. 6d. and 1s. each, post-free. Superior Kitchen or Bed-room Clocks, brass works (warranted), 2s. 6d.; Ditto, Alarum, 5s.; to strike the hours and half hours, 7s. 6d. Fancy Goods Dépôt and Cheap Stationery Warehouse, 308, High Holborn, W.C.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER. The People's Printing Press, from £1 5s. to £4 4s. For Letterpress, Lithographic, or Copper-plate Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stamp-maker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR, for Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. A brilliant, easy, and effective transcription of this beautiful song.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG—"HOME ONCE MORE." Composed by STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This ballad, by the composer of the celebrated "Good-bye at the door," will be equally popular with that decided favourite, as it is both pleasing and attractive.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SACRED SONG, MORNING PRAYER. Composed by E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. The truly beautiful words of this song are here admirably set to music.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S NEW MUSIC.—SCHOOL MUSIC. A Green Catalogue, New and enlarged edition, compiled expressly for the use of teachers of music, containing upwards of 2000 works by the best composers, furnished gratis and postage-free. All applications must state "The Green Catalogue." London, 6, New Burlington-street.

Published this day,
A. F. GODFREY'S UNITED SERVICE QUADRILLE, for Piano (with Cornet ad lib.). Finely Illustrated. 4s.
HAMILTON'S MODERN INSTRUCTIONS FOR PIANO. 4s. 453rd Edition.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., New Burlington-street.

PIANO MUSIC.—Just Issued, a NEW ADDENDUM to ROBERT COCKS and CO.'S CATALOGUE of PIANOFORTE MUSIC, &c., embracing about a thousand recent publications. Gratis and post-free.
Address 6, New Burlington-street, London, W.

GRATIS and POSTAGE-FREE, THEMATIC CATALOGUE of NEW VOCAL MUSIC, just published by ROBERT COCKS and CO.
NEW TRICHORD PIANETTES, full compass, for hire, upon very moderate terms.
London: ROBERT COCKS and CO., 6, New Burlington-street, Regent-street.

Admired everywhere. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere.
THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A BENEDICT, most facetiously illustrates the vicissitudes of Admiration, Flirtation, Declaration, Acceptation, Preparation, Celebration, Felicitation, Alteration, Irritation, Altercation, Desperation, and Separation. Post-free, 1s. 6d. The Matrimonial Polka, 1s. 6d.
OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

THE GRETNA GREEN GALOP. By C. J. PAVITT. Just published. One of the best Galops out. Post-free, 1s. 6d.
London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, W.

Eight Hundred Years Old. 10th Edition.
MAGDALENA, CEASE THY WEEPING. Sacred Song. By Peter the Venerable. Translated by the Rev. J. A. Ross. Composed by C. G. HAMILTON. In F and A flat. With Latin and English Words.
"The most interesting and beautiful sacred song ever published."
Post-free, 1s. 6d.; also as a Pianoforte Piece, 1s. 6d.
London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Fifty-fifth Edition of the Drawing-room Piece,
LA PRIÈRE EXAUCÉE (The Prayer Granted). Reply to "La Prière d'une Vierge." Par THECLA BADARZEWSKA. Post-free, 1s. 6d.—OETZMANN, 27, Baker-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. Oetzmann's New and Valuable Catalogue of all the most popular Music of every Composer and Publisher, post-free, 6d.
OETZMANN and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, manufacture these very excellent Pianofortes with metallic plates, registered keyboard, full compass of seven octaves, and every recent improvement, and guarantee them, for tone, touch, and durability, to excel others usually sold at a much higher price. Drawings sent post-free.—Oetzmann and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by Easy Payments, extending over a term of two to three years.—Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge. Established 30 years. Drawings free.

TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, 7 octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe. Tolkien, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, fine tone. Most elegant and durable Piano ever made.—Tolkien, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—BAGATELLE BOARDS, of the best make, from 30s., complete.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—MINIATURE BILLIARD TABLES.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—CROQUET FOR THE CARPET, from 14s., complete.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

HOME AMUSEMENTS.—PARLOUR GAMES, from 1s. to £20.
Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

ELEGANT PRESENTS. A New and Well-assorted Stock of articles suitable for Presentation, from 5s. to £30.
ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London, W.C.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE. Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

MAGIC LANTERNS and DISSOLVING VIEWS. The £5 Set of Magic, Microscopic, and Phanta Apparatus comprises a 3½ in. improved Achromatic Lantern, producing 12 ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; ten slides, containing forty subjects; eight movable comic slides; one panorama, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with view and revolving watermill. S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE GLORIES of the HEAVENS seen by a NEW TELESCOPE for £5, which will also distinguish the features of a man four miles, and time by a church clock ten miles. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. Powerful Pocket Telescopes, Opera, Race, Field, and general Outdoor Glasses.

A NEW High-power BINOCULAR GLASS the cheapest, lightest, most powerful, and portable ever produced. Weighs three ounces, and occupies less room than a card-case. Price 21s., sent post-free. This glass is especially arranged for the combined purposes of the opera, race, and general outdoor use.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE MESSRS. SOLOMONS' NEWLY-INVENTED TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give by day and night extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision.—39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

HOSPITAL for CONSUMPTION and DISEASES of the CHEST, BROMPTON, S.W.—Supported by Voluntary Contributions.—Two Hundred and Ten Beds are now occupied. Liberal and Continuous SUPPORT IS REQUIRED to meet the current expenses of this Charity.
PHILIP ROSE, Hon. Sec.; HENRY DOBBIN, Sec.

LONDON HOMŒOPATHIC HOSPITAL. A DINNER in aid of the Funds of this Institution will be held on WEDNESDAY, the 22nd of FEBRUARY, at the ALBION TAVERN, E.C. The Right Honourable Lord Ebury in the Chair. Tickets 21s. each. It is earnestly hoped that all friends of Homœopathy will support the festival either by their presence or subscriptions.

ILKLEY WELLS HOUSE HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT, near Otley, Yorkshire. Resident Physician, Dr. William Philip Harrison.
The absolute purity and extreme dryness of the air of Ilkley are too well known to require comment. An equable temperature is preserved in the spacious corridors by Stuart and Smith's Patent Apparatus, rendering this superb mansion a desirable WINTER RESIDENCE for the invalid, at which season the treatment is equally efficacious with the summer. For prospectuses apply to Mr. STRACHAN, House Steward as above.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—A BENEFICED CLERGYMAN, formerly Head Master of a Grammar School, WISHES to RECEIVE THREE BOYS, under Twelve, to Educate for the Public Schools. Situation most healthy, fifty miles from London, five from Sea by Railway. Inclusive Terms, 100 guineas per annum. Address, "R. F.," at Steel's, Bookseller, Spring-gardens, "S.W."

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

PICTURE-FRAMES for the CHRISTMAS-TREE.—Handsome Gilt Frame, Glass, and Back, 3s. Maple and Gilt, 5s. The trade supplied with Mouldings, at GEO. REES', 57, Drury-lane, and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

FOR FAMILY ARMS.—Important to Everyone.—Just completed, a valuable Index, containing the Arms, Crests, and Mottoes of nearly every family in England, Scotland, and Ireland, the result of thirty years' labour, extracted from public and private records, church windows, monumental brasses, and sources throughout the kingdom. Families desirous of knowing their correct crest should send name and county. Plain Sketch, 3s. 6d.; Colours, 6s.; Arms, Crest, and Motto, beautifully painted, 12s. Pedigrees traced, with the origin of family names; wills searched; arms quartered and impaled. The "Manual of Heraldry," 400 Engravings, 3s. 6d., post-free, by T. CULLETON, Genealogist, Lecturer on Heraldry, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

CREST ENGRAVED on SEALS or RINGS, 7s. 6d.; on Steel Die, 6s.; Book-plate, with Arms and Crest, 15s.; Handsome Desk Seal, with Crest, 10s.; Livery-button Dies, 2 guineas.—T. CULLETON, Engraver to her Majesty and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 25, Cranbourn-st. (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

SOLID GOLD RINGS, 18-carat, Hall-marked, Engraved with Crest, 43s. Ditto, very massive, for Arms, Crest, and Motto, £3 15s. The Hall mark is a guarantee for pure gold. Gold Seals engraved with Crest, 15s.—T. CULLETON, Seal Engraver, 25, Cranbourn-street, W.C.

NO CHARGE for Engraving Dies with Arms, Crest, Monogram, or Address (as charged for by other houses) if an order be given for a Guinea Box of Stationery, all stamped free.—T. CULLETON, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 50 best Cards, for 2s.; post-free. Wedding and Invitation Cards, 50 for 3s.—T. CULLETON, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

MARK YOUR LINEN with CULLETON'S PATENT ELECTRO-SILVER PLATES. By means of this invention a thousand pieces of linen can be marked in a few hours. Initial Plate, 1s.; Name, 2s. 6d.; Set of Numbers, 2s. 6d.; Crest Plate, 5s., with directions, post-free.—T. Culleton, Diesinker, 25, Cranbourn-street (corner of St. Martin's-lane).

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PRESENTS.—Purses, Pocket-Books, Cigar-cases, Card-cases, Wallets, Opera-glasses, Scent-bottles, Double and Single Pencil-cases, Fans, Note-cases, &c. N.B.—Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon pre-payment.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for Christmas presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

INDOOR GAMES OF EVERY KIND, at very Moderate prices.

Miniature Billiards,	Carpet and Table Croquet,
German Billiards,	Bagatelle (all sizes),
Cannonade, Maugola,	Ringolette,
Squaills, Merelles,	Parlour Quoits,
Chess Men and Boards,	Dominoes,
Draughts, Pope Joan,	Backgammon, &c., &c.

PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

DANCE PROGRAMMES; Invitation and At Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers, Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Overland, Fancy, and Household Papers.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street.

PLAYING CARDS (good), 8d. per pack, 7s. 6d. per doz.; gilt back ditto, 1s. per pack, 11s. per doz. All the new patterns now ready. Clubs, messes, and hotels supplied on liberal terms.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, London.

MINIATURE BILLIARD-TABLES, all Sizes; also Bagatelle-Tables and Croquet-boards.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S, 25, Oxford-street, W.

2s. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

PERFUMED BALL PROGRAMMES, to be had only of
PARKINS and GOTTO,
24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

BALL PROGRAMMES, Printed and Arranged to Order in the most fashionable styles.—A large stock kept ready for immediate use, and perfumed if required at the shortest notice without charge. Invitation Notes of every description.
PARKINS and GOTTO,
24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

RODRIGUES' CARTE de VISITE ALBUMS, in handsome antique morocco and russia bindings; also in ormoulu, walnut, and coromandel. Albums for monograms, crests, and postage-stamps.—At H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly.

RODRIGUES' MONOGRAMS and HERALDIC DEVICES, designed and engraved as gems of art. Notepaper and envelopes stamped in colour relief, and illuminated in the most elegant style. At Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

A VISITING CARD-PLATE ENGRAVED, and 100 CARDS printed, for 4s. 6d. Wedding Cards and Envelopes, Ball Programmes and Bills of Fare printed and stamped with Crest or Address at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. Ninety thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, Manufacturing Silversmiths, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, fiddle pattern, 7s. 4d. per ounce. Queen's pattern, 7s. 6d. per ounce. Many other patterns recently finished, plain or highly ornamented.

Fiddle Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.	Queen's Pattern.	Oz.	£ s. d.
12 Table Spoons	30	.. 11 0 0	12 Table Spoons	40	.. 15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	.. 7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	.. 9 7 6
12 Table Forks	30	.. 11 0 0	12 Table Forks	40	.. 15 0 0
12 Dessert Ditto	20	.. 7 6 8	12 Dessert Ditto	25	.. 9 7 6
2 Gravy Spoons	10	.. 3 13 4	2 Gravy Spoons	12	.. 4 0 0
1 Soup Ladle	10	.. 3 13 4	1 Soup Ladle	11	.. 4 2 6
4 Sauce Ditto	10	.. 3 18 4	4 Sauce Ditto	12	.. 4 16 0
4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		.. 1 0 0	4 Sauce Spoons (gilt)		.. 2 2 0
1 Fish Slice (pierced)		.. 2 10 0	1 Fish Slice (pierced)		.. 3 5 0
12 Tea Spoons	10	.. 3 18 4	12 Tea Spoons	14	.. 5 12 0
1 Pair Sugar Tongs		.. 0 15 0	1 Pair Sugar Tongs		.. 1 5 0

A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of silver spoons, forks, tea and coffee services and table plate, with particulars of ornamental plate for private use or presentation; also, of the best silver-plated manufactures, gold and silver watches, clocks, and jewellery. Gratis on application, and post-free to any part of the British dominions.

For the use of committees, a work is printed with large lithographic drawings of plate kept ready for presentation.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free.

West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street.
City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

GARDNERS' £2 2s. DINNER-SERVICES, complete, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners, Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

CHANDELIERS, MODERATOR, and CARCEL SUSPENSIONS, of the newest design and best quality, in Bronze, Ormoulu, and Crystal, for Dining-room, Library, Billiards, &c. Bracket and Standard Lamps, Candelabra, and Bronzes.—D. FRANCOU, 46, Rathbone-place, Oxford-street, W. (first floor).

DINNER, DESSERT, BREAKFAST, TEA, and TOILET SERVICES.—A large assortment of new and good patterns. Also a beautiful variety of every description of Cut Table Glass. The stock is well selected, and admirably suited for parties furnishing to choose from.

First-class quality, superior taste, low prices.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers, LAMPS FOR INDIA.
Five New Show-rooms.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

CLOCKS, CANDELABRA, BRONZES, and LAMPS.—WILLIAM S. BURTON invites inspection of his Stock of these, displayed in two large show-rooms. Each article is of guaranteed quality, and some are objects of pure virtù, the productions of the first manufacturers of Paris, from whom William S. Burton imports them direct.

Clocks, from	7s. 6d. to £45
Candelabra, from	13s. 6d. to £16 10s. per pair.
Bronzes, from	18s. 0d. to £16 16s.
Lamps, moderateur, from ..	6s. 0d. to £9 0s.
Pure Colza Oil ..	4s. per gallon.

Illustrated Catalogues sent (per post) free.
39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

THE COMPANY'S COTTAGE SUITE of LIGHT OAK DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.

THE COMPANY'S COMPLETE DRAWING-ROOM SUITES.

THE COMPANY'S NEW LIGHT BED-ROOM FURNITURE, for best Bed-rooms.

THE COMPANY'S FRENCH-POLISHED and JAPANNED DEAL BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

THE COMPANY'S BEDSTEADS and BEDDING.

THE COMPANY are SOLE AGENTS for the PATENT SIDE CARRIAGE SPRING PALLIASSE. N.B. The Company supply this article to the trade.

THE COMPANY SUPPLY CARPETS, CHINTZES, and every variety of textile fabric for upholstery purposes, at the lowest possible prices for cash.

THE COMPANY'S complete ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, free by post.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

OAK FURNITURE, at R. GREEN and CO.'S, 24, Mortimer-street, Regent-street, W.—To Clergymen and other Professional Gentlemen.—A complete SUITE of DARK OAK DINING-ROOM FURNITURE, consisting of a handsome 6 ft. Gothic sideboard, with plate-glass back, eight handsome and massive chairs, a telescope dining-table with patent screw, to dine ten or twelve. The price only 34 guineas. N.B. Also a very massive and Antique Suite of Carved Oak Dining-room Furniture, suitable for a nobleman's or gentleman's mansion, much under its value.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE. BALLS, FORMAN, and CO., 170, Oxford-street, have twenty large ware-rooms, with every description of serviceable Furniture, marked in plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

J. MAPLE and CO.'s CHIMNEY-GLASSES, in best French Plates and double gilt. The following is a list of prices:—

Size of Plate.	Outside Measure of Frame.	Price.
40 by 30 inches ..	50 inches wide by 39 inches high ..	£2 12s.
40 by 36 inches ..	50 inches high by 45 inches wide ..	3 15s.
50 by 40 inches ..	63 inches high by 52 inches wide ..	4 15s.
60 by 50 inches ..	74 inches high by 66 inches wide ..	8 8s.

Larger sizes in proportion. Among which are several handsome pairs, 7 ft. 6 in. by 6 ft., price 15 guineas each; girandoles, from 14s. 9d. An Illustrated Catalogue post-free.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE.
Families who study economy with durability and elegance should visit this establishment before giving their orders; it will save them much time, trouble, and expense. A ten-roomed house furnished complete in twenty-four hours. An illustrated priced catalogue sent post-free on application.
Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.
The next house, although in the same trade, is not connected.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS! CARPETS!!
Stout Brussels for Bed-rooms, 2s. 4½d. per yard.
Good Handsome Brussels, 3s. 6d. per yard.
Very choice ditto, new in design, 4s. to 4s. 9d. per yard.
500 pieces of Old Patterns, 2s. 11d. per yard.
Velvet, Axminster, and Turkey Carpets.
145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; and 1 to 12, Tottenham-place, London.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requires no calendering, is both elegant and serviceable.—J. MAPLE and CO. have an immense stock of this fashionable material, suitable for Curtains or Covering for Sofas, Chairs, &c., at moderate prices.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of rooms, to form two settees and two easy-chairs—a great improvement.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Priced-list post-free.

SLACKS' FENDERS and FIREIRONS.
Every New Design always on Show.
Black Fenders, 3s. 6d. to 6s.
Bronzed Fenders, 10s. to 30s.
Bright Steel and Ormoulu, 65s. to 120s.
Bed-room Fireirons, 3s. to 5s. 9d.
Drawing-room do., 10s. 6d. to 60s.
Improved Coalboxes, 4s. 6d. to 30s.
Dishcovers, the set of six, 18s. to 70s.
Catalogues, containing 350 Engravings and Prices, gratis, or sent post-free. Orders above £2 sent carriage-free, per rail.
Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London.

SPECIAL!!
In a few days will be ready for sale, upwards of 5000 WORKED WHITE MUSLIN DRESSES, at 7s. 9d. each, or Seven Guineas for Twenty,
being less than one third the original cost.
This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable lot of White Dresses ever offered.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

REDUCED SILKS.
1000 SILK DRESSES have been re-marked, and are now selling at 1½, 2½, and 3½ guineas the Full Dress (being one half the original cost).
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

SILKS FOR 1865.
Imperial Check and Stripe Glacés,
in new Designs, and suitable for Young Ladies' wear,
from £1 7s. 6d. to £2 19s. 6d.
Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS
(Both Sides Alike),
including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VERY RICH
PLAIN SILKS.
Comprising our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, which can be had in 48 entirely new shades of colour, and made expressly for 1865, at £2 15s. 6d., £3 9s. 6d., and £4 9s. 6d.
the Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PARIS FASHION.
THE New Embroidered SILK ROBE,
from 7 guineas,
including Trimming for Bodice to match the Skirt.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NOW READY, IN GREAT VARIETY,
TARLATAN BALL-DRESSES.
Numerous Designs, on Black, White, or Coloured grounds,
12s. 9d. the extra Full Dress (fine quality).
Plain Tarlatans, all colours, in any quantity.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

MADE-UP COLOURED OR BLACK
TULLE and TARLATAN ROBES,
trimmed in the latest style of fashion,
each pattern in every colour, 18s. 6d. to 5 guineas,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES,
adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses,
18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FANCY FLANNELS (Fast Colours) for
DRESSING GOWNS,
Garibaldi Jackets, and Gentlemen's Shirts.
An endless Variety of new Patterns, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WINTER DRESSES.
Now Selling at Reduced Prices.
The "Popeline Velour."
The "Lyons Silk Poplin."
The "Diagonal Silk Serge."
The "Diagonal Wool Serge."
The "Mexican Cloth."
Patterns of all the above (at the reduced price), post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

PETER ROBINSON
has just purchased several hundred Pieces of Knickerbocker Winceys, and is now selling them at 1s. 6½d. and 1s. 9½d. per yard,
the usual price for the same goods being 2s. 2d. and 2s. 6d.
All other makes of Linseys at reduced prices.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS,
Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A LARGE COLLECTION OF FOREIGN FABRICS FOR
EARLY SPRING DRESSES.
The "Honeycomb Poplinette," 35s. the extra Full Dress.
The "Mexican Cloth" (new colours), 12s. 6d. to 25s.
And a variety of other cheap and useful Dresses ranging from 10s. to 31s. 6d.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE AMPHIKALUPTRA,
a Registered Table-cover,
to be obtained at
PETER ROBINSON'S
New Furnishing Drapery Department,
103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH LIGHT SILKS,
Extra Lengths,
reduced from 15 guineas to 11 guineas,

,,	13	,,	10	,,
,,	9	,,	6½	,,
,,	8	,,	5½	,,
,,	7	,,	5	,,
,,	6	,,	4	,,
,,	5	,,	3	,,

in consequence of the premises being for disposal.
J. ROBINSON (formerly Howell's),
79, Gracechurch-street.

J. ROBINSON, late HOWELL'S, begs respectfully to inform his Customers and the Public that in consequence of not having succeeded in disposing of the premises, the whole of the remaining portion of his stock has undergone a further reduction. It comprises some French and Paisley long Shawls, reduced from 3½ to 2½ guineas, 5½ to 4 guineas,
Rich ditto, 7½ to 6 guineas.
Real Sealskin, Velvet, and Astrakan Mantles.
Black Glacés, Dark and Light French Silks,
now selling at £3; worth £5.
Fancy Dresses, Linsey Skirts, and Quilted Silk Petticoats.
Damask Table Linen, Sheetings, Quilts, &c., which will be found of the best manufacture and at less than present wholesale prices.
79, Gracechurch-street.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES,
by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

FORD'S NOTICE OF REMOVAL.—On and after FEB. 20 his Mantle and Jacket Business will be conducted at more spacious Premises, situated at 76, Oxford-street (opposite the Pantheon).
Thomas Ford, Habit-maker, 42, Oxford-street, London, W.

FORD'S JACKETS are greatly reduced, previous to Removal. A large lot of Cloth and Cashmere Jackets, beautifully braided, 10s. 6d.; Coloured Cashmere Jackets, for every wear, 14s. 6d.—Thomas Ford, 42, Oxford-street.

FORD'S VELVET JACKETS are greatly reduced. Lyons Velvet, beautifully trimmed, 2½ guineas; Silk Jackets, 21s.; Braided Llama Bodices, in all colours, 8s. 6d.—Thos. Ford, 42, Oxford-street, London, W.

FORD'S RIDING-HABITS, 3 to 8 guineas. Quality and fit guaranteed. Illustrations of the new Riding-jacket, with Patterns of Cloth and Directions for Self-measurement, post-free.—Thos. Ford, Habit-maker, 42, Oxford-street, London, W.

SANSFLECTUM JUPONS,
8s. 6d. and 10s. 6d.
Train Bands, 16s. 6d. and 19s. 6d.
French Llama Trimming, 21s. 6d. and 21s. 6d.
"Wear admirably well."—Court Journal.
"The circles are like vulcanite or indiarubber."—Queen.
"Learned in the art of petticoats."—Le Follet.
Valuable Illustrated Work post-free.
E. PHILPOTT, Crinoline and Corset Manufacturer to the Court and Royal Family, 37, Piccadilly, W.

ONDINA, or WAVED JUPONS,
18s. 6d. and 21s.
"The dress falls in graceful folds."—Morning Post.
E. PHILPOTT, 37, Piccadilly.

SPRING SEASON, 1865.
KING and CO. SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that they are now showing their first delivery of NEW SPRING and BLACK SILKS, ordered before the late advance in prices, and 30 per cent under the present market value. Ladies who wish to avoid paying the advance prices should make their Spring purchases this month.
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks,
£1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks,
£1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks,
£1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains,
£1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks,
£1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks,
£2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France,
£2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques,
£3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Black Ducapes,
£1 7s. 6d.
Black Gros Grains,
£1 10s. 6d.
Black Corded Silks,
£1 15s. 6d.
Black Reversible Broché Silks,
£1 17s. 6d.
Black Drap de France,
£2 2s. 6d.
Black Drap de Lyon,
£2 5s. 6d.
Widows' Silks,
£2 10s. 6d.
Richest Black Moire Antiques,
£3 3s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

PETER ROBINSON'S
NEW FAMILY MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson, having removed this branch of his business to new and larger premises, is enabled to display a larger stock of rich and medium-class goods, adapted for Court, Family, and Complimentary Mourning, and at more economical prices than have hitherto been attempted by any other house in this country.
Families requiring Mourning will find it much to their advantage to forward their orders at once to this warehouse. Goods are forwarded, if necessary, to any part of London or the country, free of expense (accompanied by a dressmaker, if desired), immediately on receipt of note or telegram.
Address Peter Robinson,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(The premises lately occupied by Hodge, Lowman, and Orchard.)

BLACK NET EVENING DRESSES.
An elegant variety of entirely new designs in Made-up Skirts. Also, Tarlatan and Grenadine, worked in Gold, Silver, and Soufflé, in beautiful patterns, suitable for Ladies in or out of mourning.
Wreaths, Ornaments, Berthas, Canezous, &c.,
in the latest Parisian Novelties,
at the New Show-rooms of
PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

BLACK SILKS. A Spécialité.
PETER ROBINSON would respectfully draw attention to a large lot of superior Silks, recently purchased, much under usual prices.
Black Glacé . . . / Black Poult de Soie } from 35s to 5 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Gros de Suez . / Black Royal Cord . / Black Barathea . / Black Radzimore . } from 56s. to 7 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Clerical Silks, from 4s. to 10s. per yard.
Black Moire Antique / Black Watered Silks / Black Satins . . . } from 4 to 10 guineas.
or cut by the yard in any length. Patterns free.
Also a variety of very richly-embroidered Silk Dresses,
At PETER ROBINSON'S,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

SILKS, FANCY DRESSES, &c., AT REDUCED PRICES.
GRANT and GASK,
in accordance with their custom at this season of the year, are selling the whole of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK of SILKS, FANCY DRESS FABRICS, VELVETS, MADE-UP SKIRTS, MANTLES, &c., at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.
Most of the MADE-UP SKIRTS, MANTLES, and FANCY ARTICLES will be sold at half their former prices.
Last Season's best FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, all reduced to 6½d. per yard.
Remnants and Odd Dress Lengths of SILKS proportionably cheap.
RICH MOIRE ANTIQUES, in all colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
BEST SILK VELVETS for Mantles and Dresses, in a variety of colours, from 6s. 6d. to 10s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns forwarded to the country.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

EIDERDOWN PETTICOATS.
These Petticoats, now for many years honoured by Royal and Distinguished Patronage, are not to be surpassed for elegance, lightness, and comfort. List of prices on application.
W. H. BATSON and CO., 1, Maddox-street, Regent-street.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS, JACKETS, and Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
I. E. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

MESSRS. JAY beg to invite special attention to the DEEP MOURNING Department of their Establishment, consisting of every article for First and Family Mourning, either made-up and ready for wear or materials cut from the piece, according to the wishes of purchasers.
Silks, Crapes, &c., of the very best, most serviceable, and enduring qualities.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

By Appointment to the Queen, her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that great saving may be made by purchasing Mourning at their establishment, the Stock of Family Mourning being the Largest in Europe. Mourning Costume of every description is kept ready made, and can be forwarded—town or country—at a moment's notice. The most reasonable prices are charged and the wear of every article guaranteed.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Regent-street, near the Circus.
JAYS'.

THE NEACLAINE DRESS. Patented in England, France, Germany, and Belgium.
Messrs. JAY beg to assure their customers and the public that this novel and convenient Dress can be made suitable for wear in the morning, and at dinner, or for evening. The impression is erroneous that "The Neaclaine" is designed for evening wear only. It can be made of silk, or any other material which taste or circumstances may suggest; and, by a reversal of the lappets, a dress is perfected for any occasion required.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

DURING THIS MONTH.
JAMES SPENCE and CO., previous to Stock-taking, will offer the remaining part of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK at Wholesale Prices, consisting of the following Departments, viz.:—

Silks,	Furs,	Made-up Dresses,
Velvets,	Hosiery,	French Merinoes,
Shawls,	Gloves,	Winceys,
Jackets,	Ribbons,	Fancy Dresses,
Mantles,	Trimmings,	Flannels, &c.

Ladies and the Public are respectfully invited to make an early inspection.
Closed on Saturdays at Four o'Clock.
77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

G. POLAND and SON, FUR MANUFACTURERS, 90, Oxford-street. The oldest established in London. Rich Fur Seal Mantles; Velvet and Cloth Cloaks lined and trimmed with fur; Fur Wrappers, Coats, Rugs, &c.

TO LADIES.—BAKER and CRISP will SELL, on MONDAY and following days, 12,000 Bunches of the very best FRENCH FLOWERS, all at One Shilling the bunch of six sprays, positively worth 8s. 6d. and 10s. 6d. each. Ladies in the country are invited to commission their friends in London to purchase freely for them.—198, Regent street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free. Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

EVENING GRENADINES, 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Several hundred White and Coloured Grenadine and Tarlatan Dresses, from 6s. 9d. to 12s. 6d., the extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

1500 DOZEN SOILED FRENCH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, at Half Price. Hemmed, Stitched, or Bordered, at 10s. 6d., 15s., and 1 guinea the dozen. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

A NOVELTY IN MOURNING.—The New CRAPE LAINE, very durable and inexpensive. Patterns free. Obtainable only at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE MOST LADY-LIKE HEAD-DRESSES of the Season are new Velvet Coronets and Rosettes, in Scarlet, Black, Black and White, Green, Blue, Brown, Violet, &c. Coronets, 1s. 9d.; Rosettes and elegant streamers, with single rosette, 1s. 9d.; Double, 2s. 3d.; Treble, 3s. 6d. All post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE ROYAL SILK CORDS 35s. 6d. and 2 guineas (all colours).
Equal in appearance to any dress at 5 guineas.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, at	£1 5s. 6d.	Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks	£1 13s. 6d.	,,
The New Rich Fancy French Silks ..	£2 2s. 0d.	,,

Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

BLACK SILKS! BLACK SILKS! of great Brightness and Durability, from 25s. 6d. Full Dress. Rich Glacés, Gros Grains, Gros Royals, Satins, Satinets, Moire Antiques, &c., 35s. 6d., 2 guineas, to 95s. the Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE EUAPTONIC EIDER-DOWN CORSETS (Dixon and Calvert's Patent) are the most beautiful, the most healthful, and, by all physicians whose opinions have been obtained, the most approved Corset ever invented. The Corset can be inspected and purchased at the Shop, Great Portland-street (entrance, Crystal Palace Bazaar); and at Mr. Weeks's, 54, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that their usual JANUARY SALE of FANCY SILKS is now in progress, and will be continued during the month. Piccadilly and Regent-street.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH,
used in the Royal Laundry,
and awarded the Prize Medal 1862.

A DELIGHTFUL FRAGRANCE and a delicate Skin by using the celebrated UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each. Manufactured by J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. Sold everywhere.

RIMMEL'S ROSEWATER CRACKERS, for Evening Parties, 2s. per Dozen. Six dozen for Half-a-Guinea.—Eugene Rimmel, 96, Strand, and 24, Cornhill.
New West-End Branch—128, Regent-street, London.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS.
Indispensable accompaniments to youth on their return to school are ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL,
for accelerating the growth, preserving and beautifying the hair;
ROWLANDS' KALYDOR,
for improving the skin and complexion, and removing defects; and
ROWLANDS' ODONTO,
or Pearl Dentifrice, for beautifying the teeth and preserving the gums.
Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
 Ask for "ROWLANDS'" articles.

A GREAT REMEDY.—All Diseases of the Skin are improved by one dose of ALEX. ROSS'S VEGETABLE SKIN PILLS. They remove redness, sallowness, &c. 2s. 9d.; or post, for 40 stamps.—Alex. Ross, 248, High Holborn, London.

MADAME RACHEL'S CIRCASSIAN BEAUTY WASH, ALABASTER POWDER, and CIRCASSIAN GOLDEN HAIR WASH, can only be obtained at 47A, New Bond-street.

AURICOMUS FLUID, for producing the golden, flaxen colour on ladies' hair. Prepared by UNWIN and ALBERT, 24, Piccadilly. In bottles, 5s. 6d., 10s. 6d., and 21s. Agent for Paris, Lecomte, Rue de la Paix.

TONIC BITTERS.
WATERS' QUININE WINE,
the most palatable and wholesome Bitter in existence;
an Efficient Tonic,
an unequalled stomachic, and a gentle stimulant.
Sold by Grocers, Italian Warehousemen, Wine Merchants, Confectioners, and others, at 30s. a dozen.
Manufactured by Waters and Williams,
2, Martin's-lane, Cannon-street, London.
Wholesale Agents, E. Lewis and Co., Worcester.

DR. DE JONGH'S
(Knight of the Order of Leopold of Belgium)
LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL,
prescribed by the most eminent medical men throughout the world as the safest, speediest, and most effectual remedy for
CONSUMPTION, CHRONIC BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, COUGHS, RHEUMATISM, GOUT, GENERAL DEBILITY, DISEASES OF THE SKIN, RICKETS, INFANTILE WASTING, AND ALL SCROFULOUS AFFECTIONS, is incomparably superior to every other variety.

SELECT MEDICAL OPINIONS.
DR. LETHEBY,
Medical Officer of Health to the City of London.
"It is, I believe, universally acknowledged that Dr. de Jongh's Light-brown Cod-liver Oil has great therapeutic power; and, from my investigations, I have no doubt of its being a pure and unadulterated article."

DR. LAWRANCE,
Physician to H.R.H. the Duke of Saxe-Coburg and Gotha.
"I invariably prescribe Dr. de Jongh's Cod-liver Oil in preference to any other, feeling assured that I am recommending a genuine article, and not a manufactured compound in which the efficacy of this invaluable medicine is destroyed."

DR. DE JONGH'S LIGHT-BROWN COD-LIVER OIL is sold only in capsuled imperial half-pints, 2s. 6d.; pints, 4s. 9d.; quarts, 9s.; labelled with his stamp and signature, WITHOUT WHICH NONE CAN POSSIBLY BE GENUINE, by respectable Chemists and Druggists.
Sole Consignees,
ANSAR, HARFORD, and CO., 77, STRAND, LONDON, W.C.

ROUND SHOULDERS, Stooping Habits, &c., CURED by wearing CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPANDER, for both sexes. Specially adapted to children to assist growth and produce a symmetrical figure.—66, Berners-st., W. Illustrations sent.

FREEDOM FROM COUGHS in ten minutes is secured by DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS.
To Singers and Public Speakers they are invaluable for clearing and strengthening the voice. Have a pleasant taste. Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., and 11s. per box. Sold by all Medicine Vendors.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet." No connection with anyone of the same name.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior make and construction, for debility, corpulency, pregnancy, &c. Directions for self-measurement sent by post free.—ELAM, 196, Oxford-street.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, B.M. Gres. Guards. Just published, a new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will certainly become as popular as the celebrated Blanche Waltz, by the same composer. Price 4s. Illustrated by Lytch.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new WALTZ by GERALD STANLEY (composer of the "Woodland Whispers Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. A new set of Waltzes on favourite Airs from Gounod's "Faust." By A. LAMOTHE. 2s. 6d. Coldstream Guards' Quadrille on favourite Airs from "Faust," containing Portraits of Faust, Marie, Faure, &c. Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new quadrille on favourite airs from Offenbach's popular opera "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. GODFREY, bandmaster of the Grenadier Guards' Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated by Brandard.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A Galop, from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By the Composer of the Grenadier Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a New Quadrille on Popular Melodies of the Brigade of Guards. By D. GODFREY, Bandmaster of the Grenadier Guards.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS WALTZ. By D. GODFREY. Played everywhere with the greatest success. Price (Solo or Duet) 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Band, 10s.; Brass Band, 5s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP-CUP QUADRILLE. Just published, a New Quadrille on favourite airs, including Sankey's celebrated Song, "The Stirrup Cup." By CHARLES COOTE. Price 4s. Illustrated by Brandard.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published. A new set of Lancers, composed on all the familiar and favourite tunes of the day. Price 4s. Illustrated by Brandard.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HUNT QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille, on popular hunting melodies. By CHARLES D'ALBERT. Illustrated by Brandard. Price 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HAHUM-SCARUM GALOP. By CHARLES D'ALBERT (Composer of the "Stirrup Cup Galop"). Illustrated. Price 3s.; Duet, 3s.; Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 5s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE JOCKEY GALOP. By A. F. GODFREY, D. M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with portraits in costume of Fordham, H. and T. Aldcroft, Wells, Custance, and Challoner. Frost, Photographer by Mayall, of Regent-street. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MELANGES OF MOODS. Just published, a new Fantasia for the Pianoforte, founded on the Romance at the 5th Symphonie Concert at St. James's Hall, with immense success. Price 3s. Illustrated by Brandard.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. Twelve brilliant Galops on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular Fantasia on Balfe's MURRAY HARTSHORNE. Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S CUJUS ANIMAM (from the "Stabat Mater"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. Also a Duet-score for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Fantasia on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 4s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS. MY FLOWERETS. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

MADRID. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

DAUER'S LA SERA. Romance Gondola Song for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BENEDETTE'S NEW PIECE.

BENEDICT'S SEA BREEZES.—Brilliant Waltz for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE JOSEPH HORNSMOUTH SET.

MAY MORNING. A Sketch for the Pianoforte. By JOSEPH HORNSMOUTH. Price 3s.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and Books advertised in this paper, or withdrawn from circulation for permanent sale, may be had at CHAPPELL and CO.'S, 50, New Bond-street.

THE PRETTY DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

SOUVENIS TOI, GANZ. 3s. 6d. Sentiment Pastoque. Jucho. 4s. Mountain Dance. Servais. 4s. Mountain Song. Servais. 4s. La Danseuse. Grand Galop. Walter Macfarren. 4s. Inclination Waltzes. Charles Coote. 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW HOPWOOD QUADRILLES.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-TOOLE-Y-TECHNIC. Or Double-tongue study by Nicholas Mori. Tutti and Pedal, lustrated, comprising "By the sea and the ocean," "Jolly Nose," "Bonny Dundee," "Married to Money," "Rory O'More," and "Bonnie Dale." Price 4s.

The Quadrilles performed at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and played a month at Cremorne Gardens.—Price 4s.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSICAL PERIODICAL, price 6d.

COOTE'S ALBUM OF NEW DANCE MUSIC for 1865. Contains Quadrille, Waltz, Polka, Schottische and Round in Silk.

"This beautiful book of new dance music forms one of the most simple and elegant New Year's offerings ever yet published, being illustrated with fashionable costumes, and containing plain, but well-engraved, music.—The Illustrated Times.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

BISABELI POLKA. Price 3s.—"One of the most delicious polkas we have ever listened to, and will be sure to be soon every where practised."—Morning Post.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE LAST SUNDOWN.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. With a beautiful illustration of the Game in colours.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S INNOCENCE VALSE. Price 4s. "This simple and beautiful Valse has become quite the rage of the season."—Court Journal.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE GALOP IS COOTE'S PRINCE IMPERIAL GALOP. Price 3s. Solo—united eighty at all the balls.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

THE BEST SET EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S POLLY PERKINS QUADRILLE. Price 4s. Introducing Gilbert's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Sweetness," "Have you seen the Donkey?" "Polly Perkins."—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PERFORMED AT ALL THE STATE BALLS.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Graduated the best set of Valses by this popular Composer. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S CURE LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "Be Easy in the Morning," "Kitty Clover," and other popular Airs. A real merry set. No finale programme complete without them. HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S DÉBUTANTE VALSE. Price 4s. Also, by the same Composer, LA FIANCEE VALSE. Price 4s.—HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street.

A NEW SONG BY CAMPANA.

COME WHERE THE SUNLIGHT SLUMBERS. Sung by Madame Rudersdorff. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

SONG AT C. C. C. CRICKET MINSTRELSY.

SNOW-WHITE BLOSSOMS. Ballad. 2s. 6d. And COME OVER THE STREAM, CHARLIE. 2s. 6d. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

CONFEDERATE SONGS. No. 1. "We Southern Boys." No. 2. "We Southern Boys." No. 3. "We Southern Boys." 4s. each. It is my country's call. 3s. 6d. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE SONG, BY F. BUCKLEY.

OH! IF I HAD SOME ONE TO LOVE ME, By trio and trio-treble in effect. Price 3s. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE THIRTEENTH EDITION OF

COME WHERE THE MOONBEAMS LINGER. By FRED. BUCKLEY. Price 3s. 6d. Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS.

The Wreck Wife	3s. 6d.
On board o' the Kangaroo	3s. 6d.
The Old Bachelor	3s. 6d.
The Partner Blind	3s. 6d.
The Fisher Boy	3s. 6d.
A Sporting Tale	3s. 6d.
Polly Perkins	3s. 6d.
Isabella Jones	3s. 6d.
Look at the Girls	3s. 6d.
Have you seen her lately?	3s. 6d.
Sentiny	3s. 6d.
Dusty McGuire	3s. 6d.

Hopwood and Crew, 42, New Bond-street.

THE NEW LEYBACH NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 47. Price 1s.

THE NEW RUCHE NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 46. Price 1s.

THE NEW MENDELSSOHN NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 45. Price 1s.

THE NEW STEPHEN HELLER NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 43. Price 1s.

MDME. OURY'S SOUVENIRS DESJEUNONS. Now ready, the 6th number of this much Ada. In the same style and composition as her celebrated Reminiscences. Price 4s.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

MDME. OURY'S ADIEU ROBIN GRAY and BONNIE DUNDEE. A very popular and showy piece. Price 3s.—Boosey and Co.

CHERE AMIE VALSE, founded on the most lovely of all Rosina's Melodies, has already passed through three editions. Price 4s. Also, by the same Composer, the Rosina Waltz. Price 4s.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

GENTLE FLOWER, CANST THOU TELL! Madame Sherrington's popular Ballad in F. Is Rosina's new Song. Price 3s. Also, Madame Oury's most elegant Ballads which for a long time it has been our great fortune to have.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street, Regent-street.

MDME. ARABELLA GODDARD'S NEW BALLAD, LA SERA, Is published in C and D. Rosina's sweetest expressly for and performed by Miss. Goddard during her Pianoforte Recitals. Price 3s.—Boosey and Co.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. New Song. Published this day. Price 3s. Boosey and Co.

THE BELLS WHISPER. By CLARIBEL. New Song. Published this day. Price 3s. Boosey and Co.

DO YOU REMEMBER? By CLARIBEL. Sung by Miss Poole at the Monday Pops. Price 3s. Boosey and Co.

TAKE BACK THE GIFT. By CLARIBEL. A New Song, but already an immense success. By CLARIBEL. Price 3s. Boosey and Co.

CIOJA GALOP BRILLANTE. By GEORGE F. FORBES, Author of "Rappelle Toi" and "Capri."—One of the favourite waltz galops of the season.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

DREAM, BABY MINE. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. Sung with the greatest success by Miss Rosina Wyndham. Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

TWELVE SONGS of the AMERICAN WAR, in "Boosey Musical Cabinet," No. 88, with Pianoforte Accompaniments, price 1s. Contents:—

1. FEDERAL SONGS.	CONFEDERATE SONGS.
We are marching through Georgia.	Dixie.
Silver Heels.	Bonnie Blue Flag.
Rally round the Flag, boys!	Maryland, my Maryland.
Tenting on the old Camp-ground.	Stonewall Jackson's Way.
The Vacant Chair.	Dixie's Land.
Battle-cry of Freedom.	Bonnie Blue Flag.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

120 CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS' SONGS in the CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS' SONG-BOOK, price 1s. Including the Songs of Mr. Christy, Mr. Pell, Mr. Harry Clifton, and Mr. Sam Cowell.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

FORBES'S CONFEDERATE MARCH on the celebrated Air, "My Maryland." Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NOVELLO'S STANDARD GLEE-BOOK. Volume I. Contains Sixty Favourite English Glees by the best Authors. With Pianoforte Accompaniments. Edited by J. ALFRED NOVELLO. Price 5s., handsomely bound in cloth, with gilt edges. Price 4s. 6d.
Lucas, Novello and Co., 35, Dean-street, Soho; and 24, Poultry.

SIXTY GLEES FOR HALF-A-CROWN. Order "Novello's Standard Glee-Book." Parts 1 to 5. Price Sixpence each. Lucas, Novello and Co., 35, Dean-street, Soho; and 24, Poultry.

TWO GLEES FOR ONE PENNY in "Novello's Standard Glee-Book." Thirty Numbers, each containing Two Glees. Large print.
London: NOVELLO and Co.

NEW MUSIC.

HALF PRICE.—All full-priced Music sent post-free. Half the Published Price.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

BLUMENTHAL'S NEW PIANOFORTE PIECES.
Les Adieux, in E. La Stella, in Ab. Toni: Toni: Toni: in Ab.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

WALLACE'S NEW MAZURKA.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ASCHER'S LE CHANT DES NAIADES. 3s. Fresh and charming. Performed by Arabella Goddard, Charles Hallé, Gye, and Mr. Lindsay Sloper.
BRINLEY RICHARD'S LEAH'S SONG AND MARGUERITE'S SONG published in C and E. Price 3s. each.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

GOUNOD'S New Ballad, FOR LACK OF GOLD and SOLDIER'S CHORUS. Both Beautifully Illustrated. One of the most charming melodies ever written by Gounod. Price 3s. each.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

A SCHER'S CAVALIER'S STEED, in C and E. Splendidly Illustrated.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S New Serenade, THE GONDOLIER'S LAST GOOD-NIGHT! Sung in every concert-room in London.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

BENEDICT'S HOME IN CLOUDLAND. 3s. Sung by all the principal singers of the day. Illustrated.—CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

SCHLOESSER'S MY LOVE IS AN OLDEN STORY. 3s. Beautifully Illustrated. In E and F. CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

WALLACE'S BIRD OF THE WILD WING. Song. With elegant Illustration. 3s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

SMART'S CHARGE, CHESTER! Illustrated by Brandard. 3s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

ARDITI'S BEAUTY, SLEEP (the celebrated Bandit's Song). Published in English and Italian. 3s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

A RHYME AND OF HOME! (the Serenade "Bandit") adapted to English words. 3s.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

CAPSTAN SONG BY RANDEGGER.

ROUND WITH HER BOYS, YO-HO! In C and F. 3s. Illustrated.
The best rum song of the day.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

COO! SAYS THE GENTLE DOVE. Written by Henry Farrell; Composed by W. C. Levey. In G and A. Illustrated. 3s. Splendid Drawing-room Song.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

HURRAH FOR THE BOMBARDIER! By LEVEY. In A and F. Illustrated. This capital song is sung everywhere with immense success.
CRAMER and Co. (Limited), 201, Regent-street.

GRANDE FANTAISIE, sur les deux motifs de "God bless the Queen," and "Patient pour la Syrie." Par MDME. W. H. HOLMES. Price 4s.
ADDISON and Co., 210, Regent-street.

THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY. Written by MACFARREN. Composed by HENRY SMART. 3s. 6d. "I leave now by heart but full." Ballad. 3s. 6d. "I leave now by heart but full." Duet. 4s.
EWER and Co., 390, Strand, corner of Exeter-street, Lendon.

MACFARREN'S OPERETTA, THE CHARCOAL MAN. "The Charcoal Man is a performance as it is indisputable."—Times. "The most finished work—graceful, tuneful, and dramatic."—Queen. This charming production is particularly adapted for private performances. The three principal characters, with Chorus, Pianoforte Accompaniments, price 4s. 6d., will be ready on the 1st of February.
EWER and Co., 42, Regent-street.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S LATEST SONG.

THE GARDEN OF ROSES.—The most favourite of all Miss Gabriel's compositions. Illustrated by Brandard. Price 3s., 17, Baker-street, Portman-sq., W.

PIANOFORTES FOR HIRE,

BOOSEY and CO.'S, 24, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S SIX-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, with all the recent improvements, suitable for a small room.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S TEN-GUINEA DRAWING-ROOM MODEL COTTAGE, full toned, suitable for class-singing or dancing.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS at 20, 25, 30, and 35 guineas, the most effective and inexpensive for the church, or with great power for piece of worship, with two rows of keys and pedals.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, 37 guins if guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument, although small in size, possesses a rich and powerful tone, and is recommended to those who combine with the workmanship is of the best description.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant walnut case, with fret front, trichord throughout.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and no better can be derived. It is in a handsome walnut case, with fret front and keyboard, as well as the most improved of every other description.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, which are the most perfect and unequalled instruments for tone, quality, and compass, are kept in stock by CASE and SONS, Concertina Manufacturers, 4 to 12 guineas.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-st.

PRATTEN'S SEVEN-GUINEA FLUTE.—PRATTEN'S NEW IMPROVED FLUTE. This instrument, the result of many years' experiments, possesses a perfect equality of tone throughout the entire compass, and is unequalled for power, purity, and brilliancy. Pratten's Model Flute; in addition to which, though Mr. Pratten's ingenious improvements are applied to this instrument, it is made on the old system of fingering, and is therefore suitable for the amateur as well as the professor. Pratten's Model Flute with Boehm's system, 12 guineas.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES from the celebrated makers of Geneva, made expressly to their order, and containing all the newest and most popular airs. Prices from 2 guineas to 100 guineas.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street, Regent-street.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL. Full Compass, with all the latest improvements, warranted perfect in tone and tune, and to stand any climate. From 5 to 20 guineas each.
BOOSEY and Co., 24, Holles-street.

BROADWOOD and COLLARD, Manufacturers of Pianofortes to Her Majesty, have had nearly a second year in use, at 25 guineas per annum, and at the end of three years the instrument becomes the property of the hirer. Lists of terms and further particulars, free and postage paid.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, W.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they cannot take system of three years' hire to all parts of the United Kingdom, satisfactory references being required. Lists of terms, and all particulars, may be had at the wholesale pianoforte Galleries, 201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited), manufacturers for India, respectfully call all PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with metallic plates, trichord throughout, and every improvement, including Cramer's Check Action, Upward Grill and extension, are fastened upon the manufacturers of these instruments, which, for their excellent quality of tone and durability, have obtained the highest reputation in India.—Cramer, 201, Regent-street, Manufactory, 7, 8, 9, packed in cases lined with zinc, at any house part, for 25 guineas. Size—Height, 3 ft. 11½ in., width, 4 ft. 4½ in., depth, 2 ft. 1½ in.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S—ALEXANDRE'S best instruments.

No. 1 and 2. Model Organ	per Month.
3. Five Stops	12s. 6d.
4. Five Stops	15s. 6d.
5. Six Stops	18s. 6d.
6. Fourteen Stops	25s. 6d.
7. Fourteen Stops, Expression Action	30s. 6d.
10. Fourteen Stops	42s. 6d.
11. Fourteen Stops	52s. 6d.
12. Twenty-one Stops	63s. 6d.
13. Eight Stops, Two Rows of Keys and Pedals	84s. 6d.
14. Twenty-one Stops, Two Rows of Keys and Pedals	105s. 6d.

CHAPPELL'S NEW HARMONIUM.
No. 1. Three Stops, Percussion and Knee Swell ... 21s. 6d.
No. 2. Five Stops ... 31s. 6d.
No. 3. Eleven Stops ... 42s. 6d.
N.B. A considerable reduction from the above charges on hiring for three months or longer.
CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street, undertake and supply for an Instrument within six months from the time of hiring, the money paid for hire will be given up to the purchase of any Instrument.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S FOREIGN PLANINO (the only Planino to which the Prize Medal was awarded), a very elegant Cottage Pianoforte, with all the latest improvements, and most perfect touch, admirably adapted to Small Rooms, Schools, Dancing Classes, &c. Price 25 guineas. Hire, 2 guineas per month.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD and COLLARD and ERARD. The best Pianofortes of every description, including all the most recent improvements, manufactured under the personal care and direct with option of purchase) at the new Show-rooms of the Pianoforte Gallery, 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE. In solid rosewood wood, with trichord throughout, English manufacture, with perfect check action, the full compass, and every recent improvement. Also, a Pianoforte of similar quality in walnut wood, with fret front. Either of these pianofortes or at once the same price, whether new or second-hand.
50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM ORGAN, with Two Rows of Keys, can be made, price 50 guineas (cost estimated at 70 guineas), by the Inventor and Sole Manufacturer of Harmoniums.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two footboards, and is up with the most recent improvements, and is equal to all other cheap Harmoniums. Descriptive lists on application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECOND-HAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, in perfect order, and as good as new, at greatly-reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE EXHIBITION MODEL HARMONIUM, with Two Rows of Keys, a novel invention, and Venetian swell, worked by the heel of the right foot, price 30 guineas. To be had only at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)
LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which period they may further, if approved, purchase, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
Pianofortes in handsome rosewood or walnut cases ... 10 guineas per annum.
10-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage ... 15 guineas per annum.
Semi-grand Pianofortes ... 25 guineas per annum.
Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, whether Pianoforte being ordered for sale or hire, the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) beg to call the attention of the Nobility and Gentry to their Pianofortes for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
36-guinea, 3 octaves, 3 unstrung ... 2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 7 octave, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 7 octave, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 4 guineas per quarter.
50-guinea, 7 octave, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 3 guineas per quarter.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) beg to call the attention to their Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
36-guinea, 10 stops, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 2 guineas per quarter.
50-guinea, 10 stops, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 3 guineas per quarter.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited)
Let on HIRE the following HARMONIUMS for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
Harmoniums in handsome rosewood or walnut cases ... 10 guineas per annum.
Harmoniums with two rows of keys and pedals ... 15 guineas per annum.
Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, whether Harmonium being ordered for sale or hire, the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) Let on Hire the Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—
36-guinea, 3 octaves, 3 unstrung ... 2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 7 octave, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 2 guineas per quarter.
50-guinea, 7 octave, oak, rosewood, or walnut ... 3 guineas per quarter.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE. 37 guineas. Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small instrument, which, for its size, is the most powerful and effective, and, consequently, the most suitable for a small room or for class-singing or dancing. Its compass is from the fourth octave below the treble stave to the fourth octave above it, and the tone is full and rich, and even in the bass. In rosewood or walnut, 37 and 39 guineas.
Cramer and Co. are particularly desirous that the instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or repeating action, which is the only one that can be relied upon for permanent use.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street.

BROADWOOD'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, price 120 guineas in Rosewood, and 130 guineas in Walnut—a Cottage Grand, with the full compass of seven octaves, and possessing a rich and powerful tone. Messrs. Broadwood, Cramer and Co. have selected the very finest specimens, and they have much pleasure in recommending it for the use of professional performers. The prices name as these charges by the manufacturers for the ordinary Cottage Pianoforte. The Cottage Grand is also supplied on the three years' hire system, and even in the Exhibition. In rosewood or walnut, 37 and 39 guineas.
Cramer and Co. are particularly desirous that the instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or repeating action, which is the only one that can be relied upon for permanent use.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street.

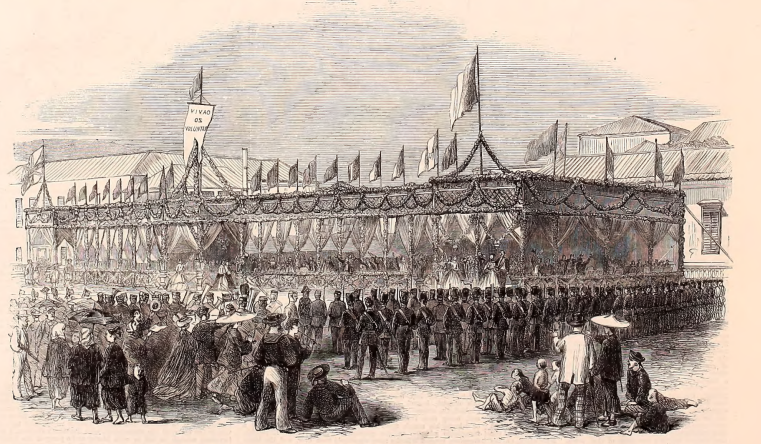
BROADWOOD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 150 guineas in Rosewood, and 160 guineas in Walnut—CRAMER and CO. have now in their Gallery a large number of these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The Boudoir Grand is the most complete Cottage Grand that has been produced, and the full compass of seven octaves may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which other firms give the instrument for a term of three years, after which, and without any further payment, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

COLLARD'S NEW SEMI-GRAND, price 110 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. exhibit the largest selection of these Pianofortes in London, including the new Model, 90 and 100, Rosewood or Walnut.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street.

CRAMER'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 110 guineas in Rosewood, and 120 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. have now in their Gallery a large number of these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The Boudoir Grand is the most complete Cottage Grand that has been produced, and the full compass of seven octaves may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which other firms give the instrument for a term of three years, after which, and without any further payment, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, in Rosewood and Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. have selected from the manufactories of these celebrated makers the most perfect specimens of the Boudoir Grand, and they have much pleasure in recommending them to the attention of the nobility and gentry. The prices are the same as those charged by the manufacturers for the ordinary Cottage Pianoforte. The Boudoir Grand is also supplied on the three years' hire system, and even in the Exhibition.
201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street, the Largest in Europe.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they cannot take system of three years' hire to all parts of the United Kingdom, satisfactory references being required. Lists of terms, and all particulars, may be had at the wholesale pianoforte Galleries, 201, Regent-street, and 207, Regent-street.



INDIAN PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited), manufacturers for India, respectfully call all PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with metallic plates, trichord throughout, and every improvement, including Cramer's Check Action, Upward Grill and extension, are fastened upon the manufacturers of these instruments, which, for their excellent quality of tone and durability, have obtained the highest reputation in India.—Cramer, 201, Regent-street, Manufactory, 7, 8, 9, packed in cases lined with zinc, at any house part, for 25 guineas. Size—Height, 3 ft. 11½ in., width, 4 ft. 4½ in., depth, 2 ft. 1½ in.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

VISIT OF THE HONG-KONG VOLUNTEER CORPS TO MACAO.

THE Portuguese town of Macao, at the mouth of the Canton River, in China, is distant about forty miles from the Island of Hong-Kong; and the Governor, Senhor J. R. Coelho do Amaral, by a letter to Admiral Sir Hercules Robinson, the Governor of Hong-Kong, lately invited the volunteer corps of the English settlement to visit Macao as his guests. The Hong-Kong volunteers, through their commanding officer, Major Frederick Brine, of the Royal Engineers, with the full approval of Sir Hercules Robinson, accepted this courteous invitation. On Saturday, Nov. 19, they embarked at Fedder's-wharf, in the steamer Feiseen, and arrived at Macao, landing on the Praya Grande between one and two o'clock in the afternoon. The rifles did not muster so well as the artillery, but, including the officers, there was a total of 114. The artillery brought with them a field battery of four three-pounders and two 24-inch howitzers. As Major Brine and the other officers stepped ashore, they were received by Mr. Marques and other citizens of Macao, who had formed themselves into a committee of management. Having exchanged a few words of salutation with these gentlemen, the volunteers formed in capital style, with their band in front, and marched to the Governor's Palace, where they saluted his Excellency, not only with a volley, responded to by the San Francisco fort, but with three hearty cheers, returned from the balcony of the palace, while the band of the Macao battalion of Portuguese troops struck up "God Save the Queen." The Englishmen then went to their lodgings at the Royal Hotel. In the evening they mostly turned out upon the parade-ground and joined in the social promenade of the citizens, which was enlivened by the music of the band and the brilliant illuminations of the palace and hotel. On Sunday morning the Governor of Macao, with his suite, called upon the officers of the corps at the hotel, bade them welcome, and heartily shook hands with them. His Excellency even sent his Aide-de-camp and two other officers to accompany the Englishmen to the Protestant chapel, where their honorary chaplain, the Rev. T. Stringer, performed Divine service. In the afternoon the volunteers were entertained with a déjeuner laid out in the temporary pavilion erected on the parade-ground for this occasion. Our Illustration, which represents the volunteers drawn up in front of this pavilion, is taken from photographs with which we are furnished by Messrs. S. W. Halsey and Co., of Hong-Kong. The Governor, with his Staff, was on the parade-ground soon after the volunteers had formed. He was received with a Royal salute from their field battery, fired with admirable precision by Lieutenant Cohen and his gunners. This was replied to by the guns of the fort; and when the infantry had also saluted and the band had played the Portuguese national air, the corps were put through some manœuvres for his Excellency's inspection, and then went into the Pavilion. It was very tastefully decorated, both inside and outside, with flags of all nations and a profusion of evergreen garlands ranged in the form of an arcade. At one end was the band of music; at the other an ante-room for Lady Amaral and the ladies of Macao. His Excellency the Governor presided at table, and proposed the health of the Hong-Kong volunteers, in whose behalf Major Brine returned thanks. Many other toasts, including the health of the Governor of Hong-Kong, were duly honoured. This repast was followed in the evening by one of more select conviviality; the volunteer officers, thirty-eight in number, dining with Governor Amaral and his lady at the palace. At night there was an illumination, still more brilliant than that of the evening before, with a display of Chinese fireworks. Next morning, Monday, the 21st, the volunteers re-embarked in their steamer, again saluted by the guns of the fort, and by those of a ship in the harbour. So they returned to Hong-Kong, very much pleased with their hospitable treatment in the Portuguese town.

GENERAL SHERMAN, OF THE FEDERAL ARMY.

VISIT OF THE HONG-KONG VOLUNTEER CORPS TO MACAO: THE PARADE IN FRONT OF THE PAVILION.

ILLUSTRATIONS OF THE WAR IN AMERICA.

GENERAL SHERMAN.

THE capture of Atlanta in October last, followed by the march across Georgia to the seacoast, and recently by the capture of Savannah, has made General Sherman one of the most notable officers in the Federal army. We give a Portrait of him and, on the next page, a Map of his route from Atlanta to Savannah. William T. Sherman was born in Ohio, in the year 1818. He entered, when young, the United States Military Academy at West Point, where he graduated in the same class with General Thomas and then obtained his Ensign's commission. He was promoted to a lieutenancy in 1841; and his conduct during the Mexican war in California won him the rank of Captain. Upon the outbreak of the civil war in 1861, he had a fresh opportunity of active service, being appointed Colonel of the 13th Regiment of infantry, which he commanded at the Battle of Bull Run. He was soon afterwards raised to the rank of Brigadier-General and succeeded General Anderson in command of the department of Ohio, from which, however, he was removed because of a difference of opinion between himself and the War Department as to the amount of forces required in the Western States. At the Battle of Shiloh he took so prominent a part that General Halleck reported the victory to be mainly due to Sherman. He was therefore promoted to be Major-General and intrusted with the command of the fifth division of Grant's army, with which he was engaged in the siege of Vicksburg. During the last twelvemonth General Sherman has performed those important operations in the States of Tennessee and Georgia which have made his reputation second to none in the military service of the Federal Government.

GENERAL SHERMAN'S MARCH THROUGH GEORGIA.

The map of General Sherman's route from Atlanta to Savannah, which is engraved on this page, requires but little explanation. It will be perceived that the central region of the State of Georgia, an upland country, open and well-watered, fertile of wheat, cotton, and Indian corn, is traversed by two railroads, from south-east to north-west, converging at Atlanta, but running for some distance parallel to each other, and forming the chief link of railway connection between Virginia and the States of Alabama and Mississippi, now the south-western limit of the Confederacy. One of these railroads is the Georgia Central, running from Savannah to Macon, 190 miles, thence to Atlanta, by the Macon and Western Railroad, 101 miles, making the total distance from Savannah to Atlanta by railroad 291 miles. The other is the Georgia Railroad, running from Augusta to Atlanta, at from forty to sixty miles north of the Georgia Central Railroad, and making the distance to Atlanta from Augusta 171 miles. The plan of General Sherman's march contemplated the covering of these two lines of railroad, their consequent destruction, and a concentration of his forces at or beyond Milledgeville, with Kilpatrick's cavalry force well dispersed in front, and vigilantly covering each flank. The movement and route of his infantry columns were so well masked that, from first to last, the enemy were in total ignorance of the position of his main body, and only discovered the track of his infantry columns after they had left their vigilant foes many miles in the rear. This stratagem was aided by a feigned approach to Macon with the cavalry of his right wing, which completely occupied the attention of the Confederate General Cobb, whose militia, collected at that point, were the only forces from which General Sherman could expect any opposition. It was on the 12th of November that the right wing of the Federal army, under General Howard, moved out from Atlanta and began its march, proceeding southward on the way to Macon, and then turning eastward, while the cavalry harassed and provoked the Confederates within a few miles of that town. Meanwhile, on the 14th of November, the Federal left wing, under General Blocum, set forth from Atlanta, moving almost directly east, through Covington and Oxford to Madison, thence turning southward to the rendezvous at Milledgeville. On the same day General Sherman himself, with his own Staff, took the road to Macon, so as to come up with General Howard. The crossing of the River Ocmulgee was the first step which indicated that he would pass by Macon without attacking that town; and if the Confederates had been aware of this intention, they might have been prepared to interrupt his passage here; but on that very day, Nov. 20, the Federal cavalry were at Gordonville, only eight miles from Macon, cutting up the railroad and telegraph, burning a foundry, and doing other mischief. Hence the Georgia militia, under Cobb and Phillips, were induced to stand on the defensive at Macon; and it was not until the 22nd, when Sherman was already at Milledgeville, that they made an assault upon his rear-guard, which was merely a skirmish without result, though it cost them 600 killed and wounded. The right and left wings of the Federal army, having destroyed the railroads and the public buildings of every town through which they passed, even to the Methodist college at Oxford, with its fine library and museum, came to a junction at Milledgeville, and remained three days in that city, where the State Legislature had been holding its session a few days before. On the 24th General Sherman left Milledgeville, dividing his army as before; and it marched, by the routes shown in our Map for each wing respectively, to Millen, a distance of seventy-five miles, in eight days, obtaining vast quantities of forage and much cattle, especially in the neighbourhood of Sparta, in Hancock County. The active movements of the cavalry, under Kilpatrick, contributed greatly to deceive the enemy as to the position of the Federal army. It was necessary to conceal the real direction of the march; for had Wheeler, who commanded the Confederates in this district, known in time that Augusta was certainly to be avoided, the entire force there could have been sent down to Millen, and, being thus thrown in Sherman's front, would have resisted or delayed his march upon Savannah, and supplied in the end a formidable addition to the garrison of that place. Kilpatrick, therefore, pressed Wheeler more vigorously than ever, and the latter fell back towards Augusta, which put him out of Sherman's way most effectually, again leaving him in the rear of the very army whose advance he was endeavouring to resist. The remainder of Sherman's march was from Millen to Savannah, a distance of seventy-nine miles. By the 10th of December he had arrived within five miles of that city, but, with sound military judgment, he made preparations at once, not for an assault upon Savannah, but for the capture of Fort M'Allister, thereby opening the Ogeechee River, communicating with the fleet, and making a water base on that river at any point he chose, directly in the rear of Savannah; and also cutting off all communication between Savannah and the southern part of the State, via the Savannah, Albany, and Gulf Railroad, which has heretofore been an important avenue of supplies to the rebels, from the vast numbers of beef-cattle from Florida transported over it. Accordingly, a division of troops from the 14th Corps, under General Hazen, was sent down on the 13th, and the fort was gallantly carried by assault, with its entire garrison and stores. This rendered the situation of the army perfectly secure. The lines were stretched across the peninsula in the rear of Savannah, the left resting firmly on the Savannah River, about three miles above the city, and the extreme right on the Ogeechee river, at Kingsbridge. Having cut off all the railroads leading to Savannah and obtained command of the Savannah and Ogeechee rivers, he had made it impossible for General Hardee to hold the city, which was consequently abandoned by the Confederate General and taken possession of by Sherman in time to present it to Mr. Lincoln "as a Christmas-box."

RENDEZVOUS OF MOSBY'S MEN IN THE PASS OF THE BLUE RIDGE, SHENANDOAH VALLEY.

Our Special Artist and Correspondent now at the head-quarters of General Lee, in Virginia, has sent us a sketch representing a night-scene which he lately witnessed in his excursion up the Shenandoah Valley—the rendezvous of Colonel Mosby's corps of irregular cavalry in a pass of the Blue Ridge Mountains. But we may leave our Correspondent to describe this subject himself:—"During my late visit to the valley of the Shenandoah with Kershaw's division, I was fortunate enough to fall in with Mosby and a party of his famous band. Though I found it extremely difficult to meet with this renowned partisan chieftain, there are those amongst the Federals who find him when they least expect and much less desire it. Your readers, no doubt, have frequently read paragraphs from the American war news mentioning that Mosby had made another swoop from the mountains of the Blue Ridge, capturing a Yankee supply-train and its escort. To my mind he is the most astonishing guerrilla leader in the Confederacy; and the tales one hears of him sound more like the romance of war than the reality; but when it is considered how few men he usually attacks with, his achievements are perfectly marvellous. With comparatively a handful of troopers, he does not hesitate to dash on a train of two or three hundred waggons, fighting and dispersing a guard four or five times his number, and appropriating to the use of the Confederacy the supplies and transportation intended for Sheridan's army. At other times he will fly at much higher game, piercing the centre of a large column on the march, and before either the van or rear are aware of the cause of the momentary tumult, he will be flying to the mountains with a goodly number of prisoners. It is impossible to describe the terror that he excites amongst the Federals; and whenever a party of them are moving through the valley they are most eager in their inquiries as to whether Mosby is anywhere in the neighbourhood. Of course they get but little information from the inhabitants, whose idol he is. Originally, Mosby's band consisted of but one company, but it has lately been raised to a thousand, and he himself made a colonel in the Confederate army, though none of his men are regularly enlisted soldiers. They are mostly sons of farmers and gentlemen, who prefer the ubiquitous life and its stirring adventures offered by their chieftain to the comparative monotony of the ranks in a Virginia regiment. They receive no pay from the War Office, but, instead of it, they are allowed to dispose of their captures for their own benefit, the Government being the purchaser. As soon as an expedition has been resolved upon, Mosby sends a summons to his men, who are dispersed in every direction, to meet him at some gap in the mountains, generally at night, and few fail to answer the call. If they should do so three times consecutively they are immediately handed over to the authorities and conscribed into the regular army. My sketch shows a rendezvous of the band in a pass of the Blue Ridge; Mosby is seated on his horse in the shadow of a rock, and troopers are galloping up on all sides; others are dismounted, waiting the order to move. Beneath, the Shenandoah river winds its course through the fertile valley of Virginia."

THE BRITISH AMERICAN CONFEDERATION.

The following is published in the Halifax Chronicle as the text of the despatch from Mr. Cardwell to Lord Monck, relative to the proposed confederation of the British North American Provinces:—

"Downing-street, Dec. 3, 1864.

"My Lord,—Her Majesty's Government have received with the most cordial satisfaction your Lordship's despatch of the 7th ult., transmitting for their consideration the resolutions adopted by the representatives of the several provinces of British North America, which were assembled at Quebec. With the sanction of the Crown, and upon the invitation of the Governor-General, men of every province, chosen by the respective Lieutenant-Governors, without distinction of party, assembled to consider questions of the utmost interest to every subject of the Queen, of whatever race or faith, resident in those provinces, and have arrived at a conclusion destined to exercise a most important influence upon the future welfare of the whole community. Animated by the warmest sentiments of loyalty and devotion to their Sovereign—earnestly desirous to secure for their posterity throughout all future time the advantages which they enjoy as subjects of the British Crown—steadfastly attached to the institutions under which they live, they have conducted their deliberations with patient sagacity, and have arrived at unanimous conclusions on questions involving many difficulties, and calculated, under less favourable auspices, to have given rise to many differences of opinion. Such an event is in the highest degree honourable to those who have taken part in these deliberations. It must inspire confidence in the men by whose judgment and temper this result has been attained, and will ever remain on record as an evidence of the salutary influence exercised by the institutions under which these qualities have been so signally developed. Her Majesty's Government have given to your despatch, and to the resolutions of the Conference, their most deliberate consideration. They have regarded them as a whole, and as having been designed by those who have framed them to establish as complete and perfect a union of the whole into one government as the circumstance of the case, and a due consideration of existing interests, would admit. They accept them, therefore, as being, in the deliberate judgment of those best qualified to decide upon the subject, the best framework of a measure to be passed by the Imperial Parliament for attaining that most desirable result. The point of principal importance to the practical well-working of the scheme is the accurate determination of the limits between the authority of the Central and that of the Local Legislatures in their relation to each other. It has not been possible to exclude from the resolution some provisions which appear to be less consistent than might, perhaps, have been desired with the simplicity and unity of the system. But, upon the whole, it appears to her Majesty's Government that precautions have been taken which are obviously intended to secure to the Central Government the means of effective action throughout the several provinces, and to guard against those evils which must inevitably arise if any doubt were permitted to exist as to the respective limits of central and local authority. They are glad to observe that, although large powers of legislation are intended to be vested in local bodies, yet the principle of central control has been steadily kept in view. The importance of this principle cannot be overrated. Its maintenance is essential to the practical efficiency of the system, and to its harmonious operation, both in the general administration and in the Governments of the several provinces. A very important part of this subject is the expense which may attend the working of the central and local Governments. Her Majesty's Government cannot but express the earnest hope that the arrangements which may be adopted in this respect may not be of such a nature as to increase—at least, in any considerable degree—the whole expenditure, or to make any material addition to the taxation, and thereby retard the internal industry, or tend to impose new burdens on the commerce of the country. Her Majesty's Government are anxious to lose no time in conveying to you their general approval of the proceedings of the Conference. There are, however, two provisions of great importance which seem to require revision. The first of these is the provision contained in the forty-fourth resolution with respect to the exercise of the prerogative of pardon. It appears to her Majesty's Government that this duty belongs to the representative of the Sovereign, and could not with propriety be devolved upon the Lieutenant-Governors, who will under the scheme be appointed, not directly by the Crown, but by the Central Government of the united provinces. The second point which her Majesty's Government desire should be reconsidered is the constitution of the Legislative Council. They appreciate the considerations which have influenced the Conference in determining the mode in which this body, so important in the constitution of the Legislature, should be composed. But it appears to them to require further consideration whether, if the members be appointed for life and their number fixed, there will be any sufficient means of restoring harmony between the Legislative Council and the popular Assembly, if it shall ever unfortunately happen that a decided difference of opinion shall arise between them. These two points, relating to the prerogative of the Crown and to the constitution of the Upper Chamber, have appeared to require distinct and separate notice. Questions of minor consequence and matters of detailed arrangement may properly be reserved for a future time, when the provisions of the bill intended to be submitted to the Imperial Parliament shall come under consideration. Her Majesty's Government anticipate no serious difficulty in this part of the case, since the resolutions will generally be found sufficiently explicit to guide those who will be intrusted with the preparation of the bill. It appears to them, therefore, that you should now take immediate measures, in concert with the Lieutenant-Governors of the several provinces, for submitting to the respective Legislatures this project of the conference; and if, as I hope, you are able to report that these Legislatures sanction and adopt the scheme, her Majesty's Government will render you all the assistance in their power for carrying it into effect. It will probably be found to be the most convenient course that, in concert with the Lieutenant-Governors, you should select a deputation of the persons best qualified to proceed to this country, that they may be present during the preparation of the bill, and to give to her Majesty's Government the benefit of their counsel upon any questions which may arise during the passage of the measure through the two Houses of Parliament.

"E. CARDWELL."

The Magdeburg Gazette states that the report of the Crown law officers of Prussia on the question of the succession in the duchies will be so voluminous as not to be ready before the month of March.

The smallest commune in Belgium is that of Zoutenaey. On the 31st of December last it contained only thirty-six inhabitants, divided among four families. Its annual budget is, in receipts 358f., and in expenditure 312f. The administrative expenses, which amount to 264f., absorb nearly the whole of the revenue Public instruction costs 36f.; the public charities produce a revenue of 821f. a year, and there are no poor to enjoy that munificence. There are three communal electors, and the municipal council consists of five members.

The King and Queen of Sweden, the Queen Dowager, and other members of the Royal family were present at a ball, given in honour of the New Year, at the Stockholm Exchange. It is the custom at this annual ceremony for the citizens to invite the Royal family. The ball is by subscription, and any person of the middle class may obtain tickets. The ladies are all dressed in black, even those of the Court; the latter have, however, a white satin insertion in the upper part of their sleeves to mark the distinction. The proceedings begin with the singing of the National Hymn, after which the King walks about conversing with different persons, and finally dancing commences.

BETTER DAYS FOR WORKING MEN.

UNDER this title we intend to say a few words about co-operation. Success is the idol of society. Co-operation is no longer an experiment—it has arrived at mature age—it is what the French term a fait accompli, and we must, therefore, bow to it. We have hitherto refrained from directing undue attention to a movement that, to be of any value to the classes that have instituted it, must be carried out by them alone. In this day, when dukes and earls, duchesses and countesses, have their fashionable benevolences, many a good thing is smothered in ermine and velvet, and perishes under the enervating conduct of sentimental well-wishers. Co-operation is now past that stage at which it might have fallen a victim to the gentle breath of patronage, and will bear to be looked at as "one of the powers in the State," as Lord Brougham styles it.

Few people require nowadays to be told what co-operation is. Still, for these few, it may not be amiss to state that the principle of co-operation amongst those classes of society who labour with their hands (abbreviated to "working classes" and "lower orders") may be defined in two words to be Self Help. We would descend from a general to a distinctive appellation, and, according it its rank as a political element, we would call it Radical Conservatism—Conservatism commencing at the root or basis of society.

Most profound thinkers on social questions which affect the vitality of States have long agreed in confessing that the poverty of the working classes, their improvidence, their bitterness of spirit against the upper classes, their want of self-reliance, and the ever-recurring struggles between capital and labour, have for some considerable period existed as potent causes of alarm for the future of our beloved country. Although the wealth of the country is increasing, the tendency is for it to be massed in larger quantities in fewer hands—a result which necessarily widens the chasm between the upper and the lower classes, a chasm which, during the last twenty years, has gaped fearfully at times. A feverish anxiety has sprung up with respect to what, in certain quarters, are known as the dangerous classes—a French term, the classes thus characterised being, in most French cities, as good as their name. This anxiety is palpable enough. We cannot take up a newspaper without being sensible of it. The press teems with reports of meetings and projects got up by the upper and middle classes for the elevation of those lower down. St. James looks with a shudder on shivering St. Giles. Something must be done—what, is not known. The aristocracy, meeting the emergency with their accustomed spirit, logically carry out their traditional conviction, "everything for the people!" Suiting their practice to the motto, they lavish wealth and time to succour, console, and reform; to pet, cosset, and coax the inhabitants of the slums, cellars, and alleys humorously introduced to the drawing-rooms of fashion by that grand and good master of the ceremonies, Charles Dickens. From that time forth St. James's and Mayfair have their mission. The poor man and his family is to be looked after, and accordingly is looked after. The ladies, bless them! do their little bit of benevolent penance every day, as regular as clockwork, and chat it over at dinner. Stokes, poor fellow, is out of work, and must have a ticket on the public kitchen; his wife cannot be denied a grant of baby-linen and blankets. Places, with an outfit or two from the clothing-club, must be found for the two girls; and a pair of shoes must be supplied to Stokes jun., before he can be placed at school by means of a draw upon some other fund. The charitable funds are perennial, and so are Stokes's necessities. The work cut out for lady patronesses, and presidents, and honorary secretaries is truly wonderful; the diary of a thorough-going benevolantee is a thing worth looking at by any one in search of a new sensation. The chairs to be taken, the committees to be attended, the speeches to be made, the treats to be given, the subscriptions to be paid, together form an alarming whole: the duties of a Prime Minister of State seem to dwindle into nothingness when compared with this formidable rôle. One would suppose that, with poor-men's churches and scripture-readers' societies for the cure of the souls; schools, ragged and every other, for the training of their minds; washhouses and baths for the purifying of their bodies; societies to bring them into the world, conduct them through it, and carry them out of it, the working classes are not only prosperous but grateful. Nothing of the kind!

It is all wrong, though very kindly meant. The fact is, and the fact is a somewhat awkward one, legislation has done much to pauperise the working classes; but society must not accept the habit thus engendered as a necessity. The great business of one half the community must not be to help, to amuse, and to keep out of mischief the other half. The spectacle of a well-educated, thoughtful, independent class is what we want; but this sort cometh not forth from a system, however well meant, of enervating patronage. Had every workman in England a little property—a provision against misfortune and old age—a something to leave to his children—a stake in the country, in fact, becoming thus necessarily a supporter of order—our institutions would be placed on so sound a basis that, humanly speaking, nothing could shake them. This must be the result of the people's effort in their own behalf—of Self Help; and it is this at which Co-operation aims.

The two main objects before the 200,000 work-people who are now banded together in England and Scotland to achieve their own elevation in the social scale are, first, that the workman shall be a capitalist; second, the abolition of the credit system. Under these heads we shall have to represent various forms of action, all intended to produce one result; and it may be as well to impress on the mind of the reader the genuine vitality of this industrial movement by the announcement, indorsed by an able writer on the same subject in the Edinburgh Review, "that it stands invested with the honour of having so ameliorated the condition of their respective districts (Lancashire and Yorkshire) as that 'the pressure of the cotton distress has been in an inverse ratio to the spread of co-operation.'"

In this notice some attempt will be made to glance at these objects theoretically. On another occasion we intend to describe in detail the machinery by which it is sought to attain them.

The following proposition will be readily affirmed by nearly all who have paid attention to the subject involved: Our national commercial supremacy depends more upon the industry and skill of our workmen than upon the inventive genius of the people, the immense capital employed, or the ample resources of the country. We are more approachable, in some cases we are excelled, in these latter particulars; while in the former we stand unrivalled. If, then, it is on the perfection of our work that our proud position in the markets of the world mainly depends, it is essential that the character and ability of the workman should be sustained and improved.

Good wages should invariably accompany good work; but under the unmitigated and arbitrary law of competition, carried out in a selfish and unchristian spirit, this is not the case. The workman too often from this cause suffers degradation. His advance is not in the same ratio as that of the master, and we find him subjected at times to the starvation of a Dorset labourer and a Spitalfields weaver, realising, in quivering flesh and blood, the state of Sandy Mackay's skinless anatomical figure, to which was affixed this couplet:—

> Here am I, a working man,
> Get more off me, if you can.

And now and again, that he may avoid being ground in the dust, he marshals his fellow-men for one of those great struggles with capital which are considered of sufficient importance to be recorded amongst the incidents of our modern national history. Let not the reader be startled by the announcement here of a conviction that may sound somewhat strange; it is this: had it not been for the power which lay in the hands of the workmen thus to disconcert the selfish designs of capital for its own augmentation, the taunt of the pet rowdy of American society concerning the white slaves of England might be more lancet-edged than it is. To this instinct for self-preservation—albeit exerted ofttimes in an exceedingly vindictive and stupid manner—we owe the ever-increasing demand for English handiwork. But for the strike, that class of society to which dear old pot-bellied Sancho manifested such deep aversion—"the Have-nots"—would be alarmingly increased; but for this cause, Mr. Gladstone would have little reason to care whether the income tax stopped with incomes of £150, or descended to pare the corners from those of £100.

We cordially agree with a remark recently somewhere met with, to the effect that most writers and thinkers commit a great mistake in ascribing to the working classes a sense of irksomeness in the work they do, and in picturing them as simply enduring it for the sake of the subsistence its performance supplies. This is all sentimental humbug. The weaver possesses as keen a relish for his work as the painter for his, the mason as the sculptor, the man who frames tables as the man who frames constitutions, the man who tills the soil as the man who conveys it, the man who moulds type as he whose thoughts are stereotyped in it, the man who seeks for gold as the philosopher who assigns it its place as a representative of human labour. We have all seen how the opening flowers of genius are closed and sometimes blasted by the cruel winds of penury; how care has steeped in bitterness the sweetest of poetic natures and clipped the gauzy wings of poetic aspiration; how want has dried the colours on the painter's palette, robbed his fingers of their winsome cunning, and dimmed mind and sense to all perception of truth and beauty. One is weary to think of the damage wrought. But even as it is above, so is it below; we speak of the same nature. If the mind will only yield its best in the one case under favourable circumstances, it is every whit as dependent on external conditions in the other. It is matter of moment, therefore, to the community that the British workman shall be so conditioned as to be happy in his work, and feel that pleasure in the mastery of difficulties by skill and power so natural to him.

Statistics prove that wealth has increased of late years in all populous centres in a far greater ratio than population, and yet that those who create it by the labour of their hands are very little better than they were. Some classes of workmen are receiving excessive wages; but the great bulk enjoy a prospect bounded by the comforts derivable from 15s. a week, the relieving officer, and the workhouse. One seventh only of our male population have incomes exceeding £100 per annum. According to a Parliamentary return founded on the Census of 1864, the adult agriculturists, who form one third of the labouring classes, receive no more than an average weekly wage of 11s. The adult labourers of the manufacturing classes are assumed to receive £60 per annum. Careful and accurate calculations are published, by which it appears that the working classes of the British empire take only one third of the whole income of the country yearly, while two thirds of the joint produce is distributed amongst one seventh of the population. Were there space for it, an inference might be drawn from certain figures respecting an advanced death-rate in the working classes, and a reduced death-rate in the wealthy classes, by no means favourable to an idea current in some quarters, that the addition to the country's wealth is identical with an increase of the comfort and prosperity of the people.

This slight glance at so painful a picture of industrial affairs will suffice. We turn with pleasure to the remedy proposed by the workmen for their own improvement and elevation in the social scale, which strikes and trades' unions are totally unable to secure them. They have devised the means of becoming their own employers, and thus to a certain extent have attempted the most practical solution of the question between capital and labour. This is done by the establishment of co-operative cotton, and flour, and cloth, and other mills, which are started by capital subscribed by working men from their weekly earnings, worked by them, managed by them, they being the recipients of the profits. Several of these institutions, which have been in most successful operation for some years, will come under review on another occasion.

And now, as to the abolition of credit. The workman discovers that the credit system has tempted him into living too fast—in fact, beyond his income. Like all sensible people in such circumstances, he determines upon retrenchment. He begins by dismissing his servants, that long file of middlemen who claim high remuneration for bringing to his door the worst description of goods at the highest possible prices. He will no longer buy anything and everything as the slave of the shopkeeper, but determines to have wholesome commodities at reasonable prices, and to make his week's wages cover his week's necessities. To compass this object, a small sum is subscribed amongst men thus minded; a few good articles are bought wholesale to stock hired premises, a manager is appointed, and the profits of trade are annually divided. All goods are paid for in cash over the counter; five per cent per annum is allowed on share capital; to all purchasers, whether members or not, is made a bonus of one or two shillings in the pound upon all purchases. From the profits each year sums are written off, for the maintenance of the sick, for a revenue fund, for charitable objects, and for education. Of these societies, in England, Scotland, and Wales, there are now about 800, having in the aggregate, 200,000 members, and a capital of more than a million.

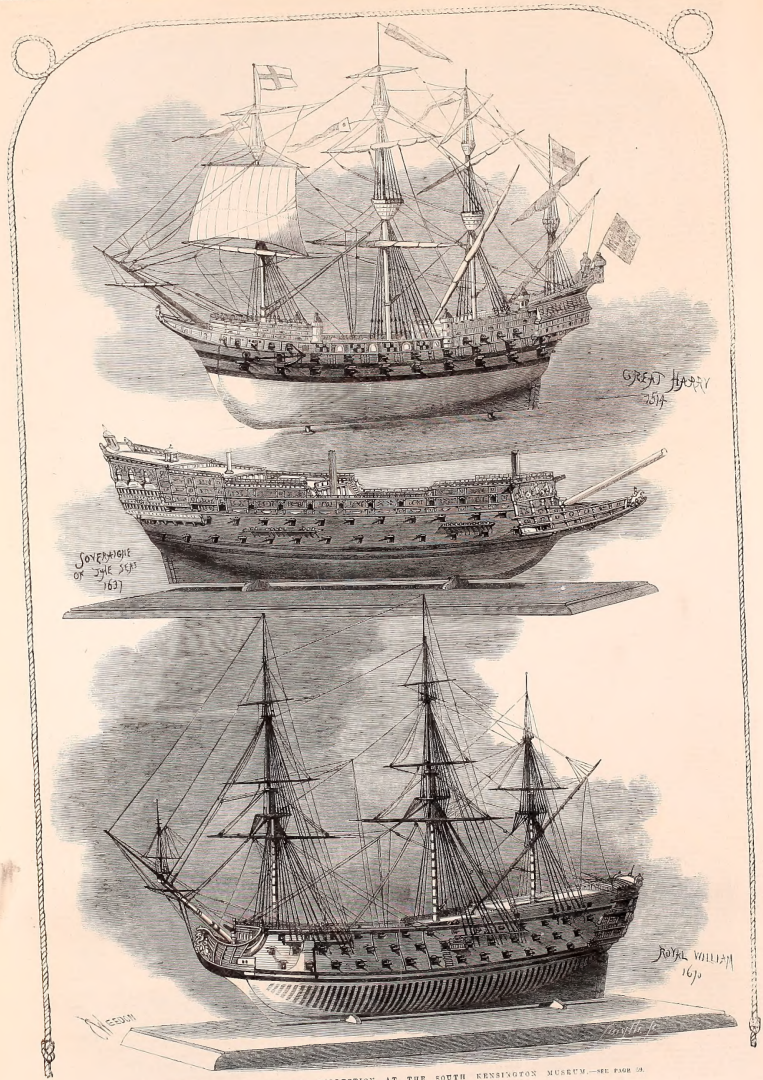
Such, in outline, are the plans devised by the most intelligent of our workmen for the attainment of these two objects—objects which, if attained, will import into the substratum of English society such habits of self-reliance, providence, and order as shall go far to redeem them from the stigma of pauperism and that species of crime which arises from want and bitterness of spirit, and set at rest the anxieties of Belgravia, concerning the motives and purposes of what will be no longer the dangerous classes.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of the Hon. Georgiana Louisa Montgomerie, of Garboldisham Hall, Norfolk, was proved in the London Court under £70,000 personalty, the executors and trustees therein appointed being her brother, the Right Hon. Thomas Henry Lord Foley, P.C., and the Hon. Arthur Fitzgerald Kinnaird, M.P. The testatrix was the daughter of the third Baron Foley, and married, in 1844, Thomas Molyneux Montgomerie, Esq., whom she survied, and died in November last, at the age of fifty-two, having executed her will in 1858, to which are added two codicils, dated 1861 and March, 1864. To her sister-in-law, Lydia Montgomerie, she has left an annuity, and also liberal legacies and annuities to her servants. Her real estate she has devised to her son, Cecil Thomas Molyneux Montgomerie, Esq., and has appointed him residuary legatee of the personalty.

The will of the Ven. Charles Parr Burney, D.D., Archdeacon of Colchester, and Rector of Wickham Bishops, Essex, was proved in the London Court under £120,000 personalty; the executors and trustees appointed being his sons, the Rev. Charles Burney, M.A., Hon. Canon of Rochester and Vicar of Halstead, and the Rev. Edward Kaye Burney, M.A., Vicar of Thornham, together with the testator's sons-in-law, Lieutenant-Colonel James Wood, and Henry Wood, Esq., of Tonbridge Wells. The will bears date June, 1857; with two codicils—1861, and July, 1864. He died on the 1st of November last, at Royal-crescent, Brighton. The will is of considerable length. To his wife there is secured an annuity of £1500, and an immediate legacy of £1500; and to her he leaves his carriages and the furniture, the use of plate, &c., together with other interests under the will. To his two sons he leaves his freehold estates equally between, as also his library, books, pictures, and articles of virtù; and to each a legacy of £10,000 and a share in the residue. To each of his daughters he leaves a legacy of £5000 and a share in the residue. The residue, however, is to accumulate for a period of twenty-one years, or until the death of his widow. The grandchildren will also participate largely in the ultimate residue.

The will of the late Everson Harrison, Esq., of Tolethorpe Hall, Rutland, was proved in the London Court, on the 3rd inst., by his relict, the sole acting executrix. The personalty was sworn under £30,000. The will was made in 1847, and is entirely in his own handwriting, and contained in a few clauses, devising his estates in Tydds, St. Mary's, and also in Litton, Sutton, St. Edmunds, Flary, and Thurlby to his eldest son, Charles Millns Harrison, Esq. His other estates and funded property he leaves to his wife for life, and upon her decease to be divided equally amongst their younger children; the furniture, plate, carriages, &c., to his wife absolutely; legacies to his sister, brother, and other relatives; and legacies and annuities to servants. To the British and Foreign Bible Society and the Society for the Propagation of the Gospel in Foreign Parts, each £100.

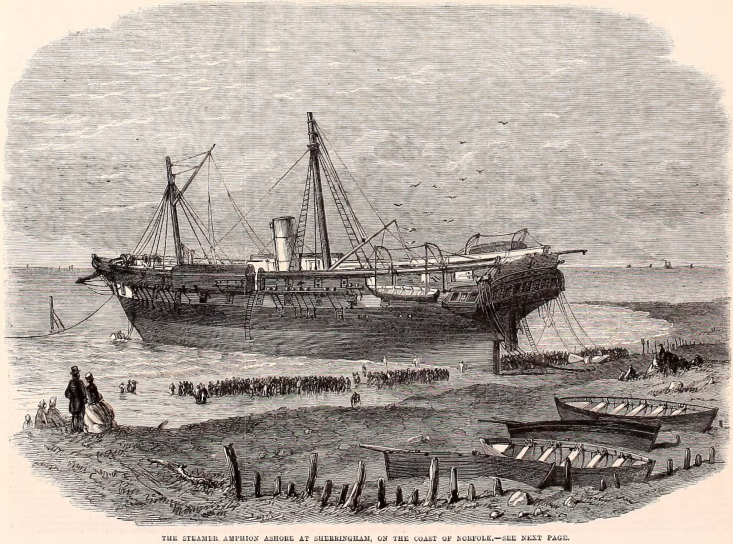


The late Miss Frances Cecilia Burton Forster, of Hyde Park-square, has bequeathed to the Charing-cross Hospital £1000, and £500 to the Sailor's Home, Great Yarmouth.

The late Miss Mary Ann Ellis, of Balham, Surrey, has left to the Balham Schools £100; and to the Blind School, St. George's; Deaf and Dumb Asylum, Old Kent-road; Royal Free Hospital, National Benevolent Institution, and the Asylum for Idiots, each a like legacy of £100.

A communication from St. Petersburg contradicts in the most positive manner a statement made by some journals to the effect that a kind of insurrection had broken out in the establishment of the Imperial pages.

A New York paper states that a man named Colley, who died recently at Lockport in that State, kept his money in an old boiler buried in the cellars, and among the deposits in this vault were 50,000 three-cent pieces.



The Russian journals speak of terrible inundations in the Caucasus. One account says:—"The Laba, the Kouban, and its tributary streams have overflowed, carrying away all the bridges, rooting up enormous trees, and even displacing rocks. The Laba had become such an impetuous torrent that its current carried to a great distance everything before it."

MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE COLLECTION AT THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—SEE PAGE 79.

WRECK OF THE STEAMER HYDASPE ON THE PAN SHOAL RHIO STRAIT, NEAR SINGAPORE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE STEAMER AMPHION ASHORE AT SHERRINGHAM, ON THE COAST OF NORFOLK.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

WRECK OF THE STEAMER HYDASPE, IN RHIO STRAIT, NEAR SINGAPORE.

The French steamer Hydaspe, belonging to the company of the Messageries Impériales, ran aground, on Nov. 24, upon the Pan Shoal, in Rhio Strait, twenty-five miles from Singapore. Within three days she became a total wreck; but her crew, passengers, and a part of her cargo were saved. Our Illustration, from a sketch by Mr. John Lawrence Kirby, Lloyd's surveyor at the port of Singapore, shows her position as she lay with her body quite crushed into the reef and immersed to the hawseholes, continually exposed to a high swell from the north-east, which broke heavily over her quarter from time to time. She still kept her steam up and her pumps constantly going, while she was being lightened by the removal of her cargo and stores; the "tonkoons," or Singapore boats, employed for this purpose being towed thither by the Dutch paddle-wheel steamer Dassoon, which is seen at the extreme right of our View. H.M.S. Rifleman, surveying-vessel, and H.M.S. Leven, gun-boat, are nearer to the Hydaspe on the same side. The large vessel to the left hand of the Hydaspe is the Dutch corvette Appledorn, beyond which is seen the yacht Picciola, belonging to Captain Kirby, of Singapore. The land is twelve miles off.

THE STEAMER AMPHION ASHORE ON THE COAST OF NORFOLK.

The screw-steamer Amphion, a vessel of 1500 tons burden, was once a 34-gun frigate in her Majesty's Navy, and formed part of Sir Charles Napier's fleet in the Baltic at the time of the Russian War. At a later period, when no longer wanted in the Queen's service, it was proposed to sell her to the Prussian Government; and she was actually sent away for that purpose, but for some reason or other, the bargain was not concluded, and it was the Messrs. Wilson, of Sunderland, who at length bought her for the sum of £17,000. She has been since employed in the trade between Sunderland and London till, during the thick weather which prevailed in the middle of last week along the coast of Norfolk, she ran ashore at a place called Sherringham, five miles west of Cromer, and all efforts to get her afloat have proved of no avail; indeed, the gales of Friday and Saturday drove her still higher upon the beach than she appears in our Illustration, and she has probably become a total wreck.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Quite Alone. By George Augustus Sala. (3 vols. Chapman and Hall.) Something very good is expected of Mr. Sala, and expectation is generally satisfied; nor will it be disappointed in the case of "Quite Alone." His sketches of places, scenes, and characters are wonderfully minute and brilliant; his power of rendering French with comical literalness into English is insurpassable; his felicity in the introduction of French expressions dropped from the mouths of his French personages is really curious; and he possesses to a marvellous extent the charm of illustrating incidents by happy allusions or apt analogies drawn either from his exhaustive memory or from his commonplace-book. Whatever may be the peculiar merits or defects of his work, he has succeeded in writing a very readable novel. "Quite Alone" is, so far as the story answers to the title, the biography up to womanhood of the daughter who was born in lawful wedlock to a fashionable English blackguard and an extravagantly-conceived (in the author's brain) French actress, was utterly neglected (except upon a few occasions when she was ill-used by her affectionate mamma) by her parents, and was consequently, so far as family ties went, nearly always "quite alone." Mr. Sala explains, in a very good-humoured and amusing preface, one disadvantage under which his novel labours. One might apply to him the saying, "this man began to build and was not able to finish." He was, for very good reasons, which he candidly and humorously gives, unable to complete his story in time for the requirements of All the Year Round, for which it was written, and the latter portion of it—from page 185 of the third volume to the end—is not his handiwork or brain work. It is impossible to say how far the novel has suffered—if it have suffered at all—from the employment of a "new hand;" but one cannot help thinking that Mr. Sala would have explained how it came to pass that Lily Blunt, though she was living in the hotel of the faithful Constant, though she was under the protection of her uncle, and though she was by nature the last person in the world to do anything bold, should have ridden constantly in the park and have dined constantly in the coffee-rooms of hotels "quite alone." Mr. Sala might also have shown by what process akin to the backward motion of the shadow upon the sundial of Ahaz a gentleman who at page 10 of the first volume is described as being "close upon fifty years of age," should have receded, at page 308 of the third volume, to "forty." Our private opinion is that Mr. Sala intended so to manage matters that Lily should have been introduced to horseflesh, that her uncle should have died and left her his fortune, and that by force of circumstances she should have become habituated to riding and dining in public "quite alone." Mr. Sala declares that during his absence from England, when he ought to have been completing his novel, he "had forgotten the very names of" his dramatis personæ; but it seems to us that the coming oblivion was already throwing its shadows before when he suddenly changed the Monsieur Sournois of page 58, vol. i., to the Jean Baptiste Constant who figures conspicuously throughout the rest of the story. We have found it impossible—with a due regard for time—to come to any other conclusion than that Sournois and Constant are two in one, and that the phenomenon is due to the author's forgetfulness. An error so slight would of course be unworthy of notice except as premonitory of the oblivion which ultimately overtook Mr. Sala.

Todleben's Defence of Sebastopol. By William Howard Russell. (1 vol. Tinsley.) Generally speaking there is, of course, nothing in a name; but in a few particular instances a name is so singularly appropriate to its bearer and so suggestive of the events with which its bearer is mixed up that those who draw omens from appellations might make out a tolerable case for themselves. We know that a certain patriarch was well-named Jacob, and there was lately a murder, in the discovery of which there figured a person whose name was of ghastly significance. A sensation-writer might find materials for many a thrilling scene in the fact that the late Franz Müller was traced and brought to judgment principally through a jewel-box which he had given as a plaything to a little child, and which had printed upon it the ominous name of Death. And when one reflects how prominent a part was taken by General Todleben in that heroic struggle on the shores of the Black Sea, when the most vigorous life and the most miserable death—death from cold, and hunger, and sickness—were daily intermingled, the mind cannot but acknowledge a certain fearful appropriateness in the name of the "illustrious defender of Sebastopol." Sebastopol has been called a "mailed fist for fools to knock their heads against;" but, if our memory be not grievously at fault, the allies received less severe buffets from the solid masonry of Sebastopol than from the extemporaneous earthworks of General Todleben. The illustrious Russian engineer had at first contemplated the production of "a mere engineer's report" of the defence of Sebastopol; but circumstances enabled him "to make it a history of the war in the Crimea." General Todleben's work, by reason of its costliness and for other causes, is not likely to be—at any rate for some time—published in a complete form and in the English language, and Mr. Russell has therefore kindly given to the public the substance of it in the shape of a review which appeared in the Times. To his review, however, Mr. Russell has made considerable additions, and has thus produced a volume the interest of which must be measured by the feelings with which all Englishmen cling to the recollection of "Alma," "Balaklava," and "Inkerman," and which is written in the well-known style of the "Special Correspondent of the Times."

The English Gentleman's House. By Robert Kerr, F.R.I.B.A. (1 vol. Murray.) This useful, elaborate, and handsome volume merits the particular attention of the "gentlemen of England who live at home at ease." The chief object of the writer is to show "how to plan English residences, from the parsonage to the palace;" and anyone who has had experience of those large, rambling houses where you bid your friends good-night in the drawing-room, possess yourself of your candlestick, take a stroll through winding corridors, long for but, discover not a kindly guide-post, lose your head entirely, turn the handle of what you consider your bed-room door, and find yourself astonished, once more in the presence of your equally astonished friends, upon whom you suddenly burst through a seldom-used side-door; or of those smaller and more uncomfortable dwelling-places in which, though you are spared a moonlight ramble of a quarter of an hour in search of where you may lay your head, the guest-chamber seems to have been built with a view to admit whatever cold, and draught, and moaning wind is possible at the season of the year, will allow that English residences are not generally built on unexceptionable plans. Nor will he whose eye has been daily offended by the sight of houses erected in hybrid styles forget to be grateful to Mr. Kerr. The author divides his treatise into six parts: the first is entitled "A Sketch of the History and Development of Domestic Plan in England," and embraces a period extending from the eleventh century to the present day; the second is called "An Exposition of Plan as now Practised," and in it every kind of room is treated of in detail, due regard being had to privacy, comfort, convenience, spaciousness, compactness, light and air, salubrity, aspect and prospect, cheerfulness, elegance, importance, and ornamentation; the third consists of copious "Notes on Site and the Grounds;" the fourth is made up of twelve important chapters "On Architectural Style;" the fifth is devoted to "Notes on Accommodation and Cost," and here much valuable information is given with respect to calculation of prices, examples being added of houses varying in value from £1250 to £40,000 or upwards; and the sixth, which is an appendix, contains critical notes upon no less than forty-four plates, exemplifying the plans of certain notable edifices. Five of the plates (26 to 30 inclusive) are illustrative of exterior design, and are disposed of in part iv.; the rest, which, with the exception of two—Kenilworth and Blenheim—are, for facilitation of comprehension, drawn to the same scale (1 in. for 30 ft.), are explained and criticised in the appendix, and so adapted for the reader's own comparison and criticism. The object of the plates is said to be "not the exhibition of models to be imitated or admired, but the illustration of principles to be studied." We hope we have made it sufficiently clear that the English gentleman who intends to build or to improve a house has now a very useful guide to consult.

Strickland's Lives of the Queens of England, &c. (Bell and Daldy.) Mr. H. G. Bohn's Libraries, "consisting of more than 600 different works, and comprising nearly half a million of volumes," are of worldwide celebrity; but, though they will continue, no doubt, for years to come to retain his name and their celebrity, they are no longer the property of Mr. Bohn. They have passed, by purchase, into the hands of the energetic publishers, Messrs. Bell and Daldy, who propose by new, revised, and augmented editions to increase, if possible, the popularity attained by the Bohn series. One promising instalment of Messrs. Bell and Daldy's new venture is the first three volumes of Miss Strickland's best-known work, which will be completed in six volumes; and another is "Southey's Life of Wesley." We have also before us a noble "Shakspeare," in one volume (edited by Thomas Keightley, and having for frontispiece an engraving of the portrait by Droeshout), for which Messrs. Bell and Daldy have done what elegance of paper, type, and scroll can do. Messrs. Bell and Daldy, moreover, have prepared for lovers of choice books the "Aldine Poets," "Aldine Series," "British Worthies," "Elzevir Series," and "Pocket Volumes," in a style which, if the two volumes (containing, one Washington Irving's "Sketch Book;" and the other his "Tales of a Traveller") be fair specimens of it, will gladden the eyes and heart of the purchaser, and drive him who cannot afford to purchase to the verge of breaking the tenth commandment.

Married Beneath Him. By the Author of "Lost Sir Massingberd." (3 vols. Macmillan and Co.) To say that this is a clever story would be to do it scanty justice. Sensation stories, written for the most part in bad English, are clever, and so are stories the only merit of which is a knot of complications so intricate as apparently to defy even the "mysterious influence" of the Brothers Davenport. But "Married Beneath Him" rests its claims to attention upon something higher than sensation and plot. It may not be quite free from the melodramatic, and its plot is by no means a masterpiece of art; but it is written in more than usually good English and in a more than usually attractive style; it bears the stamp of originality; it shows the polish of education; it is illumined by flashes of wit and freshened by rills of humour; it is graced by at least one piece of excellent poetry; it bristles with pointed satire; it glistens with keen observation; and it reflects strong common-sense. The principal characters are neither invested with such properties nor mixed up with such incidents as to create absorbing interest; and the author seems to us to dwell at unnecessary length upon trivial matters, so that the wit and humour alluded to alone prevent certain pages from appearing tedious; but the story has this advantage over many another—it increases in interest as it proceeds. As to the puns with which it is freely studded, we make bold to say that the more closely packed and the more elaborate they are the more tiresome they are (vide pp. 74, 75, vol. i.); and that a single pun now and then, as a poke in the ribs, is calculated to produce laughter and a pleasant titillation; but that a succession of puns, as a succession of pokes in the ribs, is calculated to produce pain. We must also express our dissent from the line of conduct pursued by the hero (?) at the homicidal scene and at the trial. The writer may have correctly described the behaviour likely to be displayed under trying circumstances by a young man of Frederick Galton's peculiar temperament; but Frederick Galton is represented as a high-spirited fellow, and yet upon the two most difficult occasions of his life he behaves as a snob and a coward. Mr. Percival Potts, the high-born tailor's son, the blue-blooded sub-editor, the mushroom of ancient lineage, and his literary toadies, with their gin-and-water parties and their pitiful squabbles, are described amusingly, and probably to the life; but it is not unlikely that the public may find such matters too contemptible to be entertaining.

The War in America—1863-64. By Edward Pollard. (1 vol. Saunders, Otley, and Co.) Mr. Pollard, who was lately editor of the Richmond Examiner, has already given his account of the first two years' war in America; and he has now brought his narrative down to the critical moment when the cautious Confederate General Johnston was superseded by the dashing Hood. It will be seen, therefore, that he has left off at a point when the campaign in Georgia became particularly interesting; but the readers of the daily newspapers will easily supply for themselves what Mr. Pollard's history lacks. Indeed, it is a question whether an attentive perusal of the newspapers will not have given the peruser quite as vivid and accurate an idea of the whole war up to the present time as can be derived from Mr. Pollard's book. Mr. Pollard, as is natural, is a warm partisan of the Southern cause and an ardent hater of the Yankee. According to him, Yankee generals are incarnate fiends, and Yankee privates are not much better. Peace between North and South, except the "wayward sisters" be allowed to have their desire, is utterly impossible. And yet he is by no means a worshipper of Mr. Jefferson Davis; he accuses Mr. Davis of conceit and obstinacy, and attributes no less a disaster than the loss of Vicksburg to Mr. Davis's headstrong partiality for General Pemberton. The story of the war is told in a sufficiently sickening manner by the impassible telegraph: whoever has the stomach to swallow it, warmed by passion and spiced with virulence, will do well to try a dose of Mr. Pollard's preparation.

The Muscles and their Story. By John W. F. Blundell, M.D. (1 vol. Chapman and Hall.) "Muscle is king," wrote a Yankee at the time of what it was the fashion to call the "international prize fight" between Messrs. Heenan and Sayers. "Muscle is king; cotton isn't; nigger isn't; muscle is." Now it is not necessary to indorse the ironical Yankee's assertion; but it cannot be denied that this is a muscular age. Muscular Christianity is decidedly popular; and every Christian is expected in certain quarters to be, if not handy with his fists, at any rate a "jumper," and to wrestle in body as well as in spirit. It is probable, therefore, that Dr. Blundell has brought out his book at a favourable juncture. It is based upon the "De Arte Gymnasticâ" of Mercurialis, and will be found to contain much that may be read to profit by the healthy and the unhealthy alike.

The White Wife. By Cuthbert Bede. (1 vol. Sampson Low, Son, and Marston.) "The stories in the present volume," Mr. Cuthbert Bede says, "have been collected during the past four years (chiefly through the medium of Gaelic-speaking natives) from that very interesting Western Highland district, Cantire, or 'Land's-end,' as its Gaelic name implies—the long and narrow peninsula of South Argyleshire, of which I had much to tell my readers in 'Glencreggan.' These stories are here published for the first time, and none of them are found in the four volumes of 'Popular Stories of the Western Highlands,' by Mr. I. F. Campbell." The stories are very brief, are just short of fifty in number, and it may be that they were omitted from Mr. Campbell's work for a reason which may be guessed when we hint at our inability to discover great store of interest, or amusement, or originality in the few specimens which time permitted us to examine. Howbeit, the volume is sightly; it has to do with ghosts, and fairies, and brownies, and murders, and the black art, and other matters in popular favour; and the "Gaelic-speaking natives" ought to feel much obliged to Mr. Bede for taking the trouble to interpret their gibberish in a decent language.

Letters from Abroad. By Henry Alford, D.D. (1 vol. Strahan.) A collection of eight letters written by the Dean of Canterbury during a tour in Italy. To them is added a postscript on the "Franco-Italian Convention;" and the letters and the postscript together form a sufficiently readable little book. The volume is as neat a one as eye can look upon, and if the contents are not either particularly absorbing or wonderfully instructive, they "will serve." There is considerable abuse of Rome, which will please some and displease others. The letters have, of course (though the fact has to be inferred from internal evidence), appeared before (probably in Good Words), and have been reprinted for the benefit of the Dean's admirers.

Oswald Cray. By Mrs. Henry Wood. (3 vols. Edinburgh: A. and C. Black.) Mrs. Wood has written another clever novel, which will, no doubt, be properly appreciated by her many adherents. It has abundance of "points," situations, incidents, mystifications, and questionable English. There is plenty of millinery also; what the ladies "had on" in joy and in grief, in health and in sickness, in wealth and in poverty, is carefully described. There are some few lessons in elementary French, and there is a dose of religious sentiment to "top up" with, on the principle, perhaps, on which some persons take carbonate of soda after what chemists call "indulging freely in the pleasures of the table." Mrs. Wood's fabric rests upon an idea (which may be, but we hope is not, well founded) that even the best people in the world lack candour and straightforwardness. Had her chief characters been open and outspoken, the edifice she has reared could not have been carried beyond the stage arrived at in the first volume; Dr. Davenal would never have shrunk from his duty, even to screen Mark; and Oswald Cray would never have behaved as the stuck-up idiot he appears to be, who deserved to be spurned by Sara for his want of faith and his insulting patronage. Neal, the man-servant, is the most extraordinary character in the book; he is continually spying, eavesdropping, opening desks, and reading other persons' letters; he has no motive beyond the gratification of his natural love of what is underhand; it is his sole recreation; and if he had been cut off from that he would undoubtedly have lost his appetite and have sunk into a rapid decline. Mrs. Wood is aware how impossible a character he will appear, and she therefore meets any objection on that ground by stating that he is drawn from the life. Let those who cannot afford to keep a man-servant find consolation in Mrs. Wood's statement. It is to be feared that men of Belial will shoot out the tongue and mock at that part of Mrs. Wood's story where the death of "Albert the Good" is introduced; there will drop from them, very likely, the words "bad taste" or "fulsome adulation;" and it is to be regretted that, if the melancholy event could not be altogether kept out, it was not alluded to in less exaggerated terms. Mrs. Mark Cray was of far too frivolous a nature to have been affected as she is represented (pp. 216, 217, 218) to have been. Mrs. Wood says, "I may be mistaken," and we cannot help thinking she is.

Celebrities of London and Paris. By Captain Gronow. (1 vol. Smith, Elder, and Co.) "Old men forget," says the poet; but he had not the pleasure of an acquaintance with Captain Gronow. The gallant Captain, so far from forgetting, is continually remembering. Some time ago he had remembered a first and a second series of "Anecdotes of the Camp, the Court, and the Clubs;" and now he has remembered a third, which will probably meet with as much favour as was accorded to its predecessors. It contains an account (correct, Captain Gronow says; and he certainly appears to have done what was in his power to make it so) of the famous (or infamous) coup-d'état of the 2nd of December, 1851; and has, by way of frontispiece, a coloured representation of "a ball at Almack's in 1815," which nothing will ever persuade us is not a caricature and is not ill-drawn.

The Nile Basin. By Captain R. F. Burton. (1 vol. Tinsley.) This book is divided into two parts, of which the first is "a memoir read before the Royal Geographical Society, Nov. 14, 1864," by Captain Burton; and the second is a review, by James M'Queen, Esq., F.R.G.S., of "Captain Speke's Discovery of the Source of the Nile." Both parts, however, have one object; and that is, to discredit Captain Speke and Captain Speke's discoveries. Poor Speke has gone to his account, and we know what mortals should say of the dead. Of his discoveries, seeing that geographers and African travellers themselves differ, what can a stay-at-home reviewer say? Let those who are interested about, and competent to deal with, the question obtain this book and read therein Captain Burton's "five main objections" to that "settlement of the Nile question" which gives the honour of discovery to the late Captain Speke.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Tyndall commenced his course of twelve lectures "On Electricity" on Tuesday last, with considering the phenomena of excitation, attraction, repulsion, and conduction. He showed that dry glass and other vitreous bodies rubbed with dry silk (and more especially when the silk is coated with amalgam) are electrified and attract light bodies, and that a similar effect is produced when amber, sealing-wax, and other resinous bodies are rubbed with dry flannel. He stated that the electricity excited on the glass, formerly called "vitreous," is now termed "positive," and that "resinous" electricity is now termed "negative." The fundamental law of electric action was proved by numerous experiments—viz., that bodies charged with like electricities repel each other and attract those charged with opposite electricities: positive repelled positive and attracted negative. It was also shown that one of these electricities cannot be excited without the other. When a body was electrified by friction the rubber was also electrified, but with the opposite electricity. Repulsion was also shown to be a true means of determining whether the electricity of a body were positive or negative. Professor Tyndall defined the theory of electric fluids, stating that electric attractions and repulsions are supposed to arise from two invisible fluids, each being self-repulsive, the two being mutually attractive; and that both are supposed to be mixed in unelectrified bodies. The act of electrifying by friction is said to consist in separating the two fluids, one being diffused over the rubber, the other over the body rubbed. He considers this theory to be incorrect, yet useful in the present state of inquiry. The lecture was concluded with examples of conduction and insulation. Some bodies (such as metal-wire) permitted electricity to pass freely through them, while others, such as silk (insulators) do not. Silk was made a conductor by wetting it. The principle and use of the gold-leaf electroscope were explained, and shown to depend on like electricities repelling each other.

On Friday evening, the 27th inst., the discourse will be given by General Sir Henry Rawlinson, K.C.B., "On the Results of Cuneiform Discovery to the Present Time," as Cardinal Wiseman is prevented from lecturing by indisposition.

A New Education Scheme.—Sir Laurence Palk, Bart., M.P., has circulated amongst the nobility and leading gentry and clergy of Devonshire a scheme in reference to education grants, on which he proposes to found a bill for introduction into Parliament in the forthcoming Session. He states that it has been generally felt by all who are connected with the small rural parishes that the schools are most inadequately supported, and that frequently their existence depends upon the personal efforts and subscriptions of the Incumbent, who is not, in many cases, able to bear this self-imposed burden. It is also a fact, he says, not sufficiently reflected upon, that every rural parish, be it great or small, poor or wealthy, has hitherto contributed to the education of more wealthy districts, who, by reason of their wealth and numerical superiority, reap the advantage of that educational grant which is rendered prohibitory to rural poverty and numerical inferiority of population by the stipulations of the Revised Code. "There may," he continues, "be some who still cherish the hope that when the richer districts have been well supplied with all the advantages education can give; that when the grant from the State, to which the rural parishes contribute, shall have given the sons of the mechanic and middle classes an education comparatively free of expense, which will fit them to obtain the most lucrative appointments, attention may be given to the educational destitution of the rural parishes. But whilst this great theory is being worked out, every step in superior education widens the gulf between the labourer and artisan, and multiplies and extends the injustice of making poverty contribute to the wealth of the rich." The hon. Baronet's bill proposes to enable districts, by grouping themselves together, to form educational boards, and to obtain by the tests of results capitation grants from the fund to which they severally contribute. Magistrates are to be ex officio members, and each parish is to elect two members of the board. Powers are provided for inspection, management, &c.; district schools under the Act to be under the same rules and regulations as those conducted by certificated masters or pupil teachers, and inspected by Government.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

In the gentle bubbling of the agitation for Parliamentary Reform which is going on, naturally certain gentlemen rise more or less prominently to the surface, and, in some sort, become leaders of the movement. Examples of this kind of standing out on this question are to be found in Mr. Buxton and Mr. W. E. Forster, who have each very recently passed under the extra-Parliamentary yoke which is set up for members once a year, as grottoes of oyster-shells are built by the street boys. Both these gentlemen had not long before demonstrated at public meetings; but, as their appearances there were not penal in the sense in which gatherings of a member's own electors may be taken to be, they were not crucially declarative until such an occasion arose. Being closely connected by family ties, and both of them by nature and character calculated to be influenced by those ties in the most kindly spirit, it may be supposed that they know something of each other's minds on most public questions. Doubtless neither would yield to the other in sincerity or desire to bring about that extension of the franchise which each advocates with a certain seasonableness just now; but from that point their divergence is complete. Mr. Buxton, whose political education has been carried on in what may be called a metropolitan area, where personal pressure on politicians, except in special cases, is not very great, is able to deal with Reform somewhat as an abstract question, and to base it on a system of balances and compensations which is ingenious and in a great degree philosophic. But it may be remembered that perhaps the most decisive blow which Mr. Disraeli's Reform Bill in 1858 received was when Mr. Bright sneered at "fancy franchises," and it is unquestionable that the spirit which evoked that phrase is the predominant one in the quarters where the subject of the franchise is most thought of and discussed; and that is where Mr. Forster received his teaching. His views, as stated in his speech the other day at Bradford, are clear and simple. He desires a rough and ready reform, which shall testify to a principle, leaving its working-out to the good sense and the practical skill of its recipients. Indeed, though in gentle and tender tones, he contrasted Mr. Buxton's plan with his own idea, and insinuated impracticability and dilletanti-ism with regard to the former. For the rest, his speech, which was long, seemed to indicate a struggle with that sort of difficulty which all members nowadays put before themselves—that of not knowing exactly what to talk about. Even the question of Reform was treated as if there were no particular vitality and certainly no special stimulus about it. In short, like every one else this recess, Mr. Forster had a dead level to pass over; but, like a horse in a circus, to seem to be going at a whirlwind pace, while, in fact, the speed is curiously adapted to preserve a certain steadiness and moderation.

On some subjects, and on some occasions, there is no member of the House who can say what he means with more point and directness, or with a more satirical turn of language, than Mr. Ayrton. But when, from some cause or other, he desires to talk without being understood, he has the faculty of pouring sentence after sentence, in one everlasting flow, without conveying a notion of what he is driving at. It has always struck us that Mr. Ayrton had mistaken his vocation in taking up the popular line of politics, and especially in becoming member for a metropolitan district which is very far removed indeed from the cold shade of the aristocracy. If ever there was what is called a popular constituency, it is to be found in the Tower Hamlets; and, whatever he may say, there is something in Mr. Ayrton's demeanour which indicates an inaptitude, however, he seeks to keep it latent, to come cordially en rapport with the multitude as it is represented in his electoral clients. There is, we will not say an affectation of, but a tendency towards, fine-gentlemanness in him, which causes him to appear to be always turning up his nose at something which was offensive to that organ, and therefore would render it peculiarly sensitive to the effects of that parfum démocratique which pervades such popular assemblies as that which he addressed one evening last week. The report of his speech gave one the idea that he was speaking in sniffs; taking up a subject, holding it up for a minute, and tossing it half or wholly contemptuously away, as if he felt that he must get through an unsavoury task somehow, and was determined that his audience should receive as little pleasure in hearing what he said as he himself in saying it. Such a specimen of intercommunication between member and constituency suggests a notion that, if there be one thing that Mr. Ayrton dislikes more than an Alderman of the Corporation of London, it is a Tower Hamlets elector. What were the arts by which he won the favour of that body it is not easy, at the present time, to conjecture; but he acts towards and treats them with a touch of the spoilt child about him which indicates that he has exhibited fascinations in relation to them with which all the rest of the world which does not penetrate into that idiosyncratic metropolitan population have never been favoured, and of which they have seen no gleams which would induce them to take trouble to exhume them. It may be a wayward and an unjustifiable fancy; but one does, somehow, fancy that Mr. Ayrton, as a public man, is seeking after something—that he wants something. What can it be?

Southwark is in some degree conterminous with Lambeth, and it was not a very wide step which Mr. Layard took when he went over the border between them, the other night, to lecture upon schools of art in the latter borough. It was only natural in the Lambethians that, having, no doubt, every political faith in their own representatives, but being equally strong in the distrust of their powers of dealing with questions of art, they should go into their neighbour's territory and ask a man of mark there to do that for them which was unattainable within their own limits. And, in truth, Mr. Layard was far more at home in recalling his experiences of Nineveh and tracing painting and sculpture up to the Assyrians than when he is pettishly defending Earl Russell's peculiar mode of diplomacy, and, in default of a case of his own, abusing that of every one else. Here, at least, he could talk with that freedom and boldness which is characteristic of him, without any fear for his coat tails, which are so constantly pulled in the House that one wonders he does not ask Mr. Forster to see whether in Bradford some manufacturer cannot invent a broadcloth specially adapted for the garments of an Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs. A proof of his heretical courage is to be gained in the fact that he absolutely ventured to criticise, in the rudest way, that famous picture of Mr. Herbert in the Palace at Westminster, which everybody says is to enchant the world, as soon as the world can get into such a very moderate space as is allotted to the Peers' Robing-room. A writer in the Revue des Deux Mondes has been beforehand with Mr. Layard in a characterisation of the figures in Mr. Herbert's picture, which, with that accuracy in English topography so peculiar to French men of letters, he describes as modelled on the Jews who congregate in "St. Giles's." But even the foreign critic does not hazard so very familiarly heterodox an opinion as that Moses, the central figure of all, is a verisimilitude of a dirty Bedouin Arab, who had often carried Mr. Layard's portmanteau across the desert. With this new dictum on the work, uttered by one who, so far as the alleged likeness is concerned, must be taken as an authority, duly blazoned abroad, one wonders whether the pensive public will become critical of the picture next Session, when it is again exhibited. Phrases like that of which Mr. Layard has delivered himself have a knack of sticking to the person or thing at which they have been launched; and it is quite possible that few persons who go to gaze on what is admittedly a great work of art but will, when they look at Moses, think of the Bedouin Arab, which will be a pity, as all disillusions are. It is not for this illustration, however, that Mr. Layard's lecture ought to be remembered, for there were many things which he said which were interesting, and much that was even recondite; while the best impression which his "art-utterance" left was rather that of the active, zealous, and adventurous traveller in regions which he has done so much to render pleasantly familiar to his countrymen, than of him who has of late been merged in the second-rate politician and the subordinate Government official.

There has been also an art-lecture at Kidderminster which was the product of Sir John Pakington, and which, as may be supposed, has very much enlarged the sphere of that peculiar branch of knowledge amongst the supple and accommodating constituency of that modest—so far as its number of electors are concerned—little borough.

The Queen has appointed Thomas George Knox, Esq., to be her Majesty's Consul at Bangkok, in Siam.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

Old Tattersall's is showing symptoms of dissolution. Already the cupola, with its bust of George IV., has been removed to its new Knightsbridge home, and the fox only remains till a new pump or pedestal is prepared for it beneath or near its "fat friend" of so many years standing. Ere long the pictures of the racehorses and the little photograph of the octogenarian Will Williamson, in his scarlet, will descend from their pegs in the subscription-room, and it is fully expected that the first sale will take place in the new yard during the first week of April. There is one comfort, that both the old Yard and the Green, and many of their most ardent worshippers, will be preserved to all time by the pencil of Mr. Joy.

The lives of speculators are being rendered miserable at present by their inability to guess which is the better of the two, Broomielaw or Breadalbane, a point upon which Mr. I'Anson is most probably not at all clear himself. Amid the mist on the point both bay and chestnut have gone back slightly. Liddington is rather falling from the somewhat false position which he held throughout the winter. Chattanooga is firm, and Bedminster is advancing. Blair Athol seems to have stimulated "a noble rage" for dark horses, as out of the seven first Derby favourites no less than three rank under that head.

No year has ever opened so favourably as '65 for The Turf, and the Liverpool Steeplechase and nearly all its little brothers have bumper entries as well. The Two-Year-Old Plate at Newmarket numbers ninety-eight subscribers, the Criterion sixty-five, the Ascot New Stakes seventy-six, and the Doncaster Two-Year-Old seventy-eight. For the Ascot Cup thirty-seven are entered, with Breadalbane, Liddington, Zambesi, Scottish Chief, and Dollar among the unsealed nominations. The Alexandra Plate, at Ascot, with £1000 added, has Vermouth, Ackworth, Scottish Chief, and Fille de l'Air among its nominations; and as the distance is nearly three miles and the scale of weights nearly 2 st. above the conventional 8 st. 10 lb., Lord Redesdale should be happy at last. The Beaufort Cup, at Bath, has sixty-three subscribers, and is framed with Ascot weights and Goodwood penalties. The Free Handicap shows that, in Admiral Rous's estimation, Vermouth is 5 lb. better than Fille de l'Air and Scottish Chief, and 7 lb. better than Ely, Miner, and Cambuscan; and it is a curious symptom of the fastness of the age, that a sporting paper publishes a handicap "in anticipation of the Chester Cup." There are about 230 horses in training at Newmarket. John Scott has seventy-three, headed by old Basilisk, and nearly three dozen of them two-year-olds; and John Day, who never publishes his list, is said to have fully a hundred in hand. Thanks to his Grace of Badminton, the Danebury stables were never so well filled.

There are not many important changes in the stud farms. Lord of the Isles goes to Althorp, and Surplice succeeds to the Hasketon box of Oulston, who comes to Newmarket. The Lawyer commences his new career at Stanton, where the first foal of the season had a very narrow escape of being born in the old year. Lord Clifden is not advertised for the stud, and yet his name does not appear in any of the handicaps. It is to be hoped that it will be found in one of his Lordship's sealed nominations for the Ascot Cup, and that we may see the St. Leger bay in different form to what we did last year. His half-brother, Adventurer, the finest stayer that has yet been credited to Newminster, will stand with Warlock at Sheffield-lane paddocks, and is pretty certain to be popular; and Sir George Strickland (now Sir George Chomley, in consequence of having succeeded to some large estates in the North) has sixteen mares of his own for the magnificently-bred Hubert by Stockwell from Newminster's own sister. We hear that 166 out of the 297 sons and daughters of Stockwell which started in 1858-64, have won £128,905 in 412 races. St. Albans' subscription is full, and an own sister or brother to him will be among the foals of the season. General Hess was bought in at Tattersall's for 390 gs., and Atherstone at 1950 gs.

The first course in the Members' Cup at Altcar was between the ultimate winner, Jem Mace, and Chloe, the winner of the Waterloo Cup in '63, who fell, and was only very narrowly beaten after all. Mr. Gibson's puppy, Gunboat, ran, as he always does, remarkably well, and was only got rid of, in his fourth course, after an undecided course, by Jem Mace, who beat Mr. Brougham's Bonnie Venture, a bad ditch jumper, for the deciding course. Mr. Borron's Bandeau, by Bold Enterprise, ran up to Mr. Brundritt's Accident for the Sefton Stakes, and Lord Binning's Bribery and Bergamot divided the Veteran Stakes for dogs pupped before 1860. Breeze, a daughter of Cioloja, whom Mr. Campbell considered the best he ever bred, broke her back at a bank. Lord Sefton sent ten dogs to the slips during the week, but won nothing. The Waterloo Cup on dits are to the effect that Mr. J. Jardine will most likely run Bonus; Mr. Haywood, Rebe (who has been very lame) or Reveller the Second; and Mr. Gibson, Clasper (whom he was anxious to borrow, for the purpose, from his owner last year) and Gunboat, who has been only beaten in the last tie but one at each Altcar Club Meeting. Cheer Boys, Tullochgorum, King Death, Jem Mace, Kitty Malone, and Bonnie Venture are all named as likely to go, so that Calabaroono will have to meet a strong field. The name of the judge is not announced, but it is expected that there will be a closer struggle for it than usual, as a new judge has been giving great satisfaction. Spagnoletti, a clever son of Canaradzo, won the Cothelstone Cup, and got (which is most unusual) two byes in his four courses. Mr. Borron was not very lucky with his own dogs at Coole, County Cork), though Winsome Lassie, by his Bold Enterprise, won the cup.

The shadow of the old United has published its list of members, which contains none of any public note save Atkinson, Carpenter, Grundy, and Iddison. The United South of England, on the contrary, can bring into the field an eleven composed of Cæsar, Griffith, Hearne, Humphrey, Jupp, Lockyer, Lillywhite, Mortlock, Sewell, H. H. Stephenson, and Willsher. How, after all this splitting, a match will be managed between "the two Elevens" is very difficult to say, as the unaccountable conduct of the three Cambridge men with regard to Surrey has so materially complicated matters.

A meeting was held at Peterborough on Monday last—Mr. Tryan in the chair—to consider the proposed change in the Milton Hunt. It was eventually decided that everything should remain as it is, save that in future the Hon. George Fitzwilliam should have a subscription of £2000 a year, which is to become due on Jan. 1, 1866. About £1250 was subscribed in the room. The ready way in which the matter has been met is a very graceful return for the sport which the Fitzwilliam family have so freely furnished to the county in the past and present centuries.

THE FARM.

There is little enough to break the agricultural dulness of the season. The Anti-Malt Tax men are, of course, going into training again for their annual set-to with the Chancellor of the Exchequer; and the wool-buyers have pondered long and deeply over the news of the 30,000 bales of cotton in Savannah before they dared to operate. In the general dearth of news we note an account in the Veterinarian of an operation on a foal of three weeks for roaring; and the reappearance of Messrs. Howard's retired champion ploughman, John Hullitt, who, with a strange pair of horses, vanquished the Ransomes and their Suffolk team in the first of the All England ploughing-matches of the year.

Lady Pigot's herd is fast approaching its old dimensions before the sale of '63; and the Ravenspur calves are full of promise. Perfume, of the Bracelet blood, and purchased at Towneley, has produced a roan heifer-calf, Pastille, and there are also red heifers from Young Dahlia and Medoro. Ravenshope, from Isabella Hopewell, is considered to be about the best ever bred at Branches. His dam has been recently slaughtered, and she unfortunately leaves no female behind her. British Flag, from Warlaby (where a sale will, it is rumoured, take place early in the autumn), succeeds Ravenspur. We are glad to hear that Mr. Wetherall, who has been hardly able to leave the house for ten months past, except very occasionally for a carriage airing, is much better, and quite hopes, with the assistance of his two sons, to undertake sales again in person this season. Many, besides ourselves, sadly missed "Nestor" from his accustomed seat at the side of the shorthorn ring in '64. Queen of May 2nd, which was in the Royal Worcester "black list," has brought a calf to Warlaby, and so has Soldier's Bride. It seems that this herd had quite a run of bull-calves last year—viz., thirteen to four heifers. Mr. Baldwin's bull-calf by Battersea from the unbeaten Miss Hastings 2nd, has been named Hesiod. Battersea forms the portrait of the month in the Farmers' Magazine, which also contains an account of the herd at Luddington. Ten out of his fourteen prizes have been won for Mr. Baldwin, and of the £150 paid by secretaries of societies, £120 may be set off against his present owner's £105 purchase-money and show expenses. So far, Mr. Baldwin has won about thirty-five prizes for Herefords, and ten for sheep. He has exhibited at only three Royals, and taken away four firsts and a second; and some medals, a cup, and £370 compose the sum total for fat and store winnings during the few years he has been among the show ribbons.

The editor of "The Hereford Herd-book" is underlined for a paper on the Management and Breeding of Cattle at the Central Farmer's Club, which announces that it will give a ten-guinea cup for the best essay read before it in the course of the year. As the subjects include Middle-class Education, Importance of Sheltering and Covering to the Farm and the Homestead; and the management of Pigs, Grass-land, Cattle, and Benefit Societies, the decision will be rather a difficult one to arrive at in the face of so much variety.

Everything promises well for the show of the Yorkshire Agricultural Society, under the management of the new secretary, Mr. Parrington. Mr. James Brown, M.P., of Rossington, near Doncaster, has given £100 to the local fund, which already reaches £1000. It is proposed to offer prizes of £50 for the best thoroughbred and cart sires, subject to the condition of their travelling a fifteen-mile circuit round Doncaster. There will be also a silver cup of the value of £25 for the best shorthorn in the yard.

The annual sale of Sir F. Homeyer's pure-bred Merino rams was held at Ranzin, Pomerania, last month; and was attended by flock-masters from nearly all parts of Prussia, Hanover, and Mecklenburg. Out of the eighty-six rams, thirty-six averaged £60, and five of them twice that amount, and the remaining fifty £12 each.

It was stated recently, at a meeting of the local committee of the Royal Agricultural Society at Plymouth, that the total sum to be given in prizes next July will be £3357, against £2670 at Newcastle last year. Of this £1125 is allotted to cattle, £585 to horses, £920 to sheep, and £225 to pigs. The local committee contributes £502, or £92 more than was given by the Newcastle people.

MEET OF THE WEST NORFOLK FOX-HOUNDS AT MERTON HALL.

Merton Hall, the seat of Lord Walsingham, is about ten miles from Thetford, in West Norfolk; a mansion built of red brick, in the Elizabethan style, probably about the year 1600, on the site of a house which had been in the possession of the De Grey family since the fourteenth century. It stands in a park two miles in length, which near the house is studded with timber. The gardens are remarkable for the noble old oak, measuring 23 ft. 4 in. in the circumference of its trunk; and there is also a fine collection of pines and firs. Lord Walsingham, like other noblemen and gentlemen in Norfolk, is a zealous practical agriculturist, and has a celebrated flock of Southdown sheep. The Prince of Wales, in his visit to Merton last week, had an opportunity of inspecting this flock, of which his Royal Highness, who has an hereditary love of farming pursuits, took care to avail himself. We have chosen for the subject of an Illustration of this visit a lively scene displayed in front of Merton Hall on Friday, when the West Norfolk fox-hounds had their appointed meet in the park, on the north side of the hall. By a judicious arrangement, the east side of the coach road was roped off for carriages and the west side for horsemen, while a square immediately in front of the north court was set apart for the hounds.

We have received from a correspondent the following account of the day's sport:—"When the Prince of Wales had mounted his favourite chestnut he rode into the reserved space and followed the hounds up the avenue of horsemen and carriages, receiving as he passed along the most cordial salutations from the large company assembled. There were upwards of 200 carriages of various description, and from 400 to 500 horsemen at the meet. Persons on foot were not admitted into the park, and, consequently, the roads round the park were so thickly lined with people that they gave little chance for a fox getting away. The master of the hunt, therefore, very properly determined to explore some coverts at a distance; and the hounds were trotted off to a beautiful covert called Sturston Car, where foxes had been seen and were known to abide; but, from the snow and rain of the previous night, the Cars were very wet, and, doubtless, the fox had sought higher and dryer ground. Two or three other coverts were tried, without success; and this can scarcely be wondered at near a certain place where, perhaps, foxes are not so much cared for as they are by the noble Lord of Merton. To the delight of everybody, the cheering order, of 'Go to Sparrow Hills' was given, and we heard several exclaim, 'That's the place! we are sure of a fox; there, it is never drawn blank!' When we reached this favourite covert, we found it a perfect study for any person who wants to make a fox-covert. There are a hundred acres or more of fern, furze, mahonias, rhododendrons, dwarf pinuses, and every plant calculated to make covert, backed, on the north, by a fine oak wood abounding with pheasants, which, we think, clearly proves that where there is a will foxes and pheasants may be found together. The hounds had been but a very short time in the covert when a fine, spanking fox came bounding past us. He ran westward, then jumped a stone wall, into the oak woods, and showed at the west end, where he was headed. He then ran eastward, and made for the open part of the wood, and was viewed by the first whip passing immediately in front of the drawing-room windows, but in the mean time another fox had quietly made its way across the park, to the north, and got clear away. Our first fox, after passing the hall, ran up to the road at the east end of the wood, and was again headed. He passed along the park fence and through the lodge gate, notwithstanding the attendance of two policemen, ran along the roadside towards Watton, and was headed a third time. He then ran eastward, and skirted an oak wood near Merton Rectory; and, seeing people again in front, he doubled for the village of Thompson, finally bearing to the west for the park; and in this line some awkward fences and ditches showed themselves, all which his Royal Highness went at without flinching and cleared in admirable style, while a good many persons came to grief, and looked none the better for their roll. The scent had never been good, but now it became so bad that the hounds could not work their fox at all, and finally lost him. It was now half-past three, but it was determined to draw Wayland Wood, famous as being the wood from which the traditional story of the 'Babes in the Wood' was founded, and near the wood stands the house in which the cruel uncle is said to have lived. A fox was soon found, but, from the great extent of the wood and the number of persons about, he could not be made to break covert, and finally ran to ground. Another fox broke away on the east side of the wood; but, unfortunately, this fox was not hallooed, or, even at the late hour when he broke covert, a good spurt might have been got, for the country was a good one."

On Saturday the Prince, with several other gentlemen, commenced covert-shooting at eleven o'clock, and, notwithstanding the extremely unfavourable state of the weather, a very large number of pheasants were killed. His Royal Highness went back to Sandringham that afternoon.

A hopeful miner, writing from Nevada territory, the land of silver bricks, says:—"It is estimated that the silver mines of Nevada will yield this year 25,000,000 dols. This amount will be taken out in two years from now in this city and vicinity annually, as we are now taking out and sending forward 150,000 dols. per month, which will be nearly doubled after the 1st of next January."

The Sultan has ordered from the Thames Ironworks Company another iron-plated frigate, to be called the Turkistan, and to be paid for out of his private funds. The new vessel will measure 365 ft. by 56 ft. from stem to stern, 36 ft. from keel to deck, and will draw 25 ft. of water. Her engines are to be 1200-horse power, and her tonnage 6000 tons. She will be armed with forty-four rifled cannon of the heaviest metal.

The Turkish Government is about to construct on its own account a railroad from Ismid to Sabandja, near the Sakaria River. This railroad will be of especial service for the transport of timber from the splendid forests of Karamanly, which lie close to Sabandja, and the timber from which is extensively used in the Imperial arsenals. The railroad will further open the commerce of Asia Minor in a part where the present means of communication are very deficient. The expense will not be great, as the line will not be five leagues long, and the constructors will make use of the materials of the old Balaklava Railroad, purchased by the Ottoman Government.

VISIT OF THE PRINCE OF WALES TO MERTON HALL, NORFOLK, THE SEAT OF LORD WALSINGHAM: THE MEET OF THE FOX-HOUNDS.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

RUINS OF THE EDINBURGH THEATRE AFTER THE LATE FIRE.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

ENTERTAINMENT AT THE HANOVER-SQUARE ROOMS TO THE INMATES OF THE DEAF AND DUMB INSTITUTION.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

BURNING OF THE THEATRE ROYAL, EDINBURGH.

A fire broke out in the Theatre Royal at Edinburgh, on Friday week, about four o'clock in the afternoon, and within a couple of hours the whole building was destroyed, besides the cloister and part of the main building of St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church. This disaster, being attended with the loss of six lives, amongst which is that of Mr. George Lorimer, the Dean of Guild, has caused a deep gloom in the city of Edinburgh. The theatre, which was opened nine years ago, occupied the site of the Adelphi Theatre, which was destroyed by fire in May, 1855. The box entrance was in the south-east corner of the building, fronting Leith-walk, and the site extended on the north side to Little King-street, where the pit and gallery entrance was; and on the east side to Broughton-street, upon which the store-room and saloon windows looked out. On the north side the theatre adjoined St. Mary's Roman Catholic Church, the interval between the two edifices being filled up by a cloister or private chapel. On the west side, which was the higher part of the site, the gable abutted upon several tall and densely-populated buildings in Little King-street, or St. James's-place, consisting of four or five stories, and inhabited in flats. On the other side of Little King-street, which has a very steep slope down to the street, there was also a tall range of inhabited dwellings, running to six or seven stories high.

The fire originated in the top shifts of the scenery, where the gas-man, named Cassey, had just been putting in the lights, at a subdued height, to be ready for the illumination of the evening's performance in the pantomime of "The Old Woman Who Lived in a Shoe." He had succeeded in lighting the second row of top-lights, and was lighting the first, when the drapery caught fire. The flame spread so rapidly that neither Cassey nor the men he called to help him—Stewart, the carpenter, and Syme, the fireman—could prevent its catching the scenes, whence it took hold of the woodwork. These men, and others in the house, had just time to escape, though Stewart was nearly suffocated with the smoke. Some efforts were made to save the valuable dresses and other "properties," but these efforts were soon abandoned. By this time the flames had burst upwards through an opening in the roof, caused by the fall of the roof of the stage and of the ventilating turret above. Through the upper windows and doorway in Little King-street, also, flames presently issued, and fiery embers were hurled forth, continually threatening to ignite the opposite houses. This grand and terrible spectacle drew thousands of people to Leith-walk; while many gathered on the Carlton hill, and at other available points of view. In the mean time, all the fire-engines of the town had been sent for. The police were assisted in keeping order by a strong detachment of the 74th Regiment, from the Castle, under Lieutenant and Adjutant Currie; while Lieutenant Nicholas brought fifty men of the Royal Artillery from Leith Fort, with their powerful engine. It was hoped that the fire might be confined to the theatre; but it was from the state of the walls that further danger was most apprehended. A part of the south wall had been torn down in the fall of the roof, and, the boxes and galleries having given way in a series of loud crashes, the side walls, which were 40 ft. to 50 ft. high, stood unprotected and showing a great inclination outwards. The north wall, overhanging the cloister of the Catholic chapel, was in a very threatening condition. One of the chimney-stacks of the theatre had fallen and smashed the cupola and a large part of the roof of the cloister-chapel. Two men were struck down here. An old man named John Clark, one of the fire-brigade, was killed on the spot. A man named Thomas Henry Leeke was thrown down with a great stone on his back, having his head and arms partially clear of the rubbish, but unable to move. He called loudly and piteously for help, which could only be rendered by others at the greatest peril, for the north wall threatened every moment to give way. Several men courageously endeavoured to get him out. One of the most active in this benevolent and heroic labour was Mr. George Lorimer, Dean of Guild. Being himself a practical builder, he felt confident in his own calculations for his safety. He was repeatedly called to come away, but his reply was that he knew the theatre walls well, and that they would not give way, but that he would rescue the man even if at the peril of his life. Mr. Lorimer and his companions had been repeatedly warned of their danger; but Mr. Lorimer refused to leave the work while he felt it possible to rescue a fellow-creature, and several other men stuck by him and continued the effort to rescue Leeke. The fire-master, Mr. Mitchell, who had been observing the increased deflection of the wall, conjured Mr. Lorimer to yield, and even tried to drag him away. Bishop Strain, who had been at the spot all the evening, helping in the work, saw the wall beginning to yield, and ran through the large chapel to the cloister door to give the alarm. Mr. Chessar, Mr. Mitchell, and others who were also within the limits of danger at the moment, called out that the wall was falling, and, running within the unbroken part of the roof of the cloister, escaped. In a second or two the greater half of the north wall fell with a terrific crash. Mr. Lorimer and three others were in the act of escaping when they were overwhelmed in the ruins. Had Mr. Lorimer got a few feet further down the cloister, or had he taken to the door at which Bishop Strain stood, he would doubtless have escaped. It was impossible to tell at the time how many were killed, and the fire-master and others had reason to be grateful for their deliverance, for had they not sprung forward at the moment they would have shared the same fate. At first it was believed that seven or eight persons had been killed by the second fall, for the falling wall left a pile of rubbish about eight feet high over the bodies. It was not till ten o'clock next morning that the site of the cloister was finally cleared, and the number of persons killed ascertained to be six, including the two first struck down. It is thought that Leeke had been dead before the second fall took place. The view of the ruins which is presented by our Engraving shows the precise spot where Mr Lorimer and the others lost their lives in the manner we have described. The main building of St. Mary's Church is at the left hand, so that the space between this and the walls of the theatre marks the site of the cloister, while a heap of rubbish is shown as the remains of the north wall. We shall give a portrait of Mr. Lorimer next week.

ASSOCIATION IN AID OF THE DEAF AND DUMB.

The second annual soirée of this association was held at the Hanover-square Rooms on Monday week. It was attended, not only by the subscribers and friends of the association, but also by a large number of the deaf and dumb themselves. After tea the chair was taken by Mr. Philip Cazenove, who addressed the meeting in a short speech, which the Rev. S. Smith, the chaplain of the association, translated on his fingers for the benefit of the deaf and dumb visitors. On the conclusion of the chairman's speech, Mr. Smith exhibited the phenomenon of an address delivered simultaneously to the ears and eyes of the different portions of the meeting. He informed them that, although sufficient funds had not yet been accumulated to allow the committee to begin to carry out the objects of the association, they were in hopes that before another year had passed they might be enabled to commence. The objects in view were:—First. A place of worship for the deaf and dumb, who could not benefit by oral-instruction and had generally too limited a knowledge of book-language to read the service to advantage. Secondly. To give assistance to aged and infirm deaf mutes, some of whom were known to be working for a bare subsistence at upwards of seventy years of age. Thirdly. To provide a room for weekly lectures and for weekly reading, where the deaf and dumb might meet together to improve themselves and interchange ideas. In aid of these objects about £2000 had already been raised. The Queen had showed her interest in the undertaking by a donation of £50. Lord Carbery, himself deaf and dumb, had given £100; and if another £1000 were raised the committee thought they might commence the work. It was not easy to find a site such as was needed, and it was thought advisable that the institution should be located somewhere between Portland-place on the one side and Gray's-inn-lane on the other. Mr. Smith said he also hoped to raise a fund to give prizes to deaf mutes for proficiency in painting, skill as workmen, or steadiness of conduct. Some of them were good artists. A deaf and dumb artist had only the week before gained a silver medal at the Royal Academy. Mr. Smith's speech was closely attended to, and those who watched him frequently gave loud tokens of their approbation. The Rev. Arthur Casimir, Dr. Grosvenor, the Rev. W. Cadman, and other gentlemen, also addressed the meeting; and Professor Artis gave some recitations, which were translated, like the speeches, by Mr. Smith into the finger language of the deaf and dumb. After a vote of thanks to the chairman had been passed, as the serious business of the evening was over, its lighter entertainments were commenced by Professor Matthews, who ascended the platform and exhibited some wonderful tricks of legerdemain. He announced that he would perform a whole evening for the benefit of the funds of this association. This was followed by a performance vocal music, Mr. Wass's new cantata being sung by a party of amateur friends; and the evening closed with the illumination of a Christmas-tree and the distribution of many articles thereon suspended among the juvenile visitors. We give an Illustration of this entertainment for the sake of its benevolent object.

FINE ARTS.

A portion of Mr. Jacob Bell's bequest to the nation—viz., Landseer's picture "The Maid and the Magpie," together with the late Mr. Oppenheim, the blind collector's, bequest, Tschaggeny's fine picture, "An Incident in Battle," have been added to the South Kensington Collection. It is high time to ask when the remaining pictures left by the former donor are to be given up to the public. Mr. Jacob Bell died some five or six years ago, and bequeathed to the National Gallery—besides the picture by Sir Edward Landseer—"The Derby Day," by Mr. Frith, and "The Horse Fair," by Mdlle. Rosa Bonheur—the last a somewhat reduced replica of the celebrated picture. All three pictures were, it was understood, to be detained for the purpose of engraving. But the engravings from all of them have been long since published, and there can be no good reason for their further detention. Of course, if these very popular pictures are transmitted from place to place for exhibition in the provinces it may help to swell the list of subscribers to the plates from them; but this is certainly not carrying out the intention of the donor; and, if they are any longer withheld from the collection to which they have now for some time actually, as well as virtually and prospectively, belonged, we think it is a case for the summary interference of the director of the National Gallery.

The Queen has offered to lend pictures by Wilkie, Mulready, Stanfield, Roberts, and Thomas to the Dublin Exhibition. The fine-arts department is presided over by Lord Powerscourt, a well-known connoisseur, as chairman of the appointed committee. Sir J. J. Coghill, Bart., one of the members of this fine-arts committee, is coming over to England shortly to obtain and select pictures for the exhibition.

A translation of a valuable work to the student of art-history (but hitherto a sealed book to those uncquainted with German) has been published by Smith, Elder, and Co. We allude to Mr. Bunnet's translation of the "Life of Michael Angelo" by M. Herman Grimm, the son of the younger of the famous Brothers Grimm. Would it not also be worth while for Mr. Bunnet or some other qualified person to put into an English dress the still more important biography of Raphael by M. Passavant? A good French translation of the latter appeared not long since, but we should imagine this would not destroy all demand for an English version.

Mr. Ruskin is to be congratulated upon his return into the domain—often with him the arena—of art. After a long flirtation with that very sedate housewife, Political Economy, he has come back to the old love, the Muse of Painting. The profit, even to the general reader, will probably be great; for Mr. Ruskin has brought to no other subject the insight, the rare energy and eloquence, he has displayed in discoursing upon art. However widely we may differ from his dogmas—though we may not wish to, and our judgment tells us we should not, follow where fancy often leads him—yet it must be felt that his writings on the subject in which he first acquired fame are far more valuable than those crude and Quixotic speculations with which he has more recently amused himself. In the current number of the Art-Journal Mr. Ruskin commences a series of papers under the somewhat far-fetched but poetical title, "The Cestus of Aglaia"—a goddess who, as one of the three Graces or Charites, has been aptly claimed as the patroness or impersonation of painting. Mr. Ruskin's purpose in these papers is to "try if there may not be determined some of the simplest laws which are indeed binding on art practice and judgment." After each paper remarks and discussion are invited. In the course of the article a bitter complaint is made by implication of the total, or almost total, neglect of the Turner drawings in the national collections, which Mr. Ruskin took so much pains to arrange and mount.

The directors of the Crystal Palace have just issued a circular to artists inviting contributions to the exhibition of the approaching season at their gallery; pictures to be sent to the Hanover-square Rooms on the 6th and 7th of March, whence they will be conveyed, free of charge, to Sydenham. A conclusive proof that the Crystal Palace picture-gallery improves in the character of the works exhibited and in the estimation of the public is afforded by the fact that the receipts of the past year are found to have risen to nearly £7000. The Art-Union erst called of the Crystal Palace is in future to be known as "The Ceramic Art-Union." Its principal prizes have hitherto been selected from this branch of art-manufacture, and future ones are to be so, as we understand, exclusively. This year it offers to subscribers busts of the Queen and the Prince Consort. The Art-Union owes its success chiefly to the knowledge and taste in ceramics of the late Mr Battam. The last work of this gentleman, The Lurline Tazza, has just been issued by Mr. Alderman Copeland. It is a graceful stooping figure of the nymph of the Lurlei supporting a shell-tazza to hold flowers. A pillar rises from a basin also intended for flowers, and sustains the figure of the nymph.

The mention of one Art-Union naturally recalls another; and we may state, by way of addition to our note, last week, on the fine engraving from Mr. Frith's picture of "Claude Duval," offered to subscribers to the London Art-Union for the present year, that the report of the society for the past year shows the continued prosperity of this the oldest of the Art-Unions. During 1864 the subscriptions amounted to £12,469. The reserve fund amounts to £11,549. Mr. Birch is now engaged in reproducing in marble for the society his statue, "A Wood Nymph," the model of which was selected from the competitive works for the execution of the first prize to be offered to subscribers. The council contemplate (with a view of ultimately lessening the expenses of the offices in the Strand) erecting on freehold ground a building of its own, uniting offices, warehouses, galleries, and a meeting-hall.

The bronze statues of Professor Wilson and Allan Ramsay, both by Mr. Steele, R.S.A., are about to be erected and inaugurated at Edinburgh—the former in the East Princes-street Garden, the latter in the West Garden.

We have had occasion to criticise unfavourably the past management of the exhibitions of the Society of Female Artists. It is, we trust, to be accepted as a proof of the inauguration of a better state of things in the forthcoming exhibition that the ladies (mere amateurs or patronesses in many cases) who have hitherto undertaken the direction have retired, leaving the entire management to devolve upon the artists themselves, by whom a committee has been formed.

The exhibition of David Roberts's sketches will probably open in February and close before the sale of pictures, &c., in May. The usual charge for admission will be made, and the proceeds, after payment of expenses, will be presented to the two artists' funds in which the deceased took so much interest.

The number of sketches of all kinds left by Mr. John Leech is now ascertained to be about 5000, and they will be sold at Christie's in the middle of April. Other sales of art-interest, advertised to take place during the season at the same well-known rooms, are the following:—The sketches, drawings, &c., of W. Dyce, R.A.; the works of W. Linton; the Branhope Manor Collections, those of Lord Cadogan, and of Messrs. Cartwright, F.R.S., W. Hardman, of Manchester, J. Davis, of Cranbrook Park, J. Sichel, of Timperley, and H. Wallis.

Mr. W. B. Scott has been commissioned by Sir W. C. Trevelyan to paint a series of subjects from "Chevy Chase" in continuation of the mural decorations by this artist executed in this Baronet's mansion at Wallington, near Newcastle. The pictures already executed illustrate the history of Northumberland. They were exhibited in London about two years ago, and won golden opinions for their originality, their force, and fertility of invention. The new subjects will fill the spandrils of an arcade over those pictures. In view of the signs in various quarters of a nascent demand for wall paintings, the principle adopted in the choice of subject at Wallington may be recommended for imitation. Would it not often be better, instead of seeking further afield, to illustrate in local monumental paintings the events of the highest local importance and interest? Mr. Scott has also in hand a picture representing the building of the castle of Newcastle by Robert Curthose, for the hall of the Literary and Scientific Institution of that town. The commission for this picture was given to the artist as a testimonial of esteem by the good people of Newcastle, and in acknowledgment of his services, particularly as master during nearly twenty years of the School of Design, a post he has lately resigned.

It is now many years since the name of the Etching Club was first made familiar to the public through the medium of its etchings and illustrated books. The list of members has undergone considerable alteration since that time; but in a work recently published by Mr. Cundall, entitled "A Selection of Etchings by the Etching Club," we observe still some of the old names; and while they worthily sustain their old reputation, the younger members successfully compete with them in their contributions, and add fresh glory to the already illustrious name of the club. Mr. Creswick, one of the oldest members, adds to a painter's freedom the mechanical dexterity of a long-practised etcher and draughtsman on wood. His picture of "A Roughish Road by the Loch Side" is a charming bit of simple nature, and, if transferred to canvas, and a figure put on the road just in the right place, would be coveted by many a connoisseur. There is wonderful depth in Mr. Palmer's "Herdsman." It has all the extraordinary power of his water-colour pictures. It is real enjoyment to look upon Mr. Ansdell's "Park" and Mr. Redgrave's "Summer Woods." Mr. Cope's "Spring Flood" is very forcible in effect, and is a perfect gem. There is fine feeling and dextrous handling in Mr. Haden's "Study in Kensington Gardens." There are also contributions from Messrs. Millais, R.A.; Frederick Taylor, Holman Hunt; Horsley, R.A.; G. B. O'Neill, and Hook, R.A., all commanding our admiration by their truth and excellence. While we heartily thank the Etching Club for creating for us such a fount of enjoyment as this volume contains, we trust they will often vary their more important labours at the easel by taking up the etching-needle and giving their "Etched Thoughts" to the public.

A movement is on foot to have an exhibition in the spring of the productions of the workmen of the Potteries district. An art-workmen's exhibition is also being organised in Manchester under favourable auspices. Contributions will be received from every town within twenty-five miles of the Manchester Exchange. The mention of this building reminds us that it has been decided to replace it by one in every way superior, and which shall contain a room half as large again as the existing one, and afford accommodation equal to the Hamburg Exchange, which is said to be the largest in Europe.

A memorial bust, in marble, of the late Duke of Richmond, by Mr. Foley, R.A., has just been erected in the Council Chamber, Chichester. On the left breast are various orders and medals bespeaking the services of his Grace as a soldier, and an inscription on the pedestal indicates the esteem in which he was otherwise held. It may not be generally known that the same sculptor (who is now engaged on a statue of General Stonewall Jackson) has executed a composition for the seal of the Confederate States of America. The design contains as a centre a representation of the statue of Washington, by the American sculptor, Crawford, which is erected at Richmond. The figure is mounted, and in uniform, as if commanding in an engagement. It is surrounded by a beautifully-composed wreath, consisting of the most valuable vegetable products of the Southern soil; as tobacco, rice, maize, cotton, wheat, and sugar-cane. The rim bears the legend, "The Confederate States of America, 22 October, 1862. Deo Vindice."

A pair of statuettes, from the figures of Sardanapalus and his Queen, in one of the Assyrian bas-reliefs, now in the British Museum, have been modelled by Mr. A. Hays, of Hans-place, and executed in porcelain. They are a faithful version of the original, and, having much historical interest, deserve a word of note.

The Misses Bertolacci are preparing a series of photographs of Turner's "Rivers of England," as a companion work to the "England and Wales," which we reviewed some time back.

Mr. Gibson, our great English sculptor at Rome, has just completed a group of a Nymph and Cupid, which was commissioned by the Prince of Wales, and which, by permission of his Royal Highness, has been coloured. "The idea was," says a correspondent of the Athenæum, "suggested by the sculptor seeing a girl of fourteen years of age in the streets of Rome playing with and throwing a child in the air." A statue of Psyche holding a sop to Cerberus has been commissioned of the same sculptor, by some purchaser incognito, at the price of £700; and this, too, is to be coloured—Mr. Gibson maintaining the propriety of the colouration of sculpture as stoutly as ever.

The new Church of St. Augustin, at Paris, is to be richly decorated with paintings, stained glass, enamelled medallions, and sculpture, at a cost of £11,584.

The City of Milan is about to erect a monument to Meyerbeer by public subscription; the amount collected at present is about 3000 lire. At Vienna a monument to Haydn is being executed.

Mr. Dobson, one of the ablest and most prolific of our provincial architects, the designer of an immense number of country mansions, churches, castles, railway-stations, &c., in the northern counties and other parts of England, has just died.

A New York paper states that Professor Silliman examined part of Southern California in the summer, and found oil equal in quality to the best in Pennsylvania struggling to the surface and running to waste down the rivers for miles. It has been regarded as a nuisance, rendering barren tracts of land of perhaps a mile square in the midst of a fine agricultural district.

Among the patterns and samples sent from the country to London by the post in one month of the year 1864—the first complete year of the inland pattern post system—were 136 packages of tea, 178 of sugar, 907 of alpaca and stuffs, 525 of cloth, 320 of silks, 189 of corn, and smaller numbers of samples of buttons, pipeclay, oilcake, ladies' dresses, hair, drugs, glue, stays, belts, caps, boots and shoes, beans, candles, shawls, flour, china, bricks, slippers, pincers, a cribbage-board, potatoes, feathers, lozenges, hay, tallow, gasfittings, eardrops, and a host of other curious and useful articles.

The new railway bridge at Battersea will, the Railway News states, be the widest in the world. In general appearance the new bridge will be the same as the existing one. It will consist of four arches, each of 175 ft. span in the clear, with a rise of 17 ft. 6 in. The immense iron ribs which support the superstructures are formed throughout of wrought iron, and these are firmly attached to cast-iron standards of massive proportions, which are placed over the piers. The whole of the framework is by this arrangement made continuous throughout. On each side of the river there is a land arch of 70 ft. span, making the entire length of the bridge 840 ft. The abutments are put in by means of coffer-dams, and the depth to which the foundations are carried down is 30 ft. below Trinity high-water mark. The piers are built upon the same principle as that which was first applied by Sir Charles Fox to the building of the bridge at Rochester across the Medway, and which has recently been very generally adopted in bridge-building, and on the Thames was employed in the construction of the Blackfriars, Charing-cross, and Cannon-street railway bridges.

Friendly Societies in France.—The Moniteur publishes a report, addressed to the Emperor by the President of the "Mutual Relief" societies, for the year ending December, 1863. It appears that up to that date there existed in France 4721 societies either approved or formally authorised by the Government. These societies comprised 676,522 members, of whom 78,544 were honorary and 597,978 participants, and of whom 506,376 were males and 91,602 females. In 1863 there was an increase of 139 over the previous year, composed of 37,478 members, 4663 of whom were honorary and 32,815 participants, the latter counting 27,521 men and 5294 women. The fund belonging to these societies, including what is called the retiring fund, consisted of 34,270,772f. 48c. (about £1,370,000). The receipts for the year amounted to 11,019,519f. 1c.; the expenditure to 8,830,433f. 45c. The receipts were the subscriptions of honorary members, subsidies, donations, legacies, interest from the funds, subscriptions of participant members, entrance fees, fines, &c. The expenditure consisted in relief to the sick members, doctors' fees, medicines, funeral expenses, relief to the widows and orphans, pensions in sickness or old age, expenses of management (this item stands at 484,197f.), furniture, extraordinaries, &c. The surplus of receipts over expenditure was 2,189,085f. The number of sick for the year, 157,635, of whom 130,752 were men and 26,883 women, or an average of 26·95 sick out of 100 members—26·41 for men and 29·93 for women. The number of days' wages to sick members was 3,098,583; or, 2,679,076 to men and 419,507 to women—an average of 20·33 for each man and 15·60 for each woman. There were during the year 7712 deaths. The number of societies approved in 1863 was 3046, or 154 more than the previous year; but from this 15 were deducted as embodied in other societies, or dissolved. These societies approved counted, on the 31st of December, 1863, 449,026 members, divided into 69,143 honorary and 379,953 free participants, of whom 316,502 were men and 63,451 women; showing an augmentation over 1862 of 4272 honorary and 27,299 participant members, or 23,808 men and 3491 women; and an augmentation of funds amounting to 1,971,836f.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

THE EARL OF ILCHESTER.

The Right Hon. William Thomas Horner Fox-Strangways, fourth Earl of Ilchester, Baron Ilchester, in the county of Somerset; Baron Strangways, of Woodford Strangways, in the county of Dorset; Lord Ilchester and Stavordale, and Baron of Redlynch in the county of Somerset, all in the Peerage of Great Britain, who died on the 10th inst., at his seat, Melbury House, Evershot, Dorsetshire, was the second son (and the eldest son by his second wife, Maria, third daughter of the Hon. and Very Rev. William Digby, Dean of Durham) of Henry Thomas, second Earl of Ilchester. He was born on the 7th of May, 1795, and was educated at Westminster School, and Christ Church, Oxford, where he graduated B.A. in 1816, and M.A. in 1820. Having adopted a diplomatic career, he was attached to the Embassy of St. Petersburg in 1816, at Constantinople in 1820, and at Naples in 1822. Two years later he was appointed paid Attaché at the Hague. He, in 1825, was Secretary of Legation at Florence; and was at Naples in the same capacity in 1828. He was also Secretary of Embassy at Vienna in 1832, and was made Under Secretary of State in the Foreign Office in August, 1835. He acted as Envoy Extraordinary and Minister Plenipotentiary at the Frankfort Diet from 1840 to 1849, when he retired on a pension. He succeeded to the family title and estates on the 3rd of January, 1858, on the demise, without male issue, of Henry Stephen, the third Earl, his half-brother. He was a great horticulturist, and during his residence in Vienna was the means of introducing into this country the seeds of the Pinus Austriaca, or Austrian pine. Since his retirement, his Lordship devoted a great deal of attention to the culture of flowers and plants; and his gardens at Abbotsbury, near Dorchester, bear evidence of the care and attention bestowed upon them. The Earl was a liberal landlord and a kind-hearted friend to the poor, and his loss will be greatly felt. During the past few years he has improved his estate by erecting a number of model labourers' cottages, containing all the necessary offices; and the tenantry owe him much for his attention to their comforts. The Earl married, July 21, 1857, Sophia Penelope, second daughter of Sir Robert Sheffield, Bart., fourth Baronet, of Normanby, in the county of Lincoln, and that lady survives him. He leaves no issue, consequently the succession devolves on his nephew, the only son of his younger brother, the late Hon. John George Charles Fox-Strangways, by his wife, Amelia, third daughter of Edward Marjoribanks, Esq.—viz., Henry Edward, now fifth Earl of Ilchester, who is in his eighteenth year. This family of Fox, as well as its junior branch, the historic line of the Lords Holland, springs from the stanch Cavalier and devoted friend of Charles II., the Right Hon. Sir Stephen Fox, Knight, who was the projector of the great military hospital at Chelsea, and contributed himself £13,000 to the undertaking. His eldest son, Stephen Fox, was, in 1756, created Earl of Ilchester, and was the grandfather of the Earl just deceased.

LADY BROUGHAM.

The Right Hon. Mary Anne, Lady Brougham and Vaux, who died, at Brighton, on the 12th inst., of bronchitis, in her seventy-seventh year, was the eldest daughter of Thomas Eden, Esq., Deputy Auditor of Greenwich Hospital, by his wife, Mariana, daughter of Arthur Jones, Esq., and was the niece of William, first Lord Auckland, and of Frederick, first Lord Henley. The lamented lady was twice married, first to John Spalding, Esq., of the Holms, Scotland; and secondly, on April 1, 1819, to the very eminent Henry Brougham, present Lord Brougham and Vaux. Her Ladyship, by her second marriage, with Lord Brougham, had issue two daughters—namely, Sarah Eleanor, who, born in 1820, died in 1821; and Eleanor Louisa, who, born in 1822, died in 1839.

MR. BETHELL OF RISE.

Richard Bethell, Esq., of Rise, and Walton Abbey, in the county of York, Justice of the Peace and Deputy Lieutenant for the East Riding, who died at his seat, Rise, near Beverley, on the 25th ult., was the eldest son of the Rev. Richard Bethell, by his wife, Ann, daughter of James Clitherow, Esq., of Boston House, Middlesex, and was brother of the late Right Rev. Christopher Bethell, D.D., Bishop of Bangor. He was born May 10, 1772, and inherited the family estates under the will of his kinsman, William Bethell, Esq. He was M.P. for the East Riding of Yorkshire from 1830 to 1831, and from 1833 to 1841. He married, April 26, 1800, Mary, second daughter of William Wellbank, Esq., of the city of London, and of Ravensworth Cowton, in the county of York, but leaves no issue. He is succeeded in his estates by his nephew, William Bethell, Esq., the eldest son of his youngest brother, the late Rev. George Bethell, Provost of Eton College. This family of Bethell, or Ap-Ithill, is of old Herefordshire origin and position. King Charles II. granted to Sir Hugh Bethell, in his time the head of the house, the lordship in fee of the manor and mansion of Rise; and from Sir Hugh the property has descended to the present owner. The park of Rise is very extensive and full of fine timber. The range for the deer includes one hundred and thirty acres. The mansion-house, which has undergone complete renovation, is a structure of striking architectural beauty and elegance.

MR. WALROND OF CALDER PARK.

Theodore Walrond, Esq., of Calder Park, Lanarkshire, J.P. and D.L. for that county, who died at his seat, Calder Park, on the 31st ult., was a scion of the very ancient family of Walrond, of Dulford House, Devonshire, who have held their property in that county for centuries. He was the only son of Charles Wills Walrond, Esq., by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter of John Day, Esq., of Antigua, and sister of Captain William Day, R.N., Governor of Sierra Leone. He was born Jan. 8, 1788, and married, Sept. 11, 1829, Jane, daughter of Lieutenant-Colonel Sir Charles H. Hastings, K.C.H., a distinguished officer, who was wounded and lost his arm at the Battle of Copenhagen. Mr. Walrond by this marriage (his wife survives him) leaves four sons and three daughters; two of the latter are married—viz., Agnes Walwyn, wife of John Joseph Henley, Esq., eldest son of the Right Hon. Joseph Warner Henley, M.P.; and Jane, wife of John Boyle, Esq., third son of the Right Hon. David Boyle, Lord Justice General of Scotland. Mr. Walrond, whose death is much lamented in his neighbourhood and among his numerous friends, is succeeded by his eldest surviving son, Theodore Walrond, Esq., now of Calder Park, who was born in 1824, and married, in 1859, Charlotte Elliot, youngest daughter of R. Grenfell, Esq., of Ray Lodge, Berks.

MR. PIGOTT OF DODDERSHALL PARK.

George Grenville W. Wandesford Pigott, Esq., of Doddershall Park, in the county of Bucks, was eldest son of William Pigott, Esq., of Doddershall, by his wife, Anne, eldest daughter of the Rev. W. King, Rector of Mallow, in the county of Cork. He was born in 1796, and was educated at Rugby. He served in the British Army from 1812 to 1823, and in diplomacy from 1824 to 1830, when he was returned to Parliament for the borough of St. Mawes, and sat until the passing of the Reform Bill. In 1845 he accepted the appointment of Assistant Poor-Law Commissioner. For some few years before his death he had been compelled by failing health to relinquish all active employment and winter abroad. He was on his way to Nice, when he died, in London, on the 4th inst. Mr. Pigott was a Deputy Lieutenant and Justice of the Peace for Buckinghamshire, and for many years Lieutenant-Colonel of the Royal Bucks Militia. He married, first, in 1822, Charlotte, daughter of Edward Long, Esq., of Hampton Lodge, Surrey, which lady died, without issue, March 20, 1823; secondly, Oct. 31, 1838, Charlotte, youngest daughter of William Lloyd, Esq., of Aston, Salop, by whom he had, with other issue, a son, William Harvey Pigott, Esq., born in 1848, who succeeds him in his estate and the representation of the Buckinghamshire branch of the ancient Norman family of Pigott.

CHARLES SHAW, ESQ., OF BIRMINGHAM.

Charles Shaw, Esq., for so many years connected with commercial life of Birmingham, died, in his seventy-third year, on the 4th inst., at Brighton, from an attack of paralysis. Mr. Shaw was senior partner in the firm of Charles and James Shaw, successors to the old firm established upwards of half a century ago by his father and uncle, under the style of C. J. and C. Shaw. Mr. Shaw was well known for the interest he took in the trade and commerce of Birmingham. He was most active in founding the Birmingham Banking Company, and, until the last six or seven years, he was the guiding spirit in its most important arrangements. He also took a very prominent part in the formation of the London and North-Western and other railway companies. He was one of the earliest magistrates of Birmingham, and paid great attention to the discharge of his duties. His commercial connections were very extensive, including almost all the foreign markets. He was also very largely engaged in manufactures. In politics Mr. Shaw was a Conservative; but trade and commerce, and not politics, were the subjects to which he especially devoted his energy and his talents.

FAMILY OF THE EARL OF ALDBOROUGH.—In reference to a death stated a fortnight ago to have recently occurred in Tunis Bay, of "the Hon. B. Stratford, son of the late M. Gerard, Earl of Aldborough," it should be observed that the Right Hon. Benjamin O'Neale Stratford, sixth and present Earl of Aldborough, whose claim to that title was admitted by the House of Lords, June 12, 1854, is (with his only brother, Charles Henry, who died in 1842) the sole male issue of Mason Gerard, the fifth and late Earl of Aldborough, by his only wife, the Countess Cornelia Jane, who is still living.

A Tangier letter mentions that after a lapse of 180 years an English place of worship has been again opened at that place.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

E. I. C., Rapid Bay, S. Australia.—1. We have a vivid remembrance of your problem contributions many years ago, and were very favourably impressed by them. Those you have now sent us shall have every attention. 2. The collection of problems you speak of, published about twenty years since, is probably out of print. You should write to the publisher.

WILLIAM G.—Your problems shall be examined.

H. B.—We cannot undertake to receive the names of subscribers. Send them to the Editors.

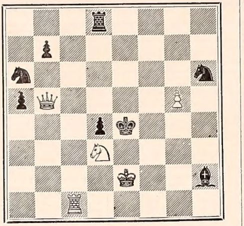
I. W. A.—1. See the notice to "I. D. P.," "Pilot," &c., in last week's Number. 2. "I. B.'s" problems, we are informed, are now at press. The delay in their appearance arose, it seems, in a great measure from the confused state in which they were left by author and by the sudden death of the publisher.

JULIO, A. M.—Defeated by a problem of two moves! Oh, shame! Play 1. R to K 7th, and try and discover the mate next move.

WEE PAWN.—The solution of Enigma No. 1431 runs thus:—1. B to K Kt 2nd (ch). 2. Q to Q R 3rd; mate next move according to Black's play.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM No. 1089 by Phantom, Lex, I. O. H., S. E., B. T. V., Esmond, Ianthe, T. M. P., Box and Cox, G. I., N. Maurice, L. S. D., Spinster, Civis, Theo; Ellis, Cambridge; H. Frau, of Lyons; D. D., Cosmos, Dover; W. W. W., Confederate, Benbow, Lucy, Try-again, W. P., Lofthouse; G. A., of Preese; Nereus, Timothy, Vigo, Anna, W. G., Eldolon, Julio, A. M.; May, of Cairnsfoot; Pat, Edward, Marian, P. T. O., W. Bosbing, Derevon, Wee Pawn, A Bath Archer, Andrew, P. C., Barney, Lafranc, Quidnunc, T. P. C., F. F., Histrion, Percy, Manfred and Man Friday, Query, Lupus, T. C. Munro, Ernestine, Peon, H. F. G., Medicus, Nimrod, L. M. D., Sigma, Tyrone, Perdita, O. P. Q., 1865, P. O., Clarkson, G. W. P., Delta, Percival, W. N., Mrs. Partington, Old Joe, F. C. N., Marcus, I. D. B., S. L. M., A Clerk, Banting, T. Wilson, Magnus, E. C., Gerald, E. O. S.; M. de G., Calais; Young Rapid; T., of Geneva; A Well-wisher, Fidele, Penfold, I. D. Lee, A Manxman; R. B., of Tralee; G. E. K.; E. C., Longhborough; Winifred, T. G. L., R. B. S., G. W. R.; S., Deptford; Leon, Vernon, W. E. S.; G., of Norwood; Etoniensis; R., Gloucester, are correct. All others are wrong.

 The chief part of our answers to Chess Correspondents is postponed from want of room this week.



SOLUTION OF PROBLEM No. 1090.

WHITE.	BLACK.	WHITE.	BLACK.
1. Kt to K 2nd	P takes Kt (best)	3. R to Q 7th	Any move
2. B to Q B 8th	B moves (best)	4. Mates accordingly.

PROBLEM No. 1091.

By Mr. T. SMITH.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN PARIS.

The following Games form part of the very interesting Match lately played between Messrs. KOLISCH and HIRSCHFIELD.—(Evans's Gambit.)

GAME IX.

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Q Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 4th	P takes P
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	B to K Kt 5th
10. Q to Q R 4th	B to Q 2nd
11. Q to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to Q R 4th
12. B takes P (ch)	K to B sq
13. Q to Q B 2nd	K takes B
14. P to K 5th	P to K Kt 3rd

(In the first game of this match, which appeared in our Number for October 8, M. Kolisch at this point retreated his King to the Bishop's square, a move which was thought objectionable, but which seems to be no worse than the advance of the Knight's Pawn. The true defence to the move—14. P to K 5th, if there be one, has yet to be discovered.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
15. P to K 6th (ch)

(This move gives an almost irresistible attack to Black.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
15.	Q B takes K P
16. Kt to K Kt 5 (ch)	K to B 3rd
17. P to Q 5th	B to K B 4th
18. Q Kt to K 4th (ch)	B takes Kt
19. Q to Q B 3rd (ch)	K to B 4th

(It is indifferent where he moves now: the day is lost.)

20. P to K Kt 4th (ch), and mate next move.

GAME X.

(Allgaier Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. H.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
4. P to K R 4th	P to K Kt 5th
5. Kt to K 5th	Kt to K B 3rd
6. B to Q B 4th	P to Q 4th
7. P takes P	B to Q 3rd
8. P to Q 4th	Kt to K R 4th
9. B to Q Kt 5th (ch)	P to Q B 3rd
10. P takes P	P takes P
11. Kt takes Q B P	Kt takes Kt
12. B takes Kt (ch)	B to Q 2nd
13. B takes B (ch)

(This seems to be preferable to taking the Q's Rook, and, if properly followed up, to give White a good position.)

WHITE (Mr. H.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
13.	Q takes B
14. Castles	Castles on K's side
15. Kt to Q B 3rd	Q R to K sq
16. Kt to Q 5th	Q to K B 4th
17. P to Q B 4th	Kt to K Kt 6th
18. R to K sq

(After this hapless error, White can no longer resist the fierce oncoming of his opponent's Pawns, and, with that, the downfall of the poor imprisoned King. It has been suggested, however, by Mr. Journoud, who took down the game, that before this move of the Rook Mr. Hirschfield had a line of play at command which would have given him an incontestable advantage in a few moves. The variation is as follows:—

18. Q takes P (ch)	Q takes Q
19. Kt to K B 6th (ch)	K to R sq
20. Kt takes Q	Kt takes R
21. K takes Kt	R to K 5th
22. B to Q 2nd, &c.)

WHITE (Mr. H.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
18.	P to K B 6th
19. P takes P	P takes P
20. B to K 3rd	R takes B
21. R takes R	Kt to K 7th (ch)

(A needless prolongation of the battle: P to K B 7th, giving check, would have been at once decisive.)

WHITE (Mr. H.)	BLACK (Mr. K.)
22. R takes Kt	P takes R
23. Q takes P	K to R sq
24. Kt to K 3rd	R to K Kt sq (ch)
25. Kt to Kt 2nd	Q to K R 6th
26. Q to K B 2nd	B to K R 7th (ch)
27. K to B sq	Q to Q 6th (ch)
28. Q to K 2nd	Q takes Q P
29. Q to K B 2nd	Q takes Q B P (ch)
30. Q to K 2nd	Q takes Q (ch)
31. K takes Q	R takes Kt (ch)

and wins.

CHESS ENIGMAS.

(From Le Palamede Français.)

No. 1433.—By Mr. MENENDEZ.

White: K at Q R 7th, Q at K Kt 6th, Bs at K Kt 7th and K B sq, Kt at Q Kt 2nd, P at Q R 2nd.

Black: K at Q Kt 5th, Q at K R 8th, B at Q B 3rd, Kts at K Kt 4th and Q 2nd; Ps at K B 7th, K 6th, Q B 4th, and Q R 5th and 6th.

White to play, and mate in three moves.

No. 1434.—By M. LEQUESNE.

White: K at K R sq, Q at K B 8th, Rs at K Kt 3rd and Q R 5th, B at K Kt sq, Kts at K B 5th and Q 5th, Ps at K 6th and Q R 6th.

Black: K at K 4th, Q at Q Kt 7th, Rs at K Kt 3rd and Q 2nd, Kts at K Kt 7th and Q 5th; Ps at K R 4th, K Kt 2nd, and Q B 6th.

White, playing first, to mate in four moves.

CHESS TIDINGS.—The flourishing little chess club at Norwich, which numbers among its members several excellent players, is keeping up the ball with considerable spirit. One contest among the second-rates of the club has just terminated in favour of Mr. S. Sothern, who by his victory gains a handsome set of chessmen. Another match is still pending between Messrs. Crook and Beard, two of the leading players of the society; and a third between Mr. Howard Taylor and Mr. G. Knight, of which the former has already scored three games before his opponent has gained one.

CHESS IN VIENNA.—The best player of the Vienna Club, Mr. Hampe, has been for some months enjoying the dolce far niente, so far as his favourite game is concerned; but a tournament is now going on in the club which excites great interest among the Viennese amateurs, notwithstanding his absence from it. In this contest, up to the present time, Mr. Pitschel, a player of high promise, stands fairly for the first prize.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

The new comet, discovered by M. Respighi, of the Bologna Observatory, on Dec. 29, at 5h. 15m. p.m., in the constellation Aquila (the Eagle), is described as being tolerably visible, in spite of the cloudy sky, as a diffused nebulosity, in the part of the sky opposite the sun, with a condensed central nucleus.

M. H. Schwartz has invented a new gunpowder, which is said to be already largely employed in mining operations and to be cheaper than common powder. One of the analyses given in the Chemical News is:—Soluble salts, 74·55; nitrate of potash, 56·22; nitrate of soda, 18·30. Treatment by sulphide of carbon produced—Dissolved sulphur, 9·68; remaining carbon, 14·14; moisture, 1·78.

The alkaloid theine has been found by Dr. Daniell in the kola nut, the fruit of the kola, or Sterculia acuminata, much used for food in Central Africa. The specimen crystals shown by Dr. Attfield at a meeting of the Pharmaceutical Society are stated, in the report given in the Chemical News, to resemble more closely those obtained from tea than from theobromine. Professor Bentley, in reporting the discovery to the society, considered it very important, since it added one more order of plants to those known to contain theine. He thought also that, as kola is closely allied to the order which includes cocoa, perhaps theine might be found in theobromine.

Professor H. E. Roscoe has reported to the Royal Society a method of measuring the chemical action of total daylight adapted for regular meteorological registration, and based upon a method described by Professor Bunsen and himself in their paper on "Photometrical Measurements." It depends upon the law that equal products of the intensity of the acting light, in the times of insolation, correspond, within very wide limits, to equal shades of dark tints produced upon chloride of silver of uniform sensitiveness, measured by means of a pendulum photometer. In the society's Proceedings, No. 70, will be found the method of procedure, and specimens of the results obtained, and a diagram exhibiting the curves of daily chemical intensity at Manchester in spring, summer, autumn, and winter.

The electric spark has been studied by the aid of photography by Professor Ogden Rood, of Columbia College, U.S., who has published the results in the American Journal of Science, No. 114. His method consists in allowing the electric discharge to fall directly on a sensitive photographic plate, when it produces latent images of certain form, which, under the action of the developer, yield four sharp characteristic pictures. There is a marked difference between the positive and negative figures—the former consisting essentially of one or more stars or rings in combination, while the latter is made up, for short discharges, of a collection of dots, or minute circles, which, by the use of a greater length of discharge, become converted into two or more thick concentric rings. The professor's paper is illustrated with numerous woodcuts exhibiting the forms of the discharge from the induction coil, the "luminous atmosphere," &c.

Professor Clerk Maxwell (in the latest number of the Proceedings of the Royal Society, has published a "Dynamical Theory of the Electro-Magnetic Field," in which he seeks for the origin of the electro-magnetic effects in the medium surrounding the electro-magnetic bodies, and assumes that they act on each other, not immediately at a distance, but through the intervention of the medium. He considers the existence of this medium as probable, since philosophers believe that it is in such a medium the propagation of light takes place, its properties being:—1. That the motion of one part communicates motion to the parts in its neighbourhood (transverse vibrations). 2. That this communication is not instantaneous, but progressive, and depends on the elasticity of the medium as compared with its density. Professor Maxwell, after referring to the researches of Faraday, Thomson, and others on the subject, and expressing his own opinions, defines light, according to his theory, as consisting "of alternate and opposite rapidly-recurring transverse magnetic disturbances, accompanied with electric displacements; the direction of the electric displacement being at right angles to the magnetic disturbance, and both at right angles to the direction of the ray."——In the same number Dr. Bence Jones gives an account of some remarkable experiments in relation to animal chemistry, showing the production of diabetes by the application of cold. Rabbits were placed in ice by Dr. Dickinson and Professor Brücke, and both investigators found a great increase in the quantity of sugar in the urine after the application of cold for periods varying from four hours to seven hours and a half. Professor Brücke states that the difference was so great as not to require any quantitative experiments to determine it.

In a letter to the President of the Royal Society, printed in the last number of the Proceedings, Dr. Carpenter comments on the structure and affinities of the Eozoön Canadense, the oldest type of organic life yet known to the geologist. The skeletons of this rhizopod seem to have greatly extended themselves over the surface of submarine rocks, their base frequently reaching a diameter of twelve inches, and their thickness being usually from four to six inches. These masses exhibit a more or less regular alternation of calcareous and siliceous layers. Dr. Carpenter determined, by the microscope, the minute structure of this organism, which, he says, in its living state might be likened to an extensive range of buildings, made up of such cessive tiers of chambers, the chambers of each tier generally communicating very freely with each other. The walls of these chambers are everywhere formed of a vitreous, pellucid shell substance, minutely perforated with little parallel tubes, which are so penetrated by siliceous infiltration that when the calcareous shell has been removed by acid the internal cast of their cavities remains in the form of very delicate needles, parallel to each other, on the solid mould of the cavity of the chamber, over which they form a very delicate layer. Dr. Carpenter, while agreeing with Mr. Dawson in referring the Eozoön to the group of foraminifera, considers that its immediate affinity is rather with the Nummuline than the Rotaline series.

M. Janssen has published the result of his researches, showing the power of elective absorption which the terrestrial atmosphere exercises on light. This action, he says, is represented by fine numerous sombre rays on the spectrum of all the light, the rays of which have traversed a sufficient thickness of our atmosphere. In 1833 Sir David Brewster announced that the solar spectrum at the horizon presented new dark bands, which disappeared as the sun rose, but did not attribute their disappearance to the terrestrial atmosphere. M. Janssen, however, affirms that these bands resolve themselves into fine lines comparable to the solar rays properly so called; and that they are always visible in the spectrum, and vary only in intensity according to the height of the sun. He finds that the red and orange parts of the solar spectrum, the rays of terrestrial origin, are much more numerous and important than the rays of solar origin. He mentions, also, an experiment made on the Lake of Geneva, by which he determined the presence of these bands in the flame of a fir-wood fire at a distance of about thirteen miles. This flame gave no band when examined near. M. Janssen also states that his experiments prove that the vapour of water dissolved in air,—that is, in the state of an elastic fluid, performs an important part in the production of the phenomena; and he considers that the results of the researches of Huggins and Miller confirm his own ideas.

Mr. Alexander Herschel's paper "On the Radiant Points of Shooting Stars," read at a meeting of the Royal Astronomical Society, is printed in the last number of the monthly notices, with engravings. He states that his observations agree with the supposition of the existence of two meteoric orbits, neither of whose semi-axes differs more than a fourth part from the radii vectoris of the earth. This agrees with the evidence adduced by Newton, Erman, and others, to show that the August and November rings of meteors very nearly coincide in their dimensions with the orbit of the earth. This adds fresh support to the conclusion that meteoric orbits generally approach very nearly to the circular form.——In the same number of the monthly notices is given a translation of M. Chacornac's note on the apparent diameter of Sirius, in which that distinguished astronomer expresses his opinion that this diameter is entirely factitious and owing simply to the brightness of the light. He states that this may be proved by repeating the determination with any of the planets. M. Chacornac employed a prismatic telescope, with superposed rotatory prisms, whereby he produced the phenomenon of the gradual extinction of the extraordinary image of the star, the two images of Sirius being brought together so that there remained no interval between them. The second image was then made to decrease in intensity until it arrived at the azimuth of apparition. He then compared the interval which separated them from centre to centre. Following up this process, he states that he was able, by using the great Marseilles telescope at Paris, to reduce the extraordinary image of Sirius to an imperceptible point—to the appearance of a star of the twelfth magnitude.

The South Australian Government have dispatched a second party of men, forty in number, to assist Mr. Finniss in the work of surveying the new country. It has been determined also to ask the Home Government for the services of a small force of infantry, who could be sent to North Australia from India, the terms of payment being arranged in accordance with the regulations lately enforced by the War Office.

The Spanish journals state that two young men sentenced to death for murder underwent the punishment of the garotte during the late severe weather at Bonetillo de la Sierra, in the province of Madrid. The Queen had spared the life of one of them, but the quantity of snow which had fallen having interrupted the communications, even by electric telegraph, the order for suspending the execution did not arrive until two hours after the man was dead.

A Paris journal publishes the following curious statistics respecting the masked balls at the Grand Opéra:—"Each of these fêtes occasions an expenditure of about 140,000f. The administration of the balls employs 980 persons. Every ball night 1850 wax tapers, 210 oil lamps, and 2600 gas-burners are required to light the theatre. The average number of persons attending the balls is 5000, of whom 2400 are women and 2600 men. Each ball leads to an outlay of 8200f. in masks, 3500f. in the hire of costumes, 3500f. in hairdressing, and about 6000f. in bouquets and fans. The fees paid in the cloak-room are about 2500f. At the first opera ball this season 1490 hired carriages and 300 private ones passed under the peristyle, which must have caused an expenditure of about 8000f. The sale of refreshments in the theatre produced 13,750f. At the rate of 140,000f. for each ball, the whole fourteen of the season would give 1,960,000f."

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." 1 vol.
BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. C. M. BELLEW. Second Edition, revised. 3 vols.
THE THREE WATCHES. By W. G. WILLS. 3 v.
THE HAMMONDS OF HOLY CROSS. By LADY BLAKE.
BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANNAGH. Author of "Nathalie," &c. 3 vols. [Just ready.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

LODGE'S PEERAGE AND BARONETAGE for 1865, under the especial Patronage of her Majesty, and corrected by the Nobility, 34th Edition, is now ready, in 1 vol., with the Arms beautifully engraved, 31s. 6d., handsomely bound.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, in 2 vols. 8vo, with Portrait,
THE HON. GRANTLEY BERKELEY'S LIFE AND RECOLLECTIONS.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Now ready, 1 vol., with numerous beautiful Coloured Illustrations,
A JOURNEY FROM LONDON TO PERSEPOLIS: including Wanderings in Daghestan, Georgia, Armenia, Mesopotamia, Persia, &c. By J. USSHER, F.R.G.S.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

New Edition, in 1 vol., post 8vo, price 10s. 6d., cloth,
DIARIES OF A LADY OF QUALITY, from 1797 to 1844. Edited, with Notes, by A. HAYWARD, Esq., Q.C. Second Edition, revised, with a few Additions.
"A very readable volume of gossip, ranging over a period of nearly half a century, including names familiar to all, and presenting a large and varied mass of anecdote and reflection, full of entertainment, and excellently and most efficiently edited."—London Review.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and Co., Paternoster-row.

EDUCATIONAL WORKS.
Sixty-two pages, price 6d., or forwarded by post to any Lady or Gentleman engaged in tuition on receipt of one stamp.
STANFORD'S CLASSIFIED CATALOGUE OF SCHOOL-BOOKS, ATLASES, MAPS, GLOBES, and SCHOOL STATIONERY.
The Divisions embrace, irrespective of Publisher, all the most modern and improved Class-books for English Reading, Spelling, Grammar, and Composition, Geography, Astronomy, History, Arithmetic, Algebra, Mathematics; the Greek, Latin, French, German, and Italian Languages; Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and every other branch of Education.
Edward Stanford,
London School Library, 6, Charing-cross, S.W.

WHO'S WHO for 1865. Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.
London: A. H. BAILY and CO., Cornhill.

HARDWICKE'S SCIENCE GOSSIP about Animals, Aquaria, Bees, Beetles, Birds, Butterflies, Ferns, Fish, Fossils, Lichens, Microscopes, Mosses, Reptiles, Rocks, Seaweeds, Wild Flowers, &c. 4d., Monthly. No. 1, January, 1865.
HARDWICKE, Piccadilly; and all Booksellers.

WHIST, Laws and Principles of. By CAVENDISH. Seventh edition. Price 3s. 6d.; by post, 3s. 8d. "Admirably illustrated."—Macmillan. "Admirable."—J. C.'s Treatise. "Displays peculiar ability."—Illustrated News. "Very lucid."—Field.—BANCKS, 12, Glasshouse-street, W.

STATIONERY OF EVERY DESCRIPTION; including Invitation Note Papers, Return Thanks Note (gilt-edge and black bordered), Fancy-bordered Note Papers, Dish Papers, Foreign Post Papers, Black-bordered Papers, Cream-laid Papers, Dance Programmes. Photographic Albums and Carte de Visite Portraits of Eminent Personages. Leather Goods in great variety; comprising Pocket-books, Purses, Metallic Mems, Card-cases, Blotters, &c., in morocco and russia leather.
All kinds of Engraving and Printing executed in the best style and at moderate prices.
Crests, Monograms, or Addresses Cut in Steel, for Stamping Note Paper and Envelopes in plain or colour.
Copper Plates Engraved and Cards Printed.
Specimens of Engraving, Diesinking, &c., and General Price-list post-free.
J. GILBERT, 19, Gracechurch-street, London.

THE IRONCLAD CHANNEL FLEET, 1864. Admiral S. C. DACRES, C.B.
Carte Photos of the above, from Original, Authentic Drawings by W. E. Atkins, Portsea. No. 1. Under sail, cruising. No. 2. Becalmed. Post-free for 12 stamps each; or, double the size, 48 stamps the pair. ATKINS, Publisher, Portsea. N.B. A liberal allowance to the trade.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

M. F. DENT, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker to the Queen and to the principal Courts of Europe.
M. F. Dent, 33 and 34, Cockspur-street, Charing-cross, London.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,
THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses. 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Braiding patterns for dresses (5 yards) 20 stamps.—R. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormoulu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

EVANS'S PRIZE KITCHENER.—This matchless Kitchener obtained a prize at the Exhibition of 1862. It is adapted for the cottage or mansion, from £5 5s. to £30; also larger sizes, for hotels, taverns, private and public schools, and hospitals, with steam apparatus, from £50 to £100 and upwards. Show-rooms—33 and 34, King William-street, London Bridge; Manufactory, 10, Arthur-street West, adjoining.

CHUBBS' LIST of SAFES and LOCKS, with more than a Hundred Illustrations, gratis and post-free. Chubb and Son, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard, London; 28, Lord-street, Liverpool; 16, Market-street, Manchester; and Wolverhampton.

GABRIELS' GUTTA-PERCHA ENAMEL for stopping decayed Teeth, 1s. 6d. per box.
Messrs. Gabriel, Dentists. Diploma, 1815.
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street, W.
Liverpool: 134, Duke-street. Birmingham: 65, New-street.
Complete Sets of Teeth, from Four Guineas the Set.

TEETH WITHOUT ANY PAIN.
Osteo-Eidon for Artificial Teeth.
Equal to Nature.
Messrs. GABRIEL, the old-established Dentists,
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street;
134, Duke-street, Liverpool; and 65, New-street, Birmingham.
A single Tooth from 5s.; Complete Set from £4 4s.

TEETH.—Dental Self-management.—A brief exposition of Mr. ESKELL'S Patented Invention in the construction of Artificial Teeth, free on application, or by post on receipt of one stamp.—8, Grosvenor-street, Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

GASTON DE LILLE.—BRIGHT EYES VALSES.—A New Set by this popular Dance Composer. Beautifully Illustrated. Price 4s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

GASTON DE LILLE.—NINA. Serenade Espagnole for the Pianoforte. A most effective little piece. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FOR A FEW DAYS. Galop. By TULLY. One of the best of the season. Played everywhere. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FOUNDRY GALOP. By J. RIVIERE. With a splendid Illustration of the "Foundry Scene," from "The Workmen of Paris." Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

50 NURSERY SONGS and RHYMES, with Pianoforte Accompaniment, suited to young people, Illustrated with a Chromolithograph of "The Babes in the Wood," and a Comic Sketch on the cover. Price 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 10d. The most amusing as well as the most useful present.
METZLER and CO., 35 to 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE BRIDE OF DUNKERRON. By HENRY SMART. Favourite Songs.
"The Full Moon is beaming." Tenor, 2s. 6d.
"Our Home shall be on this bright Isle." Soprano, 2s. 6d.
"The Sea rules all." Bass, 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

KUHE'S LA PIQUANTE. Valse Impromptu. The latest and most attractive Pianoforte Piece by this popular Composer. Price 3s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S DANISH AIRS. Transcription for the Pianoforte, introducing Et Bondebryllup. Price 3s. Also "Masaniello." Grand Fantasia. 5s.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

EARLY LOVE. Third Edition of this most popular Song. Written by H. T. Craven. Composed by FRANK MUSGRAVE. Price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LIMERICK IS BEAUTIFUL. Dion Boucicault's very popular Song. Composed by R. M. LEVEY. Price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and CO., 35, 36, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Now ready, price 15s.,
THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER WITH RITUAL SONG. Edited by R. REDHEAD. This work has been most carefully prepared for publication, and is printed in red and black from entirely new type on superior toned paper. Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges.
Also, THE BOOK OF ACCOMPANYING HARMONIES, intended for the use of Choirs. By R. REDHEAD. Handsomely bound in cloth. Price 7s.
METZLER and CO., 37, Marlborough-street, London, W.

CLARIBEL'S New Song, SWALLOW, COME AGAIN, is now ready. Price 3s. Can be had of all Musicsellers.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

TITO MATTEI'S New Galop IL FOLLETTO, price 4s., is now ready. This galop has been played by Signor Mattei at the Crystal Palace, and at various assemblies in London with the greatest success.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

OH! WILT THOU BE MY BRIDE, KATHLEEN? FRANK ROMER'S Song from Mark Lemon's new novel. Price 2s. 6d.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, London.—Pianofortes for sale or hire by Erard, Collard, Broadwood, Kirkman, Hopkinson, Allison, and other makers. The spacious gallery is now open.—Hutchings and Romer (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

MISS PALMER'S New Song, GATHERING HEARTSEASE, is now ready. Price 3s. Can be had of all Musicsellers.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES. By C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre with immense success. Solo or Duet, 24 stamps. Illustrated with a view of the great Charing-cross Scene by Moonlight.
D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S New Song, I THINK IT SEEMS VERY MUCH LIKE IT. Published this day. Illustrated. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S GREATEST SUCCESSES. "Of course it's no business of mine," and "It's wonderful how we do it." Immensely funny. Illustrated. Each free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

IXION. The New Medley Comic Song on Popular Tunes, with Comical Rhymes by H. Miller. Illustrated in Colours. Companion song to "Alonzo the Brave." Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

JOLLY DOGS; We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new Convivial Song, sung by the great Vance at the Crystal Palace and the Strand Musick Hall. Free for 15 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 8, Rathbone-place.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great Makers, for SALE or HIRE, at MILLSOM and SON'S Music Warehouse, 2, Argyle-street, Bath. Parties met at the Manufacturers'. Liberal discounts for cash.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S New Pianette is acknowledged the best and cheapest in Europe, about two thirds the price of the much-advertised French pianos. Can be had for twelve months on trial. One in the window marked with price; plain woods cheaper.
Patentees, 151, Regent-street. The only address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB let on hire for three years, after which the instrument will become the hirer's, their new Pianettes, in walnut, £2 5s. per quarter; their elegant drawing-room Pianoforte, 7 octaves, £3 3s. per quarter, registered keyboard; more expensive instruments equally moderate. These Pianofortes will be found to excel anything yet offered to the public. They can be obtained upon the same terms of all the respectable Musicsellers in the United Kingdom.—151, Regent-street.

HARMONIUMS.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions of Alexandre's, being the best acknowledged harmonium manufacturer in the world. 5 oct., in oak case, hire at 6s. per month; and a very nice 4 oct., suitable for schools, £4 purchase. 5, 7, 9, 11, 16 stops can be had either on hire for a number of years or purchase at moderate prices.—151, Regent-street. The only address.

OETZMANN and PLUMB undertake any repairs to Pianofortes and Harmoniums, which are executed by skilful workmen. Estimates given—moderate charges.
151, Regent-street.

FLUTE-HARMONIUMS for NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS, with four beautiful stops, in rosewood cases, 6½ guineas.
OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street.

LARGE SALE of SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES from £12 upwards. Seldom such an opportunity occurs for purchasing a good, warranted Pianoforte at a small price.—OETZMANN and PLUMB, 151, Regent-street. The only address.

TRELOAR'S COCOANUT MATTING, as supplied to Her Majesty's Palaces and Public Buildings.
10, Ludgate-hill, London.

FIRE IN GRESHAM-STREET WEST, LONDON, E.C.
MESSRS. THOMAS TAPLING and CO., Carpet Warehousemen, &c., will, until further notice, CARRY ON THEIR BUSINESS in premises, all communicating, at 44A, GRESHAM-STREET, and 71, ALDERMANBURY (opposite those of Messrs. Bradbury, Greatorex, and Beall).

GEOLOGISTS' ASSOCIATION.—A CONVERSAZIONE will be held at 32A, GEORGE-STREET, HANOVER-SQUARE, on TUESDAY EVENING NEXT, the 24th inst., at Seven o'Clock. Mr. Samuel Highley, F.G.S., F.C.S., will exhibit, by the aid of the Oxyhydrogen Light, a series of microscopic and other subjects illustrative of the science of geology; Mr. T. Boverton Redwood will make some remarks on the metal Magnesium, and will exhibit the light produced by its combustion. A number of microscopic suites of fossils and other objects will be exhibited by the members. Strangers are invited and will be admitted on sending their cards to JOHN CUMMING, Honorary Secretary, 7, Montagu-place, W.C., any day before the 24th inst.

EDUCATION.—The Poplars, Mitcham, Surrey, eight miles from London. A. GROVER, Principal.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE INSTITUTION FOR LADIES, Tufnell Park, Camden-road, London.
The ensuing Term opens Jan. 25.
Fee for Residents in Finishing School, 60 guineas } per annum.
" Middle School, 40 guineas
" Elementary School, 30 guineas
Payment reckoned from Entrance.
Governess-Students received. Certificates granted.
For Prospectuses, with list of Rev. Patrons and Lady Patronesses, address Mrs. MOREL, Lady Principal, at the College.

SEEDS FOR KITCHEN AND FLOWER GARDEN, of best quality and at lowest prices.—JAMES GARAWAY and CO., Durdham Down Nurseries, Bristol, supply the above. All orders over 20s. delivered free at nearest railway station. Priced Catalogues post-free on application.—Jas. Garaway and Co., Wholesale and Retail Seed-dealers, Durdham Down, Bristol.

HEDGES and BUTLER, 155, Regent-street, London, W., and 30, King's-road, Brighton, invite attention to their varied Stock of WINES, amongst which will be found—
Claret .. at 18s., 20s., 24s., 30s., 36s., to 84s. per Dozen.
Sherry .. at 24s., 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., to 60s. "
Port .. at 30s., 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., to 108s. "
Champagne at 36s., 42s., 48s., 60s., 66s., to 78s. "
Lists and Prices of all other Wines on application.
Originally established A.D. 1667.

EAU-DE-VIE.—This Pure BRANDY (Pale or Brown), 16s. per gallon, 36s. per dozen, is very superior to recent importations of Cognac. Railway-cariage paid. No agents. To be obtained only of HENRY BRETT and CO., Old Furnival's Distillery, Holborn-bars, E.C.; and 30, Regent-street, S.W., London.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY v. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in the finest condition, in bottles and in casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, TODD, and CO., at their new London Bridge Stores, London Bridge, S.E.

MORSONS' PEPSINE WINE is a perfectly palatable form for administering this popular remedy. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 19 and 46, Southampton-row, Russell-square, W.C., in bottles at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each. Pepsine Lozenges, in boxes, at 1s. 6d., 2s. 6d., and 4s. 6d.

2280 AGENTS—HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA.—Chemists, Confectioners, &c., are Agents, and supply it in Packets. It is choice and strong, moderate in price, and wholesome. This Tea therefore secures general preference.

THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862, awarded to any English Manufacturers of CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of sweetmeats.
Few articles of confectionery embrace so many advantages. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment in a portable and convenient form.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Druggists.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS, an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.

Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.
FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in many Varieties, in elegant fancy Boxes, from 6d. each. Very suitable for Presents, Christmas Trees, &c.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is sold at the Crystal Palace, at various Railway Refreshment Rooms, and by Grocers, Confectioners, and Italian Warehousemen throughout the United Kingdom.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.
FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Medical Men.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice. J. EPPS, of London, homœopathic chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. It is readily prepared for use, being sold in the form of powder, of which two teaspoonfuls are put in a breakfast-cup, then filled up with boiling milk or water.
As a breakfast beverage for general use it is distinguished as being grateful and invigorating, with a delicious aroma.
Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles; every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea."

EPPS'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, secured in tin-lined ¼lb., ½lb., and 1lb. packets, labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street. Manufactory, Euston-road, London." Sold, at 1s. 6d. per lb., by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemists.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMANS' No. 1 INDIGO BLUE is the best article Manufactured for Laundry purposes.
26, Cannon-street, London.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or seen in use," writes Mr. Bladon, Refreshment-rooms, House of Lords, where FLOWER'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE POWDER has been in use the last seven years. Sold in boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Ironmongers.—Inventor, T. S. Flower, Chemist, Cheshunt, London, N.

DINNEFORD'S FLUID MAGNESIA is an excellent remedy for Acidity of the Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, Gout, and Indigestion, and as a mild aperient for delicate constitutions.—172, New Bond-street, London; and all Chemists.

NICHOLSON and CO., Silkmercers, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard, London, beg to announce that they have just received their first delivery of NEW SILKS, Foreign and British, made for the ensuing Spring. These goods were purchased before the great rise which has just taken place on all silk goods, and comprise an extensive variety of new and elegant Designs in both Black and Colours.
Messrs. N. and Co. have also bought several lots of last year's patterns at about half their original prices—viz., from 2s. to 4s. 6d. per yard. 200 patterns of Silk, representing a Stock of £20,000 in value, sent post-free. Established twenty-one years. No connection with any other firm.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Coloured Glacés, 30 shades, from 1s. 4½d. per yard. 200 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Checks and Stripes, from 1 guinea a Dress. Reversible. 200 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS
Broché and Chéné Silks, from 1¼ guinea. 200 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S NEW SILKS.
Moire Antiques and Corded Silks, from 2 guineas. 200 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NICHOLSON'S BLACK SILKS.
Black Glacés, Gros Grains, Drap de Lyon, Drap de Paris, &c., from 1 guinea a Dress. 200 Patterns post-free.
50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

DO YOU WISH YOUR CHILDREN WELL DRESSED?—Boys' Knickerbocker Suits in Cloth, from 15s. 9d. Useful School Suits, from 12s. 9d. Patterns of the Cloths, directions for measurement, and 45 Engravings of New Dresses, post-free.—NICHOLSON'S, 50 to 52, St. Paul's-churchyard.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

EVENING and BALL DRESSES. SEWELL and CO. have, in anticipation of Christmas, prepared a choice variety of TULLE, NETT, and TARLATAN DRESSES.
They have also some beautiful patterns in Evening Robes, exclusively designed for their house.
Sewell and Co., Compton House, Old Compton-street, and Frith-street, Soho-square.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest Selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the new Colours, at 4½gs. the Full Dress.
Compton House, Frith-street, and Old Compton-street, Soho W.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.
JAMES LINDSAY and CO. will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs. Patterns and Price-list post-free.
James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

ANNUAL SALE, 238, 240, 242, Regent-street.
ALLISON and CO. beg most respectfully to announce that their Annual Sale is now taking place, and will continue for one month. The remaining Fancy Stock has been revised, and will be found unusually cheap.
At the same time they will be prepared to show a large quantity of Silk and other Dresses purchased from some of the most eminent French Manufacturers much below the cost of production, and of which they solicit an early inspection.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.
Dark Princess Royal Cord, very bright, £2 15s. 6d. for 14 yards.
New Dark Checked Glacés, £2 2s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 Yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 Yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW FABRICS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Aberdeen Linseys, Knickerbocker Linseys.
All mixtures. Best and medium qualities.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-st., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

MARK YOUR LINEN.—BOND'S PERMANENT MARKING INK is by far the best and blackest. Price 1s. per bottle. Sold by all Chemists, Stationers, &c. N.B. Observe, "10, Bishopsgate-street Within, E.C.," is on the label, without which the ink is not genuine.

NEW-YEAR'S GIFT.—Forty Years of Success have proved that nothing can equal OLDRIDGE'S BALM of COLUMBIA for Restoring and Strengthening the Hair, Whiskers, or Moustaches. Price 3s. 6d., 6s., and 11s. per bottle. C. and A. Oldridge, 22, Wellington-street, Strand.

GOLDEN HAIR.—ALEX. ROSS'S ALBANIAN WATER changes dark hair to any degree of lightness, 5s. 6d.; sent free for 84 stamps. His Skin Tonic immediately improves the complexion. 4s.—248, High Holborn, London.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st.; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

HOPPER'S BLACK CURRANT COUGH ELIXIR—a certain and safe remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, influenza, spitting of blood, hoarseness, whooping-cough, croup, difficulty of breathing, and all diseases of the chest and lungs. Sold by all Chemists, in bottles, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

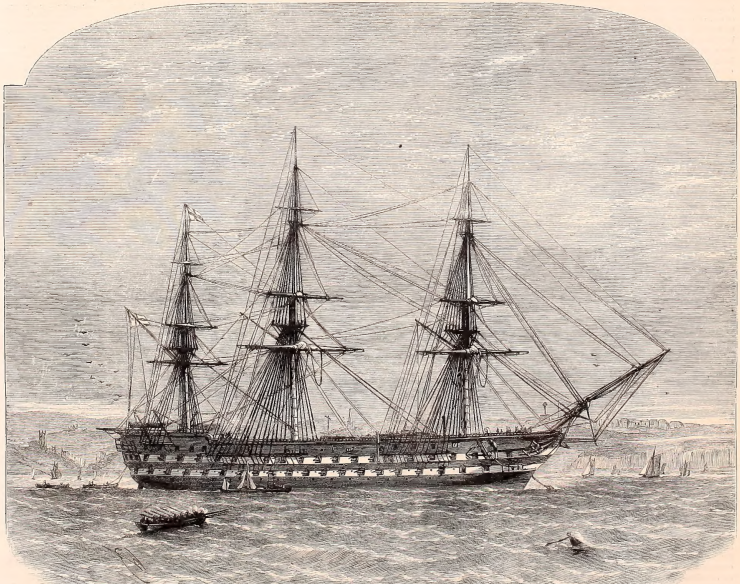
WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and Gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted. Established 1800.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand aforesaid.—SATURDAY JANUARY 21, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.



No. 1299.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

CANADA AND THE UNITED STATES.

THE relations of our chief Transatlantic colony to the United States are not quite so cordial just now as could be wished. None of the ties which connect them together in international friendship are actually severed, but a process has set in which, if allowed to go on much further, may very possibly end in rupture. Symptoms of incipient inflammation are already visible, and even where irritability of feeling is but slight, it greatly increases reasonable apprehension of the effects which may result from accidental causes. We believe that neither in the States nor in the colony is war desired by either the people or their Governments. And yet it cannot be concealed that, in opposition to the interests, the policy, and the will of both, an extraneous agent of discord has thrust itself between them, and has succeeded in giving to their position towards each other an aspect of antagonism. The best of neighbours are sometimes set together by the ears by the intemperance of some third party, and nations are occasionally brought into collision by the compulsory discharge of responsibilities which might have remained dormant but for the follies and crimes of people whom they both condemn.

There can be no doubt that the border States of the American Union have suffered more from the raids of so-called Confederates from the frontiers of Canada than any people would be likely to tolerate with equanimity. The actual amount of damage done may have been small; but the sense of insecurity, the apprehension, the suspense excited over a wide extent of country, have been considerable, and have naturally given rise to excessive soreness of feeling. The raiders were political refugees from the Southern States, to whom Canada, nobly imitating therein the policy of the mother country, had accorded prompt and generous hospitality. Unfortunately, the guests who received shelter in the colony do not seem to have recognised any obligation of consulting the convenience of their host, and, under the protection they have received, assert their right to levy war against and harry a neighbour with whom she is at peace. Without inquiring into the prevailing sympathies of Canada in reference to the pending struggle in the United States, it is sufficient that her Government honestly repobated any such abuse of her hospitality, and showed its sincerity by disclosing to the Government at Washington every conspiracy against it of which it had an inkling of information. This neighbourly loyalty was so far reciprocated that, when the St. Albans raiders were captured by the Vermont militia on the Canadian side of the border, the prisoners with their plunder were unhesitatingly given up to the colonial authorities and their extradition demanded in conformity with law. The unhappy decision of Judge Coursol, by which the raiders were set free, and the booty not restored to them, gave a momentary appearance of collusion between them and the Government at Quebec. Momentary, we say, for the judgment was repudiated at head-quarters the next morning; and fresh warrants were issued against the accused, but quite sufficient to fire susceptibilities and passions not easy to be quenched. In the full blaze of this indignation General Dix issued his intemperate order to the military under his command to pursue all future raiders across the border if necessary, and to bring them thence to be dealt with as martial law in the United States might determine—an order for setting at naught the Queen's sovereignty which Mr. Lincoln had the good sense immediately to command the General to withdraw. Nevertheless, although the Canadian Government acted with the greatest decision and energy in endeavouring to counteract the mischief of Coursol's judgment, have since recaptured most of the liberated raiders, and have dispatched to the frontier a force of volunteers competent to prevent future depredation, the brief hurricane of anger in the States compelled the unwilling surrender of the offenders, and afforded an opportunity to the willing, to take some steps which have placed the relations of the two Governments in a rather unsatisfactory position.

H.M.S. DONEGAL, LATELY DESTROYED BY FIRE AT MONTEVIDEO.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

Canada is menaced with two serious evils by the President, and is already galled by the infliction of another by Mr. Seward. Mr. Lincoln is proceeding to give the six months' notice to the British Government necessary to free the United States Government from the restrictions of the treaty which restrains both Powers from having more than one armed vessel on the great inland waters that divided their respective dominions. The wisdom of that treaty, and its effectiveness in preventing naval armaments and hostile collisions, have been fully recognised by both parties, and incontestably proved by a long experience. In what precise way the abrogation of it will operate for the security of the American border States from the incursions of the raiders is difficult to see. The only certain effect of it will be to compel Canada to maintain on the lake flotillas of equal strength, to involve both Governments in unnecessary expenditure, and to multiply the chances of future unpleasantness. But, as we have said, the balky beast taken partly with a view to threaten Canada, but chiefly for the purpose of amusing irritated public feeling in the North, and, possibly, the notice will not be followed up by action.

Mr. Lincoln has also intimated to our Government that the Reciprocity Treaty, which will soon expire, will not be renewed in its present form. It is a strictly commercial agreement between the two Governments, and the only commercial treaty have secured to the people on both sides. It may be that the balance of advantage has been in favour of Canada; but, in truth, each country gets by means of it what is most wanted from its neighbour at a moderate charge. Here again the political wisdom of the menace is lost in obscurity. Canada cannot be punished by the termination of the treaty without involving in her punishment large and influential classes in the States themselves: and the Chamber of Commerce at Detroit, to which the question was referred for examination and report, have lucidly pointed out the mischief which the execution of the threat will inflict upon the trade of the western ports of the American Union, as well as to enter inutility as a political expedient Where the interests are mutual, and ample time remains for deliberation, it may be hoped that sober judgment will set aside the intentions of a momentary exasperation.

Mr. Seward has struck his blow at once. He has established a passport system along the frontier, which, as the Toronto Globe observes, can be of no earthly use for the prevention of raids; but which, by the heavy price demanded for passes, not only prevents any but wealthy persons going into or out of Canada who can possibly do his business in any other way, and thus deprives her, to a large extent, of a large and lucrative traffic, but which also taxes the trade and travel carried on in spite of the regulation. In point of fact, the telegram sent over by the last mail represented the overland intercourse between the two countries as very nearly suspended, which statement, although pointing to a possible truth, must be regarded as giving us a description of facts as they are seen through the mist exhaled by anger. The commercial dealings between Canada and the United States are too numerous, too various, and too important, to allow of their being carried on satisfactorily without the passing and repassing of commercial agents across the border. A six-dollar fine each way is a heavy tax, no doubt; but scarcely heavy enough, one would imagine, to stop all travel where requiring personal superintendence. And, indeed, thus much may be inferred from the Globe's proposal to levy on the Canadian side, sum for sum, whatever is levied on the American side, "No American," says that journal, "who can help it will, while Mr. Seward's passport system exists, cross the boundary line either way. But those whose business compels them to do so would not be prevented therefrom by an additional six dollars. We have as good an excuse for carrying out our plan as the Government of the United States have for carrying out theirs. They wish to prevent raids: so do we. They have instituted a passport system for the purpose; let us follow their example; let us make all the passports they have issued worthless, so far as we are concerned, until they have been visited by our agent to an equal charge to that of the United States. We may just as well make our own out of the business as they."

We trust the Government at Quebec will think long and seriously before they act on this advice. That the course suggested will not mend matters is obvious. That it will contribute but little to the Canadian Exchequer is confessed. It would be simple retaliation, which, in the present state of affairs, is precisely what is desired to be avoided. Mr. Seward's temper and habits as a politician are known more than they are honoured, has committed the United States Government to an act of petty vindictiveness. It would be bad policy if the Canadian Government were to allow themselves to be involved into following his undignified example, and thus throw the sympathy of American traders into his scale. The existing irritation is temporary in its character and mainly factitious. Wise statesmanship would be to let it die away. Just now, the most pressing duty of the Canadians is to mature and set in motion the Constitutional machinery with which our British North America a strong empire, and to put up, as best they may, with the small annoyances inflicted upon them by regulations which injure their neighbours as much as themselves. Great and permanent interests are at stake, and it is by their regard to those interests that the policy of angry contemporaries, even if justifiable, that their present policy should be shaped. They have borne themselves nobly hitherto: let them not descend to a miserable contest with Mr. Seward, now eight months from his election, as a matter of fact, although through no fault of theirs, the fire was kindled by sparks from their own side, and they will, doubtless, recognise the propriety of forbearing to add fuel to the flame.

THE BURNING OF H.M.S. BOMBAY AT MONTEVIDEO.

A DESPATCH from Admiral Elliot and several officers' private letters give us fuller accounts of the destruction of the Bombay, late the Admiral's flagship, which was burned to the water's edge in the bay of nearly a hundred lives, on the 22nd of December. The Admiral had removed on the 20th from the ship that morning, and the Bombay came out of port and put to sea for target practice. She was about fourteen miles away, when a man handling shells in the shell-room perceived a little fire. He put it out from the after hold, and immediately gave the alarm. This was between two and three o'clock. The flames were immediately found to be in the fore hold. But the men were suffocated, and could hardly remain in the way down. The fire was then in the fore hold, on one side of the fire was the spirit-room, on the other the magazine. The latter could not be got at, for the heat of the spirit room all over the ship, which became one mass of flame. The only course was to flood the magazine, which the Scots lassts could not be lowered, from the tackle being on fire. However, most of these were got out, but had to be cut away, as they were from the after part of the fire; therefore, all had to jump into the water and swim off to reach the boats. All the officers could muster was one cutter, a jolly-boat and gig, and a gig at a distance by great loss of life among them. Lieutenant Stirling was an hour and a half in the water before he was picked up, and he says the men clinging to bits of the ship were killed, it is believed, by the cables falling from the mizen-mast among them. The cutter and gig with these rooms to have been a great deal in various parts of the ship. This number of men on them was more than they could carry their hold of whatever they were holding by and go down. The great numbers, too, that were in the water, and fell below up about seven o'clock, and the ship went down, leaving not a trace behind her. The Admiral was away from the ship at breakfast, when the officers and crew jumped into the sea, and most of them had thrown off their clothes to jump into the water. Many of the men were perfect all through. The origin of the fire is quite unaccountable. The ship was not coaling, and had no fires lighted, and no petroleum or inflammable oils were used on board. The after hold contained provisions and salt pork, and nothing of a most dangerous character. The Bombay was only under sail at the time the fire was discovered. Had she been steaming, the engines and boilers would have been chiefly burning on the engines, and getting the fire under. The weather was, happily, very fine, all the fire-engines could be worked, and a third of the way that would have been impossible in rougher weather, such as they had almost constantly had up to that time. The Bombay was too far away from Montevideo for the fire to be early discovered there; but about four o'clock a steamer, the Montevideo, came out to the Admiral, who went off in her towards the scene. He arrived in time to see her blow up. The poor girl had been terribly burned, and died at night. Admiral Elliot had time only to write a hurried despatch.

By a telegram from Lisbon it appears that the Hannibal, after arriving there on the 20th inst., with Captain Campbell and 325 officers and men lately belonging to the Bombay; but Dr. Mackinnon, the medical officer, remained behind. The loss of life, and about sixty of the crew were drowned.

Our Engraving of the ship is from a photograph by Mr. Groom, of Plymouth.

Post-office money orders in Belgium are now made payable to bearer, and circulate throughout the kingdom like bank notes.

Lozenges have done noble service in changing the crops and plantations in Senegal that a famine this year is apprehended.

M. Mavrocordatos, the late Minister for Foreign Affairs, has been appointed Prefect of Corfu.

The African mail-steamer Armenian, which sailed on Tuesday last, struck on a sunken rock in Gibraltar Bay, and sunk in a short week. The crew and passengers, with the exception of four persons, were saved.

A large meeting of landed proprietors in Holstein has adopted a petition to the Government, that their interests should not the desire of the overwhelming majority of the inhabitants of the duchy is for the separation of Holstein from Denmark.

THE LATE PROFESSOR BOOLE.—Several distinct efforts have been made to perpetuate, in different forms, the memory of the late Professor Boole, of Queen's College, Cork, a memoir of whose life appeared in the LONDON NEWS of last week. It is proposed by some of his colleagues to establish a scholarship in his name, to be called the Boolean; and that the fund should be raised for the endowment of a scholarship of that kind, some 300*l*. have already been subscribed. Another proposal is that there will prove equally restless to provide the same endowment, and that the scholarship should be called the Cayleyan. A third scheme, which has received influential support, is that a bust of Professor Boole should be placed in the neighbourhood in which the earlier portion of his useful life was passed, and in the immediate vicinity of his former academical teaching. Under the auspices of the Bishop of Lincoln, and of Archdeacon Kaye, a local subscription has already been opened to put up a memorial window or stained glass in Lincoln Cathedral; but we understand that the intending contributors to a Lincolnshire monument have not yet come to any resolution about the precise form. In the mean time, it has been urged that the general desire to express respect for the late Dr. Boole and sympathy for those who were dependent on his timely death should be applied to their substantial benefit, a widow and five little children having been left in poverty. It will be only a fitting recognition of his services to the highest branches of literature, science, and public education if a pension from the Civil List be granted to Mrs. Boole; but this prospect is hardly to be relied on; and we observe that a subscription has been opened by Mr. Todhunter, St. John's College, Cambridge; and by Mr. Leonard Courtney of the same college), Chapel-chairman, Lincoln's Inn, for the special object just mentioned.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

The Chambers are to open on the 15th of next month, and preparations are being made for the event in the hall of the Louvre, where the ceremony is to take place.

The Empress has had most of the Crown diamonds set mounted in the diadem and necklace arranged as a centaure by the state jeweller Bapst. He had the remaining lines put with 80,000*f*.

There is a story going about Paris respecting the Prince Imperial. His Imperial Highness was signing his name to a peace, one to a marriage contract, and on being told jokingly that he was a long time writing it, he replied, "Yes, but then it is not a treaty to be cancelled."

The adjourned election for a member of the French Academy of Sciences took place on Tuesday, when M. Fournier, lieutenant-colonel, thirty-one votes to twenty-eight given to Colonel Favé, was declared to be chosen.

At Rochefort, M. Bethmont, the Opposition candidate, has been elected member of the Corps Législatif by 13,000 votes, against 3990 obtained by the Government candidate.

The following is the result of the elections of new members to the Institute:—Mignet, Ambert, Laffon, supported by both parties, and MM. Mallet, Chabaud, Vernet, and André, candidates of the Government party. The election of Mignet, a fresh vote was to be taken to decide whether M. Guizot, of the orthodox, or M. Barbezat, of the liberal party, is elected. The difference in the number of votes obtained by the contending parties is very small.

M. Boulay (de la Meurthe) has literary name. M. Saintsbe, author of the pathetic tale, "Piccola," died in Paris on Saturday last, aged sixty-six. He wrote a number of theatrical pieces in conjunction with M.M. Scribe, Varin, Bayard, Ancelot, and Duveyrier, and was in ordinary connected with several popular pieces. He was honorary president of the Gens de Lettres.

M. Proudhon—chiefly known by his work, "La Propriété c'est le Vol," and other publications of a similar nature by anarchical opinions—died last week at Passy, in comparative obscurity and neglect, at the age of fifty-eight years. The funeral of the poor man of Bohemian his funeral was M. Emile de Girardin.

The great iron-plated Normandie arrived at Toulon last week from Cherbourg, and took her post in the experimental squadron in the place of the steam-ship Castiglione, which is about to be laid up in ordinary.

It is announced that negotiations are on foot for a treaty of peace between Austria and France.

The Patrie publishes a letter from its correspondent in Cochin-China announcing that Admiral de Lagrandière had sent an extraordinary mission to Saigon. It was rumoured that he desired to place Saigon under the protectorate of France.

SPAIN.

The Madrid Noticias says that a Council of Ministers held on Tuesday it was resolved to make a Cabinet question of the proposed law for the payment of taxes in advance.

The Municipal Council of Madrid has decided on erecting a statue to Murillo in the garden being laid out on the Prado del Progreso.

The Spanish budget for 1863 presents to the Cortes 1,000,000*l*. less than the budget of 1862. The 48,000,000*l*. accruing from the sale of Church property are not included in the budget of 1863, but will be included in the extraordinary receipts. The 38,000,000*l*. guaranteed by the Bank of Spain to the Treasury for the railway advances are not included in the ordinary Budget of expenditure.

On the 5th inst. the Senate began the justifying proof of the self-control of the majority. That day was fixed for the commencement of a debate of the highest order of interest and urgency into the disturbances at Turin in September. Baron Ricasoli said that judgment on the events of September belonged to public opinion and history. He was prepared to enter into the matter when it might arise from discussion, and said that Italy needed other legislative reforms than disputes, enclosing by any means that had been put upon the table of the Senate. Signori Mordini, Crispi, and Brofferio demanded that the subject should be discussed at once. Signor Crispi, in the absence of the Minister of Foreign Affairs, the motion of Ricasoli was carried by 140 to 67. The Prince of Carignan was carried by voices. The debate on the 15th year is granted to the thousand who took part in the famous expedition of Marsala, under Garibaldi.

AUSTRIA.

The marriage of the Archduchess Maria Theresa, daughter of the Archduke Albrecht of Austria, to Duke Philip of Wirtemberg, was celebrated at Buda-Pesth in the Imperial Palace at Schloss on the 19th inst., in the presence of the Emperor and Empress and the Imperial family.

The finance committee of the Reichsrath proposed on Tuesday, that the Ministry of Finance shall not for the present year incur a debt of £2,500,000; but five Ministers who were present declared that they could not accept the proposition without a vote of the Government on the subject, and could say nothing until a Cabinet Council had been held.

The Lower House, on Monday, by almost unanimously resolved that the services, the well-known Polish leader, should be allowed to proceed to any country he might choose; and it was resolved that on behalf of the Government the Polish refugees are about to be released from the restrictions now imposed on them.

An Imperial decree addressed to the Diets of Dalmatia, Croatia, and Sclavonia, has been published ordering the assembly of a congress at the Diet of Agram, for the purpose of settling, in common, the manner in which the elections to the Diet of those provinces are to be conducted next year.

The Municipal Council of Trieste has been dissolved by Imperial decree.

PRUSSIA.

Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse, with the Royal children, arrived at Berlin on Tuesday from Darmstadt.

Prince Frederick Charles of Prussia has returned to Berlin from Vienna, where he was received with signal distinction.

In Tuesday's sitting of the Upper House the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne was voted by 36 votes to 31. Count Herr von Bismarck, said the Chamber of Deputies asked that the conflict should be ended by an alteration of the present constitution of the army. This was impossible. The address was passed by eighty-four to six votes. The debates of the Lower House on the budget of finances also began on Tuesday. The galleries of the house were crowded. The report of the Committee on the address proposed to reject both of the proposed draughts, and to present no address, since it would have no result, and only tend to aggravate matters. The Minister of the Interior and the King would not yield a single point on the question of military reform, and the house must, therefore, either submit to the ordinances or refuse the indemnities for 1862. The right to vote the Budget. In the end, both draughts of addresses were rejected, so that the Chamber will probably not reply to the King's speech.

DENMARK.

In the sitting of the Rigsraad, yesterday week, the Minister of Finance presented a bill proposing the abolition of all transit duties in Denmark.

RUSSIA.

The nobility of Moscow have, by an overwhelming majority, adopted an address to the Emperor, praying him to establish a representative system with an Upper and a Lower Chamber.

A report is prevalent that a direct line of telegraph between St. Petersburg and Copenhagen, passing by the Island of Bornholm, is about to be laid down. At present communication is effected by way of Finland and Sweden.

AMERICA.

The news from New York, to the 11th inst., is unusually barren of military events. We hear much of preparations, and some movements are reported which may prove preliminary to important undertakings, but there are no operations of consequence.

There were rumours of Federal expeditions on a large scale, to be led by Generals Sherman and Thomas. The former is to operate in Georgia and North Carolina; and another attempt to take Wilmington is to be made, a land force being sent from Newbern to attack the city in the rear while a combined naval and military force operates against Fort Fisher. General Thomas was concentrating his troops on the Tennessee, with the view of making a campaign through Mississippi and Alabama. The Confederates were preparing to meet these aggressions; and it was rumoured that General Lee had been placed in command of all the Confederate forces, and that, putting Beauregard in command of the defences of Richmond, he himself intended to go and confront Sherman. General Hood was re-forming his army and getting in readiness to meet Thomas or operate against Sherman.

The armies before Richmond and Petersburg have for some time ceased to be the most active of the Federal forces; and the only change reported from that quarter is the supercession of General Butler by General Ord, an able and well-tried soldier. Butler has been ordered to report himself at Lowell, Massachusetts, his native place. Various charges, military and civil, have been brought against him, and his disgrace appears to be complete. His removal gives rise to very little difference of opinion. A few, however, remark that he is now out of place, while a great number insist that he had been out of place for the past four years. The committee on the failure of the great mine at Petersburg has made its report. General Burnside is exonerated from all responsibility for the failure, and Generals Grant and Meade are censured.

General Sheridan has established his troops in comfortable winter quarters in the Shenandoah Valley. Great scarcity of food is said to exist in this once rich but often devastated district.

Up to the close of last year 3,604,743 men had been draughted into the Federal armies by the conscription orders of the Washington Government. In 1861 there were 664,743 men draughted; in 1862 there were 740,000; in 1863 there were 700,000; and in 1864 there were 1,500,000, making the grand total as above. This embraces only the several calls and draughts, and is quite independent of voluntary enlistments and the 500,000 men called for a few days ago.

The Messrs. Blair, father and son, have again set out for the capital of the Confederacy, on a supposed peace mission, not official.

A bill passed by the Federal Senate emancipates the wives and children of coloured soldiers.

The Washington Government has sent forces to the Canadian frontier to prevent persons coming into the United States without a passport.

The Governor of the State of New York, in his inaugural message, delivered on the 2nd inst., stated that 182,766 alien immigrants arrived at the port of New York in the course of the year 1864—an increase of more than 25,000 over the number in 1863, and as large a number as in any year since 1854.

The Rev. Henry Ward Beecher presided this year, as usual, at the annual letting of pews and aisle-seats in Plymouth Church, Brooklyn. The proceedings took place in the church on the 3rd inst. The premiums bid were much larger than ever before. The highest bid last year was 200 dols.; this year, 400 dols., which, added to the pew-rent, makes the largest total payment for the year for one pew 520 dols. Twelve pews were sold at prices (including premium and pew-rent) exceeding 400 dols. each, and sixteen more brought above 300 dols. The congregation have raised the salary of their pastor from 7500 dols. to 12,500 dols. per year.

Governor Cannon, in his annual message to the Legislature of Delaware, again takes strong ground in favour of emancipation in that State, as he did in his inaugural address.

The Missouri Convention have resolved to reorganise the State Constitution.

The Boston Traveller publishes a list of 103 persons in that city whose annual incomes are above 25,000 dols., as returned under the special income tax. Ten taxpayers in the fourth district are assessed upon incomes of more than 100,000 dols. each, after the deductions allowed by law were made.

Governor Andrew, of Massachusetts, in his annual message, just issued, calls attention to the excess of women in Massachusetts, and to the surplus of men in Oregon, California, and other remote western communities. In Oregon, having 52,160 inhabitants, according to the Census of 1860, there were 19,961 males over fifteen years old, and only 9878 females above that age. Its population is estimated at over 100,000, this disproportion yet remaining. In Massachusetts there were 257,833 males between the ages of fifteen and forty, and 287,000 females; or, a surplus of 29,166. The excess (the Governor says) of women of all ages above fifteen years was 38,846. The absorption of men by the military and naval service during the intervening four years has aggravated this disproportion. He recommends the adoption of some practical way by which young women may be enabled to emigrate to useful fields of employment in the Western States.

A party of about 1600 Indians made an attack on Julesburg, Colorado territory, on the 7th inst., robbed the overland mail and express, dispersed a mule-train, destroyed the stage-station and a large amount of the telegraph material, and killed nineteen soldiers and citizens. A severe fight took place between the Indians and the troops, the latter numbering altogether less than a hundred; but the former were finally driven off, with the loss of their chief and twenty-four others killed.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Montreal Court (as stated in a portion of our Impression last week) has reconsidered its decision in the case of the St. Albans raiders, and has decided that it has jurisdiction in the matter.

It is said that the new Federal passport system has nearly put an end to the travelling of Americans in Canada, the passenger-trains on both the Grand Trunk and Great Western Railroads now running nearly empty west of Toronto.

INDIA.

Bombay has determined upon having an International Exhibition, and a company has already been formed with a capital of £500,000. The promoters have applied to Government for a grant of land and concession to carry out the undertaking. The census of the island of Bombay, taken on the 2nd of February, has been published, and shows the population to amount to 816,562 persons—530,450 males and only 286,112 females.

A public meeting was held in the Townhall, Bombay, on the 13th inst., for the purpose of voting a memorial to the late David Sassoon. There was a full attendance of both European and native gentlemen. His Excellency Sir H. B. E. Frere was called to the chair. The resolutions were unanimously carried, and a committee was appointed to carry out the proposed object.

JAPAN.

The peaceful course of affairs has again been imperilled in Japan by the murder, at Yokohama, of two British officers—Major Baldwin and Lieutenant Bird, both of the 20th Regiment. Our Minister demanded the arrest and punishment of the assassins—a demand with which, we are glad to hear, the authorities showed a disposition to comply.

During December, 1864, there were registered in the eight principal towns of Scotland the births of 3139 children, of whom 1599 were males and 1540 females. Eight hundred and eighty-four marriages were registered in the eight towns during the month, being by far the highest number registered in December during the nine previous years. The deaths of 2411 persons were registered. Allowing for increase of population, the deaths would be the exact average of the corresponding period during the nine preceding years. The zymotic class of diseases proved fatal to 756 persons, or 31 per cent of the deaths. Typhus fever was the most fatal epidemic; it caused 244 deaths, or 10·1 per cent of the whole deaths. This is the most severe epidemic of typhus fever experienced in Scotland for many years. Scarlatina caused 153 deaths; measles, 102; whooping-cough, 89; smallpox, 15; diarrhœa and dysentery, 31; diphtheria, 30; croup, 47; metria, 9; erysipelas, 13; apoplexy, 23; paralysis, 52; diseases of the heart, 92; inflammatory affections of the respiratory organs, 402; bronchitis, 276; consumption, 222. Seven of the persons who died (one man and six women) had exceeded the age of 90 years; the two eldest (women) were 95 years each.

PROPOSED NEW ARCTIC EXPEDITION.

THE fifth evening meeting of the Royal Geographical Society for the present session was held on Monday night at Burlington House—Sir R. I. Murchison, K.C.B., president of the society, in the chair. The paper to be read by Captain Sherard Osborn, C.B., R.N., "On the Exploration of the North Pole," drew together an unusually large auditory of members and visitors.

The minutes of the preceding meeting having been read, and the other routine business disposed of,

Captain Osborn read his paper. Arctic discovery, he said, must always excite a deep interest among those who were not "rest-and-be-thankful" men in science, notwithstanding the fate of Sir John Franklin. During thirty-six years of Arctic exploration, and out of forty-two expeditions, England had lost only 128 men; and by ship, boat, and sledge, no fewer than 20,000 miles had been traversed in the search for Franklin. It had been discovered that those regions were inhabited to the utmost limit ever yet reached, and much of the dark and superstitious fears which surrounded exploration in those quarters was disappearing. Our sailors were now rather anxious than otherwise to take part in these Arctic discoveries, which were really less dangerous than almost any other. Greenland, not Spitzbergen, was the point of departure for further explorations which he would recommend. In 1853 Dr. Kane entered Smith's Sound in the Advance, and M'Clintock, Beecher, and others, with not less than 400 British subjects, were at that time within the Arctic regions. But Kane's expedition, although full of enthusiasm, was deficient in supplies and equipment, and therefore the sufferings which he endured ought not to deter from further discovery in those regions. In 1854, the glacier at the extreme northern point of Greenland was named Cape Constitution by Mr. Morton, the only man who reached it. It was said that this was the real northernmost point of Greenland, but he entirely dissented from that view. He held that the land of Greenland extended much further north, but he would accept the calculation which placed Grinnell Land, descried by Mr. Morton, within 444 miles from the Pole. There was more probability of land or ice reaching to 87 deg. than that there was an open sea between Grinnell Land and the Pole. On the coast of Greenland, at Murchison Sound, latitude 77·80 deg., were a nation of Arctic highlanders, a hardy race, purely carnivorous, and depending entirely for their food upon the fact of there being there all the year round open water and broken ice. These Arctic highlanders were mild, humane, and even affectionate, and that was another reason for making this the starting-point of future explorations. As to the mode, the expedition ought to be under the Admiralty and directed by naval discipline; private enterprise and direction would necessarily fail. Besides, Arctic discovery would be a wholesome variety for our Navy, which did not always delight in battle and death. Why should they not, then, ask the Admiralty for two small vessels? If they asked they would get them. Well, they would reach Baffin's Bay in autumn, 1866; and, dividing the work, would prepare—say, in 1867—for sledge operations in the great Atlantic regions, at present unknown, between Cape Parry and the Pole. By 1869 the object of the expedition would be attained. Experience had shown that these sledging operations could be easily carried up to the Pole, and beyond it; and this was Captain M'Clintock's opinion, and Captain M'Clintock was, of all men living, the best calculated to head such an exploration. As to the advantages of this exploration, they had within the unknown space round the Pole 1,380,000 square miles; and whether this was sea, or land, or ice, no one knew. Up to the extreme point reached inhabitants were found, and animals which formed their food. The first fruit of the expedition would be to ascertain the human and other life in the basin of the Pole; and no doubt man would there be found as he was in the glacier period. The botany of the sea and of the land, and the climate of this unknown region, must also be objects of high interest to acquire a knowledge of, especially if, as was probable, the temperature was much lower than might have been anticipated. To solve the mystery of the climate of the Polar basin would be itself an ample reward for the expedition he recommended. He put the question before them, not on grounds of profit and loss—not as to acquisitions of whale blubber and bone, or peltry, but purely upon scientific grounds. If that society should hesitate, let them turn to the Royal Society and take note of what Colonel Sabine said on the subject. In the expedition he urged every preparation might be made for a measurement of an arc of four degrees of the meridian at Smith's Sound, which would go far to supply the desideratum pointed out by Colonel Sabine. A survey of this Arctic sea would, besides, solve an interesting problem with respect to the effect of the Gulf Stream in those extreme northern regions, and would probably result in showing that sea to teem with animal life. In conclusion, he joined with Colonel Sabine in opinion that the discovery of the North Pole remained the greatest problem in geographical exploration, and in hoping that, when achieved, it would be achieved by an Englishman.

The president, in thanking Captain Osborn for his valuable paper, observed that the dangers predicted as attending Arctic discovery had really no existence, as his gallant friend had shown. Certainly, some disasters had attended Arctic discovery; but let them consider the advantages which had accrued to physical science by those Arctic expeditions. He was aware that a strong feeling in favour of such an expedition as that advocated by Captain Osborn prevailed amongst scientific men, and by none more than the president of the Royal Society himself, Colonel Sabine. It was of the highest importance, in ascertaining the true figure of the earth, that an arc of the meridian should be measured in that high latitude; and it behoved a nation like England to complete this great survey by planting the union jack upon the North Pole.

Colonel Sabine said he heartily concurred in the prosecution of the object recommended in the paper of Captain Osborn, because, among other reasons, Arctic exploration would give admirable employment to the officers of our Navy during the present period of peace. Many of the most distinguished naval officers, ornaments to their profession, had been trained in the school of Arctic discovery. No time more propitious for such an expedition could be conceived than the present, when they had men experienced in such expeditions ready and anxious to take part in it; and it was highly to the credit of Captain M'Clintock that he was willing to surrender his command in the Navy to head such an expedition. For the Royal Society he could venture to promise every necessary co-operation.

Sir Edward Belcher said he saw no difficulty nor risk in any part of the plan which Captain Osborn had sketched, except, perhaps, that the movement of floe ice would be found to be southwards. He considered that the eastern side of Smith's Sound was much warmer, and that the land bore a larger vegetation than on the west side; and yet on the west side, in May, when he was there, the sea was quite open and navigable for any boat. The ice to the north of the land there was in motion much earlier than farther south in Baffin's Bay. As to the food to be found there, certainly he considered that the bear or walrus was the best, for he himself had his health and strength restored by eating bear when more delicate food failed to nourish him. As to the climate of that region, it never varied more than one decimal point between 9 deg. and 10 deg. below zero. If this problem were to be solved it should be solved by England. It should not be agitated here, and the Americans be allowed to get the start, as they did in Japan. He had no doubt that the officers and men of such an expedition would be in better health three years after they started than at first, and he sincerely hoped that Englishmen would succeed in reaching the Pole.

Mr. Lubbock, president of the Ethnological Society, expressed a decided opinion that the proposed expedition might be made valuable in elucidating some still obscure questions respecting the condition of primitive savage man, by collecting information as to the habits of the Arctic tribes.

After some further discussion, in which Captain Hamilton, Lord Dufferin, Dr. Donney (who bore testimony to the extreme healthiness of the Arctic climate), Mr. R. Crawford (who gave the project his warm approbation), and Captain Inglefield took part, Captain Osborn briefly expressed his satisfaction with the unanimous approval which the proposal in his paper had met with.

The Queen has appointed Mr. Gerald Raoul Perry, her Majesty's Consul at Parà, to be Consul at Rio Grande do Sul.

A Warsaw letter states that Dr. Roucwicz has died in that town, leaving 310,000 Polish florins for philanthropic works, of which 150,000 are to be laid out in the purchase of a plot of ground for the construction of a house for the Medical Society. An annual sum has been set apart for two students, another sum to provide for the wants of five widows of those who may have died without fortune, and a third sum is destined for the benefit of the deaf and dumb establishment.

The provisional committee of the proposed Civil Service Club having at length concluded their labours, a circular submitting the prospectus of the club will speedily be issued to members of the service. It is proposed that the club should consist of 1200 members, of whom 200 should be original members elected by the committee, and going in at a reduced entrance-fee. For ordinary members the entrance-fee will be twenty-five guineas, the annual subscription six guineas. On the committee are Lord Bury, Sir Charles Eastlake, P.R.A., Mr. Anthony Trollope, Mr. Panizzi, and the Hon. Spencer Ponsonby.

On Tuesday week the Rev. Chancellor Williams, Incumbent of St. David's, on the occasion of entering the seventieth year of his age, invited the elders of his flock who had attained the age of eighty and upwards to dine with him, and thirty-three members of his congregation were found to be eligible, in point of age, to partake of his hospitality. The oldest ten persons of the party averaged ninety years. The gradations of ages are thus stated by the Welshman:—Nonagenarians, four, united ages, 374 years; of the age of 88, five, united ages, 440 years; from 84 to 87, seven, united ages, 592 years; from 85 to 83, seventeen, united ages, 1391 years: total number of ages, 2797. Average age of all the party, 84 years and ten months.

A conference for the discussion of subjects bearing upon the operations of working men's clubs in South Staffordshire took place, on Thursday week, at the rooms of the Wednesbury Working Men's Club, under the auspices of the South Staffordshire Association for the Promotion of Adult Education and Evening Schools. Lord Lyttelton presided. The Rev. H. Solly, secretary of the central society, said that there are now 150 clubs in the country, ninety of which the Central Union had established in the two years and nine months of its existence. The number of members was 20,000, principally working men. Mr. J. Jones then described the position of the various district societies. A lengthened discussion ensued. Lord Lyttelton presided at the evening meeting, and Mr. Solly complimented the Wednesbury club upon its satisfactory position, and independent, self-supporting character.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The Queen has approved of Don Luis de Arias as Consul at Cardiff for the Queen of Spain.

Mr. Alderman William Preston, of Liverpool, has been appointed High Sheriff of Lancashire for the current year.

Hurst Castle, on the Solent, has been completely isolated at high water, owing to a breach of the sea during the late gale.

Mr. Henry Moore, solicitor and clerk to the county and borough magistrates, has been elected Coroner for the Leominster division of the county of Hereford.

Mr. John Charters, of Belfast, has given £2000 to the Governor of the General Hospital in Belfast towards the construction of an additional wing to that building.

The Dorchester magistrates have decided that apples are not agricultural produce, and therefore not exempt from toll when conveyed by horse and cart through turnpike-gates.

Nearly 2000 of the élite of Dublin society assembled, on Tuesday, in the Rotundo, to witness the annual distribution of prizes to the pupils of the Masonic Female Orphan School.

Lord Portman has been appointed Lord Warden of the Stannaries in Cornwall and Devon, and Rider and Master Forester of Dartmoor, in the room of the late Duke of Newcastle.

At the meeting of the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board on Thursday week £500 was voted towards the fund being raised on behalf of the widows and children of the seven men drowned by the capsizing of No. 1 boat on Sunday morning last.

Lord Berners presided at a meeting at Leicester last Saturday, to consider the best means of procuring the repeal of the malt tax. Several members of Parliament were present, and resolutions were passed pledging the meeting to work for the repeal of the tax.

Three Roman urns have been dug up at Newport, in the Isle of Wight. They are each about a foot and a half in height and one foot in breadth. Their position as they were found formed a triangle, and the material of which they are composed is a black coarse ware.

On Tuesday the Right Hon. Milner Gibson, M.P. for Ashton-under-Lyne; Mr. Barnes, member for Bolton; and Mr. Leatham, member for Huddersfield, addressed their constituents; and on Wednesday the Right Hon. E. Peel made a speech to the electors of Bury. They all received votes of confidence.

In Liverpool, last week, the births were 374, the deaths, 340; in Manchester and Salford—births 331, deaths 281; in Birmingham—births 289, deaths 184; in Leeds—births 184, deaths 145; in Bristol—births 119, deaths 83; in Edinburgh—births 106, deaths 120; in Glasgow—births 390, deaths 311.

The master builders of Birmingham, and generally of the midland counties, held a meeting in that town yesterday week, at which, after a long and sharp discussion, a resolution was agreed to that the "discharge-note," which had driven the men to strike, should be unconditionally withdrawn.

At Oldham, on Wednesday week, the completion of the new building for the School of Science and Art, established in connection with the Lyceum, was celebrated by a procession, a dinner, and a public meeting. The building is the gift of Mr. John Platt, and the furniture, fixtures, models, objects, and apparatus are given by the firm of Platt Brothers and Co.

We learn from Thursday's Globe that the vacancy on the Irish Bench caused by the death of Mr. Justice Ball will be filled by the present Attorney-General, Mr. O'Hagan, who will be succeeded in the post of Superior Law Officer by Mr. Lawson, the present Solicitor-General; and he in turn will be replaced by Sergeant Sullivan, now Law Adviser to the Irish Government.

A short time ago the Government sent down to Liverpool Dr. Buchanan, as a medical commissioner, to report upon the cause and spread of fever in Liverpool. On Tuesday a summary of his report was read before the Liverpool Select Vestry. The conclusion arrived at by Dr. Buchanan is that drinking and overcrowding are the principal causes of the fever which has so long afflicted Liverpool.

A curious case is before the Irish Courts. Mr. R. B. Tedford, a surgeon practising at San Francisco, and Miss Sarah Shillington, a lady living in Ireland, had for some time carried on a correspondence, which, it is alleged, resulted in the lady informing the gentleman that if he came to Ireland she would marry him. He accordingly disposed of his business and crossed the Atlantic; but, after all, the lady refused to fulfil her promise. He died, it is said, of "agony of mind," and his executor has commenced an action against Miss Shillington for breach of promise of marriage.

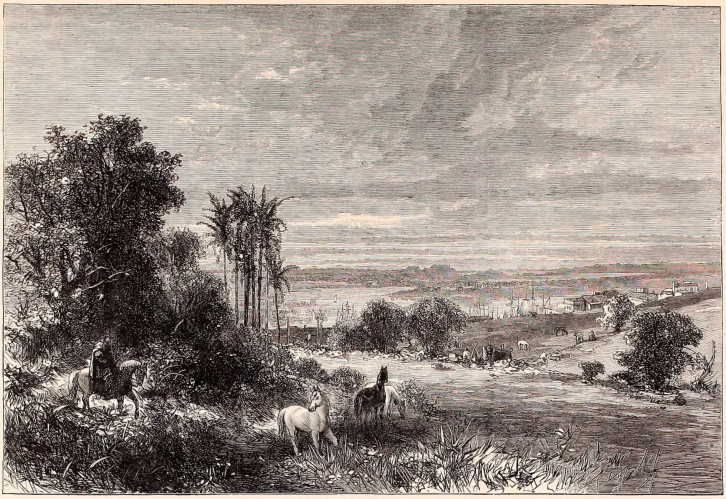
The Aberdeen Journal states that, owing to the severe snowstorm in the Grampians, the deer are coming down to the low grounds in the neighbourhood of Ballater, and are committing great havoc among the turnips still in the ground. Large herds have come from the Duke of Richmond's hills at Tomintoul. Some of the herds number as many as from one to two hundred fine-looking animals. A few of the farmers at the foot of Gairn have had liberty to shoot the deer granted them by the lairds, and it is expected that other proprietors will be forced to adopt the same course.

The Lord Chancellor of Ireland pronounced a decree, yesterday week, on the petition of Mr. Napoleon A. Bonaparte Wyse, eldest son of the late Sir Thomas Wyse, praying for a specific performance of certain marriage articles on the occasion of the marriage of the deceased, at Paris, with Mdme. Letitia Bonaparte, daughter of Lucien Bonaparte, Prince of Canino. The object of the petitioner was to establish his right to the estates of his father in Queen's County and the county of Waterford. There is another suit pending as to the amount of jointure to which Mdme. Wyse is entitled, but that is not affected by the decree. The effect of the order made will be to place Mr. Napoleon Bonaparte Wyse in possession of his paternal estates, the title to which has been vested in the Wyse family, in course of family succession, for upwards of six centuries.

ACCIDENTS AND OFFENCES.—On Saturday afternoon a railway collision took place about two miles from Bolton. A luggage-train ran into a passenger-train, and the engines became so interlocked that three other engines were kept working for three hours before they could be extricated. The damage to the trains was the least part of the mischief done. Three railway servants were killed and several of the passengers injured.

Early on Saturday morning a quantity of gunpowder exploded at the powder-mills of Messrs. Sharpe and Son, Chilworth, Surrey. The powder was undergoing the process of drying in one of the drying-houses. The drying-house in which the explosion occurred was completely wrecked. Fortunately, none of the workmen were in or very close to the building at the time of the explosion.

A sugar-house at Glasgow, belonging to Messrs. Murdock and Doddrell, was destroyed by fire on Monday.



The magistrates at Belfast have been engaged hearing claims for damages done during the late riots. The claims amount to between £6000 and £7000. A jeweller was allowed £1300 and a manufacturer, £800.

On Saturday William Wilson, foreman of the upholsterers; and George Hammond, head porter at the Lord Chamberlain's stores, Windsor Castle, were brought before Captain Johnson, one of the magistrates for the county of Berks, at the borough gaol, Windsor, charged with stealing an Indian silk bed-furniture, two embroidered silk curtains, and three draperies to match, the property of her Majesty the Queen. Wilson was removed in the custody of the Berks police to Reading, while Hammond was liberated on bail to await the next examination.

The execution of Ferdinand Edward Karl Köhl, a German, who was convicted at the last session of the Central Criminal Court of the murder of Christian Fuhrop, at Plaistow, took place on Thursday morning, at Springfield Gaol, near Chelmsford.

ASUNCION, THE CAPITAL OF PARAGUAY.

BY the latest news from South America it seems likely that the empire of Brazil will soon be engaged in a war with several of the republics of the River de la Plata, though it may, perhaps, find an ally in that of Buenos Ayres. The Banda Oriental del Uruguay, of which Montevideo is the capital, has for some time been disturbed by a partisan leader named Venancio Flores, and the guerrilla warfare of its hostile factions has been so destructive of the interests of the neighbouring provinces of Brazil that the Brazilian Government has thought fit to interfere. Early in the month of December, a squadron of four Brazilian gun-boats, which had gone up the Uruguay River, bombarded the town of Puysandu and landed a force of marines, while 3000 of the native rebels, under Flores, attacked the place on the other side. It does not appear that the Brazilian Admiral, Tamandare, had concerted this attack with Flores; but the town was reduced, between them, almost to a heap of ruins; while the Uruguayan garrison, under Leandro Gomez, still held out in the fort. It is said that the commanders of the French, Spanish, and British vessels of war, having gone up from Montevideo, had protested in vain against the Brazilian Admiral's conduct. The Republic of Paraguay, ruled by President Lopez, as the nearest neighbour to that of Uruguay, having previously notified to Brazil that any invasion of the Banda Oriental would be considered by Paraguay as a casus belli, is about to send an army to resist the Brazilian intervention; while there are some rumours that President Mitré, who governs at Buenos Ayres, will take the other side, and that the whole central region of South America may thus be involved in a general war. It is to be hoped that these alarms will not be verified, but the importance of the part now assumed by Paraguay is remarkable. We have already published some illustrations of the scenery and population of that singular country, which is situated between the River Paraguay and the River Parana. It stands, as it were, on the verge of civilisation; for the Gran Chaco, a vast wilderness, inhabited by Indians in their wildest state, lies on the opposite side of the river, within sight of the city of Asuncion, the capital of Paraguay.

VIEW UP THE RIVER AT ASUNCION, PARAGUAY.

Our View, from a sketch by Mr. David Powell, engraved in this Number, is one looking up the River Paraguay, towards the north, in which direction is the nearest territory of Brazil. The country is generally undulating on the east bank, and flatter on the west bank, of the river, where the Gran Chaco stretches away for hundreds of miles. This sketch is taken from the Potrero, or paddock of horses belonging to the Government, on a hill behind the city; and the city is for the most part hidden beneath the brow of the hill. A few only of the poorer class of houses are seen, with a glimpse of the river in front of the city, and some of the large steamers of the Paraguay navy.

RUINS OF THE RETIRO BARRACKS, AT BUENOS AYRES, AFTER THE LATE EXPLOSION.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE CITY OF BUENOS AYRES, VIEWED FROM THE EAST.

EXPLOSION OF A GUNPOWDER MAGAZINE AT BUENOS AYRES.

THE magazine in the Retiro Barracks at Buenos Ayres took fire and exploded on the morning of the 9th of December, killing many of the soldiers of two companies of a regiment of the Line, who were lodging at that time in the barracks. It seems that one of the men was carelessly smoking in a room where there were several cases of powder about to be removed to the adjoining magazine. A spark caught the powder, and there was an explosion, which spread to the stores of ammunition in the magazine, consisting of 540 cartridges for 6-pounder guns, 6670 musket cartridges, and a quantity of caps. The shock was felt at a great distance, and some of the houses near the Retiro were much damaged, or even unroofed by its violence. An iron railing in front of the building was torn up and scattered about the streets, with such a quantity of bricks as to make them almost impassable. The Plaza in front of the Retiro was soon crowded with people, so eager to crowd in among the ruins that the sentinels had enough to do to keep them back while the bodies of the dead and wounded were got out. Seven carts, with twenty-six mutilated corpses, were sent to the Recoleta Cemetery in the first two hours; but the loss of life was far greater than this; for when the muster-roll was called over 126 returned no answer to their names, and fragments of the bodies of women and children, as well as of the soldiers, were picked up. Captain Badia was saved almost by a miracle, having been buried under the rubbish two yards deep, but fortunately protected from crushing or suffocation by two planks forming an arch as they fell over his head. The President of the Argentine Republic, General Mitré, was personally most active in directing the arrangements for the removal of the dead and for the relief of those wounded. Our Illustration of this scene is from a sketch by Professor J. T. Dodge, of Buenos Ayres. We also give a View of the city.

Buenos Ayres, the capital of the Argentine Confederation, and one of the most prosperous cities in South America, is situated on the south shore of the Rio de la Plata, on a low cliff close to the water's edge. The landing is very tiresome, as the anchorage for all large vessels is some eight miles from the shore, and so shallow is the water that, although there is a pier of some length, passengers have still sometimes to land in carts, and all merchandise is taken to the lighters in the same inconvenient manner. Even fishing is here done on horseback, by two men riding out into the water and dragging the nets after them. Below the cliff is a sort of mud flat, which runs for some distance beyond the city in both directions, east and west. This ground seems to be sacred to the washerwomen, who swarm round every puddle in the mud; but the present chief officer of police has planted this district with willows, much improving the appearance of the city. It is from this low ground, towards the eastern extremity of Buenos Ayres, that the view shown in our Engraving is taken. To the right hand is the custom-house, built on the site of the old fort; and next to that is the high roof of the Colon theatre, which just rises above the other buildings; then come the domes and towers of the cathedral, the Church of the Merced, and a memorial of General Whitelock's defeat, the church of Santo Domingo, with English cannon-balls still remaining in its towers, and, what is worse, some English colours hanging as trophies in its interior. The house with the gables is an hospital; beyond that are various quintas, or villas with gardens. One villa (of which a corner only appears in the Engraving) is that belonging to Mr. Thomas Fair, which has long been used as the residence of the British Legation. The city is built in squares. Many of the houses are very large and comfortable, but the streets are badly paved, and at times some of them are inaccessible on account of the mud. The population is now about 120,000, having nearly doubled itself in the last eight years. We are indebted to Mr. David Powell for the sketch from which our Engraving is made.

BIRTHS.

On the 15th inst., at 24, Waterloo-crescent, Dover, the wife of Edward Wood, Esq., of a daughter.

On the 14th ult., at Cuddapah, East Indies, the wife of A. H. Beaman, Esq., H.M.'s 27th Regt., M.N.I., of a son.

At Geneva, Lady Forbes, of Craigievar, of a son.

At Edinburgh, Lady E. Fergusson, of a son.

At Dublin, Lady K. H. Russell, of a daughter.

At Belgrave-square, the Hon. Mrs. P. Wyndham, of a son.

MARRIAGES.

On the 19th inst., at St. Mary's Magdalen, St. Leonards-on-Sea, by the Rev. Godfrey Bird, Rector of Great Wigborough, Essex, and Rural Dean, cousin of the bride, Courtenay William Bruce, Esq., Major 6th Dragoon Guards (Carabiniers), to Mary Ann Bird, the youngest daughter of the late Henry Merceron, Esq., of Bethnal-green.

On the 25th inst., at St. George's Church, Hanover-square, the Earl of Coventry, to Lady B. Craven, third daughter of Earl Craven.

At Frant, Major A. C. Smith, 25th (King's Own Borderers), to Isabella Sophia, daughter of Admiral Sir G. R. Sartorius.

On the 19th inst., at St. John's Church, Hoxton, by the Rev. G. M. Pownall, Albert Charles Wilson, to Mary Jane Masey Reed. No cards.

On the 23rd inst., at Exeter, Alfred Purssell, of Cornhill and Laura House, Gipsey Hill, to Ellen, second daughter of John Ware, Esq. No cards.

On the 24th inst., at St. Peter's Church, Brackly, Northamptonshire, by the Rev. C. Anstey, Curate, and the Rev. R. Eden, Chaplain of Cannons Ashby, Sir Henry E. L. Dryden, Bart., to Frances, eldest daughter of the late Rev. Robert Tredcroft, Rector of Tangmere, Sussex.

On the 26th inst., at Holy Trinity Church, Lee, Kent, by the Rev. B. Walker Bucke, M.A., Demetrius, youngest son of John Cowan, Esq., of New Cross, Kent, formerly of St. Petersburg, to Louisa Mary, youngest daughter of the late John Cater, Esq., R.N. No cards.

On the 19th inst., at the parish church of Bexley, Kent, by the Rev. Thomas Harding, M.A. Vicar of Bexley and Rural Dean, Mr. J. T. Stone, of Blackheath, to Frances Laura, eldest daughter of Mr. Edward Starkey, of Stanley House, Bexley Heath.

DEATHS.

On the 24th inst., at 14, Kensington Palace-gardens, Frances, wife of Edmund E. Antrobus, Esq.

At Whitburn, Durham, Russell Bowlby, Esq., aged 72.

At Stanhope Lodge, Kensington-gore, Selina, wife of Sir J. Bayley, Bart., in her 55th year.

At Princes-gardens, South Kensington, Viscountess Hawarden.

At Medeira, Sir F. D. Legard, Bart., of Ganton, Yorkshire, aged 31.

At Bath, Sir J. Fraser (Balnain), aged 72.

At Hertford-street, the Dowager Countess of Tankerville.

On the 20th inst., at Seaham Hall, Sunderland, Frances Anne, Marchioness of Londonderry, aged 65.

At London, the Hon. Mrs. Taylor, daughter of Lord R. Waterpark.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 4.

SUNDAY, Jan. 29.—Fourth Sunday after Epiphany. Emmanuel Swedenborg born, 1689. Death of George III; accession of George IV., 1820.

MONDAY, 30.—Charles I. beheaded, 1649. The first life-boat, by Henry Greathead, employed off Shields, 1790.

TUESDAY, 31.—Birth of Ben Jonson, 1574. Death of Prince Charles Edward Stuart, 1788. Hilary Term ends.

WEDNESDAY, Feb. 1.—St. Bridget, or Bride. The Austrians and Prussians enter Schleswig, 1864.

THURSDAY, 2.—Purification of the Virgin Mary. Candlemas. Mantua taken by the French, 1797.

FRIDAY, 3.—St. Blaise, bishop and martyr, about 316. Death of John of Gaunt, Duke of Lancaster, 1399. Moon's first quarter, 1h. 9m. a m.

SATURDAY, 4.—Prebendary John Rogers burnt at Smithfield, London, 1555. Death of Giambatista Porte, natural philosopher, 1615.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE
FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 4.

Sunday.		Monday.		Tuesday.		Wednesday.		Thursday.		Friday.		Saturday.
M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A	M	A
h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m	h m
3 18	3 39	3 59	4 21	4 43	5 5	5 27	5 49	6 12	6 37	7 0	7 24	7 54	8 29

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.

Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 47″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	Daily Means of: Barometer Corrected.	Temperature of the Air.	Dew Point.	Relative Humidity.	Amount of Cloud.	Thermometer: Minimum, read at 10 a.m.	Maximum, read at 10 A.M.	Wind: General Direction.	Movement in 24 hours.	Rain in 24 hours, read at 10 A.M.
	Inches.	°	°	°	0-10	°	°		Miles.	Inches
Jan. 18	29·235	34·9	32·0	·90	9	30·0	37·7	W. WSW.	125	·015
19	29·459	34·9	33·1	·93	10	33·0	36·4	N. NW.	99	·010
20	29·591	34·0	30·0	·87	4	31·2	37·8	WSW. S. W.	123	·000
21	29·635	29·0	28·6	·98	8	21·5	37·9	..	55	·000
22	..	..	..	..	..	22·2	33·6	..	131	·000
23	29·805	32·3	28·8	·83	5	25·4	36·2	SSW. SE. E.	120	·000
24	29·613	34·2	28·7	·82	10	28·6	35·9	NE. ENE.	376	·000

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer (in inches) corrected	29·319	29·429	29·590	29·656	29·594	29·863	29·633
Temperature of Air	33·7°	35·2°	32·9°	23·4°	28·7°	29·5°	31·1°
Temperature of Evaporation	32·6°	34·7°	31·8°	..	..	28·9°	32·4°
Direction of Wind	CALM.	CALM.	WSW.	CALM.	N.	SSW.	NE.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY (SATURDAY) PROMENADE AFTERNOON.—The Special Performance by the WIZARD OF THE NORTH and Miss Anderson will be repeated for the last Saturday, including also the ROPE-TYING TRICK.
Admission, Half a Crown; or by Season Tickets, free. Reserved Seats, Half a Crown and One Shilling.
NOTE.—This will be the last Saturday the Wizard's Performances can be given, as the Saturday Concerts recommence on the 4th of February.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL.—MORNING PERFORMANCES TUESDAYS, THURSDAYS, and SATURDAYS at Two o'Clock.—Special Notice—GRAND MORNING JUVENILE EQUESTRIAN FETE, TUESDAY, JAN. 31, at Two o'Clock, on which occasion the whole of the Boys' and Girls' Schools of the Licensed Victuallers' Asylum will be present.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL.—Great, Grand, and Glorious Success of the SPANISH CIRCUS and HIPPODROME, pronounced by the whole of the public press to be the best Troupe of Equestrians ever yet introduced into England. Third Week of the Grand Military and Equestrian Spectacle, entitled the BRIGANDS of the CALABRIAN MOUNTAINS, introducing upwards of 400 persons in the Hippodrome at one time, and the whole of the Magnificent Stud of Horses and Ponies. First appearance of the Celebrated and Extraordinary Spanish Gymnasts, the BROTHERS SEGUNDI, whose marvellous feats on the trapèze have lately made such an immense sensation in Spain and Portugal.

ROYAL AGRICULTURAL HALL.—OPEN EVERY EVENING at SEVEN. Commence at Half-past.—Admission: Private Boxes (holding six persons), 30s.; single tickets to the same, 5s.; Reserved Seats (numbered chairs), 3s.; First Class, 2s.; Second Class, 1s.; the whole of the Galleries, 6d. Box-office open daily from Eleven till Four.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly.—COMMODORE NUTT and MINNIE WARREN, 18 and 20 years of age, 21 and 29 inches high.—THREE GRAND LEVEES DAILY, at Eleven, Three, and Eight o'Clock. They will sustain the following extraordinary and amusing characters:—Misfortunes of Lizzie and Johnnie, Grecian Statues and Tableau, Bestman and Bridemaid to General Tom Thumb, Matrimonial Sweets, &c. Commodore Nutt in his great personations of the Perfect Cure, Sailor with Hornpipe, Grenadier Drummer, Stump Orator, Paddy O'Rourke, &c. Box Office open one hour in advance. Day Exhibition, 1s., 2s., and 3s. Admission in the evening, 1s. to all parts of the hall, except a few reserved seats at 2s. Children Half price to 2s. and 3s. seats.

ROYAL ENGLISH OPERA, COVENT-GARDEN—OPERA COMPANY (Limited).—Continued success of the Great Pantomime and the wonderful artiste Signor DONATO.—On MONDAY NEXT, JAN. 30, and during the Week, Frederic Clay's new Opera, in one act, entitled CONSTANCE. After which, at Half-past Eight, the grand and highly-successful Pantomime, CINDERELLA, in which the celebrated Donato will appear. Doors open at Half-past Six; commence at Seven. A morning performance of the Pantomime every Monday at Two o'Clock.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—On MONDAY a JUVENILE NIGHT for the Great Christmas Pantomime. On TUESDAY will positively be produced the new Opera, LARA.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY-LANE.—ROYAL GENERAL THEATRICAL FUND.—A MORNING PERFORMANCE in AID of the FUND will be given on MONDAY, FEB. 13, when will be presented Sir E. B. Lytton's Comedy of MONEY, in which the following eminent Artists will appear:—Mr. Alfred Wigan, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Buckstone, Mr. Webster, Mr. W. Farren, Mr. Rogers, Mr. Chippendale, Mr. Parselle, Mr. Braid, Mr. Maclean; Mrs. Alfred Wigan, Mrs. Charles Matthews, Miss Nelly Moore, &c. Private Boxes, from One to Ten Guineas; Stalls, 15s.; Dress Boxes, 7s. 6d.; First Circle, 5s.; Upper Circle, 4s.; Pit, 2s; Lower Gallery, 1s.; Upper Gallery, 6d.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Managers, Messrs. E. FALCONER and F. B. CHATTERTON.—Reappearance of Mr. Phelps. Grand Morning Performance of the Pantomime on Wednesday and Saturday, at Two o'Clock.—On MONDAY, JAN. 30, and during the Week, the performances will commence with Shakespere's Play of HENRY VIII., terminating with the fall of Wolsey. Cardinal Wolsey, Mr. Phelps, supported by Messrs. Walter Lacy, H. Marston, E. Phelps, Barrett, Sinclair, Fitzjames, &c.; Miss Atkinson, Mrs. Vandenhoff, &c. The Free List entirely suspended. Doors open at Half-past Six; commence at Seven, and terminate at Eleven. Children and Schools at reduced prices to the following parts of the Theatre:—Dress Circle, First Circle, and Stalls, for Morning Performances only. The GRAND CHRISTMAS COMIC PANTOMIME, written by E. L. Blanchard, Esq., entitled HOP O' MY THUMB. The georgeously-beautiful character of the decorations, inclusive of more than the usual amount of scenical surprises and transformation wonders, are ensured be the fact of their being entirely designed, and for the most part executed, by the celebrated Artist, William Beverley, whose eminent services have been retained this Christmas exclusively for the Theatre Royal, Drury Lane. The general action of the pantomime arranged by, and the whole produced under the direction of, Mr. Robert Roxby. Characters in the opening:—Miss Lydia Thompson, Miss E. Falconer, Miss Hudspeth, Mr. G. Belmore, Tom Matthews, Mr. Fitzjames, Mr. Meagreson, Mr. G. Weston, and Master Percy Roselle, &c. The Harlequinade will include the services of those popular pantomimists (forming a Double Company), Harry Boleno and Mr. C. Lauri, Clowns; Mr. W. A. Barnes and Mr. J. Morris, Pantaloons; Mr. Cormack and Mr. S. Saville, Harlequins; Mdme. Boleno and Misses Gunniss, Columbines. Signor Toscano, the talented One-legged Dancer, and Mdlle. Deteto, four years of age, who will introduce her celebrated Imitations à la Perea Nena. The Masks Devices, and Dresses from designs by the humorously-renowned Dykwynkyn. The Dances and Action of the Ballet arranged and invented by Mr. Cormack. Comic Scenes, Tricks, &c., invented by Messrs. H. Boleno and Cormack. The music selected and arranged by Mr. J. Barnard. Machinery by Mr. Tucker and Assistants. Gas effects by Mr. J. Hinkley. Properties by Mr. Needham and Assistants. Dresses by Mr. S. May and Mrs. Lawler. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—Mr Sothern as David Garrick and Lord Dundreary Married and Done For, Every Evening. Mr. Buckstone in two Pieces Every Evening. H. J. Byron's new Extravaganza of THE PRINCESS SPRINGTIME, Every Evening.
NOTICE.—Mr. Sothern's extraordinary success as David Garrick and Lord Dundreary necessitates the announcement that seats, &c., can be secured at the Box Office one month in advance.

NEW THEATRE ROYAL, ADELPHI. Sole Proprietor and Manager, Mr. B. WEBSTER.—MONDAY and during the Week, THE IRISH TIGER. At Eight, THE HUNCHBACK—Julia, Miss Bateman. And THE KNOTTING-'EM BROTHERS—Mr. J. L. Toole, P. Bedford, and Mrs. A. Mellon. Commence at Seven.

ROYAL SURREY THEATRE.—On MONDAY, TUESDAY, and WEDNESDAY, DAMON AND PYTHIAS. On THURSDAY, FRIDAY, and SATURDAY, THE STRANGER—Mr. James Anderson, Miss G. Pauncefort, Miss Elizabeth Webster, Miss Macready, Miss Lottie Green, &c.; concluding Every Evening with HARLEQUIN KING PUMPKIN, &c.

NEW STANDARD THEATRE, SHOREDITCH. Every Evening, at Seven, the best Pantomime of the Season, DAME DURDEN; or, Robert and Richard Were Two Pretty Men. Splendid Transformation, Farmyard, and Fairy Ballet. Also the great Drama of THE WAITS—a Christmas Story. Splendid Effects.

NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.—JUDAS MACCABÆUS, FEB. 8. Artists already engaged—Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Weiss. Band and Chorus, 700. Tickets, 2s., 3s.; Numbered Stalls, 5s., 10s. 6d., 21s. Early application necessary.—14 and 15, Exeter Hall.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Every Monday Evening till Easter.—On MONDAY NEXT, JAN. 30, Mdme. ARABELLA GODDARD will make her first appearance this season. Violin, Herr Ludwig Straus. The programme will include Mendelssohn's trio in D minor, for piano, violin, and violoncello; Spohr's quintet for stringed instruments; Dussek's "Invocation" sonata, for piano solo. Beethoven's "Adelaide," sung by Mr. Sims Reeves. Conductor, Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets and Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith, Prowse, and Co.'s; and Austin's, 28, Piccadilly.

FEB. 9.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.—Madrigals and Part-Songs.—Mr. Sims Reeves, Herr Ludwig Strauss. Tickets, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s.; Stall Tickets for four, 21s.—Addison and Lucas, 210, Hammond, 214, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, No. 48, Cheapside; Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and all Musicsellers. Season subscriptions, 21s. and 10s. 6d.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, and Mr. JOHN PARRY, Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight, Saturday at Three. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-st. Opera di Camera, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY, and TOO MANY COOKS, every Tuesday and Thursday Mornings at Three.

THURTON'S ODD FOLKS, with a new piece of Extravagance, termed GOING TO COURT. Also, Portraits of the Japanese Dandy, Reuben Plant, Jonathan Horn, and other Novelties. KIDDERMINSTER, MONDAY, JAN. 30; Stourbridge, 31; Dudley, Feb. 1; Wolverhampton, 2; Newport, 3.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, 69, Regent-street.—Mr. BLAND and DAUGHTERS beg to announce that their ANNUAL FULL DRESS BALL will take place in the Saloons of the above Establishment on TUESDAY NEXT, the 31st inst. Gentleman's Ticket, 7s. 6d.; Lady's Ticket, 5s.; Double ditto, 10s. 6d., to be obtained of Mr. Austin, Ticket Office, 28, Piccadilly; or of Mr. Bland, 33, Brewer-street, Golden-square, W. Dancing to commence at Half-past Nine o'Clock.

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—IMPORTANT DISCOVERY. The Human Breath on the Screen—Explanation daily, at 2.15 and at 7.30, by Professor Pepper. The discoverer, Mr. W. Lens Aldous, will be in attendance daily to delineate the breath of any visitor for a moderate fee.

BANK OF NEW ZEALAND.
INCORPORATED BY ACT OF GENERAL ASSEMBLY.
Bankers to the General Government of New Zealand, the Provincial Governments of Auckland, Canterbury, Otago, &c.
CAPITAL, £500,000. RESERVE FUND, £95,000.
Branches and Agencies in New Zealand.

Auckland	Picton	Timaru	Dunstan	Waikitipu
New Plymouth	Blenheim	Dunedin	Manuherikia	Shotover
Napier	Lyttelton	Oamaru	Teviot	Kingston
Wellington	Akaroa	Tokomairiro	Invercargill	Queenstown
Wanganui	Christchurch	Wetherstone	Riverton	Hogburn
Nelson	Kaiapoi	Waitahuna

This Bank grants Drafts on any of the above-named places in New Zealand, and transacts every description of Banking business connected with that colony, on terms which may be learned on application at the London Office.
F. LARKWORTHY, Managing Director.
No. 50, Old Broad-street, City.

"LITTLE RED RIDING HOOD."
PRINTED IN COLOURS.

In order to meet the great demand for this popular Picture, originally published with the Christmas Number of this Journal in 1863, it has been re-engraved, and will be

REPUBLISHED EARLY IN FEBRUARY NEXT. PRICE 6d.

To ensure a supply, orders should be given at once.

Office, 198, Strand.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1865.

WE scarcely believe that many of those who listened to the animated address of Captain Sherard Osborn, delivered before the Geographical Society, will be inclined to think that British sailors are likely to be deterred from new attempts at accomplishing the solution of the great problem of the Pole. Captain Osborn's manly eloquence carried his audience with him; but he is about the very last man in the world to rely upon mere talk. He had his figures, and his distances, and his points all in order; and he marshalled them with a tact kindred to that with which Mr. Gladstone converts arithmetic into poetry. Captain Osborn, moreover, is not one of those who discover the sources of rivers and the boundaries of oceans with the aid of self-consciousness and a pair of compasses. He has been among the hardiest of our explorers, and has himself travelled more than a thousand miles over the everlasting ices of the Northern deep. He would gladly visit those regions again but that the service claims him for a different and more immediately important duty. Captain Osborn, who happily combines the energy and sanguine temperament of the sailor with the calm judgment and varied accomplishments of the officer, speaks touching Arctic research in a way which must command the attention of the public, and he is not a man to advise a foolish expedition, or to go to war with the "demons of the Pole" without first counting the cost. If he says that a new attempt ought to be made to solve the great problem, a very large number of persons will be found to think with him.

Captain Parry stood but 435 miles from the Pole—little more than the distance from Primrose-hill to Arthur's Seat. Dr. Kane reached a not much more distant point. It is easy to understand how the adventurous spirit of the British sailor is stirred by the idea of accomplishing that which has so nearly been achieved, but which, nevertheless, has hitherto baffled mankind ever since the creation. There are about 110,000 square miles within which, so far as we know, the voice of man has never been heard; and it is not wonderful that Englishmen should be resolved that the spell of that awful silence should be broken by an English cheer. The first maritime nation in the world has the right to lead the way into the charmed circle, and we believe that she will assert her right, and that the conquest will be her's, "from Indus to the Pole." It is too late in the day to decry an enterprise merely because it is not probable that the returning ships will bring anything interesting to the shopkeepers on Ludgate-hill, or will effect anything that will vary a stockjobber's profits. There is a great geographical question to be made clear; and Sir Roderick Murchison spoke out with all the generous pride of science when he haughtily refused to consider the matter in the light of shop gas-lamps. There is no sentimentality in the large view of the case—much mock sentimentality in the small one. No one, whose admiration has been excited by the narratives of the gallant determination and even more splendid endurance of Speke and Grant, has paused to consider the commercial value of the discovery of the source of the Nile. It is enough that these brave men have (if Captain Burton will allow us to say so) done more than has been done since the Nile began to flow, and have added a new honour to the name of England. We do not want a promise that the next Arctic expedition shall return with a weighty cargo of walrus-tusks and seal-skins, nor has England brought herself to gauge every achievement of her brave sons by its actual or probable money value. It is enough that science points, half reproachfully, to a large gap in her charts, and that British sailors, who have already defied the perils and hardships of exploration, are only too eager to face them again and complete the survey of the world.

Whether the Pole will at once be stormed by the ships of England, or whether the attempt will be postponed, matters little. That feat we believe to be reserved for us, and one day it will be accomplished. But those who are bent upon immediately preparing for the work are not unmindful of what Arctic exploration has already cost us; nor do they, any more than ourselves, forget that brave men have been sacrificed in their efforts to force the ice-girdled regions of the north. The names of those who have thus died are deep in the hearts of all of us; but Englishmen must be other than they are if such recollections appal them from vindicating the honour of the lost by completing the work which they left undone. We have it on record that those brave men were cheered in their toil by the conviction that they were slowly but surely attaining an object dear to England. It would be a treason to them, and an ungrateful return for their devotion, did Englishmen coldly make up their minds that all that her noble pioneers have done shall have been done in vain, and that the work for which they died shall be treated as a piece of Quixotic enterprise. We do not believe that such is the lesson that will be proved to have been learned from the heart-stirring narratives of those who have gone before.

We shall conquer the Pole. The plan of the campaign has been well laid out and deeply considered by Captain Osborn and other scientific as well as adventurous men. But there must be no hurry, no compromise for the sake of expedition, no neglect of a single precaution or provision. Whether the assault be made next year or the year after matters nothing, but it matters everything that it be made in such force that our heroes must return as conquerors. We do not see that Government can properly refuse to aid the expedition, and resistance to it on the mere ground that it involves peril can hardly come from those who risk thousands of valuable lives in hopeless campaigns against savages, who cannot be conquered, and who are not worth conquering. But if the Government will not yield to the pressure spoken of by Captain Osborn, the nation will need little pressure, if appealed to by men whose names command the confidence of us all. Let us have the scheme fully laid before us, and let the representatives of science unite in certifying to its being the wisest that can be devised. Then leave the question of money to the nation, and the question of peril to British sailors, like Sherard Osborn and the tars who beseech him to remember that they are "volunteers."

The Address in the House of Commons in reply to the Speech from the Throne will, we learn from the Globe, be moved by Sir Hedworth Williamson, M.P. for North Durham, and seconded by Mr. Hanbury Tracy, M.P. for the Montgomery boroughs.

The Queen has addressed a letter to the authorities of some of the railways which centre in London, expressing her warmest hopes that they will carefully consider every means of guarding against accidents, which are not at all the necessary accompaniments of railway travelling. Her Majesty says she is aware that when she travels extraordinary precautions are taken, but it is on account of her family, of those travelling upon her service, and of her people generally, that she expresses the hope that the same security may be ensured for all as is so carefully provided for herself. Railway directors are reminded of the responsibility involved in the monopoly of the means of travelling of almost the entire population of the country.

THE COURT.

THE Queen continues at Osborne House, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena and attended by Colonel Ponsonby, drove out. Princess Louisa took a drive. Mr. Arthur Helps arrived at Osborne.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by Prince Leopold, walked in the grounds. Later in the day her Majesty, accompanied by Princess Helena, drove out. Princess Louisa walked out.

Yesterday week the Queen walked and drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne. The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince Albert Victor arrived at Osborne on a visit to her Majesty. Prince Arthur, attended by Major Elphinstone, arrived at Osborne from Greenwich Park. The Archbishop of Canterbury, the Dean of Windsor, and the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley also arrived at Osborne. The Archbishop of Canterbury had the honour of dining with the Queen.

On Saturday last the Archbishop of Canterbury left Osborne after the confirmation of Princess Louisa and returned to London.

On Sunday the Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, Princess Louisa, and Prince Arthur attended Divine service at Whippingham Church. Her Majesty, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa received the sacrament of holy communion, administered by the Hon. and Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor and the Rev. G. Prothero. The Queen, Princess Helena, and Princess Louisa attended the afternoon service at Whippingham Church.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales, drove out. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa took a drive. The Prince of Wales passed the day shooting. The Duke of Argyll arrived at Osborne and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales, drove out. Princess Helena and Princess Louisa walked and drove in the vicinity of Osborne. The Dean of Windsor and the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley left Osborne.

Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Wigan, on Thursday week, had the honour of reading a selection of poetry, including scenes from the "Merchant of Venice" and "As You Like It," before the Queen and the members of the Royal family, at Osborne.

THE PRINCE AND PRINCESS OF WALES.

The Prince and Princess of Wales, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor and attended by the Countess of Morton, Lieutenant-General Knollys, and Captain Grey, left Sandringham House, en route for London, on Thursday week. Their Royal Highnesses drove to Wolferton station, and travelled thence, by special train on the Great Eastern Railway, to the Bishopsgate terminus, arriving at five minutes past four o'clock p.m. The Prince and Princess were received at the station by Mr. James Goodson, the chairman, and several of the directors of the railway company. Their Royal Highnesses drove immediately to Marlborough House. In the evening the Prince honoured the Strand Theatre with his presence.

Yesterday week the Prince presided at a meeting of the Council of his Royal Highness, held at Marlborough House. There were present at the Council Sir William John Alexander, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, and Lieutenant-General Knollys. Mr. Bateman, the secretary, attended as clerk of the Council. The Prince and Princess, accompanied by Prince Albert Victor and attended by the Countess of Morton and Captain Grey, left Marlborough House shortly before one o'clock, en route for Osborne. Their Royal Highnesses drove to the Waterloo station, and were received by Mr. A. Scott, the traffic manager, and Mr. Godson, superintendent of the South-Western Railway. The Prince and Princess travelled in a state saloon attached to the ten-minutes-past-one ordinary train to Southampton. Prince Arthur travelled with their Royal Highnesses. Upon arriving at Southampton the saloon and carriages containing the Prince and Princess, with their suite, were detached from the train and drawn by four horses to the wharf of the docks, alongside which her Majesty's paddle-yacht Alberta was lying. Their Royal Highnesses embarked at once on board the yacht, and in a few minutes the vessel was on her way down Southampton Water. The Prince and Princess were enthusiastically greeted by a numerous assemblage of spectators upon their embarkation. The ships in the dock were gaily dressed. The Turkish man-of-war Paiki Musret manned yards upon the arrival of their Royal Highnesses, and the band played the National Anthem as the Alberta steamed off. The Prince and Princess disembarked at East Cowes at half-past five o'clock and proceeded to Osborne.

CONFIRMATION OF PRINCESS LOUISA.

The confirmation of Princess Louisa took place on Saturday last at Whippingham Church by the Archbishop of Canterbury, assisted by the Very Rev. the Dean of Windsor and the Rev. G. Prothero. At twelve o'clock the Queen, accompanied by Princess Louisa, arrived at the church; the Prince and Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, Princess Beatrice, Prince Arthur, and Prince Leopold having preceded her Majesty. The suite in attendance consisted of Lady Churchill, Lady Caroline Barrington, the Hon. Emma Lascelles, Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, Colonel Ponsonby, Colonel Sir T. M. Biddulph, Major Elphinstone, and Mr. Buff; and the Countess of Morton and Captain Grey in attendance upon the Prince and Princess of Wales. The Queen and the Royal family took their places on each side of the chancel, while Princess Louisa stood at the altar. The service commenced with a hymn. The Archbishop then performed the ceremony, and another hymn was sung, after which the Archbishop delivered a short discourse. Among those who had the honour of being invited to be present at the ceremony were Countess Blucher, the Hon. Mrs. and Miss Grey, the Hon. Mrs. Wellesley, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, and Lady and Miss Phipps, the Hon. Lady Biddulph, Miss Hildyard, Mdlle. Bauer, Mdlle. Norelle, Dr. Jenner, and Mr. Sahl.

His Excellency the Prussian Ambassador and Countess Bernstorff are expected to return to town to-day (Saturday) from visiting Colonel North, M.P., and Baroness North at Wroxton Abbey, Oxon.

The Duke and Duchess of Manchester have left town for Kimbolton Castle, Hunts.

The Countess of Ellesmere and the youthful Earl and family have arrived at Burwood, Surrey, from Wales.

Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston have arrived in town from Broadlands, Hants.

Lord Londesborough has left town for his seat, Grimston Park, near Tadcaster.

The Right Hon. B. and Mrs. Disraeli have left Hughenden Manor, Berks, on a visit to the Marquis and Marchioness of Exeter, at Burghley House, Stamford.

Cards for the Ministerial and Opposition dinners for the 6th proximo have been sent out.

MARRIAGES IN HIGH LIFE.

The marriage of the Earl of Coventry and Lady Blanche Craven, third daughter of Earl and Countess Craven, was solemnised on Wednesday, at St. George's Church, Hanover-square. The bridal presents were very numerous, and included gifts of valuable jewellery from various members of the aristocracy.

The marriage of Viscount Sudley, eldest son of the Earl of Arran, to the Hon. Edith Jocelyn, second daughter of Viscountess Jocelyn, will take place on or about the 23rd of February.

A marriage is arranged to take place between Baron Ferdinand de Rothschild, son of Baron Anselm de Rothschild of Vienna, and Miss Evelina de Rothschild, youngest and only unmarried daughter of Baron and Baroness Lionel de Rothschild.

A marriage is arranged between Captain Keith Fraser, 1st Life Guards, brother of Sir William Fraser, Bart., and Miss Ward, eldest daughter of the Hon. Dudley and Mrs. Ward, and niece of the Earl of Dudley.

A marriage is arranged to take place between Mr. Frederick Dundas (son of Mr. James Dundas, of Dundas Castle, N.B.) and Miss Mellish, eldest daughter of Mr. R. C. Mellish, of Eaton-place.

The Indo-European telegraph line was completed on the 17th inst., Colonel Stewart, Director-General of the service, dying on the same day at Constantinople.

A "Farmer of 1200 Acres" writes to the Times that he has lately thrashed the produce of a fifteen-acre field of red Lammas wheat, the yield of which was seven quarters per acre, with four loads of straw.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The first anniversary of the Islington Working Men's Club and Institute was celebrated on Monday night by a soirée and meeting at the Myddelton Hall, Upper-street, Islington.

At a general meeting of the Garrick Club it was decided to increase the number of members by one hundred, the new clubhouse affording ample accommodation for the proposed additional number.

On Saturday preparations were made for the opening of the South London Working Classes Exhibition on Feb. 1. Miss Nightingale and a gentleman named Chester are the guarantors for the £1000 fund. Between 600 and 700 exhibitors have already sent in their names.

In the district of St. Philip's, Bethnal-green, 500 poor persons have just received a good dinner of roast beef and plum-pudding, and 1400 school children a treat of plum-cake, tea, &c., and each child a small present from the Christmas-trees—eight in number—which had been dressed for the occasion. The fête was provided by the Incumbent.

At a meeting of the committee of the Newspaper Press Fund, held last Saturday, a letter was read from Mr. Charles Dickens stating that he would have great pleasure in presiding at the annual dinner of the fund, to be held in May, and that the committee might rely on his loyalty to his old calling. The annual dinner was appointed to be held on the 20th of May.

The annual report of Mr. Sampson Low, jun., the honorary secretary of the Royal Society for the Protection of Life from Fire, states that during the year 1864 the fire-escape conductors attended 708 fires in the metropolitan district, and were successful in saving fifty-seven lives. This self-supporting society has eighty-five stations, five inspectors, and a hundred men under its keeping.

A meeting in support of the Camden Town Working Men's Club was held on Monday evening in the St. Pancras Vestry Hall. Mr. Harvey Lewis, M.P., presided, and in the course of a brief speech spoke highly of the beneficial influences of working men's clubs. He strongly urged the extension of such institutions. Resolutions to support the particular club on behalf of which the meeting was held were unanimously passed.

A thick fog enveloped the metropolis and its suburbs during the whole of Saturday, to the great hindrance of business and the inconvenience of those whose occupations called them out of doors. Towards the evening it grew more dense, until, at six o'clock, all carriage locomotion became, if not impossible, extremely dangerous, and pedestrians had to feel their way with lighted torches in their hands. With very few exceptions, the omnibuses and cabs ceased running. Some fatal accidents happened.

The fifteenth annual meeting of the members of the Metropolitan Typographical Widow and Orphan Fund was held, on Saturday last, at Anderton's Hotel. The report congratulated the members on the continued and increasing success of the society, and referred to the great benefit which it had been instrumental in conferring on the trade generally, stating also that nearly £5000 had been paid away to the families of deceased members since its establishment.

A handsome medal, silver with gold centre, has been presented to Mr. George Harmsworth, of Camberwell, one of the fire-escape men of the Royal Society for the Protection of Life from Fire, as a testimonial from the inhabitants of Walworth for his brave efforts, on the 17th of December, to rescue an aged widow lady, Mrs. Durrant, in the fire at No. 28, Lorrimore-place. Mr. Holmsworth has been twenty-one years a fireman, and has received three other medals for similar services.

Amongst the cases which were recommended for reward at the last meeting of the Royal Humane Society were Mr. H. A. Mandeville, sub-lieutenant H.M.S. Bombay, for saving Henry Wilcocks at Montevideo, recommended for silver medal; David Horton Krooman, H.M.S. Mæander, for saving J. Lawrence, boatswain's mate, at Ascension—bronze medal; Michl. Croughwill, A.B., and William White, A.B., H.M.S. Black Prince, for saving W. Briskham, in the Hamoaze, Plymouth—bronze medal to each; Silas Fowler, chief officer P. and O. S. N. C., for saving two Lascars at sea—bronze medal; John Hutchinson, waterman, for saving Alfred Hutchinson—bronze medal; to James Martin, seaman, for saving James Caldwell, at Portrush—thanks on parchment; Bartholomew Macdonald, chief boatswain, H.M.S. Coast Guard, for saving J. Murphy, commanding boatswain, at Cork—thanks on parchment; besides pecuniary rewards granted to several persons who, at the risk of their own lives, had rescued others from drowning. The secretary announced donations from Lord Dufferin of £5, from the Hastings Branch of the Royal Humane Society £10, and a legacy from a late member of the committee (Geo. Dodd, Esq.) of £200.

Last week the births of 2122 children—1053 boys and 1069 girls—were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1855-64 the average number (corrected) was 2015. —— 1535 deaths were registered in London last week. In the corresponding weeks of ten years, 1855-64, the average number of deaths is, with a correction for increase of population, 1637. From zymotic diseases 357 persons died. Smallpox proved fatal to seven children and two adults, forty-two deaths occurred from measles, typhus carried off eighty-one persons, fifty-two deaths were caused by scarlatina, twelve by diphtheria, and sixty-two by whooping-cough. The deaths during the week from diseases of the respiratory organs (exclusive of phthisis) amounted to 379, the corrected average number for this period of the year being 440. From bronchitis 221 deaths occurred; 101 persons died from pneumonia, and twenty-two from asthma. Phthisis proved fatal to 156 persons; from diseases of the heart seventy-two deaths were registered; and from various diseases of the brain and nervous system 175 persons died. The winter season is more particularly fatal to persons advanced in life. Fifty-six persons died last week who had attained the age of eighty years and upwards; amongst this number are recorded the deaths of six nonagenarians, the eldest of whom was a widow who had attained the age of ninety-eight years.

LAW AND POLICE.—In the Court of Bankruptcy, on Monday, Mr. Commissioner Goulburn referred incidentally to the probability of further legislation on the subject of the bankruptcy law, and said that a desirable change would be one which had often been suggested by Mr. Sargood, not to appoint what was called a creditors' assignee as a matter of course in every case, in nine cases out of ten there being no assets to collect, and the sham assignee merely acting as the friend of the bankrupt in every way; but to adopt the practice which prevailed in the late Insolvent Court, and only appoint an assignee when there was something for him to do, some assets to collect and distribute among the creditors.

There are upwards of 10,000 composition deeds registered under the bankruptcy law. The present Act came into force on Oct. 11, 1861.

A legal argument possessing considerable interest occupied the Court of Queen's Bench on Thursday week. The question was whether the authorities of the University of Oxford have power to take cognisance of all matters relating to undergraduates or members of the University resident within its limits. A tradesman at Oxford had brought actions in the superior courts to recover debts due to him by resident undergraduates. The University authorities made a claim of cognisance of these actions, and the question discussed on Thursday was whether that claim ought to be allowed. After hearing the arguments the Court decided that the claim must be allowed.

Application was made on Wednesday to Mr. Justice Crompton for a writ of certiorari to remove the trial of Captain Corbett, of the Shenandoah, from the Central Criminal Court to the Court of Queen's Bench. It was represented, on behalf of Captain Corbett, that at the trial important questions of law in reference to the interpretation of the Foreign Enlistment Act would arise. The Judge granted the application.

At the Middlesex Sessions, yesterday week, two men were tried on a charge of swindling. They were selling purses, and one of them, pretending to put two half-crowns into a purse, offered to sell it for a shilling. This tempted the cupidity of a juvenile on-looker, but on getting his purchase into his possession he found only two halfpence, and the purse itself fell to pieces. The prisoners were found guilty, but the Judge dismissed them without punishment on their promise not to pursue their swindling trade further.

At the Mansion House Police Court, on Saturday, Robert Atkin was charged with having extorted £91 2s. from Mr. W. S. Brown by means of threats. Mr. Brown is a partner in a firm of China merchants, and was in his office on Friday when Atkin, accompanied by a woman, entered. Atkin produced a pistol and declared that he would shoot Mr. Brown if he did not pay him what he owed him. There seems to have been an impression on the mind of Atkin that Mr. Brown was liable for some freight which appears to have been due. After a discussion of some length, in the course of which Atkin still menaced the complainant with the pistol, the latter procured him a cheque for £91 2s., and he went away. The prisoner was remanded.

Captain Grao, of the Peruvian corvette Union, was charged at Dartford, yesterday week, with a breach of the Foreign Enlistment Act, in engaging British subjects for service in his ship. Two witnesses were examined. One said he had been engaged as a coal-trimmer on board the Union, and signed articles for two years in the presence of the Lieutenant, but the Captain was not there. The witness, having been ill-treated, requested to get away. The other case was similar. The summons was dismissed.

Dr. Lankester held an inquest on Monday evening on the body of a man named Baker, who had died from want of food. He seems to have been a rag-picker. In the room where he lodged were found half-notes to the amount of £75, a bank-book showing the deposit of £300, and £30 in silver and copper. He had starved himself to death. In a memorandum-book found in the room were entered certain records of his food:—"Monday, bread and water. Tuesday, late dinner; no breakfast. Wednesday, no breakfast or supper. Thursday, dinner off leg of mutton, three ounces, 2d." There were also found some loose memoranda, all to the same effect:—"A soldier's dumpling, 1d.; plaice, 1d.; vegetables, 1d."

A death from hydrophobia is reported. On the 14th of December a large black retriever was running about mad in the streets of Greenwich. He bit two boys, one named Rivers (since dead), a Greenwich pensioner, and several dogs. A police constable, with great courage, followed the infuriated animal and killed him. Rivers was taken to the hospital, and the bitten parts excised, but on Friday week he showed symptoms of hydrophobia, and died on Tuesday. The other boy's wounds were cauterised, and he is doing well. An inquest was held on the body of Rivers last Saturday, and a verdict in accordance with the facts was returned.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Church of St. Bartholomew the Great, about to undergo a further restoration, has been open to archæologists this week.

It is stated that Sir Humphrey de Trafford, Bart., is about to erect, at a cost of £20,000, a parish church at Barton-on-Irwell, to replace the present building.

Mr. James Maden Holt, a resident at Bacup, Lancashire, has erected in that town, at a cost of £30,000, a new church, schools, and parsonage-house. The Bishop of Manchester consecrated the church on Monday.

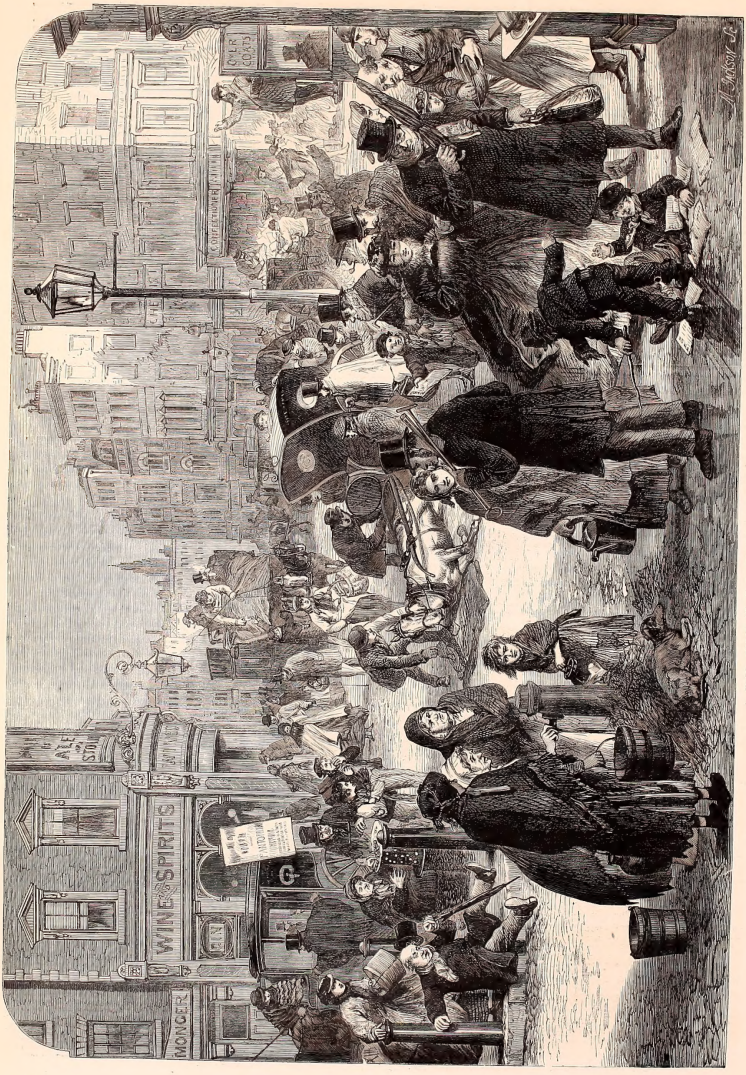
The Dean and Chapter have fixed Friday, Feb. 24—St. Matthias's Day—for the reopening of St. Patrick's Cathedral, Dublin; the elaborate restoration planned and carried out by the munificence of Mr. Guinness being nearly completed.

A new church is about to be built at St. Denys', Southampton, near the Netley Abbey railway station, on the South-Western line. This will be a the tenth church built in Southampton and in its immediate neighbourhood within the last quarter of a century.

The Church of St. Edmund-the-King-and-Martyr, in Lombard-street, which has been closed for several months, is to be reopened on Sunday next (to-morrow). Its pews and other fittings have been converted into open seats for the nave and choir-seats for the chancel. A double tier of galleries on each side of the tower, which excluded entirely the light of the windows towards the street, have been removed. The architect (Mr. Butterfeild) has in great measure preserved the old character of the church by judicious re-use of the carved woodwork and other ornaments.

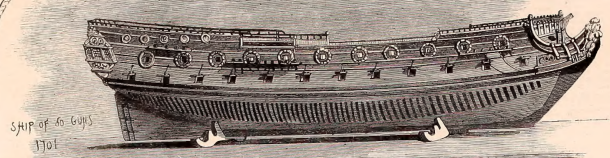
An influential meeting was held on Thursday week in Birmingham, under the presidency of the Bishop of the diocese, to take into consideration the spiritual destitution of the town, as brought forward by the Rev. Dr. Miller, the Rector, in a letter to the Rural Dean. The speakers were the Archdeacon of Coventry, Mr. C. N. Newdegate, M.P.; the Hon. and Rev. G. M. Yorke, the Rev. Dr. Miller, the Mayor (Mr. Henry Wiggin), Mr. T. S. Lloyd, &c. A Church Extension Society was formed on the motion of the Bishop, which will include grants to districts for additional curates previously to the erection of new churches, with a view to their ultimate severance. No grants will be made where churches are in private patronage.

The subject of church extension in Sheffield was practically dealt with, on Thursday week, by an influential meeting, over which the Archbishop of York presided. The scheme is to erect, within five years from this period, seven additional churches within the town of Sheffield. To effect this object it is proposed to raise a sum of £31,200, the subscriptions to which will be spread over the like period of five years. At a preliminary meeting on Wednesday a sum of £3800 was promised; John Brown, Esq., had given £5000 for the erection of a church in Brightside, near to his works; the Church Building Aid Society gives £4000; and at the meeting held on Thursday week upwards of £5000 more was promised; so that about £16,000 has already been subscribed for the work.

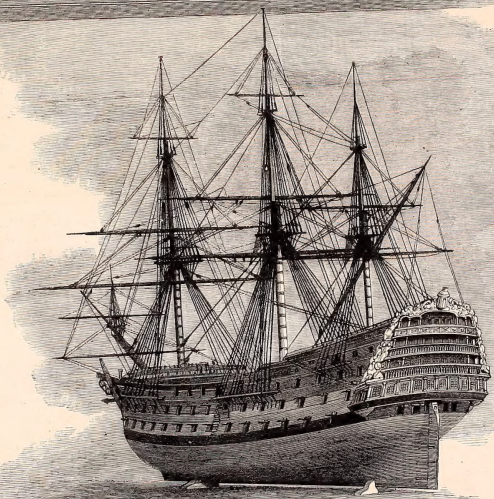


A meeting of the board of management of the Bishop of London's Fund was held on Wednesday, at which a gratifying report of the operations of the board was read. The Bishop, who presided, explained that it was desirable to systematise the funds subscribed, so as to produce the best result. A committee had been appointed, therefore, to determine in what localities new churches should be built and new parishes created, while he had himself undertaken the delicate task of determining who were the fit men to be engaged in the work of breaking up the soil in districts hitherto neglected. These objects were deliberately, steadily, and not rashly pursued; and he anticipated the full completion of his scheme before the ten years were expired.

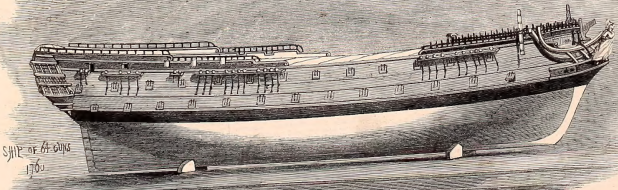
PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—The Rev. Sir G. Prevost, Bart., to be Archdeacon of Gloucester; Rev. W. R. Browell, Rector of Beaumont, Colchester, to be Rural Dean of Tendering.—Vicarages: The Rev. Edward Ollivant to Llanddewi Rhydderch, Monmouthshire; Rev. J. G. Richardson to Worth Maltravers, Dorset; Rev. J. Wise, late Archdeacon of Colombo, to Stanford.—Incumbency: The Rev. R. T. West to the new district of St. Mary Magdalene, Paddington.—Curacies: The Rev. H. H. Birley to Holy Trinity Church, Stepney; Rev. C. E. Casher to Bryanston and Durweston, Dorset; Rev. A. J. Flather to St. Peter's, Regent-square; Rev. G. Moon to St. Mary's, Whitechapel; Rev. T. Augustus Purdy, Chaplain of Hackney Union, to All Saints', Bishopsgate; Rev. S. Jenner to be Assistant Preacher, St. John the Evangelist, Westminster; Rev. Edward Olmius Morgan to the Donative of Scropton, Derbyshire.



The new Literary Institute in Willenhall, Staffordshire, was opened on Tuesday, under the presidency of the Right Hon. C. P. Villiers, M.P., and in the presence of the Earl of Lichfield; the High Sheriff of the county; Mr. Weguelin, M.P.; Mr. Foley, M.P.; the Rev. G. Fisher (the vice-president), and a large number of the friends of the institute.



A HARD FROST IN THE STREETS OF LONDON.



THE street traffic of London was thrown into sad confusion by the freaks of the wintry weather during one or two days of the past week. What with the fog which obscured the air and the frost which laid a thin plating of ice upon the ground, it was difficult sometimes to find one's path, and still harder to keep one's feet. The scenes occasioned by the slippery state both of the carriage-roads and footpaths in some of our most crowded thoroughfares were at the same time ludicrous and distressing; for while it was great fun for the little boys to practise skating evolutions upon the glassy surface of the congealed mud or to polish, by their repeated slidings, a lengthy strip of pavement until it became a mere trap for the tripping-up of innocent and unwary walkers, it was painful to see the frequent tumbles of the heavy-laden horses which lay, as often as they fell, panting and bleeding entangled between the shafts, or struggled wildly upon their strained haunches and broken knees, to recover the erect position. The risk of any serious injury to pedestrians was proportioned to their strength, agility, and moderate weight; an active young man of nine or ten stone being sure of escaping without much harm in case of a faux pas, while to the infirm, elderly lady, or to the bloated victim of gluttony and sloth, who tottered uneasily upon his gouty toes, a slip and a fall upon the treacherous stones might do the most fatal mischief. Happy in the variety of these accidents were those who descended, with safety if not with grace, in the sitting posture, like the gentleman at the left-hand corner of our Engraving, whose bald head suffers no worse treatment than the loss of the hat which is knocked off it by the young lady with her bandbox stumbling against him from behind. The tragedy of this street-scene is rather to be found in the prostrate misery of the hansom cabhorse, whom a couple of men are trying to raise, placing first a cloth upon the hard ground beneath the bruised shoulder of this poor animal to prevent his inflicting more severe wounds upon himself in his frantic efforts to arise. The first measure, in all such cases ought to be to release the horse from the shafts and draw the vehicle quite away from him, so that he may sweep the ground freely with both hind-feet, and gain a space of ample width to plant them upon as he endeavours to lift his body, the strength of the fore-legs being usually incapable of raising his weight, so long as the hind-legs are encumbered with the carriage. The gentleman who has got out of the hansom, and stands, with carpet-bag in hand, waiting for the deliverance of this unhappy horse, may probably arrive at the railway station a few minutes too late for his train; while the middle-aged traveller who is approaching, just as he turns the street-corner to the right, with his bag in one hand, his umbrella in the other, and his throat warmly muffled above his close-buttoned greatcoat, will punctually reach the station, with his steady pace and prudent glance at the obvious perils of his path. The group of disappointed housewives around the frozen water-tap, uttering complaints which the civil turncock is unable to redress, is significant of another sort of distress caused by the severe weather, but one to which, as Mr. Swiveller would say, "the rich and powerful are strangers." In these hard times the half-clothed sweeper, whose office at the broad crossing has become a sinecure, is fain to seek a ray of comfort in the neighbourhood of the baked-potato woman's portable kitchen, though he may lack the halfpenny with which he would buy his simple meal from her mealy store. The pitiful old fellow, who has no better trade than to carry a printed placard aloft upon the iron perches by which his feeble shoulders bear it as he walks, in spite of a recent edict of the Metropolitan Commissioners of Police, seems inclined to loiter in the same place as long as he dares. Each form of suffering has its peculiar form of consolation; and we are convinced that empty pockets are better than no pockets at all, when we see a pair of dirty hands warmed in their beggarly vacuity, as well as the kid-gloved fingers of the lady in her ermine muff. The frost which produced such varied effects in the streets of London afforded much amusing and wholesome exercise to thousands of skaters on the ornamental waters in the London parks, and without such loss of life as has been deplored upon some previous occasions.

A HARD FROST IN THE STREETS OF LONDON.—SEE PRECEDING PAGE.

MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE COLLECTION IN THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.—SEE N. XV PAGE.

THE MODELS OF SHIPS IN THE SOUTH KENSINGTON MUSEUM.

In our last week's Paper were three Illustrations of the great collection of models of British ships of war, lately removed from Somerset House to the Naval Court in the South Kensington Museum, and arranged, with a proper classification, by Mr. H. E. Acton, clerk of collections, and Mr. R. Sketchley, assistant keeper of the museum, with the assistance of Mr. Coghlen M'Hardy, secretary to the surveyor to the Admiralty. The oldest ships represented in this collection, including the Great Harry, built in 1514, and the Royal Sovereign, or Sovereign of the Seas, built in 1637, which appeared in that Engraving, may now be compared with some vessels of a later date, shown in our present Illustrations, for which we have selected three good specimens of the naval architecture of the first half of the eighteenth century; though we cannot identify these ships, like the older ones, as having been engaged in any famous historical battles. With a view, however, to the due sequence of these examples of the progress of ship-building, it is needful to correct a mistake that was made in describing the model of the Royal William, given last week; the particular model which we then engraved being, not that which shows the altered form of the ship after her rebuilding in 1719, but the model of her original form, as built, in 1670, by Mr. Phineas Pett, at Chatham, when her dimensions were, length, 167 ft. 3 in., breadth, 47 ft. 2 in., depth 18 ft., and 1568 tons burden.

The first model we have engraved for this week is one of a 50-gun ship, built about the year 1701. The name of this ship is unknown; but, as compared with those which preceded it, there is a great improvement in its form, and it shows the high degree of ornamentation which was commonly displayed in vessels of that period.

The second ship on our page is the Victory, 100 guns, built in Portsmouth Yard in 1737, the model of which, on a half-inch scale, is one of the largest and most highly finished in the collection. This ship was lost in the English Channel on the night of the 4th of October, 1744, when Admiral Balcaen and the crew of more than 1000 men perished—a greater disaster than even the sinking of the Royal George. The dimensions of the Victory were—length, 174 ft. 9 in.; breadth, 50 ft. 6 in.; depth, 20 ft. 6 in.; with 1921 tons burden.

The third model shown in our present Engraving, like the first, represents a ship unknown, but which was a sixty-four gun ship, built about the year 1760. This is a very good specimen of the advance which had by that time taken place in designing the lines of ships. Here we see the cutwater beginning to assume the form which is usual at the present day. The model itself is of most beautiful workmanship. We shall continue, at an early opportunity, our Illustrations of this interesting collection.

ROYAL INSTITUTION LECTURES.

Professor Tyndall, in his second lecture "On Electricity," delivered on Thursday, the 19th inst., explained and gave numerous experimental illustrations of electric conduction, insulation, and induction. He showed that conductors (such as the metals) freely permit electricity to pass through them; while non-conductors, or insulators (such as glass, sealing-wax, &c.), resist the passage. An electrified conductor can only be kept in that condition by interposing an insulator between it and the earth. When an electrified body touched an unelectrified one, the charge was divided. Electric induction was ascribed to the forcible separation of the two fluids of a neutral or unelectrified body, by merely bringing an electrified body near it, attracting one constituent and repelling the other. When the electrified body was positive, it attracted the negative fluid of the unelectrified body and repelled the positive. It was thus shown that by the mere proximity of an electrified body we can charge a neutral body with the opposite electricity. This inducing force was also shown to act through air, glass, vulcanised rubber, and other insulators. Professor Tyndall constructed an electrophorus, by fastening a stick of sealing-wax, as a handle, to a piece of sheet zinc. When the surface of a plate of resin was electrified and the zinc plate laid on it, the electroscope showed that the negative electricity of the resin acted inductively on the compound fluid of the zinc plate, attracting its positive and repelling its negative. On connecting the metal plate with the earth, or the operator touching it while standing on the ground, the repelled fluid escaped. When the zinc plate was raised by the wax handle, it was found to be charged with positive electricity. By this way it may be changed indefinitely. The induction takes place through the thin layer of air between the zinc and the surface of the resin. When two balls on glass supports were brought near an electrified body, one was found to be charged with positive and the other with negative electricity, by induction.

The Friday evening discourse on the 20th inst. was given by Professor Tyndall, "On Combustion by Invisible Rays." His Royal Highness the Count of Paris was in the chair. The Professor began by stating that Sir Wm. Herschel, in 1800, discovered the obscure rays of the sun, and proved that the position of maximum heat was beyond the red of the solar spectrum; that his son, Sir John Herschel, succeeded in obtaining a thermograph of the calorific spectrum, which gave visible evidence of its extension beyond the red; and that Melloni proved the existence of a large proportion of obscure rays in the flames of oil and alcohol, and from incandescent platinum. After exhibiting the beautiful spectrum of the electric light, and explaining the principle and construction of Melloni's thermo-electric pile, he proceeded to explain the arrangement of these apparatus by the employment of which he was enabled to produce combustion, due to the invisible focus of reflected rays from the electric lamp, the light of which was cut off a solution of iodine in bisulphide of carbon: iodine, which is perfectly opaque to light, being perfectly transparent to the obscure rays of heat. It was stated that only five per cent of the dazzling white light of platinum wire heated in the electric light, four per cent of the light of a coal-gas flame, and ten per cent of the electric light are luminous rays, the remainder being obscure rays of heat. By means of a focus of these obscure rays Dr. Tyndall ignited black paper, a hat box, charcoal, tow, zinc foil, magnesium wire, and a cigar which was smoked for a moment by the Count of Paris. Finally, by holding a piece of blackened platinum in the focus of invisible rays, Dr. Tyndall succeeded in raising it to a white heat, thus actually raising the refrangibility of light, and showing that out of darkness it may be possible to obtain a degree of incandescence equal to that of the sun itself. This effect was first produced by Dr. Tyndall himself; but he ascribed the idea to Dr. Akin. It is termed "calescence," and is the converse to Professor Stokes's discovery of "fluorescence," the exhibition of the invisible chemical rays of the blue end of the spectrum in a solution of sulphate of quinine.

The third lecture "On Electricity," delivered by Dr. Tyndall, on Tuesday, was mainly devoted to the principles involved in the construction and action of the electric machine. He referred again to the electrophorus, and obtained a spark from it, by which a jet of gas was ignited. He doubled the intensity of a conductor by imparting to it a greater quantity of electricity, and showed by experiment that the density of electricity diffused over a sphere is the same at all parts of its surface; that on a plate its density is greatest at the edges; from an elongated conductor the density is greatest at its ends, and, in fact, when it ends in a sharp point, the electricity discharges itself into the air, producing the motion termed "electric wind." By means of opposing currents so produced Dr. Tyndall was enabled to balance in the air pieces of gold leaf, like the fabled Mohammed's coffin. The electric machine was shown to consist of the insulator excited by friction and the prime conductor. The first machine (invented by Otto von Guericke) consisted of a sphere of sulphur, which was replaced successively by a sphere cylinder and plate of glass. The first rubber was the hand, afterwards superseded by rubbers of silk and leather, coated by amalgam. When the glass plate of the machine was turned by a handle it became positively electrified by friction with the rubbers. It then acted by induction upon the prime conductor, attracting the negative and repelling the positive: the negative streaming out from the points. These principles were illustrated by numerous experiments, tending to rivet the impressions produced by the preceding lectures.

Professor Marshall began his lectures "On the Nervous System in Man and Animals" on Saturday last, with a sketch of the history of our knowledge of this interesting subject, first referring to a diagram showing the great nerve centres, the brain and the spinal cord, and their accessories. He divided the history into the supernatural, the speculative, and the positive epochs. The ancients speculated upon the position of the soul, but knew little or nothing of the physiology of the brain. Galen collected the knowledge of his time; and the information acquired by the Greek and Roman philosophers was taken up by the Arabs. But, from the sixth century after Christ till the sixteenth, physiology was nearly extinct, till speculation began to give way at the revival of learning. The great progress made by the modern school is eminently due to the subdivision of labour and to the adoption of separate lines of inquiry. In the sixteenth century, anatomy was revived by Da Vinci, Vesalius, and others, and with it the study of the nervous system. In course of time, Malpighi applied the microscope to the investigation of the tissues of the brain; Fourcroy and Vauquelin, by chemical analyses, determined its constituents—albumen, fat, &c.; and Galvani discovered the relation of nerve to electric currents, which has been made the subject of such deep research in our day by Matteucci and Dubois Reymond. The immortal discoveries of Sir Charles Bell (especially of the distinction between the motor and sensory nerves) were followed by those of a host of investigators, including the names of Prochaski, Hunter, Home, Marshall Hall, Brown Sequard, and others who have experimented on the physiology of the nervous system; and great progress has been also made by the psychological studies of Cabanis, Gall, Combe, and, lastly, of Spencer and Bain. In conclusion, Professor Marshall referred to the importance of the study of the nervous system in regard to the hope of diminishing human suffering.

On Friday evening, Feb. 3, the discourse will be given by Dr. Odling, "On Aluminium, Ethide, and Methide."

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

We have received at least a dozen letters respecting Mr. Tennyson's baronetcy. All our correspondents are very positive either in denial or affirmation, and everybody seems perfectly well "posted up" in a matter about which there can be but one person who knows the real why or wherefore—the sic aut non—Mr. Tennyson himself. We beg humbly to hint than an Echo is not an oracle, and that our tiny paragraphs do not claim the importance of an announcement in the London Gazette. In fact, we are sometimes puzzled to know what our proper functions are. When the vivacious Mr. Dazzle, in "London Assurance," is put to the test, and asked what is his real station in society; he replies that "he really doesn't know." We are almost fain to say ditto to Mr. Dazzle. We are not art-critics; we are not reviewers; we don't write leading articles; we detest satire; we scorn scandal; we don't "lounge" at any "clubs"—we only go there to read up the bluebooks; we are not flâneurs, or "idlers," or "men about town;" we don't know any "wits;" we don't move in any "circles;" we have no "sources of private information:" in short, we are nobody and nothing but "Echoes," and the sighing of a cyclone of small-talk, and the whispering of a water-baby in a conch-shell. Will that satisfy our correspondents?

Many thanks to our kindly correspondent, strong in genealogy and "death" on the baronetage, who has set us right in an error which escaped us last week apropos of Bunbury the caricaturist. Sir Thomas Charles Bunbury, Bart., drew no caricatures; but his brother Henry did. Both were the sons of the Rev. Sir William Bunbury, of Milden Hall; and the second son of the caricaturist succeeded to the title on the death of Sir Thomas, and became Sir Henry Edward Bunbury, seventh Baronet. Thus the limner of grotesques was both the son and the father of a Baronet; but between the two stools we fell—not having Dod, Burke, and Debrett at our elbow—to the ground. Our correspondent tells us that Henry Bunbury married, in 1771, Catherine, the daughter of Kane William Horneck, Esq., Royal Engineers. Was this one of the sisters of Oliver Goldsmith's "captain in lace"? But we are drifting on the shoals of the Georgian era. Suffice it to say that the portrait of the caricaturist (who was educated at Westminster School, and Catherine Hall, Cambridge) was painted, with his portfolio under his arm, by Reynolds; and that there is another portrait by Sir Joshua, "Master Bunbury" (presumably one of the family), which connoisseurs declare to be as fine a portrait of a boy as "The Strawberry Girl" is of a girl.

The painful revelations in the bluebook of the Children's Employment Commission has brought about a step in the right direction. The prospectus of a "London Dressmaking Company," capital twenty thousand pounds, has been issued. The company is to be "limited," of course. There is a most noble and right reverend list of patron and patronesses, including the good Earl of Shaftesbury and the Bishops of London and Oxford. In the directorial list we meet with two names rarely missing in any scheme of social progress:—those of Mr. John Ruskin and Mr. Thomas Hughes. The company have taken a house in Clifford-street, Bond-street; engaged first-rate milliners; secured an efficient staff; and will soon be at work. We hope and believe they will get on swimmingly. The Bishops will, doubtless, look after the apron and lawn sleeve department; the author of "Tom Brown at Oxford," must be a first-rate authority in caps and gowns; and it will be a relief to Lord Shaftesbury, after his long experience of ragged schools, to control the confection of vestments which are not in tatters. We were at first puzzled to tell what section of superintendence should be assigned to Mr. Ruskin. The directorship of a shoemaking company would perhaps tally best with the taste of the writer of "Unto this Last;" but, on reflection, it must be conceded that the author of "Modern Painters" may exercise a valuable supervision over the general esthetics of the undertaking, and make the lady customers "beautiful for ever." The young women employed by the company are only to work from eight a.m. to eight p.m., with two full hours for meals; they are to be fairly remunerated, and their moral as well as physical welfare will be looked after. May the London Dressmaking Company prosper! If they need a motto, we should like to suggest one we once saw inscribed, in choice Castilian, over the door of a chandlery-shop at San Juan del Palmar, Mexico. It ran thus:—"No hay orden de fiar." In terser English, "No trust." And very likely the choice Castilian was but the translation of a similar reminder in Aztec, dating from the days of Montezuma. The principle of "No trust" is as old as the hills, and the practice of "tick" much older still.

Talking of companies (limited), we hear that a body of gentlemen, long resident in, or acquainted with, or interested in the United States, are about to try in London an experiment which in New York has, of late years, met with triumphant success. It isn't tramways; it isn't volunteer fire companies; it isn't paper currency. But what will our readers think of a "London 'Delmonico' Company" (limited)? Delmonico's at New York is simply the best and most splendid restaurant in the world. There is nothing in Paris to beat it; there is nothing in London, with all its plethora of hotels and dining-rooms, to equal it. Delmonico's is a combination of the Trois Frères, the Maison Dorée, Philippe's (Rue Montorgueil), Bignon's, the Trafalgar at Greenwich, the Star and Garter at Richmond, the Hotel de Russie at Frankfort, Florian's at Venice, the Ship and Turtle, Leadenhall-street, Darba's at St. Petersburg, and the dining-rooms of the best Pall-mall clubs. You may dine at Delmonico's for a dollar, and for a party of eight your bill may come to a thousand dollars—precisely as you please. You may be served off gold, and have pearls dissolved in your sauterne if you choose. The projected "London 'Delmonico' Company" will of course appeal chiefly to the wealthiest and most luxurious classes. The locale will be a splendid mansion at the West End, the furniture will be gorgeous, the waiters irreproachable, the cookery simply perfection, the wines:—ne m'en parlez pas. The servants will be superb in plush and silk stockings; and for a dîner d'élite the major-domo will bring in the first dish with a silver chain round his neck and a sword by his side, according to the grand old traditions of the days of Ude, and Carême, and D'Ouix. The experiment is a bold one; but what may not be tried in London the stupendous?

Mr. Charles Dickens, we are very glad to learn, will take the chair at the next festival of the Newspaper Press Fund, which will take place in May. This will be but the second dinner of the fund; and we hope that all the presidents chosen for the anniversaries of a most meritorious and promising charity will be as satisfactory as the two selections already made. Lord Houghton was a most graceful and eloquent chairman; but even greater interest will attach to the appearance in the chair of Mr. Dickens, who first won his spurs in the arena of journalism, and who has now given a very genial proof of his loyalty to his old profession.

There is an "echo" going about Paris, telling how the little Prince Imperial, being called upon to sign a memorial, and being rather a long time in affixing his name to the document, replied, when remonstrated with, that such a name as he bore could not be scribbled. A very charming little mot for a very charming little Prince; but we have to beg his Imperial Highness's pardon, on the premises. The famous name of Bonaparte can be scribbled. His I. H.'s papa writes a bold, legible hand; but his I. H.'s grand-uncle Napoleon the Great not only scribbled but scrawled his immortal name. A more detestable handwriting than that of Napoleon I. cannot be conceived. As General of Artillery it was bad; as First Consul it was worse; as Emperor it was simply abominable. The hand of iron may have been cramped by the velvet glove it wore; but we think it was Mdme. de Staël who was spiteful enough to say that the Emperor and King wrote illegibly with malice prepense, and in order to disguise his faulty orthography. There has been a controversy even about the spelling of his name. He is supposed to have preferred "Bonaparte;" but the late Mr. John Wilson Croker insisted that his proper patronymic was "Buonaparte"; and, in the opinion of many anti-Gallicans, he is still "Boneypartey."

A very clever book by a very clever woman is "A Lady's Walk in the South of France," by Mary Eyre. It is full of vivid descriptions of the scenery of the Pyrenees and the manners of the Béarnais and Bigorrais, with plenty of antiquarian, legendary, and folk lore, and some very charming selections (with the music attached) of the minstrelsy of a most interesting region. All this is intermingled with passionate protests against the vices and errors of English society; for Miss Eyre belongs to the genus "strong-minded":—an epithet applied by envious men to women who have any mind at all. The passionate protests notwithstanding, "A Lady's Walk" is a most readable book. It is dedicated to the venerable Lord Brougham.

BETTER DAYS FOR WORKING MEN.

It will be within the memory of most of our readers that last Session Lord Westbury introduced a bill to Parliament in the interests of the working classes. We refer to the County Courts Amendment Bill, by which his Lordship sought to relieve working men from the trammels of the credit system in which the shopkeepers and tallymen sought to snare them. Had this measure survived the violent opposition brought to bear upon it, a debt could not have been recovered at the County Court which had been allowed to run more than twelve months, and the shopkeepers, who have offered the labouring man fatal inducements to extend his credit and live beyond his means, would have been unwillingly compelled to lead him back into the paths of prudence and economy. Of course, they who saw in the acceptance of this measure a stop gradually put to their nefarious practices opposed it on moral and humane grounds.

Nothing is more true than that "the borrower is servant to the lender." The nature of the service in this case is clear enough. The shopkeeper dealing on the credit system is constrained to receive his goods of the wholesale house to which he is indebted in such quality and at such prices as that house pleases to supply them; and if he is to dispose of his goods on such terms as will give him a chance of a livelihood, he must endeavour to place himself at the head of a constituency as dependent on his will as he is upon that of his creditors. Or, it may be that he feels the advantage of being free to purchase in the cheapest market, with ready money, the worst goods, which he sells, by means of the credit system, at the highest prices in the dearest market. Owing to this credit system, there are thousands of working men who know not when they put good food into their mouths, whose every dinner is adulterated, "whose shoes let in water three months too soon, whose waistcoats shine with devil's dust, and whose wives wear calico that will not wash," and who, after paying from 30 to 50 per cent for the necessaries of life more than they would have done had they paid cash, are, perhaps, classed amongst the 9000 small debtors annually sent to spend a season in prison in satisfaction of the judgment and costs pronounced by the Court.

It cannot be denied that the present facilities for credit, conjoined to the rage for making holiday, are a source of much mischief. It is a serious disadvantage to the artisan in good work to find that the luxuries he can command are not limited by the weekly remuneration of labour. He is not deterred from taking advantage of an excursion trip to Brighton with the children by the knowledge that he cannot afford it. "Never mind the money," says the complaisant shopkeeper, "pay another time;" and this conduct breaks down his natural safeguard—the habit of providence; and soon renders him a willing recipient, when work slackens and sickness visits him, of parish relief.

It must be considered an auspicious circumstance that some hundreds of thousands of artisans and agricultural labourers have had the presence of mind to resist such temptations, have determined to pay cash for what they buy, to live within their incomes, and to enjoy the fruit of their own abstinence and providence. In fact, they have given the solution of what Lord Brougham calls the first problem of social economics—how to keep oneself with one's own money.

Imagine, in some town or country village, the existence of a combination amongst the bakers, either real or imaginary, to keep up the price of bread and flour. Indignation has long been expended by the purchasers, but with no ameliorative result. A few of the men of action determine to club their surplus earnings for some weeks, and to buy, when the fund is large enough, a quarter of wheat, to be reduced to flour, and sold to the community. One of the party offers to take charge of it, and to serve whoever comes after work hours. The flour is to be sold at the fair retail price, and the profit is to go to swell the share capital for a new purchase. This venture, according to the way in which it is conducted, is a success, or it is not; if it is, the business will grow—five or ten quarters of wheat will soon be purchased at a time, and probably meat or articles of grocery may be added to the store. In time a separate apartment of a house will be devoted to this trade, and a manager will be appointed to buy and sell, under a regularly-appointed committee. The first object is to obtain good food at a reasonable price; but presently a new motive is found for continuing the business. If the purchases are well made, and the goods are well kept and carefully served, a considerable surplus is found to have accumulated at the end of the year's transaction. A part or the whole of this is to be divided, the members receiving in proportion to their subscriptions. They are no longer contented with obtaining good food; they now look, also, to a division of profits from the business. So the enterprise grows from a small seed to a mighty tree, and the opposing winds, which seem to endanger its existence, generally root it only the more securely.

Before it reaches this stage, however, it is properly constituted, under the Industrial and Provident Society's New Act, which ordains that the shares are to be £1 each, paid up at not less than 3d. a week, the payment of 1s. constituting membership. Moderate dealings at the store will therefore yield enough to enable a person to take up and pay for several shares, and put something into his pocket besides.

The apportionment of profits is a very interesting feature of these societies. Five per cent having been awarded as interest upon capital, due allowance being made for depreciation of fixed stock, &c., a bonus of one or two shillings in the pound is given upon purchases; and even non-members share the bonus, according to the extent of their purchases. The plan pursued is to give small tin checks or tokens to each customer, stamped with the amount of his purchase. These checks are sent to the store at the quarter's end, when the dividend or bonus is paid, and those customers receive most who have spent most. The largest buyers are those with the largest families: consequently, those receive most who need most; or, in Lancashire phrase, "the more they eaten the more they geten." The bonus may be left to accumulate with interest. In this way the poorest may save in what he spends, and literally "eat himself into a capitalist."

It is evident that business conducted in this way must be productive of a large increase. In the first place, there is no credit, and consequently there are no bad debts. Customers being ready in the families of the members, no money need be wasted on shop-fittings, and advertisements, and show, and no "goodwill" has to be paid for. Everything is managed in the cheapest way, and the working man adds to the wages of labour the profits of the huckster and the retail dealer. In these societies it is not usual to divide more than 5 per cent in addition to the bonus given upon purchases. That which remains goes to swell the reserve, the fund for education, for recreation, for building suitable premises, and for charitable purposes. Of store profits one member says, "Three years ago I paid £1 to become a shareholder in the Equitable Society, and that amount has increased, through profit on purchases and interest, to upwards of £11, or 333 per cent per annum on my capital." This is no uncommon case.

Taking the last report, I find "The Rochdale Equitable Pioneers Society (Limited) has now 4850 members; capital, £61,910; business done during the year ending December, 1864, £174,937; profit realised thereon, £22,522. During the trying events of the cotton famine it has benefited its members and those who have traded with it during the last two years at least £30,000, and so mitigated to that extent privations in a great number of families; nay, more, this and the other two co-operative societies in this town have given to the Distress Relief Fund, up to Sept. 29, 1863, £1504."

The Manchester and Salford Equitable Society has recently laid the corner-stone of new stores and warehouse. The establishment will consist of three commodious shops, an extensive bakehouse, store and making-up rooms, spacious show-room, work-room, offices, library and news-room, and a large hall, with ante-rooms capable of seating 1000 persons. The profits on the business will cover the cost of two such buildings. The society has been in existence four years. Subjoined is a statistical abstract of its operations:—

Total cash received for goods	£122,678
" working expenses	5,337
" net profit	5,930
" interest paid on capital	760
" cost of fixtures	1,253
" allowed for depreciation, &c.	640
" reserve fund	50
" education and recreation fund	50
" donations to charitable institutions	44

It may be further said that £16 6s. 5d. has been paid as a share of the profits to every member who has spent £1 per week during that period.

To these might be added many instances showing how well this co-operative system works.

THE FARM.

THE annual meeting of the Highland and Agricultural Society was held at Edinburgh on Wednesday, and, in consequence of the Duke of Argyll's absence at the Cabinet Council and no V.P. appearing, the chair was taken by his Grace the Duke of Buccleuch. No less than 101 new members were elected, which brings the total number up to nearly 4300. The balance-sheet was very healthy, and comparing the entries of stock at Stirling in 1833 with those at the same place in 1864, they have risen from 576 to 1268; and the sum collected at the doors, from £211 to £1729! Lord Lovat is to be the chairman of the local committee at Inverness, where the next meeting is set for Aug. 2, 3, and 4. The venue in 1866 will be Glasgow, and Aberdeen is impatient for the honour in 1857. Among the premiums awarded was one of £5 to Hugh Borthwick, shepherd, Traquair Knowe, near Peebles, for a report on the scab in sheep. Dr. Anderson informed the meeting, in reply to a question, that home-made oil-cake is more adulterated than foreign.

Sir Thomas Gladstone lost his motion, which was practically to the effect, not that Dukes should be excluded from the chair of the society if they were fitted for it, but that the most eminent men should not be excluded merely because they are not Dukes; and he indicated a most eligible Marquis, whose chances of election had been nullified by this "rule." It was urged in reply that the choice was not limited, as Sir Thomas inferred; that the directors could only recommend, and that the society might, in the teeth of them, without violating the charter, elect whom they liked; and the previous question was put and carried by a large majority. The Stirling Implement Committee matter went off quietly, and is laid, we hope, to rest at last.

The Chamber of Agriculture and Scottish Farmers' Club was inaugurated the same evening at a dinner, which was attended by about 170 leading men—Mr. George Hope, of Fenton Barns, president of the club, in the chair. It already numbers 300 members, and it has been decided that a majority of the committee shall be tenant farmers. The speech of the president was full of manliness and tact, and our only wonder is that Scotland should have so long lacked an institution of the kind for the discussion of whatever is connected with practical agriculture. Mr. M'Laggan, of Pumpherston, who has been unwearied in his efforts to establish it, is the honorary secretary; and the presence of Mr. Hall Maxwell and the tone of the speeches throughout the evening proved that there is no more antagonism between it and the Highland Society than there is between the Morayshire Club and the Forres Fat Show. As Mr. Maxwell well said, there "were many questions which they could not discuss in the Society which it would be very pleasant and profitable to discuss in the Chamber."

A valuable lecture was delivered at the Penrith Farmers' Club last week, on the uses of salt in agriculture. It was the opinion of the lecturer, Mr. Norman, that animals will thrive on coarser food with its aid; that it is an excellent corrective of turnip taste in milk and butter; in a great measure a preventive of black quarter and a cure for red water; favourable to a glossy coat; and useful in the case of horses for destroying intestinal worms and tumour accumulations. Boussingault, he added, considered sheep to be most benefited by it, as it acts as an antidote to the rot, and increases the wool and mutton. As regards vegetation in dry seasons, it has the power of absorbing moisture from the atmosphere and retaining the same in the soil, and hence its especial use on light, dry soils, besides rendering stiff soils more friable if they have been properly drained. Wherever it answers, quicklime heightens the effects in the proportion of four or five parts of lime to one of salt. The lecturer, quoting Professor Johnson, did not consider 12 or 15 cwt. per acre too much when the land is in fallow for wheat, mangolds, or turnips, as it eradicates all small weeds and insects, &c. In fields where corn is likely to lodge and be broken by the wind it has great effect in stiffening the straw and making the ear fill better. Roots largely supplied with salt are also not so likely to be injured by frost, and grass top dressed with it is always more sweet and palatable to cattle. Mr. Norman also mentioned that, running short once of the "farmers' friend" in sowing a field of wheat, he prepared a strong solution of salt, and used it for two bushels of the seed with very great effect; but he took especial care not to have the solution in too large a quantity, or decomposition would be prevented, and germination could not take place.

In the discussion which followed, a member gave it as his experience that salt would not pay on mountain or freestone, and only on poor, sandy soils. Another had sown his oats saturated with salt, and the crop had always escaped the "grimes"; but he had never seen animals benefitted by it, and stated that its use was discontinued in cavalry barracks. The next member said that salt answered especially on a freestone formation, and that, on account of it being only a guinea a ton, while Peruvian guano was eight guineas, it was not properly appreciated as a weed-eradicator. By giving one field twelve hundredweight per acre and seven cartloads of lime, and then summer-fallowing it, he had not left a poppy standing. A more experimental member never used salt alone, but always in a mixed state; and he believed the beneficial result of mixing salt with guano to be that it fixed the ammonia, the water then washed it into the soil, and the root of the plant extracted the solids from it. Salt, he added, was much better than lime for the top of dung or compost heaps, and hide salt more valuable than any other. Another member thought that a little salt in meal improved cattle, and that it was least efficacious on black top land; and Mr. Hesketh, the chairman, was quite with him when he added that it was a great preventive of finger and toe in turnips. On the whole, salt may be said to have left off a winner.

Captain R. Tryon, R.N., has collected in Bristol £628 to defray the entire cost of a life-boat station. The National Life-boat Institution has decided on renovating completely the Padstow life-boat establishment, on the Cornish coast, with the money thus collected.

The Presse of Vienna states that the Jewish population of Kowno, in Western Russia, have established a loan society, which is distinguished from other institutions of the kind by the fact that no other guarantee is required from the borrower than his word of honour. Since the foundation of the association there has not been a single case of a debtor having failed to fulfil his engagements.

The Metropolitan Board of Works has abolished the names of Eccleston-terrace, Warwick-terrace, Eccleston-place, and Grosvenor-place, Belgravia, and ordered the whole line of thoroughfare to be called Belgrave-road. The names of River-terrace, Montague-place, and Bird's-buildings, Islington, are to be abolished, and the whole line of thoroughfare to be called Colebrook-row. The subsidiary names in the following thoroughfares are also abolished, and the houses are to be renumbered:—Rochester-row, Westminster; Newington-causeway, Borough; Charles-street and James-street, Mile-end Old Town; Scott-street and Somerford-street, Bethnal-green; and Arundel-gardens, Kensington.

The bill of the commission for the proposed New Westminster Improvements proposes to empower the Commissioners to form two new streets, the first being a street in substitution of New Tothill-street and Dacre-street, from the north side of Victoria-street, beginning at the west corner of No. 1, Victoria-street, Westminster Abbey, and ending in the Broadway; and the second, beginning in the Horseferry-road, at the south end of Artillery-terrace, running southward, and then ending in Rochester-row. It is proposed to take compulsory powers to divert, stop up, or inclose, temporarily or permanently, the following places to carry out the intended improvements, viz., St. Anne's-lane, John's-place, George, Legg, Union, Cottage, Catharine, Johnson's, and James courts; Queen's-place, John's-buildings, Duck-lane, Old and New Pye-streets, Perkins'-rents; Pear, St. Anne's Orchard, William, Dean, New Tothill, Dacre, and Cooper streets; thoroughfares all communicating with Victoria-street and the proposed new streets. For this purpose the demolition of several hundred houses in numerous narrow, confined, and ill-ventilated localities is contemplated by the Commissioners, principally situated in Castle-lane and place, Isabella-row, Palace-street, James, William, Tothill, and Old Smith streets, the Broadway, and Rochester-row.——The line of road from Westminster Bridge, which has recently been formed by the removal of the block of houses standing on the north side of New Palace-yard, is open for traffic.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

ALTHOUGH only a moderate amount of business has been transacted in National Stocks, prices have ruled steady, and the supply of stock afloat has not increased. The Unfunded Debt has been firm, at full quotations.

The demand for money for commercial purposes has fallen off; nevertheless, advances continue to be made with caution, and, in the open market, the lowest rates for paper are as follow:—

Thirty days' bills	4¾	per cent.	Four months' bills	5¼	per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4¾	,,	Six months' bills	5¼ ½	,,
Three months' bills	5	,,

On Thursday the directors of the Bank of England reduced their minimum rate of discount to 5 per cent.

Throughout the Continent money is rather more plentiful, if we except Spain, the Government of which has been compelled to issue a forced loan of £6,000,000. We annex the quotations in the leading cities:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	4½	4¼	Turin	6	6
Vienna	5	5	Brussels	5	4
Berlin	5	4½	Madrid	9	10
Frankfort	5	5	Hamburg	—	4
Amsterdam	5	5	St. Petersburg	6½	9

In the Stock Exchange short loans may be had at 4 to 4½ per cent.

The arrivals of bullion have been on a very moderate scale, and scarcely any gold has been sold to the Bank of England. About £30,000 has been withdrawn for Egypt.

On Monday, Home Stocks were somewhat heavy. Consols, for Money, were done at 89⅝ ¾; Ditto, for Account, 89⅞ ⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅝ ¾; India Five per Cents, 103⅞; Ditto Bonds, 8s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem.; Bank Stock was 241 to 243; India Stock, 213 to 215. The transactions on Tuesday were limited. Consols, for Transfer, left off at 89⅞ ⅞; Ditto, for Time, 89⅞ 90; Bank Stock, 242 to 244; India Stock, 214 to 216; Ditto, New, 103⅞; Rupee Paper, 101 to 103 and 109 to 111; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 5s. prem.; India Four per Cents, 98⅞. On Wednesday, Consols realised 89⅞ ⅞ for Money, and 89⅞ 90 for the Account. Bank Stock closed at 241 to 243; India Stock, 214 to 216; Ditto, New, 103⅞ to 104; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 5s. prem.; Annuities, 1885, 14 7-16; India Certificates, 95⅞. On Thursday, Consols, for Money, sold at 89⅞ ⅞; and for Account at 89⅞ ⅞. Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ 89⅛; India Five per Cents, 103⅞ ⅞; and Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem.

All American Securities have ruled heavy, and prices have not been supported.

Spanish Securities have ruled heavy, at reduced quotations. In other Foreign Securities only a moderate business has been transacted, yet very little change has taken place in prices from last week. The Confederate Loan has marked 54½ to 55½; Italian Scrip, ¾ to 1 prem.; Egyptian, 1½ to 1¾ prem.; Montevidean, 4 prem.; and French Mexican Scrip, 8½ dis. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have realised 83¾; Buenos Ayres Six per Cents, 91; Chilian Six per Cents, 101; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 98¼; Greek, 24; Ditto Coupons, 10¼; Mexican Three per Cents, 28 ex div.; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47¾; Russian Five per Cents, 91¼; Ditto, 1862, 89½; Sardinian Five per Cents, 78¼; Spanish Deferred, 40¼ ex div.; Ditto, Passive, 32¾; Ditto, Certificates, 14¼; Turkish Six per Cents, 1858, 73; Ditto, 1862, 70¼; Turkish Four per Cents, 100¾; and Italian Five per Cents, 64 ex div.

Joint-stock Bank Shares are somewhat firmer in price. Agra and Masterman's have sold at 120; Alliance, 29¾ to 31; Brazilian and Portuguese, 11¼; British North American, 46¼; Chartered of India, Australia, and China, 34¾; Consolidated, 11¾; Continental, 20; European, 14¾; Imperial Ottoman, 16¾; Land Mortgage of India, 5¾; London and County, 80; London Joint-stock, 51½; London and South African, 22; London and South-Western, 22; London and Westminster, 97; Oriental, 56½; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 11½; South-Eastern, 11¼; Union of Australia, 52½; and Union of London, 53½ ex div.

In the market for Colonial Government Securities there has been less activity:—Canada Six per Cents have been done at 93½; Ditto Five per Cents, 82; New Brunswick Six per Cents, 96; New South Wales Five per Cents, 98¼; Queensland Six per Cents, 102; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108½.

Miscellaneous Securities have been in good demand:—Bombay Gas, 5½; British and Irish Magnetic Telegraph, 65½; British Indian Tea, 12¼; Ceylon Company, 9¾; Consolidated Discount, 5; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8¼; Ditto, New, 5½; Crystal Palace, 35½; East India Irrigation and Canal, 5½; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 5¾; English and Australian Copper, 1¼; General Credit, 7½; Hudson's Bay, 16; International Financial, 7½; Joint-stock Discount, 9¾; Land Securities, 3¼; London Financial, 23¾; Ditto, New, 23¾; London General Omnibus, 3¼; National Discount, 15½; Ottoman Financial, 9; Peninsular and Oriental Steam, 81½; Royal Mail Steam, 96½; Scottish Australian Investment, 128.

The Railway Share Market has continued very inactive, but no change of importance has taken place in prices. The dividend of the Metropolitan is at the rate of 7, and of the London and North-Western 7½, per cent per annum. The following are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Great Eastern, 46¾; Great Northern, A Stock, 155; Great Western, 81; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 116¼; London, Chatham, and Dover, 37; London and North-Western, 122; London and South-Western, 98½; Metropolitan, 128¾; Midland, 138¾; North-Eastern—Leeds, 71¼; Ditto, York, 103¾; North Staffordshire, 79¾; South Eastern, 87¾.

British Possessions.—Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 101; Eastern Bengal, 100¾; East Indian, 101; Great Indian Peninsula, 101; Great Southern of India, 99; Great Western of Canada, 8¾; Madras Five per Cent, 100; Scinde—Delhi, 99¾.

Foreign.—Bahia and San Francisco, 16; Belgian Eastern Junction, 1¾; Great Luxembourg, 12¾; Imperial Mexican, 3¾; San Paulo, 17¾; South Austrian and Lombardo-Venetian, 21¼.

The following dividends have been announced this week:—English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered Bank, at the rate of 6; East London, 5; Eastern Exchange, 5; National of Liverpool, 10; National Provincial Marine Insurance, 6; Maritime Insurance, 6; Oriental Financial Association, 8; and Joint-stock Discount, 6 per cent per annum.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending Jan. 25 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

A decrease of circulation of	£609,054	An increase of bullion of	£148,988
An increase of public deposits of	650,185	A decrease of rest of	3,876
A decrease of other deposits of	101,082	An increase of reserve of	713,673
A decrease of securities of	215,815

The total circulation is £20,614,794. Public deposits amount to £1,836,799; and private deposits to £14,553,933. Securities are £20,173,458; and the stock of bullion is £14,317,215.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Jan. 23.—To-day's market was but scantily supplied with English wheat, and the demand for all kinds ruled steady, at full quotations. Fine foreign wheats commanded quite previous rates; but inferior parcels were a dull inquiry. Floating cargoes of grain were inactive, at about stationary prices. Malting barley was quite as dear as last week. Grinding and distilling sorts were heavy. Malt was in good supply and steady request, on former terms. Oats moved off somewhat freely, at late rates. Beans and peas, however, were very dull, at the late decline in value. Both English and foreign flour ruled steady.

Jan. 25.—Fine wheat, barley, and oats were in steady request, at full quotations. Otherwise, the trade was in a sluggish state, at Monday's currency.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 36s. to 41s.; ditto, white, 40s. to 46s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 36s. to 40s.; rye, 25s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 24s. to 35s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; Chevalier, 60s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 18s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 20s. to 25s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 20s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 22s.; tick beans, 30s. to 34s.; grey peas, 31s. to 34s.; maple, 34s. to 36s.; white, 36s. to 40s.; boilers, 37s. to 40s. per quarter. Town-made flour, 37s. to 40s.; households, 32s. to 33s.; country marks, 27s. to 33s. per 280 lb.; American, 19s. to 25s. per barrel; French, 30s. to 32s. per sack.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 490; barley, 1770; malt, 1530; oats, 3310; flour, 150. Foreign: Wheat, 550; barley, 920; oats, 21,190; flour, 770 barrels.

Seeds.—Clover seed is selling at very high rates, and most other seeds are steady in price. The demand for cakes is by no means active.

Linseed, English, sowing, 58s. to 61s.; Calcutta, 59s. to 60s.; hempseed, 42s. to 46s. per quarter; coriander, 18s. to 22s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 9s. to 10s.; white ditto, 9s. 6d. to 10s.; tares, 8s. 0d. to 9s. 0d. per bushel; English rapeseed, 76s. to 80s. per quarter. Linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 5s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 11s.; rape cakes, £5 5s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 50s. to 56s. per quarter; red clover seed, 80s. to 118s.; white ditto, 60s. to 80s. per cwt.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 38s. 10d.; barley, 28s. 9d.; oats, 19s. 1d.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 78,214; barley, 73,753; oats, 9855 quarters.

Tea.—There is about an average business doing in most kinds, at full prices. The supply on offer is very large.

Sugar.—Nearly all raw qualities are in improved request, and the quotations are well supported. The stock amounts to 108,459 tons, against 75,875 tons last year. Refined goods are inactive, at 43s. per cwt. for common brown lumps.

Coffee.—We have no change to notice in the value of any kind. The market, however, may be considered steady. Stock, 11,359 tons, against 11,421 tons in 1864.

Rice.—Selected qualities are in demand, at full quotations; but inferior kinds rule heavy. The stock amounts to 49,123 tons, against 51,414 tons last year.

Provisions.—There is only a limited inquiry for Irish butter, at about last week's currency. Foreign parcels are firm, at 128s. to 130s. per cwt. for the best Dutch. Bacon sells slowly, at 59s. to 61s. per cwt. for Waterford on board. In hams next to nothing is doing; but lard is firm in price. Other provisions rule about stationary.

Tallow.—The demand is less active, yet P.Y.C., on the spot, is worth 41s. 6d. per cwt. Stock, 53,229 casks, against 66,221 ditto last year. Rough fat, 2s. 2d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil moves off slowly, at £32 15s. per ton on the spot. Rape is quoted at £42 to £45 10s.; coconnut, £37 10s. to £39; and fine palm, £36. French turpentine, 63s. per cwt.

Spirits.—Rum sells steadily, at late rates. Brandy and grain spirits support previous quotations.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £1 1s. to £5 10s.; clover, £5 5s. to £6 10s.; and straw, £1 8s. to £1 12s. per load.

Coals.—Hetton, 19s.; Haugh Hall, 17s. 6d.; South Kelloe, 17s. 6d.; Hasting's Hartley, 16s. 9d.; Walker Primrose, 13s. 9d. per ton.

Hops.—Fine samples sell steadily, at very full prices; otherwise, the trade is in a sluggish state.

Wool.—English qualities are firm, but foreign and colonial parcels are a dull inquiry.

Potatoes.—The supplies are moderate and the demand is steady, at from 50s. to 130s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market (Thursday, Jan. 26).—The supply of beasts in our market to-day was moderate, and in fair average condition. Most breeds were in request, at Monday's currency. The best Scots sold at 5s. 6d. per 8 lb. With sheep we were scantily supplied. On the whole, the mutton trade was steady, at full prices. Downs and half-breds realised 5s. 10d. to 6s. per 8 lb. The show of calves was limited, and the veal trade ruled inactive, on former terms—viz., from 4s. 4d. to 5s. 6d. per 8 lb. Pigs commanded very little attention, at from 3s. 4d. to 4s. 6d. per 8 lb.; whilst milch cows were very dull.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; prime large oxen, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 4d. to 5s. 6d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 8d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 10d. to 5s. 2d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 4d. to 5s. 8d.; prime Southdown ditto, 5s. 10d. to 6s. 0d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 0d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 6d.; large hogs, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 10d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 6d.; suckling calves, 16s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 26s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 1060; cows, 120; sheep, 2040; calves, 180; pigs, 312. Foreign: Beasts, 190; sheep, 440; calves, 170.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 0d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 8d. to 4s. 10d.; veal, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 10d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 20.

BANKRUPTS.

J. HIRSBRUNNER, Sudeley-street, Islington, general dealer.—G. ROLESTON, Deptford, painter.—R. DYE, Alpheton, Suffolk, farmer.—W. BANKS, Exeter-street, Paddington.—M. CUNNINGHAM, Kentish Town-road, oilman.—T. HERBERT, King-street, Tower-hill, general dealer.—G. ROLFE, Leather-lane, Holborn, cheesemonger.—J. S. TRIPP, Kensington Park-terrace, banker.—G. BARTON, Lower Clapton, carman.—J. FANCOURT, Patriot-square, Cambridge-heath-road, bricklayer.—T. BARTLETT, Church-path, Hackney, plumber.—J. J. TAYLOR, Deptford New Town, shoemaker.—D. PHILIPP, Englefield-road North, Islington, clerk.—G. G. SWIFT, Clarendon-road, Notting-hill, butcher.—C. JAY, New Inn, Strand, attorney.—V. L. SEAR, Ramsgate, auctioneer.—S. FOSTER and H. KING, Regent-street, music publishers.—R. BOUCHER, Chadwell-street, Clerkenwell, and Dun-ter-court, Mincing-lane, clerk.—T. BARTHOLOMEW, Woolwich, china-dealer.—G. BAXTER, Northampton-square, Clerkenwell, patentee of printing in water colours.—W. J. F. PALOWKAR, Acton-street, Gray's-inn-road, solicitor's clerk.—E. WOODS, St. Martin's-court, St. Martin's-lane, and Great Marylebone-street, lamp and oil dealer.—G. CARR, Chamber-street, Whitechapel, gun manufacturer.—H. CARTER, Moore Park-terrace, Fulham, surgeon.—H. TRUCKLE, Freemantle, Southampton, builder.—E. TICHENER, Chichester, attorney.—E. COOPER, Leeds, woollen merchant.—T. JENNINGS, Swansea, Glamorganshire, grocer.—J. FOX, Tregedna.—A. HIGHMORE, Yeovil, Somersetshire, grocer and innkeeper.—C. RUTH, jun., Aveton Gifford, builder.—J. FRANKENSTEIN, Falmouth, Cornwall, draper.—S. MITCHELL, Middlesborough, provision-dealer.—R. HARGREAVES, Halifax, grocer and tea-dealer.—S. J. BIRCH, Kingston-on-Hull, hair-seating manufacturer.—J. KNOTT, Denton, hatter.—J. REDFEARN, Liverpool, glass bottle manufacturer.—J. CURLENDER, Liverpool, tobacconist.—A. BAINBRIDGE, Everton, licensed victualler.—R. SLADEN, Lower Dewhirst, farmer.—I. DEAVILLE, Stockport, cotton-waste dealer.—G. PAYNE, Birmingham.—M. LINTINE, Birmingham.—W. CROPPER, Rochdale, builder.—J. FEARN, jun., Sheffield, shopkeeper.—H. LEGGETT, Worlington, blacksmith.—D. DELF, Denton, wheelwright.—G. SKINNER, Hastings, linendraper.—S. STANFORD, Wolverhampton, horsedealer.—J. BLAKEMORE, Wolverhampton, shoe manufacturer.—W. DAVIS, sen., Kingswinford, cooper.—T. BLAKEMORE, Wolverhampton, tailor and draper.—J. BRYAN, Leicester, commission agent.—S. E. WELLS and H. HANCOCK, Leicester, photographers.—R. BINGHAM, Willoughton.—E. HOYLAND, Thornhill, moulder.—W. WATERTON, Swinton, blacksmith.—W. BEVERLEY, South Creake, carpenter.—J. ANDREWS, Manafon, butcher.—M. CLOUGH, Little Bolton, iron turner.—H. SCOTT, Whitehaven, cabinetmaker.—C. BOSTOCK, Stoke-on-Trent.—J. DEWHURST, Southport, butcher.—J. WARD, Northampton, hairdresser.—W. HAYES, Beddington, Nottinghamshire, butcher.—R. HENVILLE, Emily Wodehouse, clerk in holy orders.—W. BINGE, West Retford, miller.—H. E. NEIGHBOUR, Penarth, accountant.—H. ALLEN, Brighton, lodging-house keeper.—R. STEPHENSON, Alkborough, shoemaker.—J. WHILE, Merthyr Tydfil, brickmaker.—E. HOLLINGS, Middlesborough, grocer.—T. HUTIN, Warminster, carrier.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

J. ALISON, Dalkeith, flesher.—C. DURWARD, Lumphanan, Aberdeenshire.—G. M. RITCHIE, Edinburgh, ale and porter merchant.—W. REID and CO., Glasgow, bleachers.—R. HUTCHISON, Glasgow, oil merchant.—Rev. R. D. DUNCAN, Edinburgh.—W. MIDDLEMAS, Hawick, grocer.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 24.

BANKRUPTCIES ANNULLED.

R. A. DENNY, Cheltenham.—E. BROOKS and S. LOMAX, Tottington, Lancashire, manufacturers.—N. RAMSDEN, Bristol, oil manufacturer.

BANKRUPTS.

A. COLLINGRIDGE, City, commission agent.—W. COHEN, Aldgate, fruit salesman.—T. FRANK, Rood-lane, colonial broker.—G. WEBB, Esmond-road, trimming manufacturer.—I. BARBER, Whitechapel-road, fruiterer.—J. HOOK, Bow, upholsterer's tool dealer.—J. A. KNIGHT, Symond's-inn.—J. B. CRAFTER, Brydges-street, watchmaker.—A. DEANE, Westminster, builder.—R. BROWN, Wapping, furniture-broker.—E. HERBERT, Shoreditch, licensed victualler.—J. FLEMING, Dalston, bricklayer.—E. WRIGHT, Holloway, carpenter.—D. AMIS, Pentonville, stationer.—W. STAPLETON, Manchester-road, mastmaker.—G. STIMSON, Mile-end, butcher.—J. R. PARR, Brompton, bootmaker.—C. W. STANDISH, King's-road, Chelsea, wireworker.—O. OSTLER, Kingston-on-Hull, tailor.—J. MEMBREY, Shoreditch, licensed victualler.—J. OLLEY, Lower Norwood, contractor.—J. W. BARNES, Milton-street, Dorset-square, builder.—J. D. CHAPMAN, Charing-cross, commission agent.—S. R. GEORGE, Hunter-street, Brunswick-square, woollen merchant.—H. L. GINTHERR, Hackney, commission agent.—A. T. HILL, Islington, hairdresser.—W. KINGDON, Chelsea.—R. ROFE, Caledonian-road, baker.—G. JONES, Rotherhithe, general dealer.—H. W. WATSON, Clapham-road, musician.—H. CARTER, Stratford, contractor.—S. F. RAYNER, Maldon, coachbuilder.—J. DAVALL, Lower Leyton.—J. CUNNINGHAM, Southend.—W. GANDER, Lower Beeding, farmer.—T. MELLISH, jun., Brighton, builder.—W. HATCH, Brighton, dealer in boots.—B. BROOK, Swiland.—M. RIX, Panxworth, cooper.—J. MOORE, Forncett St. Peter, baker.—G. T. JENKINS, Woolhampton, publican.—G. SMART, Portrea, millwright.—H. COWLIN, Bristol, builder.—W. L. ARTHUR, Purbrook, clerk in holy orders.—H. GOODSON, Weston Turvil, haydealer.—J. LAREY, Princes Risborough, haydealer.—A. HONEGGER, Birmingham, wine merchant.—J. KEATES, Cheadle, tailor.—J. SMITH, Coventry, grocer.—A. HAYNES, Great Malvern, livery-stable keeper.—J. MOON, Bristol, soap manufacturer.—H. SHAW, Huddersfield, cigar-dealer.—J. FOLLAND, Great Torrington, bootmaker.—F. R. BUDD, Exeter, major in the army.—R. JOHNSON, jun., Middlesborough, ironmonger.—P. CARR, Halifax, woollen merchant.—J. DRAPER, Brigg, coaldealer.—J. SENESCALL, Skegness, grocer.—R. INMAN, Thetford, grocer.—W. THOMPSON, Tranmere, horsedealer.—R. M'ALLISTER, Liverpool, builder.—T. FISHER, Barrow-in-Furness, grocer.—J. SLACK, Sheffield, warehouseman.—R. BRUMWELL, Preston, draper.—H. WESTON, Newcastle-on-Tyne.—W. A. NEWTON, Newcastle-on-Tyne, confectioner.—G. GREENWOOD, Northmeols.—T. HAWKSLEY, Sheffield, butcher.—S. BARROW, Levenshulme, warehouseman.—J. KITCHEN, Tadcaster, blacksmith.—J. ELLIOTT, Torquay, builder.—J. HORROCKS, Spennymoor.—W. SUTCLIFFE, Southport.—J. COHEN, Manchester.—C. FIRTH, Hoyland Nether, painter.—W. HUGHES, Michaelchurch Exley, farmer.—W. EVANS, Weobley, provision-dealer.—J. SHAW, Thorngumbald, farmer.—G. CADMAN, Bosley, farmer.—E. WILCOX, Cucklington, teadealer.—C. MOORE, Rochester, shoemaker.—A. FRASER, Thornaby.—J. GILBERTSON, West Derby, coaldealer.—G. CLEE, Birmingham, hairdresser.—T. PENDLETON, New Radford, trimmer.—J. OGDEN, Manchester, wastedealer.—G. TILLSON, Ruskington, miller.—F. ROGERS, Boston, dealer in games.—B. D. BEAL, Kensington, musical instrument maker.—J. CARTER, Salford.

SCOTCH SEQUESTRATIONS.

A. DONLEY, Glasgow, pastrycook.—C. GIB, Brechin.—M. CRAIG, Glasgow, commission agent.

PARIS FASHIONS FOR FEBRUARY.

THE Parisian season is just now at its height. Following the example set by the Court, the Ministers and the nobility are giving a series of grand soirées which call forth all the resources of the most renowned modistes of the gay capital. Their task is not easy, for there is no mode absolutely de rigueur, unless it be Innovation, and each dressmaker seizes upon the slightest disposition of her fair clients to introduce a change of some sort, merely for the sake of variety. To deviate somewhat from the requirements of Fashion, and yet to keep within her strict limits, is the highest triumph of the Parisian modiste.

For full dress, the 1865 season is characterised by a marked preference, as to colour, for black, violet, and black and white robes. The femmes élégantes have adopted the black and white with such tenacity, that the combination may be expected to take its run through all the capitals that look towards Paris for the indication of its choice. Such toilets, although a little sombre, are refreshing after the extreme richness of colour which predominated during the last year, when glaring attraction was often obtained at the sacrifice of good taste.

Passementerie ornaments have resumed their importance for the trimmings of dresses, in the ornamentation of which an excessive luxury is once more displayed. In many instances it is the most costly portion of the toilet; and where six guineas would be considered a dear price for the material of a dress, no complaint is made at the outlay of double that amount for a splendid decoration in passementerie. It must be confessed that such toilets, which require to be prepared with unimpeachable taste and to be worn with grace, are the ne plus ultra of Parisian achievements in the way of dress.

The present style of bonnets and head-dresses simplifies their description. The fanchon is the taste of the day, and is so small as to appear altogether diminutive in the presence of a lady's ordinary cap. A small piece of velvet or of lace, a few flowers, a bird, an eagle's or a crow's feather, or a portion of a peacock's plumage, furnish the elements out of which the slight Parisian chapeau is created. For grand toilette, velvet and lace bonnets, ornamented with feathers, are mostly worn.

THE ILLUSTRATIONS.

Fig. 1. Carriage Dress.—The principal feature of this toilet is the houppelande, or long pelisse, which may also be worn at home as a robe de chambre. It is usually of light-coloured cloth, lined with wadding. The under skirt may be either of the same or of a different colour, but the material employed should be moire or taffety. The narrow collar or pelerine is trimmed with worsted or chenille fringe. The fanchon of our Illustration is composed of grey velvet, with a narrow white blonde and black lace trimming.

Fig. 2. Dress for a Soirée.—Robe of pearl-grey satin, ornamented round the skirt with two bands of passementerie; the upper jupe is of black tulle spotted, to appearance, by black jet beads placed upon the satin skirt. The tulle jupe is drawn up on one side by a long chain of large jet beads disposed in the manner shown in our Engraving. The berthe is in black and white lace and blonde. The head-dress is the coiffure grecque, with a series of amber beads placed at regular distances in the netting.

Fig. 3. Walking Dress.—This dress is in dark blue moire antique, and is fastened in front with large buttons, either gilt, silvered, or in mother-of-pearl: the trimming consists of black dentated velvet edged with a narrow guipure. The velvet ornamentation may be advantageously replaced by satin, if preferred. The chapeau is a velvet fanchon ornamented with a bird and a rose.

THE BHOOTAN EXPEDITION IN THE DOOARS.

THE expedition from the Bengal presidency against Bhootan is organised in two columns; one, under the command of Brigadier-General Mulcaster, taking the road through Lower Assam and along the River Brahmapootra in a north-easterly direction, to attack the fortress of Devangiri; while the other, the left column, under Brigadier-General Dunsford, moving directly northward, has already captured the stronghold of Dalimkote. We have been favoured by Captain J. R. Oliver, R.A., one of the officers in Brigadier Dunsford's part of the army, with a sketch taken by himself at the frontier station of Julpigoree, on the 22nd of November, when their camp was pitched at that place, immediately before their advance upon Dalimkote. Julpigoree is situated at the south-west corner of the district called the Dooars, or Passes, of Bhootan, which was annexed to the British dominions some years ago. It commands a fine view of the highest part of the Himalaya range of mountains, distant in a straight line about one hundred miles. The conical, snowy peak shown on the left hand in our Engraving is the summit of Gourisankur, or Mount Everest, the highest known peak in the world; that on the right hand is Kinchinjunga, which ranks third. Some of the commissariat elephants are seen bathing in the river, and two or three of the tents, not far from its bank, also mark the presence of the military. We learn by the most recent news from India that a detachment of 400 infantry, with the artillery, went up against Dalimkote, on the 6th of December, by a narrow winding road, where they were exposed to showers of arrows and stones, thrown by the Bhooteas with great force and precision. The column got close up to the fort without any serious loss, M'Gregor, the Brigade Major, and Loughnan, of the 18th Native Infantry, being the only wounded; but then there stood a fort on a hill about 200 ft. high, surrounded by a thick wall of about 20 ft. elevation. The rest of the story is told in an officer's letter:—

"We soon brought our small mortars into position, and were getting on very well with the work, throwing shells and carcasses into the fort at about a couple of hundred yards' range, when, from a fuse being cut too short, the shell burst in the muzzle of the mortar, and exploded a quantity of powder which poor Griffin was weighing out for the charges; and in an instant three officers, Griffin, Anderson, and Walker, and some artillerymen close by, were blown to atoms. By this calamity the force lost the services of three most excellent officers and seven men, and also of one of their mortars, which became utterly unserviceable. With great difficulty, and after some delay, an Armstrong gun was brought up the hill, and soon placed in position, and brought to play upon the confronting bastion, and, with a cannon, set fire to the buildings inside the fort. This the General thought an auspicious signal for an assault, and having got the scaling-ladders up, the storming party made a rush, and carried the place at once, the Bhooteas bolting out on the opposite side. Dalimkote is a feacrully strong place, and was not taken without several casualties, the General having had several men shot close to his side, and not a few narrow escapes. Our work is not completed yet, as we have one more fort to take—that of Dhurm Sing, said to be nearly as strong as this, but not in such a commanding and difficult position. Collins, of the Engineers, is wounded severely, both his legs having been broken by the explosion; Macgregor, the General's Brigade Major, slightly wounded on the scalp by a gunshot; and Loughnan, of the 18th Native Infantry, wounded by an arrow through the right arm. We have, besides, eight men killed and fifty-six wounded. We were at it from ten in the morning until six in the evening; and you may imagine that we were not sorry when the affair was over and the fort in our possession. We leave a garrison to hold this fort, and to-morrow or next day go on with our work."

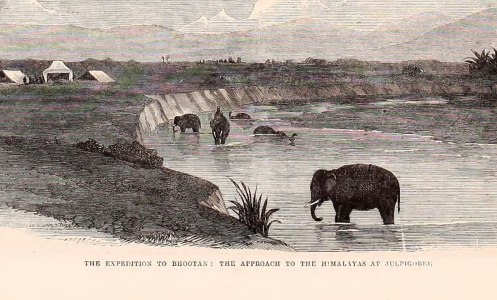
THE LATE DR. BAIKIE, THE AFRICAN TRAVELLER.

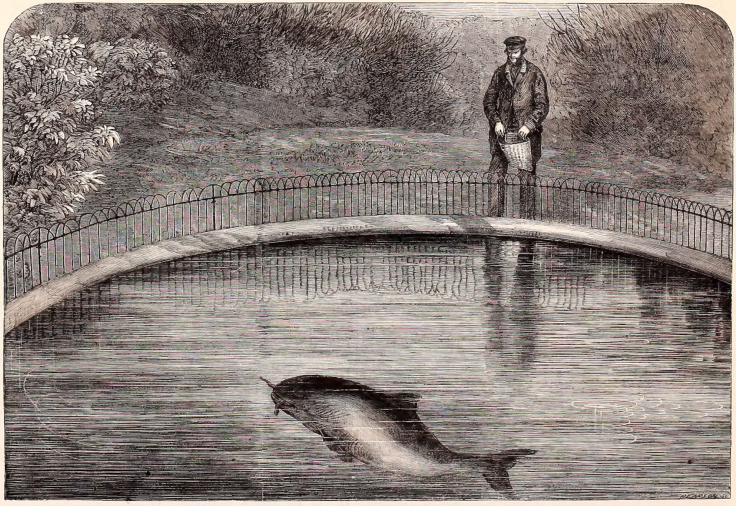


THE last mail from the west coast of Africa brought news of the death of Dr. W. B. Baikie, R.N., who was employed by the Foreign Office as a special envoy to the chiefs of the negro tribes in the country watered by the River Niger, with a view to persuade them to enter into commercial dealings with the English. He went out about two years ago in the steamer Pleiad, but that vessel was unfortunately lost in passing through the rapids of the Niger. Dr. Baikie, however, was not discouraged by the accident, and, saving what he could from the wreck, set himself down amongst the wild Africans, and explored the country in every direction. In 1860, for some reason or other, the Foreign Office thought fit to recal the expedition; but, fortunately, Dr. Baikie had already entered so far into binding arrangements with the African chiefs and people that he deemed it prudent to await further orders ere he quitted his post. "My supplies being limited," he writes from Lukoja, September, 1861, "and my horses having all died, I was prevented from making any lengthened journey; but, as I could not be idle, I tried to take advantage of a seeming favourable state of affairs, and accordingly made a settlement at this spot (Lukoja). The King of Nupe, the most powerful next to the Sultan of Sokoto, being desirous of seeing a market for European produce here, entered into relations with us, and undertook to open various roads for the passage of caravans, traders and canoes to this place, which promise has been faithfully performed: I, on my part, giving him to understand that it was the desire of her Majesty's Government to have a trading station here. I have started a regular market here, and have established the recognition of Sunday as a non-trading day, and the exclusion of slaves from our market. Already traders come to us from Kabbi, Kano, and other parts of Hausa; and we hope, ere long, to see regular caravans with ivory and other produce. The step I am taking is not lightly adopted. After a prolonged absence from England, to stay another season here without any Europeans, with only a faint prospect of speedy communication, and after all my experience of hunger and difficulty last year, is by no means an inviting prospect. But what I look to is the securing for England a commanding position in Central Africa, and the necessity of making a commencement." These representations had their due effect upon the British Government, and the continuance of Dr. Baikie's mission was resolved upon. The numerous extracts from his despatches published in the bluebooks, and his papers in the Transactions of various scientific societies, show the energy he developed in so trying a climate, and the great range of his observations. He was ultimately enabled to establish satisfactory intercourse with all the native chiefs around his settlement. In October, 1863, he expressed his wish to return home to see his aged father, from whom he had been absent seven years; and on June 26, 1864, the Foreign Office relieved him, hoping that he would return to England last year. It was decreed otherwise. The great privations he had undergone during his illgoosed stay in one of the most unhealthy parts of the world were to have so far weakened his constitution that he succumbed, after a short attack of fever and dysentery, at Sierra Leone, on the 30th of November last, when on his way homewards. The portrait we have engraved is from a photograph by Messrs. Maull and Polyblank.

THE LATE DR. W. B. BAIKIE, THE AFRICAN TRAVELLER.

THE PORPOISE IN THE ZOOLOGICAL GARDENS.

MR. FRANK BUCKLAND, whose repeated efforts to introduce a live porpoise into the gardens of the Zoological Society, in Regent's Park, have been related by himself in the amusing letters which he has occasionally addressed to the Times, lately announced that the superintendent of the gardens, Mr. A. Bartlett, had succeeded in procuring one of those animals, which has now been three weeks in its new abode, and still enjoys perfect health and vigour. Our Illustration represents the porpoise in his pond. This creature, phocæna communis, whose English name, anciently written "porpesse," is a corruption of the Italian porco pesce, or "pig-fish," belongs to the order of cetaceans, or whales, and is not properly a fish, but a warm-blooded animal, breathing through its lungs, bringing forth its young alive, and suckling them at its breast, like the tribes of quadrupeds and mankind. Shoals of porpoises are often seen along the coasts of England and Ireland, and it is recorded that they have sometimes come up the Thames with the tide above London



THE EXPEDITION TO BHOOTAN: THE APPROACH TO THE HIMALAYAS AT JULPIGOREE

PARIS FASHIONS FOR FEBRUARY.—SEE PAGE 87.

Bridge. The individual now in the Zoological Gardens was caught in a spiral-net at Deal, and conveyed to London on the 29th of December. It was found on former occasions that the journey by land made the porpoise so ill as to cause his death soon after his arrival in the gardens; and in this case, also, the creature refused to eat for several days, rolling lazily along the side of the pond; but on the eleventh day it began to eat some sprats which, tied to thin and easily-broken string, were gently made to wabble about in front of its nose by means of a jack-spinning rod. It now, however, eats 9 lb. of sprats and 5 lb. of eels every day, and can devour as much as two fresh herrings and a whiting for breakfast. It will feed in the presence of visitors, and has been observed to seize the fish by the middle and then jerk it down head foremost. The live eels, however, show the porpoise excellent sport. His or her name (for we do not know the sex) is "Ceta." It is highly interesting to see the quiet and velvet-like motion with which our new friend dives about in his pond, occasionally showing his snow-white sides as he turns to catch a fugitive and much-frightened eel. It seems now pretty certain that the porpoise will do well in the gardens; and, as the first living cetacean ever seen in captivity in London, it is an interesting novelty, though, to most dwellers by the seaside, a familiar object.

THE PORPOISE IN THE ZOOLOGICAL SOCIETY'S GARDENS, REGENT'S PARK.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman." 1 vol.
BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. C. M. BELLEW. Second Edition, revised. 3 vols.
THE HAMMONDS OF HOLY CROSS. By LADY BLAKE.
BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANNAGH. Author of "Nathalie," &c. 3 vols. [Feb. 3.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Royal 8vo, with numerous beautiful Coloured Illustrations,

A JOURNEY from LONDON to PERSEPOLIS, including Wanderings in Daghestan, Georgia, Armenia, Kurdistan, Mesopotamia, and Persia. By J. USSHER. HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Post 8vo, cloth, price 3s. 6d.,

THE LOGIC OF QUALITY APART FROM QUANTITY: A System of Logic founded on that of the late Professor Boole.

By W. STANLEY SEVONS, M.A.

"This little book is original and ingenious."—Spectator.

"Mr. Sevons adopts to a certain extent Mr. Boole's symbols; but he professes to oppose and abandon much of the calculus, and also to base his whole system on the metaphysical side of logic, as it has been called—that is to say, his terms are notions compounded of qualities, instead of genera formed by cumulation of species. We should by all means desire that those who attend to the logical controversies of our day should pay attention to a work of much talent and abounding in acute remarks."—Athenæum.

London: EDWARD STANFORD, 6, Charing-cross, S.W.

THE BEST OF ALL THE GARDEN ANNUALS.
Just published, price One Shilling (seventh year of publication),

THE GARDEN ORACLE and FLORICULTURAL YEAR-BOOK for 1865. Edited by SHIRLEY HIBBERD, Esq., F.R.H.S., Editor of "The Gardener's Weekly Magazine."

London: GROOMBRIDGE and SONS, 5, Paternoster-row, E.C.

Just published (Chapman and Hall), crown 8vo, gilt edges, price 5s.,

THE BOOK OF PERFUMES. By EUGENE RIMMEL, with above 250 Illustrations.

"One of the curiosities of the season."—Morning Post.

"Beautifully got up, and most interesting."—United Service Gazette.

"Not only an elegant, but a really instructive volume."—Observer.

To be had of all Booksellers; or of the Author, 96, Strand; 128, Regent-street; and 24, Cornhill London.

Price 1s., Monthly,

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—Contents of No. 2, Vol. 1., New Series (FEBRUARY):—Gilmour's Ward. Chaps. V. to IX.—A Chat with Dulcy. Chaps. IV., V., and VI.—Royal Kidnapping. (Poetry.)—Familiar Lines. "A Good Time Coming." With full-page illustration.—The Little Grey Cat in the Garret; or, The Miser's Legacy. By the Author of "The Kiddle-a-Wink." Part 1.: The Old House. Chaps. I., II.—Saint Valentine and Saint Martin.—A History of Lace. Illustrated.—The Fashions. Illustrated.—The Englishwoman's Conversazione.—La Mode.—Operas and Musical Entertainments.—"Fer Valour." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. III., IV.—Madame's Pilgrimage. An Aged Lady's Story.—Baby.—The Countess's Coiffure. By a New Author. In Fifteen Brief but Emotional Chapters. Chaps. VI. to X.—Our Paris News-Letter.—Answers to Correspondents.—Mildred's Wedding. Pages 401 to 416.

FASHIONS AND NEEDLEWORK.—A Sheet of Designs, containing information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework. The full-sized Patterns for cutting out two pretty Dress Sleeves. A large prettily-coloured Fashion Plate. A Coloured Plate of Ladies' Coiffures and Fashionable Hats. An engraved steel Fashion Plate. A magnificent Banner-Screen Pattern, printed in colours. A cut-out tissue Pattern for a Velvet Jacket. Illustrations of a morning dress—couvrette in crochet and embroidered linen—the medallion collar and sleeve—two morning cuffs—crochet pelerine and cuff in imitation of ermine—scarlet knitted muff and cape to correspond—two cravat ends—embroidered end for Cashmere scarf—ball dress in silk, covered with puffed tulle—four evening coiffures—young lady's velvet hat—fashionable bonnet—maize-coloured crape bonnet—blue velvet bonnet, embroidered with jet stars—crochet carriage rug, or railway wrapper, four illustrations—braided slipper, ornamented with beads—the Altesse ceinture, &c. A Specimen Number sent post-free for twelve stamps.

London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

Just published, the JANUARY PART of LA MODE ILLUSTRÉE, Journal de la Famille; containing annually more than 1000 Illustrations, 52 Coloured Plates, and Patterns, full working size, representing the newest Fashions in Dresses, Fancy-work, Needlework, Embroidery, Tapestry, Crochet, File and Pearlwork, &c., together with a most amusing and entertaining literary portion. Price 2s. 6d. Quarterly subscription, 7s. 6d.

ASHER and CO., 13, Bedford-street, W.C.

ASHER and CO., Foreign Booksellers and Publishers, 13, Bedford-street, Covent-garden, London, W.C., import all Continental Books and Newspapers at the Continental prices. The leading publications kept in stock.

ASHER and CO.'S MONTHLY LIST of FOREIGN LITERATURE.
Now ready, Nos. I. and II., gratis.

THE PALL-MALL GAZETTE.
An Evening Newspaper and Review.

It is difficult to describe the plan of an enterprise like the "Pall-Mall Gazette" without seeming to boast, or to decry the efforts of others. But we are unwilling to lose the advantage of a few words of explanation, and we therefore trust the candour of the reader for a just interpretation of our meaning.

The "Pall-Mall Gazette" will contain all the news proper to an evening journal. But, addressed as it will be to educated men and women, the space of the paper will not be occupied by trifling chronicles nor by that excess of words which adds nothing to the interest of newspaper records while it destroys their significance. Literary considerations alone would determine us to have our news reports written in plain English; but, beyond these, there is the fact that the lessons to be found in many an accident of human life or social polity are lost in the turgid language in which they are commonly narrated.

Events made known by the morning papers may be discussed in the "Pall-Mall Gazette" of the same day, but they will not be reported anew. Trustworthy advices from the Money Market will be included in the news of the day.

The rest of the paper (by far the greater part) will be made up of original articles upon the many things which engage the thoughts, or employ the energies, or amuse the leisure of mankind. Public affairs, literature, the arts, and all the influences which strengthen or dissipate society will be discussed by men whose independence and authority are equally unquestionable, and who are accustomed to regard the public expression of opinion as a serious thing. This is the chief aim of the "Pall-Mall Gazette:" to bring into Daily Journalism that full measure of thought and culture, which is now found only in a few reviews.

At the same time we by no means intend to make the Paper pedantic or solemn. Humour is too powerful, as well as too pleasant, to be left out of the design; which will lose none of the advantages of occasional trifling. If a thing can be said better in verse than in prose, it will be said in verse. Epigram, but not spite; burlesque, but not vulgarity; will be readily admitted into its columns; and since a joke is often as illustrative as an argument, good jokes will be welcome too.

It will be understood that this Advertisement is rather a proclamation of idea and of effort than of promise. But the proclamation is not made before a large number of able writers have accepted the idea, and pledged themselves to the effort.

Office of the "Pall-Mall Gazette,"
14, Salisbury-street, Strand, W.C.

THE PALL-MALL GAZETTE, an Evening Newspaper and Review, will APPEAR on TUESDAY, FEB. 7.
Price Twopence.

Tenth Thousand, price 2s. 6d., post-free, 32 stamps,

HUNT on the SKIN; a Guide to the Treatment and Prevention of Diseases of the Skin and Hair, with Cases. By THOS. HUNT, F.R.C.S., Surgeon to the Dispensary for Diseases of the Skin, 21A, Charlotte-st., Fitzroy-sq. "Mr. Hunt has transferred these diseases from the incurable class to the curable."—Lancet.—London: T. RICHARDS, 37, Gt. Queen-st., W.C.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,

ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

Just published, 2d., sent by the Author for 3 Stamps,

FACIAL IMPERFECTIONS, AND THEIR AMELIORATION by the use of Cosmetics and appliances of modern invention. By ALEX. ROSS, 248, High Holborn, London.

RIMMEL'S NEW PERFUMED VALENTINES.—The Valentine of the Language of Flowers; the Sachet Valentine, the Photographic Valentine, the Mirror Valentine, St. Valentine's Gloves. All 1s. Either sort sent by post for 14 stamps.—96, Strand; 128, Regent-street; and 24, Cornhill, London.

WHAT WILL THIS COST TO PRINT? is a question often occurring to literary men, public characters, and persons of benevolent intentions. An immediate answer to the inquiry may be obtained. A Specimen Book of Types and information for authors sent, on application, by RICHARD BARRETT, 13, Mark-lane, London.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR, for Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. A brilliant, easy, and effective transcription of this beautiful song.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG—"HOME ONCE MORE." Composed by STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This ballad, by the composer of the celebrated "Good-bye at the door," will be equally popular with that decided favourite, as it is both pleasing and attractive.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SACRED SONG, MORNING PRAYER. Composed by E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. The truly beautiful words of this song are here admirably set to music.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece.
DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

GARE! GARE! Grand Galop de Concert. J. VON JOEL. 4s. Cheap Music Library. Yearly Subscriptions, £1 1s. and 10s. 6d. Terms on application.—HARRIS, 33, Rathbone-place, Oxford-street, W.

Admired everywhere. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere.

THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A BENEDICT, most facetiously illustrates the vicissitudes of Admiration, Flirtation, Declaration, Acceptation, Preparation, Celebration, Felicitation, Alteration, Irritation, Altercation, Desperation, and Separation. Post-free, 1s. 6d. The Matrimonial Polka, 1s. 6d.
OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Eight Hundred Years Old. 10th Edition.

MAGDALENA, CEASE THY WEEPING. Sacred Song. By Peter the Venerable. Translated by the Rev. J. A. Ross. Composed by C. G. HAMILTON. In F and A flat. With Latin and English Words.

"The most interesting and beautiful sacred song ever published." Post-free, 1s. 6d.; also as a Pianoforte Piece, 1s. 6d.

London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Fifty-fifth Edition of the much admired Drawing-room Piece,

LA PRIÈRE EXAUCÉE (The Prayer Granted). Reply to "La Prière d'une Vièrge." Par THECLA BADARZEWSKA. Post-free, 1s. 6d.—OETZMANN, 27, Baker-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. Oetzmann's New and Valuable Catalogue of all the most popular Music of every Composer and Publisher, post-free, 6d. OETZMANN and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

HUTCHINGS and ROMER'S (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W., LIST of NEW and POPULAR MUSIC:—

	s.	d.
Swallow, come again (Claribel)	3	0
Gathering Heartsease (Palmer)	3	0
Fishermaiden's Prayer (Gabriel)	3	0
Bard that on his harp expired (Balfe)	3	0
Katey's Letter (Lady Dufferin)	3	0
Shipboy's Letter (Gabriel)	3	0
Robin's Return (Ditto)	3	0
There is a name I never breathe (Balfe)	2	6
Oh! wilt thou be my bride, Kathleen? (Romer)	2	6
Merry Blackbird's Song (Walstein)	3	0
Orphan's Prayer (Sainton-Dolby)	3	0
Lily of St. Goar (Claribel)	3	0
O'er the Meadows (Boyton Smith)	3	0
Thyra, the Fair (Romer)	3	0
Il Folletto—New Pianoforte Galop (Mattei)	4	0
Una notte d'Estate—Nocturne (Mattei)	4	0
Pangi O Cara (Schiller)	4	0
Santa Lucia (Richards)	3	0
Katey's Letter (Richards)	3	0
Die Klage (Vogel)	2	6
Abend Lied (Vogel)	2	6
Dreamland—Nocturne (Gibsone)	3	0
L'Exil Ecossais (Gibsone)	3	0
Le vent caresse ma Lyre (Gibsone)	3	0
Marguerite at her Wheel (Gibsone)	3	0
The Lull of the Waves (Forbes)	3	0
Flowing Tide (Wolff)	3	0
Naiade Song (W. Macfarren)	4	0
Elaine (W. Macfarren)	4	0
Will-o'-the-Wisp (W. Macfarren) (Just ready)	4	0
Love's Young Dream (Kuhe)	4	0

MESSRS. HUTCHINGS and ROMER beg to remind their friends and the public generally that they have removed to 9, CONDUIT-STREET, REGENT-STREET, W.

HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, London.—Pianofortes for sale or hire by Erard, Collard, Broadwood, Kirkman, Hopkinson, Allison, and other makers. The spacious gallery is now open.—Hutchings and Romer (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

THE PARLOUR PIANOFORTE, 25 guineas. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, manufacture these very excellent Pianofortes with metallic plates, registered keyboard, full compass of seven octaves, and every recent improvement, and guarantee them, for tone, touch, and durability, to excel others usually sold at a much higher price. Drawings sent post-free.—Oetzmann and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

MUSICAL-BOX DEPOTS, 32, Ludgate-street, and 56, Cheapside. Nicole's celebrated Musical-boxes, £1 per air. Snuffboxes, 7s. to 10s. per tune. Catalogues of tunes and prices, gratis and post-free, on application to WALES and M'CULLOCH, as above.

MUSICAL BOX DÉPOT for the Sale of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from 54 to 11 and 12, Cornhill, London. A large consignment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

WATCHES.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, WATCHMAKERS, 11 and 12, Cornhill, London (opposite the Bank). First-class Patent Detached Lever Watches, with the latest improvements and maintaining power to continue going whilst being wound, recommended for accuracy and durability.

PRICES OF SILVER WATCHES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	£4	14	6
Ditto, jewelled in four holes and capped	6	6	0
Ditto, the finest quality, jewelled in six holes	8	8	0

Silver Watches, in Hunting Cases, 10s. 6d. extra.

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR LADIES.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watch, with gold dial, jewelled	11	11	0
Ditto, with richly-engraved case	12	12	0
Ditto, with very strong case, and jewelled in four holes	14	14	0

GOLD WATCHES—SIZE FOR GENTLEMEN.

	£	s.	d.
Patent Lever Watches, jewelled, enamel dial, and seconds	10	10	0
Ditto, in stronger case and capped	13	13	0
Ditto, jewelled in six holes, and gold balance	17	17	0

Gold Watches in Hunting Cases, £3 3s. extra.
List of prices with remarks on Watches, gratis and post-free.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

GOLD CHAINS and FINE JEWELLERY.—A very elegant STOCK of GOLD CHAINS, 18s. to 20 gs.; Gentlemen's Albert Chains, 21s. to 18 gs.; Gold Brooches, 20s. to 15 gs.; Gold Bracelets, 55s. to £20; Wedding and Keeper Rings, 10s., 15s., and 20s.; Gem ditto, 12s. 6d. to 20 gs.; Gold Earrings, 12s. 6d. to 5 gs. per pair. Gold Lockets, 10s. to 16 gs. Gold Scarf Pins, 5s. to 10 gs.—FREDC. HAWLEY, Goldsmith, 148, Regent-street. Old Chains, Jewellery, Diamonds, and other Precious Stones purchased or taken in exchange. Jewellery repaired and Diamonds reset. List of Prices free. Shippers supplied.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE, Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street).
Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The People's Printing Press, from 25s. to £4 4s., for Letterpress, Copperplate, or Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

DAY and SON (Limited).—Capital £160,000, in 16,000 Shares of £10 each, 5000 of these Shares, reckoned as fully paid, being taken by the late Proprietors in part of the purchase, and the remaining 11,000 Shares to be now allotted, the late Proprietors also guaranteeing a minimum dividend of 10 per cent for the first three years on the paid-up capital. £1 per Share to be paid on application and £2 on allotment; a second payment of £2 10s. to be made on March 1, 1865, making £5 10s. paid up; and it is not expected that any further call will have to be made, and in any case three months' notice will be given before making any additional call. Shareholders may, however, pay up their shares in full at once, and receive from the date of so doing interest at the rate of 6 per cent, or such higher rate as may be agreed upon by the Directors, upon all sums paid in advance of calls.

DIRECTORS.

Colonel F. B. Ward (late R.A.), Welwyn, Herts, Director of the Hammersmith and City and of the Central Wales Extension Railway Companies.
J. W. Kaye, Esq., 59, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C.
Owen Jones, Esq., 9, Argyll-place, Regent-street, London.
John St. Leger, Esq., Park-hill, Rotheram; and 71, St. James's-place, London.
Mr. William Day, Southside, Tufnell Park, N., Managing Director.

(Other Directors' names will be added shortly.)

BANKERS.—The London and County Bank, 324 and 325, High Holborn, W.C.
SOLICITORS.—Messrs. Lake, Kendall, and Lake, 10, Lincoln's-inn, London.
BROKER.—Edward Haslewood, Esq., Founders'-court, Lothbury.
AUDITOR.—Edward Sandell, Esq., Public Accountant.
MANAGER OF THE PRINTING BUSINESSES.—Mr. Joseph Day.
MANAGER OF THE ARTISTIC PORTION OF THE BUSINESS AND SECRETARY.—Mr. John B. Day.
Places of Business.—4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, Gate-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C.; Twyford's-buildings, W.C.; German Gallery, 168, New Bond-street, W., London.

ABRIDGED PROSPECTUS.

This Company is formed to purchase the recently-erected freehold and long leasehold premises, the extensive plant, machinery, and working stock of the Lithographic, Chromo-Lithographic, Photo-Lithographic, Plate-Printing, and Stationery Businesses, likewise the Copyrights, Publication Plant, and Stock of the well-known firm of Day and Son, Lithographers to the Queen and to H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, for the purpose of carrying on and developing to their fullest extent the various branches of current business already in active operation, which include not only those higher classes of artistic productions which, appealing to the educated and wealthy, keep alive the extended reputation of the establishment, but also the innumerable everyday necessities of bankers, merchants, professional men, and general traders; and of embarking in every collateral branch of industry that can be advantageously entered upon.

The property to be purchased consists of—

Firstly. The freehold and leasehold premises erected within the last ten years especially for these businesses; they are situated in the very centre of London, and in a locality which, from the changes already in progress by railway and other companies, and by the City authorities in Holborn Valley, as well as by the contemplated centralisation of the Law Courts in the immediate neighbourhood, must rapidly improve; and it is but reasonable to believe that in the course of a few years they will assume twice or thrice their present estimated value.

Secondly. The fittings, patents, steam and other machinery, plant, and working stock of the Lithographic, Chromo-Lithographic, Copperplate Printing, and Stationery Businesses, and other incidental arts and processes, together with the business flowing thereto from all classes and from all quarters, as well as from her Majesty's Stationery Office and other Government establishments. It is intended to increase this department of the business by the introduction of kindred pursuits to an extent for which the resources of a private firm would be inadequate, but which cannot fail to be highly remunerative when backed by the capital of a company.

Thirdly. The copyrights, publication stock, and plant of the extensive publishing business, from which source alone in this country, during the last fifteen years, the highest class of illustrated and illuminated works have been issued. During the time named the establishment of Messrs. Day and Son produced and distributed a succession of works which, for extent and excellence, are without a parallel in the history of publishing, either in this or any other country, calling forth the eulogium of the artist, the connoisseur, the public, and the press. The "Times," in a late notice, remarked of some of these works, that they were of such magnitude, importance, and beauty, as to appear to be beyond the scope of private enterprise, and more suited for the unlimited resources of Royal or Imperial establishments. As the Directors find it advantageous, photography and every other profitable branch of the fine arts will be introduced.

At the Exhibitions of 1851 and 1862, at the French Exhibition, at the Dublin, and at the Art-Treasures Exhibition at Manchester, first-class medals were awarded for the various productions of this establishment.

The price to be given to the Messrs. Day for their premises, stock-in-trade, goodwill, &c., is £100,000, of which £50,000 is to be taken in paid-up shares of the Company, and the remainder is to be paid in cash by instalments. This price has been fixed, after a careful valuation of the buildings and trade premises, and of the stock-in-trade, machinery, &c., by competent valuers, and has been certified to the Directors as fair and reasonable. The stock-in-trade has been valued at such sums that the Directors are informed the values affixed are those which, after the regular trading of the Company, could be realised for any remainders on a sale by auction, if properly managed.

The Messrs. Day and Son have been engaged by the Directors for a term of five years, as managers, at moderate salaries, which are to be increased if the dividends exceed 10 per cent; which rate the Messrs. Day guarantee as the minimum for the first three years, believing that a higher rate will very soon be attained. The advantageous nature of this agreement to the shareholders is most evident in the guarantee it is to those who desire a profitable investment with the least conceivable risk, since the large amount of property in the business belonging to the actual managers give them every inducement to devote their best energies and skill to its success; and as the managers have been practically acquainted with and carrying on the business for a long term of years, there is every certainty of large profits being realised.

The Company will at once enter upon the various premises as follows, i.e.:—

Nos. 4, 5, 6, 7, 8, and 9, Gate-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C.;
Twyford's-buildings, Lincoln's-inn-fields, W.C.; and
The German Gallery, 168, New Bond-street, W.;
the latter premises being valuable for the purposes of the public exhibition of any works of art in which the Company may be interested.

No expenses for promotion fees have been or will be incurred.

The business will be taken over by the Company as from Jan. 1, 1865, and the first report of the Directors and declaration of a dividend will take place before or during July, 1865.

If a less number of shares is allotted than is applied for, the money paid on application will be applied as far as it will extend in payment of the £2 payable on allotment of the shares actually allotted, and of the further call of £2 10s., the balance (if any) being repaid to the applicant. If no allotment is made the money will be returned in full.

Prospectuses and forms of application for shares can be obtained at the offices of the Broker and Solicitors, at which latter place a copy of the Memorandum and Articles of Association can be seen.

APPLICATION FOR SHARES MAY BE MADE IN THE FOLLOWING FORM:—

To the Directors of Day and Son (Limited), 6, Gate-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields, London.

Gentlemen,—Having paid to the London and County Bank, 324 and 325, High Holborn, London, W.C.,* on your account, the sum of , I hereby request that you will allot me Shares in Day and Son (Limited), and I hereby agree to accept such Shares, or any less number that may be allotted to me, and to pay or allow in respect of each Share allotted to me the sum of £2 on allotment, and £2 10s. on the 1st of March, 1865, in accordance with the provisions of the prospectus, and to pay such calls as may from time to time be made upon the Shares allotted to me; and I agree to become a member of the Company, and to sign the Articles of Association when required by you; and I request you to place my name upon the Register of Members in respect of the Shares so allotted.

Name in full ....
Usual signature ....
Profession or Occupation ....
Residence in full ....

Date ——

* Or the deposit may be paid to the account of "Day and Son (Limited)," at the head office of the London and County Bank, 21, Lombard-street, or to any of the branches of that bank.

THE CONSERVATIVE LAND SOCIETY. The Thirteenth Year. Prospectuses sent free of charge to any place, explanatory of the Share, Deposit, Land, or Borrowing Departments.—Apply to CHARLES LEWIS GRUNEISON, Esq., Secretary, 33, Norfolk-street, Strand, London, W.C.

£2000 on ACCIDENTAL DEATH for £3 a year. At the ACCIDENTAL DEATH INSURANCE COMPANY, corner of Old Jewry, London.
J. W. ORAM, Secretary.

ROYAL NAVAL, MILITARY, AND GENERAL LIFE ASSURANCE SOCIETY (Established A.D. 1837, under Royal Patronage), 17, Waterloo-place, London, S.W. ARTHUR R. HAMILTON, Secretary.
Agents wanted in towns not yet represented.

ACCIDENTS to LIFE or LIMB.—£1000 in case of death, or £6 per week while laid up by injury, secured by a payment of from £3 to £5 5s. per annum to the RAILWAY PASSENGERS' ASSURANCE COMPANY, 64, Cornhill; and 10, Regent-street. W. J. VIAN, Secretary.

ILKLEY WELLS HOUSE HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT, near Otley, Yorkshire. Resident Physician, Dr. William Philip Harrison.

The absolute purity and extreme dryness of the air of Ilkley are too well known to require comment. An equable temperature is preserved in the spacious corridors by Stuart and Smith's Patent Apparatus, rendering this superb mansion a desirable WINTER RESIDENCE for the invalid, at which season the treatment is equally efficacious with the summer. For prospectuses apply to Mr. STRACHAN, House Steward as above.

WINES and SPIRITS BOUGHT and SOLD on COMMISSION.—The bi-monthly Circular, with prices of every variety, sent for twelve months on receipt of 2s. 2d.
W. W. HUGHES, 63, Great Tower-street.

BISHOP OF LONDON'S FUND SUBSCRIPTIONS to the Fund may be paid to Messrs. Herries, Farquhar, and Co., No. 16, St. James's-street; Messrs. Barnett and Co., 62, Lombard-street; Messrs. Coutts and Co., 59, Strand; Messrs. Hoare and Co., 37, Fleet-street; Sir Samuel Scott and Co., 1, Cavendish-square; the Bank of England; or at the Office, 46A, Pall-mall, S.W.

HENRY HOARE, Jun., EDWARD THORTON, } Hon. Secretaries.
THOMAS BODLEY, Secretary.
46A, Pall-mall, Jan. 24, 1865.

GEOLOGY.—KING'S COLLEGE, LONDON. Professor TENNANT, F.G.S., will commence a Course of WEDNESDAY EVENING LECTURES on GEOLOGY, from Eight to Nine. First Lecture, JAN. 25. Fee, £1 1s. And a more extended Course on Wednesday and Friday Mornings, from Nine to Ten. First Lecture, Friday, Jan. 27. This Course will be continued till May.
R. W. JELF, D.D., Principal.

PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—A BENEFICED CLERGYMAN, formerly Head Master of a Grammar School, WISHES to RECEIVE THREE BOYS, under Twelve, to Educate for the Public Schools. Situation most healthy, fifty miles from London, five from Sea by Railway. Inclusive Terms, 100 guineas per annum. Address, "R. F.," at Steel's, Bookseller, Spring-gardens, "S.W."

EDUCATION (Superior), BLACKHEATH. Inclusive terms, 50 guineas per Annum.—Parents who are now selecting a school for their daughters are respectfully solicited to visit a first-class establishment which offers unusual advantages. It is conducted by a lady of superior attainments and much experience. English and foreign governesses are resident, and masters of high repute are in daily attendance for the French, German, and Italian languages, pianoforte, drawing, painting, and dancing, which are included in the above terms. The house is large and detached, and replete with domestic comforts, lofty dormitories, bath-rooms, &c. Direct Addison, Mr. Wenborn's, Belgrave Office, Lee.

EDUCATION.—The Poplars, Mitcham, Surrey, eight miles from London. A. GROVER, Principal.

QUEEN'S COLLEGE INSTITUTION FOR LADIES, Tufnell Park, Camden-road, London.
Fee for Residents in Finishing School, 60 guineas }
" Middle School, 40 guineas } per annum.
" Elementary School, 30 guineas }
Payment reckoned from Entrance.
Governess-Students received. Certificates granted.
For Prospectuses, with list of Rev. Patrons and Lady Patronesses, address Mrs. MOREL, Lady Principal, at the College.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.
N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

STAMMERING.—Dr. HUNT begs to acquaint persons having children suffering from Stammering or other affections of the articulating organs that he has made special arrangements to receive juvenile cases, who will in future receive a superior education in conjunction with his system for the treatment of the defect. A few adult pupils. Private pupils received for defective speech only.—Ore House, near Hastings.

PICTURE-FRAMES for the CHRISTMAS-TREE.—Handsome Gilt Frame, Glass, and Back, 3s. Maple and Gilt, 5s. The trade supplied with Mouldings, at GEO. REES', 57, Drury-lane, and 34, St. Martin's-lane, W.C.

NEW "SUN" LIGHT.

NEW "SUN" LIGHT. A Coil. Will light in a common candle, and produce most brilliant results. Post-free, 12 stamps.
STEREOSCOPIC COMPANY, 110, Regent-street, and 54, Cheapside.

"CHRISTMAS-TREE." Gold Frame, Glass, Backboard, and Rings, complete, price 2s. 9d.
STEREOSCOPIC COMPANY, 54, Cheapside.

THIRTY-FIVE CHARMING COLOURED SCRAPS (Third Series), printed in oil colours, something in the style of Baxter's celebrated pictures, are now sent post-free for 2s. 10d. in stamps. The subjects are as follow:—The Hop Garden, the Swing, the Nutting Party, Feeding the Chickens, the Cornfield, the Return from Milking, the Dance on the Village Green, the Gleaners, &c.—altogether forming one of the cheapest sets for scrap-books ever submitted to the public.—Address JOHN JERRARD, 172, Fleet-street, London, E.C., where the sets are open for inspection.

FOR FAMILY ARMS (Lincoln's-inn Heraldic Office, established 25 years) send Name and County. Sketch, 3s. 6d. for stamps. Arms painted and quartered and engraved on Seals, Dies, &c. Book Plate of Arms, 21s.; Pedigrees of Families, 21s.—PUGH BROTHERS, Great Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn. Manual of Heraldry, 3s.

CORPORATE and OFFICIAL SEALS and PRESSES, Hatchments, Monumental Brasses, &c.; Diplomas, Cheques, and Votes of Thanks; Bookplates, Wedding and other Cards.—PUGH BROTHERS, Artists, Gt. Turnstile, Lincoln's-inn.

CARTES DE VISITE, 12 for 2s. 6d. Forward your carte de visite and 32 stamps, to the LONDON PHOTOGRAPHIC COPYING INSTITUTION, 73, Great College-street, Camden Town, N.W., or to 63, Tollington-road, Holloway, N., and you will receive 12 full-size copies with original. Tinting, three extra stamps for each carte. Address, WM. CHARLESON.

PORTRAIT ALBUMS, to last for years, bound in a superior manner with leather joints, plain and elegantly mounted, in great variety, at moderate prices. A choice of 3000.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

PRESENTS.—Purses, Pocket-Books, Cigar-cases, Card-cases, Wallets, Opera-glasses, Scent-bottles, Double and Single Pencil-cases, Fans, Note-cases, &c. N.B.—Choice articles selected and sent post-free to the country upon pre-payment.
PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, W.

15,000 BIBLES, PRAYER-BOOKS, and CHURCH SERVICES, in every variety of type and binding. Suitable for Christmas presents.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S Bible Warehouse, 25, Oxford-street.

INDOOR GAMES OF EVERY KIND, at very Moderate prices.

Miniature Billiards,	Carpet and Table Croquet,
German Billiards,	Bagatelle (all sizes),
Cannonade, Mangola,	Ringolette,
Squails, Merelles,	Parlour Quoits,
Chess Men and Boards,	Dominoes,
Draughts, Pope Joan,	Backgammon, &c., &c.

PARKINS and GOTTO, 24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

PLAYING CARDS (good), 8d. per pack, 7s. 6d. per doz.; gilt back ditto, 1s. per pack, 11s. per doz. All the new patterns now ready. Clubs, messes, and hotels supplied on liberal terms.—PARKINS and GOTTO, 25, Oxford-street, London.

MINIATURE BILLIARD-TABLES, all Sizes; also Bagatelle-Tables and Croquet-boards.
PARKINS and GOTTO'S, 25, Oxford-street, W.

2S. PRIZE WRITING-CASE, fitted with Paper, Envelopes, Blotting-book, Pen-case, &c., can be sent post-free to any part of the United Kingdom upon receipt of 28 stamps to PARKINS and GOTTO, 24 and 25, Oxford-street, London.

STRAW WRITING-PAPER (PARKINS and GOTTO'S). Pleasanter to write upon than any other. Has a hard, smooth surface, well adapted for the steel pen, and cheaper than any other writing-paper, being only 3s. the ream of 20 quires. Parkins and Gotto, Paper and Envelope Makers, 25, Oxford-street.

PERFUMED BALL PROGRAMMES, to be had only of
PARKINS and GOTTO,
24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

BALL PROGRAMMES, Printed and Arranged to Order in the most fashionable styles.—A large stock kept ready for immediate use, and perfumed if required at the shortest notice without charge. Invitation Notes of every description.
PARKINS and GOTTO,
24, 25, and 27, Oxford-street, W.

DANCE PROGRAMMES; Invitation and At-Home Note-paper; Return Thanks; Bordered Note-papers, Dinner Lists; Dish and Dessert Papers; Overland, Fancy, and Household Papers.—At ARTHUR GRANGER'S, 308, High Holborn, W.C.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), F. J. ACRES, Manager, 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

THE COMPANY'S COTTAGE SUITE of LIGHT OAK DINING-ROOM FURNITURE.

THE COMPANY'S COMPLETE DRAWING-ROOM SUITES.

THE COMPANY'S NEW LIGHT BED-ROOM FURNITURE, for best Bed-rooms.

THE COMPANY'S FRENCH-POLISHED and JAPANNED DEAL BED-ROOM FURNITURE.

THE COMPANY'S BEDSTEADS and BEDDING.

THE COMPANY are SOLE AGENTS for the PATENT SIDE CARRIAGE SPRING PALLIASSE.
N.B. The Company supply this article to the trade.

THE COMPANY SUPPLY CARPETS, CHINTZES, and every variety of textile fabric for upholstery purposes, at the lowest possible prices for cash.

THE COMPANY'S complete ILLUSTRATED CATALOGUE, free by post.

THE GENERAL FURNISHING and UPHOLSTERY COMPANY (Limited), 24 and 25, Baker-street, W.

EASY-CHAIRS, COUCHES, and SOFAS, best quality. Upwards of 300 shapes constantly on view, or made to any shape.—T. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, W. An Illustrated Catalogue sent post-free.

SILVER-FIR BED-ROOM FURNITURE, beautifully inlaid in imitation marqueterie, 25 guineas the full suite.—The BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square, are manufacturing and have on view suites of this elegant and unique furniture, at the above truly economical price. Illustrations forwarded on application.

FURNITURE, CARPETS, and BEDDING.—See our ILLUSTRATED FURNITURE CATALOGUE, 380 Engravings, with prices 30 per cent less than any other house. The most unique and complete Guide ever published. Gratis from LEWIN CRAWCOUR and CO., 73 and 75, Brompton-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carriage-free.

OAK FURNITURE, at the BELGRAVE FURNISHING COMPANY, 12, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square.—To Clergymen and Gentlemen furnishing.—A very superior suite of Antique Oak Dining-room Furniture, enriched with superb and artistic carvings, for sale, for the remarkably low sum of 40 guineas. The above is in admirable condition, and such a bargain as is seldom offered. Also, a very large and costly suite, adapted for a mansion, equally cheap.

CHANDELIERS and MODERATOR SUSPENSIONS, of the newest designs and best quality, in Bronze, Ormoulu, and Crystal, for Dining-room, Library, Billiards, &c., Spécialité for India. Standard and Bracket Lamps, Candelabra, and Bronzes.—D. FRANCON, 46, Rathbone-place, Oxford-street (first floor).

CLOCKS, CANDELABRA, BRONZES, and LAMPS.—WILLIAM S. BURTON invites inspection of his Stock of these, displayed in two large show-rooms. Each article is of guaranteed quality, and some are objects of pure virtù, the productions of the first manufacturers of Paris, from whom William S. Burton imports them direct.

Clocks, from	7s. 6d. to £45
Candelabra, from	13s. 6d. to £16 10s. per pair.
Bronzes, from	18s. 0d. to £16 16s.
Lamps, moderateur, from ..	6s. 0d. to £9 0s.
Pure Colza Oil	4s. per gallon.

Illustrated Catalogues sent (per post) free.
39, Oxford-street, W.; 1, 1A, 2, 3, and 4, Newman-street; 4, 5, and 6, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is equal in wear to sterling silver.

	Per Dozen. £ s. d.	Strong. £ s. d.	Ivory Table Knives, full size, Balance Handles,	Per Doz. £ s. d.
Table Forks	1 10 0	and 1 18 0	First Quality.
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,, 1 10 0	Table Knives	1 2 0
Table Spoons	1 10 0	,, 1 18 0	Dessert Knives	0 15 6
Dessert Ditto	1 0 0	,, 1 10 0	Carvers (per pair) ..	0 6 9
Tea Spoons	0 12 0	,, 0 18 0	Kitchen Knives & Forks	0 8 6

Catalogues gratis or post-free. Orders carriage-free by rail.
Richard and John Slack, 336, Strand, London. Established 1818.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers. LAMPS FOR INDIA.
Five New Show-rooms.
J. DEFRIES and SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best articles at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouses. Established A.D. 1700. New Illustrated Catalogue and Priced Furnishing List gratis and post-free.
Deane and Co. (The Monument), London Bridge.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, London, W., 59, Bold-street, Liverpool, celebrated ELASTIC-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, are the best and simplest ever offered. For Family Use or Dress and Mantle Making they are positively unrivalled, doing plain and ornamental work with equal facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, braid, quilt, cord, bind, and embroider, are very easily managed, and not liable to derangement. Ninety thousand now in use in all parts of the world. Every machine guaranteed. Instruction gratis. Illustrated Prospectus and samples of work gratis and post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

THE GROVER and BAKER SEWING-MACHINE COMPANY hereby give public notice that they have cancelled the Agency for Great Britain hitherto held by Newton, Wilson, and Co., who will no longer be supplied with any of their Machines. The Offices and Sales-rooms of the Company are now established at 150, Regent-street, London, W.; and 59, Bold-street, Liverpool.

THOMAS'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES, for Private Family use, Dressmaking, &c. They will Hem, Bind, Braid, Gather, Tuck, Cord, &c. Illustrated Catalogues and samples of the work may be had on application to W. F. Thomas and Co., 66, Newgate-street; and Regent-circus, Oxford-street.

SEEDS FOR KITCHEN AND FLOWER GARDEN, of best quality and at lowest prices.—JAMES GARAWAY and CO., Durdham Down Nurseries, Bristol, supply the above. All orders over 20s. delivered free at nearest railway station. Priced Catalogues post-free on application.—Jas. Garaway and Co., Wholesale and Retail Seed-dealers, Durdham Down, Bristol.

ORIGINAL AND SUPERIOR ESSENCE OF ANCHOVIES, SAUCES, PICKLES, &c., pure and good, as supplied by JOHN BURGESS and SONS for more than a Hundred years.—107, Strand (corner of Savoy-steps), London.

MYTTON O GYMRU.—WELSH MUTTON direct from the Principality weekly.
Legs, Saddles, and Haunches.
D. R. DOSSETOR, 5, Russell-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

Tins, 1s.
Packets, 8d.
BROWN and POLSON'S
PATENT CORN-FLOUR, for Children's Diet and Light Suppers.

SAFETY FROM FIRE—By using FIELD'S Patent Snuffless, Hard, Self-fitting CHAMBER CANDLES. Sold everywhere, and wholesale of the Manufacturers, J. C. and J. Field, Upper Marsh, Lambeth.

A DELIGHTFUL FRAGRANCE and a delicate Skin by using the celebrated UNITED SERVICE SOAP TABLETS, 4d. and 6d. each. Manufactured by J. C. and J. FIELD, Upper Marsh, Lambeth. Sold everywhere.

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.
GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal, 1862.

PEPSINE.—MORSON'S PEPSINE WINE. Morson's Pepsine Lozenges, are perfectly palatable forms for administering this popular remedy for weak digestion. Manufactured by T. Morson and Son, 19 and 46, Southampton-row, Russell-square, London, W.C. Pepsine Wine, in bottles, at 3s., 5s., and 10s. each; lozenges, in boxes, at 2s. 6d. and 4s. 6d. each.

HOPPER'S BLACK CURRANT COUGH ELIXIR—a certain and safe remedy for coughs, colds, asthma, influenza, spitting of blood, hoarseness, whooping-cough, croup, difficulty of breathing, and all diseases of the chest and lungs. Sold by all Chemists, in bottles, at 1s. 1½d. and 2s. 9d. each.

SPRING SEASON, 1865.
KING and CO. SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, beg to announce that they are now showing their first delivery of NEW SPRING and BLACK SILKS, ordered before the late advance in prices, and 30 per cent under the present market value. Ladies who wish to avoid paying the advance prices should make their Spring purchases this month.
Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
First Delivery.
Striped Silks, £1 1s. the Full Dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks,
£1 5s. 6d.
Tartan Silks,
£1 7s. 6d.
Corded Silks,
£1 10s. 6d.
Gros Grains,
£1 15s. 6d.
Broché Reversible Silks,
£1 17s. 6d.
New Crossbar Silks,
£2 2s. 0d.
Corded Drap de France,
£2 10s. 6d.
Richest Moire Antiques,
£3 13s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.
£35,763 BLACK SILKS, at KING'S,
243, Regent-street.
Black Glacé Silks, £1 5s. 6d. the Full Dress of 14 yards,
Black Ducapes,
£1 7s. 6d.
Black Gros Grains,
£1 10s. 6d.
Black Corded Silks,
£1 15s. 6d.
Black Reversible Broché Silks,
£1 17s. 6d.
Black Drap de France,
£2 2s. 6d.
Black Drap de Lyon,
£2 5s. 6d.
Widows' Silks,
£2 10s. 6d.
Richest Black Moire Antiques,
£3 3s. 6d.
Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

EVENING GRENADINES, at 6s. 9d. the Dress; Fine Tarlatans, 7¾d. per yard; beautiful shades in wide-width French Merinoes, at 23d. The above will be found the cheapest consignment ever shown at the West-End. Mourning attire of every description, at the most reasonable prices, at YOUNGMAN and HAYMAN'S, 174, 175, 176, Sloane-st., Belgravia.

JAMES LOCKE and CO., the SCOTCH WAREHOUSES,
by appointment to her Majesty the Queen and her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales.
117, 119, and 127, Regent-street, London, W.
Waterproof Tweed Cloaks, Walking and Yachting Jackets, Shawls, Rugs, and Wrappers of every description. Shetland Shawls, Veils, and Hose. Serges, Fine Tweeds, and Linsey Woolseys for Ladies' Travelling and Seaside Dresses.
Patterns forwarded free.

RHUMPORE CHUDDAH SHAWLS in all Colours.—FARMER and ROGERS have just received, direct from India, several cases of superb India Shawls, suitable for Wedding Presents. Also, a beautiful variety of full-sized Rhumpore Chuddah Shawls, so much esteemed for their peculiar softness.
171, 173, 175, 179, Regent-street, W.
India Shawls bought and exchanged.

MESSRS. JAY beg to invite special attention to the DEEP MOURNING Department of their Establishment, consisting of every article for First and Family Mourning, either made-up and ready for wear or materials cut from the piece, according to the wishes of purchasers.
Silks, Crapes, &c., of the very best, most serviceable, and enduring qualities.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street.

By Appointment to the Queen, her Royal Highness the Princess of Wales, and H.R.H. the Duchess of Cambridge.
MOURNING.—Messrs. JAY would respectfully announce that great saving may be made by purchasing Mourning at their establishment, the Stock of Family Mourning being the Largest in Europe. Mourning Costume of every description is kept ready made, and can be forwarded—town or country—at a moment's notice. The most reasonable prices are charged and the wear of every article guaranteed.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
Regent-street, near the Circus,
JAYS'.

THE "NEACLAINE" DRESS.
Patented in England, France, Germany, and Belgium.
MESSRS. JAY beg to assure their customers and the public that this novel and convenient Dress can be made as suitable for wear in the morning, and at dinner, as for evening. The impression is erroneous that "The Neaclaine" is designed for evening wear only. It can be made of silk, or any other material which taste or circumstances may suggest; and, by a reversal of the lappets, a dress is perfected for any occasion required.
JAYS',
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, 251, Regent-street.

APPROACHING CLOSE OF WINTER. Warm Dresses for Morning Wear or for Travelling.—Messrs. JAY have a few dresses of the best material, and finished with the most correct taste, which they are willing to dispose of to their patrons and the public at half their original cost.
THE LONDON GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
247, 249, and 251, Regent-street,
JAYS'.

PETER ROBINSON'S
NEW FAMILY MOURNING WAREHOUSE.
Peter Robinson, having removed this branch of his business to new and larger premises, is enabled to display a larger stock of rich and medium-class goods, adapted for Court, Family, and Complimentary Mourning, and at more economical prices than have hitherto been attempted by any other house in this country.
Families requiring Mourning will find it much to their advantage to forward their orders at once to this warehouse. Goods are forwarded, if necessary, to any part of London or the country, free of expense (accompanied by a dressmaker, if desired), immediately on receipt of note or telegram.
Address Peter Robinson,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(The premises lately occupied by Hodge, Lowman, and Orchard.)

BLACK NET EVENING DRESSES. An elegant variety of entirely new designs in Made-up Skirts. Also, Tarlatan and Grenadine, worked in Gold, Silver, and Soufflé, in beautiful patterns, suitable for Ladies in or out of mourning.
Wreaths, Ornaments, Berthas, Canezous, &c.,
in the latest Parisian Novelties,
at the New Show-rooms of
PETER ROBINSON'S
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

BLACK SILKS, A Spécialité. PETER ROBINSON would respectfully draw attention to a large lot of superior Silks, recently purchased, much under usual prices.
Black Glacé . . . } Black Poult de Soie } from 35s to 5 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Gros de Suez . } Black Royal Cord . } Black Barathea . . } Black Radzimore . } from 56s. to 7 guineas the Dress of 14 yards.
Black Clerical Silks, from 4s. to 10s. per yard.
Black Moire Antique } Black Watered Silks } Black Satins . . . } from 4 to 10 guineas.
or cut by the yard in any length. Patterns free.
Also a variety of very richly-embroidered Silk Dresses,
At PETER ROBINSON'S,
COURT AND GENERAL MOURNING WAREHOUSE,
256 to 262, Regent-street, London.
(Removed from 103 and 104, Oxford-street.)

MESSRS. SWAN and EDGAR beg to announce that their usual JANUARY SALE of FANCY SILKS is now in progress, and will be continued during the month. Piccadilly and Regent-street.

NEW FRENCH SILKS, in COLOURS and BLACK, at 2s. 6½d. the yard, made of bright Italian Silk, with the guarantee for durability of eminent firms in Paris and Lyons. The Silk Department includes all the richest and most costly productions. Patterns sent free.—HARVEY and CO., Lambeth House, Westminster Bridge, S.

IMPORTANT TO WOOLLEN BUYERS. Tailors and others desirous of saving 5 per cent every purchase, should go to JAMES PLATT and CO., 78, St. Martin's-lane, and 28 and 29, Cranbourn-st., who return to Cash Buyers 1s. out of 20s. N.B. Foreign Orders honestly, carefully, and promptly executed.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, at .. .. .. £1 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
The New Spring Silks .. .. £1 13s. 6d. ,,
The New Rich Fancy French Silks .. £2 2s. 0d. ,,
Neat, useful, and recherché Silks for Young Ladies, from £1 7s. 6d. Full Dress.
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Rich Corded Silks (same both sides), £1 13s. 6d. Full Dress, or 2s. 9½d. the yard.—198, Regent-street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
12,000 yards of Plain Chinese Silks, very bright, all at 1s. 6d. and 1s. 9½d. per yard; worth double.
198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.
Patterns free.
Rich, Bright, Wide, and Durable Glacés, Gros Grains, Ducapes, Gros de Suez, Plain and Figured, from 1 guinea to 3 guineas the Full Dress.—198, Regent-street.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, BARÈGES, Balzarines, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c., at half the original cost. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

FLOWERS! FLOWERS! FLOWERS! 12,000 Bunches Best French Flowers, six sprays to the bunch, all at 1s.; worth 8s. 6d. 4000 Feathers, all at 1s.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE NEW SPRING MOHAIRS, 8s. 9d. Full Dress. 50,000 yards of the new Spring Camlets, Glenappes, Grenadines, Barèges, Mexican Cloths, &c., from 8s. 9d. to 1 guinea Full Dress. The best makes. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three for 1s., post-free, Invisible HAIR NETS, in any colour; the new Floss Silk Hair Nets, 1s. 6d.; Chenille ditto, 1s. 6d., 2s. Post-free for stamps.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

EVENING GRENADINES, 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Several hundred White and Coloured Grenadine and Tarlatan Dresses, from 6s. 9d. to 12s. 6d., the extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

1500 DOZEN SOILED FRENCH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, at Half Price. Hemmed, Stitched, or Bordered, at 10s. 6d. 15s., and 1 guinea the dozen. Patterns free.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

A NOVELTY IN MOURNING.—The New CRAPE LAINE, very durable and inexpensive. Patterns free. Obtainable only at BAKER and CRISP'S, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE MOST LADY-LIKE HEAD-DRESSES of the Season are new Velvet Coronets and Rosettes, in Scarlet, Black, Black and White, Green, Blue, Brown, Violet, &c. Coronets, 1s. 9d.; Rosettes and elegant streamers, with single rosette, 1s. 9d.; Double, 2s. 3d.; Treble, 3s. 6d. All post-free for stamps.
BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

THE ROYAL SILK CORDS, 35s. 6d. and 2 guineas (all colours).
Equal in appearance to any dress at 5 guineas.
Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street, London.

BAKER and CRISP'S BEAUTIFUL NEW SPRING CAMBRICS, BRILLIANTS, PIQUES, &c., are now ready.
Patterns post-free. 198, Regent-street.

GUTTER NO MORE.—The NOZZOLETTE, 1s. and 1s. 6d., for the entire prevention of Candles guttering, can be obtained of BRECKNELL, TURNER, and SONS, Beehive, Haymarket, and of all Chandlers and Ironmongers.—Patentees—Steane Brothers and Co., Brixton, London. An Illustrated Prospectus can be had on receipt of postage-stamp.

DURING THIS MONTH. JAMES SPENCE and CO., previous to Stock-taking, will offer the remaining part of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK at Wholesale Prices, consisting of the following Departments, viz.:—

Silks,	Furs,	Made-up Dresses,
Velvets,	Hosiery,	French Merinoes,
Shawls,	Gloves,	Winceys,
Jackets,	Ribbons,	Fancy Dresses,
Mantles,	Trimmings,	Flannels, &c.

Ladies and the Public are respectfully invited to make an early inspection.
Closed on Saturdays at Four o'Clock,
77 and 78, St. Paul's-churchyard.

LUDGATE-HILL RAILWAY (now opened).
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
SILKS, DRESSES, MANTLES, FAMILY LINENS.

NEW SILKS.
Dark Princess Royal Cord, very bright,
£2 15s. 6d. for 14 yards.
New Dark Checked Glacés,
£2 2s. for 14 yards.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Striped Glacés, 14 Yards, £2 2s.
Patterns of New Ribbed Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW SILKS.—PATTERNS FREE.
New Checked Glacés, 14 Yards, £1 15s. 6d.
Patterns of Rich Silks.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

NEW FABRICS.—PATTERNS FREE.
Aberdeen Linseys, Knickerbocker Linseys.
All mixtures. Best and medium qualities.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.

FAMILY LINEN DEPARTMENT.
JOHN HARVEY and SON, 9, Ludgate-hill.
Linen and Cotton Sheetings, best makes, all widths.
Irish and Scotch Table Linen, Napkins, and Slips,
Made and Marked with Crest or Initial, and Warranted for Wear.

THE Celebrated SHREWSBURY WATERPROOF TWEED CLOAKS, JACKETS, and Gentlemen's OVERCOATS. Patterns post-free.
I. E. and W. PHILLIPS, 37, High-street, Shrewsbury.

IRISH LINENS, direct from Belfast, at Manufacturers' Prices.—JAMES LINDSAY and CO. will forward, carriage paid on parcels of £5 and upwards, Single and Double Damask Table Cloths, Napkins, Diapers, Family Linens, Sheetings, Pillow Linens, Tickings, Huckaback and Diaper Towellings, Glass Cloths, Pantry Towels, &c., &c.; Ladies' and Gentlemen's Lawn and Cambric Handkerchiefs. Patterns and Price-list post-free.—James Lindsay and Co., 18, Donegall-place, Belfast.

MOIRES ANTIQUES.—SEWELL and CO. have the largest selection of Spitalfields Moires Antiques, in White, Black, and all the New Colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.—Compton House, Frith-street, and Old Compton-street, Soho, W.

SEWELL and CO.'S ANNUAL JANUARY SALE of GOODS left over the Season has commenced, consisting of Silks, Fancy Goods, made-up Skirts, Evening Dresses, Sealskin Mantles, Velvet, and other Jackets, &c., which will be sold at greatly reduced prices. At the same time will be shown a large purchase of French Muslins, first-class patterns, suitable for Ladies going to India or any warm climate, at one third of their value. N.B. Sewell and Co. will be prepared to show their novelties early in the season.
Sewell and Co., Compton House, Old Compton-street, and Frith street, Soho-square.

SILKS, FANCY DRESSES, &c., at REDUCED PRICES.—GRANT and GASK, in accordance with their custom at this season of the year, are selling the whole of their AUTUMN and WINTER STOCK of SILKS, FANCY DRESS FABRICS, VELVETS, MADE-UP SKIRTS, MANTLES, &c., at GREATLY REDUCED PRICES.
Most of the MADE-UP SKIRTS, MANTLES, and FANCY ARTICLES will be sold at half their former prices. Last Season's best FRENCH ORGANDIE MUSLINS, reduced to 6½d. per yard.
ODD DRESS LENGTHS of RICH FRENCH SILKS proportionately cheap, 2s. 6d. per yard, full width.
RICH MOIRE ANTIQUES, in all colours, at 4½ guineas the Full Dress.
Patterns forwarded to the country.
58, 59, 60, 61, 62, Oxford-street; 3, 4, and 5, Wells-street, London.

G. POLAND and SON, FUR MANUFACTURERS, 90, Oxford-street. The oldest established in London. Rich Fur Seal Mantles; Velvet and Cloth Cloaks lined and trimmed with fur; Fur Wrappers, Coats, Rugs, &c.

SPECIAL NOTICE!!
Now ready for sale, upwards of 5000
WORKED WHITE MUSLIN DRESSES, in Three Lots.
Lot 1—7s. 9d. each, or Seven Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 2—8s. 9d. ,, Eight Guineas for Twenty.
Lot 3—9s. 9d. ,, Nine Guineas for Twenty.
being less than one third the original cost.
This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable stock of White Dresses ever offered.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

1000 REDUCED SILKS. Upwards of One Thousand Dresses have been re-marked, and are now selling at 1½, 2½, and 3½ guineas, being one-half the original cost, at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

THIS YEAR'S SILKS.
Imperial Check and Stripe Glacés,
in new Designs, and suitable for Young Ladies' wear,
from £1 7s. 6d. to £2 19s. 6d.
Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

RICH CORDED SILKS (Both Sides Alike),
including the Royal Italian, Gros de Londres, Jasper Bar, and the Alexandra Cord, from 2½ to 3½ gs. Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

VERY RICH
PLAIN SILKS.
Comprising our well-known make of Glacés, Poult de Soies, and Drap de Lyons, which can be had in 48 entirely new shades of colour, and made expressly for 1865, at £2 15s. 6d., £3 9s. 6d., and £4 9s. 6d.
the Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NOW READY, IN GREAT VARIETY,
TARLATAN BALL-DRESSES.
Numerous Designs, on Black, White, or Coloured grounds,
12s. 9d. the extra Full Dress (fine quality).
Plain Tarlatans, all colours, in any quantity.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

MADE-UP COLOURED OR BLACK
TULLE and TARLATAN ROBES,
trimmed in the latest style of fashion,
each pattern in every colour, 18s. 6d. to 5 guineas,
at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHE
RICH SILK GRENADINES,
adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses,
18s. 6d., 25s. 6d., 31s. 6d. the Full Dress.
Some very superb designs, extra quality, from 2 to 3 guineas.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

FANCY FLANNELS (Fast Colours) for
DRESSING GOWNS,
Garibaldi Jackets, and Gentlemen's Shirts.
An endless Variety of new Patterns, 2s. 6d. per yard.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

WINTER DRESSES.
Now Selling at Reduced Prices.
The "Popeline Velour."
The "Lyons Silk Poplin."
The "Diagonal Silk Serge."
The "Diagonal Wool Serge."
The "Mexican Cloth."
Patterns of all the above (at the reduced price), post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ABERDEEN LINSEYS.
PETER ROBINSON
has just purchased several hundred Pieces of Knickerbocker Winceys,
and is now selling them at 1s. 6½d. and 1s. 9½d. per yard,
the usual price for the same goods being 2s. 2d. and 2s. 6d.
All other makes of Linseys at reduced prices.
Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF
LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS,
Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new.
An endless variety of patterns (at the reduced price) post-free.
PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

A LARGE COLLECTION OF FOREIGN FABRICS FOR
EARLY SPRING DRESSES.
The "Honeycomb Poplinette," 35s. the extra Full Dress.
The "Mexican Cloth" (new colours), 12s. 6d. to 25s.
And a variety of other cheap and useful Dresses ranging from 10s. to 31s. 6d.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

THE AMPHIKALUPTRA,
a Registered Table-cover,
to be obtained at
PETER ROBINSON'S
New Furnishing Drapery Department,
103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE,
London.
SCOTT ADIE, 115, Regent-street.
Entrance at the Corner of Vigo-street only.

ROUND SHOULDERS, Stooping Habits, &c., CURED by wearing CHANDLER'S CHEST-EXPANDER, for both sexes. Specially adapted to children to assist growth and produce a symmetrical figure.—66, Berners-st., W. Illustrations sent.

TO MOTHERS AND INVALIDS. ABDOMINAL SUPPORTERS, of superior make and construction, for debility, corpulency, pregnancy, &c. Directions for self-measurement sent by post free.—ELAM, 196, Oxford-street.

TO THE LADIES OF ENGLAND.—Miss TALBOT, thirty years Lady's Maid in the highest circles of England, Paris, and Spain, will forward, on receipt of thirty stamps, full directions in the new and beautiful art of getting-up the FACE and EYES in the most brilliant style, with other recipes for the Toilette, standing unrivalled. Address, Miss Talbot, Folkingham, Lincolnshire.

NAPOLEON PRICE'S REGISTERED GOLDEN OIL is the only article that really possesses nutritious virtues for promoting a luxuriant growth of the human hair. Beware of an imitation. The genuine is sold by the Sole Proprietors, Price and Co., 27, Old Bond-st., 3s. 6d., 5s., 7s., and 10s.

TO PARENTS AND GUARDIANS. Indispensable accompaniments to youth on their return to school are ROWLANDS' MACASSAR OIL, for accelerating the growth, preserving and beautifying the hair;
ROWLANDS' KALYDOR,
for improving the skin and complexion, and removing defects; and
ROWLANDS' ODONTO,
or Pearl Dentifrice, for beautifying the teeth and preserving the gums.
Sold at 20, Hatton-garden; and by Chemists and Perfumers.
₊ Ask for "ROWLANDS'" articles.

AURICOMUS FLUID, for producing the golden, flaxen colour, so greatly admired, on ladies' hair. Prepared by UNWIN and ALBERT, 24, Piccadilly. In bottles, 5s. 6d., 10s. 6d., and 21s. Agent for Paris, Lecomte, Rue de la Paix.

ALL afflicted with WEAK EYES may obtain instant relief by using Dr. WARNER'S EYE-WATER; it removes all inflammation arising from cold, dust, or constitutional causes.—Sold in bottles, 2s. 9d., 4s. 6d., by Sanger, Oxford-st.; Prout, Strand; Butler, Cheapside; Hooper, London Bridge.

COUGHS and COLDS are instantly Relieved by DR. LOCOCK'S PULMONIC WAFERS. Price 1s. 1½d., 2s. 9d., and 4s. 6d. per box, of all Druggists. Small Books, containing many hundreds of Cures, may be had from every Agent.

TEETH AND PAINLESS DENTISTRY. Messrs. LEWIN, MOSELY, and SONS, 30, Berners-street, Oxford-street, and 448, Strand (opposite Charing-cross Railway Station). Established 1820. These Teeth are cheaper, more durable, natural, and comfortable, than any yet produced. Consultation Free. For the efficacy, utility, and success of this system, vide "Lancet."
No connection with anyone of the same name.

WANTED.—LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, &c. Mr. or Mrs. A. DAVIS, 2, Crawford-st., Baker-st., W., attends Ladies and Gentlemen privately, to purchase Wearing Apparel, Uniforms, Jewellery, Diamonds, Plate, &c.; or, Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted the same day. Est. 64 years. Terms cash.

WANTED.—Left-off Clothes, Uniforms, Jewellery, and Miscellaneous Property, &c. Highest price given. Ladies and Gentlemen waited on. Address Mr. or Mrs. D. DAVIS, 46, Marylebone-lane, Oxford-street, W. Parcels being sent, Post Office orders remitted. Established 1800.

WANTED, LEFT-OFF CLOTHES, Uniforms, Furniture, Miscellaneous Property, &c. The highest price given. Ladies or gentlemen waited on by addressing to Mr. or Mrs. G. HYAM, 10, Beak-street, Regent-street, W.; or, Parcels being sent, the utmost value in cash instantly remitted. Established 1820.

NEW MUSIC.

NEW AND POPULAR DANCE MUSIC.

MABEL WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, R.M. Gren. Guards. Just published, a new and beautiful Set of Waltzes, which will eventually become as popular as the celebrated "Guards' Waltzes." Illustrated by Brandard. Price 4s. London: CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MILL-GROVE WALTZ. A new WALTZ by GERALD STANLEY (Composer of the "Wood-bine Waltz"). Illustrated. Price 4s. London: Jewell, 29, Cornhill, and CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

MARGUERITE WALTZ. A new set of Waltzes on Alice Ben Oni. Sung by Mdlle. Piccolomini. Price 3s. F. GODFREY, R.M. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with a scene from Marguerite. Performed Portraits of Adelina Patti, Mario, &c. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS QUADRILLES. A new and charming set of Quadrilles on airs from Offenbach's popular Opera of "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. Godfrey, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 4s. Illustrated.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

GODFREY'S ORPHEUS GALOP. A capital Galop from Offenbach's "Orphée aux Enfers." By D. Godfrey, Composer of the Guards' Waltz and Quadrille. Price 3s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' QUADRILLE. By the Composer of The Guards' Waltz. Just published, a New Quadrille on favourite Airs. Instituted by H.R.H. the Duke of Cambridge. Illustrated. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE GUARDS' WALTZ. By D. GODFREY, Coldstream Guards, with the greatest success. Now Dancing at Court, &c. Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 10s.; Brass Band, 5s. Illustrated.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

THE STIRRUP-CUP QUADRILLE. Just published, a New Quadrille on favourite Airs, including Handel's "Harmonious Blacksmith," Instituted by the Duke of CONNAUGHT. Price 4s. Illustrated. CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE MERRY TUNES LANCERS. Just published, a new set of Lancers, on favourite airs, by the popular and merry leader of the day, W. H. Montgomery. Composer of the celebrated "Merry Tunes" Quadrilles, &c. Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 10s.; Brass Band, 5s. Illustrated.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HUNT QUADRILLE. A new Quadrille, on popular hunting melodies, by A. J. GODFREY, Coldstream Guards. Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 10s.; Brass Band, 5s. Illustrated.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE HARUM-SCARUM GALOP. By JAMES CASSIDY (Composer of the Bonbons Galop). Illustrated by Brandard. Price 3s.; Duet, 4s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 10s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

THE JOCKEY GALOP. By A. F. GODFREY, R. Coldstream Guards. Illustrated with portraits on exhibit of Fordham, R. and J. Grimshaw, and Custance, the celebrated Jockeys. Septet, 3s.; Orchestra, 3s.; Military Band, 10s.; Brass Band, 5s. Illustrated. Orchestra, 3s.; Septet, 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

BRINLEY RICHARDS'S MEMORIES OF HOME. Just published, a new Fantasia on Airs from Flotow, played by the Composer with immense success. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NEW DRAWING-ROOM MUSIC.

KUHE'S GUARDS' WALTZ. A brilliant arrangement of Godfrey's celebrated Guards' Waltz, for the Pianoforte. Price 4s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S ORPHÉE AUX ENFERS. No. 1. Very easy quadrille on favourite airs from Offenbach's charming Opera. Price 3s.

KUHE'S LE CHANT D'ONDINE. Popular No. 2. Song by the MISSES GARTHWAITE, arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S COZUS ANIMAM (from the "Italian Mosaics"). Arranged for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S O RUDDIER THAN THE CHERRY. Shakespeare's celebrated Song, sung by Sterling-ridge, settled for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

KUHE'S FIDELIO. Just published, a Selection on Airs from Beethoven's "Fidelio." For the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

G. A. OSBORNE'S NEW COMPOSITIONS, FLEURETTE. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

MADRID. Nocturne for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

PAUER'S LA SEDIA. Popular Gondola Song, sung by Mdlle. Titiens. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

M. BENEDICT'S NEW PIECE.

BENEDICT'S SEA BREEZES.—Brilliant Waltz for the Pianoforte. Just published. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MISS MARIE BOSHOOSY'S new Song,

MAY MORNING. A Sketch for the Pianoforte by Mrs. Joseph Robinson. 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO. 50, New Bond-street.

FAVARGER'S FAUST. A Fantasia on the most favourite airs from Gounod's Opera of Faust. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S LA PRIÈRE D'UNE MÈRE. Reverie pour Piano. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S THE ANGELS' HARP. Rhapsodie for the Pianoforte. Price 3s. 6d.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

TREKELL'S WAVING LILY BELLS. Morceau de Salon for the Pianoforte. Price 3s.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

NOVELLO'S STANDARD GLEE-BOOK. Volume I. Containing Forty-two Glees, Madrigals, Rounds, &c., by the best Authors. Edited by Joseph Warren. Large demy octavo (12 inches by 9). Handsomely bound in cloth, with gilt back. Price 8s. 6d.

London: NOVELLO and CO. 80, Soho-street, Oxford-street; and 35, Dudley-street, Leicester-square.

SIXTY GLEES FOR HIGH CHURCH CHOIRS. Selected from Standard Glee-Book. Price 1 to 5. Price Separate each. Each Part contains Twelve Glees.

London: NOVELLO and CO.

TWO GLEES FOR ONE PENNY in "Novello's Standard Glee-Book." Twelve Numbers, each containing Two Glees. Lists gratis.

London: NOVELLO and CO.

THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY. Operetta by MACFARREN. "A simple tune sometimes wins her." Ballad. 2s. 6d. "Let me remember you." Ballad. 2s. 6d. "I've promised to dance with the dame of the day." Ballad. 2s. 6d. Sent free half price.

EWER and Co.'s Library, 61, Regent-street, London.

MACFARREN'S OPERETTA, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY.—"In the second it is lighthearted, graceful, and effective."—Queen. "The first musical work—graceful, melodious, and effective."—Queen. This charming operetta is particularly adapted for private performances. The three principal ballads have an extensive sale. The complete score, price 6s. 6d., will be ready on the 1st of February.

EWER and Co., 61, Regent-street.

GRANDE FANTAISIE, sur les deux motifs favoris de "Sigd" (Israelites' Feast), composée pour le Piano par ADOLPHE SMITH. Price 4s.

ADDISON and Co., 210, Regent-street.

NEW MUSIC.

TWELVE SONGS of the AMERICAN WAR, in "Rosenau Musical Cabinet," No. 36, with Illustrations by Brandard. Price 1s. 6d. Also Nos. 1 to 35, separately, in Two Books, 6d. each (post-free, 7d.), as follows:—

FEDERAL SONGS.
We are coming, Father Abraham.
Glory, Hallelujah!
Rally round the flag, boys.
Marching, and not ready!
The Yankee Chair.
Battle-cry of freedom.

CONFEDERATE SONGS.
Dixie's land.
Beautiful Star Flag.
In my country's call.
Old King Cotton.
Dixie's Land.
The Bonnie Blue Flag.

THE NEW LEYBACH NUMBER of ROOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 87. Price 1s.

THE NEW KUHE NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 86. Price 1s.

THE NEW MENDELSSOHN NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 85. Price 1s.

THE NEW STEPHEN HELLER NUMBER of BOOSEY'S MUSICAL CABINET is now ready. No. 84. Price 1s.

MDME. OURY'S SOUVENIRS PERSONNELS. Just published, a Set of Waltzes on Two Scotch Airs, in the same style, and companion to her celebrated "Souvenirs d'Ecosse." Price 4s. Illustrated.

CHAPPELL and CO., 50, New Bond-street.

MDME. OURY'S AULD ROBIN GRAY VARIATIONS. A very popular and showy piece. 4s.—BOOSEY and CO.

CHERE AMIE VALSE, founded on the favourite melody of Rosellen's "Ma Normandie," and through several editions. 2s. net.—BOOSEY and CO.

GENTLE FLOWER, CANST THOU TELL? Charming Serenade-Song by Rosellen, sung by Mdlle. Liebhart's Corps. Price 2s. 6d. Always encored. "One of the most elegant and graceful songs we have seen."—Musical World. "Extremely melodious."—Daily Telegraph.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

GOLDEN DAYS. By CLARIBEL. New Song. Published this day. Price 2s. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

THE BELLS WHISPER. By CLARIBEL. New Song. Published this day. Price 2s. BOOSEY and CO., Holles-street.

DO YOU REMEMBER! By CLARIBEL. New Song, after the manner of "Tea and I." Price 2s. BOOSEY and CO.

TAKE BACK THE HEART. A New Song, but already an immense favourite. By CLARIBEL. Price 2s. BOOSEY and CO.

GIOJA GALOP BRILLANTE. By GEORGE FORBES (Composer of "Ma Normandie," "Cyprea," "Ona" and this favourite number). Price 4s.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

DREAM, BABY MINE. By VIRGINIA GABRIEL. Song with Accompaniments by Miss Banks. Price 2s. BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

120 CHRISTY'S MINSTRELS' SONGS in "Rosenau Musical Cabinet," No. 37, with Illustrations by Brandard. Price 1s. 6d. Also Nos. 1 to 36, 6d. each; or, 42 in Two Books, 7s. each.

BOOSEYS' NATIONAL GLEE-BOOK, in Two Volumes, containing Sixty Glees, 3s. 6d.; or cloth, gilt edges, 4s. 6d.—Holles-street.

FORBES'S CONFEDERATE MARCH on the favourite Air, "Dixie." Price 3s.
BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

THE CHORALIST, for FEBRUARY, is now ready. Price 2d. Specimen Number, 1d. Subscription, four-and-sixpence.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

SIXTY GLEES for CHURCH AND SCHOOLS. NATIONAL GLEE BOOK, with Pianoforte Accompaniments. Price 3s. 6d.—BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

NOTICE.—HALF PRICE.—All Music and the best Editions, at half the published price, cost post-free. Extensive Catalogues gratis and post-free.—CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

FORTY DRAWING-ROOM PIECES.

SOUVIENS TOI. GANZ. 3s. 6d.
Sorrento. Gabes. 4s.
Hélène Nocturne. Campana. 4s.
Fleurette. Osborne. 3s. 6d.
Le Bracelet. Genod Gentle. 3s.
Ballerine Marches. Genod. 3s. 6d.
Sent post-free for Half-price.

THE NEW SUITE DUPUIS.

COOTE'S PAUL-Y-POOLE-Y-TECHNIC. On the Welsh Airs, "Ar hyd y nos," "Y Tydi and Paul y Poole." Price 4s. Illustrated by Sir Julius Benedict. "The Welsh Airs," "Married on Wet-me-day," and "A Thankful Tune." Price 4s.

"Enthusiastically received at Alfred Mellon's Concerts, and sung to a delighted audience."—Bell's Life.

HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

ELEGANT MUSICAL PRESENT, price 10s. 6d.

COOTE'S ALBUM OF SACRED MUSIC for the PIANOFORTE. Illustrated by Gilbert and Bennett in 32in. engravings on steel. HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

RISABELI POLKA. Price 3s.—"One of the prettiest polkas we have met with for some time. It is to be seen, not heard."—Punch.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

THE LAST SUCCESS.

COOTE'S CROQUET GALOP. Price 3s. "Full of life and spirit."—Morning Post. "Admirable."—Sun.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

COOTE'S FRANCONIA VALSE. Price 4s. "This single and beautiful Valse has become quite the rage of the season."—Sun.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE GALOP IN C.

COOTE'S PRINCE IMPERIAL GALOP. Price 3s. Rollercoaster effects at all the balls.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

THE BEST KEY EVER COMPOSED

COOTE'S CONSTANCIA VALSE. Price 4s. Introducing Clifton's celebrated Songs, "Isabella," "Rosecrown," and "Constancia."—Morning Post. "Charming."—Era.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE GALOP IN C.

COOTE'S HUMMING-BIRD VALSE. 4s. Considered the best set of Valses by this popular Composer.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

THE BEST SET OF LANCERS ARE

COOTE'S LANCERS. Price 4s. Introducing "The Pilgrim of Love," "My Pretty Page," "Sir Early in the Morning," and other popular Airs. A real merry set. No dance programme complete without them. Always encored.—HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

PLAYED EVERYWHERE.

COOTE'S EXTRAVAGANZA GALOP. 3s. The greatest hit of the season.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

CHAPMAN'S DÉBUTANTE VALSE. Price 4s. Also, by the same Composer, LA FLANEUR VALSE. Price 4s. Illustrated.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

A NEW SONG BY CAMPANA.

COME WHERE THE SUNLIGHT SHINES. A beautiful melody.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

NEW MUSIC.

SUNG BY C.C.C. CHRISTY MINSTRELS.

SNOW-WHITE BLOSSOMS. Ballad. 2s. 6d. And SONG OF THE CHRISTY MINSTRELS. 2s. 6d. Boosey and Co., 24, Holles-street.

CONFEDERATE SONGS.

My Maryland. 3s. 6d. My Southern Home. 3s. 6d.
Beauties Rise Flag. 3s. 6d. It is my country call. 3s. 6d.
Dowmeing Guardian. 3s. 6d. Boy of the Rappahannock. 3s. 6d.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

THE FAVOURITE SONG, BY F. BUCKLEY,

OH! IF I HAD BUT ONE TO LOVE ME, Is published at 2s. net, by Peter de Wint, Watercolour Gallery, 191, New Bond-street.

THE PRETTIEST SONG IS

SIGHING FOR THEE. Price 2s. 6d. By MARY MACKENZIE. A charming melody.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

MERRY SONGS.

The Peace Pipe	... ...	3s. 6d.
On board of the Kearsarge	... ...	3s. 6d.
The Rebel Flag	... ...	3s. 6d.
The Parting Ballad	... ...	3s. 6d.
Jessica Dewey	... ...	3s. 6d.
The Gallant Grey	... ...	3s. 6d.
Carry your friend in your pocket	...	3s. 6d.
Wanderlust Sprs	... ...	3s. 6d.
Look at the clock	... ...	3s. 6d.
Have you seen her lately?	... ...	3s. 6d.
Sweet Kate	... ...	3s. 6d.

HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

A NEW ARRANGEMENT OF SONG.

HAVE YOU SEEN HER LATELY. Price 2s. 6d. Sung everywhere.
HOWARD and CRAMER, 46, New Bond-street.

GASTON DE LILLE—BRIGHT EYES Fantaisie Brillante. Played by the popular Dame Concert Bouffe Hortense. Price 4s.

GASTON DE LILLE.—NINA. Serenade Espagnole for the Pianoforte. A most effective little piece. Price 3s.

METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

FOR A FEW DAYS. Galop. By TULLY. One of the best of the season. Played everywhere. Price 3s.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE FOUNDRY GALOP. By J. RIVIERE. With a splendid Illustration of the "Foundry Scene," from "Manfred Weber." Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

50 NURSERY SONGS and RHYMES, with 50 Pianoforte Accompaniments, suited to young people. Illustrated with a Chromolithograph of "The Nursery Ball Room," and a Comic Scale on the cover. Price 2s. 6d.; by post, 2s. 8d. The Companion Volume to "Fifty Popular Melodies."
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

THE BRIDE OF DUNKERRON. By HENRY SMART. Favourite Songs.
"The Full Moon beams on yonder rock." Price 2s.
"Our Home shall be on this bright Isle." Soprano, 2s. 6d. Contralto, 2s. 6d.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

KUHE'S LA PIQUANTE. Valse Impromptu. The latest and most attractive Pianoforte Piece by this popular Composer. Price 4s.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

MDME. OURY'S DANISH AIRS. Two Books for the Pianoforte, introducing "Is Boodle-Oo" and "Ye Mariners of England." Price 4s. each.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

EARLY LOVE. Third Edition of this most popular Song. Sung by Mr. T. H. Osborne. Composed by FRANK MORIARTY. Price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

LIMERICK IS BEAUTIFUL. Dan Geoghegan's celebrated Song. Sung by Mr. R. LEVEY. Price 2s. 6d.
METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

Now ready, price 1s.,

THE BOOK OF COMMON PRAYER WITH THE MUSICAL NOTES ARRANGED. This work has been most carefully revised by competent authorities, and is printed in a clear and very new type on superior pearl paper. Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges.

Also, THE BOOK OF ACCOMPANYING HARMONIES, arranged for the Organ by R. REDHEAD. Handsomely bound in cloth, red edges, 5s.

METZLER and Co., 37, Marlborough-street, London, W.

CONSTANCE.—The new Opera, in one act, composed by GEORGE LINLEY. Now performing at the Royal English Opera, with the greatest success. Vocal score, 10s. Pianoforte solo, 5s.

METZLER and Co., 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CONSTANCE.—I HAVE PLIGHTED MY TROTH. Ballad. Sung by Mdlle. Marimon, in the successful new Opera of CONSTANCE. Price 2s. 6d. Pianoforte duet, 3s. Violin and Pianoforte, 3s. 6d. Harmonium, 2s.

METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CONSTANCE.—A LOVELY MAID OF FRISIAN RACE. Sung by Mr. Santley in the successful new Opera composed by FREDERIC CLAY. Price 2s. 6d.

METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

CONSTANCE.—HOW SWEET TO PLUCK THE ROSE. Sung by Mr. Haigh in the successful new Opera of CONSTANCE, by FREDERIC CLAY. Price 2s. 6d. Vocal score, 10s. Pianoforte solo, 5s.

METZLER and Co., 37, 38, 37, and 38, Great Marlborough-street, W.

SACRED SONGS by Miss M. LINDSAY (Mrs. J. Blyth).

"THE SONG OF LOVE IN EDEN." Price 2s. 6d. (Poetry by Alfred Tennyson, Poet Laureate.)

"THOU WERT THE FIRST OF ALL I KNEW." 2s. 6d. (Words by Charles Swain.)

"O LOVE, THY GOD." 2s. 6d. (Words from Holy Writ.)

"THEY SHALL HUNGER NO MORE." 2s. 6d. (Words from Holy Writ.)

COME UNTO ME. 2s. 6d. (Words by Mrs. Hemans.)

"I WILL SING OF THY MERCIES." 2s. 6d. (Words by Miss Bliss.)

"I have set my face unto the Lord." 2s. 6d. (Words by Jane Taylor.) "The Lord is my Shepherd" 2s. 6d. (Words by Montgomery.)

"I know that my Redeemer liveth." 2s. 6d. (Words by Handel.)

"THE KING OF LOVE MY SHEPHERD IS." 2s. 6d. (Words by Sir H. W. Baker.) Enchanted Thule. 2s. 6d.; free for 16 stamps.

"Sacred Songs" by Miss M. Lindsay (Mrs. J. Blyth) are remarkable for their melodious flow, and for the appropriate accompaniments, so easy to play, yet so effective. The words are selected with great taste, and Mr. Wrighton's lighter and more graceful style of composition is well suited to them. Those who could well be used, for this composer is one of the surest and most pleasing writers of sacred music for drawing-rooms."—The Orchestra, Feb. 1, 1864.

London: ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-street; and may be had of all Music-sellers. Sent free for Half-price through any Co. Calendar.

THE STREETS OF LONDON QUADRILLES, by C. HALL. Played at the Princess's Theatre with immense success. Price 4s. Illustrated. Also, Illustrated with a view of the great Charing-cross Scene by Moonlight. ROBERT COCKS and Co., New Burlington-place, W.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S NEW SONG, I THINK IT LOOKS VERY MUCH LIKE IT. Published this day. Free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, Rathbone-place.

ARTHUR LLOYD'S GREATEST SUCCESSES. "Of course it's no business of yours" and "It's wonderful how we do it." Immensely funny. Illustrated. Each free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 6, Rathbone-place.

IXION. The New Medley Comic Song on Popular Tunes, with Musical Rhymes by H. Mayne. Illustrated by Cruikshank. Companion song to "Across the Ocean." Free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 6, Rathbone-place.

JOLLY DOGS; We are all Jolly Dogs; Such Jolly Dogs are we. An entirely new Comic-vial Song. Free for 18 stamps.—D'ALCORN, 6, Rathbone-place.

HARMONIUMS FOR HIRE at CHAPPELL'S—ALEXANDRE'S best Instruments:—

No.		Per Month.
1 and 2.	One Stop	10s. 6d.
3.	Five Stops	15s. 6d.
4.	Ten Stops	21s. 0d.
5.	Fourteen Stops	31s. 6d.
6.	Ditto, Percussion Action	42s. 0d.
7.	Fourteen Stops	42s. 0d.
12.	Fourteen Stops	63s. 0d.
13.	Twenty-two Stops	84s. 0d.
14.	Eight Stops, Two Rows of Keyboards	84s. 0d.
15.	Twenty-two Stops	105s. 0d.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL and CO.'S ENGLISH MODEL OF ORGANIC PIANOFORTE.—By sensations performing the right English taste of the Broadwood or Collard quality, the English model of organic pianoforte is unsurpassed for purity of tone and a moderate price. The same single-check repeater action as the above makers', and therefore especially adapted to the country, where the more complicated action are not understood by some of the tuners. In elegant rosewood case, with full fret, similar in appearance to the Broadwood pianoforte, price 50 guineas; in walnut, 46 guineas.

Chappell and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

BROADWOOD, COLLARD, and ERARD, and all the best Pianofortes by other makers, may be had on the Three Years' System, at Chappell's, where every variety of new and second-hand music of purchased at the very lowest scale of prices for ready money.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

CHAPPELL'S TWENTY-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany or plain walnut, the best pianoforte ever produced at the price. Its touch, tone, and general excellence have given it a reputation unequalled by any similar instrument. Each of these pianofortes is guaranteed for the same period, whether at the above price, whether of cottage or grand form.

50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S DRAWING-ROOM ORGAN, invented by the late Mr. Jacob Smith, and now in general use by the Nobility and Gentry. Chappell and Pianoforte and Harmonium-rooms upon application to CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SIX-GUINEA HARMONIUM, by ALEXANDRE, with five octaves, two fleeboards, and two rows of vibrators, the best harmonium ever produced at the price, and equal to all other cheap Harmoniums.

CHAPPELL and Co., 50, New Bond-street.

SECONDHAND HARMONIUMS, by ALEXANDRE, PEDDLE, and other makers, for SALE or HIRE, at greatly reduced prices, at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

ALEXANDRE'S PRIZE MEDAL HARMONIUM, price 50 guineas, in rosewood case, with two rows of vibrators, and with the knee-swell, worked by the knee, in such cases, 12 guineas. A large assortment may be always seen at CHAPPELL'S, 50, New Bond-street.

PIANOFORTES FOR HIRE

BOOSEY and CO.'S 84, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S SIX-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with trichord notes, suitable for a small room.—Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S TEN-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, in handsome cabinet form, suitable for class-singing or a school-room.

BOOSEY and Co.'S, Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S HARMONIUMS at 20, 25, 30, and 40 guineas, are warranted to be of extended compass, of the best possible manufacture, and of the greatest power for the number of stops. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S MINIATURE PIANO, price 37 guineas, in a walnut case, full compass. This instrument, although extremely small, is of the best possible quality of tone and touch and does not strike one as being a toy instrument. Boosey and Co., Holles-street.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 25-GUINEA PIANO has the Check Action, and is in a highly-finished elegant rosewood case. It is very modern in appearance, has a fine touch and tone of the kind which gives quality that especially distinguishes first-class pianofortes.

BOOSEY and CO.'S 35-GUINEA PIANO is a model Cottage English Piano, and as better can be desired. It is of handsome appearance, has the trichord keyboard, as well as the new grand compass of seven octaves.

BOOSEY and Co., Holles-street.

CASE'S ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, which have obtained the universal approbation of the profession, good, good quality of tone, and remain longer in tune than other Concertinas. Case's Manual for the 12 guineas. CASE, 20, Princes-street, Hanover-square.

MUSICAL BOXES.—BOOSEY and CO. beg to announce the arrival of a large supply of MUSICAL BOXES, manufactured by the celebrated NICOLE FRERES, of Geneva, containing a selection of the most favourite airs of the day, including selections from "Faust," "Martha," "Lucia," "Sonnambula," "Norma," &c.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB'S New Pianoforte is acknowledged the most elegant and effective Cottage Pianoforte ever introduced. Price 25 guineas. Drawings and descriptions forwarded free by the trade or the wondering tracked with price; plain woods cheaper.

OETZMANN and PLUMB, The only address.

PIANOFORTES.—OETZMANN and PLUMB are on hire for one year, when their instruments become the property of the hirer. New Pianettes, in walnut, 42 gs.; in rosewood, 45 gs. Pianettes, with trichord treble, in walnut, 45 gs. per quarter registered keyboard; more expensive instruments, with trichord treble, from 50 gs. per quarter. The system of hiring for one year is peculiar to OETZMANN and PLUMB, and the acquisition of all the repeaters illuminates in the United Kingdom.

OETZMANN and PLUMB, The only address.

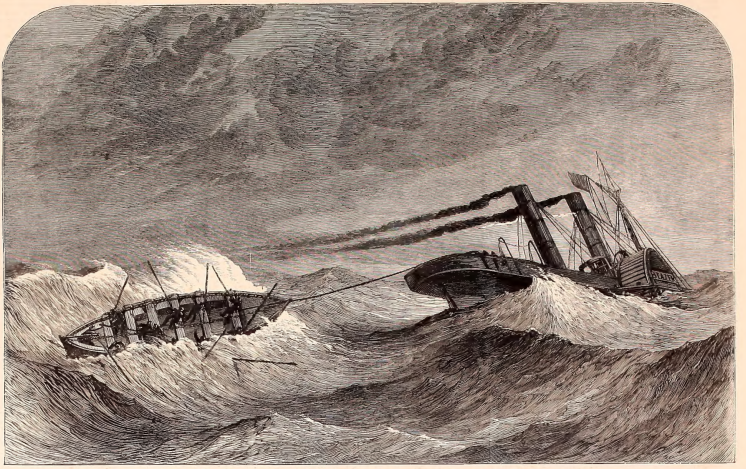
HARMONIUMS.—OETZMANN and PLUMB have all descriptions of Alexandre's Harmoniums for sale or hire, on the most favourable terms. The largest assortment in the world. Yet, in addition to the above, OETZMANN and PLUMB have a few second-hand, 25 guineas. 5, 7, 9, 12, 16 stops can be had either on hire or for sale, from 10 guineas upwards. Drawings and descriptions forwarded free by the trade or the wondering tracked with price.

OETZMANN and PLUMB, The only address.

OETZMANN and PLUMB undertake any repairs to Pianofortes and Harmoniums, which are executed by skilled workmen. Estimates given.—Address Oetzmann, 181, Regent-street.

FLUTE-HARMONIUMS, for NEW-YEAR'S GIFTS, with four beautiful stops, in rosewood cases, 9 guineas.

OETZMANN and PLUMB, 181, Regent-street.



LARGE SALE of SECONDHAND PIANOFORTES.—Pianofortes by the best makers such as may justly secure for purchasing a good, warranted Pianoforte at a moderate price.—OETZMANN and PLUMB, 181, Regent-street, The only address.

ENGLISH CONCERTINAS, by LACHENAL. Full compass, with all the latest Improvements, warranted for fine climates, and to keep well in tune. Sent free, two guineas; with case, and two tunes, 30s.

LACHENAL and Co., 20, New Bond-street.

PIANOFORTES and HARMONIUMS, by all the great Makers, for SALE or HIRE, at CRAMER and Co.'s Pianoforte Warehouses, 201, Regent-street, Bath. Parties met at the Metropolitan Railway Stations free of charge.

THE DOUBLE DISASTER AT THE MOUTH OF THE MERSEY.

UPSETTING OF THE LIVERPOOL LIFE-BOAT ON HER WAY TO RESCUE THE CREW OF THE LELIA.

THE wreck of the steamer Lelia off the north-west light-ship, at the mouth of the Mersey, on Saturday week, attended with the loss of twenty lives, was followed by the upsetting of the Liverpool Life-boat on her way to take some of the crew of the Lelia, who had got upon the light-ship, and seven of the life-boat men thus perished in their attempt to rescue the survivors of the former wreck. We present two Illustrations of this double disaster, which was briefly described in our last Number.

The Lelia, built by Messrs. W. C. Miller and Sons, of Liverpool, was a cutter-rigged steamer of 1100 tons burden, and of very light draught. The registered owners were Messrs. W. C. Rickarby and Co.; but the actual owner was Mr. W. C. Crenshaw. She was commanded by Captain Skinner; her first engineer was Mr. Middleton, and she was in charge of a Cork pilot; and there were also on board Mr. Thomas Miller, of the builders' firm, and Mr. Wm. Williams, who has lately been appointed third officer of No. 1 Liverpool pilot-boat. The crew and passengers of the Lelia altogether mustered between fifty and sixty persons. The Lelia left her moorings in the Mersey at half-past nine o'clock on Saturday morning, carrying about 700 tons of coal as cargo. On her arrival at Bermuda, however, she would have shipped a much more valuable cargo, with which she would doubtless have run the blockade into Wilmington. A Confederate officer, Captain Arthur St. Clair, was a passenger on board. The furious gale which arose on that morning caused a heavy sea; and when the Lelia came opposite to the Great Orme's Head, about two o'clock in the afternoon, the steamer was "slowed" for the purpose of taking the anchors in, lest they should be lost. When the anchors were got on board the Lelia shipped a heavy sea, which knocked the pea of one of the arms of the anchors through the deck. The iron covering of a small scuttle in the fore-part of the vessel was then washed away, and through this hole in her bows the Lelia shipped a succession of seas, which soon filled the fore-most part of the vessel. Two men named Brodey and Corvey were steering at the time, and in a few minutes they discovered that the steamer would not answer her helm. They then told the pilot that they thought the vessel was filling with water, and orders were given to have her speed still further slackened, for the purpose of discovering, if possible, where the water was getting in. This they were unable to do, as the decks were flooded, and presently another sea broke over her, smashing the fore-ward hatches; another sea lifted the anchor from the portion of the deck in which it was imbedded, and again sent the pea through with tremendous force. Attempts were then made to change the position of the steamer for the purpose of running her back, but she refused to answer her helm. At this time she was about six miles west of the north-west light-ship. She came up to the sea and lay a helpless body. She rapidly filled with water, and in a few minutes her forward compartments had sunk, and her stern was raised high out of the water. Orders were then given for her boats, four in number, to be lowered, but in the effort to get them afloat two were broken to pieces. The other two succeeded in getting away. Several persons were, it is feared, left on the vessel, and it is known that the captain and one of the men were left clinging to some tackle aboard. The two boats—one with eighteen persons and the other with twelve on board—succeeded in reaching the north-west light-ship. The boat with the eighteen, including the passengers (six or seven), first arrived, but was driven athwart the bows of the light-ship and swamped. Four men went down with her. Ropes were thrown from the light-ship, and four men were rescued. Mr. Miller, the son of the builder of the Lelia, seized a rope and was drawn close alongside. He was very much exhausted, and, on being seized by the leg by another drowning man, let go his hold and was lost. The two pilots were also lost. Their fate so alarmed the occupants of the second boat that four out of the twelve jumped overboard in the hope of being picked up. They were, however, all swept away and drowned. The other eight were rescued.

WRECK OF THE LELIA.

The news of the wreck of the Lelia was brought to Liverpool about noon on the Sunday by Captain Parry, of the steam-tug Blazer, who, on passing the vicinity of the north-west light-ship at an early hour, was hailed by the master to come alongside and take off the persons who had reached the light-ship from the wreck; but the Blazer was unable to do so on account of the violence of the gale and the high cross sea that was running. Captain Parry proceeded with all speed to the Prince's landing-stage, where he placed himself in communication with Captain Thorpe, and No. 1 life-boat left the stage about half-past twelve in tow of the Blazer. The life-boat was towed down the Rock Channel until it arrived near the mouth of the Horse Channel, at a point marked No. 79 on the chart, a short distance from the East Hoyle bank. The boat was suddenly struck by a heavy sea on the port bow. She capsized, and the whole of her crew were precipitated into the sea. The life-boat men are instructed on all occasions to put on their life-belts when going upon service. Unfortunately for them in this instance they did not take that wise precaution. The men, eleven in number, were for some time struggling in the water; four of them were rescued by the crew of the steam-tug, the remaining seven were unhappily drowned. Two of the poor fellows seized ropes and were drawn to the side of the tug, but were so exhausted that they let go their hold and sank; the others were swept away and also lost. Those saved are Thomas Hudson, master; G. Thomas, H. Hamill, and Henry Collins, of the crew. Those lost are R. Clark, B. Murphy, H. Green, John Manson, James and Peter Martindale, and Miller. After this dreadful accident the tug proceeded to the light-ship; but the sea was still so rough that she could not approach with safety, and, after lying by her for over an hour, she gave up the attempt and returned to the Prince's stage with her melancholy tale. The men of the Lelia who had sought refuge in the light-ship were subsequently taken off.

FINE ARTS.

Nothing, perhaps, shows more conclusively the growing public interest in fine art and the arts of design than the custom which has grown up during the last few years for members of Parliament and other persons of local distinction to preside at the annual meetings of the various schools of art all over the country, and upon such occasions deliver their views of the nature, history, or prospects of art, which views are generally considered of sufficient importance to be duly reported, sometimes at great length, in the daily papers. Within a very short time we have had reports of such addresses by Mr. Layard, M.P., at the Lambeth School of Art; by Sir Stafford Northcote, M.P., at the Exeter school; and by Lord F. C. Cavendish; Sir John Kay-Shuttleworth, M.P.; Sir John Pakington, M.P.; and Mr. John Laird, M.P., at the schools of Leeds, Liverpool, Kidderminster, and Birkenhead. Sir Stafford Northcote, who had been chairman of the committee appointed to inquire into the complaints of the art-masters against the revised code and the working generally of the Department of Art, confessed himself a convert to the principle of payment by results, and expressed himself satisfied that much good was being effected; but, at the same time, intimated his conviction that the central institution monopolised too much of the Parliament grant, and hinted that the proceedings of the department should be watched. Mr. Layard, to whom—as a discoverer not only of the buried remains of Assyrian art, but also in the whilom neglected and concealed sanctuaries of early Italian fresco-painting—all lovers of art owe a greater debt of gratitude than to any other man now living, delivered, as might be expected, an eloquent and interesting lecture. He sketched the whole history of art, from its birth on the banks of the Nile, the Euphrates, and the Tigris, down to its most recent manifestations on the borders of the Thames—particularly when working with the new materials, iron and glass. From the Egyptians and the Assyrians, Mr. Layard thought, the Greeks derived all the chief features of their arts. The Parthenon and all the great specimens of Doric art were clearly derived from Egyptian models, and recent discoveries in Assyria had furnished a remarkable fulfilment of Niebuhr's prophecy that Ionic art would be found, some day or other, to have an Asiatic origin. Architecture was the chief art by which the Romans were distinguished; the magnificent public buildings which they erected in their colonial cities far exceeded anything this country has ever produced. The culmination of Christian art, the first great examples of which are Giotto's works at Assisi, is fixed at Ghirlandajo—earlier than it is usually placed—though its perfection was never attained, owing to the decay of freedom—a questionable theory, which, though everywhere supposed to apply by Mr. Layard, will hardly explain the artistic backwardness of England. In speaking of contemporary works, the lecturer made, we think, some rather one-sided remarks on the absence of idealism in Mr. Herbert's picture of "Moses Bringing Down the Tables of the Law." The painter's intention was doubtless to avoid idealism; but the figures in that work, though real, are not ignoble, and the artist's realism is in strict conformity with that spirit of scientific inquiry which is one of the most remarkable, if not also one of the most hopeful, signs of the time. But, generally, we are less disposed to go with Mr. Layard when he deals in contemporary criticism than when he treats of ancient art. We cannot forget, for instance, that the estimate attributed to him, in the Quarterly Review and elsewhere, of Mr. Watts's capabilities as a mural painter far above all other English artists has scarcely been borne out, though sufficient opportunities have been afforded.

A very general opposition has arisen in Scotland to the proposal recommended by the Royal Committee of Advice for selecting Arthur's Seat as the site of the Edinburgh Albert memorial. A great deal of surprise was expressed when the site was first named, and some ridiculously absurd designs (though apparently accepted as serious by certain of our southern contemporaries) have been proposed for it. On the 12th inst., at a full meeting of the Architectural Institute of Scotland, in pursuance of a unanimous requisition of the members, a petition was drawn up memorialising the committee that the site on Arthur's Seat is unsuitable for any monument; and there is no doubt that the great majority of the press and the public is of the same opinion. It seems to have been felt among architects and sculptors that the site in dispute would not be finally chosen, seeing that some of the best of the sixty competitive designs for the memorial now exhibited in the Scottish National Gallery appear to be intended for one or other of the sites within the city. If it be desirable to choose an elevated position, the Calton Hill offers several such; and there are many sites with diverse advantages within the city; indeed, any of the others enumerated in the advertisement of the committee would be superior to the one they express a preference for. Arthur's Seat is unsuitable for the memorial on account of the peculiarity of its outline, and more especially because of the wild aspect of uncultivated nature which it possesses, through which it appears not to belong to the city, though near to it, and with which an elaborate artificial structure could not be brought to harmonise.

A remarkably effective and artistic lamp standard and ventilating shaft has been erected over the subway, Southwark-street. The work shows the great improvement that is taking place in the cast-iron ornamental manufactures of the country.

The designs of the late Mr. Crawford, the American sculptor, for the bronze doors for the wings of the Capitol at Washington are being carried out at Rome by Mr. Reinhart. Each door has eight compartments, representing scenes in the War of Independence. One door was sent off last summer to be cast in America, and the other will follow in the course of the next year. We described, on its erection, the elaborate and costly principal door of the Capitol.

A very fine memorial window to Handel has been set up in Redcliff Church, Bristol. It is commemorative of the first hundred years after the great composer's death. The artists were Messrs. Clayton and Bell.

M. Doublemard has been selected to execute the great memorial work which is to be raised on the spot lately occupied by the Barrière de Clichy, Paris, to commemorate the defence against the allies made there under Marshal Moncey in 1814. The artist's design consists of a principal group representing the Marshal protecting with his sword an allegorical figure of the city of Paris, and being supported by four other figures—a Garde Nationale, a man of the people, a Polytechnic student, and a pensioner.

CURRENT LITERATURE.

Life of Michael Angelo. By Herman Grimm. Translated, with the Author's sanction, by Fanny Elizabeth Bunnètt. (Smith, Elder, and Co.) Florence has many claims to be considered the capital of Italy; and not the least amongst them is the fact that she produced Dante, Leonardo da Vinci, and Michael Angelo. Of the three great citizens the last was the greatest; he in his own person proved the sisterhood of poetry and painting; as a sculptor and an architect he towers above others; the workings of his spirit had an influence upon his country almost equal to that of Luther upon Germany; he became, indeed, a part of Italy, and those who flocked to see Italian wonders reckoned Michael Angelo the first of them all. "The connection of his fate," says Herr Grimm, "with that of his country, and the tenour of his works, has not yet been generally perceived. In this respect I have felt that to attempt a description of his life would be a useful work." The usefulness of the work would hardly be disputed even by a sceptic; and two more deeply interesting volumes have seldom been offered to the public. They follow—at a considerable interval, no doubt, but not so long a one as to destroy connection—in the wake of that excellent novel, "Romola," in which Savonarola, the Arrabiati, and the Piagnoni, the infatuated worship of Plato and classicism, the bloodless battles of mailed hosts, and the disturbed state of Florence are so described as to beget in the reader a desire to know more of the times in which the greatest of Italians passed his youth. All, therefore, who have read "Romola" will welcome this "Life of Michael Angelo," and all who have not will do well to study the novel and the life together. The very advanced age to which Michael Angelo lived of course carries down the history of his life and times to a date considerably beyond that of the events recorded in the novel; but the novel will awaken a yearning to learn how the national mind was influenced for many a long year after Savonarola's martyrdom by the mighty genius of Michael Angelo. Herr Grimm appears to have made his work as perfect as it could be made by careful research and diligence; and he has interspersed it with striking criticisms. His translator, too, has rendered his German into very readable English. A doubt occasionally arises about the verbal accuracy of the translation, but the inaccuracy is usually of little consequence: for instance, it is said (vol. i. p. 189) that Savonarola, after he was released from torture, "revoked everything;" recanted is the usual term in English, but it is very difficult in translation to always hit upon the exact word when there is a choice of equivalents. It may be presumed that the German verb was widerrufen, which certainly means to revoke; but it also means to recant, which was to all appearances the word wanted. In other respects the translation seems to be all that could be wished for.

A Journey from London to Persepolis. By John Ussher, F.R.G.S. (Hurst and Blackett.) This is a lordly volume: it contains above seven hundred pages (including the convenient index); its proportions are noble; its many coloured illustrations are sumptuous; and its readability is considerable. The author's chief object in his journey "was to penetrate into the mountains of Daghestan, so long the scene of the unequal conflict between Schamyl and the Russian Power." The author and his friend were in search of pleasure and amusement; and Mr. Ussher, listening to a suggestion "that a description of the route passed over by them might be useful to future travellers in such comparatively untrodden countries," has considerately published the account of his wanderings. And his consideration is likely to be thankfully appreciated both by travellers in the body and travellers in the spirit. For there are those—and they are the most numerous readers of books of travel—who, though they seldom stir from their own fireside, love to wander in spirit to distant lands; who would fain learn all that can be told them about the semi-fabulous Schamyl and his wondrous feats; who never tire of tales relating to Silistria, Sebastopol, Bakchi Serai, Kertch, Kars, and many another place where Englishmen have fought and bled; who linger gladly over all that is recorded about "the mysteries of the vast ruins of Mesopotamia and Southern Persia;" and who are never so well contented as when they can follow at their ease the narrative of adventurous travellers. To their notice Mr. Ussher's book is commended: it abounds with information and entertainment. It is gratifying to find that Mr. Ussher found no obstacle in that jealousy which is frequently attributed to the Russians. He says "his success in accomplishing his wishes is due to the kindness and hospitality which he everywhere met with from the Russian officers, who, far from throwing obstacles in his way, as he was told would be the case, facilitated his progress by every means in their power."

The Tale of Danish Heroism. By J. E. H. Skinner, Special Correspondent of the Daily News during the late War. (Bickers and Son.) Mr. Skinner's short narrative is worthy of being added to those of Mr. Gallenga and Mr. Edward Dicey, his fellow-correspondents of the London daily press; and that of the Hon. Mr. Herbert, an amateur in the Danish camp. He does not, at least in this volume, profess an impartial neutrality; but gives vent, as freely as either of the other writers just named, to his ardent sympathy with the Danes. In this sentiment, we believe, nine out of every ten Englishmen are disposed to agree with him; and now that all chances are past of our being obliged to go to the expense of a European war for the Danish rule in Schleswig, we shall not grudge the affectionate admiration with which Mr. Gallenga and Mr. Skinner have praised the virtues of the Danish national character. Indeed, Mr. Skinner has much more to tell us of the social life and habits of the people, including their officers and soldiers, than of the management of that disastrous yet not inglorious campaign, the result of which is to relieve Denmark henceforth from the costly and invidious pretension to reign over German subjects. But, as we do not now want either a treatise on the political merits of this quarrel or a report of the military operations by which it was settled, we are content to overlook the partiality of his account of those transactions, and to enjoy his very agreeable descriptions of the country and its good folk. When the sad story of so much wasted valour as was spent, between February and April, in the utterly hopeless defence of the earthen ramparts of Düppel Hill shall have been almost forgotten, with the rest of the dreary annals of modern warfare, there may still be a charm in such pictures of the domestic manners of a nation which really seems to possess within itself, by the healthiness of its moral temperament, more elements of true happiness than any except our own; and we are naturally inclined to believe that whatever is best in the Danish character exists with no less vigour in the English as nearest of kin. But, without too severely analysing the satisfactory impression made upon us by those idyllic stories of household comfort, honesty, and kindness in the Isle of Alsen with which the Times correspondent supplied us last spring, we may remark that his testimony is entirely confirmed by that of Mr. Skinner. He also visited the hospitable parsonage of Ulkeböl, and made acquaintance with that hearty Lutheran pastor—a fit colleague for the good man of Voss's "Luise"—destined to become immortal as a type of ideal jollity in the class of country clergymen in the North of Europe. Not less attractive are Mr. Skinner's anecdotes of the company he met with at Herr Sörensen's, in the town of Sönderburg, where the ladies of the family would make tea in the evening, with music and perhaps a little dancing, for the brave gentlemen in epaulettes who had passed a weary day upon Düppel Hill; or at the Victoria Hotel, in the town of Fredericia, where he sojourned a few days. The actual combats and labours of the siege, witnessed by him so far as he had the opportunity, are simply and truthfully related, but not with so much completeness as by other writers. The spirit of the Danish army and people is, however, fairly expressed by him; and the result of his observations, animated by a frank and vivid sympathy, is a readable and interesting little book.

The Joys and Sorrows of a Schoolmaster. By One of Themselves. (W. Allan and Co.) This little German story, translated into racy and idiomatic English by the well-known teacher, Mr. Falck-Lebahn, is one of the truest and most lifelike pictures of rustic society in Switzerland, and generally in the Protestant countries of Europe, with which we are acquainted. The office of parish schoolmaster being second only to that of the parson in the influence which it must have upon the social and domestic affairs of the village, German novelists, from Jean Paul Richter downwards, have often chosen the schoolmaster's experiences for the subject of their idyllic or satirical descriptions. But the present narrative seems to have been originally composed with the special object of illustrating the defective sytems of provision for the teaching of the children of the peasantry, at least in the Canton of Berne, at the date of this story. Some thirty years ago, the Federal Council of Switzerland, seeking to put an end to the difficulties and dissensions which had baffled the Board of Education in its attempts to regulate the duties and stipends of the village schoolmasters, ordered the whole of that class to undergo an examination by commissioners appointed for the purpose, with a view to prove whether they were worthy of an augmentation of their salaries. The effect of this measure, though shrewdly devised as a test of the earnestness of those who professed, with Fellenberg of Hofwyl, to set up a high standard of popular education, was to inflict cruel disappointment upon a large proportion of the schoolmasters, whose hopes of self-advancement had been unduly excited by the political declaimers on their behalf. Something of the same kind has been experienced during the last fifteen or twenty years in England from the operation of the rules of the Committee of Council; but in Switzerland, about the year 1836, the process of applying a stricter Governmental supervision to the schools, and insisting upon higher qualifications for teachers, was performed in a more sudden and summary fashion. The old, ignorant, incompetent schoolmasters were not indeed ejected, but were refused that accession of privileges which was offered to abler men. What must be the situation of an unfortunate rural pedagogue like Peter Kaiser of Gytiwyl, a married man with a large family, who, living in the greatest penury, has yet solaced himself with the flattering assurance that his local reputation for learning and skill in his profession will some day obtain their reward? A subject so rich in the elements both of humourous and pathetic interest as the development of this character, with his simple vanity chastised by a series of mortifying adventures from boyhood till middle age, but with the counsels and sympathy of a wise little wife and of a sagacious well-informed neighbour to help him on, must recommend this piece of autobiography to all readers of the homely sort of fiction. They will perhaps find Peter a sad fool, and something even of a sneak, at the outset of his life; but he will be forgiven, no doubt, in consideration of the faults of his rearing and training; while those who have patience with his confessions will come to like the poor fellow as they see him gradually improved by the moral lessons of adversity, with Mädely's affectionate tenderness and Wehrdi's practical advice to cheer and guide him through his rugged path in the world.

De Profundis. By William Gilbert. (2 vols. Strahan.) The title of this work is explained by a subordinate one. It is called "a tale of the social deposits;" that is to say, the characters in it are drawn (with the exception of one eccentric old gentleman who is murdered) from the lowest order of men and women. There is no attempt at any sort of plot; and, so far as the hero is concerned, his career may be described in a very few words. He is a foundling; he is discovered by a soldier, the husband of a washerwoman, lying upon a basket of clothes; he is adopted by the washerwoman and her husband; he is nursed chiefly by their daughter; he becomes a drummer-boy in the Guards; he deserts in a very original and humorous manner; he "chances it" in the streets; he obtains a situation as assistant to a poulterer; he marries—out of sheer gratitude and heart-felt, not eye-felt, affection—the ungainly, freckled, red-haired, loving nurse of his infancy; he acquires a taste for drink after he has been ordered brandy medicinally; he consequently gets into trouble and falls among thieves; he is tried for murder and honourably acquitted; he, through the honesty of himself and his wife, gains a friend and helper; and he ultimately earns a comfortable subsistence as a flourishing poulterer in Sydney. The foundling never discovers his parents; nor is there any romance connected with his birth. We have no doubt that his history is a true picture of real life, but it is not written in the style which attracts readers of novels. There is little or no art employed by the author, and the expectation raised by the opening scenes of the story is not fulfilled. There is a grand simplicity in the character of the soldier's wife, and even in that of her husband, which impresses one greatly; and there is an originality of conception and treatment in the first few chapters which raises hopes destined to be unfulfilled. The sketches which follow are probably true to the life; but they too nearly resemble loosely-strung-together police reports and reformatory memoranda to rivet the attention. We sincerely regret that the middle and the end of the tale are so unequal to its commencement.

Village Life in Switzerland. By Sophia Duberly Delmard. (Longmans.) An agreeable, chatty, sprightly book, in which pleasant and unpleasant details are entered into—the former with gusto, the latter without any false delicacy. Swiss scenery, Swiss mountains, Swiss climbing, and Swiss travelling have been described over and over again; but a long residence in a Swiss village is a comparatively novel subject for a book. Our author enters freely into the minutiæ of Swiss domestic economy; and those who, for retrenchment's sake, contemplate a sojourn in the free republic will do well to read what is now offered them before they commit themselves irrevocably to that of which they may afterwards repent. One has heard a great deal of the chastity and sobriety of the Swiss; but any who would learn what can be said on the other side can consult our author and be enlightened by her experience of three years' residence at Bex.

The Chasseur d'Afrique, &c. By Colonel Walmsley. (Chapman and Hall.) Two simple but stirring tales, each (Colonel Walmsley says) literally true: one is a narrative of a French officer's adventures during the Italian war, and of his death, treacherously accomplished, at the Battle of Solferino; the other takes us back to the days of the First Consul and English prowess upon the seas.

Lazarus, and other Poems. By E. H. Plumptre, M.A. (Strahan.) Religious poems (for what reason it were tedious to discuss) are, for the most part, inferior to profane. Croly, and Milman, and Keble, and some few others have succeeded in uniting religion with real poesy; but the success is limited to few. Mr. Plumptre, however, may fairly take a prominent place amongst those few; he has brought imagination, learning, mastery of rhythm, grace of diction, and power of expression to his work; and the result is an unusually good collection of religious poems. His translation of the Song of Deborah is remarkably fluent and vigorous.

Barefooted Birdie. By T. O'T. Edited by Charles Felix. (Saunders, Otley, and Co.) It is late in the day to notice what is called "a simple tale for Christmas;" but it is a tale which will suit all seasons. It is simple indeed, and it is also pretty and affecting. Scoffers may sneer at it as mawkish, and laugh at "Birdie" as an impossible child, as several angels in the shape of one small mortal; but the sweet verses at the heads of the several chapters are themselves worth reading and remembering, and the tale inculcates a lesson of childish piety, cheerfulness, and unselfishness which may be profitably laid to heart.

The Public-houses Closing Act has been unanimously adopted by the Halifax Town Council.

Colonel Charras, whose death was prematurely announced some days ago, died on Monday morning at Basle.

In a correspondence which has taken place in the columns of the Scotsman, Professor Aytoun states that he never was editor of Blackwood's Magazine. "For nearly twenty years," he says, "Mr. John Blackwood has been the sole editor of the magazine."

In consequence of the annexation of the Ionian Islands to Greece, an alteration, attended with an increase of postage, has become necessary in the arrangements for the transmission of correspondence between this country and the Ionian Islands. On the 1st of February next, and thenceforward, the following rates of postage (British and foreign combined) will be chargeable on letters, newspapers, and books, addressed to the Ionian Islands, if sent viâ Italy:—Letters:—Not exceeding quarter ounce, 8d.; and 8d. for each additional quarter ounce. For each newspaper: Not exceeding 4 oz. in weight, 4d.; above 4 oz., and not exceeding ½ lb., 8d. For a packet of printed papers other than newspapers: Not exceeding 4 oz. in weight, 6d.; above 4 oz., and not exceeding ½ lb., 1s.; and for every additional ½ lb., 1s. The postage on letters may be either paid in advance or left to be charged on delivery, at the option of the sender; but the postage on newspapers, books, &c., must be prepaid, or they cannot be forwarded. Letters addressed to the Ionian Islands, viâ Italy, may be registered on payment, in advance, of a registration fee of sixpence, in addition to the ordinary postage. All correspondence for the Ionian Islands will be sent viâ Italy, unless directed to be forwarded by another route. Letters for other parts of Greece will continue, as a rule, to be sent by French packet, viâ Marseilles, but they may also be forwarded viâ Italy, if specially so addressed, at the foregoing rates of postage, which are lower than those hitherto charged on letters addressed to Greece proper. Letters, &c., addressed to the Ionian Islands, viâ Italy, must, as at present, be posted in, or reach, London not later than Wednesday morning in each week, and on the mornings of the 3rd, 10th, 18th, and 26th of each month; or, when either of those dates falls on a Sunday, on the previous evening.

MUSIC.

A new operetta, in one act, entitled "Constance," was produced at the Royal English Opera, Covent-garden, on Monday last. It was performed before the pantomime, which still continues to "run" with undiminished success and profit to the management. This little opera likewise promises to have a run. The music is from the pen of Mr. Frederick Clay (a young amateur, we understand), who appears to be not only gifted by nature with extraordinary talents, but to possess the attainments of a skilful artist. The libretto has less merit than the music. It is made up of very ordinary materials—the mere common-places, in short, of the stage. There is a Polish town, inhabited by patriots, but in the hands of the hostile Russians. The Commandant, a regular melodramatic savage, wishes to obtain the hand of a noble Polish lady (the heroine); and, on her declining his addresses, endeavours to force her consent by threatening the life of her lover, who is his prisoner. This attempt at compulsion of course fails. The lover refuses his life on such terms, and the tyrant orders his immediate execution. He is led out to be shot, when the tables are turned by the sudden appearance of a body of Polish troops, who overpower the Russians, recapture the town, and save the lives of the heroine and her lover. All this is crambe decies cocta, and the comic matter introduced by way of enlivening the subject is of the same hackneyed kind. There is little in the subject to inspire the musician, and the composer has all the more merit in producing music of so agreeable a character. It cannot be said to have much novelty; for, as is well known, the inventive faculty is slowly developed, and the greatest composers have rarely been original in the early stages of their career. But Mr. Clay's melodies are fluent, graceful, and often expressive; his concerted pieces are ably constructed; and his instrumentation shows no small skill and knowledge of orchestral effect. The piece was, on the whole, well performed. The parts of the heroine and her lover were sustained by Mdlle. Martorelle and Mr. Henry Haigh, who sang several airs and duets with expression and effect. The comic part of a young Polish girl disguised as a Russian vivandière was acted and sung by Miss Thirlwall with much liveliness; and Mr. Aynsley Cooke threw a sufficient quantity of stolid brutality into the character of the Russian Commandant. But the music assigned to him was not well suited to his voice; and, moreover, there was too much music for an essentially unmusical part. The piece was warmly applauded; and the composer, as well as the principal performers, were called for after the fall of the curtain.

There has been nothing new during the past week at Her Majesty's Theatre; but the English version of M. Maillard's new opera, "Lara," which we mentioned last week, is to be produced this evening. This opera, which has been performed at Paris more than a hundred times consecutively, has been adapted to the English stage by Mr. John Oxenford, with his well-known skill, and promises to be an entertainment of more than ordinary attraction.

Spohr's oratorio, "The Last Judgment," and Mendelssohn's sacred cantata, the "Lobgesang" (Hymn of Praise), were the works performed by the Sacred Harmonic Society on Friday week, the 20th instant. The announcement of these masterpieces of the two greatest sacred composers of the present century had the effect of filling Exeter Hall to overflowing, and the performance was one of the grandest ever given by the society. The principal singers in "The Last Judgment" were Mdme. Lemmens-Sherrington, Mdme. Sainton-Dolby, Messrs. Cummings and Patey; in the "Lobgesang," Mdme. Sherrington, Mrs. Sydney Smith, and Mr. Cummings. Mr. Sims Reeves was to have appeared in the latter piece, but was disabled by a severe accident to one of his eyes, under the effects of which he is still suffering. "The Last Judgment," the earliest and greatest of Spohr's sacred works, which had been unaccountably laid aside by the Sacred Harmonic Society for not less, we believe, than twenty years, made a profound impression on the audience; and Mendelssohn's beautiful cantata, which, being more frequently performed, is more familiar to the public, produced its neverfailing effect. The same performances were repeated last night.

The second Monday Popular Concert, at St. James's Hall, on Monday evening last, was as excellent and successful as usual. The principal pieces were Mendelssohn's stringed-instrument quartet in E flat; Beethoven's sonata for the pianoforte and violin, dedicated to Count Waldstein; Mozart's quintet in A for the clarinet and stringed instruments; and Hummel's pianoforte trio in E flat. The performers were:—First and second violins, Messrs. Straus and Ries; viola, Mr. Webb; violoncello, M. Paque; pianoforte, M. Hallé; and clarinet, Mr. Lazarus. The singers were Mdlle. Florence Lancia and Miss Susan Galton.

A French version of Mozart's "Zauberflöte" is about to be produced at the Théâtre Lyrique with extraordinary splendour. It remains to be seen whether any amount of splendour can make up for the unparalleled absurdity of the subject. At the same theatre a new opera, called "L'Aventurier," by Prince Poniatowski, is in preparation.

Another English singer has made a successful début in Italy. A young tenor, Mr. John Morgan, has appeared at Milan in the character of Alfredo, in the "Traviata," with a degree of éclat which has increased with every repetition of the performance. He is said to have a voice of the finest quality, and to sing with remarkable taste and expression.

The public will learn with pleasure that Mr. Vincent Wallace, who has been so ill at Paris that his life was almost despaired of, is now in a state of convalescence.

"Several journals," writes the Gazette Musicale of Paris, "have made mention of the recent discovery in the archives of the theatre of the opera at Prague—where Mozart's 'Don Giovanni' was represented for the first time in 1787—of the original score of this chef d'œuvre, in four volumes of music written in Mozart's own handwriting, and add that the manuscript has been purchased for 3000 florins by the Imperial Museum of Vienna. If this be true, Mozart must have written the score twice over, for all the world supposes that Mdme. Viardot is in possession of an authenticated score of 'Don Giovanni,' which she preserves with religious care, and for which she paid a large sum." Why not compare the two copies?

THE THEATRES.

Some dash of novelty becomes necessary here and there even during the holiday weeks; for the spirit of pantomime, though generally prevalent, is not universally present. Mr. Fechter, in seeking to do without its aid, depends on the attraction of his own talents. On Saturday, accordingly, we find him appearing at the Lyceum as Robert Macaire, in a new version of an old French drama, in which M. Frederick Lemaitre achieved a remarkable triumph, and in which also our English actors, the late Mr. Yates and Mr. H. Wallack, once attracted all English playgoers. The new version is entitled "The Roadside Inn." Mr. Fechter, in melodramatic characters, is equal to the best of these, and, besides, shows an originality of genius which enables him to appropriate any part he may select to himself. He manifests in his performance of Robert Macaire the daring audacity, the imperturbable self-reliance, and the irrepressible pathos of a felon but not unnatural character—a brave spirit in an ignominious garb, and by circumstances degraded to the level and necessities of criminal adventure. The character, however, does not stand alone, but is accompanied with a companion-part, that of Jacques Strop, whose excessive timidity shows the daring of the principal criminal all the stronger from contrast. Mr. Fechter is happy in having so effective a supporter as Mr. Widdicomb, whose broad, thoroughgoing style brought out the cowardly traits of the poor delinquent with extreme force. The audience, notwithstanding the dense fog on Saturday, was numerous and respectable; the applause was frequent, and the demonstrations of delight at the end were of the most decided and satisfactory kind.

The theatrical reader will be glad to learn that the bankruptcy of Mr. Paul Bedford will be superseded by an arrangement with his creditors. He will take a complimentary benefit at Drury Lane, on Thursday, Feb. 2. Messrs. Falconer and Chatterton have liberally given the free use of the house, and nearly all the actors and actresses in London have promised their support.

Herr Mosenthal's drama of "Deborah" will be revived at the Grecian Theatre on Monday week, when Miss Edith Heraud will reappear in the character of the Jewish maiden.

As a proof that theatrical prosperity is now at a far higher level than it has been for many years, we may mention that the Queen's Theatre, Tottenham-court-road, will shortly be under the management of Miss Marie Wilton, and that Mr. Byron has been engaged to write exclusively for it.

NATIONAL SPORTS.

MR. GREVILLE was buried at Hatchford, near Cobham, on Tuesday. In these days, when many of the best men take no active part and hot-headed counsels are in the ascendant, the old man will be sorely missed from the debates of the Jockey Club chamber. He might be outvoted, but his opponents must have had a secret consciousness that his views would be upheld in that higher court of public opinion, to which, sooner or later, they would have to bow. He had had a fine turf schooling. While he was still at Eton, in 1809, he saw Pope win the Derby, and a very few years after he was managing for the Duke of York, and won the same race for his Highness with Moses. For a time he was confederate with Lord Chesterfield, before his Lordship left Prince's for Scott's, and then with his cousin, Lord George Bentinck. Two such strong heads did not remain in unison for ever, and the rupture was bitter enough. In Mr. Payne he had a far more congenial spirit, and "Payne and Greville" had long been a turf-rallying word when tact and good sense were required "in a difficulty." Nat rode for him for nearly five-and-twenty years. As a racing man, he had quite his fair share of good things with Mango, Preserve, Alarm, Adine, Frantic, Quince, Muscovite, and others of less note; and Orlando was a grand stud purchase. Still, as a breeder he was not remarkably lucky. He once sold yearlings for great prices, and got 1000 gs. for Canto and 910 gs. for Greenfinch; but latterly the high-priced ones turned out badly, and he was not holding his ground in the averages. He had not been to Tattersall's since the second day of the year, and his last words, when he left the yard, were to tell Mr. Tattersall to be sure to take the old pump to the new place. To gout he had been a martyr for several years; but other diseases combined to hasten his decay; and the death of his brother Algernon, a few weeks since, gave him a severe shock. No man understood the world and politics more thoroughly, or dealt with them so deftly, and "Raikes's Recollections," pleasant as they are, will be very meagre by the side of Greville's, if they are ever to see the light.

It is accepted by the public as a fact that Breadalbane and Broomielaw have passed into Mr. Henry Chaplin's hands for £11,000 and contingencies, and that they will still receive their tuition at I'Anson's. If the public prices be correct, four horses within a very short date have been sold for about £20,000. One of the directors of the Agricultural Hall was very anxious, at the last horse show, to offer the owner of Vermouth £500 to send the bay over as "the sensation conqueror" of Blair Athol; but the directors did not acquiesce, and the offer was never made. Now it is said that the Yorkshire Society (which purpose having a hound show, as they had during their Pontefract week) were so anxious to exhibit Blair Athol next August at the scene of his latest triumph, that they offered Mr. Jackson £50 for the use of him for those two days; and that he liberally responded to the effect that, if the chestnut were properly housed, they should have him for nothing.

Mr. Joy's pictures of the old green and yard at Tattersall's are progressing very rapidly. Admiral Rous is the leading portrait in the former, and it is the lawgiver to the life as he strolls along with his hand in his breast. Sir Robert Peel is also very admirable, and so is Mr. Morris; and the selection of the rest of the characters is from all ranks and degrees. The yard represents the scene on the Milward Monday, when the masters of hounds throng the yard to hear the last Derby on dits and to see "the ponies" of the year sold. Sir Watkin Wynne's and Mr. Foljambe's are, so far, very remarkable likenesses; but a great deal is yet required to make the pictures ready for exhibition. As mementos of the racing and hunting men who flourished at the end of the first Eclipse centenary, they will possess much interest and value.

The voting for judge of the Waterloo Cup has produced, as we anticipated last week, a very sharp contest. Mr. Warwick, who has judged for the last three or four seasons, was at the head of the poll with twenty-six votes, and Mr. Westropp second with twenty-two. There were three votes for Mr. A. Bennett, and thirteen did not vote. Of the sixty-four nominations, fourteen are Scotch and six Irish. The Border Union Meeting at Netherby has been a great success. The Borderers stuck to their old favourite, Heart of King; but King Death's own brother, Johnny Cope, "went through the cup" in flying style, and was immediately secured by Mr. Stocker for Waterloo. When the Canaradzo blood does run, it does run. Curiously enough, Johnny Cope was drawn against his own brother for his first course. Heart of King was beaten by the winner in the third ties, and for the decider "Johnnie" went right away from Meg, who won this cup last year. The Kingwaters did not fare very well in the Tenants' Purse, as three out of the four went down in their first course. The winner, Rower, is by Seacombe; and, as he has also run very well at Altcar, he will most likely go to Waterloo. Nearly all the running was on fine open pasture. At Barton-on-Humber the hares were short, and the greyhounds moderate.

Sir Watkin Wynne's pack were stopped on the 16th by the frost, but up to that time they had had very fair sport, considering the changeable weather. They had the fastest thing of the season on the 9th—thirty-five minutes from Petton, and killed in the open. The Cheshire were stopped from the same cause two days after, but they have had good sport, and run twenty and a half brace of foxes to ground and killed twenty-nine brace. The 19th of January was a great day with them, when they killed after twenty-five minutes from Mere Moss to Tabley Park, lost a second fox near Arley after thirty-five minutes, got on his line when they went to draw again, and killed him in the open after another thirty-five minutes. Peter Collisson is just the man for the country, and is giving immense satisfaction. No one since Joe Maiden has suited them quite so well. The Belvoir have suffered from indifferent scent and bad hunting weather, but they have had a good day occasionally and killed their forty brace of foxes. Wild weather and catching frost have also been dreadfully against the Quorn. The 16th and 17th were capital days with them—one over the Vale of Belvoir, and the other from Bilton, when they killed their first fox. On the 19th they had a nice run into the Atherstone country, so that they may be said to have been visiting their neighbours for a change. The Pytcheley have been stopped with frost since Friday; and, considering the drought, they have done pretty well. It is also very dry and hard in the Milton country. They had, however, a very capital ten-mile run on the 11th with an afternoon fox to ground and "horses all over the country." On the next Tuesday they had a rare day, and on Thursday week a run of 1h. 40m., which ended in his going to ground twenty miles from the kennels. Every hound was up at the earth, and many a hunter did not see his own stable that night.

In digging for the foundation of a mosque, near the village of Hieropetros, Candia, on the site of some ancient ruins, three statues have been found, of which the Levant Herald gives the following particulars:—One of them is the colossal statue of a warrior. It appears to be unfinished, but is of excellent workmanship; on the breastplate are several emblems, and on the middle is a figure standing near two winged figures crowning a youth. The right hand is wanting. The second of the statues appears to be an Oceana, with a small stag crouching at her feet. The third is a male figure.

The Judges of the Court of Queen's Bench, the Court of Common Pleas, and the Court of Exchequer have chosen their different circuits, as follow:—The Norfolk Circuit, the Lord Chief Justice Cockburn and Mr. Justice Williams; the Home Circuit, the Lord Chief Baron Pollock and Mr. Baron Bramwell; the Western Circuit, Mr. Justice Crompton and Mr. Baron Channell; the Midland Circuit, Mr. Baron Martin and Mr. Justice Willes; the Oxford Circuit, Mr. Justice Keating and Mr. Baron Pigott; the Northern Circuit, Mr. Justice Shee and Mr. Justice Mellor; the North Wales Circuit, Mr. Justice Byles; the South Wales Circuit, Mr. Justice Blackburn. The Lord Chief Justice Erle, of the Court of Common Pleas, will stay in town to try cases that will come before him as Judge at Chambers.

MEMBERS OUT OF PARLIAMENT.

IN contemplating the rush—easily accounted for—of members just now into the more or less sympathetic company of their constituents, one experiences a sort of tonic sense of change when coming into contact with gentlemen over the border. As a rule, Scottish members are not so demonstrative as their English brethren in the recess, and therefore it is unusual to find four eminent northern representatives extra-uttering within a few days of each other. Probably they, with characteristic caution, and with a knowledge that their special audiences can distinguish sound talk from mere "padding," do not venture to present themselves to their respective publics unless they really have something to say. Thus it was, no doubt, that the Lord Advocate at Edinburgh chose a subject and discoursed on it with reasonable liveliness—with an exhilaration akin to that which physically a hippopotamus might exhibit when in a sportive mood. To be sure, it would not be easy for a practised mime, far less a Scottish gentleman, grave by nationality, profession, and maturity of years, to get much fun out of such a subject as the Law of Bankruptcy, but the "learned Lord" (which is his true title, and not "right honourable gentleman," as people in the house are in the habit of calling him nowadays) did manage to elicit a few quips from the midst of the very sensible and practical observations which he made, and which showed that he may be made a very useful ally in that terrible struggle between the purifying Lord Chancellor and the recalcitrant attorneys which is expected to come off on this question next Session. Once or twice in the house the Lord Advocate has proved that he has some warm blood in him, although, generally, his vital current seems to run as coldly as that of the genus grasshopper. But perhaps that is one of the qualifications for a Minister for Scotland, in which function he is admitted to be facile princeps. Nobody in Montrose, of course, would deny that Mr. Baxter is a distinguished Scotch member, and, confining the meaning to the last two words, one is inclined to admit his distinction. There certainly underlies that natural aridity of character and manner which belong to him a certain amount of earnestness and almost fervour of opinion which, when it comes out, as it were crackles about him, when in another man it would boil over. Ere now one has even seen him excited—the Galway Packet contract is a moving cause; but no imagination can picture him tearing a passion to tatters. On the American question he is well entitled to speak; and, having chosen that as the subject of a recent address to a body of his countrymen at Blairgowrie, we will venture to commend his statements and deductions to consideration as worthy of all acceptation as regards fairness and cognizance of what he was talking about. Those who, with their ears, unfortunately, for the nonce, attuned to southern accents, have heard Mr. Buchanan address the House of Commons will not wonder that even an audience consisting of his Glasgow constituents found an hour and a quarter of his uttered lucubrations just a little too much. To be sure, it is probable that they did not, as his listeners do in the house—perceiving that, as is often his wont, he is delivering himself fluently, earnestly, and, so far as can be judged, with point to his subject—wish that amongst the officers of Parliament there was an interpreter well up in every dialect, who might with advantage intervene. At Glasgow, of course, he was understood as well as heard; and hence the exhaustion which was professed, and which cut short the other three quarters of an hour which was still, perhaps, in their vigorous member. But the oddest effect was that which was produced on the stalwart frame and ponderous strength of his colleague, who, in spite of those thrice double-bass tones of voice, which in his normal condition are peculiar to him, hoarsely lisped out that even he was made faint and exhausted by the oratorical persistency of his brother in the representation of the good city. It was only the pencil of Leech which could have given an adequate idea of the appearance of Mr. Dalgleish when in a state of prostration.

Whatever other people may think, it is clear that the bulk of the Conservative party believe in themselves, in the dissemination of their principles, and in their proximate advent to power. They would perhaps be angry if any one ventured to trace their confidence in the latter eventuality to the somewhat obvious (to every one else) circumstance—that when the present Ministry breaks up a Derby Government may be a necessary stopgap while the Liberals are reorganising and closing their always too-scattered ranks and choosing their commander-in-chief. Blessedly blind to any such idea were the leaders of that gathering the other day, at Torquay, of the Devonshire Conservatives, where Sir Lawrence Palk's voice must have grown almost melodious when he hymned the principles and the position of his party; when Mr. Kekewich relaxed his handsome Roman features into a humorous play correspondent with the jocularity of his observations, which, somehow, seemed to be flavoured with a certain scepticism of the facts and arguments which he was advancing, and which were illustrated by the laughter of his audience; and when Lord Courtenay so vauntingly waved the maiden political sword which he has as yet had no opportunity of fleshing in the House. Conservatives are supposed specially to conserve the ancient doctrines of the Constitution; but it would almost seem as if one of them, which denies to Peers any right to mix in matters relating to elections to the Commons House of Parliament, was forgotten when the Earl of Devon took the lead in the proceedings of an assemblage avowedly directed towards the eventualities of the coming general rehabilitation of the popular branch of the Legislature. There was noise enough made, as if the Constitution were really in danger, and that there was a probability not too remote of Mr. Bright being Prime Minister. Doubtless the Devonian Tories got to believe, in their enthusiasm, that they were encountering and overcoming a danger to the State, as firmly as George Prince of Wales was convinced, at a similar hour in the evening, that he had led a decisive charge of cavalry at Waterloo. What it is, and where it is, it rather seems that they omitted to state; but that clearness of information was perhaps rather more than one has a right to expect from a meeting so far in the West.

If all the pother above alluded to had been made after Mr. Bright's latest pronunciamento at Birmingham, there might have been some warranty for it. One well remembers the tone of solemn emotion in which, in a speech in the house, Mr. Bright said that he hoped never again to take part in a popular agitation. He implied that stern and inexorable must be the patriotic necessity which would ever induce him to plunge into that arena of angry passion; and he seemed almost to shudder at the prospect of having again to ride that whirlwind and direct that storm. The declaration, as we remember, made a great impression, and for a season chit Conservative members ceased to prate about the revolutionising tendencies of the ogre-like member for Birmingham. Looking to his late speech, however, one is tempted to ask whether Mr. Bright feels that the moment which he then deprecated has at length arrived. For assuredly there were more signs and symptoms of Mr. Bright on his original platform than he has exhibited for many years. He seems to have been stimulated by the Devonian bluster at Torquay, which he took as his text, to hurl defiance at them and their like; and if they built up ugly and aggressive giants which they were truculently eager to destroy, he, too, set up imaginary spectres, to which he cried "Come on in any shape!" and his firm nerves would never tremble. Nevertheless, we cannot help fancying that the depth and breadth of his denunciation had its origin more in physical than in moral and abstract causes. There were sly hits at after-dinner inspiration at Torquay which might have been suggested by a sense of dyspepsia in himself. Or he may have been provoked at the ineffable smoothness and coolness with which Mr. Scholefield reiterated his disclaimer of being in whole and unbroken sympathy with his impulsive colleague; or it may be that he had only recently heard that he was thought by a majority of the public too dangerous a man to have become a member of the carefully balanced and neutralised Cabinet of Lord Palmerston; but there were flashes of his old spirit, and a renegading from the gentler influence under which he half forswore demagogueising.

There are lookers-on at the attempts which are being made, on each side of politics, to get up a cry for the coming general election, to create a contest of principles, who are inclined to think that very little will come of them, and that the best chance of a row will be before those hustings on which the test, which Mr. Lawson has recently proclaimed at Leeds, is administered to candidates. At so drouthy a season as a general election it will be very difficult to make electors, and non-electors still more, understand that a measure which in practice may de-beerise (to coin a word) half the population of a district is a "Permissive Bill."

FUNERAL OF MR. LORIMER, THE DEAN OF GUILD, AT EDINBURGH.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

THE LATE MR. GEORGE LORIMER, OF EDINBURGH.

THE LATE MR. LORIMER, DEAN OF GUILD, AT EDINBURGH.

THE death of Mr. George Lorimer, the Lord Dean of Guild, who was crushed by the fall of one of the walls of the Theatre Royal, Edinburgh, in the late fire, while heroically attempting to save the life of another man, has called forth a public demonstration of respect; the municipality, of which he was a most useful member, having resolved that his funeral should be attended with the ceremonial of civic state. On the day appointed, Wednesday week, the magistrates and council, and a number of the private friends of the deceased, assembled at his house, in Mayfield-terrace, where Divine service was conducted by the Rev. J. E. Cumming, of Newington Church, of which congregation Mr. Lorimer was an elder, and by the Rev. Dr. Paul, of the West Church. At two o'clock the public bodies who were to join in the procession met in Mr. Cumming's church, Clerk-street, where service was conducted by the Rev. Maxwell Nicholson. After reading the 90th Psalm, the reverend gentleman offered up an impressive prayer, in which he feelingly alluded to the loss the city had sustained by the death of Mr. Lorimer, who, he said, was a respected citizen and public official, a loving parent, and a most worthy office-bearer of the Church. Meanwhile, the bells of Newington and St. Cuthbert churches were tolled until the burial was concluded. About half-past two o'clock the remains of Mr. Lorimer were removed from the house, and the funeral procession immediately afterwards moved off, by way of Blacket-place, towards Newington, the procession being headed at this time by the members of the Society of High Constables (Moderator Lawson and other office-bearers carrying their insignia of office draped with crape), followed by a line of carriages, in which were the magistrates and council. Immediately behind the Lord Provost's state carriage, which was occupied by Bailies Cassels and Alexander, was the hearse, which was drawn by four horses. The hearse was followed by nearly twenty mourning carriages, which were occupied by the relatives and friends of the Dean, and behind these there were not-less than forty private carriages. On reaching Newington Church, the various public bodies, who had been previously arranged by Inspector Sharpe, of the Edinburgh constabulary, were formed four deep in front of the procession. There were, besides the magistrates and Town Council of Edinburgh, the Provost and magistrates of Leith, the members of the Dean of Guild Court, the Lord Advocate and Mr. Black, the City Road Trustees, the Incorporation of Guildry, the Chamber of Commerce, the Merchant Company, the Rector and Magistrates of the High School, besides the Directors of the Western Cemetery, the Masonic Lodge of Journeymen No. 8, and the Kirk Session of Newington Church, who were represented on this occasion. Besides these public bodies, the funeral was attended by Bishop Sterin and several of the Roman Catholic clergy; while Mr. Wyndham and nearly the whole of the male members of the company of the Theatre Royal were also present. The whole line of route was thronged with people anxious to obtain a view of the mournful procession. There were crowds along the streets, and almost every window was occupied with spectators. At Newington Church there was a very large concourse of people, and at the University there was a very large assemblage of students. As the funeral party approached the foot of the North Bridge the whole of the workmen at the new post-office crowded to that side of the building to obtain a view of the funeral of the man who, to many of them, had proved to good a master. At the Register House there was also a dense throng of people, and both sides of Princes-street and the vicinity of the churchyard were equally crowded. The universal respect in which the late Dean was held was further exemplified by all the shops in the line of procession being closed. The cortège reached the burying-ground at half-past three o'clock, being an hour after it left the house. The high constables then lined the walk leading to the grave, and the magistrates and council took up their places near the grave. The coffin was then removed from the hearse, and carried shoulder-high through the lines of high constables by the Master and five Past-Masters of the Masonic Lodge already named. The chief mourner was Mr. George Lorimer (son of the deceased), and the pallbearers were Master Lorimer (son), Mr. John Lorimer, Mr. George Murray, Professor Lorimer, Mr. James Lorimer, Mr. John Dickson, Mr. William Beattie, Rev. J. E. Cumming, and Mr. James Balmatyne. The lamented Dean was buried in the family ground, adjoining the wall next to Castle-terrace, beside his father and mother, two brothers, and two sisters, the period of whose deaths is recorded on a handsome tablet at the head of the grave. The weather, from the time the body was removed from Mayfield-terrace until it was deposited in its last resting-place, was most inclement. Heavy showers of rain fell during the greater part of the time, and the roads were covered with mud; but, notwithstanding this, hardly one of those who attended the funeral left before the remains were taken into the graveyard, and the crowd of spectators was not in the least diminished. We have engraved a view of the procession as it appeared when passing the Register House; and we also give a Portrait of Mr. Lorimer, whose personal character and services to his fellow-townsmen were such as to deserve this general tribute of affection and esteem.

THE HARBOUR OF CALLAO, WITH THE PERUVIAN FLEET.

THERE is still some probability of open war between Peru and Spain, in consequence of the seizure of the Chincha Islands, with their valuable deposits of guano, by the Spanish fleet, as a material guarantee for the compensation which is claimed on behalf of some Spanish subjects lately resident in Peru. These circumstances give some additional interest to our Engraving of the harbour of Callao, the chief Peruvian seaport, which is taken from a sketch by Mr. Hamilton Williams, of H.M.S. Leander, one of the British squadron in the Pacific Ocean. The town of Callao, when not covered with mist and cloud, which is too often the case, presents a pretty and pleasing aspect from the water. The streets, indeed, are dirty in the extreme; but the view of the country around, studded with trees and verdure and bounded by ranges of deep blue hills in the distance, is agreeable and picturesque. On a clear day the towers of Lima, the metropolis of Peru, may be seen at the base of the hills sparkling in the sun, as shown in our Engraving. The two forts on the right were built by the Spaniards before the era of Peruvian independence. They form a prominent feature of the town, being constructed of stone and coloured a bright yellow. The Peruvian fleet consists of a frigate, an iron-clad ram on the Merrimac principle, and one or two gun-boats and mail-packets converted into war-steamers, besides a sailing-brig. The Peruvians have also attempted to build a Monitor, carrying a revolving turret; but, though now afloat, and with her turret fixed, she is capable of so small an amount of speed as to be of little or no service, should the Spaniards take it into their heads to bombard the port of Callao. A small English schooner-yacht, the Themis, of not more than 100 tons, the property of Commander Hanham, R.N. (now retired), occupies a central position in our Engraving. She came through the straits of Magellan and arrived at Callao from the Southward early in December last.

Correspondents in the Times for a few days back have been advocating the adoption by our Universities of the modern Greek pronunciation in the teaching of Greek. A correspondent, "W. H. G.," on Monday, illustrates the absurdity of the present practice by the following personal narrative:—"In the year 1856 I was living in Cairo at the same hotel with a Greek gentleman, who, though unacquainted with other languages than his own, was thoroughly conversant with the ancient literature of his own country. As there are not many evening amusements in Cairo, we were thrown a good deal after dinner upon the society of each other. We in vain endeavoured to communicate by words. I in vain endeavoured to understand his pronunciation when he read to me from any Greek author; he was still more puzzled with and aghast at mine. At last we each of us provided ourself-we with a sheet of paper and a pencil, and wrote down what we fruitlessly had sought to express in words, and then got on, if not very briskly or comfortably, at all events, much better than before."

THE HARBOUR OF CALLAO, WITH THE PERUVIAN FLEET.

Archæology of the Month.

The new number of the Journal of the British Archæological Association is an attractive one. Mr. Pettigrew contributes a discriminating paper on the Crosses at Ilkley and Collingham; and Mr. Planché, Rouge-Croix, "The Nine Worthies of the World, in illustration of the Paintings in Amberley Castle." Each of these worthy personages has had assigned to him by the heralds of the sixteenth and seventeenth centuries a coat of arms with as much gravity as they have to Adam, Noah, and other antediluvian celebrities; and the object of Mr. Planché's paper is to correct these and other errors:—

To caution antiquaries against placing any dependence on the integrity or congruity of any series of worthies, masculine or feminine, which they may accidentally discover. It would appear as if nearly every writer who noticed the subject selected his own favourite notorieties, and invented for them such armorial insignia as his imagination dictated; transposing even the most popular coats, as in the case of Hector and Alexander the Great, without reason or compunction.

The proceedings of the association are generally of current interest. Among the relics lately exhibited is a portion of a scarf or neckcloth stated to have been worn by Charles I. on the morning of Jan. 30, 1648. It is of fine cambric, beautifully worked in squares, of a pattern exactly agreeing in style with the shirt now placed in the Kensington Museum, which is said to be one of the two shirts worn by the King on the day of his death, and long preserved by the descendants of the Lord Keeper Coventry. Another rarity is a leaden dump, found in the Castle grounds, Southampton, bearing on one side a large profile bust, and on the other the effigy of a cock, showing it to have been cast for the purpose of shying at leaden cocks at Shrovetide, which was a mimic of cock-squoiling, or throwing at the living bird, the dump being the equivalent of the cockstele, or stick. Dumps for this game are of no great rarity; but the leaden capon, biddy, or cock has become very scarce. Here is also an account of the mediæval discoveries recently made at Guildhall, while pulling down the upper portion, for the purpose of restoring the roof; and a curious paper "On Clocks and Watches belonging to Queen Elizabeth."

At the close of the year we lost a sound antiquary, Mr. James Heywood Markland, F.S.A., in his seventy-seventh year. He had contributed many valuable papers to the Archæologia, and was one of the original thirty-one members of the Roxburghe Club, instituted in 1812, the number indicating the number of days of the celebrated sale from which the club took its name. Mr. Markland published an essay "On the Reverence Due to Holy Places," in which he appealed against the desecration of the remains of abbeys and monasteries; and his "Remarks on English Churches," in 1849, insist upon the decoration of the church being looked upon as one of the great accessories to true devotion. He was a careful conservator of Roman and early British remains; and to him we owe the relic of the north wall opposite Christ's Hospital, where was erected a few years since, at his cost, a battlement to indicate the course of the mediæval wall, which is said to run down to a depth of 16 ft. below the present surface.

A few days since, another laborious worker in the field of archæology closed his life of long service—Richard Thomson, one of the librarians of the London Institution, and a conscientious illustrator of our metropolitan antiquities. Mr. Thomson was the author of several works of merit, which include "An Historical Essay on the Magna Charta of King John, &c., 1829; and two useful volumes of "Illustrations of the History of Great Britain—its Manners and Customs, Dresses, Literature, Arts, and Government, down to the Eighteenth Century," in "Constable's Miscellany," 1828. Mr. Thomson will, however, be best remembered by his "Chronicles of London Bridge, by an Antiquary," a richly-embellished volume of some 700 pages, nicely printed by Maurice in 1827, and reprinted in "Murray's Family Library." The original edition is dedicated to Lord Mayor Garratt, who laid the first stone of the present London Bridge in 1825. The illustrations (some fifty in number) are admirably drawn and engraved on wood, and are selected with great judgment: the frontispiece is an elaborate historical design by Harvey. The trustworthiness of the chronicles can scarcely be overrated, and it is to be regretted that he did not rely upon his own store of knowledge of the subject without setting it in a sort of humorous framework, apparently suggested by "Captain Clutterbuck's Introduction to the Monastery," which has had so many dry-as-dust imitators. The humour encumbers Mr. Thomson's narrative: he felt this to be the case, and repeatedly expressed his regret at having thus marred his favourite labour. Nevertheless the sterling value of the "chronicles" shines in every page of this treasure of a volume. The late librarian was courteous and obliging, and highly respected. He died in his 71st year.

The "Eleanor Cross" which Mr. Barry has designed for the forecourt of the Charing-cross Railway Company's superb hotel and station is approaching completion. This has been a work of considerable difficulty to the architect, inasmuch as the authorities for the cross are exceedingly limited. We possess minute details of the cost and materials of the original; but of its elevation we have no satisfactory representation. There are three views of the cross, but not one of architectural value. There is a rough drawing in the Crowle Collection, in the British Museum, which is described by Pennant and engraved by Wilkinson; there is another in the Bodleian Library, at Oxford; and a third in the library of the Society of Antiquaries. These views are obviously incorrect, and evidently by persons unfamiliar with architecture; but the three drawings agree in the main features, such as number of stories, figures, sides, &c. These drawings, with Pennant's description, constitute the principal authorities for Mr. Barry's cross; the details of the design having been left entirely to the architect, and they are in strict accordance with the architecture of the period. Whatever may be its identity with the ancient Charing Cross, Mr. Barry has produced a very tasteful work. Mr. J. Hobart Wilson has called our attention to the representation of the old cross in the titlepage of the scarce quarto, "A Dialogue between the Cross at Cheap and Charing Cross." This agrees with the cross in Aggas's plan, which is, to our thinking, too rude to be depended on. By-the-way, it has lately been attempted to prove that the several Eleanor Crosses are not the testimonials of King Edward's affection, which, for 600 years, they have been considered; but Mr. John Abel, in an interesting communication to the Athenæum of Saturday last, shows that they are so. We have—1. The direct testimony of Walsingham, based upon the authority of those predecessors from whose chronicles he compiled his own. 2. The authority of the "Annales de Dunstaple," written at the precise period of the Queen's death, which inferentially takes the King's command, signified by his presence, whilst the first step was being taken towards the erection of the cross on that spot. 3. The authority of the common law.

Sir Henry Rawlinson, at a recent meeting of the Geographical Society, referred to an important verification of the value of Mr. J. G. Taylor's account of the ancient remains in the neighbourhood of the Tigris. Near its principal source Mr. Taylor discovered two Assyrian inscriptions; one belonging to Tiglath Pileser I., who reigned about B.C. 1110; the other to Ashurizir-pal (the King of the Nimroud monolith), who dates about B.C. 880. The fact that such memorials had been placed in the situation where they have been found by those monarchs during their northern expeditions was ascertained years ago by the reading of the inscriptions found at Nineveh; and Sir H. Rawlinson holds this recent discovery by Mr. Taylor as another striking proof of the truth of those interpretations.

The library of the Society of Antiquaries, approximating 10,000 volumes, has lately been rearranged by Mr. Knight Watson, the secretary, assisted by Mr. Ireland; each shelf has been marked with brass letters; into the several volumes book-plates have been inserted; and press-marks inscribed, and entered opposite each work in the list of books printed in 1861, since which the society has acquired 1198 works. The result is that no book will be found on the shelves which is not in the catalogue, and no book will be found in the catalogue which is not on the shelves. The library is richest in topography, and in its collection of county histories, &c. In a clearance, the journals of the Houses of Lords and Commons have been sold for £13, a small sum, partly through her Majesty's Government having recently thrown into the market a large quantity of stock which had been sold at waste-paper price. The unbound MSS. (about fifty brown paper parcels) have also been arranged by Mr. Perceval for binding. There appears to be an unusual quantity of rubbish among these documents; and the cause of archæology would, probably, not greatly suffer were these manuscripts left in brown paper.

NAVAL AND MILITARY INTELLIGENCE.

WAR OFFICE.

7th Hussars: Lieut.-Gen. the Earl of Rosslyn to be Colonel.

Royal Artillery: Major-Gens. Sir W. F. Williams, Bart., and J. E. Dupuis to be Colonels-Commandant; Lieut.-Cols. D. W. Paynter, A. T. Phillpotts, and W. B. Gardner to be Colonels; Capts. G. H. L. Milman, G. L. Chandler, and C. G. Arbuthnot to be Lieutenant-Colonels; Second Capts. A. W. Pixley, J. D. G. Higgon, J. M. C. Vibart, and W. Booth to be Captains; Lieuts. A. J. Wake, G. Arbuthnot, F. S. Budd, H. P. T. M'Carthy, R. Sadleir, W. R. Barlow, and R. C. Smith to be Second Captains; Cadets D. T. Webber, W. I. Le Breton, A. A. Newman, F. H. Wheatley, C. W. Kennaway, W. B. Adams, A. Broadfoot, J. M. Alves, G. E. Dodsworth, J. S. Quayle, and W. Cotton to be Lieutenants.

Royal Engineers: Lieuts. A. G. Begbie, W. R. C. Wynne, W. St. George Burke, G. F. O. Boughey, F. W. Watkins, J. Ramsay, W. F. Richardson, G. W. Archer, J. Hill, G. T. Plunkett, E. M. Larminie, B. Lonsley, H. A. Taylor, L. K. Scott, T. H. Holdich, A. B. M'Hardy, E. J. Alleyne, C. de Beauvoir Carey, W. H. Haydon, J. G. Hall, A. A. W. Beamish, H. C. Reynolds, and H. C. Macdiarmid to have permanent rank; Cadets H. H. Murphy, A. C. Alexander, A. R. Puzey, J. Matheson, and J. B. Lindsell, to be Lieutenants.

COMMISSARIAT DEPARTMENT.—Deputy Assistant Commissary-General J. B. Gallwey to be Assistant Commissary-General; Acting Deputy Assistant Commissary-General W. T. Evans to be Deputy Assistant Commissary-General.

BREVET.—Quartermaster J. Black to be Captain. The following promotions to take place consequent on the decease of Generals Sir G. Turner, B.C.B., and P. M. Wallace; and Major-General H. Palliser, Royal Artillery:—Lieut.-Generals Sir E. C. Whinyates, K.C.B., and G. Cobbe to be Generals. Major-Generals Sir R. J. Dacres and Sir W. F. Williams, of Kars, Bart., to be Lieutenant-Generals. Cols. A. Tulloh, H. G. Teesdale, T. A. Shone, and A. A. Shuttleworth to be Major-Generals. Majors E. Moubray and A Pitcairn to be Lieutenant-Colonels. Capts. J. Pickard and G. Leslie to be Majors.

ADMIRALTY.

Royal Marine Light Infantry: First Lieut. E. B. Pritchard to be Captain; First Lieut. W. H. Wroot to be First Lieutenant and Quartermaster; Lieut. E. D. Ashe to be Retired Commander; Second Lieuts. L. P. Smith and A. Kennedy to be First Lieutenants.

Mr. W. J. Sullock to be First-class Assistant Engineer in the Fleet.

The iron screw steam troop-ship Megæra, 6, at Devonport, is ordered to be put in commission.

To the 31st ult., 21,154 applications had been received and 18,325 volunteers enrolled in the Royal Naval Reserve.

The Edgar, flagship of Admiral Dacres, will shortly be paid off and recommissioned as a coastguard-ship at Queenstown.

It has been decided that the camp at Colchester shall accommodate two dépôt battalions of eight dépôts each.

The screw steam-frigate Aurora, 3, Captain Sir. F. Leopold M'Clintock, left Plymouth Sound last Saturday for Bermuda, en route to the West Indies.

Rear-Admiral King is appointed to the command-in-chief on the East India and China station, vice Kuper, whose term of service has expired.

The Dromedary screw store-ship arrived at Spithead on Saturday week from the coast of Africa. She sailed from Ascension on Dec. 13, 1864; from St. Helena on Dec. 21; and from Madeira on Jan. 4.

The rates of personal allowance for officers of the Army travelling on duty without troops have been fixed as follow:—For general officers, 20s. a day; for field officers, 15s. a day; and for captains and subalterns, 10s. a day.

Mr. Ferdinand Beauclerk, a cousin of the Duke of St. Albans, has passed first of all the naval cadets on board H.M.S. Britannia, and received five prizes from the hands of the Duke of Somerset, having been also a Senior Captain of Cadets on board the Britannia on account of good conduct.

The committee appointed by Earl De Grey and Ripon, Secretary of State for War, to inspect and report upon the Government powder-magazines, both on shore and afloat, arrived at Chatham on Wednesday week, and began their inspection and inquiry into the system for the storage of powder, shells, and cartridges at the several Government magazines at that garrison.

The Field Marshal commanding the Forces, on Monday week, rode down to Woolwich, unattended, and inspected the various branches of the establishment. The inspection lasted upwards of three hours. On the following day his Royal Highness, attended by Lieutenant-General Sir C. Airey, K.C.B. (Quartermaster-General), and Lieutenant-Colonel T. H. Clifton (Aide-de-Camp), made an inspection of Colchester garrison.

Her Majesty has presented the 2nd Regiment of Life Guards, now quartered at the Spittal Barracks, Windsor, with two portraits of the Prince Consort, in beautiful gold frames, surmounted by the Royal crown—one to the non-commissioned officers, which they have placed in the mess-room; and the other to the troopers, which embellishes the walls of the reading-room of the regiment.

The paddle-wheel sloop Virago, 6, 1059 tons, 300-horse power, Commander W. G. H. Johnstone, which arrived at Plymouth on Friday week from Bermuda, is to be paid out of commission at Sheerness. Her bulkheads and internal fittings are not to be disturbed, and her rigging, boats, and other stores are to be returned and preserved in such order as that they may again and at once be available for the same ship if required.

Her Majesty's 13-gun screw-corvette Niger, 1072 tons and 400-horse power, having been thoroughly repaired and fitted for service, at Woolwich, was, on Monday, inspected by Commodore Superintendent Hugh Dunlop, and was pronounced complete in every department with the exception of her provisions and armament. She is now ordered to be handed over to the first-class steam reserve, in readiness for service when required.

The construction of the proposed inner Spithead Marine Forts, in support of the two advanced forts on the Noman and Horse shoals, has been decided on. They are to be immediately erected in accordance with the recommendations contained in the report of the special committee appointed to consider and report on the subject by the Secretary of State for War in July of last year, and Mr. Hawkshaw, the eminent engineer, is now engaged in preparing plans for the construction of their foundations.

The Commander-in-Chief, with the concurrence of the Secretary of State for India, has decided that, on the recommendation of the local Government of India, and with the sanction of his Royal Highness, exchanges may be permitted between officers of the Staff Corps under the substantive rank of field officer and properly qualified regimental officers of the same rank, without reference to the station on which the regiment of the exchanging officer may be serving.

THE VOLUNTEER MOVEMENT.

An official volunteer circular (No.13), addressed to commanding officers of volunteer corps, has been issued from the War Office, requesting them to take great care, before returning empty powder and amunition barrels to the Government stores, to remove all tacks and grit from them, and to affix address cards to them by means of paste or string and not on any account by means of tacks or nails.

A meeting of the officers commanding metropolitan volunteer corps was recently held at the offices of the National Rifle Association, to consider the unsatisfactory condition of the law relating to rifle-ranges. It was resolved that Lieutenant-Colonel Lord Elcho, Lieutenant-Colonel Hughes, and Lieutenant-Colonel Wilkinson should form a committee, and the following motion was agreed to:—"That each commanding officer who is cognisant of legal proceedings taken or to be taken with a view to close his range be requested to put his case in writing and submit it to the committee." The following resolutions were carried unanimously:—"That, in the opinion of the meeting ample facilities are absolutely essential, to the continued existence of the volunteer force; that it appears from the evidence laid before this meeting that some corps have already had their ranges closed by injunction, and that others are threatened; that under the present state of the law no range is safe from interference; and that it is the deliberate opinion of the commanding officers present that corps deprived of their ranges will, if the prohibition be permanent, cease to exist." The committee above named were requested to prepare a statement of the evidence sent in to them, and to submit it with the resolutions, to the Secretary of State for War.

The annual distribution of prizes to the members of the 1st Middlesex Engineers, by Lieutenant-Colonel M'Leod of M'Leod, the commanding officer, took place on Monday week, in the theatre of the South Kensington Museum, which was filled by a fashionable and very enthusiastic assembly.

The fifth annual distribution of prizes to the successful competitors belonging to the West Middlesex in rifle-shooting took place on the 13th inst. in the large assembly-room of the Eyre Arms, St. John's-wood. Lieut.-Colonel Lord Radstock, commandant of the West Middlesex, presided, and Colonel M'Murdo distributed the prizes. At the conclusion of the presentation, Colonel M'Murdo said he had now not only to congratulate the 9th Middlesex on the success of its rifle-shooting, but also on the position it held in the rank of efficiency in relation to that of the volunteer service generally. He had brought some interesting statistics with him, and he found that the average general percentage of efficients in the volunteer service was 59 per cent in each 100 men, and of those who had earned the extra 10s. 22 per cent. With regard to efficients, the West Middlesex showed a percentage of 66 against 59, and whilst the average of those who earned the extra 10s. was but 22 per cent, that of the West Middlesex was 49 per cent. The highest corps in the whole service was the 7th Surrey, which showed 90 per cent of efficients and 59 per cent of those who earned the extra 10s. The second in the rank of efficiency was the 26th Middlesex (her Majesty's Customs), which was 69 per cent of efficients and 52 per cent of those who earned the extra 10s. The West Middlesex stood third on the list. It was a very important thing to be proficient in shooting, but where good shooting was combined with good drill it was still better, and rendered a regiment almost invincible. He had seen the West Middlesex under arms on many trying occasions, and could speak to their efficiency in that respect, more especially when they arrived late on a field-day he held at Leatherhead, when they showed their peculiar efficiency. The gallant Colonel expressed his gratification that the volunteer force was still increasing both in numbers and efficiency, and said that meetings like the present showed how deeply it had entered into the national heart. After some allusion to his retirement from the office of Inspector-General, Colonel M'Murdo resumed his seat amidst loud cheers. Lord Radstock entered into various statistics of the regiment, one peculiarity of which was that every man in the regiment had been to the targets. A vote of thanks to Colonel M'Murdo, proposed by Sir James Hamilton, Bart., was carried by acclamation, amidst loud applause. A similar compliment was paid to Lord Radstock.

The 1st City of London Artillery Volunteers were inspected by Lieutenant-Colonel Rotton, R.A., under orders from the War Office, on Saturday week, in gun drill at Wellington Barracks, and in battalion drill at Westminster Hall. The inspecting officer expressed himself in favourable terms of the gun drill, the marching, the general soldier-like appearance of the men, the great efficiency of the non-commissioned officers, and the serviceable state of the arms. He, however, suggested that the drill generally was susceptible of improvement, and urged attention to drill and discipline.

On Saturday week the distribution of prizes to the 3rd City of London took place in the Guildhall. Lieutenant-Colonel Richard, the commandant, presided, and made some strong allusions to the small number of prizes to be offered as compared with those of the London Brigade and other corps. He observed that this was not to be attributed to the officers, but to the small interest taken in this large and efficient regiment by the outside public. He hoped, however, that the prizes would be increased next year. The prizes, principally money, were then distributed. A handsome cup, presented by Major Laurie, was won by Captain Clark. The "Three Stars" badge, as best shot in the regiment, was taken, for the fourth year, by Captain Palmer. It was stated in the course of the remarks that, notwithstanding 300 men had been struck off the roll for non-attendance at drill, the number remaining is 1150, of whom 789 rank as efficient.

The presentation of prizes to members of the 2nd Surrey Artillery Brigade for carbine-shooting during the past year took place on Tuesday night, under very favourable auspices, in the excellently-constructed hall at the head-quarters, Gresham-road, Brixton.

The first inspection of the 9th Bedfordshire Rifles, a corps which was formed last year, has been held at Bedford. The inspection was made by Colonel Luard, Assistant-Inspector of Volunteers, who, at the conclusion of the movements, addressed the officers and men. He said he was pleased with the manner in which they had performed their duties. The movements they had gone through had been performed very satisfactorily. Colonel Luard then proceeded to inspect the armoury, with the arrangements and condition of which he was much pleased.

The annual meeting for the distribution of prizes to the 1st Manchester was held at the Townhall, on Saturday evening—the Mayor (J. M. Bennett, Esq.) in the chair. The report stated that the regiment was in a prosperous condition. The roll had not only increased, but the actual number of effective members was much in excess of any previous year.

The volunteer force in the West Riding of Yorkshire consisted, on the 1st of December last, of 1589 artillery, 1034 engineers, and 6092 rifles. These numbers show an increase during the year in the artillery of 293, in the engineers of 166, and in the rifles of 692 members. The total increase in the number of members during the year was 1151, and in the number of efficients, 1121.

The first competition in the simultaneous rifle-match for England, Scotland, and Ireland, took place on the 13th, 14th, and 16th inst., when fifteen squads of five each fired at 800, 900, and 1000 yards, ten shots at each range, and no sighting shots. Eight squads fired in different parts of England, five in Scotland, and two in Ireland, this being the first match in which Irish riflemen have entered as such with the smallbore. The squads were allowed to fire on any of the three days, but the furious gale on the 14th interfered much with shooting. In one squad the rifle had to be aimed 38 ft. off the bull's-eye on account of the wind. It will be seen from the principal scores given below that many of the best shots competed on this occasion. The prizes are not, however, won until after four competitions in the spring and summer, and are then to be decided by the two highest scores of each competitor. Captain Jaques, Caterham, 103; Mr. R. W. Dunlop, C.B., London Scottish Rifle Volunteers, Inverness, 99; Captain Heaton, Manchester, 98; Captain Maxwell, Altcar, and Sergeant Gibbs, Bristol, 97; Mr. Edward Ross, London Scottish Rifle Volunteers, Harrow, 96; Mr. Edin, Inns of Court Rifle Volunteers, Wimbledon, 96; Mr. Cunliffe, Manchester, 94; Mr. Barlow, Dublin, 93; Captain Fergusson, Inverness, Mr. Rawson, Altcar, and Sergeant Kemp, Manchester, 92; Dr. Goodwin, Altcar, 91; Captain Fenton, Manchester, Captain Paton, Ayr, and Captain Field, Hon. Artillery Company, Wimbledon, 90; Captain King, Inns of Court Rifle Volunteers, Wimbledon, and Lord Bolton, Bolton Castle, 89; Lieutenant Cunningham, Harrow, 88; Mr. Colvert, Dublin, 87; Captain Hawker and Sergeant Martin Smith, Harrow, 86; Mr. Guthrie, Ayrshire, Mr. Clare, Dublin, Mr. Formby, Altcar, and Mr. Rigby, Dublin, 85; Mr. Nugent, Dublin, and Mr. Lane, Bristol, 84; Mr. Fletcher, Altcar, 83; Mr. Miller, Bristol, and the Earl of Aberdeen, Bolton Castle, 79; Mr. P. Cunliffe, Manchester, 78; "a Lady," who shot with a Rigby rifle at Caterham, 77; Captain Bland, 77th Regiment, Belfast, 76.

WILLS AND BEQUESTS.

The will of Algernon Frederick Greville, Esq., of Hillingdon, was proved, in the London Court, on the 20th inst., by the executors, Arthur Charles Greville, Esq., the son, and Miss Georgina Maria Greville, the daughter, between whom the testator has bequeathed the whole of his property, real and personal, in equal proportions, with the exception of the furniture, &c., which he has left to his daughter absolutely; and there is a legacy of £500 to a servant who has been in the family forty years. His two married daughters—viz., Frances Harriett, wife of the Duke of Richmond, and Augusta Mary, wife of George Montagu Warren Peacocke, Esq., M.P.—received their portions on marriage. The personalty was sworn under £40,000. The testator died on the 17th ult.

The will of George Henry Cutler, Esq., late of Upton Lodge, Torbay, was proved in the London Court under £200,000 personalty. The executors appointed are the Rev. Henry G. G. Cutler (the testator's nephew), John Cutler, G. J. Steer, and Thomas N. Hunt, Esqrs. To each acting executor there is left a legacy of £250; to his nephew, the said Rev. H. G. G. Cutler, he has devised his real estates, together with a legacy of £1000, and the whole of his furniture, books, pictures, wines, &c. He bequeaths to his four sisters a life interest in the sum of £40,000, which, upon their respective decease, is to be divided amongst his grandchildren. His said sisters are also appointed residuary legatees. There are liberal legacies to nephews, nieces, and others of his family, and also to servants. To the churchwardens of Upper Brixham he leaves in trust the sum of £8000, the dividends arising therefrom to be expended annually in the purchase of blankets and coals for the poor.

The will of Miss Ann Grace Eyles, late of Calverley-terrace, Tunbridge Wells, was proved in London on the 4th inst., by the executors and trustees therein appointed—namely, Charles John Herries, Esq., of St. Julians, Sevenoaks, and Robert Duncan, Esq., surgeon, Tunbridge Wells. The personalty was sworn under £45,000. The testatrix died on the 17th ult., having executed her will on the 25th of July, 1863. The bequests are liberal, and there are many specific bequests. To each of her executors she has left a legacy of £1000. To the daughters of the late Rev. E. Warneford, £4000. To the Rev. E. Langdale, Rector of East Hoathley, Sussex, the interest of £8000 for his life, the principal upon his decease to be divided amongst his children; also to the sisters of the said Rev. E. Langdale a life interest in £2000. This sum, upon their decease, will also revert to his children. Liberal legacies are left to the cousins of the testatrix, and also to her personal friends, all to be paid free of duty. There are legacies to her servants. To the Tunbridge Wells Infirmary a legacy of £2000, and to the Bristol Blind Asylum she bequeaths the residue of her property.

Marquis Camden has been chosen President of the Camden Society, in the place of the Marquis of Bristol, deceased.

The Belgian International Society for the Promotion of Social Science, which met at Amsterdam last September, will hold its congress in Switzerland next year.

The Governor of Queensland, Australia, has established two new ports and settlements on the north-eastern coast of Australia—namely, at Cardwell, in Rockingham Bay, and at Somerset, near Cape York.

The tower of the church of St. Lawrence, at Nuremburg (Bavaria), which is 300 ft. high and one of the finest monuments of Gothic art in Germany, was recently struck and set on fire by lightning and the whole of the upper part destroyed.

The Press of Vienna quotes a curious passage from the will of Count Hartig, ex-minister of State, who recently died in that city. The deceased bequeaths to the Central State Treasury at Vienna 1000 florins by way of indemnification for the customs' duties on different small articles which he had not declared on entering Austria, in order to avoid the vexatious formalities attendant on the same.

The number of visiting-cards posted at Madrid on the occasion of last New Year's Day was 250,000, a mere trifle compared with those of Paris, but a great many for the capital of Spain. Some of the postmen, to save themselves the trouble of delivering the cards, threw them into the Manzanares, the small stream which passes through Madrid. Many were found on the banks of the river by the police; and, as the stamps on the envelopes showed from what offices they had been dispatched, the guilty postmen were discovered, arrested, and committed to prison.

According to a work on China recently published by M. D'Escayrac de Lauture, the Middle Empire is traversed in all directions by 20,000 Imperial roads, most of which are badly kept. There is, nevertheless, a postal service, but of a very rude kind. The couriers, who are dispatched by the local functionaries, are allowed to carry private letters for a trifling remuneration. Letters from Pekin reach Shanghai in fifteen or twenty days, and Canton in forty, fifty, and sometimes even sixty days. The postage of a letter from Pekin to Shanghai is 50c. The couriers change horses about every seven leagues. M. D'Escayrac de Lauture thinks that if the Government could be induced to grant a post-office contract to Europeans it might be made a very profitable speculation, and would render great services to commerce.

OBITUARY OF EMINENT PERSONS.

SIR ARCHER DENMAN CROFT, BART.

Sir Archer Denman Croft, eighth Baronet, of Croft Castle, in the county of Hereford, whose melancholy and sudden death, at his town house, 1, Sussex-place, Hyde Park, occurred on the 10th inst., on the very evening of his son's wedding, was the second son of Sir Richard Croft, the sixth Baronet, by his wife, Margaret, daughter of Thomas Denman, M.D., and sister of the very eminent Thomas, first Lord Denman, Lord Chief Justice of England. He was born Dec. 7, 1801, and was educated at Westminster School. He succeeded in the baronetcy his eldest brother, Sir Thomas Elmsley Croft, F.S.A., the seventh Baronet, Oct. 29, 1835. He was called to the Bar by the Hon. Society of Lincoln's Inn in 1839, having been appointed a Master of the Court of Queen's Bench in 1838. Sir Archer married, Aug. 31, 1837, Julia Barbara, widow of Athelstan Corbet, Esq., of Ynys y-Maengwyn, Merionethshire, and youngest daughter of General John Garstin, E.I.C.S., and by her (who died Nov. 17, 1864) leaves, with a daughter, Julia Helen, an only son, now Sir Herbert George Denman Croft, the ninth Baronet, who was born July 25, 1838, and married, Jan. 10, 1865, Georgiana Eliza Lucy, eldest daughter of Matthew Marsh, Esq., M.P., of Ramridge House, Hants. This family of Croft, which is of Saxon origin, settled in Herefordshire at a very remote period, and became possessed of Croft Castle more than seven centuries ago. Sir Richard Croft, Knight, the head of the house and a great warrior in the fifteenth century, took prisoner at the battle of Tewksbury, in 1471, the unfortunate youth Prince Edward, son of Henry VI.: Sir Richard was made a Knight Banneret at the battle of Stoke, in 1487, by Henry VII. His descendant, Sir Herbert Croft, a cavalier (son of Dr. Croft, Bishop of Hereford), was created a Baronet in 1671. He was the great-great-grandfather of the Baronet just deceased.

SIR J. S. GRAVES-SAWLE, BART.

Sir Joseph Sawle Graves-Sawle, Bart., of Penrice, in the county of Cornwall, J.P. and D.L. for that county, who died on the 13th inst. at Ashfield House, Honiton, Devon, was the son of Admiral John Graves, by his wife, Elizabeth, daughter and eventually sole heiress of Richard Sawle, Esq. He was born Dec. 10, 1793. He assumed by sign manual, April 7, 1815, the surname of Sawle only; but by another Royal license, dated Nov. 13, 1827, he resumed the name of Graves in addition to and before that of Sawle, and the arms of Graves quarterly. He was twice married; first, to Dorothea Prideaux, eldest daughter of the Rev. Charles Prideaux Brune, M.A., of Prideaux Place, Cornwall, by whom he had issue two sons, and a daughter, Mary Frances Elizabeth, wife of Francis J. Hext, Esq., of Tredithy, Cornwall. Sir Joseph married, secondly, Nov. 7, 1854, Eleanor Hoskins, daughter of James Kempthorne, Esq., of Bodmin. Sir Joseph is succeeded by his elder son, now Sir Charles Brune Sawle-Graves, the second Baronet, who was born Oct. 20, 1816, and who represented the borough of Bodmin in Parliament from 1852 to 1857. He married, Feb. 18, 1846, Rose Caroline, youngest daughter of David R. Paynter, Esq., C.B., of Dale, in the county of Pembroke, and grand-daughter of Earl Whitworth, and has issue. This family of Graves springs from Samuel Graves, Esq., whose younger brother, Rear-Admiral Thomas Graves, was father of Thomas, first Lord Graves. The Sawles are a very ancient Cornish family.

MR. JUSTICE BALL.

The Right Hon. Nicholas Ball, P.C., first Puisne Judge of the Court of Common Pleas in Ireland, who died, on the 15th inst., at his town house, 85, Stephen's-green, Dublin, was the son of John Ball, Esq., of Eccles-street, Dublin. He was born in 1791, and was educated at Stonyhurst, Lancashire, and Trinity College, Dublin. He was called to the Irish Bar in 1814, and soon distinguished himself as a sound and able lawyer. He was made a King's Counsel in 1830. He at one time enjoyed the largest share of the Irish Equity business. In 1836 he was elected M.P. for Clonmel, which borough he represented until 1839, when he was promoted to the Bench of the Common Pleas, Ireland, having in the previous year held the office of Irish Attorney-General and been made a member of the Irish Privy Council. He was the second Catholic barrister on whom the judicial dignity was conferred after the passing of the Emancipation Act, the first having been the late Sir Michael O'Loghlen, a Judge of the Common Pleas, and afterwards Master of the Rolls. Judge Ball discharged the judicial duties for fully a quarter of a century. He retired just prior to his demise. He married, in 1817, Jane, daughter of Thomas Sherlock, Esq., of Butlers-town, in the county of Kilkenny, and by her (who died in 1862) leaves, with other issue, John Ball, Esq., late M.P. for the county of Carlow, and Under Secretary of State for the Colonies.

MAJOR-GENERAL SIR CHARLES HOPKINSON, C.B.

The late Sir Charles Hopkinson was the second son of Benjamin Hopkinson, Esq., of Highbury Park, and was born in 1784. He entered the Military Academy at Woolwich in 1798, and the next year joined the Madras Artillery as Lieutenant. After serving under General Stuart in the Mahratta War, in 1803, he commanded the artillery in the force sent against the Poligars in the Chittoor Pollams, and received the thanks of the Commander-in-Chief for his services. In 1807 he served against the rebel Rajah Myaput Raon, under Sir G. Montressor, by whom he was placed on the general staff, as Paymaster and Commissary to the force then in the field. He served in the campaign against Bunghust Khan, in Khandeish, under Sir J. Doveton, and subsequently commanded the artillery at Hyderabad. In 1820 he came to England on sick leave, where he remained till 1824, and immediately on returning to India was appointed to the command of the whole of the artillery then serving with the forces under Sir Archibald Campbell in the expedition against Burmah. At the commencement of this campaign he contributed materially to the reduction of the important fortress of Donabew—in reference to which service his "unremitting zeal and activity," and "his skill in carrying on the approaches before the place," are mentioned in Sir A. Campbell's despatches as "reflecting upon him the highest credit." In 1826 the bad faith of the Burmese in refusing to ratify the treaty of peace caused a recommencement of hostilities, and operations were immediately undertaken against the fort of Melloon, opposite Patanagoh. It was taken by storm on the 19th of January, the troops entering through the breach made by Colonel Hopkinson's batteries, which had so effectually performed their work that this stronghold, containing three lacs of rupees and a vast quantity of military stores, was reduced with the loss of only two men. For his services on this occasion Colonel Hopkinson was recommended to the favourable notice of the Government, received the special thanks of the Governor-General in Council, and was made a C.B. At the end of the war in Ava, he returned to Madras, where he commanded the Horse Artillery in 1828-9; but, in the latter year, the ill-health from which he had constantly suffered, and increasing deafness, obliged him to retire from the service. His claims to distinction were, however, further acknowledged in 1837, when he received the honour of knighthood. From the time of his retirement till his death he lived chiefly in London, where his venerable figure was long conspicuous among the military habitués of Pall-mall. His own sufferings made him acutely sensible to those of others; and his abundant charities, amounting to never less than a third of his income, will long be missed by the numerous recipients of his bounty. He died last month, after a long and painful illness, at his residence, in King-street, St. James's.

CHARLES C. F. GREVILLE, ESQ.

Charles Cavendish Fulke Greville, Esq., who died suddenly, on the 18th inst., at Earl Granville's town house, 16, Bruton-street, Berkeley-square, where he had resided for some years past, was a scion of the noble house of Warwick, and was the eldest of the three sons of Charles Greville, Esq., by his wife, Lady Charlotte Cavendish Bentinck, eldest daughter of William Henry Cavendish, third Duke of Portland, K.G., and was cousin of George Grey, present Earl of Warwick. He was born April 2, 1794, and was educated at Eton, and at Christ Church, Oxford. He from 1821 filled the post of joint clerk to the Privy Council with the Right Hon. William Bathurst, retiring in 1860 with his colleague. He was also, for a period, Secretary to the Board of Trade and Plantations. Mr. Greville had long held a high and dignified position in racing circles, from his intimate connection with the turf, not only as a breeder, but also as an owner of racehorses. He was a man of remarkable integrity in all his relations, and, as one of the oldest members of the Jockey Club, possessed a paramount influence in the decisions of that exclusive body. Up to the latest hour of his life he took the greatest interest in the turf, and, in conjunction with his friends General Peel and Mr. George Payne, had endeavoured to keep up the noble character of that national sport. Mr. Greville was never married. His next brother, Algernon Frederick Greville, Esq., Bath King of Arms, died on the 15th ult., at Hillingdon, after a very short illness; and his now only surviving brother and sister are Henry Greville, Esq., Gentleman Usher to the Queen, and the Right Hon. Harriet Catherine, Dowager Countess of Ellesmere.

MRS. NASH.

This lady, who died on the 14th ult., in her seventy-seventh year, after nearly half a century of suffering, borne with Christian meekness, was the daughter of Sir Thomas Barnes, of Nettleham, and was, in 1809, married to the late Roland Nash, Esq., formerly assistant registrar and solicitor of the Bishop of Lincoln's diocese, afterwards of the Star newspaper, and once a contributor to the old-fashioned literature of his day. He was kinsman of the famous Sir Brooke Watson, and assisted his sons in various historical works. The deceased lady, his widow, was herself an active politician and great friend of Colonel Sibthorp and Mr. Fardell, solicitor, and M.P. for Lincoln.

CHESS.

TO CORRESPONDENTS.

I. M., CHARLES, F. G., and OTHERS.—Problem No. 1091.—By an inadvertence, one of the Pawns got misplaced in the drawing of this diagram, and renders the solution impracticable. The white Pawn should stand on his King's Kt 4th, not 5th, square.

ELOETHAN.—The copy, when condemned by the examiner, was destroyed. Before attempting the composition of another problem, we strongly advise you to obtain some treatise on the game, the "Chessplayer's Handbook," for example, and resolutely study it. You will find that in the English system of notation the squares are counted from both sides. Thus, when the white King's Pawn is advanced to his King's 6th square, he stands on the Black King's 3rd, and vice versâ.

F. I. BIGGS.—Much too easy.

I. M. C., Dublin.—It is not admissible, under any circumstances, to place your King "en prise" of an adverse piece or Pawn.

LA GALE.—It is not yet published.

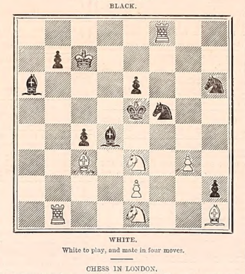
MATEO DE ZAMORA.—You are very wide of the mark in your attempted solution of Enigma No. 1430. Try, for the first move, 1. Q takes Q P. The solution of the other two enigmas and of Problem 1089 are correct.

W. M.—Undoubtedly a beautiful position, but it has been published several times.

A.C. and WELLWISHER.—The proposal of the proprietors of the forthcoming new chess publication, "The Chess World," to give prizes for the best collection of games as well as problems, is sure to have an encouraging effect upon our players. There may probably be some difficulty in arranging the details, but this will soon be overcome. We think the idea as practicable as it is novel and good.

S. O. H. T., Norwich.—An elegant little game. We shall be glad to see some more specimens of Norfolk play equally good.

SOLUTIONS OF PROBLEM NO. 1090 by Leonard, Burga, T. M. B., Anne, R. S. of Malines, V. G., E. B. F., Cora, Nereus, B. A., Felix, Dantzic, M. P., Box and Cox, W. W. P., Harry, G. W. M., Festus; E. W., Bath; Q. E. D., B. C. L., Wee Pawn, B. B., L. S. D., La Gale, Bath Archer, Gavino, Nemo, Etoniensis, Larry, A. Z., 1865, D. L. C., Licalsi-tardi, Monroe, D. D., Ely, C. H. L., A. A. T., Clericus, F. D. E., Edward, Ianthe, S. W. B., Banting, G. E. K., T. M., Civis, Esmond, Timothy, S. of Deptford, Fiddle, Manfred and Man Friday, Peon, The Trio, Dr. Fould, G. L. W., Young Rapid, W. E. S., Pip, Query, May of Cairnsfoot, D. P. D., A Mechanic of John Penn's, Lucy Short, P. of Canterbury, E. C., Richard, W. S. W., Charley, A Muff of the First Magnitude, Miles, T. B., Dereven, Eques, A German, I. M. C., T. E. R., Aunt Sally, Julio, A. M., H. W. of Oxford, are correct. All others are wrong.



PROBLEM No. 1091.

In this position the white Pawn, which in the diagram stands on White's K Kt 5th, should occupy White's K Kt 4th square. We reserve the solution, therefore, for another week.

PROBLEM NO. 1092.

By Mr. F. HEALEY.

BLACK.

WHITE.

White to play, and mate in four moves.

CHESS IN LONDON.

A dashing little Game, played at the Grand Cigar Divan, between Mr. S. O. H. TAYLOR, of the Norwich Chess Club, and a foreign Amateur.—(King's Gambit.)

BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Amateur.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. P to K B 4th	P takes P
3. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K Kt 4th
4. B to Q B 4th	B to Q Kt 2nd
5. P to K R 4th	P to K R 3rd
6. P to Q 4th	P to Q 3rd
7. P takes K Kt P	P takes P
8. R takes R	B takes R.
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	Kt to Q 2nd
10. Q to Q 3rd	K to B sq
11. P to K 5th

(The key-move of a very pretty combination.)

BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Amateur.)
11.	Kt to Q Kt 3rd
12. B takes K B P	K takes B
13. Q to K R 7th (ch)	B to K Kt 2nd
14. Kt to K 4th	Kt to K R 3rd
15. K Kt takes K Kt P (ch)	K to B sq
16. P to K 6th	P to Q 4th
17. Q to K Kt 6th	P takes Kt
18. Kt to K R 7th (ch)	K to Kt sq
19. B takes P

(This looks very hazardous, but the position demands bold measures.)

BLACK (Mr. T.)	WHITE (Amateur.)
19.	Q to K R 5th (ch)
20. B to K Kt 3rd	Q to K 2nd
21. B to K 5th	Kt to Q 4th
22. Kt to K Kt 5th	Kt to K B 3rd
23. P to Q 5th	Q to K sq
24. Kt to K B 7th	Kt takes Kt
25. B takes Kt	Q to K B sq
26. P to K 7th, and wins

CHESS IN PARIS.

Continuation of the Games between Messrs. HIRSCHFIELD and KOLISCH.

(Two Knights' Defence.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	Kt to K B 3rd
4. Kt to K Kt 5th	P to Q 4th
5. P takes P	Kt to Q R 4th
6. B to Q Kt 5th (ch)	P to Q B 3rd
7. P takes P	P takes P
8. B to K 2nd	P to K R 3rd
9. Kt to K B 3rd	P to K 5th
10. Kt to K 5th	Q to Q 5th
11. P to K B 4th	B to Q B 4th
12. R to K B sq	B to Q 3rd
13. P to Q B 3rd	Q to Q Kt 3rd
14. P to Q Kt 4th	Kt to Q Kt 2nd
15. Q to Q R 4th	Kt to Q sq
16. Kt to Q R 3rd	B to K 3rd
17. Q Kt to Q B 4th	Q B takes Kt
18. B takes B	Castles
19. P to Q 4th	P takes P in passing
20. Kt takes Q P	R to K sq (ch)
21. K to Q sq	Kt to K 5th
22. K to Q B 2nd	Q to Q B 2nd
23. P to K Kt 3rd	P to Q R 4th
24. P takes P	Q R takes P
25. Q to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to Q Kt 2nd

(Mr. Journoud suggested here, with reason, that White would have done well to play the Q's Rook to K R 4th).

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
26. Q R to Q Kt sq	K Kt to Q B 4th
27. Kt takes Kt	Kt takes Kt
28. Q to Q Kt 6th	Q to Q 2nd

(Very finely conceived. By abandoning the Rook, White obtains an irresistible attack).

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
29. Q takes R	Q to K B 4th (ch)
30. K to Q sq

(Any other move would have been directly fatal to him).

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
30.	Q takes Q R
31. Q to Q R 7th

(This will be found a better move than Q to Q Kt 4th).

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
31.	R to Q sq

(This is conclusive. Play as he may, Black's game is gone.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
32. Q takes K B P (ch)	K to R sq
33. K to K 2nd	Q to K 5th (ch)
34. K to K B 2nd

(If 34. B to K 3rd, then followed,
34. R to K B sq
35. Q moves Q takes B (ch), &c.)

BLACK (Mr. H.)	WHITE (Mr. K.)
34.	Kt to Q 6th (ch)
35. B takes Kt	B to Q B 4th (ch)
36. B to K 3rd	B takes B (ch)

and Black resigned.

Between the same Players.—(Evans's Gambit.)

WHITE (Mr. K.)	BLACK (Mr. H.)
1. P to K 4th	P to K 4th
2. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 3rd
3. B to Q B 4th	B to Q B 4th
4. P to Q Kt 4th	B takes Kt P
5. P to Q B 3rd	B to Q B 4th
6. Castles	P to Q 3rd
7. P to Q 4th	P takes P
8. P takes P	B to Q Kt 3rd
9. Kt to Q B 3rd	B to K Kt 5th
10. Q to Q R 4th	B to Q 2nd
11. Q to Q Kt 3rd	Kt to Q R 4th
12. B tks K B P (ch)	K to B sq
13. Q to Q B 2nd	K takes B
14. P to K 5th	P to K R 3rd
15. P to Q 5th	Kt to K B 3rd

(Whether this sacrifice proves a valid defence to the ingenious mode of attack adopted in the present game or not, it is in the highest degree creditable to Mr. Hirschfeld's ingenuity.)

WHITE (Mr. K.)	BLACK (Mr. H.)
16. P takes Kt	Q takes P
17. Kt to K 4th	Q takes Q R

(B to K B 4th would also have been good play.)

WHITE (Mr. K.)	BLACK (Mr. H.)
18. R to K sq

(B to Q Kt 2nd, followed by Q Kt to K Kt 5th (ch), would have given White a magnificent position of attack.)

WHITE (Mr. K.)	BLACK (Mr. H.)
18.	Q R to K sq
19. B to Q Kt 2nd	Q takes Q R P
20. Q to Q B 3rd	K R to K Kt sq
21. Kt to K R 4th

(Threatening a fearful check with his Queen at K B 3rd square.)

WHITE (Mr. K.)	BLACK (Mr. H.)
21.	B to K Kt 5th
22. Q to Q 2nd	P to K Kt 4th
23. Q to Q B 3rd	R to K 4th
24. Kt to K B 3rd	Kt to Q B 5th
25. Kt takes R (ch)	Kt takes Kt
26. B to Q R 3rd	Q takes Q P
27. Kt to K Kt 3rd	R to K sq
28. R to K B sq	B to K R 6th
29. P takes B	Kt to K B 6th (ch)
30. K to R sq	Kt to K 8th (ch)
31. P to K B 3rd	R to K 6th
32. Q to K R 8th	R takes K B P

and wins.

SCIENTIFIC NEWS.

Throughout February the morning stars will be Mercury (successively in Sagittarius, Capricornus, and Aquarius) and Jupiter (in Scorpio). Venus (in Pisces) will be an evening star. On Feb. 15 Mars (in Taurus) passes the meridian at 6h. 50m. p.m.; Jupiter rises at 3h. 57m. a.m.; Saturn (in Virgo) passes the meridian at 4h. 16m. a.m.; and Uranus (in Taurus) passes the meridian at 7h. 57m. p.m. The Moon's changes during the month will be:—First quarter, Feb. 3, 1h. 9m. a.m.; full Moon, Feb. 10, 4h. 27m. p.m.; last quarter, Feb. 18, 9h. 38m. p.m.; new Moon, Feb. 25, 8h. 3m. p.m. The constellations Ursa Major, Leo Minor, and Leo will be on the meridian about midnight near the middle of the month.

Two papers by Dr. John Shortt appear in the new number of the Linnean Society's Journal. The first is an account of a heronry and breeding-place of other water-birds, at Vaden Thaugul, about fifty miles from Madras. These birds come to the spot in flocks in October and November to settle for breeding. Nests are rapidly built; the scene soon becomes exceedingly lively; and the trees are covered with bird-life. As the young are gradually reared the families depart, and by the middle of April the spot is quite deserted. This bird village is protected by the British Government. Dr. Shortt had the good fortune to visit the camp in March last, when he caused much dismay to the occupants, of which he gives a list. In his second paper he describes the habits of the Myrmica kirbii, a species of ant, found in Southern India. Its nest, built on trees, about 30 ft. above the ground, are constructed of a fine mixture of cowdung and leaves, arranged in such a manner as to be impervious to rain, yet permit free ventilation. This ant is exceedingly ferocious, attacking man or beast when meddled with. Late one evening Dr. Shortt placed two nests on his window-sill; the next morning the place was completely covered with dead or dying ants, a dreadful battle having ensued between the inhabitants of the two nests.

Mr. T. F. Jamieson's paper "On the Last Geological Changes in Scotland" was read at the recent meeting of the Geological Society. The history of these changes was divided into three periods—the pre-glacial, the glacial, and the post-glacial. Our knowledge of the first period is obscure, through the absence of the later tertiary strata; but Mr. Jamieson considers it to be represented by thick masses of sand and gravel, and that there were indications of the mammoth having inhabited Scotland during the period. The glacial period he divided into three successive portions—the period of land ice, during which the rocky surface was worn and scratched and the boulder earth or glacier mud formed; the period of depression, when the glacier marine beds were formed; and the period of emergence of the land, to which belong the valley-gravels and moraines, and during which the final retreat of the glaciers took place. During the post-glacial period Mr. Jamieson believes that the formation of the submarine forest beds took place, and that this was followed by a second period of depression, to which succeeded the elevation of the land to its present position. In this second period of depression Mr. Jamieson discovers the first traces of man in Scotland. He refers the shell-mounds with chipped flints to the same epoch as the blown sand and beds of peat—the most recent period, during which the land was raised to its present level.

M. Du Moncel recently submitted to the Academy of Sciences at Paris a new form of the electro-magnet, invented by M. Carlier. In his note, the latter says that hitherto an electro-magnet was composed of a cylinder of iron, covered with a helix of metallic wire, through which an electric current passed; and that it was considered indispensable that the different spirals of this helix should be insulated, which was done by inclosing the wire in silk, cotton, gutta-percha, or a varnish. M. Carlier, imagining that this covering was unnecessary, constructed electro-magnets with the helix entirely uncovered; and thereby obtained results so extraordinary that M. Du Moncel would not have credited them if he had not himself experimented with the new form of apparatus. He says that the effects are more than doubled. The only condition to be observed is that the different layers of wire should be separated from each other by paper, and that the bobbins should be wood or copper, coated with an insulating material. According to M. Du Moncel, the advantages of the change will be considerable economy in the manufacture of the electro-magnets, much more energetic effects, and the suppression of the extra current. In No. 2 of the Comptes Rendus of the Academy more details will be found. At the same meeting a note from the Abbé Laborde was read, in which he described a process of simplifying analysis by the spectrum by means of an apparatus which he terms a "metallic controller." At the next meeting of the Academy M. Du Moncel gave the results of additional experiments, showing that it is currents of quantity which are especially suited to electro-magnets with uncovered wire, and that the extra current is considerably diminished only when the uncovered wire is thick and when a Bunsen's battery is employed.

The day of meeting of the Photographic Society has been changed from the first to the second Tuesday in each month, in order that the account of the proceedings may appear sooner in the society's journal. We are happy to be able to contradict the report that the publication of the journal was to be discontinued; on the contrary, measures have been taken for its enlargement and improvement. At the last meeting of the society Mr. Haes described the measures which he employed in obtaining his beautiful photographs of the animals in the Zoological Gardens. He had much trouble in taking the sable antelope, but fortunately succeeded, after a week of attempts, by drawing the animal's attention from himself to a lad with a light blue coat. The lion's head was well taken, but only one negative was obtained of the tiger—a much more restless animal. The elephant he describes as the most fidgety animal in existence, and the tortoise would always move its head at the wrong time, but was at last caught napping. "Susan," the ourang-outang, gave Mr. Haes much less trouble than he had experienced with bimana of the genus homo. Interesting particulars are given of other animals. Mr. Haes' paper is really a valuable contribution to our knowledge of the habits of the more important inhabitants of the Zoological Gardens. At the same meeting Mr. Johnson described his "Pantoscopic Camera," the construction of which is based upon the fact "that if a lens revolve about a pivot placed immediately under its optical centre, and if the image be received upon the interior of a cylinder placed behind and concentric with it, the image is stationary notwithstanding the rotation of the lens." This camera, which was stated to differ in most of its details from preceding attempts, naturally became the subject of much discussion.

The Municipal Council of Madrid has decided on erecting a statue to Murillo in the garden being laid out on the Plaza del Progreso.

A committee appointed by the people of Stutgardt to examine the motion of M. Buher for the abolition of the punishment of death has decided, with one dissentient voice, in favour of the proposition.

According to statistical tables recently published, there are in the Austrian empire 250,000 males entitled to the appellation of nobles. Hungary is down for 163,000; Galicia, 24,900; and Bohemia, 2260, among whom are 14 princes, 172 counts, and 80 barons.

Returns give the following as the number of foreigners who visited some of the principal German spas during the last season:—Baden, 49,545; Wiesbaden, 39,410; Toplitz, 20,255; Ems, 7595; Ischl, 6001; Marienbad, 4535; Nauheim, 3395; and Schlangenbad, 1426.

During the month of October last there arrived in the colony of Victoria, Australia, 4665 persons, of whom 916 were from the United Kingdom. The number of departures from the colony was 1304, of whom 127 were for the United Kingdom. The current rates of wages ranged from £30 per annum for single farm labourers to £60 for married labourers without children, and from £15 for nursemaids to £35 for cooks.

A letter from Cochin-China mentions that the arrival of letters at Barriah from Saigon was recently delayed by a singular incident. The native who acts as courier being some time overdue, the commander of the place sent a detachment to see what had become of him, when, after an hour's march, the troops found the unfortunate Indian perched at the top of a high bamboo, while two enormous tigers were at the foot rolling over the letter-box. The courier was released from his uncomfortable position, and enabled to continue his journey.

A letter from St. Petersburg, dated the 18th inst., notices as follows the sitting of the Imperial Geographical Society on the 14th of December, at which news of interest was given concerning the countries of Central Asia:—Mr. Struve read an account of a voyage he had made, in company with Mr. Potanine, towards the sources of the Irtisch, to the Lake Zaissane, and to the mountains of Tarbigataisk. According to the information collected by the author it appears that the Kirghises and Tatars are inclined to form fixed settlements, and have begun to found villages, one of which is situate at about forty kilometres to the south of the mountains of Tarbigataisk.——After Mr. Struve, Rear-Admiral Boutakoff gave an account of his exploration of the Sir Daria. He has ascertained that this river is navigable to a distance of 8000 kilometres from Fort Perowsky, which gives a total length of 1500 navigable kilometres from its mouth. It is still unknown the river if higher up has a sufficient depth to carry boats. Rear-Admiral Boutakoff has met as far as Fort Djoulek the traces of canals and of some towns, the existence of which dates as far back as Tamerlane. The desert lands begin higher up. All the territory comprised between the Forts Perowsky and Djoulek is at present inhabited by a numerous and active population, who occupy themselves with husbandry and cattle-breeding. The Kirghises dig water-canals, drain the bogs, construct dikes, and live on good terms with the Cossack colony established near the fort. Every day there arrive Kirghises and wandering Korakalpacks, who abandon Khiva and put themselves under our protection.——The Academical Gazette publishes the account of a voyage of exploration of the River Soungoura, a tributary stream of the Amoor. Our steamer (says the correspondent) ascended the river as far as Guirine, a Mantchoura town of 100,000 inhabitants, which serves as a seat of residence to the governor of the country. The borders of the Soungoura, which traverses Mantchouria from south to north, are well-peopled, and the inhabitants gather in crowds round the Russians to admire their dress, and especially the steamer working its way against the current by means of its paddle-wheels. It results, from this first voyage, that the Soungoura is navigable from the Amoor as far as the confluence of the Nani-Onta, but that further on there are shallows. It remains now to ascertain if the Nani-Onta is not likewise navigable.

NEW MUSIC.

Music Warehouse, 201, Regent-street.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207, Regent-street.

MESSRS. CRAMER and CO. (Limited) have lately published the following Compositions:—

I.—FOR VOICE.

GOUNOD—"For lack of gold he left me." Sung by Titiens. In A and G	3s. 0d.
ARDITI—"Oh, touch the ivory keys again!"	3s. 0d.
" Beauty, Sleep (L'Ardita)	3s. 0d.
" Dream of Home (Bacio)	3s. 0d.
" Gondolier's Last Good-night	3s. 0d.
WALLACE—Bird of the Wild Wing	3s. 0d.
BALFE—She sleeps! though not a star	3s. 0d.
ASCHER—The Cavalier's Steed. In E and C	3s. 0d.
BENEDICT—My Home in Cloudland. In D and B	3s. 0d.
NICOLAI—The Happy Dawn of Day	3s. 0d.
RANDEGGER—"Round with her, boys! Yo-ho!" In C, B, and G	3s. 0d.
DELAMERE—My Lady's glove	3s. 0d.
LEVEY—Coo! says the gentle dove. In G and F	3s. 0d.
" Hurrah for the Bombardier! In A and F	3s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—The celebrated "Leah's Song." In E, D, and C	3s. 0d.

II.—FOR PIANO.

WALLACE—Prelude and scherzo	5s. 0d.
" Tarantelle	4s. 0d.
" Mazurka, Cracovie	3s. 0d.
GOUNOD—Four songs without words, each	3s. 0d.
ASCHER—Chant des Naïades	5s. 0d.
BLUMENTHAL—La Stella	3s. 6d.
" Téré, Téré	3s. 6d.
" Les Ailes	4s. 0d.
BRINLEY RICHARDS—"Wear this flower" (Helvellyn)	2s. 6d.
" Cujus animam. Solo, 4s.; Duet	4s. 0d.
FAVARGER—Stradella Fantaisie	3s. 6d.
" Masaniello ditto	4s. 0d.
SCHUMANN—Chanson dans le Jardin. Duet. Edited by Lindsay Sloper	5s. 0d.

III.—DANCE MUSIC.

New and Popular Quadrilles, Waltzes, Galops, Polkas, and Mazurkas, by Coote, Tinney, De Villiers, Manns, Marriott, Montgomery, Pinsuti, Clarke, &c.

Specially prepared Lists of Vocal and Instrumental Music on application. All New Music sent at Half-price.

IV.—CHAMBER OPERETTAS.

Now ready, scored for Voice and Piano, with or without Chorus, and suited for private performance.
1. BRIDE OF SONG.—BENEDICT.
2. SLEEPING QUEEN.—BALFE.
3. PUNCHINELLO.—LEVEY.
4. JESSY LEA.—MACFARREN.

For the Pianoforte Department see other advertisement.

COOTE'S NEW CALEDONIANS, with the Figures. Price 4s. One of the best quadrilles ever published by this popular dance composer, and will be sure to take its place with the celebrated Cure Lancers by the same Composer.
HOPWOOD and CREW, 42, New Bond-street, W.

VIRGINIA GABRIEL'S LATEST SONG.

THE GARDEN OF ROSES.—The most favourite of all Miss Gabriel's compositions. Post-free for 19 stamps from EVANS and Co., 77, Baker-street, Portman-sq., W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) LET on HIRE the following PIANOFORTES for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

28-guinea Pianette, in rosewood or walnut	10 guineas per annum.
40-guinea Drawing-room Model Cottage, rosewood or walnut	15 guineas per annum.
60-guinea Semi-oblique, rosewood or walnut	20 guineas per annum.

Every instrument is warranted of the very best manufacture, inferior Pianofortes being entirely excluded from the stock.
Quarterly payments are required.

PIANOFORTE GALLERY
(the Largest in Europe),
207 and 209, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER and CO. (Limited) Let on Hire the following Harmoniums for three years, after which, and without any further payment whatever, the Instrument becomes the property of the hirer:—

24-guinea, 7-stop, in oak, rosewood, or walnut	2 guineas per quarter.
36-guinea, 11-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	3 guineas per quarter.
48-guinea, 13-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	4 guineas per quarter.
60-guinea, 19-stop, oak, rosewood, or walnut	5 guineas per quarter.

Every instrument is warranted, by Debain, of Paris, and of the very best manufacture.
Quarterly payments are required.

HARMONIUM GALLERY,
201, Regent-street, W.

CRAMER'S ENGLISH PIANETTE. 22 guineas. Cramer and Co. manufacture this capital small instrument. It has all the requisites of the best Pianoforte—check action, solid touch, agreeable tone. The case is of polished ash or pine. In practising on this Pianoforte the fingers of the player will be strengthened much more rapidly than on an old instrument loose in the key and worn in the hammer. In rosewood or walnut, 26 and 28 guineas.
Purchasers are particularly requested to observe that this instrument has not the common or single action, but the double or check action; and that Cramer and Co. were the original manufacturers.

BROADWOOD'S NEW DRAWING-ROOM GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 165 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) beg to direct attention to these extremely elegant and greatly admired new Pianofortes. Cramer and Co. have selected the very finest specimens, and they will be found to fulfil all the requirements of the most fastidious performer. The prices the same as those charged by the manufacturers themselves—the public having the advantage of the very choicest instruments. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW SEMI-GRAND, price 110 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. exhibit the largest selection to be seen in London. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

COLLARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRAND, price 135 guineas in Rosewood, and 150 guineas in Walnut.—CRAMER and CO. have now in their Gallery a large number of these very powerful and remarkably effective Pianofortes. The cases are of walnut and rosewood, and very elegant. The tone and touch are everything that can be wished for. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment. Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

ERARD'S NEW BOUDOIR GRANDS, in Rosewood, 135 guineas; in Walnut, 155 guineas.—CRAMER and CO. have selected from the manufactories of these celebrated makers the most perfect instruments, both as regards tone and touch, that have yet been produced. They are very greatly in advance of the older class of instruments, and come very near the power and fulness of the largest grand. These Pianofortes may be had on Cramer and Co.'s system of hire, which after three years gives the instrument to the hirer without further payment.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. LET on HIRE new COTTAGE PIANOFORTES, by Broadwood, Collard, and Erard, at from 20 to 25 guineas per annum, and at the end of three years the instrument becomes the property of the hirer without further payment. Hire paid quarterly.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

CRAMER and CO. (in answer to numerous inquiries) beg to intimate that they extend their system of three year's hire to all parts of the United Kingdom, satisfactory references and a quarter's hire in advance being the only indispensable preliminaries.—Pianoforte Gallery (the largest in Europe), 207 and 209, Regent-street.

INDIAN PIANOFORTES.—CRAMER and CO. (Limited) manufacture for India a superior COTTAGE PIANOFORTE, in solid mahogany, with metallic bracings, and all other appliances necessary to resist the effect of extreme climates. Unusual skill and attention are bestowed upon the manufacture of these instruments, which, for their excellent quality of tone and durability, have obtained the highest commendation. Cramer and Co. deliver these instruments, f. o. b., packed in cases lined with zinc, at any home port, for 50 guineas. Size:—Height, 3 ft. 11½ in. width, 4 ft. 4½ in.; depth, 2 ft. 1½ in.
Pianoforte Gallery, 207 and 209, Regent-street, London.

STAINED-GLASS WINDOWS for CHURCHES and DWELLINGS.
HEATON, BUTLER, and BAYNE'S New Catalogue, containing 18 pages of Illustrations, including completed Windows of the highest character, also Church Decorations and Memorial Brasses, now publishing, 3s. 6d., post-free.—Heaton, Butler, and Bayne, New King-street, Covent-garden, W.C.

NEW BOOKS.

Elegant Gift-Book.—Second Edition now ready, with Frontispiece by F. Gilbert, toned paper, crown 8vo, price 6s.,

BEAUTIES OF TROPICAL SCENERY, LYRICAL SKETCHES, AND LOVE-SONGS. With Notes. By R. N. DUNBAR.
"This is a charming volume; the poems are full of vitality, and rich, varied beauties."—Morning Post.
"The love-songs are worthy of Thomas Moore."—Critic.
"It is adorned with a delicious frontispiece."—Illustrated Times.
London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

HARDWICKE'S SCIENCE GOSSIP about Animals, Aquaria, Bees, Beetles, Birds, Butterflies, Ferns, Fish, Fossils, Lichens, Microscopes, Mosses, Reptiles, Rocks, Seaweeds, Wild Flowers, &c. 4d., Monthly. No. 1, January, 1865.
HARDWICKE, Piccadilly; and all Booksellers.

Now ready, in fcap 8vo, price 6s.,

EDEN, and other Poems. By ALFRED DIXON TOOVEY.
"I congratulate you on the steps you have achieved up the steep and arduous ascent."—The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.
"I am proud of your book, and it takes a prominent place in my bookcase of presentations. There are some parts of 'Modern Life' which, in my humble opinion, are equal to the productions of Rogers himself."—Eliza Cook.
"It is seldom we meet with a volume of poems of so much real merit as the present, and no one can read them even in the most cursory manner without being struck with the genuine spirit of poetry which they display. Some of the poems were published many years since; and of one of them, 'Modern Life,' Mr. Samuel Rogers, the gifted author of 'The Pleasures of Memory,' expressed his very high appreciation. Of those in the volume which are now, the highest commendation we can give is that they are equal to the best of those in the former publication."—Observer, Jan. 8, 1865.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, LONGMAN, ROBERTS, and GREEN.

One-volume Editions of WHYTE MELVILLE'S Novels. Complete in 1 vol., crown 8vo, with Frontispiece, price 5s.,

THE GLADIATORS. A Tale of Rome and Judæa. By G. J. Whyte Melville.
New and Cheaper Editions of Works by the same Author.
DIGBY GRAND. An Autobiography. 5s.
KATE COVENTRY. An Autobiography. 5s.
GENERAL BOUNCE; or, The Lady and the Locusts. 5s.
THE INTERPRETER. A Tale of the War. 5s.
GOOD FOR NOTHING; or, All Down Hill. 6s.
THE QUEEN'S MARIES. A Romance of Holyrood. 6s.
HOLMBY HOUSE. A Tale of Old Northamptonshire. 5s.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

PRIVATE LIFE OF AN EASTERN QUEEN.
Just published, in post 8vo, price 7s. 6d. cloth,

ELIHU JAN'S STORY; or, The Private Life of an Eastern Queen. By WILLIAM KNIGHTON, LL.D., Assistant Commissioner in Oudh.
"The book will be read with much pleasure, and will convey to the mind a graphic picture of the inner life of a high native Indian lady."—Observer.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, and CO., Paternoster-row.

WHO'S WHO for 1865.
Price 2s. 6d., by post 2s. 8d.
London: A. H. BAILY and CO., Cornhill.

EDUCATIONAL WORKS.
Sixty-two pages, price 6d., or forwarded by post to any Lady or Gentleman engaged in tuition on receipt of one stamp.

STANFORD'S CLASSIFIED CATALOGUE OF SCHOOL-BOOKS, ATLASES, MAPS, GLOBES, and SCHOOL STATIONERY.
The Divisions embrace, irrespective of Publisher, all the most modern and improved Class-books for English Reading, Spelling, Grammar, and Composition, Geography, Astronomy, History, Arithmetic, Algebra, Mathematics; the Greek, Latin, French, German, and Italian Languages; Chemistry, Natural Philosophy, and every other branch of Education.
Edward Stanford,
London School Library, 6, Charing-cross, S.W.

WHIST, Laws and Principles of. By CAVENDISH. Seventh edition. Price 3s. 6d.; by post, 3s. 8d. "Admirably illustrated."—Macmillan. "Admirable."—J. C.'s Treatise. "Displays peculiar ability."—Illustrated News. "Very lucid."—Field.—BANCKS, 12, Glasshouse-street, W.

Third Edition, now ready, price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,

DR. HUNTER'S LETTERS ON THE LUNGS. Specially intended for those suffering from Pulmonary Complaints. A series of plain, practical letters on affections of the mucous membrane of the nose, throat, larynx, and lungs, embracing the nature, causes, and treatment of catarrh, sore throat, laryngitis, bronchitis, consumption, and asthma. By ROBERT HUNTER, M.D., late Editor of the New York Journal of Diseases of the Chest, &c. With a Preface by J. J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E.
MITCHELL and CO., Red Lion-court, Fleet-street.

J. GILBERT'S 3s. 6d. BIBLE. Illuminated Titles by Stanesby. Six Steel Plates. Bound in morocco, with rims and clasp. An exceedingly cheap book.
J. GILBERT'S 5s. BIBLE. Good readable type, well bound morocco, with rims and clasp. Beautifully illustrated, with Illuminated Titles, Steel Plates, and Coloured Maps. A cheap, useful, and attractive present.
J. GILBERT'S PARAGON BIBLE, 10s. 6d. Superior Type, best morocco, gilt rims, and clasp, beautifully illustrated with Illuminated Titles (designed expressly for this book by Samuel Stanesby), Steel Plates, and Coloured Maps. A really handsome present.
Either of the above Books sent post-free on receipt of stamps.
18 and 19, Gracechurch-street, London, E.C.

POSTAGE STAMPS.—A PRICED CATALOGUE of FOREIGN POSTAGE STAMPS sent, post-free, for two stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 462, New Oxford-street, London, W.C. Standard Guide to Postage Stamp Collecting, post-free, 1s. 1d.

BINDING the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.—The Half-yearly volumes bound in the appropriate Covers, with gilt edges, at 5s. each, if sent carriage-free with P. O. order, to LEIGHTON, SON, and HODGE, 13, Shoe-lane, London. The only Binders authorised by the Proprietors.

WEDDING and BIRTHDAY PRESENTS, at HENRY RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly. Mounted and Ormoulu Suites for the Boudoir, Toilette, and Writing-table; and a variety of useful and elegant novelties suitable for presentation.

RODRIGUES' DESPATCH-BOXES and TRAVELLING WRITING-CASES, in russia or morocco, of the best quality. Elegantly-mounted Envelope Cases, Blotting Books, Inkstands, and Bookslides, at H. Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

RODRIGUES' DRESSING-CASES and TRAVELLING DRESSING-BAGS, with silver or plated fittings, in every variety. Carriage Bags, Reticules, Jewel Cases, Cigar Cases, and Purses. At Henry Rodrigues', 42, Piccadilly, W.

NO CHARGE MADE for STAMPING PAPER and ENVELOPES with Arms, Crest, or Monograms, plain. Rodrigues' Cream-laid Envelopes, 4d. per 100; Cream-laid Note, full size, five quires for 6d. At H. RODRIGUES', 42, Piccadilly.

THE PRETTIEST GIFT FOR A LADY is one of JONES'S LEVER WATCHES, at £11 11s.; for a Gentleman, at £10 10s. Rewarded at the Exhibition for cheapness of production. Manufactory, 338, Strand, opposite Somerset House.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—ARTIST IN HAIR. DEWDNEY beautifully makes and mounts in fine gold Hair Bracelets, Chains, Brooches, Rings, Pins, Studs, &c., and forwards the same at about one half the usual charge. An elegant collection of specimens handsomely mounted kept for inspection. A splendid assortment of Jet in every variety. An Illustrated Book sent post-free.—Dewdney, 172, Fenchurch-street, London.

HAIR JEWELLERY.—G. HOOPER, Artist in Hair.—Solid Gold Lockets for Hair, from 5s. each; Hair Rings, from 6s. 6d.; Hair Alberts, from 25s. each, &c. Illustrated Catalogues sent free.—213, Regent-street, London.

A. FORRER, Hair Jeweller to the Queen, 2, Hanover-street, Hanover-square, W.

SELLING BY THOUSANDS,

THE INGENIOUS POCKET TIMEPIECE, with Case complete, warranted to denote solar time correctly. Price One Shilling; by post, thirteen stamps.
WARD and CO., Kinver, near Stourbridge.

TO LADIES.—GREEN TISSUE IVY LEAVES, for ornamenting Chimney-glasses. 18 stamps per set of 72 slips. Braiding patterns for dresses (5 yards) 20 stamps.—R. PETERS, Tovil, Maidstone.

FIRE in GRESHAM-STREET, E.C. Messrs. THOMAS TAPLING and CO., CARPET WAREHOUSEMEN, &c., will until further Notice carry on their BUSINESS in Premises all communicating at 44A, GRESHAM-STREET, and 74, ALDERMANBURY (opposite those of Messrs. Bradbury, Greatorex, and Beall).

TRELOAR'S KAMPTULICON FLOOR CLOTH.
Manufacturer's Warehouse,
10, Ludgate-hill, London.

THE FIVE-GUINEA SERVICE of PLATE and CUTLERY, in oak case, manufactured by MAPPIN, WEBB, and CO., 77 and 78, Oxford-street, and 71 and 72, Cornhill, is specially suitable for University students, military and naval officers, and is a very useful and appropriate present. Full particulars on application. Catalogues post-free.
West-end House, 77 and 78, Oxford-street.
City House, 71 and 72, Cornhill.
Manufactory, the Royal Cutlery Works, Sheffield.

GARDNERS' £2 2s. DINNER-SERVICES, complete, best quality. Illustrated Catalogues post-free.—Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (4 doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

GARDNERS' LAMPS ARE THE BEST.—MODERATOR and PARAFFIN TABLE LAMPS, from 5s. 6d. each. Gardners', Manufacturers to the Queen, 453, Strand, Charing-cross (four doors from Trafalgar-square), London.

OSLER'S Crystal Glass CHANDELIERS, Wall Lights, and Lustres, for Gas and Candles. Table Glass, &c.
Glass Dinner Services, for 12 persons, from £7 15s.
Glass Dessert Services, for 12 persons, from £2.
All articles marked in plain figures.
Ornamental Glass, English and Foreign, suitable for presents.
Mess, Export, and Furnishing Orders promptly executed.
London—Show-rooms, 45, Oxford-street, W.
Birmingham—Manufactory and Show-rooms, Broad-street.
Established 1807.

CHANDELIERS in BRONZE and ORMOLU for DINING-ROOM and LIBRARY, Candelabra, Moderator Lamps, in Bronze, Ormoulu, China, and Glass. Statuettes in Parian, Vases, and other ornaments.—OSLER, 45, Oxford-street, W.

GASELIERS in Crystal, Glass, Ormoulu, or Bronze. Mediæval Fittings, &c. A large assortment always on view. Every article marked with plain figures.
D. HULETT and CO., Manufacturers, 55 and 56, High Holborn, W.C.

ORNAMENTS for the MANTELPIECE, &c. Large and Choice Selection, including, among other articles, Groups, Statuettes, Vases, &c., in Parian and English and foreign Porcelain; Clocks (bronze, marble, and gilt), first-class Bronzes, Lustres, Candelabra, Candlesticks, and Bohemian Glass.
Novelty, Beauty, and Art.
ALFRED B. PEARCE, 23, Ludgate-hill, E.C. Established 1760.

NEW and SECONDHAND FURNITURE. BALLS, FORMAN, and CO., 170, Oxford-street, have twenty large ware-rooms, with every description of serviceable Furniture, marked in plain figures. Furniture purchased or exchanged.

DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE.—A suite of beautiful walnutwood furniture, covered in rich silk brocatelle, same as used in English and foreign Courts—consisting of fine oval loo and occasional tables, handsome marqueterie cabinet, large-size chimney-glass, in gilt frame; an elegant settee, easy-chair, and six small chairs fitted with chintz loose covers; the price, 41 guineas. Also a Spanish mahogany dining-room suite; the price, 28 guineas. At R. GREEN and CO.'S, 24, Mortimer-street, Regent-street, W.

ATKINSON and CO., CABINETMAKERS, CARPET WAREHOUSEMEN, UPHOLSTERERS, &c.
Every style of Drawing-room, Dining, and Bed room Furniture.
Walnut Drawing-room Suites, elegant and moderate in price.
Dining-room Sets in Oak and Mahogany. Polished Deal, every colour of painted Furniture, and Mahogany for Bed-rooms.
All Bedding made on the premises, and especial care is given to this important Department.
The Newest Patterns of Carpets, in Velvets, Brussels, Kidderminster, &c.
Blankets, Sheetings, Damask, Rep, and Pekin Cloths, and all other materials for Curtains.
Illustrated Catalogues sent free by post, or to be had by personal application.
Estimates given for every form of Furnishing Contracts for Public Establishments, Offices, &c.
Address, 198 to 210, Westminster Bridge-road, S.

WINTER.
Warm Clothing of every description.
Linseys, French Merinos,
All the new styles of
Cloaks, Shawls, and Furs,
Woollen Hosiery,
Fancy Flannels for Shirtings,
Welsh and Saxony Flannels, Blankets, Down Quilts, Woollen Rugs,
at
ATKINSON and CO.'S,
198 to 210, Westminster Bridge-road, S.
The Clergy and charitable distributors of clothing to the poor are respectfully invited to apply for lists of prices for Blankets, Flannels, Woollen Rugs for Coverlets, Linseys, Cloth for Cloaks, &c. These articles Atkinson and Co. have specially manufactured very stout, combining all the advantages of the most expensive goods as regards warmth and durability, and at the prices charged only to public institutions, asylums, &c.
198 to 210, Westminster Bridge-road.

LONDON CARPET WAREHOUSE. WAUGH and SON, 3 and 4, Goodge-street; and 65 and 66, Tottenham-court-road, W. Curtains, Portières, Chintzes, &c., of first-class manufacture, for every style of decoration.

CHUBBS' LIST of SAFES and LOCKS, with more than a Hundred Illustrations, gratis and post-free. Chubb and Son, 57, St. Paul's-churchyard, London; 28, Lord-street, Liverpool; 16, Market-street, Manchester; and Wolverhampton.

MARBLE CHIMNEYPIECES.—EVANS, SON, and CO. respectfully invite the attention of purchasers to their extensive Stock of the above, as well as of Stoves, Grates, and Fenders, en suite, adapted to every style of decoration and to apartments of all descriptions.
Show-rooms, 33 and 34, King William-street, London Bridge.

THE £5 entertaining Set of MAGIC, Dissolving, Microscopic, and Phanta APPARATUS comprises a 3½ in. improved lantern, producing 12-ft. figures; a microscope, throwing upon a screen animalculæ; 10 slides, 40 subjects; eight movable comic slides; one view, with shipping in motion; one photograph; and one chromotrope, with revolving water-mill. All packed in case, and guaranteed of superior quality.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

THE £5 DAY and ASTRONOMICAL TELESCOPE.—From F. Dundas, Esq., M.P., 21, Brunswick-square, Brighton, 13th October, 1864:—"Gentlemen,—Since my interview with you on the subject of the telescope I have heard from Lord Rosse, and will thank you to send one similar to that supplied to his Lordship."—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians to the Government, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly. N.B. Persons are invited to apply for a diagram, with other particulars, and eight sheets of testimonials from scientific and other gentlemen, including Lord Rosse. Sent free by book post. Powerful pocket telescopes, opera, race, field, and general outdoor glasses.

POCKET BAROMETER, COMPASS, and THERMOMETER, all in one, the size of a watch, for telling the weather, the heights of mountains, direction of winds, and temperature of the air. Guaranteed for twelve months. Price £4 15s., sent free.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, Opticians, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

SPECTACLES.—TINTED SPECTACLES are patronised by the majority of the nobility, including Viscount Palmerston. They give extraordinary relief to weak, dim, and defective vision. The adaptation of spectacles to imperfect vision by experienced persons is, indeed, of vital importance. One of the Firm, who has had great experience and practice, attends to this branch only.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-st., Piccadilly.

DEAFNESS.—The SOUND MAGNIFIER and INVISIBLE VOICE CONDUCTOR, for Deafness. It fits into the ear not perceptible, removes singing noises in the head, and enables deaf persons to hear distinctly at church and at public assemblies.—S. and B. SOLOMONS, 39, Albemarle-street, Piccadilly.

GABRIELS' GUTTA-PERCHA ENAMEL for stopping decayed Teeth, 1s. 6d. per box.
Messrs. Gabriel, Dentists. Diploma, 1815.
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street, W.
Liverpool: 134, Duke-street. Birmingham: 65, New-street.
Complete Sets of Teeth, from Four Guineas the Set.

TEETH WITHOUT ANY PAIN.
Osteo-Eidon for Artificial Teeth.
Equal to Nature.
Messrs. GABRIEL, the old-established Dentists,
36, Ludgate-hill, and 27, Harley-street;
134, Duke-street, Liverpool; and 65, New-street, Birmingham.
A single Tooth from 5s.; Complete Set from £4 4s.

EAU-DE-VIE.—This Pure BRANDY (Pale or Brown), 18s. per gallon, 36s. per dozen, is very superior to recent importations of Cognac. Railway-cariage paid. No agents. To be obtained only of HENRY BRETT and CO., Old Furnival's Distillery, Holborn-bars, E.C.; and 30, Regent-street, S.W., London.

KINAHAN'S LL WHISKY V. COGNAC BRANDY.—This celebrated old Irish Whisky rivals the finest French Brandy. It is pure, mild, mellow, delicious, and very wholesome. Sold in bottles, 3s. 8d., at the retail houses in London; by the agents in the principal towns in England; or wholesale at 8, Great Windmill-street, London, W.—Observe the red seal, pink label, and cork branded "Kinahan's LL Whisky."

ALLSOPP'S PALE ALE.—The OCTOBER BREWINGS of the above ALE are now being supplied, in the finest condition, in bottles and in casks, by FINDLATER, MACKIE, TODD, and CO., at their new London Bridge Stores, London Bridge, S.E.

SAUCE.
LEA and PERRINS'
WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE,
pronounced by Connoisseurs
"THE ONLY GOOD SAUCE."
None genuine without name on wrapper, label, bottle, and stopper.
Sold by CROSSE and BLACKWELL, Barclay and Sons, and by Grocers and Oilmen universally.

2280 AGENTS—HORNIMAN'S PURE TEA.—Chemists, Confectioners, &c., are Agents, and supply it in Packets. It is choice and strong, moderate in price, and wholesome. This Tea therefore secures general preference.

BREAKFAST BEVERAGE.—Homœopathic practitioners, and the medical profession generally, recommend COCOA as being the most healthful of all beverages. When the doctrine of homœopathy was first introduced into this country there were to be obtained no preparations of cocoa either attractive to the taste or acceptable to the stomach; the nut was either supplied in the crude state or so unskilfully manufactured as to obtain little notice. J. EPPS, of London, homœopathic chemist, was induced, in the year 1839, to turn his attention to this subject, and at length succeeded, with the assistance of elaborate machinery, in being the first to produce an article pure in its composition, and so refined by the perfect trituration it receives in the process it passes through as to be most acceptable to the delicate stomach. It is readily prepared for use, being sold in the form of powder, of which two teaspoonfuls are put in a breakfast-cup, then filled up with boiling milk or water.
As a breakfast beverage for general use it is distinguished as being grateful and invigorating, with a delicious aroma.
Dr. Hassall, in his work, "Food and its Adulterations," says:—"Cocoa contains a great variety of important nutritive principles; every ingredient necessary to the growth and sustenance of the body." Again, "As a nutritive, cocoa stands very much higher than either coffee or tea."

EPPS'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, secured in tin-lined ¼lb., ½lb., and 1lb. packets, labelled "J. Epps, Homœopathic Chemist, 112, Great Russell-street; 170, Piccadilly; and 48, Threadneedle-street. Manufactory, Euston-road, London." Sold, at 1s. 6d. per lb., by Grocers, Confectioners, and Chemists.

THE
ONLY PRIZE MEDAL, 1862,
awarded to any English Manufacturers of
CHOCOLATE and COCOA, was obtained by
J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in Sticks and Drops, &c.
The increasing popularity of J. S. Fry and Sons' Chocolate is the best proof of its superiority over other kinds of sweetmeats.
Few articles of confectionery
embrace so many advantages. It is very delicious and sustaining, and is thus peculiarly adapted for persons who require light refreshment in a portable and convenient form.

Makers to the Queen and Prince of Wales.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is prepared with scrupulous regard to purity, and, being exceedingly wholesome, is much valued for Children, with whom it is a universal favourite.

Sold by Grocers, Confectioners, and Druggists.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE CREAMS, an exceedingly delicious Sweetmeat, rapidly increasing in public favour.

Prize Medals, 1851, 1853, 1855, and 1862.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING, in many Varieties, in elegant fancy Boxes, from 6d. each. Very suitable for Presents, Christmas Trees, &c.

FRY'S CHOCOLATE FOR EATING is sold at the Crystal Palace, at various Railway Refreshment Rooms, and by Grocers, Confectioners, and Italian Warehousemen throughout the United Kingdom.

Made by J. S. FRY and SONS, Bristol and London.

FRY'S HOMŒOPATHIC COCOA, in Packets, secured in tinfoil.
The purity, delicacy of flavour, and nutritious properties of this Cocoa, as well as the great facility with which it is made, have rendered it a standard article of General Consumption.
It is equally adapted for Invalids and others, and is highly approved and strongly recommended by Medical Men.

OSWEGO PREPARED CORN for Puddings, Custards, Blancmanges, &c.,
Manufactured and Perfected by
T. KINGSFORD and SON, of Oswego, State of New York.
It is the original preparation from the farina of maize, established 1848, commands the highest price from the trade, and offers the best value to the consumer.
It is stronger than any of the imitations, has a finer grain, and is more delicate.
The Oswego has the natural golden tinge, and not the chalk white produced by artificial process.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

LETTERS PATENT, 1823. PRIZE MEDAL, 1862.

ROBINSON'S PATENT GROATS is the most valuable preparation for making pure and delicate gruel. Modern chemistry has shown that this food is easy of digestion and rich in nutriment.
ROBINSON'S PATENT BARLEY makes a delicious custard-pudding, directions for which have been given by Mons. C. E. Francatelli. It is appreciated as a non-inflammatory drink, is excellent for mothers nursing, and has long been used with great success for rearing children by hand.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

KEEN'S GENUINE MUSTARD.
First Manufactured A.D. 1742, or more than
ONE HUNDRED AND TWENTY YEARS.
This well-known brand of Mustard has been sold by the trade of Great Britain for more than a century, and is held in high estimation for its purity and pungency of flavour. The qualities that are recommended for family use are the Double Superfine and the Genuine, both of which can be obtained from most Family Grocers, in canisters of 1 lb. and ½ lb. each.
KEEN, ROBINSON, BELLVILLE, and CO., London.

BORWICK'S BAKING POWDER. Recommended by the Analyst in the "Lancet" for making Bread without Yeast, and for Pastry. Sold everywhere.

PURITY AND EXCELLENCE OF QUALITY.

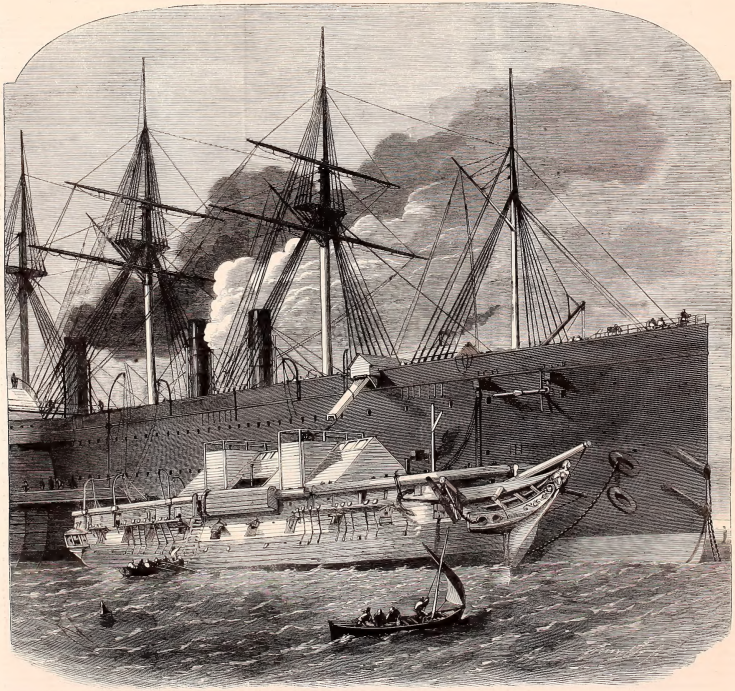
COLMANS' PRIZE-MEDAL MUSTARD bears their trade mark, the Bull's Head, on each package.
It is the only Mustard which obtained a Prize Medal at the Great Exhibition, 1862.
For domestic purposes nothing finer can be produced. Their "genuine" and "double superfine" are the qualities particularly recommended.
Retailed in every town throughout the United Kingdom.
J. and J. Colman, 26, Cannon-street, London.

COLMAN'S STARCH obtained
Prize Medals,
International Exhibitions, 1851, 1862.
Report—"Superior Quality, with large Production."

PURVEYORS TO H.R.H. THE PRINCESS OF WALES.

GLENFIELD PATENT STARCH, used in the Royal Laundry, and awarded the Prize Medal 1862.

"IT IS THE BEST I HAVE EVER USED or seen in use," writes Mr. Bladon, Refreshment-rooms, House of Lords, where FLOWER'S NON-MERCURIAL PLATE POWDER has been in use the last seven years. Sold in boxes, 1s. and 2s. 6d. each, by Chemists and Ironmongers.—Inventor, T. S. Flower, Chemist, Cheshunt, London, N.



LONDON: Printed and Published at the Office, 198, Strand, in the Parish of St. Clement Danes, in the County of Middlesex, by GEORGE C. LEIGHTON, 198, Strand aforesaid.—SATURDAY, JANUARY 28, 1865.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

No. 1300.—VOL. XLVI. SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1865. WITH A SUPPLEMENT, FIVEPENCE

THE QUEEN'S LETTER ON RAILWAY ACCIDENTS.

HER Majesty the Queen has been pleased, through Sir Charles Phipps, to call the attention of the directors of the several railways which have their centre in London to the increasing number of railway accidents, and to express her warmest hope that the directors will carefully consider every means of guarding against these misfortunes, which, she observes, "are not at all the necessary accompaniments of railway travelling." Her Majesty has not been moved to take this step by regard for her own safety, because she is aware that extraordinary precautions are taken when she travels; but, on account of her family, of those travelling upon her service, and of her people generally, she wishes that the same security may be ensured for all as is so carefully provided for herself. "The Queen hopes it is unnecessary for her to recall to the recollection of the railway directors the heavy responsibility which they have assumed since they have succeeded in securing the monopoly of the means of travelling of almost the entire population of the country."

SHIPPING THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE ON BOARD THE GREAT EASTERN.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

A very large majority of her Majesty's subjects will thankfully recognise in this letter a fresh proof of the watchful interest which the Queen takes in their welfare, and will rejoice that the great moral influence attaching to the Throne, whenever it is directly exercised—which, indeed, it very rarely is—always selects its object with unimpeachable wisdom and propriety. If the Sovereign of this constitutional country has sufficient ground for believing that any single word of hers may avail to put an end to any want of consideration whereby the lives of her subjects are unnecessarily endangered, she only acts in conformity with a spirit which Englishmen will heartily approve in not withholding the "word in season." The course may be unusual, but it is precisely because it is unusual that it is likely to prove efficacious. Her Majesty has given the nation reason to believe that her factory evidence that she both knows with accuracy and respects with scrupulous fidelity the constitutional limits, whether of law or usage, which define the authority of the Crown, and her people have implicit confidence as well in her judgment as in her disposition in this respect. In matters of social importance, therefore, lying quite out of the region of political relationships and responsibilities, they are disinclined to insist upon redtape customs, applaud the vigorous common sense and sound feeling which for an adequate purpose can put them aside, and gratefully acquiesce in the employment of that moral influence which belongs to the highest personage in the realm, in the promotion of ends worthy at once of the woman and the Queen.

It is obvious enough that the influence which, in the hands of Queen Victoria, is used very sparingly, and only on occasions the nature and importance of which is at once clear to all, is not the course of years, and in the keeping of others, be applied unwisely. If so, the evil consequences would rather affect the Crown than the people; and it hardly seems reasonable that a moral agency so good should never be exercised, for a long time in the unknown future it might be applied indiscreetly, or for questionable purposes. It may surely suffice for us that the object is really desirable, and that the means are in themselves an unobjectionable in relation to the end they point. There are social ends in respect of which it is both natural and praiseworthy for the Sovereign to show her heart, and the preservation of life and limb holds a foremost place among them. She believe to be exercised by the general feeling of the country; and her Majesty, in addressing the railway directors, has rightly interpreted it.

There have been too many serious—we might almost add, inexcusable—railway accidents of late. They have followed one upon the heels of another with a rapidity likely enough to excite alarm. Most of them have been owing to preventible causes. Not one of them would have been allowed to happen to a train in which the Queen travelled. Not one of them should not have been allowed to happen to any other train. With sufficient care, it is quite clear that "these misfortunes," as the Queen says, "are not at all the necessary accompaniments of railway travelling." The rate of mortality from which, though so far as the public are concerned, insufficient. We do not claim to press this charge to an unwarrantable extent. The average number of lives lost in consequence of the numbers of passengers carried to their destination in safety is surprisingly small—one only in several millions; and this result will at once dispose of any wholesale charge of gross negligence as ridiculous. The slips of the reporters in the details of disasters have made themselves liable is that the causes of loss of property, limb, or life on the railway are more frequently blunders than accidents. The breakdowns and collisions are not numerous when the aggregate and the average train is considered; but, in view of the fact that they might have been prevented by the exercise of proper care, they must be considered as disproportionately many. Such being the case, it is well that attention has been called to the fact by one whose voice will be sure to command respect.

Of course, we do not profess to have studied the interior mechanism of railway management. But sometimes outside observers may detect broad general principles in matters devoid of deficiency which fail to impress themselves on the minds of those who, owing to their official position, concern themselves chiefly with details. What has struck us in reference to the matter is, as we suppose most observers do, a want of completeness, of what we may term "laws of the road." We do not refer now to instructions given to engine-drivers, signalmen, and pointsmen—no doubt these are definite enough if thoroughly mastered—but to certain rules to which the management as to traffic-managers, and station-masters should hold themselves sacredly pledged, and any infringement of which would be regarded as utterly and disgracefully unprofessional. The great trunk lines are so filled with traffic; so many branch lines run into them; and, in some instances, such irregularities are caused by other companies having running powers over them, that as little is possible should be left to the discretion of individuals, however authoritative their position; and wherever some discretion must be left in their hands, it should be limited, as much as possible, by fundamental laws which no one should be at liberty to evade or to transgress. Such laws would have respect, primarily, to the timing of successive trains; to the order in which fast and slow trains should stand relatively to each other; to the management of junctions; to the number of the staff in proportion to the business to be got through; and to the number of hours during which any branch of service can be rendered without trenching upon the physical and mental competency of those who render it. There is ample experience among railway men to settle a code of first principles applicable to all lines, and if the great companies having metropolitan centres chose to draw up and accept such code for their own observance all others would be compelled, after awhile, to recognise it. Strict and undeviating uniformity in regard to a few is a matter of more paramount importance, enforced, not by law, but by agreement, the violation of which would involve loss of character, would, it seems to us, constitute a most efficient safeguard to the travelling public.

Another would be provided by carrying into effect, in regard to the whole of the staff, something equivalent to military discipline and precision. Printed rules, for example, are all very well in their way; but vigilant supervision, rigid obedience, drill, and periodical examination, wherever they can be introduced, are better. There is a best method of doing all things, and when that method has been ascertained and trained in the use of it; and it might be ascertained of every one of that he is fully competent to do what is required of him, and to do it, moreover, after a given fashion. Watch the operation of any company's servants on the line—no matter what their work—and you will see at a glance the immense superiority they acquire in their way of going about it over ordinary labourers. Something more of this, it seems to us, is to be desiderated in the railway management of the Queen's subjects. A certain amount of form is invariably found necessary to infuse and keep alive in the mind an habitual appreciation of the spirit which such form is designed to embody. Punctuality, order, precision, promptitude, spirit-all these are required in railway services of almost any kind, and can only be certainly secured by methods similar to those which are found indispensable in military service.

We have set down the foregoing merely as illustrations of the general direction in which a desire to comply with her Majesty's request might seek to express itself. The illustrations may be right or wrong, sufficient or insufficient; but the two radical ideas they are meant to bring out into relief—fundamental laws and organised method—cover a large extent of the area within which improvement will have to be sought. There ought to be no time lost in giving effect to the movement; and if the Queen's letter should be the impelling cause of a convergence of scattered exposure upon a given centre, so as to become solidified into scientific rule, her subjects will have additional reason to hail with gratitude the step she has felt it her duty to take.

SHIFTING THE ATLANTIC TELEGRAPH CABLE ON BOARD THE GREAT EASTERN.

The Engraving on our front page represents the Great Eastern steamship lying in the Medway, with one of the two small vessels, the Amethyst, alongside, which are assisting the Atlantic Telegraph cable from Morden and Enderby's Wharf, East Greenwich, where it is manufactured, by the Messrs. Elliott, to place it on board the Great Eastern. We shall give in our next Number an Illustration of the manner in which the cable is stowed on board the Great Eastern, in the large tanks which have been fitted up for that purpose.

FOREIGN AND COLONIAL INTELLIGENCE.

FRANCE.

The Emperor on Monday left Paris for the season by a "battue" at Versailles. The Duc de Morny, General Fleury, General Molard, and a large party were of the Imperial party.

The Prince Imperial gave a fête at the Tuileries, yesterday week, to a deputation of the pupils of the colleges of Paris and Versailles. In the evening thanks for the entertainment "I drink to the future colleagues, the children of France."

The Moniteur reports a speech of Princess Mathilde, delivered on the threshold of a new hospital, at Neuilly, for 300 incurable children, to be called the Asile Impérial, of which her Imperial Highness is the principal patron. The Archbishop of Paris, who attended to consecrate the chapel of the establishment, made an eloquent discourse. The notice of the foundation now inaugurated was stated eleven years ago by Princess Mathilde, who remarked that an asylum for incurable children was wanting in Paris. The germ of the present establishment was a small house in the Rue Picpus containing only four children, attended upon by two nuns. Sisters of Charity still continue to superintend the developed institution, which, as Princess Mathilde said, "will be the last word—by alleviating the misfortune of the incurable children themselves and by relieving their families of a burden which is sometimes heavy." A child is elected to the Asile Mathilde, it is provided for for life. Unless a deformity requires it, none of the children in this refuge leaving the separates it from the hospital.

The Sultan, according to the Presse, has given orders for the translation into the Turkish language of the Emperor Napoleon's "Life of Cæsar" in one of the Libraries.

The sale of the famous Pourtalès Collection at Paris will begin on Monday next, and continue for a month. Among the objects is extraordinarily rich in antique sculptures, bronzes, and classical coins of various kinds. The Medieval, Renaissance, and modern pictures are rich, though not extensive. The metal casts are also numerous, and there is a valuable collection of pictures, drawings, and sketches. The late proprietor, some de Pourtalès, for ten years ago, leaving his treasures to be sold at the expiration of that interval after his decease.

The Presse asserts that the pictures and other objects of art forming the collection of the Count of Chambord will shortly be sold.

The sale of the collection of pictures of M. Gabriel Arnault, of Orleans, attracted an immense crowd, at the Rue Drouot, Paris, on Saturday last. The whole sale brought nearly 100,000f.

M. Geoffroy, the great modern painter, the author of "Ave, Cæsar Imperator" "Les Derniers Moments," and the "Christian Martyrs" (Exhibition of 1864), has been elected, in the place of the late E. Delaroix, a corresponding member of the Belgian Academy.

At Valenciennes, the other day, a gentleman who had made his name almost as well known as that of his predecessor, Mansel, died at Versailles last week, aged seventy-eight.

Our readers no doubt remember the famous French coup-d'état case, in which a woman, Madame Lafarge, was tried at Tulle, in 1840, for having tied him up in a cellar and endeavoured to murder him there; and the defence was that the servant had himself tied up in Davenport style for the purpose of making a false accusation. The Air just found, in the Château de Versailles, a box full of bones and clothes awarded to Roux large damages, on the ground that Arnaud had inadvertently struck him. Arnaud has been condemned to appeal to the Court of First Instance at Grenoble. It was urged on his behalf that he must enjoy a "modified impunity on account of his age; either he did all the lying and beating, or had nothing to do with it. The Grenoble Court decided last Saturday that the award of damages was inconsistent with the verdict of the jury, and therefore reversed the decision of the Court of Aix.

The Admiralty has received the following report of the co-fishing on the coast of Iceland during the summer of 1864:—249 French vessels, of which the tonnage amounted to 23,003, and which were worked by 4337 men, sailed from various French ports for this purpose. This return shows an increase of twenty-five boats, of 2331 tons, and 383 men on the number employed in this service during the fishing season of 1863. However, these figures by no means convey a correct idea of co-fishing on the coast of Iceland, as the navires-chasseurs must be added to the above number. Boats of the naval division are fifteen of the latter class of 1000 tons burden, and having a crew of eighty-three men to each vessel. There has been one third less taken last year than in 1863, the proportion being 945 fish to every man, or 168 to every ton.

In reply to a remonstrance from her Majesty's Government against the oppressive proceedings of the French Governor of New Caledonia in Lifu and the other islands of the Loyalty group, M. Drouyn de Lhuys has assured Lord Cowley that the most stringent orders had been sent to prevent a renewal of the occurrences complained of, and that, so far from there being any desire on the part of the Imperial Government to discourage the labours of Protestant missionaries in the Loyalty Islands, there was every disposition to foster and protect them.

SPAIN.

The Senate on Monday adopted the Address in reply to the Speech from the Throne by 105 against 24 votes.

The Epoca declares the rumour of a new commercial treaty being negotiated between France and Spain to be unfounded.

The Minister of the Colonies maintains the reports of the war in San Domingo at 200 millions of reals; and states that the war operations have been carried on with 9000 soldiers in the course of 1864.

The West India mail brings the intelligence that a further force of the Spanish Expedition to Peru had arrived at the Chincha Islands. The Peruvian commanders had reported their inability to oppose the Spanish fleet, and had written to Madrid requesting that a fleet might to make my reasonable concession to the Spanish Government.

Information by the last mail from Cuba says that a petition signed by over one hundred planters of that island was presented to the Captain-General, urging him to use his best efforts with the Queen of Spain for the abolition of slavery in that island.

Spain, it appears, is willing to acknowledge the kingdom of Italy, but only when the transfer of the capital has been made and all the stability of the Government thereby proved.

Senor Pacheco, the newly-appointed Spanish Minister to Rome, presented his credentials to the Pope on Monday. His Excellency afterwards visited Cardinal Antonelli, the senior Cardinal, and the tomb of St. Peter.

ITALY.

The military tribunal have decided on proceeding against fifty-eight of the soldiers who were on duty in the streets of Turin during the disturbances of September. Twenty of the accused are charged with having exceeded the means of legal defence, and the others with having only failed in their duty.

Further disturbances occurred at Turin yesterday week, and it was deemed necessary to call out the National Guard to quell the outbreak. Some of the leaders of the demonstration were arrested. Another portion of the demonstrators broke into the Monte de Pietà Royal Palace, during the festivities of a Court ball. It was necessary to call out the Royal Guard to disperse the mob.

The municipality of Ravenna has voted 2000*l.* for the erection of a monument to Anita, Garibaldi's wife, who died in his arms during the dangerous retreat after the taking of Rome.

BELGIUM.

The second ball of the Belgian Court took place at the Palace of Brussels a few evenings back, and passed off with great brilliancy. More than 1500 invitations were issued, and the King, the Duchess de Brabant, and the Count de Flandre were present. His King's shops at the palace, and returned to Lieken on the following morning.

The Chamber of Representatives has concluded the general discussion on the War Budget, and the discussion on the various items has been postponed for a few days.

AUSTRIA.

In Thursday's sitting of the Finance Committee of the Lower House of the Reichsrath, a majority of 10 to 6 declared, in the name of the Cabinet, that the Government was willing to consent to reductions in the budget of expenditure, under the twofold condition that the Government should have the right to distribute the funds voted by the Chamber administrative branches of the public service, and also that the Budget for 1865 should be voted during the present session of the Reichsrath, with a similar power of distribution on the part of the Government. The Minister further declared that, unless these two conditions should be previously accepted, the Government could not submit the Budget for the amounts of which the new modifications of the Budget would consist. Thereupon the Finance Committee passed to the order of the day, considering that the views of the Cabinet declined distinctly to point out the amount of reductions to be introduced.

It is said that the decree convoking the Hungarian Diet will be promulgated on the 15th of April, and that the Diet will be opened on the 10th of May next.

PRUSSIA.

The King, in his reply to the address of the Senate, expressed himself as ardently desirous that the conflict between himself and the representatives of the land may speedily be brought to an end. He was his Majesty said he had made advances to the representatives, in the hope that they in their turn would make advance to him.

The bill regulating the strength of the Prussian army in time of peace and the levying of contributions in war time has been laid before, by the Ministry and approved. It will be brought forward in the Chamber of Deputies next week.

The Finance Committee resolved last Saturday to make a general report to the Chamber on the Budget, and to consider therein whether the complaints of the inhabitants respecting the unequal incidence of the taxation are well founded; and, if so, by what means this is to be remedied. The debate will, at the same time, examine the various branches of the Budget.

It was also resolved to make no definite proposition in reference to the military budget, but merely express a general opinion as to the manner in which the augmentation of charge and expenditure are to be regulated. The Committee will call upon the Ministry to state what changes had taken place in the Ministry of War in the course of the disposal of the Government previous to that event, and especially whether any sums had been withdrawn from the Treasury, and, if so, to what amount.

DENMARK.

The Upper Chamber has adopted the project of a new Constitution, framed to suit the altered condition of the kingdom, by what may almost be termed unanimous consent. Only one member dissented. The measure will now be submitted to the popular Chamber.

TURKEY.

Vessim Pacha has succeeded the late Mehemet Pacha as Minister of Marine. The appointment is generally approved.

Hadjai Effendi, Turkish Ambassador to Vienna, has been named Ambassador at Vienna.

The negotiations in reference to Mr. Laing's scheme for the consolidation of the home debt of Turkey have been suspended.

Telegraphic communication between Baghdad and Bussorah is open. The first telegram was sent by the Governor-General of Baghdad to the Governor of Bombay on the evening of the 29th ult.

AMERICA.

By the arrival of the Nova Scotian we have news from New York to the 21st inst.

Whilst General Butler was giving evidence at Washington of the impossibility of taking Fort Fisher, that powerful work fell under a combined attack of Admiral Porter's fleet and an assault made by Colonel Fleury in person. The Washington expedition arrived off Fort Fisher a second time on the morning of the 13th ult. At an early hour Admiral Porter dispatched a portion of his fleet to a point about three miles and a half from Fort Fisher, with orders to shell the neck of land which at this place separates the shore from the river, and which was thickly wooded, whilst in the meanwhile the iron-clad frigates and the monitors were ranged within a distance from the fort varying from half to three-quarters of a mile. At nine o'clock in the morning the landing of the troops was begun, and as 200 boats had been told off from the fleet to convey the soldiers from the transports to the shore, 4000 troops were safely landed in the course of an hour. The vessels which had been engaged in shelling the woods previous to the landing of the troops then moved in the direction of Fort Fisher, continuing to shell the adjoining line of coast; and at four o'clock in the afternoon, the disembarkation having been completed, the Federal troops, to the number of 6000, advanced two miles up the promontory, thus reducing their distance from the fort to a mile and a half. Here they remained until the 15th, on the evening of which day the fort was taken by assault. Whilst one portion of the fleet was engaged, on the morning of the 13th, in covering the landing of the troops, the ironclads and monitors opened a bombardment on Fort Fisher. This bombardment is described as having been incessant during the greater part of that day, and the guns of the fort were either silenced or the commander of the garrison was convinced of the inutility of firing upon the Federal ironclads. In the course of the same day Admiral Porter directed the wooden frigates, which had in the morning been engaged in shelling that part of the coast where the troops landed to take part in the bombardment, which they did, without, however, provoking a return fire from Fort Fisher. During the night shells were occasionally discharged against the fort, and on the afternoon of the following day the bombardment was renewed in all its previous intensity. On the morning of the 15th it was continued, and at four o'clock on the same afternoon the troops made the assault. Whilst three brigades advanced to the attack, a division of the Federal army, remaining on the ground it had occupied for the preceding two days, held the promontory against the Confederate forces, which, under Hoke, advanced from the direction of Wilmington, and which would otherwise have taken the assaulting column in the rear. The defence of the fort was obstinate, but fruitless. A battalion of sailors and marines, which had been landed during the day in order to co-operate with the land forces, was repulsed; but ultimately the garrison, being outnumbered, was obliged to evacuate the fort. Hemmed in on one side by the river and on the other by the sea, the Confederates (to the number of 1200) could not retire beyond the extremity of the promontory, and, as a matter of course, were there compelled to surrender. The Federal loss was considerable, but it is more than counterbalanced by what is unquestionably a substantial success. On the first day the monitors alone were at first engaged, and from eight in the morning till four in the afternoon poured in 2000 ponderous shells—at the rate of four a minute; then both divisions of the fleet, iron and wood, were engaged with 312 guns, and in one hour and a half fired 21,600 shots. Fort Smith, on the opposite side of New Inlet, was subsequently abandoned and blown up by the Confederates. Wilmington was reported to be held by 5000 Confederates, under General Hoke; and it was not known that further operations would be immediately undertaken by the Federals. The Richmond Examiner thinks that the capture of Wilmington is not a necessary, but a probable, consequence of the fall of Fort Fisher, and urges the burning of all cotton in Wilmington.

In consequence of this success, General Grant has ordered a salute of a hundred shotted guns to be fired against Petersburg and Richmond by each of the armies co-operating against those cities.

General Sherman had sent part of his army to reinforce General Foster, who had occupied Pocotaligo, on the Savannah and Charleston Railway, the Confederates having abandoned their works there. It was reported that General Sherman was menacing Branchville. It was stated that a considerable body of Federals was intrenched at Franklin Mills, on the Dog River, and that serious operations were about to be undertaken against Mobile.

Mr. Blair has returned from Richmond, and a general impression prevails that negotiations in some form are afoot on the question of peace. In the Confederate Congress, however, a strong determination to prosecute the war is expressed. The Charleston Mercury of the 12th ult. says:—"The crisis of the Confederacy has arrived in fatal earnest. The result of the next six months will bring the Confederacy to the ground or will reinstate its power. Without reform we are doomed. There must be no more Jeff Davis foolery, but brains and nerve; reform, shooting, cashiering, order, subordination; soldiers—not runaways, ragamuffins, ruffians." Mr. Foote, the Confederate orator who denounced the policy of Jefferson Davis within the walls of the Southern Congress, has been captured in an attempt to reach the Federal lines. General Lee, it was alleged, was urging the Confederate Government to order a conscription of negroes, and to emancipate the conscripts and their families.

The monitor Patapsco has been destroyed off Charleston, while on picket duty, by several torpedoes. Fifty of the crew were drowned.

The resolution of Congress to terminate the Reciprocity Treaty has been approved by President Lincoln; and the Senate has ratified the notice to be given to England for the termination of the Lake Naval Force Treaty. Senator Sumner has introduced into the Senate a resolution proposing that notice should be given for the termination of the Extradition Treaty with England.

The Virginia Legislature had almost unanimously rejected a resolution "to make peace through State action."

Slavery has been abolished in Missouri and Tennessee by State conventions.

The Hon. Edward Everett, formerly Ambassador for the United States at our Court, died recently, of apoplexy, in Boston. Mr. Lincoln ordered the customary marks of respect to be paid to his memory. The Government buildings in Washington were to be draped with mourning for thirty days.

Captain Bell and three other Confederates, charged with the attempt to burn the New York hotels in November last, have been arrested near the Canadian frontier and consigned to Fort Lafayette. General Warren has been ordered to convene a court-martial for their trial.

A considerable fluctuation in gold had taken place, prices ranging between 199 and 206, the latter being the latest quotation.

A curling-match between Canada and the United States was played at Buffalo on the 5th ult. At the close of the day the score was found to be:—Americans, 478; Canadians, 658: showing a majority of 180 for Canada. The curlers afterwards dined together in the American Hall. By special order of Mr. Seward, passports were not required from the Canadians at the frontier on this occasion.

BRITISH NORTH AMERICA.

The Canadian Parliament met at Quebec on the 19th ult. The Governor's message announced that a bill to give the Executive further powers to deal with political refugees who commit outrages on the borders, and a plan for the constitution of the Confederation, would be laid before the Parliament.

One of the Canadian raiders has been declared guilty of robbery, and been adjudged to be delivered over to the Federal authorities. A writ of habeas corpus had been demanded on his behalf.

MEXICO.

An important note has been addressed by the Emperor Maximilian of Mexico to his Minister directing him to prepare measures for the revision of the operation of mortmains and the nationalisation of ecclesiastical property, and for other purposes of equal moment in connection with the relations between Church and State. It seems that the Emperor opened negotiations with the Pope on these subjects several months ago, but, when Maximilian lately applied to the Papal Nuncio, the latter declared that he could not co-operate without instructions from Rome. The Emperor therefore announces that he has no alternative but to go on without the sanction of the Papal authority. It is stated that the Nuncio and the Archbishop are about to leave the country in consequence of this energetic resolution on the part of the Emperor.

Teluca and Durango have been taken by the French, and Monelia has been taken by the Mexicans.

A letter from Vienna says that M. von Plener is engaged in negotiations with some great firms in Europe for the sale of the State domains.

A journal which bears the lugubrious title of the Necrologist, or Register of Deaths, has just made its appearance at Paris. The Figaro Programme hopes that its new confrère will fail to be supplied with copy.

The existence of petroleum in large quantities in the Russian empire is reported. A French company has been organised for the utilisation of the oil.

Letters from Odessa state that 120,000 Russians are concentrated between the Dnieper and the Dniester, and that Russian agents are enlisting sailors in the Greek Archipelago.

Dom Fernando of Portugal, the father of the reigning king, has just sent to the Society of Aquafortistes, of Paris, a proof etching exhibiting great ability. It represents a funeral oration pronounced by a cat over a deceased brother; around the bier is a crowd of other cats expressing their grief in various ways; some wipe their eyes, some look upwards with resignation, while others seem transfixed by despair, but all stifle their sobs and listen to the orator, who is seated with intense gravity on a tub.

CHURCH AND UNIVERSITIES.

The Bishop of Worcester presided on Monday over a meeting at Coventry in behalf of the fund for augmenting poor livings in that archdeaconry. Among the speakers were Lord Leigh, Mr. Davenport Bromley, M.P., and Archdeacon Sandford. The subscriptions amounted to £400.

Miss Hammond, of Ovington Park, Winchester, on succeeding to that estate, found that the parish church required rebuilding, and at once offered £1000 towards it. To this she has now added another large sum, sufficient for the rebuilding and a new site; so that the whole will be her own gift to the parish.

The Bishop of Gloucester and Bristol consecrated the Church of St. John, Durdham Down, Bristol, yesterday week. The church has been enlarged by the addition of transepts and by the extension of the chancel, and has been re-seated throughout; the high pews being replaced by open benches. By the enlargements accommodation will be provided for 250 additional worshippers. The cost of the work has been between £2000 and £3000.

New College, Oxford, has voted £3000 for the augmentation of the living of the future incumbent of St. John's, Maddermarket, Norwich, with the proviso, however, that he is to be a Fellow of New College. The sum of £3000 is also offered by the college perpetually, under any incumbent, provided the grant is met by an equivalent from the Ecclesiastical Commissioners, or some other source.

The English church at Corfu was opened on Sunday, the 8th ult. Besides the English residents, all the officers and crew of her Majesty's ship Pelican were present. Mrs. Saunders, the English Consul's wife, directed the choir, and the young lads of the Pelican sang very well. The upper gallery was crowded with Greeks who wished to witness the service. The Rev. Mr. Sutton is the minister.

The Bradford Church-Building Society held its fifth annual meeting on Tuesday. Besides seven churches completed within the last five years, there is an eighth now in progress. Several parsonage-houses have also been erected, and schools established. A number of clergymen and Scripture-readers have been appointed to the special duties of parochial work.

The annual meeting of the Association for Promoting Freedom of Worship in Parish Churches was held in Manchester last week. The Dean of Manchester, who presided, said the influence of the society was extending, and asserted that wherever pew-rents had been given up and offertory collections substituted there had been a gain, both as regards the attendance and the pecuniary contributions. The honorary secretary reported the formation of several new diocesan and local branches of the association, and stated that the income during 1864 was 50 per cent larger than that of previous years.

An innovation of no small importance as a precedent is, according to the Record, about to be attempted by the University of Oxford with reference to the privilege which enables the Universities, in the matter of printing the Holy Bible, to overlook the monopoly of the Queen's printers. We are informed that the Oxford authorities have contracted to issue an edition of the Bible without the translators' dedication to King James. The Queen's printers did not feel themselves at liberty to risk their patent by agreeing to a similar demand.

A meeting was held in Canterbury yesterday week to found a diocesan society. Lord Sydney presided. The Archbishop of Canterbury moved the first resolution and explained the objects of the society, which are, first, to aid in the erection of new churches and the increase of accommodation in existing churches; secondly, to build parsonage-houses; and, thirdly, to increase the endowment of benefices under £200. The Marquis Camden, Sir E. Dering, Lord Stanhope, and other noblemen and gentlemen were among the speakers. The resolutions were all carried unanimously.

The Bishop of London has appointed the following gentlemen to preach in St. Paul's Cathedral on the Sunday mornings of this month:—Feb. 5th, the Rev. Edward Hayes Plumptre; 12th, the Rev. Fraser Stooks; 19th, the Rev. James William Vivian; 26th, the Rev. Thomas Grainger Hall.——The following is a list of the preachers at the special services for this month:—Feb. 5th, Rev. G. C. Harris, minister of St. Luke's, Torquay; 12th, the Lord Bishop of Ripon; 19th, the Lord Bishop of Carlisle; 26th, the Very Rev. Dr. Hook, Dean of Chichester.

The Manchester and Salford branch of the Church Pastoral Aid Society held its annual meeting on Monday. The object of the society is to afford assistance to clergymen whose parishes are so large or so thickly populated as to be beyond their personal control. The rapidly and frequently-unexpected growth of town populations also necessitates the formation of new districts, and these the society aids by grants, with a view to their ultimate constitution as separate parishes. The number of parishes aided by the society is 460, and the number of grants 583; 423 clergymen and 160 lay agents are maintained by its instrumentality. The treasurer stated that the Manchester branch, notwithstanding the distress, had sent up a larger amount last year than ever it did before. The secretary reported that he had forty-five urgent applications for aid on his list.

At a meeting of the restoration of Cirencester church committee, held on the 26th ult., the Rev. Canon Powell reported that a sum of £6789 had been received, and further donations amounting to £1086 had been promised, as the result of efforts in Cirencester and the neighbourhood; that a further sum of £300 from the trustees of Dr. Warneford's Ecclesiastical Charity had been promised, payable on the completion of an expenditure of £8000; and also that a further sum of £200 by the same trustees had been promised on the completion of work to the value of £11,000. Estimates have been prepared by Mr. Gilbert Scott for the execution of the work under his superintendence, by which it appears that the first contract will amount to £10,000; and that probably, when the works included in that contract shall have been performed, a further outlay of £2000 will be necessary for the complete restoration of the building.

PREFERMENTS AND APPOINTMENTS.—Rev. R. Gwillym to be Honorary Canon of Carlisle Cathedral. Rectories: Rev. E. Jenkins, Perpetual Curate of Glyntaf, to Loughor, Carmarthenshire; Rev. G. C. Pease, Vicar of Paull, to Routh; Rev. F. F. Tracy, Vicar of Worth-Matravers, to St. Pancras, Chichester; Rev. Augustin Williams, Curate of St. Martin's, Worcester, to Icomb, Gloucestershire. Vicarages: Rev. G. Candy to South Newington, Oxon; Mev. R. C. Cavell to Binham, Norfolk; Rev. J. S. Hoare to Godstone, Surrey. Incumbencies: Rev. G. Ross, Curate, to Glastonbury; Rev. Charles Benet Calley, Curate of Hawarden, to Steeple Bumpstead, Essex; Rev. E. M. Welby to Oystermouth, Swansea. Curacies: Rev. A. Baker to Addington, Bucks; Rev. W. Bethell to St. Thomas's, Islington; Rev. W. S. Bruce to St. Margaret's, Westminster; Rev. H. B. Clissold to St. Peter's, Notting-hill; Rev. T. Graham to St. Margaret's, Westminster; Rev. J. Johnstone to St. John's, Walworth; Rev. A. Nicholson to the Marsh district, in the parish of St. Philip and Jacob, Bristol; Rev. P. E. Phelps to St. Jude's, Whitechapel; Rev. C. J. Thompson to All Saints', Gordon-square; Rev. T. Woodhouse to Cusop, Herefordshire; Rev. T. Woolley to St. Andrew's, Hoxton; Rev. E. Luckman to Baddlesmere; Rev. H. Shorrock, to Flixton; Rev. T. Tickell to Ashton-under-Lyne; Rev. W. F. Whitechurch to Luddenham. Rev. W. Stuart, Master of the Grammar School, Maldon, to the living of Mundon, Essex; Rev. J. B. Whiting to be Chaplain to the Bishop of Rochester.

THE UNIVERSITIES AND PUBLIC SCHOOLS.—List of Honours at the Bachelor of Arts Commencement, Cambridge (in all cases of equality the names are bracketed):—

WRANGLERS.

Ds.
1 Hon. J. Strutt, Trinity
2 Marshall, John's
3 Taylor, Trinity
4 Mitchell, C. T., Caius
5 Ashton, Sidney
6 Wood, John's
7 Cumming, Trinity
8 Watson, Trinity
9 Blanch, John's
10 Caldwell, Corpus
11 Levett, John's
{Bray, Trinity
{Grimley, Peter's
{Taylor, Clare
15 Walker, Clare

Ds.
16 Pitts, Emmanuel
17 Coutts, John's
18 Beebee, John's
19 Browne, Trinity
{Davis, Sidney
{Perkins, Christ's
22 Russell, John's
23 Rendell, Trinity
{Carlos, Trinity
{Griffiths, John's
26 Isherwood, John's
27 Cartmell, Christ's
{Smith, John's
{Waugh, Jesus
30 Metcalfe, E.P., Christ's

Ds.
31 Roach, John's
32 Sutton, John's
{Hammond, Trinity
{Wilson, Jesus
35 Hall, Peter's
{Gibson Craig, Trinity
{Peachell, John's
{Webster, Trinity
{Hopkinson, Catherine's
{Mathews, Caius
{Gray, Queen's
{Huntly, John's
{Shackleton, John's
44 Brown, Trinity

SENIOR OPTIMES.

Ds.
45 Finney, Caius
46 Jones, Sidney
{Banham, Trinity
{Masheder, Sidney
{Cope, John's
{Robson, Downing
51 Lyon, Clare
52 Masefield, John's
53 Whitelaw, Trinity

Ds.
{Rendel, Trinity
{Wilcox, Emmanuel
56 Blakiston, Peter's
57 Mills, John's
58 Longley, Magdalen
{Bensted, Sidney
{Bicknell, Trinity
{Sergeant, Catherine's

Ds.
{Howard, H. B., Trinity
{Sanderson, Jesus
{Wright, Clare
65 Hallowes, Caius
66 Booth, Catherine's
67 Vawdrey, John's
68 Edwardes, Jesus
69 Morris, Downing

JUNIOR OPTIMES.

Ds.
70 Mealy, Queen's
71 Beale, Trinity
72 Gadsby, Emmanuel
73 Locke, Corpus
74 Lawson, Caius
75 Swaffield, Trinity
76 Wilson, Pembroke
{Baring-Gould, Corpus
{Yeld, John's

Ds.
79 Clarke, John's
80 Smith, Clare
81 Evans, E., Caius
82 Clay, Trinity
83 Selby, John's
84 Trotter, Christ's
85 Wilson, John's
86 Dobbs, Trinity
87 Heaven, Peter's

Ds.
88 Turner, Magdalen
{Archer, Corpus
{Walker, Jesus
91 Foster, Peter's
92 Hyde, Queen's
93 Hodges, John's
94 Woolley, Queen's
95 Allsopp, Trinity
96 Longman, Trinity

Ægr. Shaw, St. Catherine's.

Antonius Ameuney, Esq., has been appointed Professor of Arabic at King's College.

At a public meeting held at Manchester on Wednesday week, under the presidency of the Mayor, resolutions were passed approving the scheme of the Feoffees of the Manchester Grammar School for the introduction of a capitation fee.

The Malvern Proprietary College was opened on Wednesday week for the reception of students. The first stone of the building was laid on the 22nd of June, 1863, by the Bishop of Worcester.

The Rev. Grey Skipworth, M.A., late Scholar of Emmanuel College, Cambridge, Assistant Master in the Armagh Royal School, has been appointed to the second mastership of Oakham School.

The Rev. S. F. Creswell, M.A., Mathematical Master of Durham School, has been appointed Mathematical Master of Lancaster School.

Mr. R. H. Young, B.A., of Trinity College, Dublin, late Master of the Modern Department in Felstead School, Essex, has been appointed Assistant Master in the Modern Department, Durham School.

The Corporation of Salisbury have resolved to erect a new grammar-school and to memorialise the Lords of the Treasury to obtain permission to sell certain Corporation property for the purpose.

Mr. J. Froysell, B.A., of Trinity Hall, Cambridge, has been appointed Mathematical Master in the High School of the Liverpool Institute.

The new covered racquet-court built in Harrow School was opened on Saturday week. It has been erected, by contributions from old Harrovians, at an expense of about £2500.—Guardian.

COUNTRY NEWS.

The emigration from Liverpool during the past month was about half that of the corresponding period of 1864.

The congress of the present year in connection with the British Archæological Association is to be held at Durham.

Slight shocks of earthquake were felt between two and three in the morning yesterday week at and near Leicester and Nottingham.

The tomb of William Button, a Bishop of Bath and Wells, famous for his sanctity in the thirteenth century, has been discovered by some workmen in Wells Cathedral.

The Admiralty have signified to the Liverpool Chamber of Commerce their approval of a proposition to appoint a Judge of Admiralty to travel the Northern Circuit.

John Sherwood, one of the little band that defended the farmhouse at Farranrory against Smith O'Brien and his followers in 1848, has retired from the Irish constabulary on a pension of £30 a year.

We understand that Mr. T. E. Chitty, of the Northern Circuit, and Clerk of Assize for the Western Circuit, has been appointed Clerk of Assize and Clerk of the Crown for the county of the city of Bristol.

The steam-ferry between Southampton and Woolston, at the mouth of the Itchen, which has been projected, is to cross the river just below the southern entrance to the Southampton Docks. A road at the southern boundary of the docks will lead to it.

There can be little doubt that the dispute between the master builders of the midland counties and their workmen is in a fair way of being finally settled. A conference of delegates representing both parties met at Birmingham yesterday week, when it was explained that the discharge-note was unconditionally withdrawn.

A densely-crowded meeting of reformers was held on Tuesday night, in the Victoria Hall, Leeds—the Mayor in the chair—to consider the question of Parliamentary reform. The speakers included Viscount Amberley, eldest son of Earl Russell; Mr. Forster, M.P. for the neighbouring town of Bradford; and Mr. Baines, the Liberal representative of the borough. Some resolutions and a petition to Parliament were adopted in favour of a liberal measure of reform.

Captain Stanley, the younger son of Lord Derby, has complied with a requisition inviting him to become a candidate for Preston at the next election. The requisition, which was presented at Knowsley on Thursday week, is said to have been signed by about two thirds of the constituency. Captain Stanley's return is considered certain; and the real struggle, on the dissolution of Parliament, will lie between Sir T. Hesketh, one of the sitting members, and Mr. Melly, who is to be brought forward by the Liberal party.

The distribution of prizes to the students in connection with the Museum of Irish Industry, which had been postponed in consequence of the death of the Earl of Carlisle, took place in the Lecture Theatre at Dublin, last Saturday, in the presence of the Lord Lieutenant and a distinguished assemblage. Sir Robert Kane read a paper "On the Economy of Fuel, and the Adaptation of Heat to the purposes for which Steam is now applied." His Excellency, amid loud applause, then distributed the prizes.

A slight decline of pauperism in the cotton districts is reported for last week. Twelve unions have more paupers: together, 850. Six unions are without change, and ten show a decrease: together, 1030. The Bury Union has 220 more paupers on its relief-lists; while the Blackburn Union has 100; the Haslingden Union, 260; Manchester, 120; and the Preston Union 190 fewer than in the previous week. The total number of adult able-bodied paupers is now 24,100. The outdoor relief disbursed last week amounted to £5943, less by £3500 than in the corresponding season of 1864.

Mr. Leonard Bruton, secretary of the Bristol Chamber of Commerce, has been presented with a cheque for 500 guineas and a handsome recular silver salver, "in recognition of his zealous, disinterested, and valuable services for the last quarter of a century in the city, dating back to a period prior to the first origination of the free-port movement, of which he was the indefatigable promoter, and including all the steps onward which have since increased the commerce and advanced the general interests of Bristol."

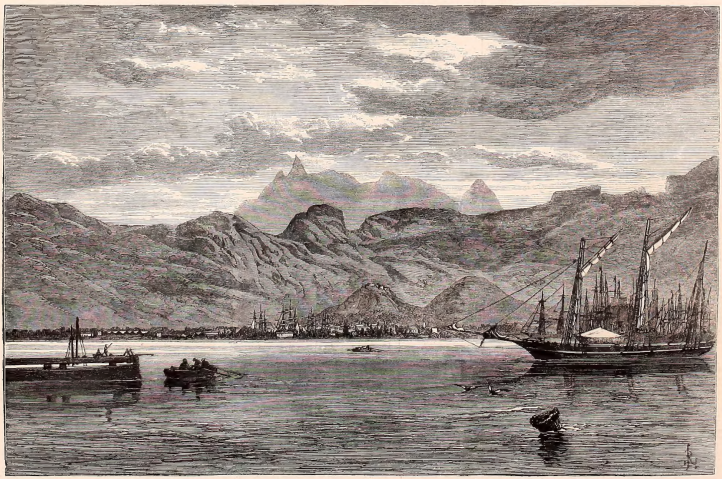
The question of the ownership of the ruins of the ancient and historic Palace of Dunfermline was, we learn from the Scotsman, decided in the first division of the Court of Session, on Tuesday. Mr. Hunt, of Pittencrief, claimed the ownership, as against the Crown; but his claim was declared invalid by an interlocutor pronounced by Lord Mackenzie in December, 1863, which found that "The said Royal Palace, or ruins thereof, belonged to Her Majesty and her Royal successors, and were a part of the patrimony and property of the Crown." The judgment of Lord Mackenzie was brought under the review of the First Division; and on Tuesday the Court, written cases having been in November submitted to it, gave judgment to the effect of reversing by a majority the interlocutor of the Lord Ordinary, and declaring the title to the ownership of the palace which had been advanced by Mr. Hunt sufficient.

In a field close to the North Tyne, on the Warkshaugh Farm, a large tumulus of the pre-historic age has been opened, of which the Carlisle Journal gives the following particulars:—A large urn, inverted, containing burnt bones, was discovered in ploughing, and a cist of the usual form connected with it by a pavement of unhewn slabs. After two days' further excavation on the south and east, two additional cists and four urns were discovered. Neither in the centre nor on the north side were any interments found, the latter being, indeed, seldom, if ever used—the sunny sides of the barrow having always the preference; a fact accounted for not only by an intuitive feeling yet existing, but also by its connection with the solar worship of the ancient Britons. The cists were filled with river sand, in which unburnt bodies had been deposited, of which the only remains appeared in a dark unctuous earth, mingled with the sand. In the eastern cist, an urn of graceful form and scoring was found, unfortunately broken by the fall, long since, of a side slab, and containing some black dust of corn, probably intended, according to the pagan idea, for the use of the departed chief. A flint arrow-head was also found in the cist. Around the three cists, the urns, with their burnt bones, were grouped—two having ornamented scorings, string lines, and dotted indentations on the pottery.

ASCENT OF THE PETER BOTTE MOUNTAIN, IN THE MAURITIUS.

THE Peter Botte, or Pieter Both, Mountain, in the island of Mauritius, is 2874 ft. high, but of a singular shape, and very difficult of ascent. It has, nevertheless, been climbed on two or three occasions—in 1832, by Captain Lloyd, Lieutenant Phillpotts, the Hon. T. Keppel, and Lieutenant Taylor; in 1848, by Lieutenant Swinney and his party; and in 1858, by Messrs. Baynton, O'Grady, and Wollet, of the Peninsular and Oriental Steam-boat Company's service, with Lieutenant Todd, 4th Regiment. This feat was again performed, on the 13th of last October, by a party consisting of Captain Johnston and Mr. Symons of the 24th Regiment, and Mr. B. Greene, who took with them, to carry up the flagstaff, ropes, and other packages, Private Lowe, of the 24th Regiment; Mr. B. Greene's coachman (an Indian), named Debee; a Lascar named Ameer, and five Indians. Mr. Greene is an amateur photographer, and had with him a camera and the necessary apparatus with which he took a series of views; he has sent them to us, and three of them are engraved in our present Number. The one at the bottom of the page is a general view of the mountain; the other two represent the most difficult places of the ascent. It was at seven o'clock in the morning that the party set out from Crêve Cœur, at the foot of the mountain, where two of the gentlemen had passed the night. The shoulder of the mountain was reached after an hour's steep walking through the woods. Here the photographic apparatus was left in charge of four of the Indians, while the adventurers made their way up. The first hundred feet from the shoulder lay over rocks and grass, with here and there a tuft of heather; but they then came to a very steep flat-faced rock, about 29 ft. high, named by previous visitors the "Ladder Rock," from the fact that it had always been thought impossible to ascend without the aid of a ladder. A pole about 20 ft. long having been placed against the rock, Debee, the Indian, climbed up the pole with a rope around his waist, and, taking advantage of a crevice running down the face of the rock, succeeded in reaching the top of the "Ladder Rock," and fastened the rope to the stump of a bush some 40 ft. higher up on the ridge, by means of which the rest of the party were enabled to follow. Ameer and the other Indians at first refused to go up; but, after much difficulty, he and one Indian were persuaded to do so; they, however, afforded no assistance, but proved in reality an incumbrance. From the top of the "Ladder Rock" extends a rough ridge rising with a gradual slope about 41 ft. long and of no great breadth—in fact, the upper 14 ft. form a narrow neck varying in width from 2 ft. to 5 ft.; on parts of this ridge the formation of the strata was found to be square, the ends of the stones being sharp cornered and easily broken. A great deal of time was spent in getting up the flagstaff, crowbars, and other things, by means of a small rope; and, although the going up and down was not very hard, the high wind rendered it difficult to throw the end of the rope back. On the right side of the ridge, looking down on the valley of the Calabasses River, the face of the mountain is very precipitous, several hundred feet being almost perpendicular; whilst on the Crève Cœur side, a short grassy slope much detracts from its dangerous appearance. From the end of this ridge rises the second difficult rock, 23 ft. high; several of the party managed to get up without assistance, and, having fastened a rope round the foot of a tree, the others easily followed. The remaining 67 ft. to the neck was got over very quickly, and the party found themselves, at forty minutes past nine, under the curious overhanging mass of rock called the Head. The distance from the shoulder to this point is 260 ft., which was accomplished in one hour and forty minutes. On arriving at the neck, the two Indians were shivering with cold; they took shelter under the lee of the rock, and, having lighted a fire, remained crouched over it. It was determined without further delay to attempt to reach the summit. The flagstaff, about 18 ft. long, securely supported by guys, was placed against the side of the rock facing the ridge, and Mr. Greene, having climbed up this pole, was enabled from the top of it to throw a piece of lead with a fishing-line attached over the head. This he happily accomplished at the first attempt; a stronger cord having been pulled over, Mr. Greene managed by its aid to reach the top. A stout rope (2½ in.) was then hauled up and securely fastened, by which means Captain Johnston, Mr. Symons, Private Lowe, and the Indian Debee climbed up hand over hand, and all safely gained the summit at half-past ten o'clock. The top is 23 ft. in extreme length, and 11 ft. 3 in. in the narrowest part. The height from the neck to the top of the head is 33 ft.; the circumference of the neck, 43 ft. The ledge extending round the neck, with the exception of 6 ft. which is impassable, varies in width from 4 ft. to 8 ft. The traces of former ascents were discovered on the top; a boarding-pike, supposed to have been used as a flagstaff by the party who went up in 1858, and a piece of lead with the date of May 21, 1848, and the names of Lieutenant Swinney, R.A., Mr. Hayter, Mr. J. Beasley, J. Billington, and Messrs. Macpherson and Prothoroe. Having taken note of these things, Mr. Greene and his companions erected the British flag, and left their own names in a "visitors' book," which was inclosed in a strong tin box and securely fastened. They descended about one o'clock to the shoulder of the mountain, and breakfasted there, walking down to the foot in the afternoon. A few days later Mr. Greene and the same party made a second expedition, accompanied by Mr. G. Bargmann, R.A., for the purpose of taking photographic views. They were fortunate in having fine weather, and accomplished their object with complete success.

ASCENT OF THE PETER BOTTE MOUNTAIN, MAURITIUS.



THE HEAD OF THE MOUNTAIN.

CLIMBING THE LADDER ROCK.

GENERAL VIEW OF THE MOUNTAIN, FROM THE HARBOUR OF PORT LOUIS.

NEW BUILDING OF THE WILLENHALL LITERARY INSTITUTE.

THE WILLENHALL LITERARY INSTITUTE.

THE Literary Institute at Willenhall, one of the manufacturing towns of South Staffordshire, has just come into occupation of a new building, which was opened on Tuesday week. It was designed by Mr. J. R. Veall, architect, of Wolverhampton, and contains, on the ground floor, a reading-room, a library, a conversation-room, and two class-rooms, over which is a lecture-hall, capable of accommodating upwards of 400 persons. The builder's estimate is £761. At the inaugural meeting briefly noticed in our last, the chair was occupied by the Right Hon. C. P. Villiers, M.P., who was supported on the platform by the High Sheriff of the county; the Earl of Lichfield (Lord Lieutenant); Mr. H. W. Foley, M.P.; Mr. T. M. Wegselin, M.P., and other gentlemen of distinction. The proceedings were opened with prayer by the Rev. G. Fisher, M.A. (vice-president), after which several addresses were delivered by the chairman and other gentlemen. The honorary secretary (Mr. J. C. Tildesley) read letters from the Duke of Cleveland, Lord Stanley, M.P., and Sir Robert Peel, M.P., the latter promising a donation of £25. The total subscriptions promised during the day amounted to upwards of £200. In the evening a soirée was held in celebration of the day's proceedings, under the presidency of the Earl of Lichfield. Mr. Villiers, who has been President of the Institute ever since its foundation, congratulated its members upon the success it has achieved.

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, LANGLEYBURY.

IN the parish of Abbot's Langley, in Hertfordshire, four or five miles from St. Albans and two miles from Hemel Hempstead, there is an ancient church, but not conveniently situated for the hamlet of Hunton Bridge, a remote part of the parish. Mr. Jones Loyd, of

ST. PAUL'S CHURCH, LANGLEYBURY.

Langleybury, has therefore provided, at his own expense, for the building of a new church, which was consecrated and opened in November last. We give an illustration, from a photograph by Mr. F. Downer, of Watford. The new church is an elegant structure in the Early English Decorated Gothic style of the fourteenth century. Mr. Woodyer, of Guildford, near Guildford, is the architect, and Messrs. George Myers and Sons, of Lambeth, the builders. The church consists of a nave, north aisle, and chancel, with vestry, organ-chamber, and south-west porch; and a private mortuary chapel, on the south-east side, for the Loyd family. The church is built of flints and Bath stone. The flints, being "squared," have a very finished and neat appearance. The tower and spire is

SCENE OF THE ACCIDENT AT ST. MARY'S ROMAN CATHOLIC SCHOOLS, HORSEFERRY-ROAD, WESTMINSTER.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

120 ft. high. The latter is made of wood and covered with oak shingle, which gives it a light and elegant appearance. The length of the church is 168 ft.; the nave is 18 ft. wide, and the church 46 ft. in the clear. There are sittings for 700 adults and sixty children, exclusive of those in the chancel. One hundred sittings are "for ever" to be free. The seats are made of unicoast oak, and are of the modern style. The ends are of stained timber open to the ridge, with white plaster between the rafters. The interior of the church is richly embellished. The pillars are composed of cluster columns of Forest of Dean stone, with moulded bases and carved capitals. The carving, both within and without the church (which was done by the Messrs. Myers), is beautiful and elaborate. The arcades are richly moulded with figured and bright glass quatrefoil prepy and of guinea. The chancel arch is a beautiful specimen of carved work. It is supported on Forest of Dean shafts, with a group of six angels on each corbel. On each side of the arch are twelve angels, with musical instruments, and like figures in the intermediate shafts. The chancel is beautifully inlaid, and divides the chancel from the nave. At the north side of the chancel is the organ-chamber. The chancel itself is raised four steps above the nave, and there are three more steps in ascending to the "altar." The reredos, or altarpiece, is a rich piece of carving. In the centre is an oval panel containing the sacred monogram, around which twine nine branches bearing fruit, and small circles containing the monograms of the Four Evangelists. The altarpiece is made of Caen stone, with a border of alabaster inlaid. Below it is the "super altar," also of alabaster. The Alabaster is inlaid with a richly-embroidered altar-cloth, on which stood the communion plate. The chancel is paved with encaustic tiles. The altar-rails are made of Bath stone, and placed on the south side of the church. The font is a very handsome one, made of Cornish serpentine marble, with inscriptions in gilt letters. There is a fine peal of six bells.

THE FATAL ACCIDENT IN WESTMINSTER.

THE accident on Thursday week at St. Mary's Catholic School, in St. Peter-street, Horseferry-road, Westminster, has resulted in some loss of life, but not death being that of a child. The school-room, one of the assistant matrons of the Millbank Penitentiary, who was among the spectators at the drawing of the prize lottery that evening, when the floor broke down. It may be explained that the Catholic schools the school is attached being in debt, those in authority established a lottery to clear it off, and tickets were sold among the congregation and others in the district entitling the winners to certain prizes. The invitation was as follows:—"A Ball, by the Pupils of the Establishment of prizes in aid of the Church of St. Mary, Horseferry-road, Westminster, will take place in Westminster, on Tuesday Evening, the 26th of January, 1858." The list of prizes included a handsome ormoulu Paris clock, an ivory work-box, a very handsome dressing-case, a handsome service, a lady's silver watch, a very handsome missal register, lace (church pattern), a musical snuffbox, a portfolio desk, besides many other valuable prizes, including gold brooches, gilt vases, writing desks, workboxes, cases, ladies' workboxes, dolls, statuary, vases, pictures in frames, purses, stereoscopes, photographic albums, &c. The tickets were sold at 6d. each, and were to be had of the Rev. G. Lambert, Rev. W. Cantwell, Rev. V. Zanetti, Rev. Mr. Bowden, formerly curate of Rev. P. Gaffney and the Fathers of Parm-street Church, at 9, Hill-street, Berkeley-square. The meeting took place, and at a quarter past eight the distribution of the prizes had begun in the school-room up stairs. The floor was about sixty feet long and thirty feet wide. There were at the time nearly 300 persons—men, women, and children—in the schoolroom. Without the slightest warning, one of the beams which rested from the centre to the wall suddenly gave way, and more than 100 persons were thrown down to the floor beneath, amid the screams and cries of the terrified people. It was at first supposed that a fire had burst out, and, the alarm being given, the building was soon hastened to the spot, foremost among whom was Conductor James Cottrell, of the escape brigade. He rendered most valuable assistance in rescuing men, women, and children from the windows of the building. In their agony and flight they tore down the window sashes, and would have jumped out had not means of aid they not been restrained by the police. A large number of the wounded were conveyed to the Westminster Hospital, where they were at once attended to. Twenty-eight persons remained there, of whom Miss Fallen and Mary Heffernan have died; another is not expected to survive. Nearly fifty were attended to and conveyed to their homes, while a great many were conveyed to the residences of their friends without receiving hospital treatment. It appears that the examination of the building, that the beam which gave way was of white deal and much affected by dry-rot. It which floor-boards was erected in 1837. It had rather an ornamental appearance and seemed to have been solidly built. It stands next to the model lodging-house in St. Peter's-street.

BIRTHS.

On the 25th ult., at 52, Rye-hill, Newcastle-on-Tyne, the wife of Mr. J. Wigham Richardson, of a son.

At Green-street, Grosvenor-square, Lady A. Hotham, of a son.

At Church-street, Brighton-square, Lady A. Bruce, of a son.

On the 28th ult., at Victoria Villa, Weston-road, Bath, the wife of John Stephens, Esq., late from Ceylon, of a son.

Deaths

On the 31st ult., at Claremont, in the county of Roscommon, the seat of his brother-in-law, Sir Hon. Gonville Phibbs, Lieutenant-Colonel Hon. Henry of Ballyfoon House, in that county, late of the Château de la Voliere, and Le Vivier, Isle-of-Cher, France.

On the 22nd ult., at Guildford, of consumption, Christian, daughter of the late Charles Wyatt, aged 23.

On the 25th ult., at 19, Park-crescent, Portland-place, Emma, the beloved wife of Thomas Bell, Esq., aged 70. F.R.S., in her 32nd year.

At Boulogne-sur-Mer, Katherine, Dowager Countess of Dundonald, relict of Vice-Admiral the Earl of Dundonald, aged 69.

At Great Malvern, the Hon. M. Clare, Honorary Lady Lecturess.

At Oxford-terrace, Georgina, daughter of the late Sir F. Macgregor, Bart.

On the 16th ult., Sir James Edward Wenlock, Bart., of Escrick-park, Chancery-lane.

 The charge for the insertion of Births, Marriages, and Deaths is Five Shillings for each announcement.*

Now ready,

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS,
VOLUME XXV., JULY TO DECEMBER, 1854.
Price 18s., cloth gilt; 21s. half-bound.

Covers for binding the above, 2s. 6d.; Portfolios to hold a Half Binding Case .. .. 2s. 6d. | Cases for Binders .. .. 4s. 6d.
Office, 198, Strand.

THE WEATHER.

RESULTS OF METEOROLOGICAL OBSERVATIONS AT THE KEW OBSERVATORY OF THE BRITISH ASSOCIATION.
Lat. 51° 28′ 6″ N.; Long. 0° 18′ 41″ W.; Height above Sea, 34 feet.

DAY.	DAILY MEANS OF					THERMOMETER		WIND.
	Barometer corrected and reduced to 32° Fahr.	Temperature of Evaporation	Dew Point Temperature	Relative Humidity	Amount of Cloud, 0 to 10	Highest in the Day	Lowest in the Night	General Direction.	Horizontal Movement in Miles	Total Movement in Miles
	Inches.	°	°	°	0–10	°	°		Miles	Miles
25	29·981	38·1	35·1	85	10	42·2	34·5	E. by N.	242	1451
26	29·303	39·1	32·8	73	10	52·0	34·8	E. to E.	242	1454
27	29·215	39·4	37·0	90	10	42·3	37·8	NNE. to NNW.	643	3758
28	29·990	39·7	37·8	92	9	42·6	37·4	WNW. to WSW.	322	1948
29	··	··	··	··	9	49·7	36·1	··	289	1680
30	29·737	45·3	42·5	85	9	51·5	42·9	E. by E.	193	1188
31	29·719	39·8	38·3	93	9	44·6	38·7	E. by S.	222	927

* Rain and melted snow. † Mixed snow.

The following are the readings of the meteorological instruments for the above days, in order, at half-past nine a.m.:—

Barometer in Inches corrected	29·766	29·337	29·773	29·864	29·915	29·754	29·705
Temperature of Air	37·7°	37·6°	37·6°	38·6°	39·6°	39·6°	39·6°
Temperature of Evaporation	31·9°	32·6°	32·6°	36·1°	38·3°	38·3°	38·3°
Direction of Wind	S.S.E.	S.S.E.	WSW.	S.	WSW.	S.	S.S.E.

CALENDAR FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEB. 11.

SUNDAY, Feb. 5.—Fifth Sunday after Epiphany. Agatha, Sicilian virgin and martyr, about 253. The Danes relinquish the Danmerwerke, 1864.

MONDAY, 6.—Queen Mary I. incorporates the company of Merchant Adventurers trading to Muscovy, 1555. Death of Joseph Priestley, the discoverer of oxygen gas, 1804.

TUESDAY, 7.—Sir Robert Walpole born, 1812. Important motion and speech of Henry Brougham on Law Reform, 1828.

WEDNESDAY, 8.—Samuel Butler, author of "Hudibras," born, 1617. Half Quarter.

THURSDAY, 9.—Dr. Rowland Taylor burned at Hadleigh, 1555. David Rizzio, Secretary to Mary Queen of Scots, murdered, 1566.

FRIDAY, 10.—Marriage of the Queen to the late Prince Consort, 1840. Sir Hugh Cholmley, Governor of Scarborough, at Malton, 1657. Sir Robert Peel, 67th Regt., born.

SATURDAY, 11.—St. Codmoc, the earliest English poet known, died about 680. Death of the Philosopher Descartes, 1650; of William Shenstone, poet, 1763.

TIMES OF HIGH WATER AT LONDON BRIDGE,
FOR THE WEEK ENDING FEBRUARY 11.

Sunday.	Monday.	Tuesday.	Wednesday.	Thursday.	Friday.	Saturday.
h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.	h. m.
1 30	2 0	2 30	3 0	3 30	4 0	4 30
13 50	14 20	14 50	15 20	15 50	16 20	16 50

ROYAL ENGLISH OPERA, COVENT-GARDEN.—OPERA EVERY EVENING.—On MONDAY, Balfe's popular Opera, THE BOHEMIAN GIRL. On TUESDAY, Donizetti's charming Opera, LUCIA DI LAMMERMOOR. On WEDNESDAY, Auber's fascinating Opera, THE CRYSTAL SLIPPER. On THURSDAY, the highly-successful Pantomime, CINDERELLA, with magnificent scenery and gorgeous accessories, and the celebrated Ballet of Fairies. On FRIDAY, Balfe's Opera, THE ROSE OF CASTILLE. On SATURDAY, Balfe's Opera, THE BOHEMIAN GIRL. Doors open at Half-past Six. Commence at Seven. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets may be obtained at the Box-office, which will be open for the Sale of Tickets on Monday next, Feb. 6, at Two o'Clock. Doors open at Half-past One.

THEATRE ROYAL, DRURY LANE.—Managers, Mr. Anson & Mr. Bunn.—On MONDAY, a Comedy, in 5 Acts, by Shakspeare, entitled KING HENRY IV. Falstaff, Mr. Phelps. Grand Historic Performance of the Tragedian on Wednesday and Saturday, in Two Parts, KING JOHN and KING HENRY VIII. Cardinal Wolsey, Mr. Phelps. On Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, the Comedy of THE HONEYMOON. Duke Aranza, Mr. Ryder, supported by Messrs. Walter Lacy, M. Marston, E. Phelps, Howe, Cathcart, Ryder, Mrs. Stirling, Miss Reynolds, Miss Fitzwilliam, and Miss Cooper. Doors open at Half-past Six; commence at Seven precisely. The whole produced under the direction of Mr. Robert Roxby. Characters in the opening — Mr. Bunn, Mr. Phelps, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Marston, Mr. Howe, Mr. Cathcart, Mr. Meagrave, Mr. G. Warren, and Master Percy Roselle, &c. The Horticultural Fête, Wednesday, July 5, 1854. Characters by Mr. Bunn, Mr. Phelps, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Howe, Mr. Cathcart, Mr. Meagrave, Mr. G. Warren, Mr. Bunn, Mr. Cornwell and Mr. S. Saville, Harlequins; Miss. Rolere and Miss Cooper, Columbines; Mr. Paul Bedford, Clown; Mr. Barnes, Pantaloon. On Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, and Friday, the Comedy of THE HONEYMOON. Duke Aranza, Mr. Ryder, supported by Messrs. Walter Lacy, Howe, Cathcart, Ryder, and Bennett, Mrs. Stirling, Miss Reynolds, Miss Fitzwilliam, and Miss Cooper. On Wednesday and Saturday, the Tragedy of KING JOHN. Characters by Mr. Phelps, Mr. Ryder, Mr. Walter Lacy, Mr. Howe, Mr. Cathcart, Mr. Meagrave, Mr. G. Warren, Mr. Bennett, Mr. Cornwell, Mr. Roselle, Mr. Saville, Mr. Bedford, Mr. Barnes, Mrs. Stirling, Miss Reynolds, Miss Fitzwilliam, and Miss Cooper. On Wednesday and Saturday, the Tragedy of KING HENRY VIII. Characters by Mr. J. Bennett, Machinery by Mr. Tolmie and Assistants. Dresses by Mr. Moy and Mrs. Lavine. Box-office open from Ten till Five daily.

THEATRE ROYAL, HAYMARKET.—On MONDAY and TUESDAY, the Comedy of THE HONEYMOON. Duke Aranza, Mr. Charles Kean. On WEDNESDAY, the Comedy of EVERY MAN IN HIS HUMOUR. Kitely, Mr. Charles Kean. On THURSDAY, the Comedy of THE RIVALS. On FRIDAY, the Comedy of THE SCHOOL FOR SCANDAL. On SATURDAY, the Comedy of THE HONEYMOON. Duke Aranza, Mr. Charles Kean. Doors open at Half-past Six; commence at Seven. Box-office open from Ten till Five. Private Boxes, Stalls, and Tickets may be obtained at the Box-office, which will be open for the Sale of Tickets on Monday next, Feb. 6, at Two o'Clock. Doors open at Half-past One.

THE ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS.

LONDON: SATURDAY, FEBRUARY 4, 1854.

AGAIN we record the close of the Parliamentary recess. Next week the Speech from the Throne and the debates on the Address will give the public the earliest view of our affairs. The week before the opening of the houses has been marked by both Conservative and Liberal demonstrations, the followers of Lord Derby having concentrated their efforts upon a movement against the malt tax, while the more "advanced" Liberals have taken up the larger question of Parliamentary Reform. The début of Lord Amberley, the son of the Foreign Minister, has been made at Leeds, in connection with the Reform question; and he has endeavoured to do honour to his father's "rest and be thankful" maxim, which will, perhaps, descend to posterity as a companion saying to Sir Robert Walpole's celebrated Quieta non movere.

It is not unremarkable that the new Session of the present Parliament may be a bustling and noisy one. Whether any measure of Reform will be actually brought forward or recommended, it is generally believed that a motion will be made to pledge the Administration on the subject. It is matter of notoriety that differences of opinion upon this question exist in the Cabinet; and that, should those who do not consider that any reconstruction of the representation is necessary come to influential to permit their antagonists to take the initiative in regard to Reform, an attempt at another kind of reconstruction is not impossible. Whether these differences will produce any effect upon the history in the coming Session remains to be seen; but that an active party in the House of Commons will use every endeavour to bring on some kind of crisis is tolerably certain. We have also to see whether the Conservatives, who have so long proclaimed their conviction that at a general election the country will give them a majority, will retain that conviction in the presence of the agitation that will be attempted, or whether they will continue, as heretofore, to strengthen the hands of that party in the Cabinet which is understood to stand the least aloof from what is termed Conservatism. With so many conflicting agencies to disentangle and to estimate, it would be premature to attempt prediction before the campaign shall have well opened; but we are unable to see the grounds upon which certain violent partisans expect to see the two great parties in the State again arrayed in defined hostility, as in the period of the Reform Bill. It must not be forgotten that at that period the far larger portion of the all-powerful middle class worked energetically with the champions of Reform, whereas at the present time it must be clear to a dispassionate observer that the great prosperity of the nation, the enormous amount of capital invested in meritorious speculation, and the belief that sufficient time has not elapsed to justify another change, combine to make domestic agitation unacceptable to the class which has everything to lose. Against these influences have to be set the activity of certain leaders, and the moral force which belongs to any movement in which the masses are sincerely interested; but again comes the compensating element, when we find that the leaders in question are not men who have the confidence of the country, and when we find that they have been able to make so little impression during the long time which has been avowedly devoted to the purposes of excitement. With ethics so curiously balanced, we conceive that ultra-statesmanship of high order never had a more favourable moment for asserting its superiority to partisanship.

We are assured by those who are, or should be, well informed that the Chancellor of the Exchequer expects to be able to state that he has a very large surplus. The announcement has already produced its effects, and numerous claims have been promptly set in motion. We consider ourselves especially aggrieved by the present system of taxation. The loudest of these claimants for relief are, of course, the enemies of the malt tax. Yet we may observe that at the most enthusiastic meetings for the subversion of this tax a spirit of moderation has prevailed. It may be that the chiefs of the Conservative party have contrived to signify to the agitators that they must not ask too much; and it is not ungenerous to suppose that those may regard themselves as nearer to office than they have been for years look at the demand for the entire sacrifice of this important item of revenue in a somewhat more practical light than they have done while such a prospect was not before them. Were Mr. Disraeli Chancellor of the Exchequer, it is hardly to be supposed that he would see his way to conceding the full demands of his supporters in reference to the malt tax, or to any other political demands under existing circumstances Mr. Gladstone will be asked for a relief rather than for an abolition. Whether he will be prepared to assent to any reduction may depend not merely upon financial considerations. He may think it while to secure the support of the Conservative party by some concessions in this respect, if we were not so very near a dissolution, when every man, like Harry Wynd, must fight for his own hand. There are times, and one of them may be the approaching, when political differences, which have of late years but slightly affected Budget questions, must have their weight. If Mr. Gladstone take the line which at the Leeds meeting and elsewhere has been chalked out for him, on the principle of a celebrated speech, which was afterwards "explained" in a still more celebrated preface, the enemies of the malt tax have not much to hope for at his hands. But we have a suspicion, and something more, that Mr. Gladstone will not be entirely guided by either party in all his confidences on the subject on which he was thought to have avowed his views so plainly. He has a great future before him; and, though he is too wise a man to be cynically reticent when great questions are at issue, he is too shrewd a man to lend himself by lavish and abstract propositions.

Oxford eloquence sans obstacle, we think that no very important accession to the authority, or at all events influence of, the Bishop of Oxford will be made. Session after Session, upon what some of his friends have considered to be matter of fact remarks will be as unsuccessful as heretofore. The public mind is as disinclined as ever to place any new powers in the hands of the hierarchy, or to render the Church in the slightest degree independent of the law of the land. It is, on the other hand, the legitimate influence of the Church has greatly increased—solely, be it remembered, through the enlightened energy of her Ministers, who, with few exceptions, have long been thoroughly awakened to the duties of a Christian priesthood. The Church will be protected, by public opinion, both from herself and from her enemies. And if, amid the scuffle of a closing Session and the preparations for a fierce contest, time can be found for a discussion on the case of the grand question of the day—that of the education of the people, for whom so very much remains to be done—the moribund Parliament, which has done so little for the welfare of the nation by wise measures, and for resistance to many foolish measures, will not expire ung sacrilegiously.

The Address of the House of Lords in reply to the Speech from the Throne will be moved by the Duke of Cleveland (long known as Lord Harry Vane) and seconded by the Earl of Charlemont. As previously stated, Sir Hedworth Williamson and Mr. Hanbury-Tracy will be the mover and seconder of the Address in the Lower House.

The Duke of Buccleuch has, in confirmation, yesterday week, at the Royal Military Asylum, Chelsea, when eighty boys were confirmed, after an impressive address to the candidates.

The Captain's good-service pension placed at the disposal of the First Lord of the Admiralty by the death of Captain R. Smith, R.N., has been conferred on Captain M. De Courcy.

Bishop Blomfield, Bishop Frederick Pocklington has been appointed a member of the Council of Military Education, in succession to Bishop Edward Denison, deceased. Colonel Addison, appointed Major and Superintendent of Studies at the Royal Military College.

Commander Henry Garrett, an officer who served at Trafalgar, died on the 14th ult., in his ninety-second year. The death of Major-General R. S. Armstrong, K.A., has been reported at Cape Coast Castle, on the 20th ult. Major Hall, 2nd Dragoons, has purchased the 101st Regt., and has been appointed to a "good-service" pension, as he is seventy-fifth year.

A meeting of the jurisprudence department of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science took place in Adam-street, Adelphi, on Monday, when a paper was read by Mr. Macqueen "On the Court of Appeal in Chancery." The lecturer traced the history of that tribunal from the earliest period. He observed that the Court of Delegates which formally existed was one of the most objectionable that could be imagined, and there was no wonder that, in 1851, it was entirely abolished, and the appeal transferred to the Queen in Council. The Judicial Committee of the Privy Council he looked upon as a great improvement upon the old state of things; and of the many suggestions which were now being made to further improve its action only one met with his approval—that was the appointment of a permanent judicial assessor to the Judicial Committee. The Lord Chancellor, he thought, should have the Bench of Bishops form part of this permanent tribunal, the rest of the committee to be formed of by members of the Judicial Committee, whose number should be double that of the Bishops. In the discussion which followed, a diversity of opinion was manifested amongst the members as to what would be the best plan to adopt, and ultimately the question was adjourned for further debate.

THE COURT.

THE Queen, with the Prince and Princess of Wales and the junior members of the Royal family, continues at Osborne House, in the enjoyment of good health.

On Wednesday week her Majesty, attended by Lady Churchill, drove out. The Princess of Wales took a drive. The Prince of Wales, attended by Lieutenant-General the Hon. C. Grey, Colonel the Hon. Sir C. B. Phipps, and Captain Grey, passed the day shooting.

On Thursday week the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Helena, drove in the carriage.

Yesterday week the Queen walked and drove in the grounds of Osborne.

On Saturday last the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales, Princess Helena, and Princess Beatrice, drove out in an open carriage and four. Princess Louisa, accompanied by Countess Blatcher, took a drive. The Prince of Wales, attended by Colonel Ponsonby and Captain Grey, went to Bishop Waltham and honoured Mr. A. Heigh with a visit. The Royal Highness, accompanied by Captain Grey, on board her Majesty's yacht Alberta, Captain the Prince of Leiningen, and crossed from Osborne to Portsmouth. The Prince was received upon his arrival, by Admiral Sir M. Seymour, K.C.B., and Captain F. Scott, Aide-de-Camp. The Victory and other ships in commission in the harbour gave a Royal salute, and the Turkish ships lying alongside the harbour hoisted their colours, and their bands played the English National Anthem. His Royal Highness drove to the harbour railway station and proceeded on his journey, in a saloon carriage attached to the forty minutes past seven ordinary train, by Brighton and South Coast. The Prince, during his visit, accompanied by Mr. Heigh, inspected the Bishop Waltham Clay-works. His Royal Highness returned to Portsmouth in the afternoon, and embarked on board the Alberta at five o'clock, from the King's Stairs, and proceeded across the Solent; the ships in harbour again saluted upon the Prince's departure. The Prince of Leiningen accompanied his Royal Highness to Osborne, and remained on a visit to her Majesty.

On Sunday the Queen, the Prince and Princess of Wales, and Princess Beatrice attended Divine service at Whippingham Church. Her Majesty, with Princess Helena and Princess Louisa, also attended the afternoon service in the same church. Rev. G. Prothero officiated.

On Monday the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Louisa and attended by Colonel Ponsonby, drove out in a carriage and four. The Prince of Wales, accompanied by the Prince of Leiningen and attended by Captain Grey, passed the day shooting. Prince Leopold and Princess Beatrice took a drive. The Right Hon. W. Gladstone arrived at Osborne, and had the honour of dining with her Majesty.

On Tuesday the Queen, accompanied by the Princess of Wales and Princess Helena, drove out twice. Princess Louisa and Princess Beatrice walked and drove in the grounds adjacent to Osborne. The Prince of Wales, attended by Captain Grey, joined the "meet" of the Isle of Wight hounds. The Duke of Cambridge arrived at Osborne on a visit to the Queen. The Right Hon. W. Gladstone left Osborne for London.

The Court is expected to leave Osborne on or about the 12th inst. and return to Windsor Castle.

The Queen has received through the Secretary of State for India, an address from the Maharajah of Benares conveying the congratulations of the Maharajah upon the marriage of the Prince of Wales to Princess Alexandra of Denmark. Her Majesty has been pleased to accept the congratulations of his Highness.

The Duchess of Atholl has succeeded Lady Churchill as Lady in Waiting to the Queen.

Their Royal Highnesses the Prince and Princess Louis of Hesse have removed from a visit to the Grosvenor Gallery to Cross Princess of Prussia. Yesterday week the Prince and Princess, with the members of the Prussian Royal family, assembled at the breakfast table at the Royal Queen House. His Royal Highness Prince Alfred also arrived at Cross Princess of Prussia, to the Crown Princess and Crown Prince.

The christening of the infant daughter of Sir Watkin Williams Wynn took place on Monday, at Wynnstay, Denbighshire. The sponsors were the Queen of Denmark, represented by Mrs. Stuckley Bankes, Lady Mostyn, and Lady Williams Wynn, represented by Miss Francis Stonor; and Sir Hugh Williams, Bart. The ceremony was performed by the Hon. and Rev. Henry Cholmondeley, Rector of Malpas, assisted by the Rev. Dr. Jones, Vicar of Ruabon.

The Earl and Countess of Aberdeen and Lady Georgiana Hamilton arrived at Chesterfield House on Wednesday, from Scotland, and left for Dublin in order for Cannes.

The Marchioness of Ormonde has arrived at her town residence, Bruton-street, Berkeley-square.

Earl and Countess Delawarr left town on Tuesday for Buckhurst Park, Sussex.

The Earl of Powis and Countess and the Ladies Herbert have left Powis Castle, Welshpool, for Walcot Hall, Salop.

Earl Granville gave the usual dinner to the members of the Cabinet and their wives, at his house in Bruton-street, on Thursday, to settle the roll of Sheriffs.

The Duke of Cleveland arrived at his residence in St. James's, on Friday, for the season.

Earl De Grey has returned to Carlton-gardens from Grantley Park, Surrey.

Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston left Cambridge House on Saturday last for Broadlands, Romsey.

Viscount and Viscountess Grey de Wilton left town on Saturday last to stay with Mr. Milton Mowbray.

Lord and Lady Chelmsford and the Hon. Miss Thesiger have arrived to town from a visit to Italy.

The Right Hon. R. Bernal and Mrs. Disraeli have arrived at Grosvenor gate for the season.

Earl De Grey has returned to Carlton-gardens from Grantley Park, Surrey.

Viscount and Viscountess Palmerston left Cambridge House on Saturday last for Broadlands, Romsey.

Viscount and Viscountess Grey de Wilton left town on Saturday last to stay with Mr. Milton Mowbray.

Lord and Lady Chelmsford and the Hon. Miss Thesiger have arrived to town from a visit to Italy.

The Right Hon. R. Bernal and Mrs. Disraeli have arrived at Grosvenor gate for the season.

Lord Lamoure has been appointed a Knight of the Order of St. Patrick.

M. de Bille presented his letters of recall as Danish Envoy on Saturday. M. de Bille has now private life, and will live for several remain in this country, and reside at Salvinton House, Putney-heath.

The forty-fourth annual meeting of the friends of the Merchant Seamen's Hospital was held on Thursday, at the London Tavern, Bishopsgate-street, Mr. Alderman Sir Benjamin Phillips in the chair. The report stated that the number of patients admitted into the hospital during the year had been 1912, and the number of out-patients 1305. The receipts of the year from all sources, except legacies, had been £4,000, and the expenditure had been £4795. The legacies received during the year had been £400 from Mrs. Ann Lyon, £200 from Mr. Cruchley, and £100 from Mr. Tyler. Her Majesty had sent her usual donation of 100 guineas, and £6292 had been subscribed by seamen of the mercantile shipping. A large number of letters had been received from the Hon. Rountree Jopleyton. The general committee had made their annual serious consideration, for many years past, the removal of the hospital to a site open shore, and had determined upon recommending that course to the governors outside meeting. The report was adopted nem. con.

The last of the course of lectures on Maritime International Law was delivered, on Wednesday, in the Hall of Lincoln's Inn, to the members of the Inns of Court, by Dr. Lushington, Q.C., Queen's Advocate General in the chair. The subject of the lecture was "Contraband of War." After alluding to neutrality and belligerency, on the rights and duties of neutrals as regards trade and navigation, illustrating the boundary of the rights of neutrals according to the law of nations prohibiting the carriage of contraband of war and selling articles of war to belligerents in a neutral country. The Foreign Enlistment Act in force in this country and in the United States was carefully examined, as well as the points involved in the dispute regarding the Alabama, the Alexandra, &c. The Professor lamented the practice of contraband carriers and blockade-runners, dealing as they did against both the law of nations and the municipal law. He showed the great advantage of adopting the principle of free ship free goods; dwelt on the importance of preserving the immunity of neutral territories; and concluded the lecture with recapitulating the principal points of the previous lectures. At the conclusion, Mr. Mountague Bernard, Chichele Professor, and a number of those who attended the lectures and of the Council of Legal Education.

ECHOES OF THE WEEK.

THE person who takes the liberty of writing these "Echoes" once received a business letter from a publisher, long since deceased. He was a very eminent and liberal publisher, but he had the misfortune to labour under a chronic perplexity with regard to the use of pronouns. He wanted an article for a magazine of which he was the proprietor, and his request ran in this strain:—"One would like the paper done by you. But I cannot give it by the 1st, and you know they cannot wait longer; so please write it directly, as we are short of copy. P.S. I await it most anxiously, as they have again asked me to get it from you. But I will not. You must be my apology for writing the "Echoes of the Week" in future in the first person singular." You remember what Lord Eldon said about corporations? I am very ready to bear any responsibility I may incur, and to answer any just demands anybody who may be kind enough to ring the big bell of this column and ask for the author. Besides, "we" is, at the best, a fiction, and a fiction which deceives nobody. Mr. Albert Smith used to ascribe the failure of a daily paper with which he was connected to the fact that it was published at Seven Dials. "Why, we were walking one day this week up" his face after reading this passage —"Malmo has a Mayor who has been, in his youth, uncommonly beautiful, so as to have been called the Lady of his college. His hair, which was a light brown, parted at the forehead and hung down upon his shoulders, according to the pictures which he has given of Adam." Read this, and then go and see Mr. Billington. Perhaps Milton was as bashful as Moden when he was young; but, alack! he did not get on very well with Helen after he had married her.

The following needs no introductory remarks; we give it, without comment, that the public may see both sides of the question :—

"Bridge-street, Westminster, Monmouthshire, 1865.

Mr. Bostin presents his compliments to the Editor of the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, and is glad to avail himself of the Editor's permission to state the objections he takes to Mr. Sala's observations in the "Echoes of the Week" reading Jan. 14, in the ILLUSTRATED LONDON NEWS, to his office, published, in a magazine, too lengthy extracts from a series of papers signed Mr. Bostin, which appeared in the Times. In this Mr. Sala's name was repeatedly introduced, Mr. Bostin's name was omitted, in this article Mr. Sala's name was the editor was in his street, full right where he took the extracts he did from these letters, and what was the result? Mr. Sala's name the editor did perform all that good faith and literary courtesy could require at his hands. The solicitors of Mr. Bostin have sent most injurious to Mr. Bostin's that wherein it is professed that his magazine had been published in February, instead of in January." The solicitors of Mr. Bostin will of course comply very soon have taught him the difference between mean and mean." Mr. Bostin, having to do with the public, is sorry to learn how that which was said to be in January becomes wrong to be in February. But, having done no kind of wrong; in fact, having done all that he could to prevent it, Mr. Bostin naturally feel indignant that Mr. Sala, in his anxiety to over-polish himself should have spoken of Mr. Bostin a thing which, being translated, means downright dishonesty."

THE FARM.

As a sample of what matters to us in some parts, we may quote a letter of Jan. 29 received from Mr. Hudson:—"We are in the midst of a real northern snowstorm, 15 in. or 18 in. deep, had frost at night, and the thermometer down last night to some 16 deg. below the freezing point. This has lasted for a week, and may do so for two or three more, and we have had a most unfavourable season for hay, and not a supply of turnips stored. I have some 200 tons of sweden, but it is absolutely locked up in the pits in which they are grown. Meantime we are whiling away the hours on the ice, 'like gods together,' careless of mankind." Mr. Hudson's letter suggests, however, that the master to the farm lad, without any exception, plays at this game; and, as it seems to me, the older a man gets the more interested he is in it."

It has been already pointed out, both here and elsewhere, in connection with the Agricultural Show, that cottage ponies and mules, that is would be much more advantageous to their owners and convenient to horses if they were sold at the Smithfield agricultural Show instead of Reading and still further west. An agricultural contemporary now perhaps urges that the Committee of Captain Spencer and his hon. periodical shorthorn sales (the first of which is announced for Rugby in future at the same time. Shorthorn breeders are largely; and although such gatherings have been too much looked upon as a mere collection of cattle for sale, which only good hearts should not be sent up for sale by breeders who have not, enough to make up a sale-catalogue of their own; and if Captain Spencer can have a sufficiency of sale, will be to him property of his locality, he will have done than an essential service. We would, however, go a step beyond that. There is no finer sight at the Smithfield Show than the Ashton Hall and Lord yearling shorthorn bulls, or "the yearling-bull St. Leger," in which we have seen some excellent. We would see why a show of the kind should not be held at the Islington Hall early in the spring for yearling bulls of all breeds. Such a show was very inconvenient could hold their sales and have their lots to hand. There would be no risk of a cattle plague during does not visit the Royal, and therefore the two shows would not clash, and farmers would have a great choice, instead of requiring to wait for the spring sales of yearling bull. Three or four good prizes in each class would secure plenty of entries.

We hear that Captain Spencer's shorthorn register has been so far a successful medium of sale. Mr. Thomas Dodds, who was for many years the manager of the business of the Ambo herd, and is now an auctioneer in Wakefield, has just sold Mr. Willis's Baron Crossley, the first-prize yearling bull at Manchester, to Mr. Robin Hood, of Robin Hood Yeatley shorthorn bulls, or "the yearling-bull St. Leger," in which we have seen some excellent. We would see why a show of the kind should not be held at the Islington Hall early in the spring for yearling bulls of all breeds. Such a show was very inconvenient could hold their sales and have their lots to hand. There would be no risk of a cattle plague during does not visit the Royal, and therefore the two shows would not clash, and farmers would have a great choice, instead of requiring to wait for the spring sales of yearling bull. Three or four good prizes in each class would secure plenty of entries.

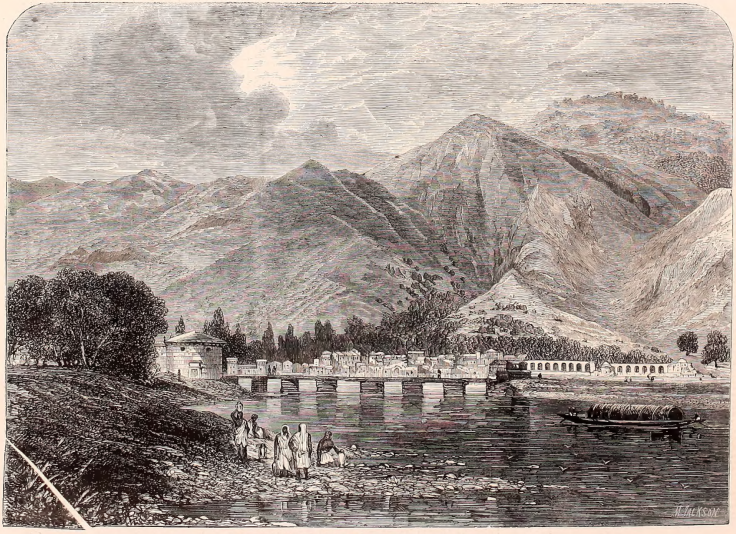
We hear that Captain Spencer's shorthorn register has been so far a successful medium of sale. Mr. Thomas Dodds, who was for many years the manager of the business of the Ambo herd, and is now an auctioneer in Wakefield, has just sold Mr. Willis's Baron Crossley, the first-prize yearling bull at Manchester, to Mr. Robin Hood, of Robin Hood Estate, of Hollock Lodge, near Horncastle. Among fresh arrivals, we may name a very handsome heifer—Lady Flo of Rowland Hall—Double Butterfly, at Thorneyholme, and born within a day of the first Towneley bull of the season, a handsome roan heifer calf, by Mr. Waterhouse.

Mr. Waisman's name as a pig exhibitor will be not seen in future at any show except the Royal and the Birmingham. The Cardwell pigs have won upwards of 500 prizes during the last five years, and will therefore be reserved for the meetings of the society in which alone Royal-prize boars—Worcester Duke, King Cube, and Perfect Cure—are now at Cardwood, along with twenty-two sows, all of which have won at the Royal or at the Royal and from dams which have taken such honours.

Mr. Fisher is living died, a few days since, at Brighton. Soon after his arrival from Sydney, where he had lived for several years, he gave £100 worth of prizes for the agricultural and horticultural show which was held at his native town of Wigton, Cumberland; and the prizegiving was one of the last duties which he was well backed up by Royal Butterfly 11th. At the first of the Babraham sales he gave the highest price of the day (£37 for Cowslip 2nd), and was also bold bolly from the auctioneer's waggon for Rose of Lancashire, Rosa Knights' Bridge, and Hannah's Farewell on the Towneley yearling.

It has been decided to place the Jonae Webb statue (which is to be of bronze and by Baron Marochetti) in Cambridge. Mr. Cobbett moved, and Colonel Cornwall seconded, an amendment to the effect that it should be placed in the Agricultural Hall; but they were beaten by three to one. For our part we think that purpose. The statue was something for beyond a mere county reputation; and, by the present arrangement, the vast majority of English agriculturists will never set eyes on the statue at all, and many of the subscribers may have to take a special journey to see that purpose. The statue was also numerously attended, and the Hon. Eliot Yorke, M.P., was in the chair.

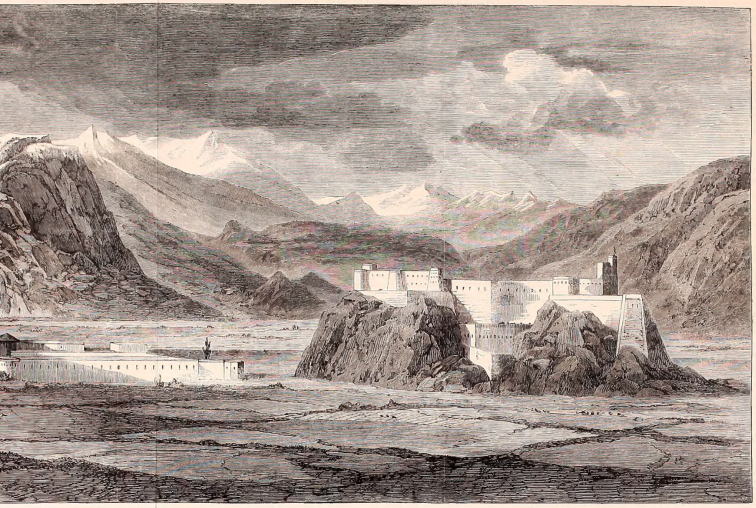
Mr. Massey, M.P. for Salford, and Chairman of Committees in the House of Commons, will succeed, as Finance Minister of India, Sir Charles Wood, who is compelled, by the state of his health to return to England.



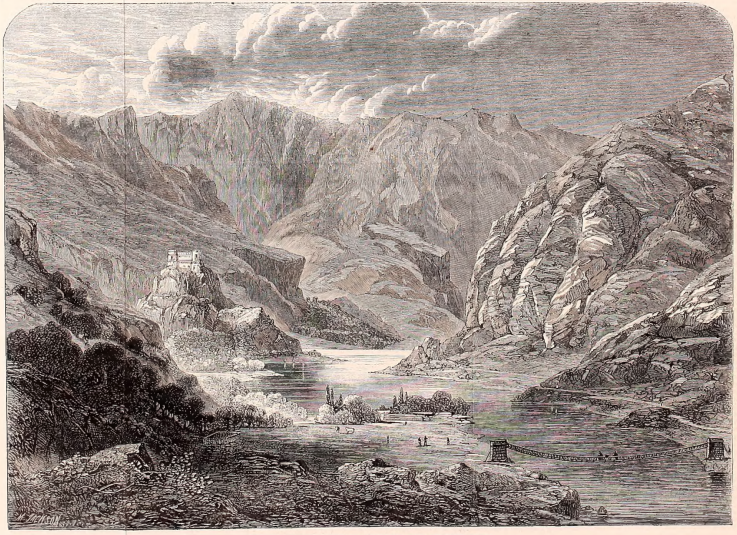
The Right Rev. Thomas Church Brownell, D.D., Bishop of the American Episcopalian Church at Hartford, Connecticut, died a few weeks ago, in his eighty-first year. He was born in Connecticut, was a graduate, in 1811, the president of Trinity College, in the State of Connecticut.

Mrs. Ann Perriman, widow, died, on the 24th ult., at Exmouth, aged ninety-seven. She was remarkable, not only for her great age, but for her brilliant continuous services about Admiral Sir Edward Pellew, Viscount Exmouth, who resided for many years in Lower Sidmouth, and Mrs. Perriman, commanded by Captain Sir James Saumarez, from the early part of 1794 to the close of 1798, having taken an active part by the three following great battles—viz., of L'Orient, Cape St. Vincent, and at the Nile—and in the several commands of Admirals Lord Hood, Sir John Jervis, and Lord Nelson. She survived all her contemporaries in the Mediterranean. The Lords Commissioners of the Admiralty acknowledged her services by granting her a pension. About two years ago we gave a portrait of Mrs Perriman.

SKETCHES OF CASHMERE



SKARDO, ON THE



BARAMULA, AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE VALLEY OF CASHMERE.

A N D L I T T L E T H I B E T.

LITTLE THIBET.

FORT OF KARTSABRUSHA ON THE INDUS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

LITTLE THIBET.

FORT OF KARTSABRUSHA ON THE INDUS.—SEE NEXT PAGE.

SKETCHES OF CASHMERE AND LITTLE

SKARDO, ON THE INDUS, LITTLE THIBET.

BARAMULA, AT THE ENTRANCE TO THE VALLEY OF CASHMERE.

FORT

SCENERY OF CASHMERE AND THE UPPER INDUS.

The territory of Cashmere, to the north of the British province of the Punjaub, is almost quite shut in by lofty mountains—secondary ranges of the Himalayas—the summits of which are covered with perpetual snow. Its principal outlet is the Baramula Pass, by which the river Jailum or Behut (the ancient Hydaspes), which drains the whole of the inclosed basin and is navigable for light vessels, emerges into the vast plain of the Punjaub, to join the Sutlej and other rivers there, which discharge themselves into the Indus. We are indebted to Captain G. H. Ware, of the 51st Light Infantry, for a sketch of the Baramula Pass; as well as for two Views of the scenery of the Upper Indus, in Little Thibet: the larger one represents the village of Skardo, or Iskardo, the capital of a little State called Bulti, on the frontier of the Chinese empire. Here is a large fortified building perched upon a rock overlooking the River Indus, with cultivated ground on one side, and a desert of white sand on the other; a second fortress, with a few houses about it, lies beneath; and snowy mountains, with glaciers far surpassing those of the Alps, surround the place on every hand. Another Illustration gives a view of the fort of Kartsabrusha on the Upper Indus.

FINE ARTS.

EXHIBITION OF THE SOCIETY OF FEMALE ARTISTS.

We have repeatedly had occasion to urge objections against the management of the Female Artists' exhibitions—objections which we have had reason to believe have been shared by precisely those working and professional contributors who alone can support the credit of such exhibitions, and whose interests they should most directly subserve. These objections and their effects have at last become irresistible, and, as the catalogue of the exhibition just opened in Pall-mall announces, and we intimated some weeks since, the Society of Female Artists has been "reorganised." A number of names of illustrious ladies, headed by the Duchess of Cambridge, are still set forth as "patronesses," and, as such, of course quite legitimately and honourably to themselves and the society. In future, the entire management will devolve upon the artists themselves. This revolution has been too recently brought about for its effect to be already very perceptible. Yet we find the present display an advance instead of, as usual, a retrogression upon its predecessor; and the hanging is comparatively satisfactory. The visitor must, notwithstanding, still be cautioned against accepting this gathering as affording anything near a fair criterion of the capabilities of the female artists of this country, seeing that at least a dozen of the most eminent are absent. To prevent, however, an impression which, though only natural, would be unfair and damaging, we think it behoves all our lady artists, now that mutual consideration may be expected, to contribute to an exhibition that affords an opportunity for vindicating the powers of women, and that is calculated to be of great benefit and service especially to many poor and deserving sisters.

We are glad to see Mrs. E. M. Ward, the most distinguished of our female artists, setting the example of re-adhesion to this society, though she only contributes two tiny and comparatively unimportant, yet thoroughly womanly and very charming, little pictures—studied, we suspect, in her own nursery—entitled "The Young Archer" (182) and "Beatrice Mary Florence" (188). Miss Kate Swift maintains her position as the exhibitor of the most noteworthy pictures in oil, albeit we miss the pathos of former works and scarcely recognise the luminousness which was their chief technical merit. Of her two contributions preference is due, perhaps, to the more elaborate one which bears as its motto the old adage "Two Heads are Better than One" (177). In a French cabane an old man, who, we are led to assume, was formerly (if he is not still) a matelot, is gravely expounding the principles of boat-building to a little boy, who, trusting to his own head, has carved a boat which, though it floats in a pan of water before him, manifests a perverse tendency to capsize and only right itself keel uppermost. The puzzled, rather shame-faced, expression of the boy, and the sympathetic interest of his little sister, are prettily expressed. The second picture, having for title another old saw, "A Stitch in Time Saves Nine" (187), represents, with much pleasant feeling, a mother bending over her little daughter as she gives her one of the first lessons in the housewifely duty of mending rents and "darning"—we believe that is the correct term—incipient holes. By a sister of this lady, Miss G. Swift, there is a picture of a girl "Returning from Covent-garden" (167), which, though promising, is painted in a rather flat, foreign manner. Still further qualification would be necessary were we to discuss the merit of a picture by another sister, Miss L. Swift, representing a nun relieving a poor, starving mother. We will venture to counsel the artist to avoid, at present, subjects which, unless treated with the nicest command of pathetic expression, are apt to be mawkish or simply disagreeable.

Miss Emma Brownlow, whose charming little single-figure picture, "On Thoughts of Charity Intent," we engraved last year, has, in "Anxious Moments: A Ray of Hope" (192), attempted a composition of, for her, more than usual elaborateness, and one involving the great difficulty of representing conflicting emotions; but, though well conceived, the result is hardly of commensurate value. Most visitors will prefer "The Firstborn" (164), a mother teaching her little toddler to walk on the cottage dresser. The Countess of Westmoreland sends, we believe, the only effort, in oil, in what is, surely properly enough, called high art—"Angels Appearing to the Shepherds" (180). This is just such a subject as Angelica Kauffmann might have treated, and she would have treated it—if in an old-fashioned academic style in which we now feel little interest—with still more of the ability and suavity not absent from the present work. Even to attempt, nowadays, such a subject as this is highly honourable to her Ladyship; but there is the glorious peril attending such representations, that we are always more sensible of their shortcomings than of a measure of success which would cover a multitude of defects in less ambitious subjects.

Coming to water-colour figure drawings, a foremost place is due to Miss Adelaide Burgess's juvenile subject, "Children Mending their Kite (241), the "French Flower-girl" (28), and the drawing of a little one bending absorbed over Grimms' "Fairy Tales" (38). There is a regretable disparity in "A Young Knight" (77), by Miss Gillies, between the effective painting of armour and other accessories of secondary importance and the weak and character-lacking effeminacy of the face. Mrs. Backhouse was not so happy as she is wont to be in the choice of the subject, "The Gipsy Poacher; or, Love versus Duty" (107); but her little "Gleaner" has the usual firmness of execution and force of positive colour. "Lady Flora" (87), a Georgian beauty, by Miss M. L. Oakley; other beauties (but rather artificial ones), by Miss Agnes Bouvier; "Shade in a Hop-garden" (51), by Mis Sarah Hewitt; a study, by Miss Jessie Landseer (daughter of Mr. Charles Landseer, R.A.), of a canine head, the property of Sir Edwin; "A Peasant from Lilienthal," by Miss Eliza Martin; a miniature portrait, by Miss Alicia H. Laird; and pen-and-ink drawings, or other subjects with the "point," by E. V. B., Miss L. Corbeaux, and Miss C. Babb, also deserve notice.

"E. V. B." (the Hon. Mrs. Boyle) has scarcely since equalled the beautifully conceived and executed pen-and-ink drawing of "The Nativity," which we engraved the Christmas before last. Yet her three drawings here almost equally testify, by their naïveté and delicacy, to a study of that early Christian art which this graceful designer has evidently found most congenial to her own chastened fancy. In "Fragments" (235), two saintly figures are walking through the flowery paths of piety; in "Arcadia" (225), a youthful Bacchus reclines under an arbour or pergola of vines entwined with pomegranates, saplings bearing golden apples, &c.; and in "A Dream" we have a little maiden dancing, gay as the peacocks disporting themselves near her, in the quaintly-trimmed garden pleasaunce before an ancient mansion—an old French legend underneath reminding us how much more delightful are dreams (such as that of this maiden) than realities.

The landscapes are numerous; but we can only afford space to particularise a small proportion of the best: such, for instance, as the "Hope, Derbyshire" (196), and the "Peveril Castle" (174), both by Mrs. J. W. Brown; the "Dunstaffnage Castle, Loch Etive" (14), by Miss M. Gastineau; and a moonlight view of "Tarbet, on Loch Fyne" (73), with other drawings by Miss Gastineau—which, like some other contributions here, recall qualities we have long associated with the respective family names; the "Villa di Angelis, Sorrento" (50), and "Ischia" (114), two landscapes, by E. C., possessing a good deal of Italian local colour; "Evening" (220), and "A Windy Day" (59), by Miss J. Deakin, the latter very closely imitative of the style of David Cox; a "Wheat-field at Taplow, Berks" (124), by Mrs. S. Wilkes; Algerian views, by Lady Dunbar, which seem to deserve better places; "The Lake of Lucerne" (178), by Miss Assenbaum; several drawings by Miss S. S. Warren; a drawing showing a considerable advance by Mrs. Dundas Murray, the secretary to the society; and other items by Miss C. F. Williams, Mrs. Hussey, and Miss H. A. Seymour. To this enumeration we can only add that the works of Miss S. S. Warren, who, if we remember rightly, is a new contributor, have conspicuous merit. A glowing, suffused tone is sometimes exaggerated to heaviness, but this drawback is not discoverable in "On the Thames—Cloudy Day" (153).

Of architectural drawings there are, as usual, some very good examples. All those by Miss Louise Rayner evince practised artistic skill in execution; they are sometimes very powerful in effect, and this year more free than heretofore from a mannered use of white on coarse-grained paper, to give texture. We may draw particular attention to "Durham" (42), "The Black Gate, Newcastle" (61), and "Old Houses on Elvet Bridge, Durham" (71). Also well deserving notice are the drawings of Miss Isabella G. E. Jones, an artist who has made rapid progress of late. We must mention with especial praise her "Rue de la Tuille, Rouen" (29), which reminds somewhat of Prout, "The Church of St. Mary Magdalene" (159); and "In Venice" (66). Very good, likewise, is a view of "Fryering Church, Essex" (103), by Miss Palacia E. Fahey; and "Rue St. Jean, Beauvais" (187), by Mrs. Hemming.

In the department of still-life there is always in these exhibitions a vast number of examples of every degree of merit, and generally in the more facile material of water colours—the imitation of immovable objects being a proper commencement of art-study; and we must remember that a large proportion of these lady exhibitors are but students. Among the best works of this class are the productions of Mesdames Withers, Pfeiffer, and Nixon; and the Misses H. Coleman, E. Cantelo, A. Dundas, E. Walter, C. James, A. M. Fitzjames, Lane, and E. Lane. Mrs. Withers tends to hardness in the finish of her "Flowers and Fruit" (92); and mere finish for finish sake—that is to say, the smoothening of surface without proportionate increase of truth—seems very obvious in the "Fruit" (226), by Mrs. Nixon. As an excellent example of great delicacy in feeling after the refinement of nature (not merely after uniformity of surface) we would instance the study of nuts, &c., entitled, "From Nature" (236), by Miss Helen Coleman. A group of "Grapes and Apples," by the same artist, shows a profitable reference to the style of the late W. Hunt. Another good specimen of careful delicacy is afforded by the "Primroses" (224) of Miss E. Cantelo, which have more of the pure pallor in colour and the tender texture of the petals than other representations of the same sweet, wild flowers. And by the side of this may be placed—as they will soon be found in our hedgerows, banks, and covers in all their lovely contrast of pale yellow and deep blue—the "Wild Hyacinths" (253) of Mrs. Pfeiffer. The "Autumn Roses" (227) of the same lady enables us to anticipate the completion of the floral wreath with which nature will crown the matured beauty of the growing year. Miss C. James, besides a good study of chrysanthemums, has a set of excellent designs for table-glass, and an admirably accurate copy of a female study from the life by Mulready. The two last have deservedly won the medallions awarded by the South Kensington Department of Art. Miss Lane, some of whose contributions on former occasions have been among the best of their kind, sends drawings of magnolias, cinerarias, apple and pear blossoms, &c.; but, though these have very considerable merit, we miss some of the freedom and "juiciness" of preceding flower-pieces. It would appear that her work is in a transitional state; that, dissatisfied with a broad, sketchy style, she has been aiming at the greater quantity and variety attainable by the stippling process, which was carried to such marvellous perfection by Hunt. Miss Emily Lane has a capital single study of an "Iris" (222).

On a pedestal are several small bronzes from admirable models of animals, by Rosa Bonheur. We must not take leave of this exhibition without expressly stating that, although we have used all vigilance, there are probably other works as noteworthy as those reviewed.

THE MAGAZINES.

"Armadale" still constitutes the principal attraction of the Cornhill. We are inclined think that in this fiction Mr. Collins has reached a greater height than he ever did before. There is little of the gaudy melodrama of "No Name," or the factitious horrors of "The Woman in White," while the characters of its two youthful heroes are at once more original and more true to nature than any he has drawn since his early masterpiece "Hide and Seek." A more natural air than usual is diffused over the whole work, and, thrilling as the incidents are in themselves and pregnant in their suggestiveness, we miss the customary clever and elaborate but mechanical and obvious stage carpentry. The local colouring is striking, and in fine keeping with the character of the story. Mr. Collins has rarely written anything more effective than the description of the two Armadales drifting down in the forsaken ship between the Isle and the Calf of Man, the wild night and its waning moon, the subdued roar of the current, the cries of the maniac on the shore, and the black figures dimly descried struggling on the rock. "Wives and Daughters" is of course the strongest possible contrast to these gloomy pictures. It is enlivened this month by the introduction of a new character—Mrs. Gibson's daughter by her former marriage—who promises to be a success. The "Rise of Roman Imperialism" is an able article, especially suggestive from the comparison implied in every line between the career of Augustus and that of the restorer of Imperialism in France. An equally interesting paper might be written on the differences between them, but their affinities are perhaps more numerous, certainly more conspicuous. "Orvieto" is a good description of this remarkable old city, with an account of the great but little known works of the mediæval artists, Nicola Pisano and Luca Signorelli, whose principal works it contains. "University Life" is a very entertaining and generally accurate chapter of gossip on the subject, and "Winter Shooting" a suitable companion to the agreeable paper on partridge-shooting published in the season. "Bohemians and Bohemianism" contains some graphic sketches and amusing anecdotes, but hardly so many as we should have expected, the fertility of the subject considered. Some of the persons introduced will be readily recognised. On the whole, this number is about the perfection of the light literature that just keeps above frivolity.

Macmillan, as usual, aspires to and attains a higher level, but fulfils its aim less perfectly. The best article is undoubtedly that in which Professor Masson records his recollections of his deceased friend, Agostino Ruffini. Some writer of fiction—but one endowed with sentiments and perceptions above the common—should appropriate this figure of the grave, courteous, quietly-longing, half-desponding exile, so strangely placed in a Scotch city, and so curiously influencing, and in some sense inspiring, the shrewd, hardy, practical young men with whom he at first sight seemed to have so little in common. We fancy we need not look further for the source of that generous zeal for Italy which Professor Masson manifested so warmly at a time when such sympathies were deemed the mark of a visionary or an anarchist. The writer has also been able to render his own powers more justice in this delineation of a warm attachment than in his more studied portraits of the great professors and preachers whom he only contemplated from the outside. Next in interest to this tribute to the dead is Professor Goldwin Smith's professedly slight and imperfect portrait of a great living celebrity—President Lincoln. The ludicrous falseness of the popular estimate of this remarkable man must by this time have become apparent to all capable of reflection. Mr. Smith has contributed towards the formation of a better one by some judicious observations; but, in particular, by simply letting us see how the President is wont to express himself on great occasions. No man, it must be conceded by all who read this paper, could have spoken more simply and nobly over the dead at Gettysburg; more firmly, and at the same time wisely and moderately, on the question of emancipation; more tersely and unanswerably than in rebutting the charges of illegal arrests. The same spirit pervades all these utterances—that of a magistrate severely conscious of his responsibilities, disinterested, energetic, circumspect. The scrap on the late Professor Boole is either two pages too long or six too short. One of the greatest faults of this magazine is the interminable length to which the serial stories are allowed to run. Both have now reached a point where memory is dead beat and attention hopelessly bewildered. Yet it is impossible to dip into Mr. Kingsley's without encountering some graphic touch of description or brilliant flash of diction; or into Mrs. Oliphant's without yielding to the charm of her tender devoutness of spirit.

The authoress of "The Perpetual Curate" returns to Blackwood with a new story, "Miss Marjoribanks," which promises well. "The Visit to the Confederate States" is concluded, and is not uninteresting reading when we have once got over our disappointment at finding the writer so mere a collector of gossip and so hopelessly incapable of any breadth of view or any correct appreciation of the relative importance of the matters that fell under his cognisance. Seldom have such admirable opportunities of investigation been so sadly misused. "Knight-Errantry in the Nineteenth Century" makes some amends. It is a paper in the old Blackwood style, replete with hearty fun, bordering on the farcical. A political biography of Mr. Gladstone opens fairly enough, but soon proves to be an insidious attempt to damage his chance of re-election at Oxford by spiteful carpings at his conduct concerning questions on which peculiar sensitiveness is expected from an academic constituency.

Fraser opens with a luminous survey of the present condition of the Chinese empire and the transactions of the past three years. The point chiefly insisted on is the tendency of events to gradually bring China into the great family of civilised nations. The last war finally convinced the Celestials of their mistake respecting the power of the Western nations; their necessities compelled them to solicit the assistance of their conquerors; and, while they found the material aid they sought in the military genius of Colonel Gordon, the disinterested course of the British Minister allayed their inveterate suspicions, and the vast increase of their revenue convinced them of the substantial advantages of our alliance. It still remains to be seen how far these views have actually modified the traditions of Chinese statesmanship, or how far they are peculiar to a few enlightened men placed by accident at the head of affairs. According to the writer, Prince Kung, the Regent, is not a man of marked ability, and the liberality of his administration is really due to his counsellor, Wu Siang. Some interesting statistics of the progress of Chinese commerce are given, and the article concludes with a vindication of the Pekin Cabinet from the charge of bad faith brought by Mr. Lay. "The Story of Saneha" is another paper of very great interest, being a translation, by Mr. Goodwin, one of our best Egyptian scholars, of a hieroglyphic document which the interpreter, who leans to the longer chronology, refers to a date of about 2200 B.C. It is the story (whether genuine or fictitious cannot be ascertained, but probably the former) of a certain Saneha, a courtier of Amenemha I. (about 2400 B.C., according to Goodwin), who fled from the Court, and, after a long residence with another Sovereign, was invited back and restored to favour. The narrative is in general simple and intelligible, except when interrupted by hyperbolical adulation of the King. Mr. Goodwin does not profess to have achieved an entirely satisfactory version, but states that his rendering agrees in the main with that of M. Chabas, a French savant, who undertook the task "simultaneously, but without concert or communication." "The Rest of It" is an entertaining essay, in A. K. H. B.'s usual style. Mr. Fitzjames Stephen's letter on the law of the Church of England is an exposition of a branch of his argument on the Colenso case into which the Court would not permit him to enter, considering his position too obviously correct to require proof. He now writes for the unlearned public, who, it is to be hoped, will read him, the point being one of extreme importance. Dean Stanley's genial paper "On the Spirit of the Church of the Nineteenth Century" was read before a gathering of clergymen, which, probably, accounts for its very conciliatory tone.

The Dublin University and the St. James's Magazine have many readable papers, but nothing of special note.

Temple Bar commences with a new story by Miss Braddon, which seems to us to promise better things than we have yet had from her. There is more insight into character, more human interest, more thought, and evidence of intellect. We believe Miss Braddon is capable of producing much better works than she has as yet allowed herself to write. Mr. Byron's story also improves. The writer's vocation is evidently for the comic rather than serious, and his descriptions of the lower grades of literary life are both amusing and pungent. There are elements of a much higher kind in Mr. Wills's story—a fiction strikingly original, and reminding us of nothing else, unless it be of Jean Paul, in the mutual interpenetration of rich humour and deep pathos in the scene where the hard, worldly husband reviews his estimate of his deceased wife by the light of the success of her posthumous novel. In the scene between Chantrey and the Major, too, there is fine feeling for character as well as an acute perception of its singularities. "Through Wilts" is an excellent paper of its class, and "Recent Criticism on Tennyson" is very subtle and discriminating. Somehow, this magazine is particularly fortunate in its poets. "Glimpses" is founded on a very fine thought, which would have gained by condensation; and the sonnet, "Three Maidens," besides embalming a beautiful idea, has all the clearness and symmetry vital to, but so frequently absent from, this species of composition.

The Churchman's Family Magazine introduces a new feature, "Our Clerical Club—a sort of decorous "Noctes Ambrosianæ"—in which the topics of the day are discussed in no ungenial spirit. We turned with interest to Mr. Wilberforce's account of the Munich Conference, but found it brief and disappointing. With all goodwill to the Englishman's Magazine, we cannot say that the contributors have yet attained the end they propose to themselves. They seem to want experience, and the general effect is heavy. Lord Lyttelton's paper "On the Proposed Reform of the Sunday Lessons" is, however, eminently frank and practical. The Month is, as usual, written with grace and refinement; but its sectarian character will restrict it to a limited public. Of Good Words, the Quiver, and London Society, it is unnecessary to say more than that they continue to perfectly fulfil the aims of their respective conductors.

Our Mutual Friend. By Charles Dickens. No. 10. (Chapman and Hall.) The worst number yet published, following one of the best. Its inferiority may be explained by its being the last of the second book, which compels Mr. Dickens to take up all the loose threads of his story and attach them to some definite point of the action. It would have been well if he could have dropped them altogether; for this number is full of the sayings and doings of very uninteresting people.

The Globe states that Mr. Justice Williams has tendered his resignation as one of the Puisne Judges of the Court of Common Pleas. It is reported that Mr. Lush, Q.C., will be the new Judge.

A great many workshops in the centre of Paris are at present busy manufacturing gilt copper ornaments in imitation of gold—earrings, chains, and rings of the same—together with table ornaments, all for the Chinese markets.

The Roman Railway Company has opened a direct route from Naples to Florence in twenty hours, 93f. first class. The annoyance of changing carriage at Isoletta, the confine of the Naples Kingdom and Papal States, is over.

The population of the ten principal cities of the United Kingdom is increasing at so rapid a rate that it is necessary to take the increase into account in calculating for the weekly table their mortality. And by the best estimates that can be framed from the Census their population will amount to 5,524,012 in the middle of the present year; London counting for 3,015,494, Edinburgh for 174,180, Dublin for 254,808, Liverpool for 476,368, Manchester and Salford for 465,763, Glasgow for 423,723, Birmingham for 327,842, Leeds for 224,025, and Bristol for 161,809. The population of all the ten cities has overflowed their limits; and even the lines of boundaries, traced at the date of the Reform Bill, in the interval of a generation, are already antiquated. The question of the health of the ten cities is of paramount importance, for diseases from afar find homes in them, or growing epidemics radiate from their centres through the whole population. Their leaven leavens the whole lump, as their intelligence agitates the mass of the nation. The deaths of the week ending on Saturday last were 3469, the births 3643. The rate of mortality (per 1000 per annum) was 33 in the ten cities; namely 30 in London, 32 in Edinburgh, 39 in Dublin, 42 in Liverpool, 40 in Manchester, 29 in Salford, 36 in Glasgow, 32 in Birmingham, 29 in Leeds, and 30 in Bristol (exclusive of its large workhouse). All these rates are above the average of their respective cities, which is in part due to the winter weather. The mean annual mortality of healthy places is, it will be recollected, 17 in 1000.

METROPOLITAN NEWS.

The members of the North London Band of Hope, Caledonian-road, gave, on Thursday week, a concert in the vestry-hall of St. Pancras, before 900 of the workhouse inmates, including the halt, lame, blind, and even the quietly disposed from the insane wards.

At the weekly meeting of the Metropolitan Board of Works yesterday week Mr. Bazalgette presented a report on the new railway schemes about to be promoted this Session in connection with the metropolis. It appears that the railways projected are fourteen miles in length, and that the cost of their construction will be £17,000,000.

The first meeting of the Department of Economy and Trade of the National Association for the Promotion of Social Science was held in Adam-street, Adelphi, on Tuesday evening, when a paper was read by Mr. Edwin Chadwick, C.B., president of the department, "On the Economical Principles of a Reform of the Legislation and Administration for the Conveyance of Goods and Passengers by Railways."

The Prince of Wales has given 100 guineas in aid of the Licensed Victuallers' Building Fund. At a large gathering of the friends of the institution, which took place at Radley's Hotel, Blackfriars, last week, for the purpose of devising plans for a great and united effort on the part of the trade at large to raise the additional capital requisite to place the asylum on a footing which shall render it secure against every contingency, a sum of 1000 guineas was contributed, and steps were taken for a widespread appeal to the friends of the charity during the chairmanship of Mr. Golding.

The annual general court of governors of the German Hospital, Dalston, was held on Monday at the London Tavern. From the report of the hospital committee, it appeared that the number of in-patients in the hospital from the 1st of January to the 31st of December, 1864, was 795; of these, 448 were cured. The number of out-patients during the same period was 17,728, making a grand total of patients relieved during the year of 18,523. The receipts for the year were £4174; expenditure, £3700. The building fund amounts to about £14,000, and a further sum of £3000 is required to cover the costs of the new buildings and fittings. The anniversary dinner will take place at the London Tavern on the 1st of March next, at which the Duke of Cambridge has promised to preside.

Two Industrial Exhibitions were opened on Wednesday—one for the working classes south of the river, at the Lambeth Baths; the other, confined to the narrower range of the operative coachmakers, at the Coachmakers' Hall, Noble-street, City. Both were opened with considerable spirit, and each promises, in its own way, to be successful. The Lambeth Exhibition, which is the second of the kind in that district, was attended at the opening by the Bishop of Winchester, the Hon. Arthur Kinnaird, Mr. Cowper, M.P., Mr. Locke, M.P., and several of the clergymen and Dissenting ministers of the district. The Marquis of Lansdowne opened the Coachmakers' Exhibition. The Very Rev. Dean Milman and several members of the Coachmakers' Company were also present.

Last week the births of 1894 children—964 boys and 930 girls—were registered in London. In the ten corresponding weeks of the years 1855-64 the average number (corrected) was 2084.——The influence of the cold weather on the lives of the population is apparent in the increased mortality in London. In the week that ended on Saturday last the deaths of 1747 persons were registered; in the previous week the number was 1585. In the corresponding weeks of ten years (1855-64) the average number of deaths is, with a correction for increase of population, 1591. 359 persons died last week from zymotic diseases, the corrected average number being 331. Whooping-cough is the most fatal disease in the list, having carried off eighty-one children. Seventy-six deaths were caused by typhus, fourteen by smallpox, and twenty-six by measles. Fifty-seven deaths occurred from scarlatina, and seventeen from diphtheria. 472 deaths were caused by diseases of the respiratory organs (exclusive of phthisis), the corrected average number being 404. Bronchitis was much more fatal than in any previous week of the present winter season, 316 persons having died from this disease. Pneumonia, on the contrary, shows a somewhat lower mortality than the average; it carried off ninety-three persons. 203 deaths occurred from phthisis, eighty-six from diseases of the heart, and 183 from diseases of the brain and nervous system. Thirty-eight persons were killed by accidents, sixteen deaths occurred from fractures or contusions, three children and two adults died from burns or scalds, five persons were drowned, and nine infants and one adult were suffocated. Two persons committed suicide, and two infants were murdered.

A meeting of the Royal National Life-boat Institution was held on Thursday, at its house, John-street, Adelphi. A communication was read from General Knollys stating that he had been commanded by his Royal Highness the Prince of Wales to express the extreme satisfaction of the Prince and Princess to learn that the Albert Victor life-boat, stationed at Berwick-on-Tweed, had rescued six fishermen from drowning. A grant of £40 was made in aid of the funds now raising for the widow and three young children of the poor man who perished from the Holyhead life-boat, on the 14th ult., when, owing to the breaking of the masts' clamp, the boat was capsized. The life-boat, manned by fifteen men, had put off during a furious storm, and brought the schooner Henry Holman and her crew of eight men to a place of safety. Rewards amounting to £36 were voted to the crews of the life-boats of the institution for saving the following shipwrecked crews during the late heavy gales:—Brig Steffaria, of Palermo, vessel and crew of twelve men saved; schooner Thomas, of Liverpool, six men saved; brig Willie Ridley, of Plymouth, eight men saved; French lugger La Maria François Le Père Samson, vessel and four men saved; brig Elizabeth, of Lowestoft, vessel and seven men saved; schooner Henry Holman, of Plymouth, vessel and eight men saved; fishing-boat of Berwick and six men saved: total, fifty-one lives and five vessels saved. The silver medal of the institution and a copy of its vote on parchment were presented to Captain T. H. B. Fellowes, R.N., Inspecting Commander of the Coastguard at Penzance, and to Major F. W. Testing, of the Royal Marine Artillery, in acknowledgment of their gallant services in saving life from shipwreck. Various other rewards were also granted to the crews of fishing-boats and others for saving life from different wrecks on the coasts of the United Kingdom. Payments amounting to upwards of £2000 were ordered to be made on various life-boat establishments. It was reported that the institution had sent during the past month new life-boats to Poole, Dorset; Penzance, Cornwall; Bridlington, Yorkshire; Tramore, in the county of Waterford; and Girvan, Ayrshire. Public demonstrations had taken place at most of the above places on the arrival of the life-boats. New life-boats, built by Messrs. Forrestt and Son, under the superintendence of the institution, had also been recently forwarded to the life-boat societies at South Holland and Marseilles. Reports were read from the inspector and assistant inspector of life-boats of the institution on their recent visits to some of the life-boat stations on the coast. It was stated that a legacy of £200 had been left to the institution by Mrs. Morgan, of Cheltenham. Messrs. Leaf, Sons, and Co., Old Change, had expressed their desire to present the institution with the whole cost of a life-boat station. Henry Nixson, Esq., of Manchester, had also intimated his intention of defraying the cost of a life-boat establishment.

LAW AND POLICE.—In the Admiralty Court, on Tuesday, Mr. Lushington applied, in the matter of the Amazon, for an apportionment of £1000, awarded as salvage-money. The Court granted £500 to the owners, £200 to the master, and £300 to the crew.

A communication has been received from the Home Office by Mr. Beard, solicitor to the assignees under the bankruptcy of Matthews, to the effect that the £300 to which Matthews is entitled as a reward for his exertions in reference to the apprehension and subsequent conviction of Franz Müller, will become payable to the official assignee of the estate. The creditors of Matthews, who but for this circumstance would have lost the whole of their debts, will now receive a dividend of upwards of 10s. in the pound.

The Strand Musick Hall Company, which has had such a short existence, was before the Master of the Rolls on Saturday. It is said that the debts and liabilities of the company far exceed their assets, and that there are creditors holding securities which more than cover all the resources of the firm.

The second January sessions of the Central Criminal Court began on Monday. The two thieves, named Grant and Northgate, who broke into the house of Mr. Bodkin, at Highgate, pleaded guilty on Monday. The Recorder sentenced Grant to ten years' and Northgate to seven years' penal servitude, and ordered a reward of £2 to each of the policemen, who, he said, had acted with remarkable courage. On Tuesday the grand jury brought in a true bill against Mr. Terry and Mr. Burch, for issuing a fraudulent balance-sheet of the Unity Bank. The trial has been postponed.

The Littlehampton, Havre, and Honfleur Steam-ship Company was summoned to appear before the Lord Mayor at the Mansion House, yesterday week, to answer a charge of not having deposited a complete list of the shareholders at the office of the Registrar of Joint-stock Companies; but it appeared that the directors had acted under the advice of counsel in making the return in the shape it was made. On this and other grounds the summons was dismissed.

At the Marlborough-street Police Court, on Monday, two persons were fined for snowballing and riotous conduct in Kensington-gardens on Sunday.

On the morning of the 24th of November last it was discovered that the shop of Mr. Abrahams, jeweller, of the Strand, at the corner of the Lowther Arcade, had been entered, and jewellery valued at considerably over £1000 had been stolen. A search of the premises showed how the robbery had been committed. Three men had engaged a bed-room at a coffee-house four doors from Mr. Abraham's shop. In the night they had cut through the ceiling of the room, got out upon the roof, walked to Mr. Abraham's house, where nobody slept, cut a hole in the roof, and thus secured entrance, and, after robbing the shop, had returned by the way they came to the coffee-house. In the bed-room they stripped the jewellery of all the tickets and marks, and then, putting the valuables into carpet-bags which they carried, marched out of the front door of the house at four o'clock in the morning. A man, who says his name is Price, but who seems to have many an alias, has been brought up at Bow-street Police Court, charged with having been one of the three men engaged in the robbery. A waitress at the coffee-house swore to his identity. He was not apprehended without a severe struggle with the police officer. He stands remanded for further examination.

Three men were brought up at the Mansion House Police Court on Thursday week charged with defrauding several fire insurance offices. The men had been employed at Meriton's Wharf, Dockhead, where a few weeks ago there was a great fire. It seems that when the goods were landed at the wharf to be stored tablets bearing the name of the vessel by which the goods had been brought were affixed to the bales. It is charged that since the fire the prisoners have removed the tablets from several thousand bales and affixed others bearing another name. The bales have then been represented as destroyed by the fire, the trace to them being removed by the changing of the tablets. In this way some thousands of pounds have been paid by the insurance offices for goods which are now in the warehouses. The plan was exposed by a labourer at the wharf. After some evidence had been taken, the prisoners were remanded.

MONETARY TRANSACTIONS OF THE WEEK.

(From our City Correspondent.)

CONSIDERABLE flatness has prevailed in the market for all National Stocks. The transactions for Money have been on a very limited scale, and the Account operations have been unimportant. Prices have, therefore, given way, and the inquiry for loans in the Stock Exchange has been somewhat active, at 5 per cent for short periods.

In the General Discount Market the supply of capital is abundant; but the lowest rates for the best commercial paper are as follow:—

Thirty days' bills	4¾ per cent.	Four months' bills	5¼ per cent.
Sixty days' bills	4¾ "	Six months' bills	6 "
Three months' bills	5 "

On the Continent money has ruled about stationary, with a moderate demand. We annex the quotations in the leading cities:—

	Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.		Bank rate per cent.	Open market per cent.
Paris	4½	4½	Turin	6	6
Vienna	5	5	Brussels	5	4
Berlin	5	4¾	Madrid	9	10
Frankfort	5	5	Hamburg	—	4
Amsterdam	4½	4½	St. Petersburg	6½	9

The Joint-stock Banks are now giving 4 per cent for money at call, 4¼ per cent if with seven, and 4½ per cent if with fourteen, days' notice of withdrawal.

About £450,000 in bullion has arrived this week. Mexican dollars have sold at 60⅞d., and fine bar silver has produced 61⅞d. per ounce.

The Council for India have disposed of £300,000 in bills on the East, at previous quotations—viz., 1s. 11⅝d. on Calcutta and Madras, and 1s. 11⅝d. on Bombay.

The annexed return shows the state of the note circulation in the United Kingdom during the four weeks ending Jan. 7:—

Bank of England	£19,571,118
Private Banks	2,959,367
Joint-stock Banks	2,737,410
Scotland	4,325,591
Ireland	5,661,035
	£35,254,512

Compared with the same period last year, the above figures show a decrease in the total circulation of £731,103.

On Monday, Stocks generally were very dull, at slightly depressed rates. Consols, for Transfer, marked 89½ ⅝; Ditto, for Time, 89¾ ⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞; Bank Stock, 244 to 246; India Stock, 213 to 216; Ditto Five per Cents, 103¾ to 104; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem. On the following day, Consols, for Money, were 89½ ⅝; Ditto, for Account, 89¾ ⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88⅞ ⅞; India Five per Cents, 104 and 103⅞; Ditto Bonds, 10s. prem. The transactions on Wednesday were much restricted. Consols, for Transfer, 89½ ⅝; Ditto, for Time, 89¾ ⅞; Reduced and New Three per Cents, 88½ ⅝; Bank Stock, 245 to 247; India Stock, 213 to 216; India Five per Cents, 103⅞ ⅞; Rupee Paper, 101 to 103, and 109 to 111; India Bonds, 10s. to 15s. prem.; Exchequer Bills, par to 4s. prem. On Thursday the market was firmer, Consols being 89⅜ ½ for Money, and 89⅝ ⅝ for the present Account. Reduced and New Three per Cents sold at 88½ ⅝; India Five per Cents, 103⅞ ⅞; and Exchequer Bills, 4s. prem.

Owing to the recent Federal successes, the market for the Confederate Loan has ruled heavy, at reduced quotations. Turkish Consolidés are firm, at 52¾ to 53; but most other Foreign Securities are very inactive. Egyptian Scrip has marked 2 to 2¼ prem.; Italian, ¼ to ½ prem.; Danubian, 1 to 0½ dis.; Mexican, 7 to 5 dis.; and the Confederate Loan, 53 to 55. Brazilian Four-and-a-Half per Cents have been done at 83½; Egyptian Seven per Cents, 18½; Ditto, 1864, 96⅞; Mexican Three per Cents, 23¼; Ditto, 1864, 27; Peruvian Four-and-a-Half per Cents, 82⅞; Portuguese Three per Cents, 47⅞; Russian Old Five per Cents, 92; Ditto, 1862, 89½; Ditto Three per Cents, 54⅞; Spanish Three per Cents, 48; Ditto, Deferred, 40½; Ditto, Passive, 32⅞; Ditto, Certificates, 14⅞; Turkish Old Six per Cents, 91½; Ditto, 1858, 73½; Ditto, 1862, 70⅞; Ditto, 1863, 68; Ditto Four per Cents, 98¾ ex div.; and Venezuela Six per Cents, 42¼.

Joint-stock Bank Shares have been dealt in to a moderate extent, and prices have somewhat improved:—Alliance have sold at 35½; Australasia, 71; Ditto, New, 66; Bank of London, 153 ex div.; Bank of Wales, 15½; Brazilian and Portuguese, 11½; Consolidated, 11¼ ex div.; English, Scottish, and Australian Chartered, 20½ ex div.; European, 15½; Hindustan, China, and Japan, 29½; Imperial, 33¼ ex div.; Imperial Ottoman, 17½; Land Mortgage of India, 5½; London Chartered of Australia, 24; London and County, 80; London Joint-Stock, 48 ex div.; London and South African, 22; London and Westminster, 94 ex div.; Merchant, 28⅜; Mercantile and Exchange, 8¼; Oriental, 58; Ditto, New, 54; Scinde, Punjaub, and Delhi, 11⅝; Union of Australia, 53; and Union of London, 53½.

The Market for Colonial Government Securities has been quiet. Canada Six per Cents have marked 93½; Ditto Five per Cents, 82; Cape Six per Cents, 108⅞; New Zealand Five per Cents, 87½; and Victoria Six per Cents, 108½.

In Miscellaneous Securities a tolerably extensive business has been transacted. Australian Agricultural, 19¾; Ceylon Company, 10; Credit Foncier and Mobilier of England, 8¼; Ditto, New, 5⅜; Credit Foncier of Mauritius, 7; Crystal Palace, 35; East Indian Financial, 6; Egyptian Commercial and Trading, 5¼; Financial Corporation, ¼ ex div.; Financial Discount, 3¼; Fore-street Warehouse, 9¼; General Credit, 7¼; Hudson's Bay, 16¼; International Financial, 7¾ ex div.; Joint-stock Discount, 9¼; London Financial, 23 ex div.; Natal Land, 4¼; National Discount, 15⅜ ex div.; National Financial, 6; Ottoman Financial, 9; Peel River Land and Mineral, 39⅜; Royal Mail Steam, 97; Smith, Knight, and Co., 3⅜; Société Financière d'Egypte, 4⅜; South Australian Land, 39⅜ ex div.; West India and Pacific Steam, 15⅜.

American (Federal) Securities have been in improved request, and prices have advanced about 1 per cent. United States Five per Cents have been 52 to 51; Virginia Six per Cents, 30¼; Erie Shares, 33¼ ex coupon; and Illinois Central, 53.

There has been an improved feeling in the Railway Share Market, and the quotations have tended upwards. The dividend of the Midland Company is at the rate of 7½ per cent. The "calls" for the present month amount to £930,796. Annexed are Thursday's official closing quotations:—

Ordinary Shares and Stocks.—Bristol and Exeter, 93⅜; Great Eastern, 47¼; Great Northern, A Stock, 155¼; Great Western, 82¼; Lancashire and Yorkshire, 118⅜; London and Brighton, 106½ ex div.; London and North-Western, 122¼; London and South-Western, 99; Metropolitan, 129¼; Ditto, New, 6¼; Midland, 138¼; Ditto, Birmingham and Derby, 108¼; North-Eastern—Berwick, 115; Ditto, Leeds, 73; Ditto, York, 106; North Staffordshire, 80¼; South Devon, 58¼; South-Eastern, 87¾.

British Possessions.—Atlantic and St. Lawrence, 57½; Bombay, Baroda, and Central India, 101¾; East Indian, 101¾; Great Indian Peninsula, 101¼; Great Western of Canada, New, 6⅜; Indian Branch, 1¼; Scinde, 99¼; Ditto, Delhi, 100.

Foreign.—Antwerp and Rotterdam, 10; Bahia and San Francisco, 16¼; Sambre and Meuse Five-and-a-Half per Cent Preference, 9¼; South Austrian and Lombardo-Venetian, 21⅜; Turin and Savona, 10; West Flanders Five-and-a-Half per Cent Preference, 9¼.

The return of the Bank of England for the week ending Feb. 4 shows the following results when compared with the preceding statement:—

An increase of circulation of	£383,684	An increase of bullion of	£144,009
An increase of public deposits of	704,653	An increase of rest of	29,136
A decrease of other deposits of	105,939	A decrease of reserve of	242,020
An increase of securities of	867,525

The total circulation is £20,998,178. Public deposits amount to £5,541,452; and private deposits to £14,147,994. Securities are £30,010,983; and the stock of bullion is £14,451,221.

THE MARKETS.

CORN EXCHANGE, Jan. 30.—The supply of English wheat on sale to-day was very moderate. For both red and white qualities the demand ruled inactive, at last week's quotations. Fine foreign wheats changed hands slowly, at full prices. In other descriptions next to nothing was doing, at late rates. Malting barley moved off steadily; other kinds slowly, at last week's prices. Malt was in good supply and sluggish request, at late currencies. Sound oats were firm in price, with a steady inquiry. Heated samples were much neglected. Beans were quite as dear as last week. In peas scarcely any business was transacted. Both English and foreign flour was steady in price.

Jan. 25.—Fine wheat, barley, and oats sold at full prices. Otherwise the trade was very inactive.

English.—Wheat, Essex and Kent, red, 36s. to 41s.; ditto, white, 40s. to 46s.; Norfolk and Suffolk, red, 36s. to 40s.; rye, 26s. to 28s.; grinding barley, 23s. to 24s.; distilling ditto, 25s. to 28s.; malting ditto, 24s. to 35s.; Lincoln and Norfolk malt, 54s. to 61s.; brown ditto, 47s. to 50s.; Kingston and Ware, 54s. to 61s.; Chevalier, 60s. to 62s.; Yorkshire and Lincolnshire feed oats, 18s. to 23s.; potato ditto, 20s. to 25s.; Youghal and Cork, black, 18s. to 20s.; ditto, white, 19s. to 22s.; tick beans, 30s. to 34s.; grey peas, 31s. to 34s.; maple, 34s. to 36s.; white, 36s. to 40s.; boilers, 37s. to 40s. per quarter; town-made flour, 37s. to 40s.; households, 32s. to 33s.; country marks, 27s. to 33s. per 280 lb.; American, 19s. to 25s. per barrel; French, 30s. to 32s. per sack.

Arrivals this Week.—English and Scotch: Wheat, 320; barley, 610; malt, 1650; oats, 1460; flour, 280. Foreign: Wheat, 40; barley, 810; oats, 17,180.

Seeds.—Clover seed still moves off freely, at further enhanced rates. All other seeds command full prices. In cakes very little is doing.

Linseed, English, sowing, 58s. to 61s.; Calcutta, 59s. to 60s.; hempseed, 42s. to 46s. per quarter; coriander, 18s. to 22s. per cwt.; brown mustard seed, 9s. to 10s.; white ditto, 9s. 6d. to 10s.; tares, 8s. 0d. to 9s. 0d. per bushel; English rapeseed, 76s. to 80s. per quarter; linseed cakes, English, £10 to £11 5s.; ditto, foreign, £9 10s. to £11 11s.; rape cakes, £5 5s. to £6 5s. per ton; canary, 50s. to 56s. per quarter; red clover seed, 68s. to 120s.; white ditto, 58s. to 80s. per cwt.

Bread.—The prices of wheaten bread in the metropolis are from 6½d. to 7d.; of household ditto, 5d. to 6d. per 4 lb. loaf.

Averages of Grain.—Wheat, 36s. 6d.; barley, 29s. 0d.; oats, 19s. 3d. per quarter.

English Grain Sold Last Week.—Wheat, 72,510; barley, 71,913; oats, 7804 quarters.

Tea.—There is about an average business doing in most kinds, and prices are fairly supported.

Sugar.—No change has taken place in the quotations. The market, however, is steady. Stock, 106,608 tons, against 74,400 tons last year.

Coffee.—Most descriptions move off slowly, at about stationary prices. The stock consists of 11,198 tons, against 11,071 tons in 1864.

Rice.—This article is in fair request, at full quotations. Stock, 52,291 tons, against 53,131 tons last year.

Provisions.—Both Irish and foreign butter is in fair request, at full quotations. Fine Kiel is worth 128s. to 133s. per cwt. Bacon is firm, at 61s. to 62s. per cwt. for Waterford landed. Lard is held at extreme rates. In other provisions very little is doing.

Tallow.—P.Y.C., on the spot, is steady, at 41s. 6d. to 41s. 9d. per cwt. The stock amounts to 50,320 casks, against 65,624 ditto last year. Rough fat 2s. 2d. per 8 lb.

Oils.—Linseed oil is selling at £32 15s. per ton. Rape is quiet, at £41 10s. to £45 10s.; and fine palm, £36 10s. French turpentine, 69s. per cwt.

Spirits.—The inquiry for rum is steady, at full quotations. Brandy and grain spirits command very little attention.

Hay and Straw.—Meadow hay, £4 4s. to £5 10s.; clover, £5 10s. to £6 10s.; and straw, £1 8s. to £1 14s. per load.

Coals.—Cowper Hartley, 16s.; Harton, 16s. 9d.; Belmont, 17s.; Haswell, 19s. 6d.; South Kelloe, 19s. 6d.; Hartlepool, 19s.; Kelloe, 18s. per ton.

Hops.—Nearly all kinds are a dull inquiry; nevertheless, prices are supported. The best samples are still worth 200s. per cwt.

Wool.—English qualities move off steadily, at very full prices; but foreign and colonial parcels are a dull inquiry, at late rates.

Potatoes.—The supplies are seasonably good, and the demand is steady, at from 65s. to 120s. per ton.

Metropolitan Cattle Market.—Thursday, Feb. 2.—To-day's market was but moderately supplied with beasts, both as to number and quality. Nearly all breeds moved off slowly, at Monday's currency. The general top figure was 5s. 4d. per 8 lb. The show of sheep was limited; nevertheless, sales progressed slowly, at previous quotations. The best Downs, in the wool, realised 6s. 2d. per 8 lb. We were scantily supplied with calves, which met a dull inquiry, at late rates—viz., from 4s. 4d. to 5s. 6d. per 8 lb. Pigs and milch cows were very dull, but not cheaper.

Per 8 lb. to sink the offal:—Coarse and inferior beasts, 3s. 6d. to 4s. 2d.; second quality ditto, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; prime large oxen, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 2d.; prime Scots, &c., 5s. 2d. to 5s. 4d.; coarse and inferior sheep, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 10d.; second quality ditto, 5s. 0d. to 5s. 4d.; prime coarse-woolled sheep, 5s. 6d. to 5s. 10d.; prime Southdown ditto, 6s. 0d. to 6s. 2d.; large coarse calves, 4s. 4d. to 5s. 0d.; prime small ditto, 5s. 2d. to 5s. 6d.; large hogs, 3s. 4d. to 3s. 10d.; neat small porkers, 4s. 0d. to 4s. 6d.; suckling calves, 17s. to 22s.; and quarter-old store pigs, 20s. to 25s. each. Total supply: Beasts, 982; cows, 120; sheep, 3010; calves, 126; pigs, 320. Foreign: Beasts, 110; sheep, 364; calves, 119.

Newgate and Leadenhall.—Beef, from 3s. 0d. to 4s. 8d.; mutton, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 8d.; veal, 4s. 2d. to 5s. 0d.; pork, 3s. 4d. to 4s. 6d. per 8 lb. by the carcass. ROBERT HERBERT.

THE LONDON GAZETTE.

FRIDAY, JANUARY 27.

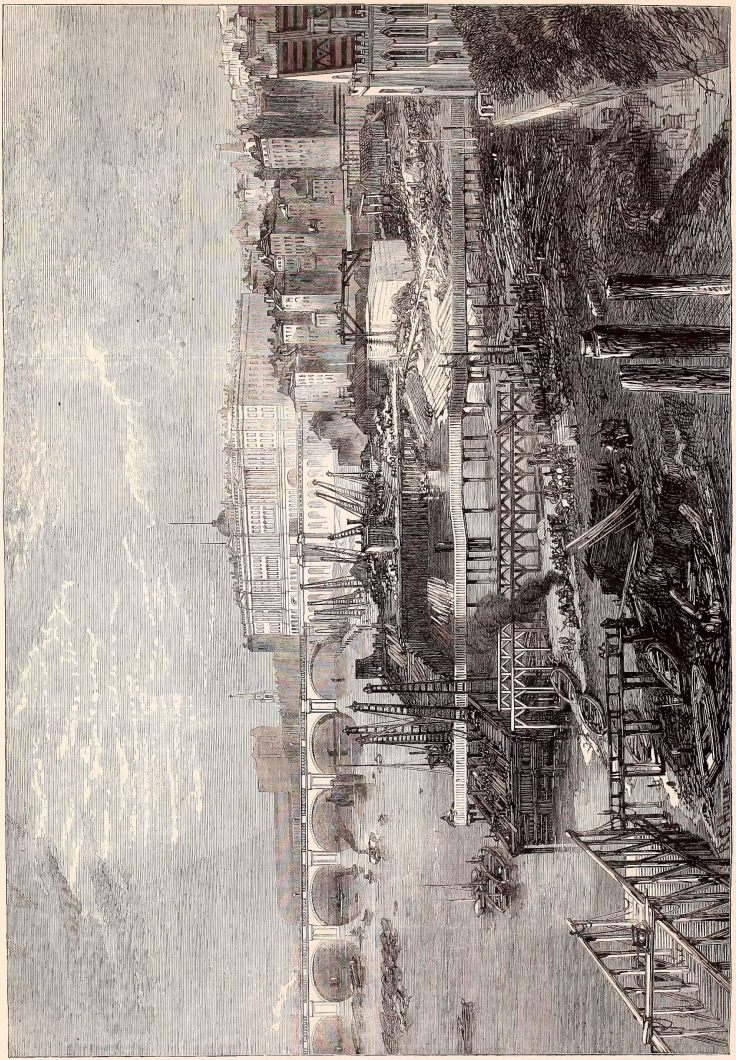
BANKRUPTS.

L. P. TURNER, City, painter.—W. KEYLOCK, City, warehouseman.—J. WHEELER, Walworth, furniture-dealer.—G. COURTHOPE, Grosvenor Park South, coal merchant.—F. W. NIVES, Southampton, hairdresser.—W. FELGATE, Commercial-road, builder.—J. R. R. DOWNIE, Vauxhall-bridge-road.—N. LEVY, Goodman's-fields, printseller.—W. COURTENAY, Pentonville, coaldealer.—S. ISAACS, Paddington, greengrocer.—W. GIBBS, Whitechapel-road, grocer.—J. A. BROWN, Fulham-road, commission agent.—E. PRICE, Pimlico, mason.—H. A. POWER, Soho.—J. F. BENISON, Battersea, butcher.—H. CANHAM, Tabernacle-square, china-dealer.—E. BATTEN, Paddington, plumber.—F. WICKWAR, Walham-green.—S. JACOBS, Knightsbridge, jeweller.—A. W. CLARK, Lower Clapton, dealer in glass.—J. LAKIN, Edgware-road, linendraper.—T. C. HARRIS, Pimlico, miscellaneous dealer.—G. BAXTER, Northampton-square, patentee of printing in oil colours.—C. ROSE, Rochester, baker.—J. WEBSTER, Lee.—A. DEEM, Brighton, auctioneer.—A. WATTS, Freemantle, builder.—J. TUGWELL, Horsham, stationer.—J. RICHES, Kelling, cattle salesman.—H. W. COOMBS, Salisbury, publican.—H. MOORE, Wimborne Minster, attorney.—T. E. COOPER, Birmingham, licensed victualler.—R. REES, Neath, cabinetmaker.—P. CLAR, Kingston-on-Hull, brewer.—P. W. BRACKENBURY, Upton, land surveyor.—W. WHEATLEY, Kingston-on-Hull, pawnbroker.—R. MOORE, Liverpool, brewer.—J. LANCASHIRE, Middleton, crinoline manufacturer.—W. H. JONES, Birmingham, brassfounder.—E. JONES, Liverpool.—W. LESTER, Liverpool, chemist.—E. KNOWLES, Bradford, shoemaker.—H. STEPHENSON, Salford.—N. HOBSON, Hulme.—J. TOMLINSON, LEEDS, joiner.—S. TOWERS, Leeds, carter.—R. LOADER, Preston, French polisher.—E. WILTON, Ely, grocer.—R. DAVISON, Manchester, commission agent.—T. BROMHEAD, Peterborough, corn merchant.—J. HAMPTON, Isle of Wight, horsedealer.—O. BOSTOCK, Whitwick, blacksmith.—E. DAVIES, Halifax, roller-coverer.—W. HARTLAND, jun., North Malvern, butcher.—H. PARKIN, Barrow, shoemaker.—H. HUGHES, Maes-mawr.—J. STEVENS, George Town.—W. GREEK, Little Torrington, farmer.—W. P. POOLE, Honiton, schoolmaster.—J. RICHARDSON, Bradford, ginger-beer manufacturer.—G. TAUNT, Oxford, engine-fitter.—J. BUCKLEY, Tunstall, tobacconist.—H. BULLOCK, Hanley, potter.—J. LOFTHOUSE, Hyde, furniture-dealer.—D. SUTTON, Loughborough, tailor.—W. WOOD, Ashton-under-Lyne.—I. LAWTON, Mossley, dye-winder.

TUESDAY, JANUARY 31.

BANKRUPTS.

E. NYBERG, Bucklersbury, merchant.—C. BAINES, Cheapside, commission merchant.—J. GRIEVES, Poultry, commission merchant.—J. J. WORSLEY, Redcross-street, hairdresser.—H. WERNDLY, Wood-street, watchmaker.—C. MORGAN, St. Luke's, coachsmith.—E. MANIERE, Bedford-row, attorney-at-law.—W. PEDLEY, Bartholomew-square.—J. REED, Bethnal-green, flourfactor.—G. FLETCHER, Kennington Park, newspaper editor.—H. W. SAY, Walworth, bricklayer.—T. W. CHAPMAN, Holloway, builder.—H. WRIGHT, Harrison-street.—J. DICKINS, Hackney-road, licensed victualler.—J. PECOVER, Paddington, upholsterer.—E. B. KEELING, Gray's-inn, architect.—J. COLE, Clapham.—W. HARDING, Blackheath, builder.—M. J. SHANNON, Woolwich, engineer.—W. HALL, Barnes, builder.—W. CROSS, Minster, tailor.—J. WILLIS, Maidstone, ironfounder.—E. F. WATTS, Gravesend, commission agent.—K. BURG and P. HOPKINS, Hastings, booksellers.—W. HARRALD, Bury St. Edmunds.—G. CLUBB, Colchester, engineer.—H. DURRANT, Norwich, grocer.—R. TILL, Worcester, butcher.—W. BARTLEY, Oxford, carpenter.—G. CHAMBERLAIN, Whitchurch, plumber.—J. SPICER, Finedon, innkeeper.—A. JOYES, Birmingham, hosier.—J. BEDDARD, Wombourne.—J. BALLANCE, Birmingham, factor.—H. TAYLOR, Birmingham, factor.—H. MARTIN, Tipton, brewer.—J. WATTS, Kingsholm.—R. C. UNDERWOOD, Cam, miller.—T. H. SMART, Cardiff, outfitter.—D. J. GRIFFITHS, Llandilo, printer.—J. EVANS, Penybont Tyrch.—R. SCOBIE, Bodminland, ironmonger.—J. FINLINSON, Leeds, grocer.—S. BUXTON, Leeds, contractor.—H. HARTOP, Ilkeston, Derbyshire.—E. DAWSON, Sheffield, pianoforte-dealer.—J. MANLEY, Rainford, grocer.—P. JACKSON, G. GRIME, and M. BARRY, Blackburn, cotton-spinners.—T. HALLIWELL, Littleborough, manufacturer.—J. SPEIGHT, Lancaster, rope manufacturer.—J. INGHAM, Colne, tax-collector.—J. ROLLASON, Manchester, metal-broker.—A. WINDGARDH, West Hartlepool, ship-broker.—J. GLAISTER, Saltcoats, cooper.—J. FINNEY, Hanley, butcher.—J. WILDER, Aston, licensed victualler.—P. TOMLINSON, Hanley, tailor.—G. HICKMAN, Birmingham, gunlock filer.—W. CLAGUE, Liverpool, joiner.—J. ARMITAGE, Pudsey, cloth weaver.—W. COCKERILL, Northampton, butcher.—J. TAYLOR, West Tanfield, butcher.—O. WILLIAMS, Ystradgunlais, grocer.—C. W. HAGUE, Lichfield, grocer.—H. HILLS, Gateshead, surveyor.—J. G. RENYON, Wigan, bootmaker.—J. BOND, jun., South Stockton, tailor.



PROGRESS OF THE THAMES EMBANKMENT AT THE TEMPLE GARDENS.

DURING the past week, the works of the Thames Embankment, which had been partially suspended for several days owing to the severe weather, have been resumed with increased vigour, a large number of additional workmen having been engaged. The works of No. 1 Contract (Mr. Furness's), from Westminster Bridge to Waterloo Bridge, are found to be in much better condition than was anticipated, notwithstanding the heavy falls of snow and severe frost. The filling-in is going on favourably; the brick and other dry rubbish, when shot, mixing with the saturated matter and forming a solid concrete. The brickwork within the caissons is rapidly progressing. In No. 2 Contract (Mr. Ritson's), extending from Waterloo Bridge to the east end of the Temple Gardens, the work is proceeding with such dispatch that our Illustration on the next page, engraved from a sketch taken not very long ago, shows rather the space to be covered by the embankment and the apparatus for its construction than the amount of new ground already made. The point of view is nearly opposite the bottom of Inner Temple-lane, looking up the river; and the wall of the Middle Temple garden is shown on the right hand, with the Middle Temple Library. The earth in front of the garden, both here and at the Inner Temple, has now been raised to a level with the garden itself, and nearly the whole space is filled up between the garden wall and the timber scaffolding which marks the outer line of the projected embankment, so that there is little or no water now to be seen within the temporary piles. The long wooden gangway leading from the bottom of Essex-street to the steam-boat pier is a conspicuous feature in the middle of our View. Beyond this part we see another portion of the rising embankment, between Norfolk-street and Somerset House, which was illustrated by the Engraving published in this Journal some months back. In the background are Somerset House, Waterloo Bridge, St. Martin's Church, and the Hungerford Railway Station.

THE MURDER OF TWO BRITISH OFFICERS IN JAPAN.

WE have received from Mr. Wirgman, our Artist and Correspondent at Yokohama, a letter, dated Nov. 30, in which he gives a mournful account of the feelings of grief and consternation which affected the European residents upon hearing of the murder of Major Baldwin and Lieutenant Bird. He relates the affair as follows:—"Last Friday week a party of six of us went out for a trip of five days for the purpose of sketching and photographing. On the Monday we met Major Baldwin and Lieutenant Bird on the Island of Enosima. They were admiring the view of Fusiyama; and we asked them to join our party, as we were going to sleep at Fujisawa, on the Tokaido; but they, unfortunately, declined, as they had not seen the Daiboots, a large bronze idol, near Kamakura. So they left us, intending to return to Yokohama before evening. We continued our way, and arrived safely at Fujisawa, where, shortly after our arrival, Mr. Beato's servant told him that the two officers we had seen at Enosima had been assassinated. We did not believe it at all, and thought it was a Japanese excuse to get rid of us. However, we loaded with ball cartridge, as we had, besides our revolvers, two fowling-pieces; and slept all in the same room, with our weapons by our side. When we woke next morning a Japanese officer came in and said he had been sent down by the Governor of Yokohama to see if we were safe, as two English officers had been attacked the night before at Kamakura, and one was dead, but the young one was wounded. We had our breakfast and returned to Yokohama by the Tokaido, as had been our intention. We met only one procession, which tranquilly passed us, and we arrived in Yokohama at midday, where we were informed that it was true that the two officers had been murdered, and both were dead. The unfortunate Lieutenant Bird had been killed many hours after he was wounded. By whom he was killed, we do not know; but the Vice-Governor was down there the evening of the attack, and he should have been able to discover who cut the wounded men's neck and gave the mortal blow. I may observe that I myself had been sketching there the evening before with only one companion: so safe did we think it that we left our revolvers at the inn, and walked along the narrow avenue, which was to be the scene of blood so soon, till we arrived on the beach—a most melancholy spot, as we remarked at the time. Sandhills blown about by the wind, a few weird and blasted pines, their branches torn by storms; the murmuring sea; and, in the distance, the ever-smoking volcanic island of Vries, all illuminated by the yellow sunset and quickly advancing night. We sat to sketch the place, and did not leave till dusk."

It appears from the report of the coroner's inquest that, on the morning of Nov. 21, these unfortunate gentlemen, Major George Walter Baldwin and Lieutenant Robert Nicholas Bird, both of the second battalion of her Britannic Majesty's 20th Regiment, left Yokohama, on horseback, for an excursion to Kamakura and Daiboots. About half-past ten they arrived at Enosima, which place they left about twelve o'clock, with the intention of proceeding to Daiboots. The same night information from the district authorities was sent in to the Governor of Yokohama that two foreigners had been assaulted at or near Kamakura; that one was dead, but the other was yet alive. This information having been communicated (about two o'clock in the morning of the 22nd) to the foreign Consuls, Dr. Lindau, the Swiss Consul; Mr. Von Brandt, the Prussian Consul; and other foreign residents went out to the place indicated; Lieutenant Woods, with a party of mounted artillery, and Mr. Fletcher, Interpreter to the British Legation, being ordered to proceed hither in all haste. A little after daylight

PROGRESS OF THE THAMES EMBANKMENT AT THE TEMPLE GARDENS.—SEE PREVIOUS PART.

SKETCHES IN JAPAN. BY OUR SPECIAL ARTIST.

JAPANESE SOLDIERS IN YOKOHAMA.

A REFRESHMENT-STALL IN YOKOHAMA.

they arrived at the threefold road leading from the Great Temple, Hatchioma, where it divides into three smaller roads, one, leading to Daibootz, to the right, the second straight on to the sea, and the third into the country to the left. Near this spot and between a miserable tea-house and a hut for horses, in two small sheds of mats propped up by bamboo, and disposed on mats laid on the ground, were found, most horribly mutilated, the bodies of the two unfortunate gentlemen, the pistol of one of them—one barrel of which appeared to have been recently discharged—by his side, that of the other yet undrawn from his belt. All the inquiries made by Mr. Fletcher failed to elicit any information. No one knew anything but that there the bodies were, and that one of the deceased, the younger one, who said his name was Bird, had lived several hours.

The bodies of the two Englishmen were brought back by water to Yokohama, where an inquest was held on them, at which the following verdict was returned :—"From the evidence brought before them, the jury verdict was returned :—"From the evidence brought before them, the jury have no doubt that this atrocious crime was the act of Japanese swordsmen unknown. The jury further find that their attack must, in all likelihood, have been made on both sides simultaneously, and by a party of five or six ruffians at the very least, but possibly of even greater numbers. The jury are further of opinion that the Japanese evidence read in court is utterly worthless, and that there must be ample testimony in the possession of the Japanese authorities, or attainable by them, descriptive of the whole circumstances of the tragedy."

The funeral was attended by the Ministers and Consuls of all the Powers which have representatives at Yokohama, and by 150 men from the French frigate Semiramis, in addition to the firing-party of 240 men of the 20th Regiment. It is needless to dwell on the indignation which this cruel murder has excited. Sir Rutherford Alcock, the British Minister, has expressed his determination to leave no means untried to secure the punishment of the murderers.

We shall engrave next week our Correspondent's Sketch of the Avenue leading to the Temple of Kamakura. In the meantime we give a couple of his Illustrations of Japanese life and manners, which convey their own explanation.

HER MAJESTY'S THEATRE.—The New Opera, LARA, every Evening during the Week. To be followed by the Burlesque, THE LION AND THE UNICORN. Commence at Seven.

ROYAL LYCEUM THEATRE. Under the Sole Management of Mr. FECHTER.—On MONDAY, and during the Week, SIMPSON AND CO.—Messrs. S. Emery, C. Horsman, Collett, Miss Henrade, Mrs. C. Horsman, Miss Horsman, and Miss Elsworthy. After which, at Half-past Eight, THE ROADSIDE INN—Messrs. Fechter, C. Horsman, Fitzpatrick, Garden, Raymond, and Collett; Misses Percy and Elsworthy. To conclude with THE BEARFACED IMPOSTORS: Messrs. H. Widdicomb, Moreland, Collett, and Garden; Misses B. Percy and E. Laveno.

NEW GREAT NATIONAL STANDARD THEATRE, Shoreditch.—The best Pantomime in London—DAME DURDEN; or, Harlequin Robert and Richard Were Two Pretty Men, Every Evening, at Quarter to Seven. All should see the Farmyard and magnificent Transformation Scenes. Concluding with the great Drama of THE WAITS; or, a Christmas Story.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—THIS DAY (SATURDAY), CONCERT and AFTERNOON PROMENADE. Vocalists—Mdme. Louisa Vinning and Mr. W. Coates (from the Royal English Opera—first appearance). Solo, Pianoforte—Mdme. Arabella Goddard. Conductor—Mr. Manns. Programme includes Symphony No. 4, in B flat—Mendelssohn; Solo, Pianoforte, Fantasia on Airs from "Mirella"—Lindsay Sloper; Overture, "Melusine"—Mendelssohn. Palace lighted up. Admission, Half a Crown; or by Guinea Season Tickets, free. Numbered Reserved Seats, Half a Crown, on sale at the Ticket Stands in the Naves.

NOTE.—"A more agreeable means of passing a winter afternoon can hardly be imagined than is now provided every Saturday at the Crystal Palace."—Vide Newspapers.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—MONDAY to FRIDAY, MR. STOKES the GREAT MNEMONIST, will give daily, at Three o'Clock, in the Lecture Theatre, Tropical Department, his Entertainment, illustrated by marvellous feats of memory by his pupils. Admission to the Palace, as usual, One Shilling. No extra charge to the Lecture-room.

CRYSTAL PALACE.—SUMMER in WINTER.—Luxuriously Warm and Dry. MONDAY to FRIDAY, NEXT WEEK.—ARRANGEMENTS DAILY:—
Orchestral Band, 12.30
Mr. Stokes on "Memory," in the Lecture-room, 3.0
Great Organ, 3.30
Orchestral Band, 4.30

The Thousand and One other Attractions of the Palace include the New Picture Gallery—The Fine Arts Courts, in variety and beauty unequalled in the world—The Decorations of the Palace with the Great Christmas Tree—Shakspere House—Montanari Models—Swings, Roundabouts, Invigorators, and other popular Amusements—Galleries of Models and Ships—Amour-plates and Armstrong 40-pounder, lent by official authority—The extraordinary Chimpanzee—The unique Aquarium—All these things render the Crystal Palace the One Place for Holiday Enjoyment. No extra charge to the Lecture-room.

Admission, Monday to Friday, One Shilling. Open for Admission from Ten to Six o'Clock.

Saturday, CONCERT, Half a Crown.

ROYAL POLYTECHNIC.—IMPORTANT DISCOVERY. The Human Breath on the Screen—Explanation daily, at 2.15 and at 7.30, by Professor Pepper. The discoverer, Mr. W. Lens Aldous, will be in attendance to delineate the breath of any visitor by appointment.

SOCIETY OF FEMALE ARTISTS. NINTH SEASON.—The EXHIBITION of the Works of this Society is NOW OPEN, at the GALLERY, 48, Pall-mall, St. James's, from Ten till Five. Admission, One Shilling; Catalogues, Sixpence. E. D. MURRAY, Secretary.

ST. JAMES'S HALL, Piccadilly. COMMODORE NUTT and MINNIE WARREN, 18 and 20 years of age, 24 and 29 inches high.—THREE GRAND LEVEES DAILY, at Eleven, Three, and Eight. They will sustain the following extraordinary and amusing characters:—"Misfortunes of Lizzie and Johnnie," Grecian Statues and Tableaux, Best man and Bridemaid to General Tom Thumb, "Matrimonial Sweets," &c. Commodore Nutt in his great personations of the "Perfect Cure," "Sailor with Hornpipe," Grenadier Drummer, "Stump Orator," "Paddy O'Rooke," &c. Box Office open one hour in advance. Day Exhibition, 1s., 2s., and 3s.; in the evening, 1s. to all parts of the hall, except a few reserved seats at 2s. Children half price to the 2s. and 3s. seats.

MONDAY POPULAR CONCERTS, ST. JAMES'S HALL.—On MONDAY EVENING NEXT, FEB. 6, the Programme will include Hummel's celebrated Septet for Pianoforte, wind and stringed instruments; Mozart's Divertimento for two Horns and stringed instruments; Dussek's Invocation Sonata for Pianoforte alone, repeated by desire. Executants—Mdme. Arabella Goddard, MM. Straus, L. Ries, H. Webb, Daubert, Severn, Pratten, Barret, C. Harper, Standen. Vocalists—The Misses Wells. Conductor—Mr. Benedict. Sofa Stalls, 5s.; Balcony, 3s.; Admission, 1s. Tickets at Chappell and Co.'s, 50, New Bond-street; Cramer and Co.'s; Keith and Co.'s; and at Austin's, No. 28, Piccadilly.

PHILHARMONIC SOCIETY — Professor Sterndale Bennett, Mus. D., Conductor.—FIRST CONCERT MARCH 20. Subscription to the Series of Eight Concerts, 4 guineas. Family Tickets of not less than four, 3½ guineas each. Single Tickets, 15s. each. Tickets for former subscribers will be ready Feb. 13; for new subscribers, March 1.—Sole Agents, Addison and Lucas, 210, Regent-street.

MR. and Mrs. GERMAN REED, with Mr. JOHN PARRY. Every Evening (except Saturday) at Eight, Saturday at Three. THE RIVAL COMPOSERS, THE BARD AND HIS BIRTHDAY, and MRS. ROSELEAF AT THE SEASIDE. ROYAL GALLERY OF ILLUSTRATION, 14, Regent-street. Opera di Camera, THE SOLDIER'S LEGACY, and TOO MANY COOKS, every Tuesday and Thursday at Three.

NATIONAL CHORAL SOCIETY, EXETER HALL. Conductor, Mr. G. W. Martin.—JUDAS MACCABÆUS, WEDNESDAY NEXT, FEB. 8. Commence at Half-past Seven. Principal Vocalists:—Madame Rudersdorff, Miss Palmer, Mr. Sims Reeves, Mr. Weiss. Band and Chorus, 700. Tickets, 2s., 3s. Numbered Stalls, 5s., 10s. 6d., 21s. Immediate application necessary.—14 and 15, Exeter Hall.

FEB. 9.—ST. JAMES'S HALL.—Mr. HENRY LESLIE'S CHOIR.—Madrigals and Part-Songs.—Mr. Sims Reeves, Herr Ludwig Strauss. Tickets, 6s., 3s., 2s., 1s.; Stall Tickets for four, 21s.—Addison and Lucas, 210, Hammond, 214, Regent-street; Keith, Prowse, No. 48, Cheapside; Austin's, 28, Piccadilly; and all Musicsellers. Season subscriptions, 21s. and 10s. 6d.

THURTON'S ODD FOLKS, with a new piece of Extravagance, termed GOING TO COURT; and Portraits of Miss Bateman as Leah, the Japanese Dandy, and other Novelties. At STAFFORD, MONDAY, FEB. 6; Wellington, 7; Shrewsbury, 8; Weim, 9; Crewe, 10; Chester, 11. Manager, Mr. J. Morfey.

TO SECRETARIES of LITERARY INSTITUTIONS and Others. LECTURE on THE STARS, illustrated by means of the Magic Lantern. For syllabus, testimonials, and terms, address M. T., College House, Southgate, London, N.

DAY and SON (Limited).—Applications for Shares cannot be received after THURSDAY NEXT, the 9th inst. Prospectuses can be obtained at the offices of the company, 6, Gate-street, Lincoln's-inn-fields; at the Solicitors to the Company, Messrs. Lake, Kendall, and Lake, 10, Lincoln's-inn; or at the Broker's, E. Haslewood, Esq., Founders'-court, Lothbury, London.

SMART'S SOLE WRITING INSTITUTION, corner of Swallow-street, Quadrant, Regent-street. Open from Ten till Nine daily. Persons of all ages received (privately) and taught at any time suiting their own convenience. Lessons one hour each. No classes. No extras. Improvement guaranteed in Eight to Twelve Easy Lessons. Separate rooms for Ladies, to which department (if preferred) Mrs. Smart will attend. For prospectuses, terms, &c., apply to Mr. Smart, as above.

N.B.—Agent to the West of England Insurance Company.

ILKLEY WELLS HOUSE HYDROPATHIC ESTABLISHMENT, near Otley, Yorkshire. Resident Physician, Dr. William Philip Harrison.

The absolute purity and extreme dryness of the air of Ilkley are too well known to require comment. An equable temperature is preserved in the spacious corridors by Stuart and Smith's Patent Apparatus, rendering this superb mansion a desirable WINTER RESIDENCE for the invalid, at which season the treatment is equally efficacious with the summer. For prospectuses apply to Mr. STRACHAN, House Steward as above.

LONDON HOMŒOPATHIC HOSPITAL, Great Ormond-street, W.C.—A DINNER in aid of the Funds of this Hospital will be held at the ALBION TAVERN, ALDERSGATE-STREET, on WEDNESDAY, FEB. 22. The Right Hon. Lord Ebury in the chair. The friends of homœopathy are earnestly requested to support the Festival, either by their presence or subscriptions.

Dinner Tickets, 21s. each, to be obtained at the Hospital, and of the Homœopathic Chemists.

NEW BOOKS.

THE NEW AND POPULAR NOVELS.

CHRISTIAN'S MISTAKE. By the Author of "John Halifax, Gentleman," &c. 1 vol.
BEATRICE. By JULIA KAVANAGH. 3 vols.
THE HAMMONDS OF HOLY CROSS. By LADY BLAKE.
BLOUNT TEMPEST. By the Rev. J. C. M. BELLEW. Second Edition, revised. 3 vols.
HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Royal 8vo, with numerous beautiful Coloured Illustrations,

A JOURNEY from LONDON to PERSEPOLIS, including Wanderings in Daghestan, Georgia, Armenia, Kurdistan, Mesopotamia, and Persia. By J. USSHER. HURST and BLACKETT, Publishers, 13, Great Marlborough-street.

Elegant Gift-Book.—Second Edition now ready, with Frontispiece by F. Gilbert, toned paper, crown 8vo, price 6s.,

BEAUTIES OF TROPICAL SCENERY, LYRICAL SKETCHES, AND LOVE-SONGS. With Notes. By R. N. DUNBAR.

"This is a charming volume; the poems are full of vitality, and rich, varied beauties."—Morning Post.
"The love-songs are worthy of Thomas Moore."—Critic.
"It is adorned with a delicious frontispiece."—Illustrated Times.
London: ROBERT HARDWICKE, 192, Piccadilly.

Price 1s., Monthly,

THE ENGLISHWOMAN'S DOMESTIC MAGAZINE.—Contents of No. 2, Vol. I., New Series (FEBRUARY):—Gilmour's Ward. Chaps. V. to IX.—A Chat with Dulcy. Chaps. IV., V., and VI.—Royal Kidnapping. (Poetry.)—Familiar Lines. "A Good Time Coming." With full-page illustration.—The Little Grey Cat in the Garret; or, The Miser's Legacy. By the Author of "The Kiddle-a-Wink." Part I.: The Old House. Chaps. I., II.—Saint Valentine and Saint Martin.—A History of Lace. Illustrated.—The Fashions. Illustrated.—The Englishwoman's Conversazione.—La Mode.—Operas and Musical Entertainments.—"Fer Valour." By Thomas Hood. Chaps. III., IV.—Madame's Pilgrimage. An Aged Lady's Story.—Baby.—The Countess's Coiffure. By a New Author. In Fifteen Brief but Emotional Chapters. Chaps. VI. to X.—Our Paris News-Letter.—Answers to Correspondents.—Mildred's Wedding. Pages 401 to 416. FASHIONS AND NEEDLEWORK.—A Sheet of Designs, containing information about Fashion, Dress, and Needlework. The full-sized Patterns for cutting out two pretty Dress Sleeves. A large prettily-coloured Fashion Plate. A Coloured Plate of Ladies' Coiffures and Fashionable Hats. An engraved steel Fashion Plate. A magnificent Banner-Screen Pattern, printed in colours. A cut-out tissue Pattern for a Velvet Jacket. Illustrations of a morning dress—couvrette in crochet and embroidered linen—the medallion collar and sleeve—two morning cuffs—crochet pelerine and cuff in imitation of ermine—scarlet knitted muff and cape to correspond—two cravat ends—embroidered end for Cashmere scarf—ball dress in silk, covered with puffed tulle—four evening coiffures—young lady's velvet hat—fashionable bonnet—maize-coloured crape bonnet—blue velvet bonnet, embroidered with jet stars—crochet carriage rug, or railway wrapper, four illustrations—braided slipper, ornamented with beads—the Altesse ceinture, &c. A Specimen Number sent post-free for twelve stamps.
London: S. O. BEETON, 248, Strand, W.C.

THE PARSEES IN LONDON.—See THE ALEXANDRA MAGAZINE AND ENGLISHWOMAN'S JOURNAL for FEBRUARY. Now ready. Price 6d.
London: JACKSON, WALFORD, and HODDER, 27, Paternoster-row; and all Booksellers.

Just published, royal 8vo, in handsome cloth, price 10s. 6d.,

THE STUDY OF THE HUMAN FACE. Illustrated by Twenty-Six Full-page Steel Engravings. By THOMAS WOOLNOTH, Esq., Historical Engraver to the Queen.
List of Subjects illustrated:—

Pride	Voluptuousness
Tyranny	Sensuality
Resolution	Sauciness
Obstinacy	Avarice
Cunning	Affectation
Cunning in the Imbecile	Satire
Deceit	Irritability
Conceit (Gay)	Amiability
Conceit (Grave)	Vanity
Sagacity	Abstract Beauty
Envy	Beauty with Intellect, and with Intellect and Expression
Ill-Nature	Plainness
Malignity	Plainness with Intellect, and with Intellect and Expression.
Spite
Inflexibility

London: W. TWEEDIE, 337, Strand.

Now ready, handsomely printed in two colours, mounted, varnished, and gilt moulding, or in cloth case, 1s. 6d.,

A MEMORY SHEET OF THE GREAT EVENTS OF BRITISH HISTORY, from the Roman Conquest to the Reign of Queen Victoria. Edited by EDWARD FARR. Size, 34 in. by 24 in.
WILLIAM WESLEY, Paternoster-row.

Price 2s. 6d.; per post, 2s. 8d.,

PRACTICAL LETTERS on the Nature, Causes, and Cure of CATARRH, SORE THROAT, BRONCHITIS, ASTHMA, AND CONSUMPTION. WITH CASES. By ROBERT HUNTER, Doctor of Medicine, University of New York; Licenciate School Med. and Surg. N.Y.; Licentiate Med. and Surg. Medical Board of Canada; late Editor N.Y. Journal, "Diseases of the Lungs," &c. WITH PREFACE By JOHN J. MACGREGOR, M.D., M.R.C.S.E., formerly Physician to Commercial Trav. Association, &c. Third Edition.

CONTENTS.

1. Prevalence and Fatality of Consumption and kindred diseases in Great Britain.
2. On Colds, Catarrh, and Œzena.
3. On Sore Throat.
4. On Chronic Laryngitis and "Clergyman's Sore Throat."
5. On Chronic Bronchitis.
6. On Pulmonary Consumption.
7. On the Symptoms of Consumption.
8. On Spitting of Blood and Hemorrhage.
9. On Chronic Consumption.
10. On Galloping Consumption.
11. On Latent Consumption.
12. On Consumption in Children.
13. On the Causes of Consumption.
14. On the Duration and Complications of Consumption.
15. On the Curability of Consumption.
16. On the Cure of Pulmonary Consumption.
17. On Asthma.
18. On the Cure of Asthma.
19. The Air as a Source of Disease.

London: C. MITCHELL and CO., 12 and 13, Red Lion-court, Fleet-street, E.C.

THE PALL-MALL GAZETTE. An Evening Newspaper and Review.

It is difficult to describe the plan of an enterprise like the "Pall-Mall Gazette" without seeming to boast, or to decry the efforts of others. But we are unwilling to lose the advantage of a few words of explanation, and we therefore trust the candour of the reader for a just interpretation of our meaning.

The "Pall-Mall Gazette" will contain all the news proper to an evening journal. But, addressed as it will be to educated men and women, the space of the paper will not be occupied by trifling chronicles nor by that excess of words which adds nothing to the interest of newspaper records while it destroys their significance. Literary considerations alone would determine us to have our news reports written in plain English; but, beyond these, there is the fact that the lessons to be found in many an accident of human life or social polity are lost in the turgid language in which they are commonly narrated.

Events made known by the morning papers may be discussed in the "Pall-Mall Gazette" of the same day, but they will not be reported anew. Trustworthy advices from the Money Market will be included in the news of the day.

The rest of the paper (by far the greater part) will be made up of original articles upon the many things which engage the thoughts, or employ the energies, or amuse the leisure of mankind. Public affairs, literature, the arts, and all the influences which strengthen or dissipate society will be discussed by men whose independence and authority are equally unquestionable, and who are accustomed to regard the public expression of opinion as a serious thing. This is the chief aim of the "Pall-Mall Gazette:" to bring into Daily Journalism that full measure of thought and culture, which is now found only in a few reviews.

At the same time we by no means intend to make the Paper pedantic or solemn. Humour is too powerful, as well as too pleasant, to be left out of the design; which will lose none of the advantages of occasional trifling. If a thing can be said better in verse than in prose, it will be said in verse. Epigram, but not spite; burlesque, but not vulgarity; will be readily admitted into its columns; and since a joke is often as illustrative as an argument, good jokes will be welcome too.

It will be understood that this Advertisement is rather a proclamation of idea and of effort than of promise. But the proclamation is not made before a large number of able writers have accepted the idea, and pledged themselves to the effort.

Office of the "Pall-Mall Gazette,"
14, Salisbury-street, Strand, W.C.

THE PALL-MALL GAZETTE, an Evening Newspaper and Review, will APPEAR on TUESDAY, FEB. 7. Price Twopence.

NEW BOOKS.

Now ready, in fcap 8vo, price 6s.,

EDEN, and other Poems. By ALFRED DIXON TOOVEY.

"I congratulate you on the steps you have achieved up the steep and arduous ascent."—The Right Hon. W. E. Gladstone.
"I am proud of your book, and it takes a prominent place in my bookcase of presentations. There are some parts of 'Modern Life' which, in my humble opinion, are equal to the productions of Rogers himself."—Eliza Cook.
"It is seldom we meet with a volume of poems of so much real merit as the present, and no one can read them even in the most cursory manner without being struck with the genuine spirit of poetry which they display. Some of the poems were published many years since; and of one of them, 'Modern Life,' Mr. Samuel Rogers, the gifted author of 'The Pleasures of Memory,' expressed his very high appreciation. Of those in the volume which are new, the highest commendation we can give is that they are equal to the best of those in the former publication."—Observer, Jan. 8, 1865.
London: LONGMAN, GREEN, LONGMAN, ROBERTS, and GREEN.

Just published (Chapman and Hall), crown 8vo, gilt edges, price 5s.,

THE BOOK OF PERFUMES. By EUGENE RIMMEL, with above 250 Illustrations.
"One of the curiosities of the season."—Morning Post.
"Beautifully got up, and most interesting."—United Service Gazette.
"Not only an elegant, but a really instructive volume."—Observer.
To be had of all Booksellers; or of the Author, 96, Strand; 128, Regent-street; and 24, Cornhill London.

HARDWICKE'S SCIENCE GOSSIP about Animals, Aquaria, Bees, Beetles, Birds, Butterflies, Ferns, Fish, Fossils, Lichens, Microscopes, Mosses, Reptiles, Rocks, Seaweeds, Wild Flowers, &c. 4d., Monthly. No. 2, February, 1865.
HARDWICKE, Piccadilly; and all Booksellers.

THE LADIES TREASURY for FEBRUARY Price Sixpence.
The January Number contains the £5 Prize Enigma.
HOULSTON and WRIGHT, 65, Paternoster-row.

Pocket Edition, now ready, price 3s. 6d., cloth,

THE COMPANIES ACT, 1862, with Analytical References and Copious Index, together with an Appendix containing Table B Joint Stock Companies Act, 1856, and Rule 4 in Chancery under Companies Act, 1862. By ANTHONY PULBROOK, Solicitor.

Also, by the same Author, price 2s. 6d., cloth,

A TREATISE ON COMPANIES LIMITED BY GUARANTEE, showing their applicability to Mining, and other commercial purposes.
EFFINGHAM WILSON, Royal Exchange.

By the Author of "The Heir of Redclyffe."

A New Tale, THE PRINCE AND THE PAGE, was commenced in the MONTHLY PACKET for January. Price 8d.—London: J. and C. MOZLEY, 6, Paternoster-row.

THE CORSET DEFENDED. By MADAME DE LA SANTE. Now ready, price eighteenpence; post-free for nineteen stamps.
London: THOS. E. CARLER, 55, Liverpool-street, King's-cross.

Eighth Edition, price 1s.; by post, 13 stamps,

ON THROAT DEAFNESS THROUGH THE INTERVENTION OF THE MUCOUS MEMBRANE. By JAS. YEARSLEY, M.D., Surgeon to the Ear Infirmary, Sackville-street, &c.—CHURCHILL and SONS, New Burlington-street.

POSTAGE-STAMPS.—A PRICED CATALOGUE of FOREIGN POSTAGE-STAMPS sent, post-free, for two stamps, by W. LINCOLN, jun., 462, New Oxford-street, London, W.C. Standard Guide to Postage Stamp Collecting, post-free, 1s. 1d.

TO INVENTORS.—All intending Patentees should procure the HANDBOOK presented gratis by the GENERAL PATENT COMPANY (Limited), 71, Fleet-street, E.C. Patents obtained at moderate charges, and special facilities afforded to Inventors. R. MARSDEN LATHAM, Sec.

VALENTINES.—The largest and best selection at HENRY REED'S, Stationer, 57, Oxford-street. New and elegant designs, at prices from 6d. to 2 guineas. A beautiful Valentine sent post-free, in box, on receipt of 2s. 6d., 5s., 10s. 6d., and upwards. Valentines for Children.

RIMMEL'S NEW PERFUMED VALENTINES.—The Valentine of the Language of Flowers; the Sachet Valentine, the Photographic Valentine, the Mirror Valentine, St. Valentine's Glover. All 1s. Either sent by post for 14 stamps.—96, Strand; 128, Regent-st.; and 24, Cornhill, London.

THE PHOTO-CHROMATIC COLOUR BOX, enabling any person, without a knowledge of painting or drawing, to paint photographs, producing a beautiful enamelled appearance, with 12 Colours, all requisite materials, specimens, and full directions, price 10s. 6d.—London: J. BARNARD and SON, 339, Oxford-street; and of all Artists' Colourmen, Stationers, &c.

5000 ELEGANCES FOR PRESENTATION. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

5000 ELEGANCES FOR WEDDING PRESENTS. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

5000 ELEGANCES FOR BIRTHRAY GIFTS. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

5000 ELEGANCES FOR PRIZES. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

5000 ELEGANCES FOR DRAWING-ROOM or STUDY. ASSER and SHERWIN, 81, Strand, London.

DIAMOND WORK, A BARGAIN. Two Pairs of Handsome Diamond Earrings. Price £85 and £60. RICHARD A. GREEN, 82, Strand, W.C.

WATCHES and CLOCKS.—FREDC. HAWLEY (successor to Thomas Hawley), many years watchmaker by special appointment to his late Majesty George IV., invites inspection of his carefully-finished Stock, at 148, Regent-street, W. Elegant Gold Watches, £2 15s. to £35; Silver Watches, £1 5s. to £12 12s. Eight-day Timepieces, 12s. 6d. Clocks, striking hours and half-hours, £2 15s. and upwards.—Frederic Hawley, Watchmaker, 148, Regent-street, W. (from the Strand and Coventry-street). Established nearly a century. Merchants and Shippers supplied.

DENT, Chronometer, Watch, and Clock Maker by special appointment to her Majesty the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, and Maker of the Great Clock for the Houses of Parliament, 61, Strand (adjoining Coutts's Bank), and 34 and 35, Royal Exchange.

THE MAGIC DONKEYS.—Roars of Laughter.—These wonderful animals go through their extraordinary evolutions at 252, Strand, from Ten till Four. The pair sent post-free for 14 stamps.—H. G. CLARKE and CO., 252, Strand.

UNIVERSAL MICROSCOPE Price £5 5s.—SMITH, BECK, and BECK, 31, Cornhill, E.C. (late 6, Coleman-street). Catalogues sent on receipt of six postage-stamps.

EVERY MAN HIS OWN PRINTER.—The People's Printing Press, from £1 5s. to £4 4s., for Letterpress, Copperplate, or Lithographic Printing. "Art of Printing," "Art of Lithography," 1s., or 13 stamps each.—D. G. BERRI, Engraver and Stampmaker to her Majesty's Post Office, 36, High Holborn, London, W.C.

NEW STYLE of CARRIAGE, to open and close at pleasure, invented and patented by LAURIE and MARNER, Carriage and Harness Manufactory, Oxford-street, Union-street, and Tenterden-street, Hanover-square.

NEW MUSIC.

THE GOOD-BYE AT THE DOOR, for Piano. By STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for 18 stamps. A brilliant, easy, and effective transcription of this beautiful song. DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SONG—"HOME ONCE MORE." Composed by STEPHEN GLOVER. Sent for fifteen stamps. This ballad, by the composer of the celebrated "Good-bye at the door," will be equally popular with that decided favourite, as it is both pleasing and attractive.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-st.

PARFAIT AMOUR. Romance for Piano. By E. L. HIME. Played by Master Willie Pape before the Prince and Princess of Wales at Marlborough House. "One of the most exquisite romances we have ever heard."—Review. Sent for 15 stamps.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

NEW SACRED SONG, MORNING PRAYER. Composed by E. L. HIME. Sent for 15 stamps. The truly beautiful words of this song are here admirably set to music.—DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

THE BROOK. Nocturne. By E. L. HIME, Composer of "Parfait Amour," "Queen of Hearts," "Mazurka de Salon," &c. Sent for 18 stamps. A charming piece. DUFF and HODGSON, 20, Oxford-street.

Admired everywhere. Played everywhere. Danced everywhere.

THE MATRIMONIAL GALOP, by A BENEDICT, most facetiously illustrates the vicissitudes of Admiration, Flirtation, Declaration, Acceptation, Preparation, Celebration, Felicitation, Alteration, Irritation, Altercation, Desperation, and Separation. Post-free, 1s. 6d. The Matrimonial Polka, 1s. 6d. OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Eight Hundred Years Old. 10th Edition.

MAGDALENA, CEASE THY WEEPING. Sacred Song. By Peter the Venerable. Translated by the Rev. J. A. Ross. Composed by C. G. HAMILTON. In F and A flat. With Latin and English Words.
"The most interesting and beautiful sacred song ever published." Post-free, 1s. 6d.; also as a Pianoforte Piece, 1s. 6d.
London: OETZMANN and CO., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square.

Fifty-fifth Edition of the much admired Drawing-room Piece,

LA PRIÈRE EXAUCÉE (The Prayer Granted). Reply to "La Prière d'une Vierge." Par THECLA BADARZEWSKA. Post-free, 1s. 6d.—OETZMANN, 27, Baker-street.

MUSIC HALF PRICE and Post-free. Oetzmann's New and Valuable Catalogue of all the most popular Music of every Composer and Publisher, post-free, 6d. OETZMANN and Co., 27, Baker-street, Portman-square, London, W.

MARRIOTT'S SING, BIRDIE, SING, VALSES. On the popular song of Ganz. Graceful, melodious, and pleasing. Unequalled for dancing. Price 4s., Solo or Duet. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE BANTING QUADRILLES. By MARRIOTT. On the Popular Comic Tunes of the day. The most successful quadrille of the season. Splendidly Illustrated. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

THE PUNCH AND JUDY QUADRILLES, on Popular Comic Tunes, by H. S. ROBERTS. Decidedly the merriest set that has been published for many years. Solo or Duet, price 4s.—ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

KUHE'S BLUE BELLS OF SCOTLAND. Of the numerous transcriptions of this beautiful Melody, not one is comparable to this immensely-successful piece. Price 4s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

GOLDBERG'S BIRD OF THE FOREST. The new and much-admired Song, sung by Mdlle. Liebhart at all the concerts on her provincial tour with immense applause. The most successful song since Ganz's "Sing, birdie, sing." Price 3s. ASHDOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover-square.

MARRIOTT'S JOLLY DOGS POLKA. 3s. Galop, 3s. Immensely successful. The best marked for dancing ever published. Played everywhere. ASHOWN and PARRY, 18, Hanover square.

NAAMAN. The New Oratorio, by M. COSTA. The Nobility and Gentry who intend subscribing for this work are requested to send in their names immediately to the Publishers, as the list must shortly be closed. Vocal Score, One guinea; Full Score, Three guineas. ADDISON and LUCAS, 210, Regent-street, W.

CLARIBEL'S New Song. SWALLOW, COME AGAIN. Price 3s. Can be had of all musicsellers throughout the United Kingdom.
"Claribel has, without doubt, produced another ballad that will rival in popularity a long line of its predecessors from the same fair hands. The melody is original and interesting, suitable for a voice of moderate compass."—Queen, and Lady's Newspaper.

"Spring is passing, wand'ring swallow,
We can see thy last year's nest,
Hidden by the climbing rose-trees
'Neath the eaves thou lov'dst the best,
Soon the roses will be budding,
April days are on the wane,
And we miss thy cheerful twitter,
Swallow, swallow, come again."

HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, London, W.

GATHERING HEARTSEASE. By BESSIE PALMER. Price 3s. Miss Palmer's Song, which is already a great favourite, can be had of all Musicsellers throughout the United Kingdom.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, London, W.

IL FOLLETTO, Grand Galop de Concert, price 4s.; and UNA NOTTE D'ESTATE, Nocturne, price 4s., Composed by TITO MATTEI, Pianiste to the King of Italy, and played by him at the Crystal Palace and at the principal concerts in London, are both ready, and can be had of all Musicsellers. HUTCHINGS and ROMER, 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, London.

WALTER MACFARREN'S last Composition, WILL O' THE WISP, Galop di Bravura, Price 4s., is now ready.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

OH! WILT THOU BE MY BRIDE, KATHLEEN? FRANK ROMER'S Popular Song, Price 2s. 6d. The words from Mr. Mark Lemon's new novel, "Loved at Last." "Set to music by one of our most graceful composers."—See Novel.—HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street.

WASS' COMPLETE SINGING METHOD, price 6s., and all this gentleman's popular songs, "Had you ever a Cousin, Tom," &c., can be had of the publishers, HUTCHINGS and ROMER (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

HUTCHINGS AND ROMER (late Leader and Cock) beg to inform their Friends, the Nobility, and the Trade, that they have removed from Bond-street, and request that all orders for their publications be sent direct to them. Their spacious Pianoforte Gallery, with the well-selected stock by Erard, Collard, Kirkman, Broadwood, Hopkinson, Allison, and other makers is now open.—Hutchings and Romer (late Leader and Cock), 9, Conduit-street, Regent-street, W.

STANDARD ELEMENTARY MUSICAL WORKS by J. T. STONE:—Elementary Instructions for the Pianoforte, 16th Edition, 5s.; Facile Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3rd Edition, 4s. Just published, Instructions for the Pianoforte, 3s. This Pianoforte Tutor has been expressly written for young pupils. The publishers confidently invite the attention of teachers to this work as being one of the best and most modern of all elementary works for the pianoforte.
BREWER and CO., 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

STEPHEN GLOVER'S EXERCISES for Perfecting the Execution:—Away with Melancholy—on scales; Auld Lang Syne—repeated notes; Home, Sweet Home—on arpeggios; Du du Liegst—on the turn; Long, long ago—on the shake; Kelvin Grove—on octaves; Hope told a flattering tale—on reversed positions; The Swiss Boy—on grace notes; Cease your funning—for strengthening the fingers; Within a mile of Edinburgh town—on style; The Scherzo; 'Twere vain to tell—The Cantabile; The British Grenadiers—The Brillante. The attention of professors is particularly directed to these pleasing studies for the pianoforte, which will be found admirably adapted to ensure the rapid progress of the pupil. Price 2s. each.—London; BREWER and CO., No. 23, Bishopsgate-street Within.

PIANOS (TOLKIEN'S) on EASY TERMS of PURCHASE, by small Payments, extending over a term of one, two, three, or four years.—TOLKIEN, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S EXHIBITION MODEL COTTAGE PIANO, seven octaves, the cheapest and best in Europe.—TOLKIEN, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

PIANOS.—TOLKIEN'S 35-GUINEA PIANOFORTE, seven octaves, full iron, 78 inches high, and sounds Piano can be made.—TOLKIEN, Manufacturer, 27, King William-street, London Bridge.

TO LOVERS OF MUSIC.—Just arrived from Paris a very fine Stock of Genuine Improved MUSICAL BOXES. The most popular Airs from "Faust," the Overture to "Tell," Quadrel, four tunes each, 4 guineas.

MUSICAL BOX DEPÔT for the SALE of NICOLE'S celebrated Musical Instruments is REMOVED from No. 11 to 21, Cornhill, London. A large assortment of all sizes, from Geneva, has arrived. Lists of Tunes and Prices gratis and postage-free.

PLATE.—A. B. SAVORY and SONS, 11, Manufacturers to the Queen and H.R.H. the Prince of Wales, 11, Cornhill, opposite the Bank. The best wrought SILVER SPOONS and FORKS, Extra patterns. Fiddle, Thread, and Kings pattern. Table Spoons and Forks, per dozen ... £1 4 0 £1 12 0 £2 0 0 Dessert Ditto ... 0 14 0 1 0 0 1 6 0 Tea Spoons ... 0 6 0 0 8 0 0 10 0 Dessert Ditto ... 0 10 0 0 14 0 0 16 0 Gravy Spoons ... 0 13 0 0 17 0 1 0 0 Sauce Ditto ... 0 6 0 0 8 0 0 10 0 Sauce Spoons (gilt) ... 0 6 0 0 8 0 0 10 0 Fish Slice (pierced) ... 0 12 0 0 16 0 1 0 0 Tea Spoons ... 0 18 0 1 12 Tea Spoons ... 1 4 1 10 0 Fish Carvers, per pair ... 0 12 0 0 16 0 1 0 0 A pamphlet is published, with 300 Engravings, as a Guide to the stock in the Show-rooms. It contains the weights and prices of every article of Plate and Electro-plate, and the Cutlery, Lamps, Tea Urns, Kitchen of ornamental plate for private use or presentation, and also the best silver-plated ware-dishes, pearl and silver window, dishes, and decanters. Sterling silver, electro-silver-plated, and the best quality of the British Cast Metal.

Every article warranted, and exchanged, or the money returned, if not approved of. Orders, with remittance, a week is printed with large illustrative drawings of Plate, ready for presentation.

SLACKS' SILVER ELECTRO-PLATE is equal in wear to sterling silver.

For Dining, Drawing, Ivory Table Knives, full Size, Balance Handles, Fine Table Forks ... £1 0 0 and £1 10 0 £1 5 0 £1 10 0 Dessert Ditto ... 0 12 0 0 16 0 0 18 0 Carvers ... 0 12 0 0 16 0 0 18 0 Table Spoons ... 1 10 0 ... 1 18 0 Dessert Knives ... 0 12 0 ... 0 15 0 Dessert Forks ... 0 12 0 ... 0 15 0 Tea Spoons ... 0 18 0 ... 0 18 0 Kitchen Knives & Forks ... 0 5 0 ... 0 6 0

Catalogues gratis or post-free. Orders carriage-free by rail.

No. 336, Strand, next Somerset House, London.

TABLE-GLASS, China, and Chandeliers. LAMPS FOR INDIA.

J. DEFRIES AND SONS, 147, Houndsditch.

CHANDELIERS, MODERATOR, and CARCEL SUSPENSIONS, in bronze, ormolu, and crystal, for dining-rooms, billiard-rooms, &c. Superior Table Lamps, Bells, standard and bracket lamps, candelabra, and tripods.

F. TREADWELL, 45, Berners-place, Oxford-street, W.

BEDSTEADS, BATHS, and LAMPS. WILLIAM S. BURTON has six large Show-rooms devoted exclusively to the Sale of Bedsteads, Baths, Lamps, and Furniture Ironmongery. Each of such is at once the largest, newest, and most varied ever exhibited to the public, and medical or public practitioners, purchasers, and strangers will find a visit to these rooms repay the time it may occupy.

Bedsteads, from ... 12s. 6d. to £20 0s. 0d.
Baths, from ... 12s. 6d. to £20 0s. 0d.
Lamps (Moderator) from ... 7s. 6d. to £7 7s. 0d.

All other kinds at the same rate.

Pure Colza Oil, 4s. per gallon.

Illustrated Catalogues (free by post) free.

39, Oxford-street (No. 1, Newman-yard); 1, 2, 3, and 4, Perry's-place; and 1, Newman-yard, London.

DRAWING-ROOM FURNITURE (walnut) in rich silk, in suite, consisting of a splendid mahogany and walnut couch, two easy chairs, and nine chairs, £25 10s. 6d.; in plain damask, to match, £20 10s.; in rich tapestry, to match, £18 18s.; in plain tapestry, £16 16s.; in rich morocco, £15 15s.; in plain morocco, £13 13s. Also any of the best quality, and to be SOLD by the very best manufacturers in the trade. On view at the Show-rooms of the FURNISHING COMPANY, 13, Sloane-street, Belgrave-square.

FURNITURE, Carpets, and Bedding.—See the Illustrated Catalogue (free by post) of the Furnishing Company for goods at less than any other house. The following are examples: Handsome rose pink-dined Couch, fringe, LEWIS CRACKNORE and CO., 77 and 78, Rheingan-road, Knightsbridge. Country orders carefully packed.

J. MAPLE and CO.'s CHINEY-GLASSES, in Gold and Japanese Frames and decorated with Flowers from their own Manufactory.

Size of Plate. Outside Measure of Frame. Price.
40 by 30 inches ... 50 inches wide by 39 inches high ... £10 10s.
60 by 36 inches ... 82 inches high by 45 inches wide ... 21 0s.
72 by 48 inches ... 96 inches high by 60 inches wide ... 31 10s.
84 by 60 inches ... 14 inches high by 80 inches wide ... 52 10s.

Larger sizes in proportion. Among which are several handsome Pairs. Also, a Stock of Chiney-glasses, in Gilt and Japanese Frames, from 10s. 6d. to £100 each.

Entrance, 143, Tottenham-court-road.

J. MAPLE and CO.'S FIRST-CLASS FURNITURE.

Facilities are chiefly necessary with durability and elegance should be combined. Purchasers are recommended to visit these Show-rooms, where such rare, novel, and exquisite Furniture as is non-to-moor furnished may be seen free of expense. An Illustrated Catalogue (containing 400 Engravings) may be had gratis or post-free.

Entrance, 145, Tottenham-court-road.

The next door, although, in the same house, is not connected.

J. MAPLE and CO. for CARPETS! CARPETS!

Strict Records for Reference ... from 1s. 4½d. per yard.
Good Hearthrugs ... from 2s. 6d. per piece.
Very choice ditto, now in hand, at 3s. 6d., 4s., 5s. per yard.
Velvet Pile Carpets ... from 5s. 6d. per yard.
Worsted, Tapestry, and Turkey Carpets.

145, 146, 147, Tottenham-court-road; 1 and 2 in 3, Tottenham-court-place.

CRETONNE, the French Chintz, requires no cottonizing; is both chaperl and unshrinkable.—J. MAPLE and CO. have a large stock of this fashionable and beautiful fabric for Curtains or Covering for Sofas, Chairs, &c., at moderate prices.

CONVERTIBLE OTTOMANS for centre of the room, that can, two minutes and by one chair-a great improvement.—W. H. FILMER and SON'S, 31, 32, and 34, Berners-street, Oxford-street. An Illustrated Circular free by post.

FURNISH YOUR HOUSE with the best article at DEANE'S Ironmongery and Furnishing Warehouse, established A.D. 1700. Illustrated Catalogue and Price-list sent free by post.

Deane and Co. (the Monument), London Bridge.

GROVER and BAKER'S, 150, Regent-street, Manufactory, 59, Bell-street, Liverpool, celebrated LOCK-STITCH SEWING-MACHINES, with all the latest improvements, adapted for every description of work in the Family, Tailoring, and Shoe Manufactures, are strongly recommended, as the most essential work with good facility. They stitch, hem, fell, tuck, gather, bind, braid, bind, and embroider, are very simple, compact, and not liable to derangement. Noisy thread now used. Prices, £5 5s., £7 7s., £10 10s., and upwards. Prospectus with illustrations post-free. Instruction manuals and guide post-free.—Grover and Baker, 150, Regent-street, W.

THE GROVER and BAKER SEWING-MACHINE COMPANY hereby give public notice that they have removed the Showing-Machine Rooms hitherto held by Messrs. Grover and Baker, from 59, Bell-street, Liverpool, to 150, Regent-street, Manchester. The Offices and Manufactory of the Company are now established at 150, Regent-street, London, W., and 59, Bell-street, Liverpool.

THOMAS'S PATENT SEWING-MACHINES, for Private Family use, Dressmaking, &c. They will Hem, Bind, Braid, Gather, Tuck, Cord, &c. Illustrated Catalogues and samples of the work may be had on application to W. E. Thomas and Co., 67, Berners-street; and Regent-street, Oxford-street.

SPRING SEASON, 1865.

KING and CO. SILKMERCERS, &c., 243, Regent-street, W., respectfully announce that they are now showing their first delivery of NEW SPRING and BLACK SILKS, ordered expressly for the present season, and which, for quality and moderate market value, London only which to assert passing the elevated prices stated make their Spring purchases this month.

Patterns sent post-free to all parts of the world.

Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London.

PATTERNS FORWARDED, by return of post, of NEW SPRING SILKS at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

Striped Silks, 1½ yd. wide, 2½ gs. the full dress of 14 yards.
Checked Silks ... 2½ gs.
Corded Silks ... 2½ gs.
Glacé Silks ... 2½ gs.
Plain Silks ... 2½ gs.
Brocade Reversible Silks ... 3 gs.
New Striped Silks ... 3 gs.
Checked Silks ... 3 gs.
Corded Silks ... 3 gs.
Richest Moiré Antiques ... 3 gs.
Patterns sent post-free.
Address to King and Co., Regent-street, London, W.

PATTERNS POST-FREE.

£35 7s 6d BLACK SILKS, at KING'S, 243, Regent-street.

Black Glacé Silks, 1½ yd. wide, 2½ gs. the full Dress of 14 yards.
Black Brocaded Silks ... 2½ gs.
Black Corded Silks ... 2½ gs.
Black Gros Grain Silks ... 2½ gs.
41 ins. Silk ... 2½ gs.
Black Satin Silks ... 2½ gs.
Black Striped Silks ... 2½ gs.
Black Reversible Brocaded Silks ... 3 gs.
Black Checked Silks ... 3 gs.
Black Drap de France ... 3 gs.
Black Corded Silks ... 3 gs.
Black Moiré Antique Silks ... 3 gs.
Richest Black Moiré Antiques ... 3 gs.
Patterns sent post-free.—Address to King and Co., Regent-street.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.

Last year's Striped, Checked, and Fancy Silks, 1½ yd. wide, all 21s. 6d. and 25s. 6d. the Full Dress, of 14 yards, worth double.
The New Rich Fancy Brocade Silks ... 2½ gs. 3½ gs.
Note, useful, and reliable Black Silks, from 21 7s. 6d. to 3½ gs.
198, Regent-street, London.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.

Rich Corded Silks dresses both ways, all 21 5s. 6d. Full Dress.
Rich Glacé Silks, all 21 5s. 6d. Full Dress.

CHEAP SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S, Patterns free.

12,000 yards of Rich Striped Silks, very lasting, all at 2s. 6d. and 2s. 11d. per yard, worth double.
198, Regent-street.

BLACK SILKS at BAKER and CRISP'S.

Rich, Bright, Wide, and Durable Glacés, Gros Grains, Drapes, Satins, Checks, Stripes, Brocades, Failles, Poult de Soies, Gros de Suez. Full Dress ... Regent-street.

LAST YEAR'S MUSLINS, BARÈGES, and BAREGES, Grenadines, Mohairs, &c., at half the original prices. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

EMBROIDERED MUSLIN DRESSES. 6s. 9d., worth One Guinea.—BAKER and CRISP are now selling a large quantity of Rich Embroidered Muslin Dresses, Grenadine Muslin, Grenadine, and Tarlatan Dresses, at the above price. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

FLOWERS, FEATHERS, BEADS, PEARLS, &c.—BAKER and CRISP'S Stock of the above, from Regent-street, have purchased, and are now selling, the whole of Messrs. Lewis and Allenby's Stock, of 13 and 14, New Bond-street, at Half Price. Ostrich Feathers, Tips, Pearls, Beads, Flowers, Diamonds, Pearl Ornaments, &c., &c. Patterns free.—198, Regent-street.

MOURNING MUSLINS, BARÈGES, Grenadines, Crapons, Crapes, Veils, Tarlatans, Capes, Stripes, Checks, Muslins, Cambrics, Grenadines, Barèges, Mohairs, &c., at half the original prices. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

AS FINE AS HUMAN HAIR, Three to Six Inches Long, Price 1s. 6d. per Packet. Sent free for 18 Stamps. Post-free for 24 Stamps. Address to Mr. Clarke, 5, Bedford-row, Holborn, London.

EVENING GRENADINES, 6s. 9d. Full Dress. Several hundred Pieces of Coloured Grenadine and Tarlatan Dresses, from 6s. 9d. to 12s. 6d., the extra Full Dress. Patterns free.—BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

1500 DOZEN SOILED FRENCH CAMBRIC HANDKERCHIEFS, Ladies' and Gentlemen's, at Half Prices. Ladies', 1s. 6d. per dozen; 2s. 6d., 3s., 4s., and 5s. 6d. per dozen. Patterns free.

BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

12,000 YARDS, all at 1s. 6d. and 1s. 9d. per Yard, Plain Glacé Silks, of Useful Fast Colours, Reversible and Treble Twilled, for the extension of Skirtings and Dressmaking. Patterns free.

BAKER and CRISP, 198, Regent-street.

THE EUAPTONIC EIDER-DOWN PETTICOAT is the most healthful, as well as the most fashionable, for the present season, and, by all physicians whose opinion I have consulted, is considered the most healthful article of dress. The Corset can be inspected and purchased at the Shop, Great Portland-street, Oxford-street, London. Illustrated Circular free by post. Corsets to measure.—Patterns free.

EIDERDOWN PETTICOATS. These Petticoats, now for many years honoured by Royal and Noble patronage, are found to be supported for elegance, lightness, and comfort. List of prices on application.

WILLIAM CARTER, 4, Conduit-street, Regent-street.

RUMPHORE CHUDDAH SHAWLS in all the Colours.—PARKES and ROGERS have just received, direct from the Looms, a Case of Rumphore Chuddah Shawls, in all the Colours, which they are now selling at 21 5s. each. The Rumphore Chuddah Shawl is much esteemed for their peculiar softness, warmth, and durability.

PARKES and ROGERS, 245, Regent-street, and 4, Conduit-street.

GOLAND and SON, FUR MANUFACTURERS, 99, Oxford-street, The oldest and Richest in London. Rich Fur Seal Jackets; Velvet and Cloth Cloaks lined and trimmed with Fur; Fur Wrappers, Coats, Rugs, &c.

ROYAL SCOTCH WAREHOUSE, 2, SCOTT ARE, 113, Regent-street.

Exclusive Patterns in the Clans of Tartans.

SHIRTS.—Morning and Evening Shirts of every description, fitting with precision and ease, at moderate prices. Flannel Shirts and Dressing-gowns.

CAPTAIN and WATSON, 65, Regent-street, London, S.W.

SPECIAL NOTICE!!

Now ready for sale, upwards of 3000

WORKED WHITE MUSLIN DRESSES in Three Lots.

Lot 1.—Rs. 8d. each, Full Dress Sufficient for Twenty.
Lot 2.—Rs. 9d. each, Full Dress Sufficient for Twenty.
Lot 3.—Rs. 9d. Sufficient for Twenty.

Selling fast from our limited the original cost.

This is, without exception, the largest and most desirable stock of

PATTERN DRESSES EVER OFFERED.

PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

1000 REDUCED SILKS.

Upwards of One Thousand Dresses have been selected, and are now marked at 2½ gs., 3 gs., and 3½ gs. full dress, being one-half the original cost.

at PETER ROBINSON'S, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

RICH CORDED SILKS (with Velvet Edge), including the Royal Italian, the Empress Eugénie, the Jupiter Bee, and the Alexandrine, at 3½ gs. the Full Dress 14 yards.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

NOW READY, IN GREAT VARIETY,

TARTAN BALL DRESSES.

Numerous Patterns, in Black, White, or Coloured grounds, at 2½ gs., 3 gs., 3½ gs., and 4 gs. the Full Dress.
Fancy Tartan Silks for Jackets, in any quantity.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

PLAIN STRIPED OR BROCHÉ

RICH SILK ROBES, in Black Grounds, adapted for Dinner, Evening, or Ball Dresses, Some very rich Robes, 3½ gs. the Full Dress.
Patterns free.—PETER ROBINSON, 103 to 108, Oxford-street, W.

ABERDEEN LINSEYS.

Just just purchased several hundred Pieces of Fine Scotch Linseys,

and to clear them at 5½d. and 6½d. per yard, the usual price for the same good being 9d. and 9½d.

Patterns free.—Peter Robinson's, 103 to 108, Oxford-street.

ALSO SEVERAL HUNDRED PIECES OF

LAST YEAR'S PRINTED MUSLINS,

Finest Quality and Designs, equal to new, An endless variety of Patterns, 6½d. per yard, post-free.
